The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 1 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday September 9 1998

Turn inside for these and many other stories

•CAMPUS CONSTRUCTION: Renovations continue on the Old Chapel, Fine Arts Center and elsewhere on campus. See page 11

ARTS & LIVING

•A DAY IN THE LIFE: Missed Bridget Jones' Diary despite all the hype, check out our review. See page B5.

•MYSTERIES AND SCANDALS: VH-1 has scored a hit with its "Behind the Music" series. See page B6.

•MOOD MUSIC: Find out what we thought of some of summer's best and worst music releases. See page B7.

•BOOGIE NIGHTS: Disco's resurrection missed a beat with the recent release of 54, check out our review on page B8.

SPORTS

•ANOTHER RUN: [illegible] to return to [illegible] See page C2.

•A NEW ERA: [illegible] a freshman [illegible] soccer [illegible]

INSIDE

News .....page 1

Arts & Living ....page B1

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Police seek three-year deal

UM officers want raise, recognition

By Lorraine Kennedy and Laura Forster
Collegian Staff

Members of the University of Massachusetts police department are dissatisfied with their contract and are taking action to make their concerns public.

University police are seeking a three-year contract which would include benefits comparable to those extended to police officers in other towns and cities, according to Officer Brian Narcewicz, president of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers (IBPO) Local 432A unit and six-year veteran of the UMass police department.

The department's contract expired in December 1997 and has been under negotiation since January of this year.

In June, the administration offered the department a one- year extension of its current contract with no change in existing language, Narcewicz said. The department then offered a counter-proposal, which was not rejected by the administration in its entirety.

Among the issues on the bargaining table are educational incentive benefits and a salary increase. The administration has offered limited educational incentive benefits and a 3 percent raise on the current base salaries of members of the department, approximately $20 a week, Narcewicz said.

Turn to POLICE, page 6

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

University of Massachusetts police, frustrated over the status of current contract negotiations, have used signs and informational pickets to inform the public of their concerns.

Vice chancellor Robinson resigns; Cevallos named to interim post

By Mike Puffer
Collegian Staff

Tom Robinson, former vice chancellor of student affairs at the University of Massachusetts, is heading west after resigning from the position last month.

Robinson, whose resignation was effective Aug. 1, moved to Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind. to take the position of vice president for student services.

"I valued him as a colleague and as a friend, he did a lot of good things while he was here and he will be missed," said Paul Page, vice chancellor for administration and finance.

According to Ellen Sailer, special assistant to the vice chancellor of student affairs, Robinson didn't seek out the job but was actively recruited by Purdue. She said it was not a case of him going after the new position but rather, "the job coming after him."

Robinson said it was very difficult to leave the University because he "loved it" and the job there. But he said he decided to make the move because he couldn't pass up the opportunity when it presented itself.

F. Javier Cevallos, chair for the Portuguese and Spanish department at the University, was appointed interim vice chancellor of student affairs by Chancellor David K. Scott. Cevallos will serve as the interim vice chancellor for one year, during which time a permanent replacement for the position will be sought.

A committee has yet to be formed to find a replacement but it is expected to take shape sometime after February 1999. The search is being postponed to allow another committee, which is examining the Office of Student Affairs, to submit recommendations for changes in the office to Scott.

Cevallos will be continuing the work of bringing areas of campus together started by Robinson.

"Our main function is to educate students in an environment which is productive and positive. We cannot do it separately. We must do it together," Cevallos said.

In his six years with the University, Robinson worked to

Turn to ROBINSON, page 2

CATE guide not in contract

SGA calls for inclusion, despite faculty concerns

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association's (SGA) proposal for a mandatory, student-available Course and Teacher Evaluation (CATE) was not included in the current faculty contract.

The three-year contract, that does not include the CATE guide, is awaiting acting Governor Paul Celucci's approval. But according to Rena Singleton, student coordinator of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA), there is no rush for him to sign it.

The legislature, which is required to give its approval to the contract, does not come back into session until January.

During this time period, SGA leaders hope to have members of the UMass community contact the governor, and ask him to send the contract back to the University for renegotiations which will add the CATE guide to the contract.

SGA President Salwa L. Shamapande sent a letter this summer to UMass students asking them to contact Celucci and request he return the contract so the CATE guide can be included in it.

According to Singleton, the contract only includes a recommendation for a task force to be set up in order to "look at the possibility of a standardized form, and [get] information to students."

Singleton also said the task force, composed of representatives from the faculty and student body, will start research when the administration submits representatives.

Associate Chancellor Susan Pearson could not be reached for comment on the lack of administrative representatives on the task force.

"We already did 5 1/2 years of research on whether or not this could work," Singleton said. "The contract didn't set any goals, it was just set up to look at the issue. Ideally, this would have been done and decided; an agreement would have been made to make all parties involved happy."

President of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, Jenny Spencer, is concerned about ethical ramifications of the guide.

"Privacy is a major issue. Students don't have their grades published," she said.

Spencer also suggested making evaluations available to students might lead to a change in teachers' performance, but not for the better.

But Singleton disagrees.

"It's not about students' grades. All other public employees have evaluations. Grades help you better yourself. I don't know why the faculty is not willing to have the same kind of tool," she said.

Turn to CATE, page 6

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

As good as new

University employees have worked all summer to get the campus ready for the fall semester.

Four call University home, as swans make return to Campus Pond

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

Four Trumpeter swans will now call the UMass Campus Pond their home, replacing Sydney the Swan, who died last year.

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

Four Trumpeter swans were added to the University of Massachusetts campus pond this summer to replace longtime campus pond resident, Sydney the Swan.

The rare, once endangered Trumpeter swans have been added to the pond, but their genders are still mysteries.

"There is at least one female and one male among them and possibly two of each sex, raising the possibility of a breeding program on campus," said Marc Fournier, director of grounds management, in a press release.

The year-old swans were brought to the pond in late July from Rhode Island and already act right at home," Fournier said.

Sydney had been featured in University publications and was, to some, a symbol of the University.

The resident swan died unexpectedly last fall.

"Generations of UMass students have fond memories of watching swans glide about the Campus Pond," Fournier said. "I received many calls from concerned alumni."

Trumpeter swans are a kinder, gentler species and show more affection towards people than the type of mute swan Sydney was. Mute swans are a more aggressive and territorial species.

Also, the Trumpeters should prove easier to care for than Sydney, who was difficult to catch and shelter during the winter.

Except for unusually cold or severe conditions, the swans will be able to spend winters on the pond.

"The veterinary and animal sciences people are happy because they won't have to move them," Fournier said. "Basically, these are low maintenance birds."

Including their snowy white plumage and elegant, long necks, trumpeter swans weigh an average of 30 pounds. They also swim with their necks held erect which can emit a deep sonorous call. In contrast to Sydney and his Mute swan predecessors, which swam with their necks in an "S" curve.

Swans, are followers of monogamy and at about the age of three mate for life. If the birds now on the UMass campus turn out to be two male and two females, it's possible there will be two couples of love birds in the pond.

These swans also boast the largest population of waterfowl in North America and are the largest swans in the world.

While they live at the pond rent free they came at a cost to the University of $400 each.

Unlike Sydney, these swans will not be dining on bread crumbs and hand outs.

The University has posted "No Feeding the Swans" signs all around the campus pond.

The Trumpeter swans have their

Turn to SWANS, page 2

■ swans

continued from page 1

own specified diet and feeding them would disrupt their natural processes.

A vending machine may be placed nearby so that people can appropriate food and then have the opportunity of feeding the swans.

While Sydney's name was known on campus the new resident foul are unnamed, in part because of their unknown sex status.

However, the winged birds will no longer be anonymous after an upcoming contest open to all groups and individuals will hopefully find names for the swans.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

One of UMass' new swans gets comfortable in the Campus Pond, where it will join three other Trumpeter swans.

Amherst bar owners still allow smoking, despite town-wide ban and possible fines

By Jessica Carroll
Collegian Staff

A smoking ban imposed on all bars in Amherst as of July 1 has caused a commotion among bar owners.

The ban, passed by town voters, is a non-criminal law which strictly prohibits smoking in all bars and restaurants except those characterized as private clubs, such as Veterans of Foreign Wars clubs.

It is up to the owner of the bar to enforce the ban.

"The owner is responsible for enforcing the ban as opposed to the Board of Health," said Steve Winiman, the lawyer representing the bar owners in court.

A total of eight bars in Amherst are affected by the smoking ban.

Jerry Jolly, general manager for Rafters and the Pub, said bar owners find the ban unenforceable.

"It's an unfair type thing, but we're doing the best we can," Jolly said who allows smoking in designated sections in Rafters and the Pub.

In protest of the ban, some bar owners are posting signs stating smoking is permitted in the establishment.

Tobacco Control Coordinator Marlene Leach said it is the bar owner's First Amendment right to have a sign stating smoking is allowed in their establishment, but a fine is given to a proprietor for not enforcing the ban.

If a Board of Health member witnesses people smoking in a bar or restaurant, that individual will ticket the owner.

"The ban does not provide ticketing or punishment of he smokers themselves, just the owners," Winiman said.

Any bar owner who permits smoking in their establishment will be fined $100 for their first offense.

If they violate smoking regulations a second time within a 24-month period, they will pay a $200 fine.

The highest penalty that can be served is a suspension of any license or permit issued by the Board of Health.

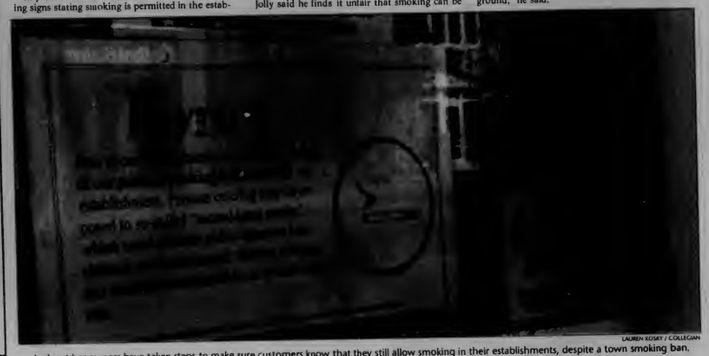
According to Massachusetts State Law, there has to be at least 25 percent of a bar or restaurant set aside for non- smokers. So up to 75 percent of the restaurant or bar can allow smoking.

Jolly said he finds it unfair that smoking can be banned in bars and restaurants from town to town when it is not banned by state law. In addition, he said the smoking ban could cause economic hardship.

"That is not something I agree with," said Epi Bodhi, Amherst health department director. "Sometimes [the bans] attract more business."

The Board of Health wrote the smoking regulations in 1994 and bars and restaurants were expected to comply with the ban. The regulations were revised in 1998 and took effect April 1. But bars were given until July 1 to comply with the ban.

The debate over compliance with the smoking ban is coming to a head in the legal system.



Because some bar owners have decided not to enforce the ban, Leach said the Board of Health is pursuing an unspecified legal option.

Jolly said bar owners are planning to fight the ban through the legal system.

"We're hoping the Board will give us a second consideration," Jolly said.

A court date has not been set, but Winiman said a battle is being prepared.

"We fully intend to fight on more than one ground," he said.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

Amherst bar owners have taken steps to make sure customers know that they still allow smoking in their establishments, despite a town smoking ban.

■ Robinson

continued from page 1

bring various departments of the campus together.

"I tried to open lines of communication and break down barriers," Robinson said.

"Tom engineered the idea that teams of people from different offices could come together to be more effective and productive," Page said.

In addition to bringing campus departments together and creating more streamlined bureaucratic systems, Robinson also worked to keep students a top priority.

Ken Burnham, assistant vice chancellor for campus activities, said Robinson had a "deep caring" for the students that was often overlooked during times of crisis such as the Goodell protest.

In addition, Robinson was named Administrator of the Year in 1996 by the UMass Student Government Association (SGA).

Lisa Cook, speaker of the student senate, said Robinson went out of his way to assist the SGA. According to Cook, Robinson made it a point to come to SGA functions and to be aware of the important issues the SGA faced.

UMass issues newly designed alocohol policy

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

Starting this fall, students at the University of Massachusetts will face stricter, more consistent sanctions for violations of the school's new alcohol policy.

The revised sanctions, created by the Student Affairs Judicial Issues Committee, will separate on-campus violations into two tiers.

The first tier of infractions includes underage possession and/or consumption of alcohol or having open containers of alcohol in a public space.

The second tier, which carries more severe sanctions, includes possession of a keg or large volume of alcohol or dispensing alcohol to minors.

Assistant Dean of Students Paul Vasconcellos said that this new tier system is different from the prior system in two major ways.

"The biggest change is that on the first offense the student will receive alcohol education, which will include issues surrounding state alcohol laws, as well as psychological and behavioral effects," Vasconcellos said.

The education consists of a new program, a one-time workshop which meets for two hours in addition to Residential Education Alcohol Program (REAP), a more intensive counselling and educational program.

"The second biggest change is there is more of a focus on the effects of violating the alcohol policy," Vasconcellos said. "It's made explicit to students. If you choose to engage in this kind of behavior, here's the impact."

Vasconcellos said housing relocation, removal and possible suspension from school are all sanctions that will be employed.

SGA President Salwa Shamapande, who last year was part of an SGA alcohol policy task force said the penalties are meant as a preventative measure.

"I think the sanctions are really part of a deterrent process. We'll see at the review at the end of the year if they were effective or not," he said.

He also stressed that the addition of more education to the alcohol policy was a beneficial step.

Speaker of the Senate Lisa Cook announced Vasconcellos will speak to the Student Senate to clarify the differences in the sanctions from last year.

Shamapande said regardless of policy changes, students still have to obey the law.

"Reaction will be concerned. It's right to be concerned because the administration and town can come down on students like they're bad," he said. "We need to educate students on what has and hasn't changed. The fact that you can't drink if you're under 21 is not a change."

Vasconcellos recalled the quality of living in the residence halls when there was a more lenient alcohol policy at the University.

"I worked on campus for a number of years. When I first worked in the residence halls there was only a no open container policy," he said. "Students have the right to live in a healthy space, and at that point, the behaviors were not conducive to a safe living environment.

"Our main goal is to provide students with an academically and socially successful experience."

Although the tiers will not be published in the 1998-99 Residence Hall Manual, all students living in the residence halls will receive a brochure detailing the policy as part of their check-in process. Additionally, over the summer, parents of returning students received a letter that addressed the new tier system.

The alcohol policy, as before, will primarily affect students living on-campus, however Associate Chancellor Susan Pearson, who was not available for comment, has set up a task force to examine how the alcohol policy will apply to off-campus students.

Hill Boss, an Amherst Selectman and member of the Amherst-University of Massachusetts Partnership committee, feels that students off-campus should be under the same code of conduct as on-campus students.

"The new alcohol policy will have a beneficial impact in Amherst. But it will be an even better impact if the policy is applied to off campus too," he said. "I know it would be difficult but if in fact anti-social behavior results in alcohol abuse on campus it exists off campus. Students are students."

Cook disagreed.

"I think when UMass students move off campus they should be treated as Amherst residents, not under the jurisdiction of school. Because there aren't resident assistants off campus, it would be difficult to apply the policy," she said.

"What Hill Boss is talking about is crucial," Shamepande said. "There is a negative perception of UMass students in town, just UMass students. It's not even about the alcohol policy."

Brand Opening

DUNKIN' DONUTS®

UMass Mullins Center Practice Ice Rink

Open Daily 6 AM - 9 PM

Join us for our Grand Opening Celebration Monday, September 14th

Free Coolatta™ Sampling
Prizes, While Supplies Last

• Meet Dunkin' Donuts Mascot •

Free Donut

Good only at the UMass Mullins Center
One coupon per customer per visit. May not be combined with any other coupon or premium offer. Shop must retain coupon. Taxes not included. Coupon may not be reproduced or transferred. Void where prohibited, taxed or restricted by law.
Cash value 1/el

LIMIT 1 Offer

DUNKIN' DONUTS

OFFER GOOD THRU 9/30/98

Free Bagel

With the Purchase of a Medium or Large Coolatta™ at the Regular Price

Good only at the UMass Mullins Center
One coupon per customer per visit. May not be combined with any other coupon or premium offer. Shop must retain coupon. Taxes not included. Coupon may not be reproduced or transferred. Void where prohibited, taxed or restricted by law.
Cash value 1/el

LIMIT 1 Offer

DUNKIN' DONUTS

OFFER GOOD THRU 9/30/98

TAU Distribution
YOU CAN:
Pick up a TAU
Start an EMAIL Account
Purchase Necessary Software

Thursday September 10th &
Friday September 11th
9am- 5pm
CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 174-76

For on Campus Residents Only.
You Must Have a Student ID.
Please note: You will not be issued a TAU if you live in a building connected to the Residential Network

Police Log

Accident — Property Damage
Aug. 29
A vehicle struck a parked vehicle and left the scene on Morrill North Rd.
Aug. 7
A vehicle that was unloading was struck by a state truck and incurred minor damage at the Physical Plant loading dock.
July 1
A vehicle backed into a parked vehicle in Lot 64.
June 27
A vehicle left the road and struck a fence and a culvert at the Deerfield Farm.
June 28
A vehicle, backing up, struck a fixed object and sustained minor damage on Tillson Farm Rd.

Animal Complaint
Aug. 29
A bat was removed from University Apartments.
Aug. 24
Environmental Health and Safety (EH&S) was called to remove a bat from the ceiling of the kitchen in Franklin Dining Hall.
July 10
A raccoon was checked after it approached people in Lot 34.
July 8
An injured duck by the Campus Pond was disposed of by EH&S personnel.
July 2
An individual from the biology department was called to capture an iguana which had been seen in the area around Stadium Dr. The animal was secured and taken to the biology department.

Annoying Behavior
Aug. 10
Sports campers allegedly set fire to a trash can in Grayson Residence Hall.
July 17
A dispute between two individuals was reported in Goessman Lab.
July 12
A complaint of an on-going noise problem at Lincoln Apartments was made.
June 29
Staff individual reported being threatened by three individuals not affiliated with the New Students Program.

Assault & Battery
July 17
Two individuals were involved in a fight in Mackimmie Residence Hall. Both were advised to pursue complaints in court.
July 14
An individual walking reported a confrontation by another individual.
July 8
Two individuals were reported fighting in South College. The incident was resolved.
July 3
Epifanio Robledo Jr., 26, of B7 North Village Apartments, Amherst, was arrested for domestic assault and battery, resisting arrest and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

B&E/Burglary
Aug. 31
Damage was reported to the Campus Center garage exit booth. Cash was reported stolen.

Disturbance
Aug. 22
A verbal argument between two individuals was resolved on Massachusetts Ave.
July 24
There was report of a water balloon fight in Coolidge Residence Hall.

Hazardous Materials
July 10
Physical Plant was called to check fuel storage tanks.
June 29
Pails of antifreeze near the boat ramp at Cranberry Pond were investigated.

Larceny
Aug. 25
Cushions were reported stolen from a sofa in Arnold House.
Aug. 24
A multi-line telephone, valued at $200, was reported stolen from University Health Services.
Aug. 20
A computer disc, valued at $900, was reported stolen from Lederle Research Center.
Aug. 17
Two mountain bikes worth $500 were reported stolen from North Village Apartments.
July 31
A chair was reported missing from Whitmore Administration Building.
July 27
A bicycle was reported stolen from North Village.
July 23
A bicycle worth $300 was reported stolen from North Village.
July 14
An individual reported $125 cash stolen from a wallet.
July 10
Approximately 15 plants worth $250 were stolen from a garden on Chancellor's Dr.
July 9
An individual reported her backpack, containing cash and valuable documents, was stolen in the Lederle Research Center.
July 7
A telephone worth $95 was reported stolen from Health Services.
June 26
A telephone worth $100 was reported stolen from Baker Residence Hall.

Suspicious Vehicle
July 10
Cory Alan Taylor, 19, of 76 Elm St., New Salem, was arrested with a warrant.
July 1
Edward L. Abely, 29, of 396 Common St., Walpole, was arrested for operating a vehicle with a revoked license, no inspection sticker and registration not in his possession.

Traffic Stop
Aug. 29
Dwight A. Jackson, 26, of 61 Brandywine Dr., Amherst, was arrested for disorderly conduct.
Aug. 24
Rhonda L. Wright, 33, of 103K South Point Dr., Amherst, was arrested with a warrant.
Aug. 21
William R. Cooley, 32, of 125 Montague Rd., Amherst, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license.
Aug. 17
Martin I. Isenburg, 64, of Lennox, was arrested with five warrants.
Aug. 15
Christopher S. Coakley, 23, of 387 North Pleasant St., Amherst, was arrested for operating under the influence and the unsafe operation of a motor vehicle.
Aug. 10
Fredy C. Mfuko, 18, of 54 Colonial Village, Amherst, was arrested for the unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, speeding and marked lanes violations.
Aug. 9
Bridget A. Shaughnessy, 19, of 47 Chester St., Quincy, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license. Kristi D. Goddard, 18, of 4 Sunnyhill Rd., Northboro, was arrested for the forgery and misuse of an RMV document.
Aug. 7
Jean M. Bonnet, 32, of 35 High St., Amherst, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a revoked license and no inspection sticker.
July 28
Laurent E. Lavallee Jr., 28, of 437 Amherst Rd., Belchertown, was arrested for operating under the influence and speeding.
July 27
Jennifer M. Ward, 21, of 18 Cocasset St., Foxboro, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license, operating an uninsured vehicle, failure to stop for a flashing red light, and operating a motor vehicle with a revoked registration.
July 25
Michael D. Brandford, 29, of 18 Michaelman Ave., Northampton, was arrested for possession of a Class D drug, operating a motor vehicle with a revoked registration and no inspection sticker.
July 13
Daniel L. Gendron, 43, of 52 Percy St., Chicopee, was arrested for operating a vehicle with a suspended license and no inspection sticker.
June 26
Jorma Kansanen, 29, of 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license, operating an uninsured motor vehicle, operating a vehicle with a suspended registration and concealing the plate identification.
June 21
Brian Gallagher, 21, of 64 Auburn St., Chicopee, was arrested for operating under the influence and speeding.

Vandalism
Aug. 26
A government vehicle was broken into in Lot 26. Property stolen from the vehicle was valued over $250.
July 19
A glass door pane was smashed in the Campus Center.
July 14
Staff of Cance Residence Hall reported damage to the door entry system.
July 2
Damage to a vending machine in Thompson Hall was reported.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

Going up?
It's not an elevator, but you can catch a view of campus from the windows in each level of Tobin Hall.

Got a hot tip?? Call down to the Collegian news room and ask for Jill Carroll 545-1762

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

Welcome Back Students!

We Have Everything To Make College Life Easier

Check out the NEW Big Y WORLD CLASS MARKET

Located at 175 University Drive

OPENS SEPT. 17

PHONE CARDS
COPYING MACHINE
COPY PAPER
SCHOOL SUPPLIES
BOOKS & CARDS
POSTAGE STAMPS
BANKING
LOTTERY TICKETS
FILM DEVELOPING
NEWSPAPERS FROM AROUND THE WORLD

Visit Our Table at the Campus Center Sept. 8-11

Sign Up For an EXPRESS SAVINGS CLUB CARD and Get FREE PIZZA!

Big Y EXPRESS SAVINGS CLUB. Often Imitated... Never Equaled

Membership is Free!

Made From Scratch

PIZZA
SUBS
RIBS & FRIED CHICKEN
SALAD BAR
PANINI SANDWICH
BIGWINGS
DESSERTS
ORGANIC FOODS
BAGELRY

We Have FRESH FOODS FAST!

EDITORIAL / OPINION

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Letter from the editor

Welcome back, hope you had a good summer. If you're new here, welcome to the jungle.

I'm just kidding, of course. A little. Everything will be just fine as long as you take advantage of the many opportunities that this school has to offer. If you do, you will leave here richer than any money can make you, and more learned in the ways of life than the fools who wasted their time. At least that's what I've been told.

Now that I've gotten that out of my system, it's time to tell you about our Editorial/Opinion page. For years now, this paper has brought you the views of the student body. These are your peers on this page. If you don't agree with what is being said, there is always room for your opinion. Whether by a letter or a column, this page is designed for debate, and I would be disappointed if only one side were to be heard.

I have heard the grumblings my whole time here: the Collegian does not have enough good writers, blah blah blah. I did a little grumbling myself, back in the day. But you have to realize two things: these are people who work hard everyday to put out this paper, and there is no reason that you cannot change things if you feel they need to be changed.

I'm sure there is no shortage of writers out there, and it is my hope that you swallow any apprehension you may have about getting yourself into a new situation and come on down to the Campus Center.

This semester I am planning on running more articles by student writers. In addition, I want to have more Point/Counterpoint features, more guest writers such as professors, and voices that extend beyond the campus, from the whole Five College area. Also, for all you artists out there, I'm looking for people who can consistently contribute solid editorial cartoons. Any ideas that you have will also be welcome.

So get in contact with us. We practically live at 113 Campus Center Basement. Our phone number is 545-1491, our fax is 545-1592. Letters can be sent via e-mail at "letters@oltvms.oit.umass.edu" or by "snail mail" to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst MA 01003.

Mike Messaros
Ed/Op Editor

Looking back at summer

Okay, okay, I know what you're saying. This summer was draining and you couldn't wait to come back to good ol' University of Massachusetts. Not only did you work your butt off and party when you weren't working, but more importantly, a whole summer's worth of hot news topics came and went and you didn't get a chance to hear Seth's warped views on all of them.

Well, fear not, good citizen. I would never let that happen to you. Here now are a smattering of stories that happened since school ended last year that I never got to say crude things about, and the crude things I have to say about them.

Seth Koenig

First of all, the Bulls won their sixth NBA championship over the Utah Jazz, and Michael Jordan earned the title of "Best Person Ever to Walk the Face of the Planet" by our objective media. You too can celebrate the moment by purchasing one of everything Jordan endorses: sneakers, sunglasses, cologne (that's right, MJ cologne — smells like a locker room, I guess), batteries, athletic clothing, hemorrhoid swabs, whatever.

Bob Costas, who called the game for NBC, came inches away from giving Jordan sexual favors with his pathetic flattery. As Mike verbally ripped apart his talented teammate, Scottie Pippen, for hitting a key three-pointer instead of passing "His Airness" the ball (as designed on every Chicago play) during the finals, Costas went on about Jordan's "competitive fire" and "intensity." Strangely enough, "ball hog" never crossed his lips. Michael's wife better watch her back.

Barbara Streisand finally tied the knot with James Brolin. This was all over the news for a while, and why, exactly, I haven't figured out. As much as Streisand's constantly flabbergasted fans would hate to admit it, she's as much a cult figure as Marilyn Manson. Her fans are just more mainstream — and they have daytime talk shows.

Quite frankly, I'd rather see Manson get married. I'd want to see if he would be the husband or the wife. Besides, Babs' music is too melodramatic and annoying for me.

Two Amish guys with the same name got caught buying cocaine to sell at a dance to youngsters. Maybe you heard about this, and maybe you didn't, but my ears perked up when the headline was read. You know when the Amish are dealing drugs, the world is doomed. Although now that I think about it, if you can't have sex or watch television, what else is there to do? Heroin, anyone?

France beat Brazil in the World Cup final to shock the world and set off the biggest celebration in France in years. The whole competition featured exciting personalities — like Ronaldo and Alexi Lalas — a great advertising campaign, and about four total goals. Talented players? No question, but there are only so many ways a bunch of guys can kick a ball up and down a field without scoring.

Pat Robertson threatened the city of Orlando with storms and, well, fire and brimstone, because there was a gay pride march allowed there. Anyone who takes Pat Robertson seriously needs to be backhanded. People actually send money to this boob, apparently. Watch out Mickey Mouse, the guy who's half David Koresh and half Phil Donahue is coming to get you.

Bill Clinton lost it one night when his bed buddy Monica Lewinsky was wearing a certain blue dress. Don't play stupid — I know you know what "it" is. Anyway, we all heard about that whole thing for a while without really giving a rat's ass. My advice to Bill: when getting romantic with a loved one, undress her first, and have sex second.

A couple of 18-year-olds promised to lose their virginity live on the internet. In all honesty, I didn't hear if they actually followed through with it, or how it went or anything. What I want to know is, do they have someone doing the color commentary during the fiasco?

"Geez, Tom, it looks like he's going for her breast a little early in the process."

"And what a nice breast it is, Craig! They're going to go for intercourse now, and this is where the youngsters will show if they're up for the task!"

"He's headed in the wrong entrance. Tom... He'd better watch out..."

"Ooh! That's gotta hurt. Can they stay in the mood after that ill-timed mistake?"

"I think so, Tom. Last week while practicing for this event he took a dizzying blow and still performed nicely with only about a half hour to recuperate. This unexpected collision with the tight end shouldn't phase him."

"We'll see real soon, but first, let's take a break. This look of virginity is brought to you by Trojan."

Seth Koenig is a Collegian columnist.

Explaining Clinton

Someone needs to address the nation and explain to Americans everywhere what the word "perjury" actually means. It means lying under oath. In some circumstances, it leads to an obstruction of justice. I think America may be confusing it with some sort of sexual act.

I sat watching the "person on the street" reactions to the now infamous Clinton apology to the nation. I became more and more agitated as outraged men and women accused independent counsel Kenneth Starr of something close to McCarthyism and asked why the president's sex life is a matter of national importance. Will someone please explain what's going on!

Victoria Groves

President Clinton is not in trouble simply for having sex with Monica Lewinsky. In a deposition during the Paula Jones case, he denied having any sexual relations with Lewinsky in his now famous Clintonian lingo. Once he realized he was about to be caught in that lie, he had no choice but to confess.

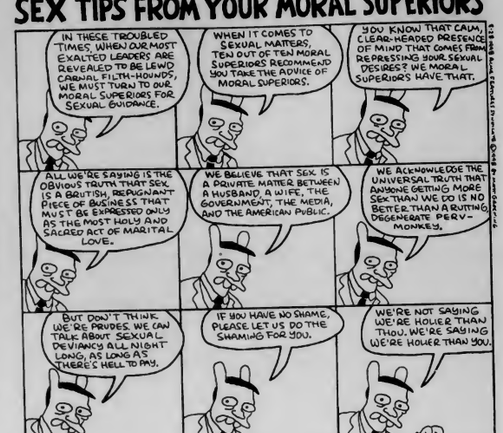
His message to the nation last month was a feeble deer- caught-in-the-headlights attempt to save himself. He attacked Starr and the independent counsel for spending so much money on this sordid affair. He failed to apologize, however, for spending millions of dollars himself on a defense that was built around a lie.

Sex scandals come and go. Clinton isn't the first adulterer we've elected to public office and he certainly won't be the last. If this were simply a sex scandal, Clinton and company would not have been so worried about disciplinary action. "Possible resignation" and "impeachment" wouldn't have been the buzzwords around Washington. It's not about sex! Not to me, at least.

Too many people are willing to accept Clinton's weak excuse for perjuring himself. In synch with the general public outcry, I don't care whom he slept with. I do, however, care that he had no qualms about misleading a grand jury about having sex with a 20-year-old intern. Technically he is her boss, and where I come from, that is meritorious grounds for doubting a president's trustworthiness. Apparently, I'm in the minority.

A Time/CNN poll from August 31st reported that 59 percent of the public believes that Clinton went far enough in explaining his relationship with Lewinsky, and 51 percent have a favorable opinion of Clinton. That is compared to only 15 percent approval of Lewinsky. What has she done that's so much worse than what Clinton has? She wasn't caught lying, she didn't cheat on her spouse, and she didn't succumb to her sexual urges instead of fulfilling her responsibilities to the voting public. What she has done is wrong, but who's to say it's more wrong?

Knowing Clinton's moral attitude, I wouldn't blame him for trying to get away with anything now. The public seems to be willing to forgive him for whatever he does. I wasn't looking for an apology for his sexual exploits in his television address, but rather an explanation for his purgurting himself and lying to me as a voter. I wasn't satisfied with his statement, but I seem to be one of few.



Any rational American would have to question why his approval rating has soared. In what other circumstance would we shun a 20-year-old for a sexual encounter, and back her 50-year-old married boss? Hopefully never again. And yet, Bill Clinton is exactly who he was when we all first came to know of him. Gennifer Flowers, Paula Jones, Monica Lewinsky. What can we expect?

I'm disappointed in the American public and its easy-to- please, accepting attitude. President Clinton lied to us, he lied under oath, and he's wasted our money and our time. I don't care whom he's slept with either, but let's scorn the right person and hold our highest elected official up to the light and see him for what he is. All Americans suffer when the office of the president undergoes such a beating. But the way we're acting now, politicians everywhere are going to think we, as a public, will swallow anything.

Victoria Groves is a Collegian staff member.

LIFE IN HELL

SEX TIPS FROM YOUR MORAL SUPERIORS

The few, the proud

Just call me Smokey.

That's right — this summer, along with fellow University of Massachusetts students Anne Heath and Karl Dietzler, I donned the green and gray and joined the ranks of the National Park Service rangers at the Charlestown Navy Yard. Green wool pants, a gray polyester shirt, complete with badge and pen pocket, and the always recognizable bear hat became my ensemble of choice. We're not talking about the height of fashion here, but hey, every job has its minuses.

When you're wearing a straw hat large enough to resemble a low-flying UFO, you come to expect the inevitable jeers. Like the "Did you catch the bear yet?" from the homeless man I passed on my way to work each morning.

You also become accustomed to the myriad of astonishingly stupid questions you are required to answer with a courteous smile. One of my personal favorites was "What time does the 1:00 tour start?" (If only I were joking!)

Or the surprisingly common, "Can I lean over the bow like they did in Titanic?"

There was one aspect to many of the visitors to the Navy Yard that I never did become accustomed to, though, and that was their overall general contempt for military service.

Part of my job involved monitoring the flow of people into the berthing compartment of a retired World War II-era destroyer, the U.S.S. Cassin Young. When American visitors made their way down the steep ladder into the enlisted crew's berthing area, their first response to the cramped quarters was frequently, "Not me. No way. I could never live like this."

The ships quarters were uncomfortable, to say the least, but somehow 325 men managed to live in them for months at a time during World War II. And yet young American men and women alike commonly refused the idea that they, too, could and would make sacrifices in order to defend their country in a time of great peril.

"Nope, I could never do this."

I'm sure for some of the visitors the refusal was nothing more than a gut-level reaction to the brutal living conditions on the ship.

"It is terrible," I would reply. "But once you were drafted, you really didn't have much of a choice."

What really blew my mind were the people who still refused to imagine making a similar sacrifice themselves.

"No way. Never in a million years would I do this."

Are they just intellectually lazy, or do they really believe they are superior to the 1.8 million men who served in the U.S. Navy in the Second World War?

"Oh, really?" I felt like asking them. "What makes your blood any more precious than the blood of our grandfathers, which flowed so profusely at the beaches of Normandy? What makes you more important than the 400,000 Americans who lost their lives in World War II in order to protect your way of life? Do you really think they wanted to live like this, to lose their limbs or their lives?"

"Over the course of the summer, it became increasingly obvious to me that we, as a country, have come to devalue military service."

Tamar Carroll

Over the course of the summer, it became increasingly obvious to me that we, as a country, have come to devalue the point where many college students and members of the middle class in general consider themselves "above" serving in the armed forces.

Don't believe it? Check out the way ROTC students are treated on this campus — always as an abnormality, frequently just one step above a pariah.

Certainly the experiences of this country in Vietnam and the following era led to a much higher degree of skepticism towards the government and the military in the general populous, and that heightened skepticism plays itself out in the negative responses of young Americans to the idea of sacrifices made for one's country.

Still, I find it hard to believe that so many members of my generation cannot imagine a scenario in which they, like their grandparents, would be willing to risk their lives for the greater good.

By teaching the young members of the middle and upper classes that they are "too good" for the military, we risk creating the unstable dynamic of an enormously powerful military populated by a lower class separated from mainstream America. In addition, one is left to wonder how long a country can last once the majority of its members believe they are too good to fight to defend it.

I know when my grandfathers fought they did so with the wish that their grandchildren would never have to. But surely they would expect us to rise up and serve in the same fashion if the need arose.

I hope that the thousands of Americans flocking to see Saving Private Ryan will be moved to a thoughtful, true appreciation of the tremendous sacrifices made by Americans in WWII, and perhaps to some soul-searching about their own capability for self-sacrifice as well.

Tamar Carroll is a Collegian columnist.

Point/Counterpoint writers needed.

We hope to publish our first Point/Counterpoint piece on Wednesday, Sept. 16, in our double spread issue. The proposed topic is: In the wake of our involvement in the Japanese money market, should we as a nation take responsibility for solving Russia's economic crisis?
We challenge you to write provocative, informed pieces on this subject and submit them in person to the Ed/Op desk in the Campus Center basement. If you can't make it down here, send them to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass Amherst MA 01003.
Columns must be typed, and between 600 and 800 words.
Any questions call Mike Messaros at 545-1491.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor-in-Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Dylan Larke Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Giving a little back

Nothing feels better than giving a little something back to the community. Tell me you don't get a little charge dropping some change into the Salvation Army bucket around Christmas. (Even you cheapskates who drop in unwanted pennies know what I'm talking about.) It's all about giving from the heart. And I live to give.

Which is why every time I slip another check into those little yellow envelopes marked "Parking Authority Scholarship Fund," I get a little misty-eyed. You may think it's because I'm parting with some hard-earned cash (OK — money mommy and daddy gave me...), but it's not. It's because I know that through my careless actions, someone is going to get an education.

"I get misty–eyed every time I write another check to the 'Parking Authority Scholarship Fund.'"

Mike Messaros

Because if that money is going to the right place, I have paid enough money in fines to send at least one deserving student into the saucy adventure that we call a University of Massachusetts education.

It gladdens me to think that someday there will be a valedictorian standing at the podium on graduation day, tears streaming down his or her cheeks, clutching the speech to his or her heart, running on pure emotion, saying "And none of this... none of this could be possible if not for my Uncle Mike and the Honda... parked in the wrong place, time after time after time. Let's hear it for the big man with a big heart!"

And I'll try to quiet the crowd as it cheers — hey, it's not my day — but the deafening roar of the crowd cannot be stifled. Cue "Pomp and Circumstance," fade to black. Everybody goes home happy.

Ahh, to lead the philanthropist's life. It's not easy, let me tell you.

Week after week I continue to park illegally. I can't help it. Walking out to a yellow lot from Central is murder, especially since the yellow lot is actually in New Hampshire. So once in a while I give myself a little present: I park in a purple lot. I like to think that I deserve it.

Last year a friend of mine dropped out of school after the fall semester. He graciously gave me his purple lot sticker. So after a few minutes of slowly, delicately peeling that wonderful ticket to purple nirvana off of his car window and putting it on mine, I thought I was golden. Welcome to paradise, kid.

Unfortunately, I was wrong.

Near the end of spring semester I was given a $100 ticket. That's right, $100. Turns out parking stickers are non- transferable and what I had done was, in essence, "fraudulent."

Sure, I was pissed. Who wouldn't be? I tried to circumvent the system and I got caught. But what was I going to do, cry about? OK, I did that. For two straight days. I threw myself at the mercy of the court. "Please," I begged, "I'm just a student! I can't afford a $100 ticket!"

"You should have thought of that before you tried to beat the system," the parking tribunal bellowed in my ear. "We could have sold that parking spot, you peon. You cost us $30!"

I used to get angry. I used to be so mad, even though I had brought it all on myself. Then I thought of Jimmy.

Jimmy's the kid I'm sending to school. I know it. I'm convinced of it. I see him with big soulful eyes, wool gloves with the fingers cut off, maybe with a crutch. He wears a lot of tweed — I don't know why, but that's so very Dickens.

I see myself running into Jimmy one day. He's wearing ripped jeans and a dirty t-shirt. He's nursing a small coffee between his dirty hands.

"I can't take it here. I miss my family, my 12 brothers and sisters. Try as I might, I just can't fit in. I can't do it! I'm such a loser!"

"No Jimmy, you're a winner! It's not everyday someone gets this opportunity. Make something of it. Turn that frown upside down."

Tears are streaming down his face. "I couldn't have done this without your ignorant parking habits. Hey, it's hard for me to say this... but I love you."

"Listen, saying I love you is hard for anybody to say. Hell, it was hard for Fonzie. You just work hard, make me proud." I turn out towards the cold, towards my car. My white Honda. Jimmy's golden goose.

Yup, it feels good.

It's these little yellow envelopes of joy that make it all possible for these kids to get a top-notch education. As hard as it is on the wallet, it's so soft and cuddly on the heart. How can I can angry when Jimmy's getting what he so richly deserves? That's why whenever I see my car adorned with one of those canary yellow beauties, I think to myself, "This one's for you, Jimmy. This one's for you!"

Mike Messaros is a Collegian columnist.

Better living through...

Oh bliss! Classes have begun once again on the improbably designed, eclectically staffed and diversely attended campus, this University of Massachusetts.

Perhaps you are attending this school as a freshman, and everything has a veneer of newness. You gaze with horror and fascination at your roommate and her Tupperware container of nail polish, files and gold-colored decals. You search for purpose in a tundra of course schedules, intramural sport listings and dining commons menus.

You expect to emerge changed, improved, polished from this chaos — but exactly how?

–Without further ado I appoint myself "Ambassador to the Interior," your stalwarly yet slightly reserved guide, and source for boundless unsolicited advice.

As usual, autumn awakens in many of you a fervor of self–improvement. In that spirit, allow me, as your Ambassador, to give you some direction for the coming semester. Conveniently, these three objectives form the acronym 'AHA,' which you will no doubt exclaim upon realizing how absolutely worthwhile they are.

Goal one I entitle "Assertiveness." By such I mean not arrogant, aggressive, or rude behavior, but rather actions that protect you from such qualities in others, and secure a better situation than one would otherwise be given.

An assertive person neither demands a solution, nor sits quietly when a problem arises. Instead, he uses his communication skills to make others aware of the conundrum, and to resolve it.

"You expect to emerge changed, improved, polished from this chaos — but exactly how?"

Tanya Mannes

Two common situations demonstrate the need for such self-assured behavior. Imagine two men, each of whom takes his respective female friend on a date. The first man, "Seth," orders a bottle of wine for the two to share in a cozy bar in Northampton. The Zinfandel, normally sweet, tastes like vinegar. In fact, it is too old for a white wine. Neather Seth nor his friend can even sip the foul beverage. Unfortunately, Seth is too shy to send the wine back, and out of some masochistic impulse, he overtips the snotty waitress who recommended the wine. This semester, learn from Seth's mistake, and seize control of a situation "gone bad."

The second man, "Adrian," meanwhile, is seated with his own female companion in a hokey Holyoke diner. Inexplicably, he orders the steak entree from the disconcertingly large menu. Though he has requested it be cooked medium–rare, the steak appears suspiciously dehydrated; in fact, inedible. Adrian calls over the waitress, politely. This time around he will enjoy a properly cooked meal, as well as the self–respect that comes from asking for what he needs. In addition, he will get a second date, in itself a convincing argument for you to implement the "Assertiveness" goal.

No doubt most of you are ahead of me on this one, but for those students who are away from home for the first time, I set the second goal of "Hygiene." "Cleanliness," the nuns would whisper, "is next to Godliness." Such a philosophy, though pithy, could pose a bit of confusion for those of the atheist or agnostic schools of thought.

With such well–intentioned souls in mind, I have some practical, almost spiritual, advice. If you change your sheets once a week, you are less likely to change your roommate more than once a semester. Brush your teeth often, either after the last Guinness, or before bed, whichever comes first. Most importantly, stay away from those nuns.

The third and final goal, for all you shrinking violets, I have named "Attitude." However, this concept makes some people a bit shaky. "What kind of attitude?" they whine. "A bad attitude? A low–key attitude? A player–hating attitude?"

Happily, a snappy way of presenting yourself and a devil–may–care outlook are all you need to achieve what I deem "Attitude." I can think of no more appropriate example than an adolescent I spied in traffic the other day. He was slumped in the driver's seat of a 1994 Ford Probe, attitude radiating from every pore of his combination skin.

What really sent chills of pleasure down my spine was his rear windshield. Dramatically, he had emblazoned "Portuguese Racer" in five inch high 'flame' letters. May we all display our individuality with such abandon. For him, attitude came naturally, but you may have to exert yourself to achieve similar success. Don't let that stop you, sport!

What a productive year this will be! No doubt it is possible to improve yourselves in many other ways outside these halls of academia. For now, the 'AHA' acronym is a handy way to remember those personal goals: Assertiveness, Hygiene, and Attitude. With such sage advice from your Ambassador, you should do just fine here at the University.

Tanya Mannes is a Collegian staff member.

Mouth closed, eyes opened

I was in San Diego exactly 10 years ago this summer. On a side trip, I remember eating chicken in Tijuana, Mexico, which was flavored with the ground-up remains of approximately 100 hot peppers, and I remember watching Top Gun, which in my 10–year–old eyes was a brilliant, deeply moving cinematic experience.

My eyes are still brown but how much the view has changed.

Alexis Pushkar

On the trip I took to San Diego this summer we stayed with my dad's friend from high school as we did a decade ago. The only thing I really remember about him from 1988 is the fact that he was a horrible driver. A car ride with him was essentially like being chauffeured by a gerbil on speed.

He's still a horrible driver, but my adult eyes and ears noticed many things this time which had escaped me in childhood.

On the first night that we were there, we started talking about politics, but we soon discovered that my dad and I were at the opposite end of the political spectrum from my dad's friend and his current wife. In the interests of peace and harmony — we were staying under their roof — the topic was dropped.

However, my dad's friend had the social restraint of a four–year–old on Christmas Eve, and he could not stop himself from baiting us into political discussions.

Essentially the weekend became a nightmare for me, as I boldly fought against speaking my mind. I left the house on Monday morning with my sanity in little shreds in my back pocket and many questions in the front of my mind.

Why do I believe what I believe? I was raised near Boston, and I go to school in Amherst. I have imbibed 20 years worth of l . . .l opinions. I have grown up in a place where individuality has been stressed throughout history, starting with the Puritans, who broke away from the religious mainstream in England and traveled across the ocean to an unknown continent, continuing on through Henry David Thoreau, and probably peaking with the presidential election of 1972, when Massachusetts was the only state in the union to vote for George McGovern.

San Diego is at the opposite corner of the country from Boston, so perhaps it's not surprising that my dad and I encountered political beliefs which are the exact opposite from ours in many ways.

The contrast between the cities of San Diego and Boston is marked. Boston has a mixed–bag of weather (less than ideal) for six or seven months out of the year; San Diego is where they send geriatric weathermen to croak out, "It will be another perfect day." Boston is old; the paint is still drying on San Diego. Neighborhoods in Boston are a mish- mosh of architectural styles: neighborhoods in San Diego look something like The Truman Show.

Although I was in a city very different from Boston, talking with people who had different beliefs than mine and those of many of my friends and relatives, one thing was very much the same about our hosts and many of the people I've encountered while growing up and here at school.

People sport the "I'm right" attitude about many topics, and yet most of them haven't really given the issues in– depth consideration. In political conversations, I've encountered a lot of people who speak from their gut instead of from their heads.

I realized that I've grown up with people who sport pins and bumper stickers from Newbury Comics with a variety of up–front attitudes. I've become used to so many in–your–face liberal attitudes that I hardly even notice them. When our hostess came downstairs one morning in a pro–life t–shirt, I was cringing that I had to be seen in public with her, and yet I'd walked around with one of my friends in high school who had sported rather rude pins on her army bag, and I never felt a twinge of discomfort.

With many of the complex problems facing the world today, no one can ever be right on which way to deal with a problem. Americans have plenty of opinions on all hot political topics, but where did those opinions come from? Opinions are a reflection on each individual's life, and in a discussion it is wise to consider the person's background as you consider the merits of his or her opinions.

People are passionate about their opinions because they are a part of each person's identity, and they are often very much from the heart. Though people are trained to think about problems rationally, many people's opinions come from an innate sense of what is right, and this comes from how they were raised and what was presented to them in their formative years.

Bumper stickers and t–shirt slogans are meant to provoke people into having serious discussions about issues, and they are meant to appeal to the gut and stir people's emotions. Without rational discussion of an issue, however, emotions once stirred up can fester and may eventually explode.

My dad's friend was like a bumper sticker: he stirred me up but never let me discuss a topic with him. By the end of the weekend, I was seething with unexpressed opinions and views.

I had come to San Diego, a 20–something on vacation, and discovered that I missed being 10, when all that I noticed was bad driving and a movie about planes and sex.

Alexis Pushkar is a Collegian columnist.

Mo' money

Just like you, I too am coming back to school having saved nowhere near what I "planned" on saving from my summer earnings, and once again I return to school with more numbers on the right–hand side of the decimal point than the left when the BankBoston machine spits out my pathetic receipts.

It's pretty much a given that I spent the first half of the summer paying off credit card bills from last semester.

Although I promised myself I wouldn't take another "Foxwoods trip" with my friends, and although I managed to talk the speeding ticket I got in Falmouth down to $50 from the original $230, I somehow couldn't save a dime this summer.

Jamie Waldinger

I suppose it didn't help that I felt compelled to install a sunroof in my car with only a month left in summer, and it definitely didn't help that I walked into Newbury Comics 10 times too many in August. And okay, maybe I didn't need that papasan chair from Pier 1 for the new apartment. (Gimme a break, it was on sale.)

But when I left my job and headed back to Amherst, final paycheck in hand, let's just say that it boggles the mind how much money they claim to have paid me this summer, according to the earnings summary. Where did it all go? I can honestly say I have no idea.

But there is hope. There is a light at the end of the dark tunnel of collegiate poverty. Thank God there is, or you'd all be seeing me at your door wearing a Delivery Express jacket on Mondays, a Domino's hat on Tuesdays, and on Wednesdays I'd be patrolling the halls of Southwest peddling jumbo Twizzlers for a dollar. "It's for my church retreat, I swear to God!" Nobody wants to do that.

When I was in my third semester at UMass, I was blessed with the knowledge of a little thing called an "excess check." You new people probably haven't heard about this, so listen carefully.

It's not something the bartender does if he thinks you've had one too many, but a slip of paper, payable to you, in the amount of money that you overpaid the school. What? They're voluntarily returning my money when I didn't know I'd overpaid? Do they have a conscience? Well... almost.

You see, they make every effort not to give it back to you. I stumbled upon the existence of excess checks once when I was looking at my bill online to see if my computer accounting fee had been waived. When the screen came up, it read: Credit: $672.50. "What?" I thought to myself. "How could that be?" But I blinked, reloaded the page, and it was still there.

Not that this was bad news, but you can imagine my disbelief, given my usual financial situation, in learning that someone actually owed me money. Scanning down the bill, I came across a line that read "Excess check issued," next to a date, which was about two months before that day. I certainly hadn't heard anything about an excess check, let alone been issued one.

So I went to Whitmore and stood in line at the Bursar's Office. After missing only two classes while in line, I got to the window and I was told that yes, indeed there was an excess check for me, and if I would just show my ID and sign by the 'X,' I could have it.

Wow. Happy day. Needless to say my day was made, though I couldn't help but be a little suspicious about the whole thing, seeing as how I came into this money that I apparently "deserved" only by a stroke of luck.

What if I hadn't stumbled upon it? I looked at the check and noticed that below where it read "Pay to the order of:" followed by my name, it read "Or University of Massachusetts." Or?! What is this "Or" crap?

Apparently, they reserve the right to cash the check themselves, in the event that, somehow, I don't come to claim it. Fat chance of that, seeing as they went so far out of their way to tell me that this check was sitting there waiting for me.

The excess check has become something that I look forward to every semester. Now that I live off–campus and don't owe the school room and board, I'm banking on my financial aid package to be just an itty–bitty bit bigger than my school bill. And if it is, then wow, am I psyched. While I failed to make a trip to Rhode Island to buy a Powerball ticket this summer, perhaps I did do a bit of gambling on my own, given that I spent all my summer earnings living the "good life" of summer.

I'd be lying if I said I wasn't hoping that just maybe I'd get lucky with an extra fat excess check this year. Cross your fingers.

So if your father accidentally sent your sister's tuition check to the UMass Bursar's Office, or if you stretched the definition of "veteran" on your financial aid application to include those who were in the womb while their mother was protesting the Vietnam War, you just may have a refund coming to you. It's worth a look.

And if this is news to you, no need to thank me — but if you're in line ahead of me at the Bursar's Office today, do me a favor and let me cut in front of you. And if your check is over $250, it's understood that when you see me out in town, you'll buy me a pitcher.

Jamie Waldinger is a UMass student.

police

continued from page 1

In comparison, three other labor organizations on campus were recently offered pay increases spanning a three-year contract period, Narcewicz said. The Massachusetts Society of Professors received a 15 percent increase; the University Staff Association and Massachusetts Teachers Association received a 15 percent increase; the Association of County and Municipal Employees was offered a 14 percent increase, "however, they are is still in the process of mediation."

In 1997, the Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) received a 45 percent pay increase in its contract.

In reference to the one-year contract extension, Officer Mark Shlosser said it is such a short length of time that it leaves the policemen "in limbo." He felt the differences in the department's contract from that of other labor organizations on campus and the lack of explanation by the administration did not make any sense.

UMass police are also seeking to be reclassified with Group 4 retirement status — the status that officers of all municipal police departments are classified — rather than Group 2 status, as the department is currently recognized.

Reclassification would allow the department access to certain benefits. This bill (Senate Bill 1310) however, remains stagnant in the State House Ways and Means Committee.

Among the benefits associated with Group 4 status are earlier retirement benefits, heart and hypertension benefits (under the "Heart Law"), certain death benefits for the surviving spouse of an officer, state funding for "essential equipment" and education incentive benefits (under the "Quinn Bill").

Sergeant Thomas O'Donnell, president of the IBPO Local 432B unit, said he is concerned UMass police are not being treated as equal to town or city police officers.

"It deeply concerns me that the legislature has been unable to extend to our officers the same level of benefits as police officers in other towns," he said.

According to Narcewicz, the lack of Group 4 status has resulted in a low retention of officers in the UMass police department and chronic understaffing. The department loses an average of three officers per year, many of whom take jobs with other police departments. Two officers have left the department this year and there are currently five vacant positions on the staff.

Narcewicz also addressed the distinction made between "campus" police officers and police officers as defined by Massachusetts General Law.

"The perception is that the University of Massachusetts police are campus police," he said. "UMass police by statute are police officers. [They] have full authority to enforce all of Massachusetts' general laws.

"In addition to policing UMass–Amherst, [the patrol includes] seven towns over two counties, anywhere the University has property."

According to an IBPO informational flyer, "University of Massachusetts police are the only campus–based police force, public or private, with... 'police officer' designation.

"No other campus–based police force has police powers that extend beyond campus boundaries to local cities and towns."

The department filed a petition with the Board of Conciliation Arbitration on Aug. 17. Doing so released them from their contractual agreement not to speak to the press, Narcewicz said.

Members of the UMass police department have held several informational pickets, including one on Aug. 22 and another on Aug. 28 in the Campus Center, outside the fifth annual Staff Appreciation Convocation.

About 60 individuals were present at the latter one–hour picket, with families of the officers and one Amherst officer lending support.

UMass Chief of Police John Luippold addressed the ceremony.

"This is somewhat of a difficult situation, it is great to have the opportunity to showcase the great work our staff completes on a daily basis, yet the current issues of our policy make it difficult to show the excitement of the day."

According to O'Donnell, "This [picket] isn't where it's going to stop. When school opens, we plan to make students aware."

The UMass police also picketed the Celucci/Malone gubernatorial debate in Springfield, Sept. 1.

In addition, Narcewicz said pickets were planned for Sept. 3, at the Community Breakfast at Franklin Dining Hall, and for Sept. 6 and 7, to greet the traffic jam of incoming students.

Labor Relations administrator Nick Marshall said the University is hopeful the contract will be settled in mediation, however he would not comment further on the issue until negotiations are complete.

"The administration is participating in negotiations and mediation efforts, and hopes for a speedy and mutually acceptable agreement," Marshall stated in a press release. "We are also committed to working on unresolved issues."

Third–party mediation will take place Sept. 11 in an attempt to resolve issues between the administration and the department.

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

CATE

continued from page 1

Singleton said the guide would be used to help students and teachers, not hamper teachers' performance.

"These evaluations would help match students' learning styles to teaching styles," she said.

Shamapande expressed optimism for the future of the CATE guide.

"I know the Faculty Union has concerns, but we actually share more things in common than not," he said. "We're not at the point where things are unresolvable. We do have common ground."

However, Spencer did not feel common ground was found with the letter Shamapande sent to students.

"The SGA's letter was disappointing. The union found it misleading," she said. "It has already caused tension between faculty and students. If the contract isn't funded everyone loses, the administration, faculty and students."

Freshman class features top scholars

By Laura Forster
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts has an 18 percent increase in enrollment of Massachusetts' top–ranked high school seniors this year under the University Scholar Program.

This means nearly one–fifth of the state's first and second–ranked seniors are now enrolled at the University of Massachusetts.

The two–year–old program awards up to $8,000 in scholarship aid to students who finish top in their class in Massachusetts in addition to meeting other requirements.

Selected from 400 public and private high schools, 147 of the selected students have accepted the scholarships from the program and 75 percent of these students will be attending the Amherst campus.

UMass president William M. Bulger, who presented the scholarships to the students at a formal State House ceremony on June 9, spoke of the recipients as "...a wonderful story of dedication to learning."

There has been a 69 percent increase of Scholar students from last year's inauguration of the program and each of the UMass campuses has had an increase of recipients, with the highest amount (111 students) attending the Amherst campus.

The increase in students may also be due to the projected 3 percent increase in New England high school students who graduated this past spring, according to the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE).

The incoming Scholar students say they chose the Amherst campus because of the size and opportunity it offers.

Matthew Sardigian of Lexington High School, a Scholar recipient who will be studying political science at UMass, explained his reasoning for choosing the Amherst campus.

"If you look through the course catalogue, you find that there are way more course offerings compared to other schools. UMass is a gigantic university with tons of options."

"I love the size and, as a pre–med major, I hope to get into the medical school which is among the top nationally," said Craig Longo, another recipient coming to UMass.

The plan for a separate honors college at UMass is "another selling point" for students deciding which campus to attend, according to John Hoey, director of communications at the President's Office of the University.

But students have other requirements to meet before they can think about "selling points." Students must be nominated by their principal or college president and meet all of the University's admissions requirements to qualify for the scholarship.

Nominations by principals has also risen 45 percent this year. Hoey said the first class of University Scholars has "proven a great success for the University" as Amherst scholars alone have had on the average a 3.48 grade point average.

But this year high school students aren't the only ones who can benefit from being at the head of the class. Similar scholarships are now offered to the No. 1 ranked students of the state's 15 community colleges.

Nine of these collegiate students have accepted this year's scholarship.

The amount of the award the student's receive is contingent on the campus the student selects, providing the most to Amherst students due to the higher cost of attendance ($9,749).

As a whole, Hoey said the scholars "are sending a message out that UMass is a place that can provide a great opportunity for excellent students."

LAUREN KUSKY / COLLEGIAN

The University Admissions Department saw an increased number of top students apply for and accept places in this year's freshman class.

Campus Career Network
University of Massachusetts Amherst
WELCOME TO THE NEW CAMPUS CAREER NETWORK visit us when you get back to campus we're here for you
• A New Name for expanded career services at UMass Amherst
• New Locations around campus with offices and staff dedicated to the needs and interests of specific majors

Employment Options in Career Library & Career Network Central Office
37 Ma... Drive
545-2...

Clai... Edwards, Assoc... Director Care... Planning Engin...
Marston ...
545-6251

...Goldsbury
Ass... Director Ca... Food ... Natural Resources
Stockb... 104A
545-601...

Susan H... Asst. Dir... Humaniti... Arts
Bartlett ...
545-...

Ruth Carey, Asst. Director Career Planning Public Health/Education/Nursing
...tman 150
...-6252

Tammie Joyner, Asst. Director Career Planning Social & Behavioral Sci.
South College 105
577-0417

Cori Ashworth, Asst. Director Field Experience Management
School of Management 208C
577-0418

David Carroll, Asst. Director Career Planning
Natural Sci. & Math
545-6264

To ... emp...

Survey says college students lack information on sex, STDs

By Laura Forster
Collegian Staff

Despite the multitude of warnings of dangerous sexually transmitted diseases, college students are still learning about them the hard way.

According to nation–wide interviews and surveys done by Men's Fitness magazine, most college students are still uneducated when it comes to sexual awareness.

In its September edition, Men's Fitness came out with an 18–page sex guide listing the "10 Sex Facts Every College Student Should Know," with the No. 1 fact students still need to learn: "Anyone can get an STD."

Although it seems students know the statistics and facts about STDs, they "still don't make choices that would make them safe," said Laurie Turkovsky, a health educator at the University of Massachusetts.

UMass students are no exception to being unaware, as the number of students with chlamydia and herpes have made the diseases the most common STDs on campus. Although the number of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) positive and acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) infected students is not known on campus, the University Health Services finds the 12–weekly appointments for free HIV testing always fully booked.

Turkovsky sees students' limited understanding of other STDs aside from AIDS and HIV as the biggest problem on campus.

According to Turkovsky one in five sexually active adults has herpes and most of them do not even know it. Contrary to what most people believe, herpes of the mouth may be passed to the genitals, are not usually curable and may cause complications during pregnancy.

Chlamydia, the other most prevalent STD on the UMass campus is both treatable and curable; however as with any STD, students need to ask their doctor or gynecologist for specific testing.

The Human Papilloma Virus (HPV), which includes genital warts, is said to make contact with 60 percent of sexually active individuals and there is no way to test for it.

HPV is easily transmitted through mucosal skin contact. Pap smears can detect it in women, but not always. The long range effects of HPV are not usually dangerous but it is known to be connected with cervical cancer.

So what advice do doctors and sex educators have for sexually active students?

They suggest committed use of a condom and other birth control methods, such as spermicidal lubricant, dental dams and female condoms. Although most students seem to know this, Men's Fitness found that over 35 percent of students have been known to not use any form of birth control at all.

In addition, 50 percent of college men and 41 percent of college women cannot identify a woman's most fertile time of the month, and those who don't understand the role of ovulation usually don't know that sperm can survive for days inside a woman's body, making unprotected sex at anytime near ovulation risky for pregnancy.

Another important finding sex columnist Joy Davidson, Ph.D., has come across, is that while students receive plenty of information about sexual anatomy and safety, they know very little about the emotional impact sex carries. Thus, Davidson points out that choosing a partner should not be easy.

Some other facts Davidson said students should be aware of is sex and alcohol make poor bedfellows; it takes skill to please a woman; men need to pace themselves; partners need to communicate their desires; and sex is about relationships.

Turkovsky encourages UMass students with questions or concerns to come to Health Services.

"I'm not judgmental, people have complicated lives. It's not as far as stupid person, smart person," she said. "I would encourage people to think of themselves first, as far as protecting themselves. What gives you a good sense of self–esteem is best."

Hot air balloons, comedy and movies highlight activities offered by First Week

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

The Campus Activities Office at the University of Massachusetts is offering "First Week '98," a wide variety of free events on the campus for new and returning students.

In its 18th year, First Week will present and outdoor movie and hot air balloon rides on Wednesday, Sept. 9 on the Metawampee Lawn. The Alpha Lambda Delta Honor Society and Campus Activities will offer free tethered balloon rides beginning at 6 p.m. The newest Disney animated motion picture Mulan will be shown outside at dusk. Refreshments will be served.

Taking center stage on Thursday night will be blues singer K.I. James in the Campus Center Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Born and raised in South Carolina, James performs classic "footstompin' blues 'n' boogie." Fans of American "roots" music are joining a national campaign to bring the blues back into the vanguard of American popular culture.

James' fans have dubbed him "the undisputed champion of classic country blues." Since launching his recording career with the Salt City Blues project on Blue Wave Records, James is to the '90s what Blind Lemon Jefferson was to the '20s.

James has described his own career as an attempt to "rediscover the songs of the Deep South, songs that touched my childhood soul."

James' performance will be followed by the movie Primary Colors.

It all starts at 8 p.m. at the Campus Center Auditorium.

On Friday Sept. 11, the Campus Activities Office has the movie Mulan showing again at 8 and 10 p.m. at the Campus Center Auditorium. Also, comedian Rudy Rush will be performing in the Student Union Ballroom at 8 p.m. Following Rush will be a DJ dance, featuring dance lessons from Deborah Cohen of Northampton's Gotta Dance Studio.

For more information call the Campus Activities Office at 545–3600.

COLORADO®
The Ultimate Outdoor Adventure Store
features Apparel, Footwear and Accessories for Men and Women
Buy POLARTEC Performance Fleece and receive
THE MAKING OF EVEREST Video FREE*
Show your student ID and take an additional 10% off purchase of $50 or more
*August 15th through September 30th. Mail-in Coupon available in store
Cambridgeside Galleria Mall, Cambridge
South Shore Plaza, Braintree • Holyoke Mall, Holyoke
Photos courtesy of MacGillivary Freeman Films. Everest is a MacGillivary Freeman Film.
Key Code 11

it computers students can use
OIT (the Office of Information Technologies) provides Computing and Internet Services for students, faculty and staff on the UMass campus. You need an OIT Account if you want to do any of the following:
■ to activate the ethernet jack in your residence hall room for highspeed connectivity to the campus-wide network
■ to access the Internet and use graphical web browsers from your own computer, via a dialup PPP connection
■ to use Windows or MacOS computers in OIT's classrooms/labs, or to use OIT's printers
■ to use OIT's host computers (running UNIX or OpenVMS), for example, to send and receive e-mail or to use other host-based applications
■ to use Eudora, Netscape, Outlook Express, or any similar mail client to check your OIT e-mail
Students can use any or all of these services for a fee of $20 per semester.
How do I get an account?
That depends on whether you've used OIT services before or not...
■ If you have never had an OIT or UMAccess account you are considered a New Client. Bring your UMass picture ID—your UCard—to the Campus Center rooms 165–169
■ September 8—16: Monday—Thursday, 9 am - 8:30 pm; Friday, 9 am - 4:30 pm; Sunday, 1 pm - 8:30 pm
■ September 17: Thursday, 9 am - 4:30 pm to make an appointment—choose a time that's convenient for you to spend about half an hour getting your account and information about using it.
From September 18th—October 2nd, bring your UCard to Lederle GRC room A109: Monday—Thursday, 9 am - 8:45 pm; Friday 9 am - 4:45; Sunday, 1 pm - 8:45—but beware, the line may be long!
■ If you used an OIT account Spring or Summer '98, you don't need to stand in line anywhere! Simply log on using the same username and password and start using it. Logging on activates the account and you will be billed $20 by the bursar.
■ If you had an OIT account but need to change something (get a new password, add a service, etc.), bring your UMass picture ID—your UCard—to Lederle GRC room A118 Monday—Friday, 9-4:45.
Questions?
call the OIT Help Desk at 545-9400
And, of course, the OIT Help Desk is open in Lederle lowrise room A109 to answer questions about using your account, using Windows or MacOS computers, using the Web, etc.

PUT THE CAMPUS IN YOUR POCKET
UCard Debit Account
The convenient & easy way to buy at Umass
No more . . .
• Checks,
• Cash
• or Change
Accepted at most Dining Halls, Retail Locations, Vending Machines on campus. As well as Off-campus locations.
OPEN AN ACCOUNT TODAY!
Cash, Check or Credit Card Accepted
Opening week only
Campus Center Concourse
10 a.m. - 3:30 p.m., W-F
Sept. 9-11
Year round
UCard Offce, Frankin Dining Hall
8:30 a.m. - 7 p.m. Wed - Thurs., Opening Week
8:30 - 5:00 p.m., M-F academic year schedule
For more info. call 545-0197

Prentice investigation continues

UMass police say summer brought no new info

By Lorraine Kennedy
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts police are continuing their investigation into the death of Adam Prentice, the University of Massachusetts junior who died of massive bleeding on Sept. 27, 1997 from injuries sustained in a fall.

According to UMass Chief of Police John Luippold, "nothing substantially new" has arisen in their investigation, which is considered to be an "open and potentially criminal investigation."

Adam Prentice, 21 at the time of his death, suffered fatal injuries after falling through the glass of a greenhouse roof near the Morrill Science Center, according to police reports. He was discovered by UMass police, who were called to investigate a door alarm which was activated in Morrill. He was alone at the scene and no witnesses were present.

Barbara Prentice, the victim's mother, continues to voice her concerns about the police department's handling of the investigation and has launched a grass-roots campaign to take the investigation out of their hands.

"My intention is to find out what happened to my son, why I've been stonewalled, and to make sure it doesn't happen to someone else's son," Prentice said.

Prentice feels that it is "highly improbable" that her son fell through the glass of the greenhouse yet received only one injury, an eight-inch stab wound of glass to his back.

She questions the decision of the UMass police department to clean up the scene of the crime without collecting forensic evidence.

"The reason [why there is] no evidence is because UMass ordered it cleaned... within 90 minutes [of the police's arrival]," Prentice said.

She maintains there is no evidence to substantiate claims it was her son inside the greenhouse, since he was discovered by police on the greenhouse lawn.

In addition, she denies alcohol played a role in his death.

"There is no evidence to ever substantiate the comments made by UMass that Adam's death was alcohol-related," she said.

The toxicology report released by the medical examiner stated his blood-alcohol content was 0.12, which is above the 0.08 limit for drunk driving in Massachusetts.

In a meeting with the UMass Student Government Association (SGA) last May, Prentice suggested that "a more probible explanation for [Adam's] death is foul play."

According to Prentice, several individuals have contacted her anonymously regarding the scene of the crime; however, she refused to comment on the information.

Linda Rosencrance, an investigative journalist for the Community Newspaper Company, has spent three months investigating the case and is looking to publish her findings on the anniversary of Adam Prentice's death.

While she refused to comment on specific details until publication of the article, she said she has discovered some "unanswered questions and inconsistencies" in the police reports she has investigated.

Distinguished professor McIntosh dies

Robert E. McIntosh, 58, of Amherst, died of a lengthy illness July 10. McIntosh was a professor of electrical and computer engineering at the University of Massachusetts.

McIntosh, a native of Hartford, Conn., received his undergraduate degree from Worcester Polytechnic Institute, a master's degree from Harvard University and a Ph.D. from the University of Iowa. His teaching career with the University began in 1967.

McIntosh received the title of Distinguished University Professor and was a member of the National Academy of Engineering. He was also a Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (IEEE), and received the IEEE Centennial Medal. He also created advanced research instruments to increase understanding of complex geophysical processes, such as how hot the air on the Earth's surface is and how rough the ocean's waves are.

McIntosh flew hurricane missions for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and monitored the water and ice content of clouds for the Department of Energy.

He leaves his wife, Anne (Potvin) McIntosh, five sons and three grandchildren.

–Jill Carroll

Former engineering head Porter dies at 70

Roger S. Porter, 70, of 220 Rolling Ridge Rd., died Aug. 25 from a long illness. Porter was a retired professor emeritus and former head of the polymer science and engineering department at the University of Massachusetts.

Porter, a native of Minnesota, was educated at the University of California in Los Angeles and the University of Washington in Seattle. He worked in industry for 10 years before joining the UMass faculty in 1966 as the sole member of the polymer science and engineering department, which he headed for 10 years.

He received the Chancellor's Medal, the highest award bestowed by the campus in recognition of service to the University. He also received an honorary doctoral degree from the University in 1996.

Porter leaves his wife Catharine Porter; a son; and three daughters.

Donations may be made in his name to Hospice of Hampshire County. A memorial symposium was planned by his former colleagues.

— Jill Carroll

Professor emeritus Leon Barron, 75, dies

Leon Oser Barron, 75, of 52 Olive St., Newburyport, died suddenly Aug. 2 at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston, Mass. Barron was a professor emeritus at the University of Massachusetts.

A native of Roxbury, Barron received his undergraduate degree from UMass, a master's degree from the University of Minnesota and a Ph.D. from Harvard University.

In 1968 he assumed leadership of Orchard Hill, an experimental college at UMass where he lived as a resident fellow.

A veteran of World War II, Barron served in the U.S. Army Signal Corps.

Barron leaves his wife of 30 years, Carol Barron; three sons, John Barron of Hatfield, Todd Barron of Northampton, and Mark Barron of Mountain View, Calif.; two brothers; a sister; and five grandchildren.

Contributions in his memory may be made to Hillel House & Foundation, 388 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass. 01002.

— Jill Carroll

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
part-time study for people of all ages
FALL 1998

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE

- Nearly 100 credit courses - in the evening! Including:
  Intro to Arts Management
  Public Speaking
  Environmental Health Sciences
  Corporation Finance
  Interpreter's Studies
  Intro to Public Relations
  Human Resource Management
  Energy Healing In Nursing Practice
  Online Course: Sioux Families of the Pine Ridge Reservation
- Opportunities to enroll in University day courses
- Part-time degree programs, both graduate and undergraduate
  Bachelor of General Studies
  Master's in Library and Information Studies
  M.S. in Labor Studies
  Master of Music Education
  M.S. in Plant & Soil Sciences
  Master's in Education
  MBA Professional Program
  RN to BS in Nursing
  Master of Public Health

Classes begin September 14
For a free course catalog, call 413-545-0107 or e-mail continued@admin.umass.edu
www.umass.edu/continued/ for updated course information
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Amherst
a quality education at an affordable price

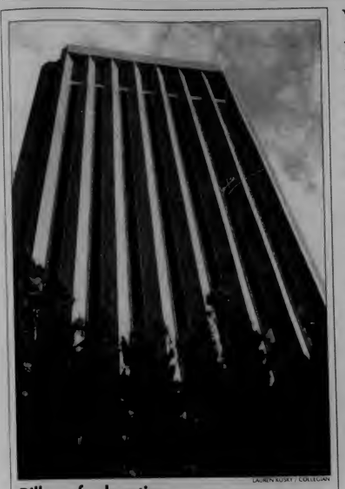
JOIN QPE Today! Queer Peer Education

- Need to add a class?
- Do you like to give workshops?
- Are you creative and enegetic?
- Are you committed to educating others about health and wellness issues?
- How about hosting safer sex parties?
- Want to make a difference for you and your peers?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, call QPE Lauri today at 7-5252 or e-mail - lauri@educ.umass.edu.
1, 2, or 3 credit independent studies are available.
Open to all 5-college students.

The one book you'll need through all 4 years of college.

Open a Fleet Self Service Checking Account and get summers free.



There are all kinds of books you'll need for college. This is the one you need to pay for them – and lots of other things. The Fleet Self Service Checking Account. We know you probably don't have tons of money, so the monthly fee is low and we charge no monthly fee for the summer. We require only a $50 initial deposit with no minimum balance. Plus, you get 20 checks per statement period, unlimited electronic access, conveniently located ATMs and more. And it's easy to open one. Just call 1-800-CALL-FLEET (1-800-225-5353). Or visit our website at www.fleet.com.

Fleet
Ready When You Are

www.fleet.com

Low Monthly Fee
No Minimum Balance Requirement
Unlimited No-fee Electronic Access
Web Banking and Free PC Banking*
Over 2400 Fleet24 ATMs in 13 states

*A one-time shipping and handling fee of $9.95 applies. Ready When You Are is a service mark and Fleet is a registered mark of Fleet Financial Group, Inc. Fleet Bank is a Member FDIC. ©1998 Fleet Financial Group, Inc. All rights reserved.

LAUREN KUSKY / COLLEGIAN

Pillar of education

The most recognizable campus landmark, the W.E.B. Du Bois Library, is one of the most visited buildings at UMass.

Wal–Mart construction still a volatile issue in Hadley

By Jessica Carroll
Collegian Staff

HADLEY — Wal-Mart is coming to Hadley and many people have mixed feelings about the superstore's effect on the community.

The new Wal-Mart will be constructed in the eastern end of what is now the Mountain Farms Mall on Route 9 in Hadley. Years ago this area was occupied by Ames, but has since been divided up for use by smaller stores.

"Wal-Mart is going in and developing a major new store here. Some of the tenants [in the mall] will stay and others will go," said Tim Brennan, executive director of the Pioneer Valley Planning Commission.

Brennan said there is concern in the greater Hadley and Northampton areas over the effects that Wal-Mart may have on smaller businesses in those areas.

"More of our shopping is being bulkanized and consumers find that attractive," Brennan said. "It's been said that competition is stiff."

Bill Dwyer of the Hadley Planning Board said the average sized 97,000 square foot Wal-Mart planned for construction on Route 9 will not hurt the local economy because there are not many small businesses in that area.

"We've had the big chain retailers for years now and people are not opening small stores that would be threatened," Dwyer said.

But some local residents including Amherst resident Nancy Grossman, owner of River Valley Associates, feels differently.

According to a Daily Hampshire Gazette article published Thursday, April 30, Grossman "understands the retail giant has had negative effects on communities in which it has stores."

Dwyer disagrees. He said the Wal-Mart is a redevelopment of an existing depressed mall and it should not have a detrimental effect on the community's economy.

Construction has been postponed due to an official complaint filed by townspeople who oppose the development of the large scale business.

The complaint was dismissed in Hampshire Superior Court on Aug. 21.

However, the plaintiff has 30 days to appeal the dismissal to the Massachusetts Appeals Court. The deadline for appeal of the complaint is now Sept. 22.

"We don't know when construction will begin," Dwyer said. "I suspect we will not see construction anytime before Sept. 22."

But W.S. Development, which is developing the land, will have more to work out besides relations with local residents before construction begins.

Developers for the Wal-Mart project have filed with the Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act (MEPA) to offset potential traffic problems. MEPA has proposed transportation measures to try and effectively handle traffic.

Suggestions were made to developers of the Mountain Farms property to work with their neighbors, the Hampshire Mall, to come up with a strategy for traffic control because that mall is also expanding and will include a 24-screen movie theater and a Sears.

Once construction does begin, the proposal involves demolishing part of a building and reconstructing the Wal- Mart with a gain of approximately 1,000 square feet. Brennan said Wal-Mart has invested a large amount of money for parking.

W.S. Development has recently become the owner of the Mountain Farms property and they will rent the property to Wal-Mart.

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS $10. always
25 n. pleasant st. amherst 256.0733
145 main st. northampton 586.0155

Affordable
Jewelry Natural Fiber Scarves
Blouses Skirts Dresses

The GreatGifts Mercantile
Visa / MC
Th.Fri.9PM
Sun 12-5
Daily 10-6
Amherst-Carriage Shops
Northampton-108Main St.

The GRADUATE STUDENT SENATE
Welcomes All New and Returning Students.

To make your voice heard in your student government become a Senator for your department or GSO and participate in the process!

Schedule of upcoming meetings
Tuesday, Sept. 22: Campus Center Room 168C
Tuesday, Oct. 13: Campus Center Room 174-176
Tuesday, Oct. 27: Campus Center Room 168C
Tuesday, Nov. 17: Campus Center Room 101
All meetings begin at 7:15 pm.

for more information contact the GSS office @ 545-2896 or stop by our office @ Campus Center Room 919.

University Health Services
Mental Health Groups Fall '98

MONDAY

Coed Self Exploration Group
(for Undergraduate Students)
In this group members will be able to address their relationships such as: friendship; intimacy; family issues; work and school, etc. Members may join this group at any point in the school year (as space permits).
Monday, 1:00 - 2:30 p.m.

Supporting Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Identities
Exploring such issues as coming out, building community dating relationships, family of origin and stress management.
Monday, 3:45 - 5:00 p.m.

TUESDAY

On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself.
Thursday, 1:00 - 2:30 p.m.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress.
Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

WEDNESDAY

Adult Children of Dysfunctional Families
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMass students.
Wednesday, 3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

Groups are conducted by Mental Health Division staff. Group sessions are covered under UHS Basic Health Plan and Kaiser pre-paid plan. Groups require an initial screening which can be arranged by calling 545-2337 or by stopping by at 127 Hills North Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m. For further information refer to the Mental Health web site at www.umass.edu/uhs/mentalhealth

THURSDAY

Women's Self-Exploration Group
(For older undergraduates, graduate students, student dependents and Kaiser/CHP members.)
This group provides an opportunity for women to explore personal relationships, work, studies, family of origin, health, acculturation and other relevant concerns. This group is ongoing with members added as space permits.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30 a.m.

Coed Self-Exploration Group
(For older undergraduates, graduate students, student dependents and Kaiser/CHP members.)
This group provides an opportunity for men and women to explore their interpersonal relationships. This group is ongoing with members added as space permits.
Thursday, 3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

MORE GROUPS BEGINNING IN THE SPRING

CALL 545-2337

BOSTON BED & BATH
Formerly LeeJay Bed & Bath

We Accept All Competitors Coupons!
Coupon Good Only At BOSTON BED & BATH
Take $5 Off your total purchase of $15, or more when you bring in this certificate!
Offer valid through September 30, 1998
Only one coupon per customer. Not valid on Ralph Lauren, Royal Velvet, or Charisma merchandise. Not valid in conjunction with any other discount or coupon. Not valid on Kitchen Kaboodle merchandise. Not valid on prior purchases, phone orders or on the purchase of gift certificates. Not valid for employees.

Student senator elections up first for SGA

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association (SGA) is gearing up for the new school year with plans for a Sept. 28 upcoming senator election underway.

"We really want the elections to run smoothly," said Lisa Cook, speaker of the senate. "We're trying to get as many people as possible to vote and run for positions. We handed out posters at the [Resident Assistant] resource fair, and we'll poster campus."

The SGA will aim for a voter turnout of at least 5 percent of the undergraduate student body, less than that will result in a nullification of the elections.

Last fall's SGA senator elections drew 877 students, just under 5 percent of the students required, and had to be nullified. However in the second election, 15 percent of the voting population turned out at the polls.

"We are trying to change the public perception of SGA. Most students don't know what we do and how much money we are responsible for handing out to the Registered Student Organizations (RSO)," Cook said.

The Ways and Means Committee of the SGA allocates approximately 1.5 million to RSOs every year.

COURTESY SGA
Student Government Association President Salwa Shamapande

SGA President Salwa Shamapande said a referendum question will be on the ballot in the fall elections.

"We're considering adding a referendum to the voting ballot. Questions about the new alcohol sanctions, credit card vendors on campus, the student code of campus being applied off campus," he said. "We're hoping people will come out to vote if there is a controversial question to attract them," he said.

According to Shamapande and Cook, the SGA will be going to residence halls to speak with freshmen and others who may be interested in joining the SGA. They will also be handing out packets to RAs, putting ads in the Collegian, and possibly advertise in PVTA buses.

The SGA also revamped its web site over the summer to provide more information on student leaders and activities within the organization.

COURTESY SGA
Speaker of the Student Senate Lisa Cook

Both Cook and Shamapande admit that last year the SGA's problems might have given students a bad impression.

"Last year was rotten. We are doing now what we should have done last year," Shamapande said. "We need to emphasize to the University that we have the ability to do things. We need to rebuild faith.

"We are working together a lot better. We didn't have that last year. We are sharing our ideas and our relationships have picked up. Everyone gets along well as a whole."

Speaker Cook agreed.

"We decided to link all branches and have SGA student leadership meetings. We could work more effectively together than separately. We're not trying to dwell on the past, we've really learned from last year," Cook said.

Some other issues that the SGA will tackle this semester are the Course And Teacher Evaluation (CATE) guide, an off-campus student code of conduct, academic credit for athletes, voter registration, parking, credit card vendors on campus and plans for a new student union.

An open-house will be held for all interested in getting involved in the SGA on Sept. 15 in the Campus Center.

Nominations for student senators open Sept. 9 and close Sept. 22. Campaigning for the Sept. 28 election will take place Sept. 23–28. For more information call the SGA offices at 545-0341.

UC2000 may develop fundraising plans this fall

By Laura Forster
Collegian Staff

University Center 2000 (UC2000), a proposal to renovate the Campus Center and Student Union, is moving forward as plans for possible fundraising strategies begin this semester.

After having plans approved last semester by the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association (SGA), Judy Steinkamp, principal planner of master planning of Campus Planning and Space Management, is bringing UC2000 into the next phase by determining approximate costs and fundraising strategies.

"Nothing is cast in stone, a lot depends on how to target funds," Steinkamp said.

The primary focus of the fundraising is to finance two additions to the University Center, one designed to be attached to a corner of the Campus Center Concourse, a 10,000 square-foot program space.

Adjoining the program space will be an enclosed glass atrium with a lounge, gallery, eating area, a new elevator and stairs to the Student Union.

Steinkamp, along with an SGA student steering committee and various other student organizations such as the Student Center for Education Research and Advocacy (SCERA), Earthfoods and People's Market, hope to work on strategizing this fall and hope to begin implementation in the spring.

Depending on how much of the two buildings are occupied by student organizations and private investors, the steering committee will determine who to target for financial support.

UMass alumni will be one source of aid.

If more commercial organizations are brought into the campus, then more money will be received from these outside organizations.

If not, then student fees will be used to cover the costs. This could mean reallocating student fees since the University is unable to raise them due to a fee freeze.

The year 2000, which will mark the 40th anniversary of the Student Union, is the targeted date for building to commence.

Steinkamp said the steering committee hopes to hire an architect in the spring to keep the plan on its timeline for the year 2000.

The building will then be a "phased project" in which certain areas will be worked on at a time. Certain businesses, such as the Bluewall, will be closed temporarily during renovations and building. However, Steinkamp said the building should not take long since "the basic framework is intact."

Some major changes to occur through the plan will be a student club with a bistro/pub, dance floor, game room, and satellite television where the Blue Wall is now located.

In place of the coffee shop will be a market place with some student businesses, travel agency, photo store, People's Market and a merchandise store. Also, a theater with a seating capacity of 250 is planned for the third floor of the Campus Center.

In the Student Union, Registered Student Organizations (RSO) will be consolidated on the fourth floor, placing them in a more visible area. A computer lounge and family lounge will also be on the third floor, the level of the main entrance.

Small renovations to meeting rooms have begun and will continue throughout the semester.

As the plan moves forward into later stages of development, student input is being sought. Open workshops are scheduled for later in the month for students who wish to add ideas.

Students interested in volunteering or contributing to the plan may contact Marc Kenen, the director of student planning for SCERA.

The Daily Collegian wants everyone to remember that in our next issue there will be Classifieds, Comics and a Crossword Puzzle.....and so much more

http://www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

AUDITIONS FOR
Not Ready For Bedtime Players
Tuesday, September 15, 6:00PM University Health Sevices
(follow signs to third floor)
For more information call the Health Education Division of the University Health Services and ask for Sally or Mike 577-5181.

Classroom Operation
call us at 545-1611
will be hiring 100+ UMass Students for consultant, clerical, technical, and programming positions for Fall '98
APPLICATIONS AND INTERVIEWS
Sept. 8th, 9th, and 10th
Room 738
W.E.B Du Bois Library for further information

CHECK OUT A GREAT CLASS!
GOTTA BE A PEER EDUCATOR
While there is still room!!
Peer Health Educators...
...learn about cool stuff
...teach workshops in the residence halls and Greek area.
...give out condoms and other goodies at the Campus Center and special events.
...enhance their own self-knowledge.
...make new friends.
...MAKE A DIFFERENCE!
PEER HEALTH EDUCATION I & II
COMUNITY HEALTH EDUCATION/EDUCATION 213/214
6 Credits - 2 Semester Commitment Required -
Class time: Tuesdays 2:30 - 5:00 pm
For more information call Lauri Turkovsky at 577-5181.

As you can C/C++, life's beautiful here!
If you think Quark is a television character or the subatomic particle proposed as the building block of all matter, you're right. But Quark is also the international leader in electronic publishing software (ever hear of QuarkXPress?) with a strong and growing presence in the area of client/server technologies. And we're based in Denver, Colorado, beneath a sky that for more than 300 days a year is blue and sunny.
If you'd like to put your Computer Science or Engineering degree to use as a developer right now, and if you have expenence with Windows and/or Macintosh APL we'd like to hear from you. If you have a strong knowledge of user interface design, networking, or publishing, we'd LOVE to hear from you.
Send your résumé to:
Quark, Inc.
Attn: Dept. Beautiful Life
1800 Grant Street
Denver, CO 80203
You may e-mail your résumé to:
employment@quark.com
Or you may fax your résumé to:
303.894.3649
Also, check out our website at:
www.quark.com
Software development internships available, too!
QUARK

Campus undergoes major construction

Renovation projects underway at FAC & Old Chapel

By Jill Carroll
Collegian Staff

The absence of the Old Chapel clocktower summit from the University of Massachusetts skyline is one of several construction projects that have changed more than the University's silhouette this summer.

The finial, or tip, of the clocktower was removed in May and is on display until October in the W.E.B. Du Bois library as work on the bells, clock and interior of the tower continues.

"It's been a big project. It is being put back together," said Richard Nathhorst, project manager with the facilities planning division. "Two-thirds of it has been disassembled."

The 115-foot tower has been partially dismantled in order to strengthen the structure.

"We've replaced the original red brick infill with concrete," Nathhorst said.

The bells have been sent to Holland along with the clavier, or keyboard, used to play the bells, for tuning.

Nathhorst said the finial should be back in place in late October after the clocktower is rebuilt brick by brick.

"It's going very well," Nathhorst said. "They're very competent and doing a beautiful job. There are two master masons on the job who really know their work."

In addition to structural renovations, the exterior stones received a face lift via powerwashing.

While some laborers have been refurbishing the old on campus, others have been building the new.

The first phase of the computer science and engineering complex is underway in the northeast corner of campus.

According to Bob Bready, project manager with facilities planning division, the exterior walls are in place and the interior is currently under construction.

"We're doing grading for the land and working on the inside, plastering walls," Bready said.

The complex is designed to house the civil and environmental engineering programs.

"It will have classrooms, graduate student offices and computer business offices," Bready said.

On the opposite side of campus the Fine Arts Center is getting a new lobby. With a $1.8 million price tag, the project will add 4,600 square-feet of space to the Fine Arts Center.

The new lobby will be located in the space between the entrances to the Rand Theater and the Concert Hall to provide the Fine Arts Center with a prominent entrance point.

"The Fine Arts Center does not have a single entrance. Visitors coming to campus can never find the concert hall because the entrance is perpendicular to the flow of traffic," said Marty Smith, manager of planning and architecture with the facilities planning division.

The glass enclosure designed by Perry, Dean, Rogers and Partners that Smith calls "more like a sculpture than a building" will also put to rest concerns that the gallery below the lobby will be damaged from the elements.

"It has another purpose. It provides a permanent roof for the gallery. The gallery is directly below the plaza," Smith said.

The project is expected to be finished in February 1999 and alternate entrances to the theater and concert hall during the construction are planned.

But on-campus renovations are not limited to the area surrounding the campus pond.

Several more Residence Halls are equipped with ethernet room access as the program enters its second year.

Ethernet provides a faster, modumless way to get on-line. While the service is included in the $20 fee required to obtain an e-mail account, a special card and cable must also be purchased to use the service.

Kenley Obas, senior help desk consultant with the Office of Information Technologies, said students have to purchase a 10BaseT card which can range in price from $25 to $29 depending on the type of computer.

He said laptop users have to purchase a PCMCIA card which is more expensive.

"For (Macintosh computers, there is a couple of different flavors of cards," Obas said.

The Residence Halls with ethernet in Southwest are: Coolidge, Crampton, Patterson, Prince and Washington.

In Central, ethernet is installed in Brett, Brooks, Gorman, Van Meter and Wheeler.

Orchard Hill residents in Dickinson and Webster will be able to access ethernet.

Northeast has three ethernet-equipped Residence Halls: Crabtree, Hamlin and Thatcher.

Brown is the sole ethernet provider in Sylvan.

As for the rest of the on-campus residents, Obas said ethernet will be coming, eventually.

"There isn't any idea on when it will be campus-wide at all," he said.

LAUREN KUSKY / COLLEGIAN
Renovations, which should be completed this fall, continue on the Old Chapel's clocktower. To improve the structure's strength, the tower is being rebuilt brick by brick.

UM card access system expanded

By Laura Jakutowicz
Collegian Staff

Some students living on campus this semester will witness the debut of the latest in housing security technology.

The UCard access system has been installed in most residence halls across campus with the exception of eight, all located in Northeast and Sylvan.

Students, with the swipe of a UCard, can access their buildings which will be locked from 8 p.m. until 8 a.m., weekdays. Every building with the UCard access will be locked 24 hours a day on weekends.

The residence halls not yet installed with the system will still use key access.

"This is the last phase to be completed," said Dustin Smith, a spokesperson for Housing Services and Telecommunications.

"We've saved it over four phases because we reasonably couldn't install all of the buildings in one summer," said Sharon Shevlin, assistant director for computer and information systems for Housing Services.

"Many other schools have adopted [similar] technology before we did," Shevlin said.

The card access system is designed to be efficient while providing a more secure residence hall than a traditional key entry system.

"With the key system, if someone loses a key, we can recore the door, but if the finder still has the key they can still access the building," Shevlin said.

Card access began in spring of 1996 in the Southwest Residence Halls of John Quincy Adams and Coolidge. By spring of 1997, all of the remaining Southwest buildings were online.

The card access system was completely installed in Orchard Hill and Central by fall of 1997 with the exception of Butterfield.

With the card system, students can access more than one building, depending on his or her needs, without having to carry several different keys.

"If you live in a multi-building cluster we provide access to the residence hall you live in 24 hours a day, seven days a week. We also provide you access to your cluster office. If you happen to take a class in a third building you will have access to that as well," Shevlin said.

Lost or stolen UCards can be automatically be deactivated when the student informs his or her cluster office. This will prevent non-residents from entering halls with lost cards.

PREMAJOR ADVISING SERVICES
SERVING THE UNDECLARED AND SELECTED PREMAJORS
(COMMUNICATION, COMPUTER SCIENCE, JOURNALISM, ENGLISH, PSYCHOLOGY AND WOMEN'S STUDIES) we want to encourage you to stop by for assistance with ✓ course selection and scheduling
✓ adding and dropping classes
✓ the latest info on majors
ADVISOR'S HOURS: 9:00 to 4:30
Appointments and Walk-In E-20 Machmer
545-2191
Undergraduate Advising Resources website: WWW.UMASS.EDU/RN/ADVISING

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS
• CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS •
LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • VR
BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

DO THE MATH RIGHT WITH CASIO CALCULATORS!
YOU COULD WIN $25,000!
Enter the Casio "Class of '99 Sweepstakes" to win our Grand Prize, $25,000 in U.S. Savings Bonds!
25 First Prizes
Casio QV-700 digital camera and DP-8000 printer
"This will change the way teachers share their calculator investigations with their students."
—John Kenelly, Alumni Distinguished Professor, Dept. of Mathematical Sciences, Clemson University
(to reference to Casio CFX-9850G calculator)
At Casio, we're making education easier and more affordable. That's why we've designed our family of Graphing and Scientific Calculators to deliver more power for less money.
And now, in our "Class of '99 Sweepstakes," you could really lower the costs of higher education when you enter to win the Grand Prize, $25,000 in U.S. Savings Bonds! Use it to pay for tuition, books, housing, loan payments, whatever you need to lighten the load! Plus, 25 First Prize winners will receive their own personal digital photo lab—a Casio QV-700 digital camera and DP-8000 printer!
Simply drop into a participating store and pick up a #20 rebate coupon. While you're there, be sure to check out our innovative 2-Line Calculators, which show formulas and results simultaneously. And our Graphing Calculators, which pack the power of graphic technology into a compact, affordable unit. These Casio Calculators are the best in their class to get you to the top of your class! Sweepstakes ends September 30, 1999. Enter today for your chance to win!
"tailor at maturity"
FX-9750G
FX-7700GE
FX-7000G
FX-2700G
Count me in!
Yes, sign me up for a chance to win in the Casio "Class of '99 Sweepstakes!"
Mail entry form to: "Class of '99 Sweepstakes," PO. Box 3C, Nyack-On-N.Y 10995-0702
Or enter online at: http://classofnine.com/turkeyfeed
Name _____ Age _____
Home Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Day Telephone _____
Email _____
CASIO
New, reverse #20 cash back on your purchase of selected Casio models! Rebate coupons available at your Casio calculator retailer. See store for details.
Casio Scientific Calculators are available at your college bookstore and your local electronic retailer.
CASIO
casio.com

Does your calculus class demand electronic countermeasures?
...just infiltrate the software section of your campus bookstore.
CALCULUS Viz
www.wizpower.com

NiGht Graphics

The Co[illegible] department [illegible] tions for [illegible].

Anyone with experience with QuarkeXPress, Adobe Illustrator, and/or Adobe Photoshop should come down to the Campus Center Information Desk 113 and fill out an application.

If you have any questions please call 545-1865 and ask for Joe.

Coming Mid September...

UltimateFitness
THE HEALTH AND FITNESS CENTER

Featuring the latest in Fitness Training & Equipment "Everything You Need in a Gym and More!"

- Certified Personal Trainers
- Fitness Testing & Programming
- Nutritional Consultation
- Tanning
- Sauna
- Juice Bar & Supplements

Cardiovascular Equipment
- Stairmasters
- Precor Treadmills
- Lifecycle Recumbent Bikes
- Lifecycle Upright Bikes
- Precor Crosstrainers

State-of-the-Art Strength Training Equipment
- Bodymasters & Icarian Free Weights
- Cybex Circuit Training Equipment

Located in the Campus Plaza next to Liquors 44. For more information call 253-7571

WELCOME BACK

SILVERSCAPE DESIGNS

264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3324
Mon.-Sat. 10-6; Thurs. till 9; Sun 12-5

One King St., Northampton 584-3324
Mon.-Wed. 10-6; Thurs.-Sat. 10-9; Sun 12-5,

We Have
(Exercise Bike Classes):
Full Schedule

Personal Training
Friendly Atmosphere

Tanning
Aerobics - Full Schedule
Cardio Theater

Great Hours
Multi-Level Balconies
New Entrance
Trained Staff

Fruit Smoothies,
Supplements, Health Drinks

Pre Cors, Bikes, Rowers,
Treadmills, Stairclimbers

The area's only

IMPROVED!
EXPANDED!
WHAT YOU WANT!

THE CLUB
Tennis & Fitness Center
659 Amherst Road, Sunderland
549-3638

Parking Hearing Review Board Members Needed

Parking services is seeking faculty, staff, and students to serve on the parking Hearing Review Board. Periodically, several members will be scheduled to review and render decisions on previously contested campus parking citations. In preparation for becoming a Board member, each person will be asked to attend a two-hour training session that will include a review of the hearing process and a "walk-through" of an actual hearing.

After training, Hearing Board members will be asked to serve on a rotating basis, meeting approximately once every three months. Both training sessions and hearings are scheduled base on Board members' availability.

Individuals interested in serving on the Parking Hearing Review Board should contact Sharon Kennedy by e-mail (s.kennedy@umassp.edu), by phone (413-545*0065) located in the Lot 25 Trailer Complex just north of the Mullins Center as soon as possible.

Accepting:
MasterCard VISA

PIZZA PAPA JOHN'S
331 Russell Street, Hadley
586-7272

OPEN 'TIL 2am
FRIDAY & SATURDAY

Welcome Back
Carry-out Special
NO LIMIT
$5.99
PLUS TAX
NEW Large Cheese Pizza
(Offer expires October 31, 1998)

HOURS OF OPERATION
Sunday - Wednesday 11am - 1am
Thursday 11am - 2am
Friday & Saturday 11am - 3am

LARGE ONE-TOPPING PIZZA DELIVERED
$6.99
Offer expires 10/31/98 • Not Valid with any other offer • Valid only at participating locations • Customer pays all applicable sales tax • Additional toppings extra

1 LG ONE TOPPING AND 6 PACK OF COCA-COLA
$9.99
Offer expires 10/31/98 • Not Valid with any other offer • Valid only at participating locations • Customer pays all applicable sales tax • Additional toppings extra

Swans, TAUs and Antonios: Welcome to UMass

By Bryan McAllister

By now, you've been through the nervousness, the excitement, the last-minute packing and planning. You've set up your room and pushed mom and dad out the door. You've met your roommate and you're probably already planning for your single, but you won't get it, not for a couple years. You've read all the handbooks with titles like College Survival 101 and The Super Ultimate College Survival Handbook.

In fact, you probably have a copy of one of those books nearby you right now, ready to look up in the index for "what happens when you lock yourself out of your room on the first day of classes and have to sprint to the cluster office in a very short towel."

But trust me, you won't find that kind of stuff in those college guides. After all, they were written by people as old as your parents.

So forget about chapters on college romance that still refer to relationships as "going steady." This is not boy meets girl. This is boy meets girl, boy gets really drunk and sleeps with another girl, girl gets big rugby-playing male friend to "talk" with boy, boy begs and gets girl back but... Fill in the rest with your own experience come December. If you live in Southwest, I want those stories unedited.

The hardest thing about freshman year is leaving all your old high school friends and forming new ties. No one will get your jokes or know every minute detail about you. This is a good thing.

Looking back on last year, any success I had was equally matched with the occasional faux pas. Freshman year is a learning experience, and the biggest mistake you can make is to give up on anything or anyone. This includes a roommate who paints on her wall "I hate roommates!" or a class in Bartlett with those tiny chairs, allowing you to get no sleep whatsoever.

No guide book, then, can possibly prepare you for what is to come. For example, let's look at the following excerpts from the aforementioned Super Ultimate College Guide and their equivalent UMass freshman translation.

- Meet as many new people as possible.
UMass freshman translation: Kiss up to the guy over 21 down the hall.
- Get involved.
Watch "South Park."
- Be friendly and inviting.
Continually ask the cute girl next door to eat lunch with you until she gets a restraining order.
- You'll get used to the Dining Commons food.
You will eat pasta everyday. You will dream pasta. You will be pasta.
- Store healthy food in your dorm for a quick snack.
You keep confusing Little Debbie and her delicious snack cakes with your girlfriend.
- If you don't drink, you don't have to.
If you don't drink, why did you come to UMass?
- Campus traditions are old, beautiful and sacred
We have a swan and "chicken finger night." Of course, it would be better with a chicken and "swan night," but who's complaining.
- College sports are a chance to bond with your fellow peers.
Chug a beer and begin every conversation with "Screw Marcus Camby!"
- Long distance relationships are tough and require hard work.
Lie.
- Studying requires no distractions.
Playing NHL Hockey requires no distractions, don't even try to do something crazy like studying.
- Go to all your classes.
All your lecture notes are on the Internet anyway, go only if "Judge Judy" isn't on.

The real key to freshman year is to be open minded. Everyone will be trying to give you advice and you might feel like you're never going to accomplish everything you want to do. When this feeling generates, sit back, relax, and do whatever you want. It's the one thing you could rarely do at home.

But most important, be yourself. That's the one thing you could rarely do in high school.

Bryan McAllister is a Collegian staff member.

The tower library — home to all your studying needs and a great view from the top floor.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

The beauty of the campus pond is illuminated in a late summer afternoon.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

See Page B2

First week activites info

Saving Private Ryan brings war to life with Hanks' touch

By Rob Roensch

Art is too small a word for what a movie can do. While most recent forms of the traditional Western arts can too often be classified as elitist like 12-tonal music and contemporary visual art, movies remain a medium that speaks to a wide spectrum of people. Movies are relatively cheap and everywhere, a virtue we do not always appreciate.

You could point to the negative aspects of the mass medium, the way the public greedily accepts over-simplified world views and painlessly exploding buildings. You could point to the success of Armageddon, a jump-cutting festival of distracted violence and bland patriotism, and say that the public is perfectly happy with crap. But there is also the success of Saving Private Ryan.

The fact that the public goes to see Ryan mainly because of the names Steven Spielberg and Tom Hanks is not irrelevant, but besides showing the power of "stars" to bring us to the theater, it also shows the power that stars have to express difficult ideas to a finicky audience.

It's precisely because Spielberg and Hanks proved their conservative, optimistic white "American" views of human nature with such popular movies as E.T. and Forrest Gump that Middle America is so willing to follow them into the dense, terrifying wilderness of Saving Private Ryan. You trust the two of them like older brothers. Imagine a stuttering stranger on the street screaming how he saw a man's head explode. Now imagine your older brother telling you the same story.

This is the depth of power Spielberg and Hanks have over much of America as compared to more innovative filmmakers like John Sayles, who will probably always stand just a little too far outside mainstream America to change it from the inside.

Both Spielberg and Hanks, to their enormous credit, have shouldered the responsibility of pushing the Middle American envelope — Hanks most notably with his great risk (as everyone thought then) of playing a gay man with AIDS in Philadelphia. Hanks is a great actor. Like Jimmy Stewart, he carries decency with him from movie to movie, but only Hanks never holds himself above the less decent souls around. Further, for Hanks, decency is never a given, it is a battle. Spielberg also fought the good fight recently with his powerful, if flawed, trio of socially conscious films — Schindler's List, Amistad, and this film.

It is important, first, to avoid making Spielberg's movies the definitive word on the Holocaust, racism and war. It is, however, not his fault that we have few recent American movies to compare his with. His movies serve as a needed challenge to other big money studios, and it is a wonderful message. This is what movies with gigantic budgets can do, he says. Try to make something worthwhile. The public will follow.

It is a difficult challenge to respond to. Not least because it is very hard to make a good movie with a ridiculous amount of money. There can be so much more to worry about, and so much time to worry about it. Control of blockbuster budgets may be Spielberg's one transcendent talent. But just because it is hard to make a good movie is no excuse for the lack of vision in Godzilla and Armageddon. The challenge has been laid out, because Saving Private Ryan is a landmark movie.

The film begins with a brutal reproduction of the beach landing on D-Day that is nothing short of overwhelming. The only thing I can think of to compare

Turn to RYAN, page B5

Summer concerts high on energy, low on taste

By Kevin Monahan
Collegian Staff

Sarah McLachlan led the way at this summer's second annual Lilith Fair

ANEVA FEDER / COLLEGIAN

VANS' WARPED TOUR '98
Three County Fairgrounds
July 29

"Punk's not dead, it just deserves to die when it becomes another stale cartoon."
—The Dead Kennedys

NORTHAMPTON — Call it "Corporate Merchandising Tour '98." Hundreds of punk rock/ska fans flocked to Noho for the third Vans' Warped Tour (this year minus the Mighty Mighty Bosstones). They came to be subjected to dangerous conditions — heatstroke and dehydration were risk factors for anyone who did not have $2 to spend on a bottle of water — and to see some of their favorite bands such as Rancid, NOFX and Bad Religion play sets that lasted all of 25 minutes (sometimes a little less).

One could ask anyone in attendance, myself included, how it feels to be a pre-cutout market for these corporate predators. The sad thing is, we don't know what it's like not to be one.

LILITH FAIR
Great Woods
Aug. 11

MANSFIELD — Now feminism is a market to be easily exploited (see Vans' Warped Tour, even though this was nowhere near as evil). I doubt that the Biore clear pore strips would have sold better anywhere else. But putting the concentration on the music, the second annual Lilith Fair featured entertaining sets from talented women in music. N'Dea Davenport's early performance of poppy R&B was energetic in the right places, and excellent when it got soulful and bluesy. Things got a little bit louder with the bouncy bubblegum pop of Letters to Cleo and the punk- tinged funk rock of Luscious Jackson.

The best performance was given by

Turn to CONCERTS, page B2

A winning few in summer slew

OUT OF SIGHT
Directed by Steven Soderbergh with George Clooney, Jennifer Lopez, Ving Rhames

Summer Movie Reviews

Elmore Leonard's novels seem like the perfect source material for a snappy Hollywood thriller, but Hollywood is having trouble translating Leonard's clipped, catchy prose and unforgiving landscape to the big screen. Get Shorty was entertaining but shamelessly flashy and full of hollow gestures and characters. Jackie Brown was more honest, deeply awkward and moving, but also heavy and self-obsessed.

Out of Sight is the first to capture not only Leonard's dialogue, but his warped, fanciful-but-human characters and also the way his stories unfold naturally, like complicated, delicate flowers. There's a lot going on, and none of it is there to merely add hip flavor to the story — no babbling about cheeseburgers in Paris.

For Leonard, and the director, Steven Soderbergh, words and the way people talk are more than just spicy flavor. His characters are hip, but slightly detached from the real world, always looking for a way back in.

Lifelong criminal Jack Foley (George Clooney) smooths his way out of prison, kidnapping an interfering federal officer, Karen Sisco (Jennifer Lopez), along the way. They get locked in the trunk together and discover that they can talk to each other. From that point on, the movie revolves around this attraction between two kindred spirits firmly on opposite sides of the law.

It seems like a trite and obvious set-up, and it would be if the chemistry between Clooney and Lopez weren't so real. The air between them practically vibrates. The perfectly balanced witty/poetic/realistic dialogue certainly doesn't hurt either.

The film comes down to a very simple problem: Jack can't live in society, but he can't stop chasing after one of society's great luxuries: love. Out of Sight is not complicated in its moral, not that it needs to be, which is obvious and heartbreaking, but it is incredibly layered in its sensation.

Out of Sight is one of the most tactile movies in recent memory, as light, shadow and color carry great emotional weight. You can almost sense the great blue tease of the open air in the prison, the cold, dead rubbery black of the Detroit winter. Besides that, Soderbergh cuts up scenes and laces them together, intersperses live action with freeze frames, suggesting that life is more than just a time line, that stories can stop and crystalize with a kiss or an explosion of anger.

And it is funny. And the supporting cast is unbelievable. This is a great movie. A great story, a simple conflict forcefully dramatized, a shining stew of color, language and stuttering time. It's an easy call for the finest movie of the summer.

A (Rob Roensch)

THE TRUMAN SHOW
Directed by Peter Weir with Jim Carrey, Ed Harris, Laura Linney

The Truman Show was possibly the best reviewed movie of the last several years, an incredible achievement for a summer movie with the star of Ace Ventura in it. The film is thoughtful, difficult and a booty-shaking good time.

Jim Carrey plays Truman Burbank, the unaware subject of a television show who begins to suspect that something is strange about the people around him. The movie follows Truman's struggle to learn the truth and to escape from his false world and his father/God/programming director Christof (Ed Harris).

The acting is heartfelt and moving, no shocker from Harris, master of controlled intensity. But the toned-down Carrey is indeed a revelation. His exuberant and unwieldy comic energy is not gone, but buried, always there, below the surface. Comedy is only a few short steps from pathos, and Carrey, like Tom Hanks and Steve Martin before him, makes the transition cleanly. It would not be surprising nor inappropriate to see Carrey and Harris nominated for Oscars.

To this promising mix director Peter Weir (Dead Poets Society, Witness) adds his characteristic aura of strange magic lurking beneath the everyday. Despite a

Turn to MOVIES, page B2

After past failures, George Clooney makes his mark on the silver screen in Out of Sight.

COURTESY MIRAMAX MOVTON

INSIDE THIS ISSUE:

Bridget Jones book review ... B2
Tube Notes ... B2
Mike Meccarco on 93-1 ... B4
Quiz ... B7
Movie reviews ... B8
Summer winners and losers ... B7

Annual HORDE fest a hit

By Joseph D. Savitch
Collegian Staff

H.O.R.D.E
Great Woods
July 31

MANSFIELD — The H.O.R.D.E Festival rolled into Great Woods on July 31. H.O.R.D.E fest is a hodge podge of musical talent with three stages, huge stars and big time fun.

This is the seventh consecutive year for H.O.R.D.E, the second longest running concert series after Lollapalooza. Since H.O.R.D.E started, countless bands have joined, grown in popularity, and have gone on to be major musical influences themselves. Dave Matthews Band is a perfect example of the selling power of H.O.R.D.E.

This year's festival at Great Woods had five festival bands and five main stage performers. Iggle the Handle, the Jim Kelly Band, the Getaway People, Catatonia, Marcy Playground and Gov't Mule performed on the festival stage. On the main stage: Alana Davis, Ben Harper & the Innocent Criminals, Paula Cole, Barenaked Ladies and Blues Traveler.

The music at H.O.R.D.E. never stopped. There was either a band on the festival stage or the main stage at any time. There was also a third stage, the workshop stage, which featured house bands hosted by Chris Barron and impromptu performances by other H.O.R.D.E. acts throughout the day.

H.O.R.D.E. will make over 40 stops in 27 cities all over the United States and Canada this summer. The Boston stop at Great Woods was not the most ideal for this festival. The one giant stage made it difficult to pass between the two set- ups. The festival stage was around a corner and down a hill — not the most accessible. The saving grace was that the music from the festival stage was played over the sound system on the main stage.

While the festival stage was fun, it did not have the attractive qualities the main stage possessed. The only highlight was the dark sounds of Marcy Playground, who are desperately trying to bust into mainstream music, using H.O.R.D.E. as their means in.

The main stage led with Alana Davis. She played her mix of Ani DiFranco-esque music, including her version of "32 Flavors." But her set lasted only a half hour.

Ben Harper & the Innocent Criminals, a George Clinton- type spin off were truly psychedelic. Give them credit, they went on for over an hour, probably because no one could get them off the stage.

Paula Cole came on right after security cleared the pavilion of concertgoers with tickets for lawn seating. Cole is an angry woman, spending half her stage time banging away on a drum like a crazed animal. The rest of the time she calmly played her piano or dancing.

John Popper of Blues Traveler joined Cole on stage, performing a harmonica solo. She played most of This Fire, i.e. "I Don't Want to Wait" and "Where Have All the Cowboys Gone?" Her set was one of the best. She wanted the crowd to have a good time, not just show off her talents.

Following Cole, the Barenaked Ladies played like a headliner, despite the fact they weren't for this tour. In their customary joking manner, they mentioned the problems they have had with counting. Sure there weren't 80,000 people packed into Boston's City Hall Plaza [for a show last year], but there were a lot of people. They blamed their promoters, and continued.

The Barenaked Ladies are following the white middle- class rapper motif similar to The Beastie Boys. Like their new single "One Week," their live show was full of free style.

BNL are total showmen, they want their crowd to get their money's worth and it did. They have a fire which hasn't been seen since some of the early '80s tours. The Barenaked Ladies by themselves would be killer show.

The last and supposed main act was Blues Traveler. Popper and crew came out for the last set, and a half-hour into their show half the audience was either gone or asleep. Popper is an incredible artist. He can play the harmonica and the guitar like few musicians I have ever seen, but he has cement in his shoes.

If the crowd was a wild pack of animals when BNL left the stage, Blues Traveler turned it into a retirement community. The Blues Traveler are an awesome band and have done wonders for the H.O.R.D.E. Fest, but they lacked the same enthusiasm earlier bands displayed.

H.O.R.D.E Festival is a great showcase for musicians and is packed with stars. It is well worth the price of admission.

ANNA FELER / COLLEGIAN

Luscious Jackson and other Lilith Fair ladies come together at this year's festival.

■ concerts

continued from page B1

Natalie Merchant. Her set was a piece of performance art, featuring circus props and a large wooden swing. Sarah McLachlan closed the festival with a 50-minute set that featured her on guitars, pianos and vocals and a guest appearance by Emmylou Harris.

In closing the festivities, all artists took stage for a cover of Marvin Gaye's "What's Going On."

Although the Lilith Fair needs to be more diverse in their genres of music featured, this is an issue recognized by the artists and is being achieved (Neneh Cherry was also on the lineup, but did not perform). And people need to remember they are in attendance for the music, and not to be sold beauty products.

WBCN RIVER RAVE '98
Great Woods
May 31

MANSFIELD — Sometimes the atmosphere of a show can overcome the lack of musical innovation, and such is the case with most festivals, particularly the annual WBCN River Rave. Since moving to Great Woods, WBCN has been able to take advantage of a more organized setting, featuring two stages and a plethora of booths and events. So you could get a haircut, get an autograph, and see a couple bands all in one day. Of course, that's if you were patient enough to sit in lines as long as the one for Splash Mountain.

The early bands were marred by a distracted audience and short sets, but of the bunch, the Pearl Jam/Bush incarnate Creed held their own and Semisonic, with "Closing Time," provided the best daytime entertainment. On the smaller stage, Feeder proved to be a clever and amusing live band despite their destiny as a one-hit wonder band.

But this festival really began at dusk, when two bands took the stage and created mayhem like never seen before. First Offspring, who instructed the crowd to pick up all the garbage off the ground and throw it onstage — a brilliant visual chaos that luckily only caused me to get hit with a few pizza crusts. Not that I cared at the moment.

One might ask how you top such a thing, but Green Day managed to; as Billie Joe and Company blasted through their songs — they're a great live band — and proceeded to crash and burn their set. This all could have been very staged, but it was beautifully unpredictable, a theme captured quite well when a pantless Billie Joe came out amongst the ruins and sang "Time of Your Life."

THE SMASHING PUMPKINS
The Orpheum
July 31

BOSTON — Supporting their current album, Adore, the Pumpkins came to Boston for a concert to benefit the Children's AIDS Foundation. Their set consisted of four songs from Mellon Collie and the Infinite Sadness and the rest from Adore. Billy Corgan and company walked through the performance, saying as few words to the sold-out crowd as possible. The highlight of the show was the electric thrash version of the first single from the new LP "Ava Adore." "Bullet With Butterfly Wings" and "1979" were rendered almost unrecognizable as fans longed to hear tunes from the Pumpkins' first two albums of excellent material which they chose to ignore (1991's Gish and the 1993 masterpiece Siamese Dream). And we could have done without the check presentation on stage. Billy, James and D'arcy could have just said what wonderful people they are, and that would have been more subtle.

BEASTIE BOYS
Worcester Centrum Centre
Aug. 25

WORCESTER — The Beastie Boys certainly know how to wind up an already over-enthusiastic crowd. Let's face it, Mike D, Ad Rock, and MCA could have belched their way through their set and most of the audience would have been content.

After the opening performance by Money Mark, the Beastie Boys took the stage with the classic lineup of Ad Rock on guitar, MCA on bass and Mike D on drums and performed a cover of Rush's "Tom Sawyer," to the universal confusion of the sold-out crowd.

The Beasties went on to play such favorites as "Sure Shot," "Time to Get Ill," "Shake Your Rump" and "Paul Revere" done almost completely with the audience. Mike D took front of the circular rotating stage for a throwback to the Boys' early hardcore punk days before closing with "So Whacha Want" and pulling out all the stops for the encore, which included "Intergalactic" and "Sabotage." The energy level readings were off the charts.

TORI AMOS
Springfield Symphony Music Hall-I
Aug. 2

SPRINGFIELD — Okay, let's forget about the last time Tori tried to have a rock band. Even the most hardcore Tori fans are quick to say how much it sucked, and they only own that album as a collector's piece. But since it has been just her and the piano since she was four years old, one can understand her need to experiment with other instruments. Thus, the "Plugged Tour." Tori's performance was less of a recital and more of a rock concert, much to the dismay of those who were expecting the piano/harpsicord setup, much to the delight of those who wanted to see something different.

Opening with "Precious Things," Amos' new sound is harder, and definitely louder than before, but still keeping in touch with the spirit of her original sound.

"Spark" and "Cornflake Girl" were also early high points. Even though this was the "Plugged" tour, Amos' best work was done on the acoustic piano, as she sent the band away for a few songs.

The intense light show was a bit much. Although it was an excellent use of color, it was altogether out of place and took attention away from where the focus should be — the woman and her piano, center stage.

SOUL ASYLUM
Pearl St
May 29

NORTHAMPTON — Playing to a tightly packed crowd of slightly over 10, Soul Asylum brought their generic angst rock to Pearl Street for all their pre-teen fans in the area. Most of their material was extracted from their latest LP, Candy From a Stranger, which would have a fairly good chance of beating Soul Asylum's last two releases for the most sold-back CD award — if anyone bought it in the first place.

With the energy of a dead battery and the depth of a bottle cap, Dave Pirner led his band through hits such as "Misery," "Somebody to Shove," and "Just Like Anyone." Pirner and cohorts may have instilled fear in the audience when they threatened to play a cover of "Freebird." Thankfully, their set was short (most of the audience had a 10 p.m. curfew, anyway).

Collegian staff member Bryan McAllister contributed to this article.

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

Welcome Frosh!
The Student Union houses various student-run activities and events.

First Week Activities

Wednesday, Sept. 9

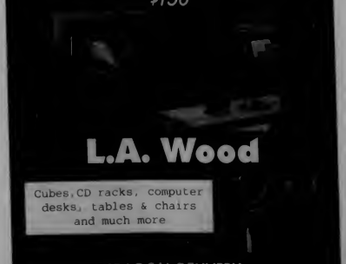
Mulan, with the voices of Eddie Murphy and Pat Morita, will be shown on Metawampee Lawn, adjacent to the Campus Center, at dusk. Refreshments and tethered hot air balloon rides will be available at 6 p.m.

Thursday, Sept. 10

A blues show featuring singer/guitarist K.J. James will be held in the Campus Center Auditorium at 8 p.m. Primary Colors will be screened following the concert.

Friday, Sept. 11

"A Taste of UMass," featuring comedian Rudy Rush and a DJ dance, starts at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Mulan will be shown in the Campus Center Auditorium at 8 p.m. and 10 p.m.



Saturday, Sept. 11

WMUA will hold its annual poster sale from 9 a.m.- 4:30 p.m. In the Student Union Ballroom.

cousins MARKET
11 E. Pleasant St.
549-3500
Next door to "The Pub"
Friendly & Convenient
Open Every Day 9am to 11pm
Beer + Wine
Grocery and Deli
Grinders • Sandwiches
Fresh Fruit • Vegetables
Dairy • Natural Foods
Specialty Tobacco
Telephone Cards
Great Rates Worldwide!

"5 reasons why you should take my GRE course."

–John Katzman, Founder & President of The Princeton Review
1. Class time that counts — We spend more time in class to make sure we cover the test exhaustively. You won't have to spend hours working on your own. Class size is limited to 15.
2. You'll score more... — Our students improve an average of 212 points on the GRE
3. If you knew the CAT — No one knows the computer adaptive tests better than we do. So, whether you choose the pencil & paper or CAT format, you'll review powerful techniques to maximize your score
4. We're on campus! — The Princeton Review was chosen to administer all test-preparation programs for the UMASS Division of Continuing Education. No traveling, no hassle.
5. Satisfaction guaranteed — If you complete the course, take the GRE and are not satisfied with your score, we'll work with you again for up to one year, at no fee.
Fall course enrollment has begun!
413/584-6849
www.review.com
THE PRINCETON REVIEW

FUTONS AND FRAMES STARTING AT $156

L.A. Wood
Cubes, CD racks, computer desks, tables & chairs and much more
FREE LOCAL DELIVERY
259-1100
LA Wood INC. 401 Main St Amherst

■ movies

continued from page B1

COURTESY TOUCHSTONE PICTURES

From top to bottom: Mel Gibson in Lethal Weapon 4, Liv Tyler in Armageddon and Harrison Ford in Six Days, Seven Nights.

script that could have been much snappier, the battle over Truman's soul is fascinating. He is the only real person in the movie, searching, wishing, dreaming. The movie does not go after the people who make television (which is way too easy) but the people who watch it. The public is content to watch Truman dream.

While we watch the movie, hoping for Truman's escape, we do the same thing. The film, then, almost paradoxically challenges us to dream instead of just passively observing; to not just sit around like a bunch of cantaloupes, hoping Truman will escape, but to escape ourselves. A- (R.R.)

THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT MARY
Directed by Bobby and Peter Farrelly with Cameron Diaz, Ben Stiller, Matt Dillon

There is much more to the brutally funny Mary than bodily fluids, although there is certainly plenty of, ahem, hair gel in the movie. The Farrelly brothers did not get the credit they deserve for their often brilliant set-ups, the way they juggle dozens of original, sharply drawn characters.

To be fair, Mary is a much better, smoother movie than the blunt Dumb and Dumber or the bitter Kingpin. The acting is all relaxed and charismatic, especially Cameron Diaz as Mary, who plays what could have been the annoying queen of sunshine role with both gooliness and backbone.

But the meat of the movie is the gross-out jokes, the willingness to use anything for a laugh.

Critics fall over themselves to praise its mean spiritedness as a refreshing antidote to the general niceness of movies, and they are doubly wrong. Why anyone would ever praise true malice or hate is simply beyond me, and There's Something About Mary has no ill will anywhere in it.

What critics are really praising is Mary's lack of a rigid moral structure, such as the one on most TV sitcoms and family comedies where, for example, kids who abuse drugs are evil people. So a television show like Full House that tells kids to do the "right thing," to abandon drugs and at the same time the people who use drugs, is preaching audience morality at the expense of humanity.

In opposition, Mary shows us that people are gross. People should be laughed at. But no one is hated.

In the end, Mary is so desirable to everyone not for her beauty, but for her kindness, her easy acceptance of all the weird people around her. So Mary, for all its masturbation jokes, is really about blind love. A- (R.R.)

MULAN
Directed by Tony Bancroft and Barry Cook with the voices of Eddie Murphy and Ming-Na Wen

Mulan is the same old Disney story, despite some of the pop press bubbling about the first truly strong female character in a Disney feature. Mulan saves the day, sure, but at the end of the movie she slides easily back into the old ways. Why doesn't she take over the army? Shouldn't she?

But Mulan is probably the most visually beautiful of the recent Disney movies, making excellent use of a soft, pastel palette and the Chinese traditions of stark graphic design. The story itself is exciting, especially a surprisingly sharp and fast moving climax high above the palace.

The entire population of China, it seems, are looking up at the fight between Mulan and the Hun like a crowd of patient fireflies.

But what about those crappy, complacent songs? And what does it mean for a generation of American kids who are being told that families in ancient China interacted in much the same way as the gang from "Who's the Boss?"

Disney movies do so much sometimes. But the tragedy is that they have the resources to do so much more. A and F (R.R.)

COURTESY TOUCHSTONE PICTURES

The Chrysler building gets the Hollywood treatment in Armageddon.

A PERFECT MURDER
Directed by Andrew Davis with Michael Douglas, Gwenyth Paltrow, Viggo Mortenson

At first glance, this appears to be just another one of those tiresome "thrillers," respectable actors and a plot dependent on money and sleek, pointless, upper-class violence.

Thankfully, A Perfect Murder, despite a lack of a single likable character, is more interested in its characters' humanity (or lack thereof) than in plot twists or flashy sex.

Two soulless men, the husband (Michael Douglas, ruthless) and the lover (Viggo Mortenson, creepy) fight for one woman (Gwenyth Paltrow, perfectly blank). Paltrow's character is almost human, although emotion rarely ripples across her face, like the trace a diving fish leaves on the surface of a pond.

Despite its double-crossing plot and cold gleam, this film is really about what money and greed can do to the human soul. The soul is either torn out completely, like the two men, or confused and buried beneath frozen linoleum skin.

It's one of the most unforgiving movies in recent memory, and one of the most underrated of the summer. B+ (R.R.)

LETHAL WEAPON 4
Directed by Richard Donner with Mel Gibson, Danny Glover, Rene Russo

Director Richard Donner's style of movie-making seems to be based on early childhood trips to the circus. The action, the dialogue and the relationships are all exaggerated to the point of either full-blown excitement, as in the Lethal Weapon series, or stir-crazy annoyance, as in last summer's Conspiracy Theory.

In this latest and last (well, we think, anyway) installment of the former, Donner once again teams with Gibson, and no one can unleash Mel's jovial side like Donner. The banter between Gibson's court jester and Glover's family man is back in place, and Chris Rock and particularly Joe Pesci (where has he been, anyway?) add some bizarre spice to the improv-laden script.

Lethal Weapon 4 is an old-fashioned action movie, and has an old fashioned hero in the merciless Jet Li. My question is why the unoriginal ending, for a film that promotes family values so much, needed to be so Jean- Claude Van Damme-ish. B- (Bryan McAllister)

THE MASK OF ZORRO
Directed by Martin Campbell with Anthony Hopkins, Antonio Banderas, Catherine Zeta- Jones

There's not much to say about The Mask of Zorro, and that is almost a good thing. The film is a refreshingly straight-forward adventure with just enough zippy, committed acting, luxurious set design and close-ups of Catherine Zeta-Jones to keep things interesting.

Further, the movie bluntly makes Zorro a hero of the poor, a welcome change from Hollywood's typical high-tech, self- obsessed heros. It drags in places, but the swordfights are unfussy and snappy. It's like the movie-makers have never heard of irony. How novel. B- (R.R.)

Turn to MOVIES, page B4

Welcome to UMass
Arts & Living is always looking for new talent. Whether you're a freshman or sixth-year senior, we need your help in expressing the opinions and ideas of an entire campus. We're looking for people to cover music, film, theater, TV, books, fashion and more. All you need is good writing skills and knowledge of entertainment. Come down to the Collegian in the Campus Center Basement or call 545-1361 and ask for Bryan. Best of luck this semester.

"Need Furniture?"
Come to
From Trash to Treasure
ON THE AMHERST TOWN COMMONS
September 12th from 9am to 1 pm

GRAND OPENING SPECIALS!
ONE STOP OFFICE
REGISTER TO WIN!!!
Visit One Stop Office today, and register to win a BACKPACK full of back-to-school SURPRISES!
No purchase necessary, one entry per customer please. Drawing to be held May 1st, 1999
All Licensed UMASS Notebooks 25% OFF
All Lightbulbs and Lamps 20% OFF
10pk Pens List: $2.49 Sale $1.49
ART FUSE CANSON FIELD SKETCHBOOKS 20% OFF
6X6 $5.59
7X10 $8.79
9X12 $10.79
11X14 $12.59
FLAMBEAU ART BIN STYLE 899 $10
COLLEGIATE Casuals BIKE
Computers & E.T.C. $25 INSTANT REBATE ON FIRST 10 IMAGE SHIELD CANON INKJET PRINTER SALE
Minutemart All KNORR instant Soup and Noodle Cups 99¢
UMASS Laundry Bags $10
Occasions 20% OFF ALL POSTERS In Stock

THE NEW University store™
Not like a mall... Better.™
ART FUSE Affordable Art, Drafting, Graphics, and Photo Supplies
COLLEGIATE Casuals The Widest Selection of UMASS Licensed Apparel
Occasions CARD & GIFT SHOP "The thought that counts" Licensed UMASS Gifts, Cards, Candles, Posters, Incense, and other tokens of affection.
ONE STOP OFFICE Office School and Home Supplies Hardware
Computers & E.T.C. COMPUTERS/ HARDWARE SOFTWARE ACCESSORIES CALCULATORS & ACCESSORIES AUDIO VISUAL RADIOS STEREOS ACCESSORIES TELEPHONES & ACCESSORIES
Customer Service
Everyday Savings on General Books
35% OFF Hardcover Bestsellers
25% OFF Paperback Bestsellers
20% OFF Hardcover Fiction
10% OFF Nearly every other book in stock!
Minutemart Snacks & Beverages Personal Care Items Film & Film Developing Magazines & Household Supplies ENTRANCE

movies

continued from page B3

CAN'T HARDLY WAIT
Directed by Harry Elfont and Deborah Kaplan with Jennifer Love Hewitt, Ethan Embry, Seth Green

Can't Hardly Wait is an amusing teen comedy, and while it doesn't have the character development and memorable dialogue of the best members of the genre, like Say Anything and Ferris Bueller's Day Off, it is always engaging and paced so quickly that you don't have time to get annoyed with some of the stock characters like the troubled beauty, the jocks, the cheerleaders and the nerds.

For the most part, the energy, large cast and sheer silliness of the proceedings overwhelm any cynical reactions. It's not Shakespeare, or even Sixteen Candles, but who could hate a movie that includes a performance of "Paradise City"? B- (R.R.)

BULWORTH
Directed by Warren Beatty with Warren Beatty, Halle Berry, Oliver Platt

Bulworth tells the story of a wheeler-dealer senator who remembers his idealistic roots and is suddenly disgusted with the liar he has grown into. He is so disgusted, in fact, that he buys life insurance and then has a contract put out on his own life.

Convinced he is dying, Senator Bulworth starts saying whatever pops into his head and bouncing all over the city spreading the decidedly non-p.c. "truth." Eventually, he discovers his inner gangster-rapper and begins wearing the appropriate clothes and talking in rhyme. He is embraced by the American community.

If it were only that simple.

Although Bulworth deserves a lot of credit for actually acknowledging the issue of race in a direct and fearless way, the movie itself is too broad. Can the "truth" of America be summed up so easily? And Bulworth's silly rapping, while obviously played for laughs, still should show his appreciation for a different culture. But his rapping sounds like nursery rhymes with dirty words, completely missing rap's central love of language. Rap, for Bulworth, is not soul, it is a mask. Is the mask really enough?

As for the acting, Oliver Platt is excellent as always as Bulworth's chief of staff and Beatty himself is loose and funny. Still, despite the important and unusual expression of ideas like socialism and universal health-care in a multiplex movie, Bulworth is breezy and much too easy, nowhere near the honest, difficult work of art that the material demands. C+ (R.R.)

THE X-FILES
Directed by Rob Bowman with David Duchovny, Gillian Anderson, Martin Landau

The X-Files, the movie, plays just like one longer, unusually violent TV episode blown up to movie screen size. This is not a good thing.

Although the movie is thrilling, its thrills are entirely unoriginal, monster-in-the-dark stuff that Alien did earlier and better. The real treasures of the television series aren't the special effects or the pretentious babbling about the search for truth or even conspiracy theories, sometimes intricate and elegant, sometimes just plain incomprehensible.

The best episodes instead moved slowly and even gracefully, dwelling on landscape, memory, light and, obviously, the deeply weird relationship between Mulder and Scully.

In any case, the quiet tension between them, underdeveloped in the movie, is still the most interesting thing in it. Screw the aliens. Give Mulder and Scully a bottle of wine and some Marvin Gaye records and see what happens. C (R.R.)

SIX DAYS, SEVEN NIGHTS
Directed by Ivan Reitman with Harrison Ford, Anne Heche, David Shwimmer

The press surrounding this simple-minded adventure clone focused more on whether Anne Heche works as a romantic lead than whether or not it was a good movie. Which was beneficial, because Six Days, Seven Nights was closer to a travel advertisement than a cinematic creation.

Which is not to say that Harrison Ford, finally shedding his somewhat boring and one-note Jack Ryan/President mode, didn't light up the screen as expected. And Heche is even better, whining and hamming it up without ever becoming too annoying.

But who wrote this script? You know you're out of ideas when a pirate ship on loan from Waterworld appears in your movie. C (B.M.)

SNAKE EYES
Directed by Brian De Palma with Nicolas Cage, Gary Sinise, Carla Gugino

The first half hour is simply great. Hypnotic, snappy, with a complicated, uncut tracking shot of Cage's cop making his way to ringside. The director showing off? Sure, but it is still impressive.

A few minutes into the investigation of the murder, things get stupid. The mystery becomes obvious and ludicrous all at once. It's like we get to see the great Oz behind the curtain an hour early. Maybe Brian De Palma just thinks we're stupid. In any case, the film loses all its flash and steam pretty quickly. And when was the last time Nicolas Cage behaved like a human being? C (R.R.)

GODZILLA
Directed by Roland Emmerich with Matthew Broderick, Hank Azaria, Harry Shearer

In a classic example of Hollywood irony, not to mention the phrase "the bigger they are, the harder they fall," Roland Emmerich and Dean Devlin's epic tribute to monster movies collapsed beneath them. Perhaps it was all those fish.

A bad movie can be good if it's played for camp, but much like the duo's Independence Day, Godzilla was filmed in a quasi-serious tone. Yet no one in New York seems to question their sanity when a lizard the size of James Cameron's ego strolls down the Big Apple streets; they simply run away like they had been warned this might happen. "Oh no, it's that giant monster my mom told me about!"

There are so many things wrong with Godzilla, that it's only fitting to point out what's good about it: Probably no sequel. D (B.M.)

ARMAGEDDON
Directed by Michael Bay with Bruce Willis, Ben Affleck, Liv Tyler

Would someone please tell the Jerry Bruckheimer folks (Con Air, The Rock, etc.) that it would be much easier for them and more beneficial for us to just make a movie that consisted of a two-hour shot of a truckload of money than to actually use those reams of money to hire actors and screenwriters and editors and spend a half a year crafting these spastic piles of heartless, smirky macho-techno-poop? D- (R.R.)

Grand Opening Specials End Saturday!

NEW Ustore™
Not like a mall... Better.™

Store Hours:
Monday-Friday 9-5
Saturday 11-4

WEDNESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 9, 1998

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WFDH	6	12	Wishbone ⧖	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer ⧖		Wild Islands ⧖		Evening at Pops (R) (In Stereo)	Cancer-Odds for Survival		Final Target: Planet Earth
WFSB	3	3	News ⧖	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV ⧖		JAG "Chains of Command" ⧖	Public Eye (In Stereo) ⧖	Chicago Hope "Psychodrama"		News ⧖	Late Show ⧖
WBZ	4	4	News	CBS News	Political Debate	Governor		JAG "Chains of Command" ⧖	Public Eye (In Stereo) ⧖	Chicago Hope "Psychodrama"		News ⧖	Nightline ⧖
WCVB	5	5	News ⧖	ABC News	Political Debate	GOP		Dharma-Greg	Two Guys-Girl	Drew Carey ⧖	Whose Line?	Primetime Live ⧖
WLVI	56		Full House ⧖	BoyWorld	Fresh Prince	Fresh Prince		Wayans Bros.	Jamie Foxx ⧖	Wayans Bros.	Steve Harvey	News	Star Trek: Next Gener.
WHDH	7		News	NBC News	Political Debate	Gubernatorial		Dateline (In Stereo) ⧖		Law & Order "Monster" (R) ⧖		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	20		Married...With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy ⧖	Judge Judy ⧖		Sentinel "Foreign Exchange" ⧖	Star Trek: Voyager (In Stereo)	News	Martin ⧖	Vibe (R)
WVIT	30	15	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy ⧖		Dateline (In Stereo) ⧖		Law & Order "Monster" (R) ⧖		Mad Abt. You	Mad Abt. You
WTIC	61	11	Simpsons ⧖	Home Imp.	Seinfeld ⧖	Frasier ⧖		★★ "Silver Act 2" Back in the Habit" (1996) Whoopi Goldberg. ⧖		News		News ⧖	Tonight Show
WWLP	22	12	News ⧖	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy! ⧖		Dateline (In Stereo) ⧖		Law & Order "Monster" (R) ⧖		Political Debate
WGBY	57	14	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer ⧖			Wild Islands ⧖		Magnificent Journeys ⧖		News ⧖	Nightline ⧖
WGGB	40	28	News ⧖	ABC News	Seinfeld ⧖	Frasier ⧖		Dharma-Greg	Two Guys-Girl	Drew Carey ⧖	Whose Line?	Primetime Live ⧖
WSBK	38		Mad Abt. You	Mad Abt. You	Seinfeld ⧖	Frasier ⧖		Sentinel "Foreign Exchange" ⧖	Star Trek: Voyager (In Stereo)	News	Cheers ⧖	M*A*S*H ⧖	Real TV ⧖
WTBS	23		Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Andy Griffith		★ "Cobra" (1986, Drama) Sylvester Stallone, Brigitte Nielsen		★★ "Missing in Action 2: The Beginning" (1985) Chuck Norris.
AAE	69		Northern Exposure ⧖		Law & Order "Deadbeat" ⧖			Biography "Don Imus"		American Justice (R) ⧖		Murder, She Wrote	Law & Order "Hot Pursuit" ⧖
CNN	29	23	Worldview ⧖	Moneyline Newshour ⧖				Crossfire ⧖		World Today ⧖		Larry King Live ⧖	Newsstand: Fortune ⧖	Sports	Moneyline ⧖
COM	63	20	Stuck in '80s	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money		Aspen Comedy Festival (R)		Aspen Comedy Festival II (R)		South Park ⧖	Upright	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	62		Wings "Steel Rain" (R)		Gimme Shelter (R)			Wild Discovery		Discover Magazine (R)		UFOs: Down to Earth		Justice Files "Murder One" (R)
ESPN	64		Up Close	Sportscenter				Major League Baseball		Teams To Be Announced. (Live) ⧖			Major League Baseball Teams TBA
LIFE	65		Ellen ⧖	Ellen ⧖	Party of Five "Who Cares" ⧖			Great Lifetime Makeover		"Giving Up the Ghost" (1998, Comedy-Drama) Mary Helgenberger.		New Attitudes	Golden Girls
MTV	66		Music Videos (In Stereo)					Artist Cut	Say What?	Total Request (R) (In Stereo)	Past Video of the Year		Fanatic (R)	Lovelline (R)
NICK	67		Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug ⧖	Rugrats ⧖		Hey Arnold! ⧖	Alien Strange	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	Love Lucy ⧖	Bewitched
SCIFI	45		Quantum Leap (In Stereo) ⧖		Sightings ⧖	Star Trek "What Are Little Girls Made Of?" ⧖				Taiwan "Fetishes"				Sightings ⧖	Star Trek ⧖
TLC	68	26	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again		Volcano – Path of Destruction		Extreme Aviation		Eurotunnel (R)		Volcano – Path of Destruction
TNT	70		Babylon 5 "Atonement" ⧖		ER "Hit and Run" (In Stereo) ⧖			★★★ "Body Snatchers" (1993, Science Fiction) Gabrielle Anwar.				Babylon 5 (R) (In Stereo) ⧖		★★★ "Body Snatchers" (1993)
USA	49		USA High ⧖	Xena: Warrior Princess ⧖				U.S. Open Tennis		Men's and Women's Quarterfinals. (In Stereo Live) ⧖		Silk Stalkings (R) (In Stereo) ⧖
HBO	60		★★½ "One Fine Day" (1996, Comedy) Michelle Pfeiffer. PG ⧖					★★ "Fly Away Home" (1996) Jeff Daniels. PG ⧖		★★ "The Sunchaser" (1996, Drama) Woody Harrelson. R ⧖		★½ "Raven Hawk" (1996) Rachel McLish. R ⧖		"Dr. Dre Beats"
MAX	59		Walk Like a Man (1987) Edward Herrmann. PG					★★ "The Best Friend's Wedding" (1997) Julia Roberts. PG-13 ⧖		Pick-a-Flick				Compromising
SHOW	61		★★★ "The Baby Dance" (1998, Drama) Stockard Channing.

September '98
ARTS ON CAMPUS...
A monthly calendar of art events at UMass brought to you by the UMass Arts Council.

Congrats!

Congratulations to last year's Single Projects/Events grant recipients:
AHORA
ALANA Graduate Student Network
ALANA Honor Society
Alive With Dance
Asian American Students Association
Beta Kappa Psi Fraternity, Inc
Black Student Union
Cambodian Students Association
Cape Verdean Students Alliance
Casa Dominicana
Concepción Latino
Department of Comparative Literature
Design Alliance
Everywoman's Center
Graduate Art Students Association
Haitian American Students Assoc.
Interdepartmental Prog. in Film
Interior Design & Architectural Studies
Area of the Dept. of Fine Arts
International Programs
Japan America Club
Josephine White Eagle Cultural Ctr.
Landscape Architecture and Regional Planning Dept.
Malcolm X Cultural Center
MFA in English Program
Native American Students Association
New World Theater
Office of ALANA Affairs
Outing Club
Sino-American Group of Amherst
Student Valley Productions
The Forum of Progressive Artists
The Pride Alliance
Theater Dept.
Theater, Music & Dance Dept.
UMass Film Society
UMass Student's Hindu Association
UMass Theater Guild
University Without Walls
Vietnamese Students Association

= 5-College students can attend any Fine Arts Center event for only $5!

Events

Thursday, September 10
WUBC: Something Every Friday: Blues show with K.J. James, solo guitar and vocals. 8 pm in the Campus Center Auditorium. 545-3600.

Saturday, September 12
DANCE: ...of Urban Influences. A performance by Merlee Yeasby, choreographer of the Broadway hit, Rent, and Movin' Spirits Dance Theater. 8 pm in Bowker Auditorium $ 545-2511. ⌘
THEATER: Mission Improvable with Student Valley Productions. 8-11 pm in Campus Center Room 163. 545-3600.

Saturday, September 19
THEATER: Mission Improvable with Student Valley Productions. 8-11 pm in Commonwealth Room. 545-3600.

Wednesday, September 23
WUBC: Chesapeake: American Odyssey. Dobro, mandolin, bass, and guitar explode in a virtuosic performance of everything from traditional songs to complex originals. 8pm in Bowker Auditorium. $ 545-2511. ⌘

Thursday, September 24
FILM: "Insider Choices" Film Series: La Grande Illusion. Social class distinctions are examined in this story about French officers sharing quarters with other Allied prisoners of the Germans during World War I. Directed by Jean Renoir. 7:30 pm in Herter Hall, Room 227. 545-3670. ⌘
MUSIC: It's All Music: Virtuoso classical and jazz piano, featuring Estela Olevnky and Billy Taylor. A musical dialogue of jazz and classical styles. 8 pm in Bowker Auditorium. $ 545-2511.

Friday, September 25
THEATER: Tomoti: Javanese Shadow Theater. Contemporary and ancient stories told with exquisitely carved and painted puppets. 8 pm in Hampden Theatre. $ 545-2511. ⌘

Saturday, September 26
CULTURAL EVENT: UMass Pow Wow. 10 am-6 pm on Campus Pond.1am $ 545-1888. Thru 9/27
THEATER: Mission Improvable with Student Valley Productions. 8-11 pm in Campus Center Room 163. 545-3600.

Exhibits

⌘ AUGUSTA SAVAGE GALLERY
101 New Africa House
545-5177
Mon-Tues 1-7 pm, Wed-Fri 1-5 pm

From the Book of Triptych
Sept. 23 - Oct. 22
Reception: Sept. 23, 5-7pm.

⌘ HAMPDEN GALLERY
Hampden Dining Halls, Southwest
545-0980
Mon-Fri 3-7 pm, Sun 2-5 pm

Nancy LaFalaise: Reading Places
September 16 - October 9
Reception: Sept. 16, 4:30-6 pm

⌘ HERTER ART GALLERY
125A Herter Hall
545-0876
Mon-Fri 11 am-4 pm, Sun 2-5 pm

Annual Foundations Exhibition
Sept. 9-25
Awards Ceremony and Reception: Sept. 25, 4-6 pm

⌘ STUDENT UNION VISUAL & PERFORMING ARTS SPACE
Student Union Building
545-0792
Mon-Thur 10 am-5 pm, Fri 10 am-3 pm

BFA Thesis Exhibition by Ute Jaber
Sept. 21-25

⌘ UNIVERSITY GALLERY
Fine Arts Center
545-3670
CLOSED DUE TO CONSTRUCTION

⌘ WHEELER GALLERY
Central Residential Area
545-0980
Mon-Thur, 4-8 pm, Sun, 2-5 pm

Sacred Bestiary
by Marjory Lehon
Sept. 21-25

⌘ = funded in part by a grant from the UMass Arts Council

ARTS COUNCIL INFORMATION:

Plan Your Fall and Spring Events NOW!
Apply for funding from the Arts Council to support your art event. The Council awards grants to UMass organizations, such as RSO's. Stop by and share your ideas, we'll help you get started... This year's grant application deadlines are:
September 17, October 22, November 19, February 4 and March 11

9/98

UMass Arts Council, 101 Hasbrouck Lab, 545-0202

THE BIGGEST BACK TO SCHOOL POSTER SALE

1000's of Choices

Where:
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
When:
Mon. Sept. 7 thru Fri. Sept. 11
Time:
9 AM - 4:30 PM
Sponsor:
WMUA 91.1 FM

Incredible Selection

CHECK OUT OUR GREAT POSTERS AND PRICES!!

MOST IMAGES
ONLY $6, $7 AND $8

COURTESY PHILIP CAUSSO

Shooting the moon
Tom Hanks, hot off Saving Private Ryan, will be up for a myriad of Emmy's this September for his HBO series "From the Earth to the Moon."

Ryan

continued from page B1

beach landing on D-Day that is nothing short of overwhelming. The only thing I can think of to compare what I felt watching that was what the very first movie watchers in the early 1900s must have felt when they saw a giant train projected on the wall, barrelling towards them. It is that frightening.

The movie towers over film history's previous portrayals of war, which seem like slow, sad football games in comparison. But Saving Private Ryan itself, as shocking as it is, can only be a pale shadow of war itself. Thank God.

The film itself is not perfect. While Hanks gives his character incredible gravity, some of the other characters exist too easily in war movie cliches — the coward, the tough but loving sergeant — and the closing battle scene gets wrapped up a little too neatly. It's like Spielberg's incredible urge to tell a story won out against his other, more logical urge to let things go, sloppy and uneven. But in the end, the sheer power of the images and the meaning of the men's mission overcome the jerky narrative.

If Spielberg's newest movies have a fault, it is that their view of history is a little narrow, focusing too tightly on kindhearted, morally assured white guys. Here, the unexplored element is the difference between the people who fought and died in the war and the people who made the war happen.

But, on the other hand, whatever the politics, even if you believe that governments get into wars for imperialist purposes, the men who fight and die in them do so for much more honorable reasons. No soldier seems to know exactly why the sides are at war in Saving Private Ryan. They are fighting simply to stay alive, to keep each other alive. For their families. And none of them wants to be there.

You could say that Spielberg is simply selling the story from their point of view. In this case, their mission, to send home a young man to his mother who has already lost three sons, becomes much more than a heroic following of orders. The men seize control of their destinies by refusing to rip Private Ryan away from the bridge his unit is guarding, as their orders dictate, but by instead staying there to fight.

It's not an act of duty, but an act of will; not the imposition of the American way over an evil war, but of human courage in the face of death. The tragedy is that men die because they behave decently. What that says about the righteousness of such an honor system is debatable. What is not debatable is that the men are honorable.

The soldiers act of decency is like a band-aid over the Grand Canyon. It is to Spielberg's credit that he tries to show us the incredible, unthinkable chasm of pain that is war. It is also to his credit that he never lets up on the terror, which shows us that one attempt at goodness is not enough; that no poem, song, or story — or movie — can be a great enough bandage to close and heal the enormous wounds of war. What matters is the attempt.

The only consolation we are offered is not a word of comfort, but of challenge, the captain's final words to Private Ryan, whom he has saved: "Earn this." As he morphs into an elderly man with a family, Private Ryan becomes a stand-in for all those who were not killed by the world's great wars.

Spielberg hammers one idea home — not that war is justified, not that America is a glorious country, not even that soldiers are brave, but instead, pure and simple: These soldiers died because they wanted to save us.

In one sweep Spielberg and company tell a story about war without either senseless patriotic propaganda or easy existentialist cynicism. It is a movie that values people above all else. A movie that makes history hurt.

If only one million citizens of the country, or even the world, have seen this movie, a great thing will have been accomplished indeed. In many different ways, a million is an unthinkably large number.

Rob Roensch is a Collegian staff member.

Clichés mar Bridget Jones' Diary

By Mike Messaros
Collegian Staff

BRIDGET JONES' DIARY
Helen Fielding
Viking Press

As I sit here, there is a big bag of Starburst sitting in front of me. My favorites are reds, then pinks. I can deal with the yellows, and I put up with the oranges. The problem with me and Starburst is that I have no self control. I see that the normal serving size is eight pieces, so I eat that many, then say I'll go back for just a red. Then a pink. It gets to be that I'm way over the "normal" serving size, my stomach is killing me, and all I can smell is some greasy, waxy fruit melange stuck in my nose. I have no self control. And I pay the price.

I read Helen Fielding's Bridget Jones' Diary in two sittings, all in one day. In case you haven't noticed, the hype for this book has spread like a bad case of e-coli across the country. It's even bigger in England, a land that seems to have no shortage of crap. ("Princess Diana memorial diapers, guv'ner?") And I bit, like some triple-A call-up swinging at a Curt Schilling fastball.

But see, there's the candy thing again. I don't know when to stop. I don't know when to close the book, walk away and say "Mike, have you noticed that the longer you read this, the less you can remember the digits in your phone number?" It almost got to the point where I had to call information if I wanted to speak to Mom and Dad, but I kept reading.

The book chronicles one year in the life of Bridget Jones, a 30-ish year old London working girl (not that kind of working girl) as she tries to find love, lose weight and deal with her mother's ever-growing eccentricity. Hi-jinx ensue. Remind me again why I picked this book up, being a 21- year-old, male college student? Oh yeah, I'm a sucker.

The problem with the book is that without the diary set- up, it's a thin premise that would not survive otherwise. Plot points are predictable: a pregnancy scare, a witty best friend nicknamed "Shazzer" and Bridget's anxiety about fitting into a new job among — get this — outrageously dressed twenty-somethings! Oh, Bridget, will the wackiness ever stop!? Characters are thin, with just a few lines to denote them as slimy, knowing, eccentric or stupid. Everyone exists in stereotype mode, including the oh-so-witty "Shazzer" (God, did I hate her). And did I mention that Bridget has a really close male friend — but he's gay! And let me tell you, he's one step away from stroking a white cat. She, of course, seems to harbor some hidden desire for him, but this only makes her more forlorn, because all the "good ones" are married or gay. I did not know that.

Without the diary premise, which makes us feel like voyeurs into Bridget's superficially troubled life, this book does not exist. No, I'm sorry, it does exist, but it's got Fabio on the cover and a couple of references to things "bulging" and "burgeoning."

But, again, I finished the book. In a few hours. Does this attest to the book's readability, or just the fact that I'm a sucker? Probably the latter. It's just like candy, going down easy, but not sitting well. You feel bad afterwards. Your eyes blur slightly. When people ask you what you've read, you tell them, "Oh, Bridget Jones' Diary!" adding a falsely confident laugh that says "I know I shouldn't have, but I did anyway. Aren't I naughty?" But the reality is you just feel bad. I think I need a support group. D

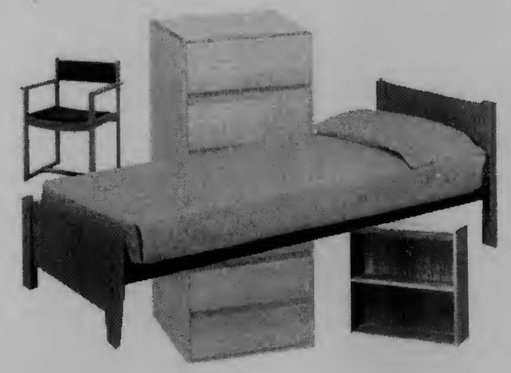
Mike's Westview Welcomes Back its Students

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

SNACK BASKETS $1.00
FRIES ONION RINGS OF NUGGETS

MONDAY NITE FOOTBALL
FREE BUFFET 9:30

AS USUAL WEDNESDAY NITE IS PARTY NITE AT MIKE'S!



THURSDAY NITE BUD LITE NITE
BUD LITE BOTTLES $1.50

COCKTAIL OF THE WEEK
CAPTAIN & COKE $2.25

THIS YEAR SOMETHING NEW! OUR MIKES MIXI PITCHER
34 OUNCES OF BUD OR BUD LITE $3.00

Furniture Expo '98
Residents & Students
Campus Center Auditorium

HS HOUSING SERVICES
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Tues., Sept. 15th Noon - 9pm
Wed., 16th 10am - 4pm

Come Check It Out!

Stars attempt move to the big screen with mixed results

Believe it or not, my summer did not involve much television viewing. I realize this is not the best way to start off a television column, but most of my time was spent working at a local movie theater paying off my new car. However, this job did not keep me away from the familiar faces that can be seen on a weekly basis on the small screen.

Over one hundred movies were released this summer, and many of them starred actors and actresses that can be seen on many of our favorite shows during the television season.

Within weeks of the season finales of "Party of Five" and "ER," Jennifer Love Hewitt and George Clooney could be found at the local movie theater. Hewitt starred in a romantic comedy called Can't Hardly Wait, about a young man obsessed with Hewitt's character for his entire high school career and the graduation party that he used as an attempt to test his luck.

Though this is not the first time Hewitt has hit the big screen, this was clearly her best film. Even though 1997's I Know What You Did Last Summer was fun and drew a huge audience, there was no special acting or quality script. Hewitt showed true talent as well as the rest of her cast in her latest film, and she proved that she can be as dazzling as in her hit drama series. Meanwhile, her Summer sequel I Still Know... hits theaters this Halloween season.

Clooney, meanwhile, tried the silver screen this summer after taking a year off from making the worst Batman film in the history of Hollywood. His Out of Sight was an exciting crime picture in which he was a convict running from co-star Jennifer Lopez. As long as Clooney avoids the comic book heros, he seems like he can make the adjustment to films as easy as he makes open heart surgery look.

Shortly into the month of June, we saw a whole new look at television. The Truman Show captured the heart of American pop-culture paranoia. The story of Truman Burbank and how his creator, Christof, controlled every aspect of his life was, in my opinion, hands down the best movie of the summer. The script, the acting and the concept were perfect.

Around the same time television was in the spotlight. FOX released their most anticipated film of the summer. It was time for the "X-Files" to make that big jump and gain an even bigger world-wide following. FOX's major goal with this picture was to get people who have never seen the show to become interested, while at the same time, keeping the die-hard followers satisfied. They got more than they expected out of this film, and when the season premiere debuts, there are sure to be many more viewers than the show has ever had before.

Also, did anyone happen to look through the credits to see who the "Science Advisor" for the film was? In case you didn't, all the consultation was done by UMass biology professor Anne Simon. Kudos to her for doing an outstanding job.

"Saturday Night Live's" best alumnus, Eddie Murphy, had his annual summer blockbuster again this year with Dr. Dolittle. The remake of the 1960's classic was one of more than 10 movies that broke the $100 million mark this summer. Also, Murphy added his vocal talents in Disney's Mulan. He next stars with Jeff Goldblum in the fall comedy Holy Man.

After being hailed as the "Eddie Murphy for the '90s," Chris Rock, also a former "S.N.L." cast member, had two big hits. One was with his predecessor — as the voice of Rodney the hamster in Murphy's Dr. Dolittle, and the other as a new sidekick to Mel Gibson and Danny Glover in the fourth installment of the Lethal Weapon series.

Tube Notes with Ryan Bemharris

For some bad news this summer, the world was forced to see the last films made by two of television's top actors. Chris Farley, who died in December, co-starred with "Friends" Matthew Perry in the box office flop, Almost Heroes, and had a brief appearance in Norm MacDonald's equally abysmal Dirty Work. Farley's close friend and "S.N.L." co-star, Phil Hartman, who died this summer, and his last film, Small Soldiers, did not fare well. Hartman was also known for his excellent work in NBC's "NewsRadio" and his voices on "The Simpsons."

NBC has announced that his character will be erased from the show by saying that he suffered a heart attack, and will be replaced by Jon Lovitz. FOX has not given any indication on how they will replace the characters that he speaks for, such as Troy McClure and Lionel Hutts.

Actresses on "Dawson's Creek" showed that they could be Hollywood scream queens this summer. Michelle Williams co-starred with Jamie Lee Curtis in Halloween: H20 and the beautiful Katie Holmes screamed her way into Disturbing Behavior. While the Halloween finale did make some cash at the box office and had some clever in-joke references, both films had poor plots and low quality acting, much to the surprise of no one.

MTV helped two films come to the big screen this summer. Dead Man on Campus (with "Saved by the Bell's" Mark-Paul Gosselaar) and 54 (starring "Party of Five's" Neve Campbell) were pretty much as bad as the rest of the films released in August, and gave everyone a reason to look forward to the upcoming fall season.

Speaking of bad August movies, the film based on the popular British television series, The Avengers, somehow made it past story editors and all those with taste and into the multiplex. The great cast, led by Ralph Fiennes and Uma Thurman, didn't help a chaotic production highlighted only by Thurman's cat suit.

Nothing, however, was nearly as bad as the attempt that "South Park" creators Trey Parker and Matt Stone made at making a movie. BASEketball was by far one of the worst movies of the year. I would recommend that these boys stick to "South Park," but even that was lousy this summer. If you've been watching it all along, I'm sure you've realized that it has drastically lost its charm.

Unfortunately, Parker and Stone can't stay away from Hollywood because they are currently in the works to make the sequel to, yes, Dumb and Dumber, as well as a feature-length "South Park" movie set for release next summer.

So who was the biggest television actor that hit the theaters this summer? Of course it would have to be everyone's favorite "Bosom Buddy," Tom Hanks. His film Saving Private Ryan not only scored huge box office receipts, but proved to be a strong contender for a number of Academy Awards. His portrayal of Captain John Miller is sure to gain him another best actor nomination, and helped this picture become perhaps the greatest World War II movie ever made.

As you can see, television stars need to keep busy during the summer. What else better to do than make movies. Sometimes the transition isn't easy, and sometimes it shouldn't be made at all. The real question is, how are they going to feel when it comes time to get back to their day jobs?

Ryan Benharris is a Collegian columnist.

VH-1 goes behind music's inside stories

Mike Massaros

God bless whoever came up with the concept of VH-1's Behind the Music. I mean, it's relatively simple: You get a band or an artist that has had a bit of a rough spell in their career, you interview them, you show old footage, you get a few lines of dialogue from anyone involved, somehow get Arlo Guthrie to say a few words, and that's it. What you now have is a one-hour nugget of everything you wanted to know about music.

The thing is, this show is growing, getting even more profound. Before, you had easy targets like Milli Vanilli and MC Hammer (the funky headhunter himself), but now we are graced with better, but still tragic heroes — Ted Nugent and the like.

In fact, God bless VH-1. Once considered the uncool cousin of MTV, it is now a bastion of smart programming and informational specials. Whereas MTV's hip is starting to show stretch marks as it tries to continually reinvent itself with flashier graphics, more talking heads decked out in Mossimo and other semi-fashionable clothes (someone kick Carson Daly's ass, please) and less and less music, VH-1 has sat back, retooled and let the people come to them.

Oh, and I've come to them. Hours upon hours have been spent in front of the television, blissful in my newfound knowledge that Johnny Cash used to vacation in the Bahamas (the man in black? Really?).

So I'm visiting friends on Cape Cod, and what do we chose to do? We watch hours upon hours of Behind the Music. Hey, the beach is for getting melanoma; VH-1 is for knowledge. Granted, it's knowledge about Robbie Robertson and Joe Cocker, but it's knowledge nonetheless. For any wannabe rock critic, this show is the Oxford English Dictionary of rock 'n' roll debauchery.

"We didn't know cocaine was addictive," says Robbie Robertson, and I nod along. Robbie, you live, you learn.

Take the recent airing of the Ted Nugent special. Now, I hate Ted Nugent. Here is a man that has invested his hard earned rock 'n' roll currency into making his own beef jerky (sweet to God). You walk away from the special with a whole new appreciation of the man, though.

Yes, he's stupid. Yes, he's loud. But this is a guy who invented swinging from the top of his PA speakers wearing only a loin cloth. This is the guy who shot flaming arrows into his guitars on stage. You don't get named "The Motor City Madman" for sitting on your hands; you get that name for writing songs like "Stranglehold," about putting your lover in a headlock if she crosses you. (According to Ted, that song can be very easily misunderstood.) All this is laid out for you on the show, in full glory.

Add to all of this the fact that he is so damn unrepentant about the whole thing. Sure, he loved young women (17-year-olds to be exact), and there is nothing wrong with that. And you'd better believe he likes to hunt (he only feeds his family what he has killed himself — beautiful). And God bless America — love it or leave it. You find yourself respecting the man in the end, with his crazy glare and his collection of bows and firearms. Well, almost.

And I don't know anyone out there who won't get nostalgic watching the Def Leppard special. Extra bonus points for getting interviews from the two people who first came upon Rick Allen's car crash, the same crash that robbed him of his arm. Really, this part of the special may go down as the greatest piece of rockumentary filmmaking ever. We see exactly where the crash happened and hear about the surgery where they actually reattached his arm, only to have them remove it after it became infected. On top of all this, there's the revelation that the reason why he lost his arm is because he was wearing a seatbelt. Oh, the irony.

Then there's Storytellers, where the artists are invited to tell the story behind the song. Future artists include R.E.M. and Tori Amos. God, I can't wait to hear Tori talk about her songs as if they're people and all about fairies. Clear off the couch and set the tape recorder, I'm in for the night.

Mike Massaros is a Collegian columnist.

don't forget about the Daily Collegian on line @
http://www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

© 1998 Microsoft Corporation.

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO
SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE
DISCOUNT CARD
WITH THIS COUPON
413-253-5592

Pumpkins, Ladies fall just short; Bauhaus' latest Crackles

The Smashing Pumpkins, from left to right — James Iha, D'Arcy and Billy Corgan hit and miss on their latest album, Adore.

ADORE
The Smashing Pumpkins
Virgin

Some tracks on Adore are absolutely beautiful. The rest of Adore is a disappointment. Gone are the old style grunge thrashings of Gish and the death metal despair of Mellon Collie and the Infinite Sadness. The new album from the Smashing Pumpkins consists mostly of acoustic ballads, a few of them sweetly melodic ("To Sheila," "Daphne Descends"), some crudely thrown together ("Perfect," "Shame").

Adore is the Pumpkins first album without Jimmy Chamberlain, leaving singer/guitarist Billy Corgan, guitarist James Iha and bassist D'arcy playing alongside a drum machine. The drums sound best when played by a live human being, among them replacement drummer Matt Walker (performing on the first single "Ava Adore"), Matt Cameron (formerly of Soundgarden) and Joey Waronker, best known for performing with Beck. Bon Harris of Nitzer Ebb adds additional programming.

Trax On Trax Off

For all the talent performing on the album, it should definitely have turned out better. Unfortunately, the tracks featured on Adore are not the best Corgan has written. For the most part, they sound like songs that were rejected from Mellon Collie. C+ (Kevin Monahan)

STUNT
Barenaked Ladies
Reprise Records

No one can play to a live crowd like the Barenaked Ladies. Their improv-laden, whimsical songs are perfect for the small venue, college-type setting which grew in popularity thanks to Dave Matthews and Ben Folds Five.

The latest addition to this craze are the Ladies, a Canadian band with a huge, huge cult following. And after a gargantuan free show in Boston and a stop at the H.O.R.D.E. festival, lots of air time and frequent late night talk show appearances, the group is showing it can be mainstream, too.

Still, the main problem lies in that they are a live show band — showcased best with the popular compilation Rock Spectacle. Stunt, in contrast, is a mixed bag of hits and misses. With the exception of the incredibly catchy pop-culture ditty "One Week" and a nicely bizarre "Who Needs Sleep?", there is little on Stunt which teases the ear. Instead the Ladies play up to the college crowd with "Alcohol" or get annoying and repetitive with "Never is Enough" and "Leave."

They score much higher with "I'll be That Girl," a poetic and witty tribute and also with the sublime "Light Up My Room." But the main problem is that everything starts to sound the same. And Stunt is a bit too polished, too staged for a band that thrives on the unexpected. C+ (Bryan McAllister)

THE X-FILES: THE ALBUM
Various Artists
Elektra

In interesting mix of artists such as Bjork, Sarah McLachlan, Foo Fighters, X, Soul Coughing and The Cure, among others, make up the best soundtrack to any of the summer films. Although the track by Bjork was previously released (on the Homogenic album), and the tracks by Sarah McLachlan and Foo Fighters are re-recordings of previous material, the sound of the album captures the spookiness, paranoia, and fun of both the film and the series.

The Cure's "More Than This" is far and away the best song on the compilation and the best work The Cure has done since Disintegration. The Dust Brothers' remix of the "X-Files Theme" is also loads of fun, especially for diehard fans of the show. Keep listening for the hidden track! B+ (K.M.)

MUNKI
The Jesus and Mary Chain
Sub-Pop

The Reid brothers, William and Jim, have returned with their long awaited follow up to 1994's Stoned and Dethroned. Even though it pales in comparison to 1985's Psychocandy, and the 1992 release Honey's Dead, Munki is an excellent album that proves The Jesus and Mary Chain still can produce a rock 'n roll album a cut above everything else in its genre.

From just a glance at the titles of the opening and closing tracks of Munki, "iloverocknroll" and "ihaterocknroll" one can see that TJAMC are just as sardonic as ever. Guest appearances from Mazzy Star's Hope Sandoval recall Stoned and Dethroned's brilliant track, "Sometimes Always."

The Jesus and Mary Chain aren't treading on any new ground here, but the fact of the matter is: we don't want them to. With Munki, TJAMC are exploring the depths of desolation as they always have, and the only thing they have to measure up to is themselves. A- (K.M.)

WHERE HAVE ALL THE MERRY-MAKERS GONE?
Harvey Danger
London/Slash

Add Harvey Danger to the list of bands with great summer radio hits. Their "Flagpole Sitta" took over the airwaves with its paranoia-laden screams and bouncy guitar chords, a timely bit of pop-culture, teenage exasperation. It should have been on the Disturbing Behavior soundtrack, since it was featured both in the previews and the movie, but perhaps the band is lucky they didn't totally associate themselves with a movie that had a better title than screenplay.

Which brings us to the CD. Harvey Danger doesn't have much in the way of musical talent, but these days, that doesn't matter much. Where Have All the Merrymakers Gone?, which I'm assuming is a jab at Paula Cole, is full of such clever references and in-jokes. Among the best is their first track, "Carlotta Valdez," a scathing anti-tribute to the ghost maiden in Alfred Hitchcock's film masterpiece Vertigo. The song screams with tongue-in-cheek anger and is a nice set up for Harvey Danger's own dizzy angst.

But the rest of the album goes stale fast. "Woolly Muffler" and "Private Helicopter" nicely tone things down a bit, but starting with the bland "Jack the Lion," Harvey Danger becomes too clever for their own good. C- (B.M.)

SEHNSUCHT
Rammstein
Slash/Motor

German metal band Rammstein are so dark and twisted they are almost laughable, a head-on collision between Metallica and Right Said Fred. But, when done correctly, Till Lindemann's vocals (in German) are quite chilling. Rammstein at their best sounds like a '90's soundtrack to Leni Riefenstahl's Triumph of the Will. At their worst, they are the epitome of bad, heavy metal excess.

The first single from Sehnsucht, "Du Hast" is one of the best tracks released by Rammstein to date. Combining metal with industrial and techno, "Du Hast" pummels the listener's head in, which is what most metal bands today fail to do (with the exception of Tool). Rammstein is a great asset to the heavy metal genre, but they have to be careful not to turn themselves into a figure of fun. Some suggest that they already have. B- (K.M.)

BAUHAUS
Crackle
Beggar's Banquet

The posthumous success of Bauhaus is common for bands that were so ahead of their time, despite the fact that Bauhaus were treading ground already covered by Joy Division a few years earlier. Not receiving the recognition they deserved until long after they had broken up in 1983, Bauhaus, along with Joy Division and The Sisters of Mercy, are credited as the founders of what we today call "Goth Rock."

Known by some as the club band in Tony Scott's 1983 film The Hunger, Bauhaus released four LPs since they formed in 1978. In their short career they have been highly influential. Crackle features the best tracks from their studio albums such as "In the Flat Field," "Kick in the Eye" and "She's in Parties."

The problem with Crackle is any self-respecting Bauhaus fan already has these songs. So why buy Crackle? For the nine-minute plus version of "Bela Lugosi's Dead," unavailable anywhere else in its original form other that the first edition 12-inch single released back in 1978. That song, unlike anything else ever recorded, makes the purchase price of Crackle worth every penny. A (K.M.)

AT THE BBC
Pixies
Elektra/4AD

This album is a must for any Pixies fan. A live album sounding more mellow than the live CD released with last year's Death to the Pixies. The energy is lower than it should be in some places and the music sounds too controlled for the band that recorded Surfer Rosa. But Pixies At the BBC features great performances of such favorites as "There Goes My Gun," "Subbacultcha," "Manta Ray," "Wave of Mutilation" and "Monkey Gone to Heaven" There are also covers of the Beatles "Wild Honey Pie" and "(In Heaven) Lady in the Radiator Song" which should be familiar to David Lynch fans. B (K.M.)

The delightfully bizarre Bjork lends her vocal talents to the X-Files soundtrack.

Welcome Back to the Daily Grind... from your friendly Arts and Living Staff

Welcome Back!
Always in Bloom
Full Service Florist
• Unique Flowers • Gifts and Plants
• FTD Wire Service • Daily Deliveries
220 North Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253 5545 owner Debbie Boyce

Five College Self-Instructional Language Program
102 BARTLETT HALL 545-3453
www.umass.edu/fclrc
Czech Serbo-Croatian Hindi Swahili
Modern Greek Thai Hungarian Turkish
Indonesian Urdu Norwegian
ELEMENTARY LANGUAGES COURSES FOR UMASS UNDERGRADUATES.
CONTACT THE PROGRAM BY SEPT. 14 FOR FALL 1998 ENROLLMENT.
(THESE COURSES DO NOT MEET THE LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT.)
Native Speakers of these languages interested in working as conversation partners for the program please contact us for an application form.

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THAT'S US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS: CARDIO KICKBOXING, YOGA, REEBOK BENCH, LOW IMPACT
BEST MACHINES: PRECOR ELLIPTICALS, TREADMILLS • BIKES, RECUMBENTS, STAIRMASTERS
BEST PRICES: 1 MO.....$40, 3 MO.....$129, 6 MOS.....$229, 12 MO.....$389
Big Enough to Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 West St. On Bus Route www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

Lug it or leave it.
ZAINA
downtown Amherst

ERIC SCOT
stylist
PENTHOUSE
321 Main Street
Amherst
001 413.256.3440

Fedora's TAVERN
25 College Street
South Hadley, Massachusetts
413-534-8222
WELCOME BACK STUDENTS AND FACULTY!
Come to Fedora's Tavern and join us for:
• .99¢ wings + nachos
• 1/2 priced appetizers 4-6pm M-F
• 12 seasonal Beers on tap
• 5 heads for 5 bucks $$$ (our beer sampler)
All sorts of sandwiches + burgers...
For the month of September $1.50 pints of Miller Lite or Bud Drafts we're on the bus line across from MHC

COURTESY RICO TORRES

Desperado siren Salma Hayek can't heat up the surprisingly stale 54.

Great cast leads Paradise

By Adam Martignetti
Collegian Correspondent

RETURN TO PARADISE
Directed by Joseph Ruben
with Vince Vaughn, Anne Heche, Joaquin Phoenix
Playing at Mountain Farms Cinemas

Admittedly, it's difficult to build an entire movie around a moral dilemma, but that's exactly what Return to Paradise does with some success. The movie uses three main characters — a lawyer and two New York friends — to explore the question: To what length would you go to save a man's life?

The lawyer (Anne Heche) has eight days to convince the two friends to go back to Malaysia and accept their share of the blame for a crime, so her client, their friend, doesn't hang. One of the friends, Tony, leaps at the opportunity; he feels as if he must go back to help a friend despite the wishes of his new fiancée. Sheriff, the other friend, played brilliantly by Vince Vaughn, does not feel compelled at all to return to the island.

At this point, the movie perhaps strays a little. Most people, including his father and, to a degree, himself, perceive Sheriff as a jerk — someone incapable of having any feelings of sympathy or regret. He surrounds himself with this childlike ignorance, as if he doesn't know any better; he's almost unaware that such feelings exist, or that he has them.

Rather than focus exclusively on Sheriff, by far the most compelling character, the film strays a bit to the lawyer, Tony and his fiancée. In addition, the romantic sub-plot between Sheriff and Heche's lawyer is forced. Just because she holds some faith in him, does that mean they have to sleep together? The movie deserves some credit, though, because it does not end in the traditional storybook fashion, perhaps adhering closer to reality.

In a story similar to the Biblical Christ, Return to Paradise never really conveys the magnitude of the dilemma. Nor does it really celebrate the amazing growth achieved by Sheriff during the course of the movie. In fact, his decision to go back comes off as almost expected, when that's far from the truth. I was disappointed by Return to Paradise because I thought it had the potential to be great, but it turned out to be only very good. B+

COURTESY TOUCHSTONE PICTURES

A summer in two paradises, Six Days, Seven Nights and Return to Paradise, help Anne Heche gain notice.

Mike Myers' charisma can't save disco wannabe 54

By Bryan McAllister
Collegian Staff

54
Directed by Mark Christopher with Ryan Phillippe, Salma Hayek, Mike Myers
Playing at Hampshire Mall Cinemas

In the now cult-hit Austin Powers, Mike Myers fully graduated from his "Saturday Night Live" skit days and took on a role — or two, really — that demanded a bit more comic versatility.

In his latest film, portraying the late and infamous Steve Rubell, God of the disco-heaven Studio 54, Myers is required to do something all comics aspire to do — actually act. The outcome is, to quote Austin, shagadellic.

As Rubell, Myers is clever, nasty, snobbish, both out-of- control and completely in power. Diminutive in figure and in appearance, Myers nonetheless captures the charisma of Rubell through sheer giddiness, vulnerability and a know-all demeanor.

It's a shame, then, that 54 writer-director Mark Christopher chooses not Rubell as the main character, but an attractive and dim coming-of-age teenager, played by attractive and dim Ryan Phillippe, who acts just above his work in I Know What You Did Last Summer. That's not saying much.

54 is based on a true story of the New York nightclub of the same name. A virtual paradise, a center of sex and drugs, a haven of beautiful people, the Studio finally hit its demise when it fell to the I.R.S. The backdrop makes for a great movie: celebrities (Andy Warhol and Grace Kelly were among the visitors), wannabe stars (like one played by Salma Hayek, always a pleasure), and beauty queens (a too sweet and underwritten Neve Campbell).

But while Whit Stillman's recent The Last Days of Disco was a mildly interesting character study, 54 is content with gloss and superficiality. We never truly see the struggle with drugs and addiction or the anxiety to make it big. It's all hinted at, including some sexual ambiguity that would have made things much more interesting. The movie shows the right amount of skin, but not enough backbone.

This is unfortunate, because 54 could have been about the price of fame, or the search for paradise, or a sweeping examination of our addiction to pleasure. As Rubell says in a television interview, quoting William Blake, "The path of excess leads to the palace of wisdom." That's intriguing, but little else is made of Rubell's philosophy.

Again, our movie is in the hands of Phillippe's Shane "54- Shane" O'Shea and his friends. While that does give the film a little naive boy-becomes-famous flavor, Phillippe isn't Mark Wahlberg, and 54 isn't Boogie Nights.

It's surprising that 54 is even passably entertaining, because it's not all that visually interesting. Christopher's direction is highlighted by one tumble and twist camera move. Little dancing is even seen, and the soundtrack is surprisingly light. But the production design is great. The costumes are fantastic. This is one movie that's made badly but carries itself on its intrigue alone.

The real problem, though, is that it all feels too Hollywood. For a film made by Miramax and with a performance by Myers so smooth and unobtrusive, 54 seems too much like an extended television melodrama. Even a would-be sad ending is turned into a happy reunion. C

SPARE YOURSELF FROM ONE OF YOUR FATHER'S VALUE OF

An important lesson in college is learning spending a lot of money. And classic

T.J.maxx

Styles may vary by store.

Store nearest campus: In Hadley at Campus Plaza, Rt. 116 and Rt. 9 or call 1-800-2TJ-MAXX.

just think one of the perks of being back to school....
the daily collegain

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS
• CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS •
LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R.
BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

Summer movies: Who won and who lost in '98

Adam Martignetti

Winner: Disaster flicks with heart. —Things blow up, buildings collapse or burn, danger is always imminent, but the human spirit still manages to shine through it all. This seemingly paltry formula powered Deep Impact and Armageddon, movies with eerily similar plots, to box office success this summer.

Deep Impact, the movie I preferred of the two, kicked the summer season off with a bang as it far exceeded any box office predictions. Undeterred by the inevitable comparisons or destroying the Chrysler Building... again, Armageddon followed suit with some big grossing numbers. In fact, the love story plot added just enough emotion, as forced and as cheesy as it may have been, to power Armageddon to the top of the summer box office.

Loser: Asexual reproducing lizards. Apparently, that's not the only thing that matters. The fact that critics lampooned the latest installment of the monster series is not all surprising; the fact that it did not gross $100 million during it's plush Memorial Day weekend opening actually did surprise some "experts."

This movie sank from notoriety and screens faster than James Cameron's real time adaption of that ship... you know the one. So, why did Godzilla bomb? Simple, large audiences are finally demanding more than mindless action films, a.k.a. crap, for their entertainment dollar.

Winner: Older leading men with younger female co-stars — a trend that I found disturbing because audiences simply buy it.

Three examples come to mind immediately: Robert Redford, 60, with Kristin Scott Thomas, 37, in The Horse Whisperer; Harrison Ford, 55, with Anne Heche, 28, in Six Days, Seven Nights; and Michael Douglas, 57, with Gwyneth Paltrow, 25 in A Perfect Murder.

All three of the above had amazingly adept skill at capturing the teenage mind. He's hip and his dialogue is honest, witty and very intelligent. His absence left the two summer attempts at this genre, Can't Hardly Wait and Disturbing Behavior, out to dry.

Jennifer Love Hewitt and Katie Holmes are both amazing, but their movies this summer left a lot to be desired. Hewitt starred in the overdone, cliched, blatantly obvious Can't Hardly Wait — a movie that was supposed to be about unrequited love and fate that simply got too caught up in base teenage partying rituals.

Even the quick-witted, sassy Holmes could not save the ill-fated script of the sci-fi thriller, Disturbing Behavior. Screenwriter Scott Rosenberg, who made such a promising debut with Beautiful Girls, must have had a short lunch break because of all of the movie's dialogue could have fit nicely onto a napkin.

Winner: Tom Hanks. –His performance in Saving Private Ryan speaks for itself. After consecutive best actor Oscars for Philadelphia and Forrest Gump and an Oscar-worthy effort in Apollo 13, let's just say that it's nice to see Hanks back on the big screen as a leading man. He's not done either. You've Got Mail with Meg Ryan opens Dec. 18; Frank Darabont's adaptation of the Stephen King series The Green Mile is on tap for next summer.

Losers: Nicolas Cage and Gary Sinise. After his Oscar- winning role in Leaving Las Vegas, Cage starred in two huge action pictures, The Rock and Con Air. That was fine. Before his return to the sympathetic lead in City of Angels, Cage joined John Travolta in Face/Off, which was lengthy but engaging. After this summer's Snake Eyes, I have to think that Cage is simply taking on too many projects thanks in part to his success.

Snake Eyes was so bad and Cage added nothing to save it. Likewise, Sinise has chosen to typecast himself as the consummate bad guy. After his role as such in Ransom, Sinise played almost the exact same character in Snake Eyes. I'm no expert, but something tells me that this is not the best career move.

Winner: Anne Heche. Why it took so long for people to acknowledge this actress is beyond me. Even before this summer, she had starred with some of Hollywood's biggest leading men (Johnny Depp, Tommy Lee Jones and Dustin Hoffman to name a few) and more than held her own. Six Days, Seven Nights solidified her as a viable romantic lead and hopefully the powerful Return to Paradise will garner her the recognition that she deserves as a top Hollywood actress.

Loser: Ralph Fiennes. He followed his amazing performance in Quiz Show with roles in Schindler's List and The English Patient. Considering both movies dominated their respective Oscars, that's not bad. That's why The Avengers was such a shock; it was absolutely terrible. Undoubtedly, one of the worst movies I've ever seen. After such a disaster, Fiennes definitely needs some time off before choosing his next role.

Winner: Jim Carrey. His acting in the Truman Show, in my opinion this summer's best movie, was truly a breakthrough effort. He was amazing, giving a well thought out and stirring performance as Truman Burbank. His ability to shift emotions from rejection to amazement to joy so convincingly was a true credit to the actor. Finally, Carrey proved to everyone that he could play a sensitive, multi- dimensional leading man.

Loser: Will Smith. It's hard to fault a guy for not starring in a movie, but after Independence Day and Men in Black it seems like Smith had become a summer institution. Look for his upcoming Enemy of the State and next summer, The Wild, Wild West with Kevin Kline.

Winner: George Clooney. As females everywhere tried to recover from his announcement that this would be his final season on ER, Clooney established himself as a skilled actor and attractive leading man in Out of Sight.

Loser: The Average Movie Goer. I consider myself to be an average movie fan. I see about one movie a week and sometimes two depending on what is out at the time.

But this summer, the market was flooded by more movies than I can ever remember.

Simply put, it was nearly impossible to see everything even if you wanted to. Hollywood needs to realize that such a surplus of movies, a lot of them really bad movies, detracts from the good ones and discourages people from going at all.

Hopefully, the big shots in Hollywood have enough discretion to cut back so that the consumer can truly enjoy the quality movies without fretting wasting eight bucks on junk.

Adam Martignetti is a UMass student.

COURTESY MERRICK MORTON

The sultry Jennifer Lopez gets caught up in crime scheme in Out of Sight while...

...Nicolas Cage gets caught up in his own conspiracy in the overdone Snake Eyes.

COURTESY KERRY HAYES

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

Ready for action!
Watering the turf at Richard F. Garber Field, waiting for some action.

Collegian Graphics we do more after 5pm than most people do all day now hiring stop by and fill out an application

Performing Arts Division

MUSIC ACTING DANCE
Group and Private Instruction
Sessions Start Sept 14th, 1998
call: Pad (413) 545-0519
208 N. Pleasant St.

Fall 1998 Season 20 years

Tears of Silver, Dreams of Glass by Marlies Yearby's Movin' Spirits Dance Theater Sept. 12, 8 pm, Bowker Auditorium

• Conference and Play Festival, Oct. 8-11 •
An INTERSECTION of Performance, Practice and Ideas
Intersection Performances are a co-production with the UMass Department of Theater

• the bodies between us by Ik thi diem thuy Thur-Sat Oct. 8-11 at 7 pm with an additional 2 pm Saturday matinee, Curtain Theater

• Quinceañera by Alberto Antonio Araiza (a.k.a "Beto"), Paul Bonin-Rodriguez and Michael Martinez. Thur & Fri Oct. 8 & 9 at 7 pm & Sat. Oct. 10 at 2 pm & 9 pm, Hampden Theater

• Borderscape 2000 by Guillermo Gomez-Peña Oct. 8 & Oct. 10, 9 pm, Rand Theater

FOMMA: The Strength of the Mayan Woman Oct. 22 & 23 at 8 pm, Hampden Theater

SKINning the surFACE by Maura Nguyen Donohue and In Mixed Company, Nov. 12-14 at 8 pm with additional 2 pm Saturday matinee, Hampden Theater

Naga-Mandala, play with a cobra by Girish Kamad. A co-production with the UMass Department of Theater. Wed - Sat, Dec. 2-5 & Tues - Sat, Dec. 8-12, Rand Theater

Looking In/To The Future. Thur -Sat. Dec. 10-12, at 8 pm, Hampden Theater

For ticket information call the Fine Arts Center Box Office, at 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS. For more information about the shows, call NWT at 545-1972.

So close to home you could almost say it's a house call.

You are back to school. We know how busy you are and how difficult it can be to take care of medical needs. So we have expanded our Amherst Outpatient Center to include general X-rays and screening mammograms.

We already do physical therapy, occupational therapy, mental health and substance abuse treatment, and drawing for lab tests in Amherst.

Next time you need health services, ask your doctor about getting them close to home. We're located close by and our flexible hours make scheduling an appointment

We are your community hospital, bringing health care to your community

Cooley Dickinson Hospital
Amherst
Outpatient Center
29 Cottage Street
Amherst, MA 01002
549-5755

Test-pilot the new
Gillette MACH3™
THE FIRST TRIPLE-BLADE RAZOR
YOU TAKE ONE STROKE, IT TAKES THREE.
Enter to Win the Grand Prize:
BMW M3 and $5,000 Cash.
First Prize: PlayStation game console with Dual Shock Analog Controller.
GUARANTEED WINNER AT THIS SCHOOL!
Call toll-free to enter:
1-877-GO-MACH3
Gillette
The Best a Man Can Get
CLOSEST SHAVE · FEWER STROKES · LESS IRRITATION

WOMEN'S SOCCER, C2
MEN'S SOCCER, C3
FIELD HOCKEY, C4
VOLLEYBALL, C6

SPORTS
Wednesday, September 9, 1998 The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

UMass football begins '98 campaign with nailbiter

Minutemen nearly upset No. 3 Blue Hens

By Brett Mauser
Collegian Staff

What a game.

A crowd of 20,744 raging Blue Hens in Newark, D.E. got an inside look at the Massachusetts football team and what the Atlantic 10 is in store for.

On Thursday night at Delaware Stadium, the Minutemen, fresh off their worst campaign in 40 years, nearly pulled an upset in their first game back, falling 33-30 to the No. 3 Blue Hens of Delaware.

The game was in hand, and then, not in hand. Senior tight end and co-captain Kerry Taylor, already with two touchdown receptions on the night, nearly had a third, one that would have given the Minutemen everything but the victory, but the ball hit the ground, and the Blue Hens had escaped.

"I saw the ball coming and I had it in my hands and it just fell out," a distraught Taylor said.

The clock had ticked under a minute and a 4th and 7 situation at the Blue Hen 23-yard-line put head coach Mark Whipple in a bind. After two missed field goals and one unsuccessful point after kick from placekicker Matt Murphy, he decided to go for it. Taylor had beaten three defenders to the spot, but the pass was a shade low and Taylor squatted down while still on the run, but the ball evaded him.

"If there's anyone that I wanted to drop that pass, it was him," Whipple said, "because I know he's mentally tough and that he'll be back next week."

Junior college transfer Todd Bankhead, adjusting to a new system under coach Mark Whipple, completed 26-of-45 attempts for 323 yards and four touchdowns. With 9:31 to play, he found a streaking Jimmy Moore wide open in the end zone to round out his career night.

The last time a Minuteman quarterback posted four touchdown passes was in 1989, when Gary Wilkos hit for four against Connecticut. It had also been 12 years since UMass has had a 300-yard passing game.

"Todd made some great reads," Whipple said. "He threw it where it had to be thrown."

The tale of missed opportunities began following a blocked punt deep in UMass territory, which resulted in a touchdown three plays later. The Minutemen answered the pressure by marching down the field to the UD one-yard line, where sophomore Marcell Shipp bobbled a pitch and tried to regain possession, but the ball was knocked away and recovered by Delaware's Chris Nacewicz at the 16-yard line.

"Losing's losing," Whipple said. "[Former NFL and USFL coach] George Allen said that losing's worse than dying because you have to live with it. The only positive in my mind is that it wasn't a league game."

After trailing 23-13 halfway through the second quarter, Delaware ran off 20 unanswered points to obtain a two possession lead, until Bankhead found Moore.

With 5:30 left to go in the first half, Matt Nagy, who replaced starting UD quarterback Brian Ginn after a subpar performance, looked deep for wide receiver Eddie Conti. Freshman free safety Jeremy Robinson nearly cut in front of Conti and intercepted the pass, but the ball was batted around. Eventually, Conti gained possession and put the Blue Hens in position at the 19-yard line for their first score on the run, a 2-yard leap into the end zone by senior fullback Andre Thompson.

UMass got on the board thanks to a muffed punt by Conti at his own 26-yard line. Conti did not have the ball from the start, and Kole Ayi came storming down the field, falling on it at the Delaware 27. A minute later, Bankhead found Taylor open in the end zone to give UMass their first lead on the new campaign.

The Minutemen led at the half 23-20, after Bankhead's pair of connections with Taylor and a 43-yard TD pass to freshman Adrian Zullo. A flag was waved off after it was determined that Zullo had caught the pass after being nudged out of bounds, rather than doing so voluntarily. Zullo, a surprise insertion in the lineup early in the game, caught two balls for 83 yards.

Delaware punished the Minuteman front seven, rushing for 267 yards on the night, including 57 yards on the opening drive of the game. The only pass on the drive was one that fell into the hands of tight end Jody Russell from two yards out for the game's first score.

The Blue Hens used a balanced running game to slow down the UMass defense. Four players carried the ball at least 10 times, but no player more than 15. Sophomore Craig Cummings carried 15 times for 100 yards and two touchdowns on the evening. Thompson, the team's leading rusher last year, gained 55 yards on 10 carries. Shipp led the Minutemen on the ground, compiling 88 yards on 17 carries.

Both teams were marred by poor placekicking throughout the night. While Delaware's Garon Sizemore misdirected two extra points, the Minutemen's Murphy missed on field goal attempts of 33 and 26 yards, and on an extra point of his own.

Linebacker Khari Samuel suffered a broken nose in the third quarter, but returned a few plays later. The senior compiled 15 tackles in the contest, moving into fourth place on the UMass all-time tackles list.

Senior running back Matt Jordan had a strong performance, after suffering through a nagging hamstring injury last season. He rushed eight times for 23 yards and led all UMass receivers in receptions with seven.

"I think the team played well as a whole," Samuel said. "We came out with some emotion and I tip my hat to everyone who played in this game."

Next Saturday, the Minutemen travel to Richmond, Va. to tangle with 20th-ranked Richmond. Last year in Amherst, the Spiders defeated UMass 21-6, scoring all their points in the second half. They return eight starters from last year's offense.

UMass will face old friend Jim Reid, coach of Spiders. Reid led the Minutemen to three Yankee Conference titles in his six-year head coaching stint in Amherst.

"I want to carry ourselves with a little more confidence going into Richmond. I think I have a better football team now than I had [three hours ago]," Whipple said.

Minuteman Notes: Zullo not only caught two passes for 83 yards and a touchdown, but ran the ball twice on two reverses for 32 yards. He was the national high school champion in the 100 meters, registering a 10.43 this summer... Robinson collected eight tackles in his debut as starting free safety, the only starting freshman on defense...

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO
Senior co-captain and All-America candidate Khari Samuel will anchor the Massachusetts defense this season.

UMass falls to BYU 3–2 in opener

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

Massachusetts women's soccer coach Jim Rudy was well aware that his team was not playing its sharpest game in last Tuesday's season opener against Brigham Young University at Totman Field.

Nevertheless, the Minutewomen appeared to be on their way to a victory anyway. They led the Cougars 2-1 with 3:42 left in regulation before disaster struck.

BYU goals by Maren Hendershot and Shauna Rohbock in the final minutes gave the Cougars a shocking 3-2 win over the visibly dejected Minutewomen squad.

"This was good food for thought today. You didn't see the best out of some of our people, but you will," Rudy said. "I told Rachel [Leduc, UMass' assistant coach] that we needed a third goal because I couldn't see too many teams coming back on us with a 3-1 lead."

With UMass holding that precious 2-1 lead late in the game, Hendershot took a feed on the left flank and put one by goalkeeper Angie Napoli to knot the game at 2-2. Rudy, however, accepted some of the blame for the tying goal, explaining that defender Amanda Thompson became distracted as he began shouting instructions to his team.

"We just had a free kick on the right flank, and I was yelling for the team to get back because I knew we were fatigued," he said. "We wanted to get someone to stay in the middle, but we backed down, and Amanda was looking right at me."

The gamewinner was another tough goal to swallow, as Rohbock got to a loose ball and snuck one past Napoli from a tough angle with only 61 seconds left in regulation.

"It's hard to say what happened. It was an unusual goal and I'd have to look at the tape," Rudy said. "Angie hasn't been in these pressure situations before, but she had her big moments and made some big saves."

The Cougars dominated the pace of the contest in the opening 15 minutes of the game. Aside from a Massachusetts scoring chance off the opening whistle, BYU kept the ball solely in the UMass end of the field.

Finally, in the 10th minute, the visitors found the net. Karen Robbins won a ball down the left side and her crossing pass deflected right to Kim Lowe, who tapped the ball into the bottom right corner for a 1-0 lead.

Last year's leading scorer, sophomore Kara Green then evened up the score just over four minutes later. The Poughkeepsie, N.Y. native took a feed from Tara Tokarchik and headed it past BYU goalie Catherine Wright.

Green continued to show that she hadn't skipped a beat offensively from last season later in the half, settling a deflection and firing it past Wright for a 2-1 UMass advantage.

"It was nice to see Kara score a variety of goals, but she's not fit. In fact, the whole team isn't fit," Rudy said. "We've only played one 90 minute game before today."

Despite the unwelcome final outcome, Rudy gave praise to his defensive newcomers, Molly McGrew and Cindy Garceau for their efforts against BYU.

"The defense did surprisingly well especially because our system is so new," Rudy said. "We have a brand new defense with the exception of the Commander [Thompson]."

The Minutewomen faced Arizona State on Saturday night in their final tuneup for Friday's battle with Michigan in Ann Arbor. UMass defeated the Wolverines 2-1 last season in Amherst on a Green goal late in regulation.

When asked how he thought his team would respond against the Sun Devils on Saturday, Rudy gave the following prediction.

"[They can turn today's loss from a negative into a positive] easily," said the UMass coach. "They're not used to tough losses like this and are going to take it personally. I think we'll come out with a vengeance [against ASU]."

Looking ahead, the Minutewomen will also face Evansville on Sunday in their second of two games on the weekend in Michigan.

JORMA KANGASMAKI / SPECIAL TO THE COLLEGIAN
Kara Green netted two goals in the season opener, but it wasn't enough as the UMass women's soccer team fell to BYU, 3–2.

Whipple brings new life to UMass football squad

By Brett Mauser
Collegian Staff

Coach Mark Whipple's presence was eminent from the time Khari Samuel stepped onto the battle field at Delaware Stadium Thursday night. It was a whole new ballgame.

A Samuel body blow to the goalpost padding followed by a pigpile of maroon and white had the Atlantic 10 knowing from the get-go that Massachusetts football was back. The emotion, the fire, but most importantly, the confidence of Minuteman football had been restored.

No more Mr. Nice Guy, the man said, let's go win some ballgames. After a 2-9 season for the Massachusetts football team in 1997, marking the worst record in 40 years for the Minutemen, moral victories were valuable. A 33-30 loss to a returning national semifinalist in the form of the Delaware Blue Hens, on the other hand, props the door to the future wide open.

In 1997, UMass had an offense that refused to pass, throwing for what was good for 97th in all of I-AA football, and a defense that was losing six of its starters.

It all starts at the coach, and Whipple made that apparent when quarterback Todd Bankhead was unsuccessful in finding a sprinting Jimmy Moore on a fly pattern 50 yards upfield in Thursday's game at Delaware. The slate was indeed clean.

Upon Mike Hodges' resignation as the mind behind UMass football, the athletic department ventured out into the world to find themselves a replacement. Whipple, a household name to college football aficionados stepped on stage to audition, and from there, he simply took it home.

The name, the spunk, the humor was all there. What showed up, though, that had the University officials smiling from ear to ear was the resume Whipple brought to town: A .686 winning percentage, one losing season in 10 years of coaching, and a reputation as one of the great offensive minds on college campuses.

The Minutemen found a winner, in more ways than one. After all, it is the only way the man knows how to play.

Starting to believe? So are the players.

"It's a totally different attitude, everyone has the same ideas, the same strategies, the same goals to reach," said Samuel, a senior co-captain and Buck Buchanan Award candidate himself. "I think it's just a different feel, you know, something you really can't explain.

"When you walk into the room, you just feel different, you feel a different

Turn to WHIPPLE, page C8

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS
New football coach Mark Whipple is looking to turn things around for the Massachusetts football team this fall.

Minutewomen hoping to make new history in '98

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

When taking a walk around the newly refurbished Totman Field, one of the most recognizable points is the large number of banners that represent the Atlantic 10 titles and NCAA tournament appearances for the Massachusetts womens' soccer team.

As the banners show, there is a rich history behind the UMass program. Last season was no different, as the Minutewomen posted a 17–5 mark and a perfect 13-0 mark in the A-10, winning both the regular season and tournament titles. All in all, a new chapter in that storybook had been written.

The 1998 edition of the Minutewomen, however, is looking to make some history of its own. And there is good reason to believe things won't skip a beat in Amherst this season.

With the return of the "Three Amigas," Sophie Lecot, Emma Kurowski and Kara Green up front, along with senior co-captain Amanda Thompson anchoring the defense and a solid mix of returning veterans and fresh faces, UMass is looking forward to another successful season.

"My goal with this team is to make the conference tournament and then win it and go to the NCAAs," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said. "Then if we get there, we want to go as far as we can go, but we're going to take things one step at a time."

There will be some changes for the Minutewomen this year. After losing Amy Burill and Erica Iverson along with goalkeeper Danielle Dion from the defensive core, Thompson will be the only familiar face in the backfield.

Junior Angie Napoli will take over in the net, while an array of players should see time alongside Thompson. In the season opener against Brigham Young University, Cindy Garceau and Molly McGrew got the nod and played a solid game for UMass.

"I hope so (that their strong play against BYU is a sign of things to come). That was an area of concern that we had, and they did better in their position then some others we expected to," Rudy said. "It was a decent start, and we'll have to see how it goes. Right now we still don't know a whole lot though."

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO
Sophie Lecot will be one of the co–captains and primary offensive threats for the 1998 Massachusetts women's soccer team.

The offense, however, is something that should take care of itself for the Minutewomen. With Lecot, Kurowski and Green all back, UMass will have one of, if not the most, potent offensive attacks in the region. Complimenting the aforementioned trio offensively will be junior Tarah Tokarchik, sophomore Brooke Bartlett and freshman Sarah Cook.

"Someone has to score the goals but they [the trio] seem to get the balls," Rudy said. "But we are a team that can get goals from any direction. Brooke, Sarah and Tara also should score some goals for us, and we're looking for someone who can contribute off the left flank."

The Minutewomen will be a young team this season, as Lecot and Thompson are the only seniors. That being said, Rudy is looking for big things from his captains.

"It's their team to take because they are the only two seniors," he said. "It's up to them, but we're looking for some great leadership out of them."

In addition, a strong freshman class has also entered the picture this season. They include goalkeeper Cori Stevens, forward/midfielder Katelyn Jones, forward Kristy Rubicheau, defender Aisha Barnes, midfielder Cook and defender Martha Conover. Junior Susannah Nord, a transfer from the University of San Francisco, is also vying for time as a defender.

"This is a pretty good group that came in. I'm impressed with it," Rudy said. "They are a skillful group that is very mature in their thinking. I think they will integrate right away with the rest of the team and will have a big impact."

UMass, currently ranked No. 22 in the nation in the Soccer America poll, will go through one of the toughest non-conference schedules in the country before embarking on its A-10 slate. They will play the likes of BYU, Arizona St., Michigan, Evansville, Connecticut, William and Mary, Colgate University, Colorado and Texas in the month of September. The A-10 opener will be Oct. 2 against Temple.

"If that schedule doesn't prepare us for the A-10s then nothing can. All of those teams are quality teams that will have winning records," Rudy said. "Most of them will either make a push for their conference championship or will be the champ. We're just hoping to do well there and prepare ourselves to get ready for the A–10s."

The Minutewomen will next take the field on Friday at 4 p.m. when they face Michigan in Ann Arbor. They will then battle Evansville on Sunday at noon.

1998 Massachusetts Women's Soccer

Sept.	1	BRIGHAM YOUNG ..... 4:30p.m.
Sept.	5	ARIZONA STATE ..... 7p.m.
		(at Agawam High School)
Sept.	11	at Michigan ..... 4p.m.
Sept.	13	vs Evansville ..... 12p.m.
		(at Ann Arbor, Mich.)
Sept.	16	at UConn ..... 4p.m.
		UMASS CLASSIC
Sept.	19	vs. WILLIAM & MARRY ..... 2p.m.
Sept.	20	vs. COLGATE ..... 2p.m.
Sept.	25	at Colorado ..... 4p.m.#
Sept.	27	vs. Texas ..... 11a.m.#
		(at Boulder, Colo.)
Oct.	2	TEMPLE* ..... 3:30p.m.
Oct.	4	ST. JOSEPH'S* ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	6	at Rhode Island ..... 7p.m.
Oct.	9	GEORGE WASHINGTON* ... 3:30p.m.
Oct.	11	VIRGINIA TECH* ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	16	at Xavier* ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	18	at Dayton* ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	23	LA SALLE* ..... 3p.m.
Oct.	25	FORDHAM ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	30	at Duquesne ..... 2p.m.
Nov.	1	at St. Bonaventure ..... 1p.m.
Nov	6-8	Atlantic 10 Championship
		(University of Dayton, Dayton, Ohio)

Home games in BOLD and played at Totman Field
* Atlantic 10 Conference match
Mountain Time

The Body Shop
Special
The Welcome Back to School &
Pay Only
$55 for FALL Membership
$100 FALL & SPRING Membership
Work Every Muscle in Your Body
• Powerline Weight Training Machines
• Life Fitness Stationary Bicycles
• Stair Climbers
• Concept II Rowing Machines
• Nordic Track Ski Machines
• Lindex Treadmill
• Precor EFX Elliptical Trainer
• Free Weight

J. Crew
Clothing Sale
Sept. 15 - Sept. 18
Temporary Help Needed
for large J. Crew Clothing Sale
to be held at
The Mullins Ceqnter at the University of Massachusetts
September 15 - 18, 1998
To sign up, stop by our table in the Campus Center Concourse on Wednesday 9/9; 9am - 4pm &
Thursday 9/10; 9am - 1pm

Time to turn the page for Minutemen soccer team

UM squad looks to return to A–10s

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

Now that the Mike Butler era is over for the Massachusetts men's soccer team, its time for the Minutemen to turn the page.

Butler, the all–time leading scorer in UMass history, may be gone, but a solid core of players from last year's team, which went 11–7–1, are back and looking to return to the Atlantic 10 tournament after narrowly missing out last season.

Leading the way for the Minutemen will be senior tri- captains Carmelo "Pie" Garcia, Brad Kurowski and Jake Brodsky. Garcia was a second–team all A–10 pick last year who can also provide offensive support for UMass. Kurowski is regarded as one of the best markers in New England, while Brodsky will man the middle along with classmate Paul Corcoran.

Other key returnees for UMass include junior goalkeeper Todd Fowler. The Clifton Park, N.Y. native took the starting job from Jeff Jablonski early last season and hasn't looked back since. He posted three shutouts in A–10 action last year and compiled a 3–1 mark against nationally ranked opponents.

In the Friendly's Cup exhibition against Duke University on August 23, Fowler opened his 1998 season with a 15– save performance in a scoreless tie.

The primary offensive threat for the Minutemen will be sophomore Seth Lilburn. The New Jersey product was second on the team in scoring last year with 18 points. His eight assists in 1997 were a team high. Complimenting Lilburn up front will be juniors Todd Baron and James Redmond.

UMass was also bolstered in the midfield by the addition of transfer Adam Black, who arrives via Cal–State Fullerton, Jonathan Bibb, a native of England, and freshman Mike Janusz.

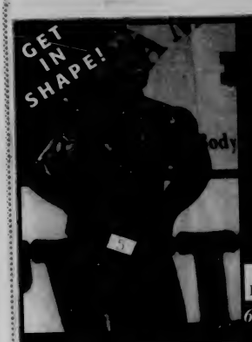
The commander of this UMass team is coach Sam Koch, who enters his eighth season at the helm of the Minutemen. He boasts a 79–45–13 mark during his days in Amherst and a 137–98–29 career record.

The Minutemen opened their season on September 1 with a 3–0 loss to No. 14 Boston University. Fowler had five saves in the losing effort against the Terriers.

UMass will deal with a tough non–conference schedule. They will face Siena, Hartford, Maine, New Hampshire, Fresno State and the University of Nevada–Las Vegas before heading into Atlantic 10 play.

The Atlantic 10 schedule will then get underway in late September with home games against Rhode Island, Xavier, Dayton, Duquesne and St. Bonaventure. Road A–10 games for the Minutemen will be at Temple, St. Joseph's, George Washington, Virginia Tech, La Salle and Fordham.

The conference championships will be held on November 6–8 at Rhode Island.



COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO
Sophomore Seth Lilburn will be looked upon to carry his share of the scoring load for the 1998 Massachusetts men's soccer team.

1998 Massachusetts Men's Soccer

Aug.	23	DUKE (Exhibition)# ..... 7:30p.m.
Sept.	1	at Boston Universty ..... 4p.m.
Sept.	6	SIENA ..... 1p.m.
Sept.	9	HARTFORD ..... 3:30p.m.
Sept.	12	at Maine ..... 1p.m.
Sept.	16	NEW HAMPSHIRE ..... 3:30p.m.
		Goal Rush Classic (Fresno, California)
Sept.	18	at Fresno State ..... 11a.m.
Sept.	20	vs. UNLV ..... 3p.m.
Sept.	26	RHODE ISLAND ..... 11a.m.
Oct.	2	at Temple* ..... 3:30p.m.
Oct.	4	at St. Joseph's ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	9	at George Washington* ..... 3:30p.m.
Oct.	11	at Virginia Tech* ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	16	XAVIER* ..... 3:30p.m.
Oct.	18	DAYTON* ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	23	at La Salle* ..... 3:30p.m.
Oct.	25	at Fordham* ..... 1p.m.
Oct.	30	DUQUESNE* ..... 3:30p.m.
Nov.	1	ST. BONAVENTURE* ..... 1p.m.
Nov.	6-8	Atlantic 10 Championship
		(at Kingston, R.I.)

Home games in BOLD and played at Totman Field
* Atlantic 10 Conference game
at Szot Park, Chicopee, Mass

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • VR BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

GET IN SHAPE!
★ Designer Whey Protein 2lb. $24.95
★ MET-Rx 20 pack $35.95
★ Creatine 500g. $29.95
Andro available
GREAT PRODUCTS, GREAT PRICES, GREAT SERVICE!
NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
EXERCISE + NUTRITION PROGRAMS AVAILABLE
65 UNIVERSITY DR. AMHERST
549-7434
IN SHAPE NUTRITION
WALKING DISTANCE!

darby
Contemporary Clothing for Young Women
98 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253.0287

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB
Free HFC T-Shirt
The Area's Most Complete Club • 256-6446
HAMPSHIRE FITNESS club
•PVTA bus route to Rolling Green • • Pool •
• Aerobics •
• Aqua-aerobics • •Steps •
• Nautilus • •Racquetball•
• Free weights •
•Jacuzzi•
• Sauna •
•Bikes •
• Indoor tennis & Basketball • • Rowers • •Treadmills •
90 Gatehouse Road
Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center
Join now for our 15 week Semester Special ($169) & get a free HFC T-Shirt
MasterCard VISA

Field hockey looks for third consecutive A–10

By Aaron Saykin
Collegian Staff

Last fall marked the beginning of a new chapter for the Massachusetts field hockey team. For the third time in three years, the Minutewomen endured a coaching transition — a move which may have left the players wondering about stability at season's end.

When former UMass and Olympic star Patty Shea replaced Pam Hixon as coach last year, the Minutewomen found the much-needed security they had sought. After leading UMass to an Atlantic 10 tournament title in her rookie season, Shea already has the tools necessary to put her squad in contention for a another conference title and a trip to the NCAA tournament.

"I learned a lot about my players and they learned a lot about me last year," said Shea, who served as an assistant at national powerhouse Iowa for seven seasons before returning to Amherst. "I was their third coach in three years, but now that we've had a full year to mold together, they [the players] know what to expect from me, and I know what to expect from them."

Despite the loss of key athletes to graduation, Shea remains confident that her players are capable of upholding the Minutewoman reputation. With the perfect balance between hard work and improvement, she feels her players have the potential to produce a season which could culminate with the school's third consecutive conference title.

"Winning the A-10 is always a goal," said Shea, who feels UMass must stand out in its conference before attempting to leave its mark on the national scene. "You need to focus on that to get further into the season."

When not attempting to conquer A-10 foes, the Minutewomen will be forced to contend with an aggressive non-conference schedule, which includes an early season meeting with Northeastern, and trips to James Madison and Virginia. Despite the difficulty which accompanies such a trying schedule, Shea remains convinced that this rocky UMass path will help pave the road to improvement.

"I think that the difficult non-conference schedule will prepare us mentally and physically for our conference games," Shea said. "Every team out there is getting better, and you just can't look past anybody. There are more good players to go around, and every team is going to give us some serious competition."

Among the top potential Minutewoman spoilers for the A–10 crown are 1997 conference tournament runner-up West Chester, Rhode Island and St. Joseph's.

"St Joe's has a new coach and they're going to be better," Shea said. "Their younger players have been gaining experience and more fire. The unknown is really the scariest thing. A young team can scare you the most because you just don't know what to expect."

With most of the 1997 highly-touted UMass defense lost to graduation, the Minutewomen will look to some of their veterans to provide leadership and stability for what will be an inexperienced backfield.

"That's going to be a huge challenge, to see who's going to step up for us," Shea said. "Hopefully our backfield can be strengthened by our forwards testing them every day at practice."

Shea also believes that some of her more experienced midfielders and forwards can convert into starting backs, a move which is not at all uncommon in Division I field hockey.

"We do have players that are ready to go in different areas and play numerous positions," she said. "Everybody is battling for a spot. Some players are recruited as a forward but come in and play back. It'll take at least three to five games before we get settled."

With a defense which may struggle in the early going, UMass will look to senior forward and All-American Erica Johnston to carry the scoring load. During a stellar junior campaign, after which she was named the A-10 Player of the Year, the Enfield, Conn. native exploded onto the national scene with her goal-scoring ability.

"Erica has the potential to do whatever she wants to do," said Shea of Johnston, who will become a marked player in 1998. "Last year wasn't expected. This year is. We will need somebody to step up. It helps to have two marked players."

Despite the high expectations, Shea feels that Johnston has conducted herself very well on the practice field. The second-year coach even compared the pressure Johnston faces from outside sources to that which a Major League Baseball player feels while chasing the home run record.

"Erica does not put pressure on herself, but she expects a lot of herself. Pressure actually starts to build from the outside sources. That's just like the situation with Mark McGwire. He's expected to go to the plate and hit a home run every time. It's when people expect Erica to score four to five goals a game that pressure builds."

In addition to Johnston, Shea will also look to returning veterans like co-captain and playmaker Kate Putnam as well as Vicky Browne, the other UMass senior captain, who is expected to continue her aggressive style of play alongside Putnam at the midfield.

Sophomore Zowie Tucker will return as the starting goalkeeper, and seniors Laura Phelan and Katharine McClellan will be key components in the UMass drive for three consecutive Atlantic 10 titles.

"Seniors, for the most part, don't ever want to have to say 'what if' or ask any other questions like that," Shea said. "They want to leave everything on the field."

The Minutewomen seniors and fellow players had their first opportunity to continue to silence the "what if" echoes on Saturday, Sept. 5, when they hosted the University of New Hampshire.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Senior Vicky Browne will be one of the key players for the 1998 Massachusetts field hockey team. UMass is looking for its third straight A–10 title this season.

1998 Massachusetts Field Hockey

Sept.	5	NEW HAMPSHIRE	1 p.m.
Sept.	7	NORTHEASTERN	1 p.m.
Sept.	9	at Boston College	7:30 p.m.
Sept.	12	at Virginia	TBA
Sept.	13	vs. James Madison (at Charlottesville, Va.)	3 p.m.
Sept	16	at Harvard	3:30 p.m.
Sept.	19-20	Terp Invitational (at College Park, Md.)
Sept.	19	vs. Georgetown	2 p.m.
Sept.	20	vs. Maryland or American	11 a.m./1 p.m.
Oct.	7	BOSTON UNIVERSITY	7 p.m.
Oct.	9	WEST CHESTER	7 p.m.
Oct.	11	LA SALLE	12 p.m.
Oct.	13	SYRACUSE	3 p.m.
Oct.	14	at Providence	3:30 p.m.
Oct.	17	at Temple*	12 p.m.
Oct.	19	at St. Joseph's*	12 p.m.
Oct.	22	at Rhode Island*	3 p.m.
Oct.	24	CONNECTICUT	12 p.m.
Oct.	28	at Dartmouth	2 p.m.
Nov.	7-9	Atlantic 10 Championship (at Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa.)

*Atlantic 10 Conference game
Home games in BOLD and played at Richard F. Garber Field

Erica Johnston — Kate Putnam — Laura Phelan

New Girls are here
The fun is here
You should be here!
Castaway Lounge
Thanks to our Patrons and Advocate Readers for Voting us the Best in Western New England for Adult Entertainment 2 Years in a Row
Every Monday Night is Football Night
5 Beautiful Exotic Dancers
Starting at 4pm.
All other days entertainment starting at 1pm till 1am.
Come Enjoy Entertainment with 36 Lovely Dancers per Week
Open Tues- Sat 1pm-1am. Must be 21 years old.
Make your private parties in our new V.I.P. Room
North of 91 Ext. 22, Take Rt. 5&10 North 2 miles
South of 91, Ext. 24, Take Rt. 5&10 South 2 miles

Amherst Survival Center's Furniture Sale and Collection
Saturday September 12
9am - 1pm
Amherst Town Common ▪ Rain or Shine
Buy used furnitutre at very low prices! (delivery available)
Come browse our free take it or leave it area! Many mattresses available!
Call 549-3968 for more information
Amherst Survival Center welcomes The Univeristy of Massachusetts and BankBoston as major sponsors of this event.
FROM TRASH TO TREASURE
Furniture Recycling on the Common

Mike's Westview Welcomes Back its Students
SNACK BASKETS $1.00
FRIES ONION RINGS OF NUGGETTS
MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
MONDAY NITE FOOTBALL FREE BUFFET 5:30
AS USUAL WEDNESDAY NITE IS PARTY NITE AT MIKE'S!
THURSDAY NITE BUD LITE NITE
BUD LITE BOTTLES $1.50
COCKTAIL OF THE WEEK
CAPTAIN & COKE $2.25
THIS YEAR SOMETHING NEW! OUR MIKE'S MAXI PITCHER
34 OUNCES OF BUD OR BUD LITE $3.00

ATKINS FARMS Country Market
Rte. 116 & Bay Rd.
South Amherst, MA
(413)253-9528 (800) 594-9537
STUDENT SPECIAL CARE PACKAGES
Birthday Cakes
8" Round (12-18 servings) ... $12.00
10" Round (18-25 servings) ... $15.00
1/4 Sheet Cake (15-20 servings) ... $13.00
(other sizes available)
Candles, Plate, Forks, Napkins ... $2.00
Bouquet of 3 latex Balloons ... $3.50
Get Well Pak
Homemade chicken soup (frozen) in microwave container, crackers, Ricola herb cough drops, orange juice, Bigelow Camomile tea, yogurt, apple, bananas, large Atkins Healthfood Cookie, Cocoa Amore, Hersheys Kisses, packet of tissues, and a stuffed Teddy Bear (food arranged in sturdy box) ... $19.50
Snack Pak
Four Fruits (apple, banana, pear & grapes), 1/2 lb. Cabot Cheddar Cheese & crackers, trail mix, chocolate chip or oatmeal cookies (6), Atkins popular cider donuts, Ghirardelli candy bar and two individual paks of Cocoa Amore, arranged in a gift box ... $15.95
All Natural Crunchy Snack Pak
Healthy snacks for one or more including humas, Flat Bread, Ginsing tea, Atkins Healthfood cookie, sunflower seeds, five fruits, Atkins fresh ground peanut butter and no sugar added fruit spreads, also your choice of either an Atkins Eight Grain or Cracked Wheat Bread, two 3/4 oz. Cabot Cheddar Cheese. Packed in a gift box. ... $26.50
Nacho Pak
Nacho chips, salsa, Monterey Jack cheese, sliced Jalepeno peppers, black olives, and bean dip in a basket . $18.95
We deliver every day (except Sunday) to area colleges.
To order call Monday - Friday, 8 AM-5 PM (413)253-9528

WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP WRESTLING PRESENTS LIVE AT THE MULLINS CENTER!
WCW SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE T.V. TAPING
TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22 7:00PM!
WCW/U MASS FRATERNITY CHALLENGE - FRATERNITY SELLING MOST TICKETS TO THE WCW MULLINS CENTER EVENT 9/22/98 WINS A PHOTOGRAPH AND AUTOGRAPH SESSION WITH A STAR OF THE WCW PLUS WCW MERCHANDISE!
TICKETS: $25.50, $20.50, & $15.50.
To Charge Call 413-733-2500 or For More Info Call 413-545-3001 or 413-545-0505.
Tickets Available at the Mullins Center Box Office Mon.-Fri. 9am-5pm, Main Music Shop, & Filene's.
CARD IS SUBJECT TO CHANGE SUBJECT TO SERVICE CHARGE
1998 © World Championship Wrestling, Inc. A Time Warner Company. All rights reserved.

Young volleyball squad hoping for winning season

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's volleyball team enters this season with some newfound hope and talent, which coach Bonnie Kenny hopes will lead UMass to the Atlantic 10 conference title and a return to the conference tournament.

Last season UMass struggled through a 16–17 season and a fifth–place tie in the A–10 with four other schools. UMass also missed the conference tournament for the first time in the six–year history of the program.

"I knew it was going to be a tough season last year, but we had some unexpected problems. We lost a key senior last season from October on and that hurt us. We also had many inexperienced players, which you can expect from a young team," Kenny said.

UMass also suffered more problems when it experienced several tough losses which Kenny describes as the difference between post–season play and going home for Thanksgiving.

"That is a feeling I never want to have again, being home for Thanksgiving when we should be playing volleyball," Kenny said. "And I think that will be a silent incentive for this team."

Coach Bonnie Kenny

It's a new season for the Minutewomen, and they have a lot of reasons to be optimistic. Although they lost the talented Leslie Nolan to graduation, it looks like the positives outweigh the negatives.

UMass still has two key juniors who have played in every match since they have been here in Amherst. Co–captains Jill Meyers and Kari Hogancamp will be providing the firepower as well as the leadership for the young Minutewomen squad.

"Besides the fact that they're great players, they are not intimidated by anyone, no matter who is across the net from them. That is something the younger players will pick up on and also develop this same quality," Kenny said.

"We also expect great things out of our returning sophomores, Rebecca Hasson and Jenny Drennan," Kenny added.

The new acquisitions are what might make the difference this season at the Curry Hicks Cage. UMass acquired a sophomore transfer from Purdue, Katie Gibbons, a player Kenny said would make an immediate impact.

The Minutewomen also did a solid job recruiting players this offseason. Freshman Heather Holtsberg will act as a setter along with Drennan.

"I feel that with Drennan and Holtsberg we will have two really quality setters which is really exciting," Kenny said.

Janeen Demarte is also a freshman recruit, one whom Kenny says possesses great ball control. She will serve as a defensive specialist and outside hitter for the Minutewomen.

"Lauren Vanderveen is also a nice surprise for us. She is a middle blocker right side player, who can also contribute immediately for us," Kenny said.

According to Kenny, Celia Wiste, Jen Wright and redshirt freshman Lymarie Llovet are all coming along nicely.

"Llovet is healthy, and has been training with the team for a year and a half. She should be ready to contribute immensely," Kenny said.

Another reason this 1998 edition of the Minutewomen is excited is because its depth is one of its strengths.

"We have never had a team this deep in the history of the volleyball program at UMass," said Kenny. "Every player on this team is capable of playing at any given time. Most of them are capable of playing more than one position, which is a nice bonus."

"We also have healthy competition at each position which is a nice thing to have. With this kind of depth we can definitely make a run at the conference title."

With all the youth on this team the future is also looking exceptionally bright for the Minutewomen. The recruiting situation is improving every year, and the fact that there are no seniors on this year's team bodes well for UMass beyond this season.

"Our recruiting has gotten better. We still haven't landed the blue–chippers, but we have gotten very talented volleyball players, especially this year," Kenny said.

Kenny was also excited with the groups potential as a young team.

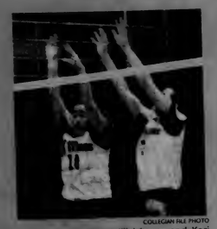
"I'm really excited with the fact that we have the potential of practicing together as a group for the next 500 and some odd days," she said. "It's frightening how good this group can be if they continue to develop at this rate."

The preseason has shown that all this potential is being realized early. The young players are playing the way Kenny and her assistants expected, so now the only hope is that this young enthusiasm continues throughout the season.

"I have seen good chemistry in preseason, good work ethic, and 11 players who come ready to play for each and every practice. If this attitude and development continues we could be a force in the A–10," Kenny said.

The Minutewomen's met their first four opponents of the season at the UMass/Phoenix Invitational tournament over the weekend. They met Sienna University, which provided the hometown crowd with an opportunity to see Sebrena Riley, a native of Amherst.

Brigham Young University was the pearl of the tournament. They were ranked eighth in the pre–season poll and have players that could eventually be the midblockers for the United States Olympic team, according to Kenny.



"It's an honor to have BYU on the same court with us. They have such a good volleyball tradition," she said. "The coach has been there for 35 seasons, and it's just great when they show up to play on our court," said Kenny.

UMass takes its youth and potential to the court to start the 1998 season with great hopes and aspirations of making noise in the A–10 this season and also with the goal of returning to the A–10 tournament after a one–year hiatus.

"We can do this if everybody can keep the drive and continue to push their teammates to do better. Then we have the potential of having a great season," Kenny said.

1998 Massachusetts Volleyball

PHOENIX INVITATIONAL
Sept. 4	RUTGERS	2p.m.
Sept. 4	SIENA	7p.m.
Sept. 5	DELAWARE	11:30a.m.
Sept. 5	BYU	7p.m.
UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA TOURNAMENT
Sept. 11	Portland State	2p.m.
	Arizona	7p.m.
Sept. 12	Idaho	11:30a.m.
	Western Michigan	4:30p.m.
Sept. 18	at Temple*	5p.m.
Sept. 19	at La Salle*	2p.m.
Sept. 22	at Harvard	7p.m.
Sept. 25	VIRGINIA TECH	7p.m.
Sept. 26	DUQUESNE	7p.m.
Oct. 2	at Geo. Washington*	7:30p.m.
Oct. 3	at Fordham*	5p.m.
Oct. 7	at Rhode Island*	7p.m.
Oct. 10	at St. Bonaventure*	4p.m.
Oct. 16	DAYTON	7p.m.
Oct. 17	XAVIER	7p.m.
Oct. 20	UCONN	7p.m.
Oct. 23	LA SALLE	7p.m.
Oct. 24	TEMPLE	7p.m.
Oct. 30	at Duquesne	7p.m.
Oct. 31	at Virginia Tech	7p.m.
Nov. 6	FORDHAM	7p.m.
Nov. 7	GEO. WASHINGTON	7p.m.
Nov. 11	RHODE ISLAND	7p.m.
Nov. 13	ST. BONAVENTURE	7p.m.
Nov. 20	at Xavier	7:30p.m.
Nov. 21	at Dayton	6:30p.m.
Nov. 27-28	Atlantic 10 Championship at Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, Pa.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO
Junior co–captains Jill Meyers and Kari Hogancamp will look to lead the 1998 Massachusetts volleyball team back to the Atlantic 10 tournament this season.

*Atlantic 10 Conf. game
Home games in BOLD and played at Curry Hicks Cage

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

"He shoots, he scores..."
Senior Brian Stahl will once again be the go–to–guy for the Massachusetts men's water polo team this fall. UMass opened up its 1998 season over the weekend in the Navy Invitational.

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS
Don't Miss The ACTION
GET THOSE FORMS IN BY
Flag Football (M/W/C).....9/14
Soccer (M/W).....9/14
Co-ed Softball.....9/15
Field Hockey.....9/15
Ice Hockey (M/W).....9/16
Track & Cross Country (M/W).....9/22
call for times and locations
LATE ENTRANTS SHOULD CHECK FOR EXTENSIONS IN BOYDEN 215
On the Web: http://www.umass.edu/umim/
For entry forms and info
545-2693
545-0022

AMHERST BREWING COMPANY
Welcome Back UMass!
We have over 30,000 pints of fresh ales & lagers. WE SHARE!!
Live Entertainment!
Thursday, Friday and Saturday.
• Fully Stocked Bar
• Late Night Menu Till Midnight
24-36 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-4400

GEORGE CARLIN
ON SALE NOW!
PLUS SPECIAL GUEST DENNIS BLAIR
SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 26
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE, THRU OUTLETS & CHARGE-BY-PHONE: (413) 733-2500 • (860) 525-4500.
EVENT DATE & TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE
PRODUCED BY METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT GROUP

STUDENT SPECIAL!
TIRED OF CROWDED LABS WITH LIMITED HOURS? BRING THE LAB TO YOU WITH AN ACI MULTIMEDIA SYSTEM.
...Take advantage of this fully upgradable system with service and support right down the road.
ACIiS MULTIMEDIA SYSTEM INCLUDES*
100MHz Mainboard
300MHZ CPU
32MB OF RAM
3.2GB HARD DRIVE
COLOR MONITOR
32XCD
SOUND, SPEAKERS AND WINDOWS 98
$999.95
*System Includes AMD K6-2/300MHz w/512K Cache, 100MHz ATX Mainboard, Midtower or Desktop case, 1.44MB 3.5i FDD, 3.2GB EIDE Ultra DMA Hard Drive, Built-In PCI EIDE Controller, 2MB ATI Video Card, 14iAcerView SVGA Color Monitor, MS 104 Key Keyboard, Windows98 on CD, MS Ergo Mouse, 32X CD-ROM, Acer F/X Soundcard and Creative Labs Stereo Speakers. All Systems Include On-Site Installation and 1 Yr. Warranty on Parts and 2 Yr. Warranty on Labor. Laptops and other system configurations available.
American Computer Innovators, Inc.
611 Belchertown Rd.
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-1147
Visit us at: www.aci-openpages.com
AMERICAN COMPUTER INNOVATORS

PRICEWATERHOUSECOOPERS
The biggest name in professional services is now, well, the biggest name in professional services.

You showed them what you were made of at UMASS. Now show the world.

ASSURANCE AND BUSINESS ADVISORY SERVICES
TAX & LEGAL SERVICES
MANAGEMENT CONSULTING SERVICES
FINANCIAL ADVISORY SERVICES
GLOBAL HR SOLUTIONS
BUSINESS PROCESS OUTSOURCING

Visit our web site and find out how you can shape the future.
www.pwcglobal.com
PricewaterhouseCoopers is an equal opportunity employer.

© 1998 PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP. PricewaterhouseCoopers refers to the U.S. organization of PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP and other members of the worldwide PricewaterhouseCoopers organization.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Charge!

Jim Pizano will look to make a contribution out of the backfield this season for the Massachusetts football team.

1998 Massachusetts Football

Sept.	3	at Delaware	7p.m.
Sept.	12	at Richmond*	1p.m.
Sept.	26	BUFFALO (Family Day)	1p.m.
Oct.	3	at Hofstra	12p.m.
Oct.	10	JAMES MADISON (Band Day)	1p.m.
Oct.	17	at Connecticut*	1:30p.m.
Oct.	24	VILLANOVA (Homecoming)	1p.m.
Oct.	31	at New Hampshire*	12:30p.m.
Nov.	7	at Rhode Island*	12p.m.
Nov.	14	MAINE	12:30p.m.
Nov.	21	CONNECTICUT	2:30p.m.

Home games in BOLD and played at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium
*Atlantic 10 Conference game

Kerry Taylor

Marcel Shipp

Chris Price

Tehran Hunter

■ Whipple

continued from page 1

vibe and I haven't felt that since I've been here. It just makes you feel good inside. Somehow you know things are going to go the way they should."

In 1994, Brown University banked on Whipple to turn around a storied program, snatching the Tarrytown, N.Y. native away from the University of New Haven. This time, it's the Minutemen who look to Whipple to jumpstart a sloth-like offensive scheme, and in turn, win some football games.

His 1992 offense with New Haven led all NCAA Divisions in scoring offense and total offense, averaging 50.5 points and 587.7 yards. A year later, his Charger-guided squad was called the best offense, regardless of division, by Sports Illustrated. Last year at Brown, he helped the Bears set Ivy League and school records for total offense.

To keep the ball rolling in the right direction, Whipple brought his entire defensive coaching line-up over from Brown. Defensive coordinator Don Brown served two years under "the Whip" at Brown, along with defensive line coach Keith Dudzinski, and linebackers coach Mark Michaels.

After compiling 438 total yards against the Blue Hens and putting on a solid defensive performance in the second half, only a few mental errors could keep the Minutemen from walking out of Newark, Del. with a victory, in what would be college football's biggest surprise in this young season.

As the team goes emotionally, so goes the head coach. Whipple felt the hurt of tight end Kerry Taylor, when the senior co-captain was unable to handle a perfectly lofted pass that would have given UMass the lead late in the fourth quarter. He felt the ecstasy of the defense after forcing yet another turnover, this time stripping Delaware's Derrick Downs. This team has found not only a mentor in Mark Whipple, but a fan and a friend.

Good to have you along, coach.

TO APPLY FOR THIS BANK ACCOUNT, WE'LL NEED SOME INFORMATION FROM YOU.

MUSTARD OR MAYO?

Buy one, get one free at Subway® Restaurants. Only the Student Value Package® gives you so much for so little.

• 6" Subs Sandwiches at Subway® with a coupon. BankBoston Card and student ID • unlimited coupons available • free 24 hour Online Banking with HomeLink® • only $50 BankBoston MMA • free your BankBoston Card with Xpress Check like a plastic check w/Interest MasterCard® is accepted • our overdraft protection won't cost you/spend a little • now prices as low as 5.9% a month! • Call 1-800-BANKBOS • visit bankboston.com/students

BankBoston

Get Free SUBWAY® Sandwiches

1. Purchase a six-inch Subway® Sandwich and a 21-ounce soft drink and get a second six-inch Subway® Sandwich and 21-ounce soft drink of equal or lesser price free upon presentation of a Student Value Package coupon. Offer expires May 31, 1999. Offer available at participating Subway® locations and may not be combined with any other offer. One coupon per person per visit. Subway is a registered trademark of Doctors Associates Inc. 2. Valid school ID or acceptance letter required. To qualify for $. Prime Check and Reserve Credit you must be at least 18 years of age and have no adverse credit history. 3. Online Banking with BankBoston HomeLink® is free (e.g., transferring funds, checking balances). There is a $5.50 monthly fee for Online Bill Payments with HomeLink. 4. If you make withdrawals, deposits, transfers, and balance inquiries electronically by phone, ATM, or computer only, the monthly fee is discussed to $3. The normal monthly Student Value Package fee is $6. Member FDIC

Calculus Tutor
• Friendly & Helpful
• Affordable
• Available Anytime (at your campus bookstore)
CALCULUS MADE EASY
www.wipeout.com

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

1998 Massachusetts Men's & Women's Cross Country

Men's Cross Country

Sept.	12	IONA and NORTHEASTERN
Sept.	19	BU, MAINE and VERMONT
Sept.	26	Meet of Champions (Van Cortland Park, Bronx, N.Y.)
Oct.	16	New England Championships (Franklin Park, Boston)
Oct.	31	Atlantic 10 Championships (Belmont Plateau, Philadelphia, Pa.)
Nov.	14	NCAA Regional Qualifier (Van Cortland Park, Bronx, N.Y.)
Nov.	23	NCAA Championships (Lawrence, Kan.)

Ken O'Brien

Women's Cross Country

Sept.	11	A-10 Invitational (Belmont Plateau, Philadelphia, Pa.)
Sept.	19	BU, CENTRAL CONN. and VERMONT
Sept.	26	Meet of Champions (Van Cortland Park, Bronx, N.Y.)
Oct.	16	New England Championships (Franklin Park, Boston)
Oct.	31	Atlantic 10 Championships (Belmont Plateau, Philadelphia, Pa.)
Nov.	14	NCAA Regional Qualifier (Van Cortland Park, Bronx, N.Y.)
Nov.	23	NCAA Championships (Lawrence, Kan.)

Julie Lafreniere

1998 Massachusetts Men's Water Polo

Sept.	5-6	Navy Invitational (Annapolis, Md.)
		CWPA League Tournament, Cambridge
Sept.	12	at MIT 10:30a.m.
Sept.	12	vs. Fordham 1:30p.m.
Sept.	12	at Harvard 7:30p.m.
		CWPA League Tournament, Providence, R.I.
Sept.	26	vs.BC 1p.m.
Sept.	26	vs. St. Franics 7p.m.
Sept.	27	at Brown 2:30p.m.
Oct.	3	North/South Challenge (Princeton, N.J.)
		CWPA League Tournament, Bronx, N.Y.
Oct.	10	vs. Iona 3p.m.
Oct.	10	vs. Queens 7:30p.m.
Oct.	11	vs. U.S. M.M.A 11:30a.m.
Oct.	11	at Lehman College 2:30p.m.
Oct.	16	at UC Santa Cruz
Oct. 1	7-18	NorCal Tournament (Stanford, Calif.)
Oct.	24-25	ECAC Championships (Annapolis, Md.)
Oct.	31-Nov.1	CWPA Northern Division Playoffs (Providence, R.I.)
Nov.	14-15	CWPA Eastern Championships (Providence, R.I.)
Nov.	20-22	US Water Polo Winter National Championships (Bronx, N.Y.)
Dec.	4-6	NCAA Championships (Newport Beach, Calif.)

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Serve's up

Parsa Samii will be one of the key returnees for the for the 1998 Massachusetts mens tennis team.

1998 Massachusetts Men's and Women's Tennis

Men's Tennis

Sept.	25-27	West Point Invitational
Sept.	29	MIT	3:30p.m.
Oct.	2	VERMONT	3p.m.
Oct.	9	at Boston College	3p.m.
Oct.	10	at UConn	12p.m.
Oct.	12	at Boston University	12p.m.
Oct.	14	ST. JOHN'S	3p.m.
Oct.	16-18	New England Championships (Storrs, Conn.)
Oct.	20	RHODE ISLAND	2:30p.m.
Nov.	5-8	Rolex Championships (Princeton, N.J.)

Women's Tennis

Sept.	19-21	Eastern Championships
Sept.	22 at	Amherst College	3:30p.m.
Oct.	1	at Dartmouth	2p.m.
Oct.	3	ST. JOHN'S	12p.m.
Oct.	10	at UConn	12p.m.
Oct.	17	at Temple	TBA
Oct.	18	at La Salle	9:30a.m.
Oct.	18	vs. Georgetown (Philadelphia, Pa.)	2p.m.
Oct.	24	vs. Columbia#	9a.m.
Oct.	24	at Army	3p.m.
Oct.	25	vs. Air Force#	9a.m.
Oct.	31-Nov.	1 Rolex Championships (Syracuse, N.Y.)

Cushman Village General Store and Delicatessen
491 Pine St. Amherst, MA 01002 • 413-549-1953
NEAR JUNCTION OF E. PLEASANT ST. • 1 MILE FROM UMass
• Hot Coffee • Sandwiches • Beer&Wine • Baked Goods • Fresh Produce • Fresh Deli Foods
Help Wanted Apply in Person
Regular deli sandwich and a small coffee FREE w/ad.
Good thru Sept. 1998

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THAT'S US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS: CARDIO KICKBOXING, YOGA, REEBOK BENCH, LOW IMPACT
BEST MACHINES: PRECOR ELLIPTICALS, TREADMILLS • BIKES, RECUMBENTS, STAIRMASTERS
BEST PRICES: 1 MO.....$49, 3 MO.....$129, 6 MOS.....$229, 12 MO.....$389
Big Enough To Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 West St. On Bus Route www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

PIZZA SUBS GYROS
the SUB
WE DELIVER
Pizza
Subs
Calzones
and more...
Hours: 11am - 2am
549-5140
member O.C.M.P.

NEED A JOB?
MULLINS CENTER
Now Hiring for the most exciting jobs on campus!!
WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1998
5:30-7:30PM - 3RD FLOOR VIP ROOM
Accepting applications for the following Mullins Center departments:
• Operations (changeover crew, general maintenance, clean-up crew)
• Event Services (ticket takers, door guards, etc.)
• Event Receptionists, Box Office, Ice Rink & Concessions

HISPANO Catolico
La Comunidad Hispana de la Parroquia Santa Bigida te invita a integrarte a la Familia Hispana Catolica de Amherst. La Parroquia Santa Brigida esta Localizada justo frente a la estacion del correo en el pueblo.
Misa en Espanol
12:15 pm, Todos Los Domingos
"Feliz el que tome parte en el Banquete del Reino de Dios..."
Saint Brigid's Church,
122 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01004
Sponsored by the Five College Hispanic Catholics fast food • spirits

THE PUB
amherst
15 East Pleasant Street
Celebrating our 30th Anniversary
1968-1998
Welcome Back Students!
20 oz Miller Lite - $1.99
16 oz Bud & Bud Lite Bottles - $2.25
Ice House Mason Jar - $1.99 (Keep the Jar) $1.75 Refills
Bucket of Rocks - 4 Rolling Rocks & T-Shirt $6.99
Wednesday night is WHMP and Miller Lite give aways night
Friday night is WHMP & Molson giveaway night -
Win a white water rafting trip!!!

CAMPUS BOUND

WE'VE GOT WHAT YOU NEED!

AT THE RIGHT PRICE

CHECKLIST

DOMESTICS
- ☐ Rugs
- ☐ Sheets
- ☐ Pillows
- ☐ Comforters
- ☐ Cushions

ELECTRONICS
- ☐ Cameras
- ☐ Single Use Cameras
- ☐ Film
- ☐ Calculators
- ☐ CD's/Cassettes & Storage
- ☐ Videos
- ☐ TV's
- ☐ Stereos
- ☐ Telephones

HOUSEWARES
- ☐ Dufflebags
- ☐ Shower Caddys
- ☐ Foot Lockers
- ☐ Storage Boxes
- ☐ Laundry Bags
- ☐ Hair Dryers
- ☐ Drinking Cups
- ☐ Clothes Hangers
- ☐ Sewing Kits
- ☐ Hair Cutting Kit
- ☐ Curling Iron
- ☐ Waste Basket
- ☐ Iron & Ironing Board
- ☐ Space Organizers
- ☐ Coffee Makers
- ☐ Toasters
- ☐ Microwaves
- ☐ Can Openers
- ☐ Vacuum Cleaners
- ☐ Brooms
- ☐ Refrigerators
- ☐ Mirrors

HARDWARE
- ☐ Batteries
- ☐ Outlet Strips
- ☐ Extension Cords
- ☐ Master Locks

HEALTH & BEAUTY
- ☐ Toothbrushes
- ☐ Toothpaste
- ☐ Mouthwash
- ☐ First Aid
- ☐ Cotton Swabs
- ☐ Pocket-Pack Tissues
- ☐ Hair Accessories
- ☐ Body Wash
- ☐ Comb & Brush Sets
- ☐ Skin Care
- ☐ Shampoo
- ☐ Talcum Powder

SPORTING GOODS
- ☐ Rugged Backpacks
- ☐ Air Beds
- ☐ Sleeping Bags
- ☐ Water Bottles

STATIONERY
- ☐ Computer Paper
- ☐ Writing Paper
- ☐ Notebooks
- ☐ Files
- ☐ Planners
- ☐ Pens & Pencils
- ☐ Highlighters

CLOTHING
- ☐ Khakis
- ☐ Jeans
- ☐ Sweatshirts/Sweatpants
- ☐ Underwear
- ☐ Socks
- ☐ Jackets
- ☐ Sweaters
- ☐ Scarves
- ☐ Gloves
- ☐ PJs

FOOD
- ☐ Multi-Pak Snacks
- ☐ Drinks/Bottled Water
- ☐ Candy

Student Aid, just for UMASS Amherst...

CHECK OUT OUR WEBSITE FOR DIFFERENT SAVINGS EACH WEEK!
www.caldor.com

CALDOR INSTANT COUPON REDEEMABLE THROUGH 10/5/98

10% off EVERYTHING IN THE STORE* EVEN SALE ITEMS!

Redeem only at our Northhampton store
180 North King St., Northampton, MA

*Show your UMASS Amherst student I.D. and this coupon to the cashier before your sale is rung up and receive 10% off your entire purchase. Offer excludes government excise taxes, fees and services and items regulated by law. In fairness to our customers, no adjustments will be made to prior purchases. Coupon may not be reproduced or combined with any other offer.

DISCOVER VISA MasterCard

CALDOR

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 2 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, September 10, 1998

Chalk up win No. 1

Kate Putnam's goal against Northeastern University on Monday afternoon turned out to be the difference in a 1-0 UMass win over the Huskies (see Sports, page 16).

The British are coming

England's Massive Attack comes to Boston next week, while goth rockers Bauhaus came back from the dead at Harborlights (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Essler sentenced to time in prison for UHS fraud

By Jill Carroll
Collegian Staff

On July 2, Glenn R. Essler pleaded guilty to embezzling over $600,000 from University Health Services (UHS).

Essler, 48, formerly of Beverly, was sentenced in Hampden Superior Court to nine to 11 years in state prison for committing several embezzling crimes. The 540 days he was in custody will be put toward the sentence. He will be considered for parole in three years.

Essler was an insurance executive with Somers, Kitchen & Essler Insurance Agency (SKE), used by the University of Massachusetts to manage claims for the University's Supplemental Health Benefits Plan, which paid for off-campus medical care for students.

Through the agency, Essler used three different schemes to embezzle approximately $633,000 from 1990-1994, until an employee of the insurance agency called UHS and warned its Director Bernette Melby, of wrongdoing by the SKE.

"She said 'I think (UHS) has overpaid,'" Melby said.

Turn to HEALTH SERVICES, page 2

Police investigating Sylvan sexual assault

The University of Massachusetts police department responded to a report of sexual assault just after midnight Friday, Sept. 4.

The rape occurred late Thursday night in the woods adjacent to the Sylvan Residential Area, according to UMass Chief of Police John Luippold.

The assailant is described as a Caucasian male, approximately 6-foot-2, 220 lbs. He was unshaven with stubble on his face, according to a public safety alert released by the UMass police.

Police are continuing to work with the victim to develop a composite sketch of the assailant.

Anyone who may have heard or seen anything suspicious in the early morning hours of Sept. 4 is urged to contact the UMass Detective Bureau at 545-0893.

— Lorraine Kennedy

WORLD

Lebanese embassy receives attack threats

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. Embassy in Lebanon warned Americans yesterday to exercise "extreme caution" after it received threats that the compound may be attacked.

Embassy spokeswoman Maha Hamdan said the embassy has been threatened with an attack similar to ones that destroyed U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania on Aug. 7 and killed 258 people. No threats were made against Americans or U.S. companies in Lebanon and no specific information was available on the threats against the embassy compound, the spokeswoman said.

But "U.S. subjects may be in danger and therefore the embassy urges its citizens to exercise extreme caution," she said. Hamdan said stepped-up security around the U.S. Embassy in Beirut was part of routine precautionary measures taken around the world in the wake of the bombings in Africa. Security around the embassy, located in the hilltop Beirut suburb of Aukar, is generally tight.

NATION

Indian casino money could go to poorer tribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is prodding wealthy Indian tribes to give up federal funding in return for promises that aid would be restored if the gambling industry turns sour.

As many as a dozen tribes may return their money, Ron Allen, president of the National Congress of American Indians, said yesterday.

The money is to be redistributed to poor reservations, but the wealthy tribes are small and often receive less than $1 million each.

"They are all small tribes. They're not the big budgets," said Allen, president of the Jamestown S'Klallam tribe in Washington state. He said his tribe can't afford to give up any money. The Senate Appropriations Committee approved legislation in June that would have taken $12 million in federal aid from the richest 10 percent of tribes and given it to the poorest 20 percent. But the sponsor, Sen. Slade Gorton, (R-Wash.), dropped that move in return for the Clinton administration's agreement to come up with a plan by April for redistributing federal aid.

As part of the deal, the Senate approved legislation Tuesday night that would assure tribes they won't have their legal status downgraded if they turn down federal aid.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	day	day
HIGH: 66 LOW: 44	HIGH: 77 LOW: 54	HIGH: 77 LOW: 53

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 14
Comics .....page 15
Crossword .....page 15
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 14
News .....page 1
Sports .....page 16

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Financial aid for UM not always available

By Dan Bodah
Collegian Staff

There is not enough financial aid for University of Massachusetts undergraduates, yet all available funds are not always dispensed.

Students are withdrawn every year because they cannot pay their bills. And some students have expressed frustration with the way Financial Aid Services handles their cases.

Melissa Grant is a junior Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration and Comparative Literature double major at the University. Like 12,500 other undergraduates, she depends on financial aid to afford the costs of attending UMass.

"There's always a problem [with financial aid]," she said. "I had been approved to live off-campus the semester before, but [housing charges] were still put on my bill. It looked like I owed a lot more money than I really did."

When she didn't pay the bill, "They tried to charge me a late fee," she said.

Availability of Financial Aid loans to students

"We typically do not meet full need, because we do not have enough money, but on an average, we'll meet about 90 percent of student need," said Bruce Batty, director of Financial Aid Services.

When a student files a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), the information is used to calculate how much money the student will get the following school year.

Students who don't file by the priority deadline of March 1st can't get as much money as those who do.

"We have limited funds, so it goes on a priority basis to the students who file on time," Batty said.

After a student's need and eligibility are calculated, according to Batty, they still may not be able to get enough money to come to school.

During the 1997-98 academic year, nearly $120 million in aid money was given out to the approximately 12,500 undergraduate students at the University of Massachusetts who received financial aid.

By far the largest source of aid is loans.

"About half is in student loans and parent loans," Batty said. "The other half is a combination of payment for work, federal and state grants, scholarships and other moneys from a variety of sources."

Loans are given by the federal and state governments. The federal government provides $7 million in PELL grants, and pays 70 percent of workstudy salaries. Private donors donate money to endowed scholarships and set the criteria for awarding them. UMass Amherst itself contributes about 11 percent of total aid, close to $11 million, as campus grants, tuition waivers, and other subsidies.

"Financial aid has many masters. We are bound by federal regulations for certain programs, state regulations for others, and local institutional policies," Batty said.

Scholarship availability at UMass

Students can encounter confusion in trying to find available scholarships at UMass, in part because many go unadvertised and have no application procedure. There is also conflicting information about how scholarships are awarded.

While the Admissions office distributes a booklet stating all FAFSA-filers are automatically considered for many endowed scholarships, Batty said, "Those are generally awarded by committee."

Grant said she often gets conflicting messages from different financial aid personnel. According to her, "You just hear so many different things, depending on who you talk to."

Associate Director of Financial Aid Services Ann Peramba administers the 20 to 25 funds controlled by the Financial Aid office.

"I use it more as an emergency or

Turn to FINANCIAL AID, page 2

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

A soggy wait in line

Stacie Gilbert, a freshman elementary education major, waits to get inside of the Textbook Annex yesterday afternoon.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

Artistic decorations

Senior accounting major Beth Seiler checks out the poster sale in the Student Union yesterday afternoon.

Sensible eating wards off freshman 15

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

What is the "freshman 15?" Is it the first 15 days that a freshman must go through to get acquainted with college life? Or maybe it's the $15 dollar limit that freshman can spend before having to call home for more money? Whatever it may mean to you, the expression is well known around the University of Massachusetts and some students will be introduced to it by the end of their first year.

To most, the "freshman 15" refers to the average number of pounds that freshman gain during their first year.

Thousands of new college students nationwide fear gaining those extra pounds. But there is still hope for all those "weighed" down freshmen.

In order to successfully reduce weight, negative eating patterns need to be replaced by positive ones.

For example, by eating slowly while sitting in the dining area, one can reduce overeating due to feeling hungry. By eating quickly, the body is not able to process the food fast enough, and thus an individual can eat more than is necessary for satiety.

Learning to use alternative activities to replace eating when bored, depressed or lonely can give one a sense of control over food. All these behavioral changes restrict calories.

Exercise is very important in weight reduction. Exercise increases muscle tone and decreases body fat. But it doesn't have to mean exhaustive calisthenics, expensive equipment, or extensive jogging. Brisk walking in a good pair of shoes will do just fine.

Crash diets are eating habits individuals want to avoid even though they promise immediate results.

"Most crash diets give little attention to nutritional adequacy and are grossly imbalanced with high protein and low carbohydrates," said a University Health Services official in a press release. Individuals can increase body weight and body fat after quick weight loss diets as lean muscle is used for energy when dieting, and replaced with fat tissue when original eating patterns resume.

Also, according to Arleen Thomson, a University nutritionist, "some students are turning down eating at the dining halls and are turning to handy snacks like candy, chips, and take-out food which is all high in calories and cholesterol." By eating the right kind of diet at the dining halls, freshman can cut down on fat.

The dairy products that the dining commons use consists of lowfat milk, yogurt and cottage cheese. Regular cheeses are made of whole milk.

Thomson also encourages most students to eat more grains as opposed to more meats or desserts. Desserts should be limited to two to three helpings a week. Fat and oils should be used sparingly at all times.

The dining commons offer a wide variety of vegetables and students should be getting 5 or more servings regularly.

By eating healthy meals three times a day, students can help reduce the "freshman 15." For more information or to talk to a nutritionist, call University Health Services at 577-5000.

Honors College to officially open

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

Starting this fall, the University of Massachusetts will officially open its Commonwealth College, also known as the honors college, although it won't be fully functional until this spring.

The new Commonwealth College will allow top ranking undergraduates to study in smaller classes taught by the University faculty as well as expert visiting faculty.

It will be phased in with the Honors Program and future freshman may enter the honors program only through the Commonwealth College. When all current students in the Honors Program graduate, the honors program itself will disolve, leaving only the Commonwealth College.

The College will be funded by the Massachusetts legislature, through the State Board of Higher Education and will replace the current Honors Program. The 1,900 students who participate in the program have met rigorous standards, which include maintaining a grade point average of at least 3.2 and taking a minimum of six academically intensive honors courses before graduating.

Also, students entering the program immediately after high school must have scored at least 1300 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and rank in the top 10 percent of their graduating class.

"Twenty percent of the student body should be interested in being in Commonwealth College, about 2000 students," Deputy Provost, Norman Aitken said.

Although Aitken will not recommend any changes in the current requirements to enter the program, the guidelines will have to be approved and possibly revised by the faculty senate in a future meeting.

Aitken said among the changes in the new Commonwealth College is an emphasis on research.

"Thinking in a research mode is part of undergraduate work," he said. "Students can work in a lab under faculty."

To complement the focus on research work, there will also be an academic theme each year.

"Our plan is to have the college take on a national project bringing in scholars who have expertise in that area," Aitken said. "Students will get engaged in a research project or a creative work [in conjunction with the theme]."

Aitken said there will be some visiting faculty positions including retired UMass professors at the College but the budget will play a substantial factor in those decisions.

Because the college will be focused on research work, Aitken said it will primarily attract students wishing to attend graduate school.

Aitken also said the students wanting to attend the college should be dedicated to academic achievement.

"We want to make it open to anybody who wants to put the extra effort in," Aitken said. "Students really need to make the commitment and put time in."

Commonwealth College students will have the opportunity to live in Orchard Hill, where the University hopes to build academic facilities adjacent to residential halls.

Linda Nolan, director of the Honors Program feels the new college will benefit all University of Massachusetts students.

"Not only will the college enhance the worth of a UMass degree for all University students, it will also bring a number of distinguished visiting faculty to campus, faculty who will teach non-honors as well as honors students," said Nolan in a press release.

■ Health Services

continued from page 1

Melby alerted Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Tom Robinson, who later informed University of Massachusetts Police Chief John Luippold. UMass and its Internal Auditing Department then referred the case to the Attorney General's office. They later uncovered two other methods Essler used to embezzle money from UHS.

"If he did one thing bad it was likely he was embezzling from other sources, so we did a full investigation," said Andrew Lawlor, assistant Attorney General who prosecuted the case with Assistant Attorney General Elisabeth Ditomassi under Attorney General Scott Harshbarger's office.

Essler used the embezzled money to fund the failing insurance agency, his $1,000-a-month, three-bedroom apartment in Beverly and a membership to the Beverly Golf and Tennis Club.

The first scheme officials were aware of, which was exposed by the agency's employee, was an inflation of bills to the University.

The insurance agency was to pay student, doctor and nurse bills, then each month, bill the University for those expenses. Essler took advantage of this by instructing the employee to add $50,000 to the University's bill each month. He accumulated a total of $200,000 using this tactic.

The two additional schemes were discovered through the investigative work of the Attorney General's office, the Department of Revenue and Bob Harrison of the UMass Internal Auditing Department.

"We had to trace where all that money went. SKE had many accounts so it went all over the place," Lawlor said. "We really needed an accountant to follow the money trail."

Through the investigation it was discovered Essler also embezzled $377,000 over the four year period by what Lawlor calls a "shell game."

"They had an escrow account they were shuffling back and forth. They'd take out some of it and then put it back but not as much as they took out," Lawlor said.

It was also revealed that he stole approximately $60,000 by writing fraudulent checks for cash. He had check writing privilege to pay for student's doctor's and nurse's bills.

Essler was arrested in 1995 after the embezzling was discovered but rather than go on trial, he became a fugitive.

"It was brought to trial in October 1996. We got through the first day of trial. He was out on $10,000 bail. Then instead of showing up to court on the second day, he fled to Las Vegas," Lawlor said.

After a six month search combining the efforts of Massachusetts State Police and Las Vegas Police, Essler was apprehended on Jan. 29, 1997 and extradited to Massachusetts, this time without bail.

"He got a new lawyer and was in custody for 14 months. Just before we were going to start the second trial he plead guilty," Lawlor said.

The three scams added up to a multitude of charges against Essler. He was indicted in 1995 by grand juries in Hampshire and Essex counties on 30 counts of larceny over $250, six counts of procurement fraud, four counts of making false claims, one count of forgery, one count of uttering a forged instrument and four tax charges.

Lawlor said the money Essler embezzled was not be recovered.

But, Melby said, students did not see a raise in fees or get denied health care as a result of the scheme because the money Essler stole was in proportions small enough that they were covered by budget leeway.

"All bills were paid," Melby said. "The price of the plan has not gone up."

And Melby said UHS is now taking precautions to prevent the crime from happening again.

"We certainly have a number of safeguards in place," Melby said. "We do annual financial audits as well as claims review."

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

University Health Services, where Glenn R. Essler embezzled $633,000 over the past four years.

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst. 256-0080

■ financial aid

continued from page 1

backup," Peramba said.

According to her, "Most of that endowment money is held for the disaster situation.... Someone from across the office will come over and say, 'I've got this student who's really desperate, can you get me $500?' So I go through my list of 25 and I try to find an endowment that matches their situation."

Peramba said, "I'm not seeing the students as much as someone else, but they [the front desk personnel] come to me." She also said it is possible scholarship money might not be given away if a crisis is not brought to her attention.

"Yeah that would happen. But what happens is it [the scholarship money] just rolls back in and increases the fund."

Peramba sometimes has difficulty giving scholarships away because they have highly restrictive criteria attached. In addition, many of the funds she manages don't provide large amounts of money.

"I have one here, from the class of 1914. $12b a year. I have one here with $229. So I find one student who needs a couple of hundred bucks and I try to help them a little."

UMass as a whole has over 400 scholarships, most of them administered by individual departments. Not all of them are in endowment funds.

"School of Management, for example, goes out to private industry, and will generate money for students, and they don't set up an account for it. When the money comes in they put it in their general School of Management account," Peramba said.

At UMass, scholarships account for about 4.2 percent ($5 million) of total aid. Most of the scholarship money, $3 million, goes for sports scholarships.

In an endowment, only the yearly interest on the fund is given away. This ensures the scholarship will continue to provide money for years.

Student withdrawal from UMass

Many students are withdrawn from UMass because they are unable to pay their bills.

According to the Bursar, Dan Maguffin, it is difficult to say exactly how many students are withdrawn for not paying their bills. "I can't give you a number," he said. "It could be a hundred, it could be a couple of hundred."

"In some cases students use financial as an acceptable way to withdraw, when the reason may be something else," Batty said.

In an effort to curb withdrawlment Maguffin said more late payment cases are receiving individual attention.

"One of the reasons why the numbers [of administrative withdrawals] have decreased in the past couple of years is because we've been taking more time in analyzing the students, and giving a lot of students the benefit of the doubt," he said.

In 1996, Grant said, she was nearly withdrawn in the middle of the semester for "$40 in library fines."

"I would appreciate financial aid realizing that they hold your education in their hands, and their helpfulness or consistency in handling what's going on makes all the difference. There's really not much you can do as a student except keep your own work in order and hope that everything will be fine on their end," Grant said.

But while fewer students have to leave school from administrative withdrawl, late notification of receiving finanacial aid has worried some students, including Grant.

Grant said she found out whether she'd get enough financial aid this semester at the late in the summer.

"So it's like the 26th of August and I have no idea if I'm even going to be able to afford to go to school."

Grant was selected for verification. The verification process and paperwork delayed the aid process.

"When we sent the paperwork in in July, apparently there was some stuff missing. But I didn't know they didn't have my verification stuff until the end of July, which is when we sent the last batch of stuff, overnight mail. I went into their offices [at the end of August] and they were like 'Oh, we just got it.'"

The Collegian now has openings at the diversity desk for Multicultural Affairs, GLBT Issues and Developing Nations editors. There is also a position available for a night editor on Thursday nights. All applicants should have good writing, editing and grammar skills.
If interested, please contact Victoria Groves, Managing Editor, in the Collegian newsroom or at 545-1809.

We're looking for writers and we want you!

The News Department is looking for reporters for various beats including, Amherst/Hadley, Five Colleges and Faculty Administration.
Come down to the Collegian this week and apply for a News Associate position or just get your feet wet writing an article or two as a Collegian Correspondent.
It'll give your resume a boost and it's a great way to get involved.
Ask for Jill Carroll for more information

TEXTBOOK RECEIPTS=REBATES
GET A 5% REBATE ON THE NEW BOOKS YOU PURCHASE SAVE YOUR RECEIPTS

RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH MONDAY SEPTEMBER 21, 1998.

Beginning TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1998 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.

The schedule may be obtained from the registrars office in Whitmore do not wait for them to mail.

New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.
Any incorrect titles purchased after TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase. Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.
Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21.

UNIVERSITY STORE AMHERST
Textbook Annex
www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex
www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

University Store • Textbook Annex
SAVE YOUR RECEIPT

Our Refund Policy
If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within 7 calendar days of the first day of classes. Thereafter, incorrect titles may be returned within 48 hours of purchase providing the book is new and unmarked.

1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the month of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule obtained from the Registrar. Any new books must be unmarked.

2. Keep your receipt(s). Refunds on textbooks cannot be made unless the sales receipt(s) accompanies the book.

3. Always have your current I.D. available. This is required for any refund transaction.

The return of unsold books to the publisher begins seven weeks after the beginning of the semester. After the seventh week you might not be able to purchase the books you need.

textbook annex
Fall '98 Schedule

We accept cash, personal check, Ucard, Visa, and MasterCard as forms of payment.

We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.

buyback
FIRST WEEK - Sept. 8-11
Tuesday - Friday 9am - 5pm
SECOND WEEK - Sept. 14 -18
Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm
Monday - Friday, 9am-4pm at the Textbook Annex, beginning September 21, 1998

annex rush
Fall 1998 Book Rush Hours
First Week - Sept. 6 - 12
Thursday Sept. 10 9am - 9pm
Friday Sept. 11 9am - 6pm
Saturday Sept. 12 11am - 5pm
Second Week Sept. 14 - 18
Monday - Friday 9am - 6pm
Third Week
Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm
Normal Hours
Monday - Friday 9am - 4pm

BRIAN MCDERMOTT/ COLLEGIAN

A little to the left. . .
John DiMaria surveys the land around Memorial Hall yesterday afternoon.

Advocates of race–based admissions write book

By Robert Greene
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Racial preferences at top colleges and universities have helped black Americans get ahead, according to a new book by two former presidents of Ivy League institutions. The experience benefitted graduates even though many had lower grades or admissions test scores and did less well academically than white students, according to the study by Derek Bok, former president of Harvard University, and William G. Bowen, former president of Princeton University.

The book, published by Princeton University Press, is being released in the midst of intellectual and legal challenges to affirmative action in higher education. The University of California system and Texas state universities have already abandoned preferences, and the University of Michigan's policies are being challenged in court.

Critics argue that the policies deny opportunity to qualified white and Asian students and cause distress for lesser-qualified students who find it difficult to keep up, causing many to drop out.

But the authors, advocates of race-based admissions policies, said their analysis of records from 45,000 students of all races proved that such policies worked. The study tracked the performance and attitudes of those students, who entered 28 selective colleges in either 1976 or 1989.

"Rather than having been overwhelmed, they clearly appear to have benefited from having gone to these very select schools," Bowen said in a telephone interview from New York.

The 75 percent graduation rate among blacks at those institutions was higher than that for all black college students—40 percent. It was also higher than the overall 59 percent rate for white students, but lower than for whites at the more select institutions—86 percent.

The authors reported that black graduates of the select schools were slightly more likely than whites to obtain professional degrees in law, business and medicine "even though they had, on average, lower test scores and grades."

Black men with bachelor's degrees from those institutions earned an average of $85,000 in 1995, which is 84 percent higher than the average for all black men with bachelor's degrees. Black women who graduated from the institutions earned an average of $65,000, higher by 71 percent than what other black women with bachelor's degrees earned.

The study estimates that without affirmative action, the percentage of blacks entering selective institutions would have fallen from 7.1 to between two and 3.5. Because the numbers of white applicants are so large, a drop in black enrollments would have increased the probability of admission for white applicants only from 25 percent to 26.5 percent.

But Roger Clegg, general counsel for the Center for Equal Opportunity, a group opposed to affirmative action, said the numbers appear to show that too much emphasis is given to race when the academic records of the minority applicants are considered. The black students who entered the selectcolleges in 1989 averaged 2.61 on a 4-point grade scale, compared with 3.15 for whites. Blacks who scored between 1250 and 1299 on the SAT had about a 75 percent chance of being admitted to a smaller group of colleges studied in detail, compared with about a 25 percent chance for white students with the same scores.

Race "is not just a tie breaker" for equally qualified students, Clegg said. "It's a very heavy weight on the scales."

Report states Marines inadequately trained in Texas

By Eduardo Montes
Associated Press

EL PASO, Texas — Marines involved in the killing of a teenage goatherd during an anti-drug patrol along the Mexican border were not adequately trained for an armed operation among civilians, the military concluded in an internal report.

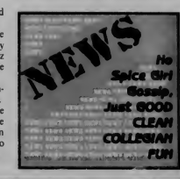
In the harshest official criticism of the operation yet released, the report also said Marine commanders did not do enough to prevent the encounter that ended in the shooting death of 18-year-old Esequiel Hernandez Jr.

The mission "appears to have been viewed at every level of Marine Corps command as more of a training opportunity than a real world deployment," wrote retired Marine Maj. Gen. John T. Coyne, who investigated the shooting.

The report was obtained through the Freedom of Information Act by the San Antonio Current, a weekly newspaper, and by Common Sense for Drug Policy, a nonprofit group in Falls Church, Virginia.

"The whole sense of the report was that the military should not be involved in domestic law enforcement," said Kevin Zeese, president of Common Sense for Drug Policy. "They are not prepared for it. They're not trained for it. They're inappropriate for it." The Marine Corps submitted an internal response, also released under the Freedom of Information Act, in which it disputed Coyne's conclusions.

Hernandez was killed May 20, 1997, while herding goats along the Rio Grande near Redford, 200 miles southeast of El Paso.



The military said that he fired his .22-caliber rifle twice at members of Marine patrol assigned to guard against smuggling along the border, and that he had raised the weapon to fire a third time when Cpl. Clemente Banuelos shot him once with an M-16 rifle. Relatives said that Hernandez would never knowingly have shot at anyone and that he carried the rifle solely to protect his livestock from wild dogs and to shoot targets.

Military patrols along the border were suspended after the shooting.

No criminal or military disciplinary charges were filed against the Marines, and they were cleared by both state and federal grand juries. The Hernandez family received a $1 million settlement from the government.

Coyne said the Marines did not get enough training on the appropriate use of force among civilians.

He also said mission commander Capt. Lance McDaniel, who was in contact with the Marine patrol by radio from a command center more than 60 miles away, was too passive in deferring to Banuelos' judgment.

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst. 256-0080

ATTENTION ALUMNI OF

The National Young Leaders Conference
Washington, DC

-or-

The National Youth Leadership Forums
on Law, Medicine or Defense

If you are a freshman or sophomore there is a prestigious on-campus leadership opportunity we have been asked to discuss with you.

Please call....1-800-781-7185
no later than
September 17

and ask to speak with one of the program co-founders:
Barbara or Richard

PUT THE CAMPUS
UCard
The convenient & easy way to buy at Umass
No more . . .
• Checks,
• Cash
• or Change
OPEN AN ACCOUNT TODAY!
Cash, Check or Credit Card Accepted
Opening week only
Campus Center Concourse
10 a.m. - 3:30 p.m., W-F
Sept. 9-11
Year round
UCard Offce, Frankin Dining Hall
8:30 a.m. - 7 p.m. Wed - Thurs., Opening Week
8:30 - 5:00 p.m., M-F
academic year schedule
For more info. call 545-0197

-- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian --

Long day's journey...

"I turned away from my fellow travelers, for whom I'd now grown a dull loathing, and saw the weeping face of the cashier."

Daniel Lanigan

It could have been any day, but it was the 15th of August, in Dublin, Ireland. After two months abroad in Ireland and England, I was going home. I woke early and packed slowly, savoring each moment, strapping on my pack for the final time.

I stepped outside into the cool, damp morning kicking off the thick weariness that had grown in me from travelling. I saw shopkeepers preparing for a busy day, neon "open" signs welcoming patrons, children carrying sacks of newspapers to their neighbors' doors. I wondered how people, despite being from different nations and cultures, all have concerns that bind them together as humans.

Although I was going home, life here would move on, without notice. Days earlier I had read with horror the news of the bombings in Africa that struck at the vulnerable heart of my homeland, sending our country into a momentary state of grief. President Clinton took a break from defending himself against accusations of sexual improprieties and spoke for the nation, vowing to find these "inhuman terrorists."

Given our seeming immunity to worldly atrocities, I wondered how we would react to an attack that was based on a hatred for our nation. I wondered if it, like so many foreign policy issues, would get lost behind home runs and Monica Lewinsky headlines.

After a lengthy delay, we flew out of Dublin, landing in Shannon to pick up more travelers, where we were told we'd be delayed. At this, I went to the cafeteria for lunch while disgruntled passengers all around me began grumbling. While in line I noticed, in the back of the kitchen, an older woman consoling a girl that looked about my age, her eyes full of tears.

I stood transfixed by her grief. In all my going–home elation, someone around me was upset. I wanted to share with her some joy, tell her that whatever it was, it couldn't be that bad. I was wrong.

The people in the line around me grumbled louder. A man, who also looked stricken with grief, approached the troubled girl to whisper something in her ear. In a moment she solemnly walked back to her cashier spot. Seeing this, the people in line grew quiet, carefully avoiding eye contact with her. They paid for their meal and moved on. Her movements were mechanical as she took our tourist money, peering blankly down, giving us our change. The staff carried on with their work in the kitchen.

I sat down with my lunch. In a corner, a small group of airport employees huddled around a television, many of them clinging tightly to each other. Around them sat travellers, listening to walkmans, reading books, and calling concerned parents. Stepping closer to the television, I saw scenes of carnage and chaos: bloodied people being carried out of rubble, stone–faced eyes of terror, a man on his knees weeping over a woman that lay mutilated below him. The close–captioned words moved across the bottom of the screen in small white letters: "Today in Omagh, a car bomb exploded near a shopping center, killing 28 and injuring over 200..."

I looked around, and saw two kids playing cards, a sleeping father, a baby crying for its fallen pacifier; saw the cashier's fingers dancing slowly along the keys of her register. The sound of the intercom broke my focus, announcing the imminent boarding of our plane. A small cheer went up. People put away walkmans, and finished their last sips of beer.

Within minutes, we were over the Atlantic, soon to be an ocean away from these "troubles." For most, I thought, a world away.

The report said the explosion was heard for miles. I wondered if it would stretch its ravaging sound to me, or whether it would be drowned out by the constant churning of turbine engines going to all corners of the world. I thought of how safe I felt going home, how comfortable I'd be sleeping in familiar beds, sitting in cozy coffee shops, how tomorrow I would read the newspaper and it would tell me all about this bombing that had happened only moments ago, only a few miles away.

I thought of how when sitting, reading, sleeping, I, and those around me, did not have to worry about whether or not it was safe to go outside, or if my freedom would be challenged. I thought of the girl whose country's pride told her to keep working, how dignified she held herself in the face of what might render others inconsolable.

Upon landing in Boston, we sat for another hour. A weary father began harassing a flight attendant. People all around me consoled each other, saying how, after so many delays, they'd never been so poorly treated by an airline, how they'd never fly this charter again, how the food was bad, the seats too small. Over the intercom the captain apologized for our newest delay, saying "our priority is getting everyone to their destinations alive." People mocked him, and the fervor of angry chatter grew louder.

I turned away from my fellow travelers, for whom I'd now grown a dull loathing, and looked out my window seeing over and over the weeping face of the cashier. I wondered if the complaining people around me could ever understand what that girl, and Ireland, was feeling in the wake of the seemingly never ending violence that has for so long attempted to dismantle hopes for peace that those of my nation have for so long taken for granted. Peace that I too, have taken for granted.

We taxied into our gate. The plane erupted with cheers and applause. As people got their bags from overhead compartments, strangers shook hands, apparently happy for the camaraderie born out of such mutual misery. I sat in my seat, seeing her face again, and choked back tears.

Daniel Lanigan is a UMass student.

Highway to hell

"Let me get something off my chest that my mother and I both agree on (which is rare)."

Joe Savitch

Ever wonder why every other driver on the road wants to run you off because you can't seem to go fast enough? Ever wonder why, when you're in a rush, traffic won't move? Ever wonder why columnists go off on these tangents?

This summer after taking numerous road trips I reflected on every time a driver did something outrageously stupid or blatantly illegal. Most of the time it was memorable because they did something to almost end my life, which was entirely my fault, of course.

Let me get something off my chest that my mother and I both agree on (which is rare). There are four lanes on a highway — the first lane is for exiting and entering the road. The second lane is for medium speed travel, otherwise known as the speed limit. The third lane is for above average speed travel, 65–70 mph. I should never be in the third lane doing 80 because other drivers want to go 65. The fourth lane is the high speed lane, the one the state troopers use to pass everybody.

This is the lane I love because it's supposed to be the fastest. Yeah — I know it's a funny joke. The state troopers use it to pass but nobody will get out of their way until they are right up their tail pipe. Nobody gets out of my way... they're all out to get me.

Speaking of state troopers, which is where we are going. When people see a police car their first reaction is to slam on the brakes — even if they are going 55.

So you tap your brakes and I tap mine, then the guy behind me, and so on and so forth until traffic comes to a grinding halt. This is known as a shock wave. I have friends with way too much time on their hands (believe me), who placed a video camera on a bridge along Route 93 in Boston. One of them drove past the camera and tapped the brakes. They timed it. Seven minutes until a complete stop of all traffic.

So you think a cop is waiting to get you? That's right, he is — on the other side of the road with his radar gun pointed in the wrong direction, but go ahead, slam on those breaks anyway. Hey wait, I have a better idea. That same cop is outside his car with his back to you but he is probably calling one of his buddies to pull you over — just you, not the car speeding past you.

Until the other day I thought I had seen it all. Yup, I was wrong. Driving to work on Interstate 91, I saw a guy on the other side of the road in a pick–up truck being pulled over by a state trooper.

Now, when I think of police cars the first make that I think of is Crown Victoria. That would be the standard in the 90s, wouldn't it? I have heard of California police driving sports cars but I thought that was one of those rumors on Hard Copy. Wrong. This trooper was driving a brand new 1999 Ford Camaro — fire engine red.

No way this can be fair. Sure, the Camaro isn't the best car out there, but man, the cops are driving among us, bouncing along when — bam! The awesome car that just passed you doing over 90 mph is pulling you over because you're doing about that. It just isn't fair!

That brings me to another point– Have you ever noticed the license plates of different drivers in front of you? Now, not to make any hasty generalizations, but some states' drivers drive differently, if you get my drift.

New Hampshire drivers go 10 miles under the speed limit no matter where. Vermont drivers are pretty much the same. Maine drivers usually don't feel like making any decisions, so they bounce along at their pace going where they please. New York drivers are always in a rush.

Rhode Island — I don't think I have seen a Rhode Island plate in a long time — do they drive in Rhode Island? Massachusetts drivers would rather run you off the road than signal to get in. After bashing you around maybe then they might signal and say "Let me in now, dammit!"

There aren't any drivers who look at signs except for the one for their exit coming up in a quarter of a mile. This means it's jam–on–the–brake–cut–off–everyone–and–squeal–the–tires–around–the–corner time, just to make it off the road.

If more people just paid attention to what they did, there would be fewer accidents. I know nobody will, but it's food for thought.

Joe Savitch is a Collegian columnist.

Crusading drag queens

"Drag queens are fun to have around."

Elsa Allen

It's around 10 at night, my roommate and I are trekking to a bar, when before our very eyes there appears to be something the likes of which I have never seen. A man, at least 6–foot–6, wearing stiletto heels, a miniskirt, tube top and bright red wig, is heading toward us. With a huge grin spreading across his heavily made–up face, he stretches his hand toward me and gives me a condom.

Thus, we are introduced to a new and rather effective way of promoting safe sex. How could one possibly refuse an offer made by such a person? As a result, I smile and graciously accept his gift, then I watch him move on to the next person.

Soon everyone in town is sufficiently stocked with a hearty supply of condoms. They begin to pop up everywhere. The drag queens blanket the town on a nightly basis, ensuring that everyone, gay and straight, will be practicing safe sex. What an ingenious solution to a problem that is plaguing our society.

My home has always been rather unconventional. A small spit of land at the very tip of Cape Cod, it has long been a haven for, shall we say, "alternative people." It began with the artists, then it was the hippies; now it has become a popular vacation destination for gay men and women. Summer vacationers come with the intentions of spring–break–style partying, for a week or so, before they have to return to their normal lives where they are usually unable to express themselves as freely as they might like.

So you see, the condom idea is a good one. With so many people drinking and behaving somewhat recklessly, it's good to see that someone is promoting safety without condemning a person's behavior. It shows that someone out there has realized that debating issues, like condom distribution in schools and public service messages, doesn't really work.

To help stop the spread of AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases, someone has to start doing something. By providing a partial solution with such a lighthearted approach, it makes everyone feel a little more comfortable.

My friends and I can now spend our spare hours comparing our vast collections of condoms. At parties, there are bowls teeming with condoms that have been collected from the drag queens. In every pants pocket, every purse, every coat there are condoms to be found.

This might not be a bad idea to implement on campus. I'm sure the drag queens will need to find winter employment when the streets of this seasonal Cape Cod town are barren, with not a soul to give a condom.

They certainly draw more attention than a table on the Campus Center Concourse. They could work at fraternity parties, visit the bars, stand guard in the Campus Center and blanket the dorms, all the while making sure that each student has a sufficient supply of condoms. It would make the campus safer for all of us. Besides, drag queens are fun to have around.

Fast–forwarding about a week or so, my roommate and I have now amassed a large condom collection. We are sitting at the aforementioned bar and my mother has joined us for a cocktail with some of her friends from out of town. Another man posed as woman, decked out in peacock blue, enters the bar with little notice from any of the patrons, but we know why he's there. He greets our table with a smile as he places a condom in front of each of us. I blush at the thought of a drag queen passing out condoms to my mother and her friends, but everyone laughs and we continue our conversation with little interruption.

The next morning I rise to greet the day and notice a new addition to our coffee table. Displayed prominently in the candy dish is a handful of condoms. When my friends come over and see it, they don't think my mom is a lunatic, as might be the case in other towns. They simply shrug and comment that the drag queens must have gotten to just about everyone in town. And it makes me feel good to know that, however unconventional it may be, my town is doing something to help make this world a better place by supplying its residents and visitors alike with as many condoms as they can carry.

Elsa Allen is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

On–campus cable laughable

To the editor:

As I returned to campus housing just a few days ago I was disappointed to see the new HSCN (Housing Services Cable Network) channel line–up for this fall 1998 semester. Instead of adding more quality channels, quality channels have been removed.

No more CNN and Headline News, and ESPN is now only a far–fetched dream. Housing Services officials should consider allowing the local cable provider in Amherst, MediaOne, to offer cable service to on–campus residents.

University of Connecticut has long adopted this system, which saves the school money and gives students the choice of programming available to the local community. The Housing budget for cable service could in turn be used to subsidize the cable fees which students would have to pay for their particular choice of channels.

Why should UMass put so much money into upgrading and maintaining its own cable television network, which will never be able to provide all the quality and costly channels available to everyone else that has cable?

Let MediaOne do it. Students and families living on–campus should have the same choices for their cable television service as those living off–campus. UConn does it, and so should we.

Roque A. Vianna Sylvan

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.

Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words long, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes. They may be submitted by mail to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst MA 01003; by email to letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu; or by fax to (413) 545–1592.

The Collegian reserves the right to edit letters for length, clarity and style.

Prospective and returning writers:

There will be a meeting on Monday, Sept. 14 for anyone interested in writing for the Ed/Op section this semester. It will be held at 7 p.m. in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center Basement. Please bring a writing sample 600–800 words long. If you have any questions or concerns, feel free to call Mike at 545–1491.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor–in–Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Meher Singh Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Dylan Larke Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co–Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co–Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Puppas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley–Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri–Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Bauhaus' Boston bash a smash

Goth–rock barons reuinte with the "Resurrection '98" tour

By Kevin Monahan
Collegian Staff

BAUHAUS
Harborlights Pavilion
Sept. 5

BOSTON—Since their demise in 1983, British goth rock vanguards Bauhaus have become more popular than they were in their prime. The recognition that they received after the group had disbanded left two generations of Bauhaus fans, only one of which had the opportunity to see the band perform live. That is, until now. With the "Resurrection '98" tour, Bauhaus is back to entertain a new legion of fans as well as those who followed the band during their short, four year lifespan.

After a long wait, with no opening act guitarist Daniel Ash, bassist David J, and drummer Kevin Haskins appeared through a cloud of dense fog. Lead vocalist Peter Murphy's image on a video screen took center stage as they performed "Double Dare." With his vampirish looks, Murphy appeared in the flesh for "In the Flat Field." Murphy and company sent chills through the audience with "God In an Alcove" and the stark lighting of "Hollow Hills" which featured several light bulbs dangling from overhead, turning on and off sequentially. The funky bassline and raucous guitars of "Kick In the Eye" left no one in the audience standing still.

Bauhaus has often been criticized for on–stage excess. They are said to be guilty of glamming and hamming things up. This was obviously before the unspeakable horrors of Marilyn Manson blemished the music scene. Bauhaus' theatrics are quite a spectacle, featuring beautiful sets and lighting, projections, and outlandish costumes and make–up. And, whereas most stage performers would change offstage, Murphy had stagehands hold up a black curtain for his costume changes. The band went on to play "She's In Parties," "The Sanity Assassin" among others before closing with "Dark Entries." Bauhaus returned for three encores which included "Telegram Sam," their version of David Bowie's "Ziggy Stardust" and a cover of Iggy Pop's "The Passenger." It was obvious that they were having fun. Especially when Haskins stepped out from behind his drumkit to play keyboards as Murphy, J, Ash and Haskins stood side by side to play a requested song, because "We Love Our Audience." Returning for their final song in 1930's horror film costumes (which included Peter Murphy in a long black cloak), "Bela Lugosi's Dead" carried with it all of the brooding intensity that made the song a classic.

Although the band members have found success in their later projects (Tones on Tail, Love and Rockets) they return on stage as Bauhaus to the applause that they deserve. They are one of the most famous goth rock acts and nobody did it better. Bauhaus is undead.

Attacking the bay
Massive Attack stops in Boston this Monday, September 14.

Rehaul in store for Bezanson Recital Hall

By Emily Trask
Collegian Staff

The UMass Department of Music & Dance recently announced that due to the generous support of alumni, faculty, staff, parents, friends and community members, the $300,000 goal for the Bezanson Recital Hall Renovation Fund has been successfully pledged.

The department believes that the success of the drive was due in great part to the dollar–for–dollar matching challenge grant, which was announced by Chancellor David Scott at the Department's 30th anniversary celebration on January 31, 1998. According to the press release, the Chancellor's challenge "served as a great source of inspiration for many donors and doubled the gifts and pledges received.

The $300,000 goal was reached by July 1, Chancellor Scott's deadline for the end of the challenge.

"We are profoundly grateful to all who participated in this effort to raise funds to renovate Bezanson Recital Hall," said Ernest May, Chair of the Department. "I am moved by the number and generosity of our donors—living locally, regionally, nationally and half way across the globe—who rallied in such a short period of time to help us gather enough money to make the needed changes in the Hall. My sincere thanks go to the members of the Committee— Amherst residents: Dorothy Crawford, Chair, Elaine Bowditch, UMass Faculty members: Estela Olevsky and Paulina Stark, as well as Senator Stanley Rosenberg and Representative Ellen Storey. We are all indebted to Marilyn Kushick, Director of Public Relations and Development for the Department of Music & Dance, for the extraordinary job she did in designing and implementing the fundraising campaign."

As of right now, the Department is currently awaiting payment on pledges. Once payment is received the University will release matching funds fort he renovation project and the $300,000 total will be realized.

For the past 22 years, Bezanson Recital Hall has provided a venue for countless concerts and has also served as a lecture hall.

Because of its constant use, the University is committed to the successful completion of the renovation of Bezanson Recital Hall in the shortest time frame which is practical. The University has already placed in motion the process by which architects, acoustitians and the University's own Facilities Planning Division are being involved in the project. Renovations are scheduled to include acoustic isolation from outside noise, acoustically appropriate wood panelling on the side walls of the Hall, new seating, improved lighting, a new stage floor and a new lobby. It is anticipated that actual renovations will begin in June, 1999 after the last class and concert of the 1998–99 season take place.

Need something to do?

Arts & Living is always welcoming new writers. No experience necessary. Come to a new writers meeting this Tuesday, September 15, at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center Basement or call Bryan at 545–1361.

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO–KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256–0060

The one book you'll need through all 4 years of college.

Open a Fleet Self Service Checking Account and get summers free.

There are all kinds of books you'll need for college. This is the one you need to pay for them – and lots of other things. The Fleet Self Service Checking Account. We know you probably don't have tons of money, so the monthly fee is low and we charge no monthly fee for the summer. We require only a $50 initial deposit with no minimum balance. Plus, you get 20 checks per statement period, unlimited electronic access, conveniently located ATMs and more. And it's easy to open one. Just call 1–800–CALL–FLEET (1–800–225–5353). Or visit our website at www.fleet.com.

Fleet
Ready When You Are

www.fleet.com

Low Monthly Fee
No Minimum Balance Requirement
Unlimited No–fee Electronic Access
Web Banking and Free PC Banking*
Over 2400 Fleet24 ATMs in 13 states

*A one–time shipping and handling fee of $9.95 applies. Ready When You Are is a service mark and Fleet is a registered mark of Fleet Financial Group Inc. Fleet Bank is a Member FDIC. ©1998 Fleet Financial Group, Inc. All rights reserved.

Dynamic Marches falls short

Hexum's book relies too much on shock-value

By Mike Messaros
Collegian Staff

Dynamic Marches
by Hexum
Winchester/ G. Ander Books

When I get a book and I see a disclaimer on the front that says "The illegal (U.S.) activities described in this work are in no way endorsed by Winchester/ G. Ander Books," I would be lying if I said my interest is not piqued.

Unfortunately, Dynamic Marches leaves one disappointed. Instead of some great, sleazy fiction in the vein of Richard Price or James Ellroy, the book seems to take itself self consciously, with it's pathetic characters and disgusting (sexual, for the most part) situations. It seems to be saying "I shouldn't be writing like this. Aren't I bad?" These vile situations seem to exist only as a test of the author's bad taste. There is no redeeming quality to the people that inhabit these seven stories.

The book's seven stories feature a few of the same characters, such as Charlotte, the disgustingly obese daughter of a wealthy businessman, and John, another fat person, who after finally wooing his muse, ends up losing control of his bowels (that's the best way I can say it in a family paper) all over her. I'm not sure if that's illegal in the United States, but it isn't going to get you a second date. Or so I've been told.

But what's the point? We cannot like these characters at all, not with all the gory details Hexum provides us with. It seems that Hexum wants to recreate a John Waters movie for the page, except without the humor. You want to feel for Charlotte as she gets used by the Governor of New Jersey's daughter in the last two stories, but when the end rolls around, and Hexum breaks out an ending reminiscent of the movie Kids in sheer loveless disgust, you're more disgusted at Charlotte and her pathetic needs for love and fulfillment. She's so childlike in her naivite it's unbearable.

Scenes are played for bizarre laughs that never come. When John gazes at an airbrushed masterpiece on the side of a van depicting the Civil War, we're supposed to laugh at the white-trashiness of it all. "Oh, these people are so trashy," is what we're supposed to think, but I could care less about John, and I could care about his date and her wacky family that only wants to get a ride to Taco Bell. Easy targets, each and every one. He may as well have thrown a Clinton joke in there.

I'll give Hexum this: he writes smoothly, but in a writing program, I'm-going-to-get-published sort of way. In no way was this book hard to read; it was a breeze, in fact. It was just that I felt like I was in peer review. "Uh, E., maybe you shouldn't go for such a Bukowski thing here. Just write about your girlfriend or something." Hexum wants so badly to become on of the big boys of sleaze fiction, but the shock wears off once you realize his stories are based on the shock, not on the characters or the randomness of it. C-

COURTESY BOB MARTINAS

Avoid the rush
Chris Tucker and Jackie Chan join forces in the action/comedy Rush Hour, coming to theaters Friday, September 18.

Attention All New and Returning Writers:

There will be a introductory meeting for all those interested in writing for Arts & Living on Thursday, September 15, at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center Basement. For more information, call 545-1361 and ask for Bryan McAllister, Arts & Living Editor.

"5 reasons why you should take my GRE course."

-John Katzman, Founder & President of The Princeton Review

1. Class time that counts — We spend more time in class to make sure we cover the test exhaustively. You won't have to spend hours working on your own. Class size is limited to 15.
2. You'll score more... — Our students improve an average of 212 points on the GRE.
3. If you knew the CAT — No one knows the computer adaptive tests better than we do. So, whether you choose the pencil & paper or CAT format, you'll review powerful techniques to maximize your score.
4. We're on campus! — The Princeton Review was chosen to administer all test-preparation programs for the UMASS Division of Continuing Education. No traveling, no hassle.
5. Satisfaction guaranteed — If you complete the course, take the GRE and are not satisfied with your score, we'll work with you again for up to one year, at no fee.

413/584-6849
www.review.com
THE PRINCETON REVIEW

Fall course enrollment has begun!

ARE YOU READY TO BE A PRO?

Why do you need to know Pro/ENGINEER® ?

- Earn more money!
- High industry demand!

Over 15,000 companies use this software worldwide, including: BMW, Toyota, Hyundai, Honeywell, Lockheed Martin, Siemens, Komatsu, Rubbermaid, Motorola and more!

The Pro/ENGINEER® Student Collection Featuring PT/Modeler™, PT/Render™, and PT/Library™2.0
ISBN 0-201-35642-2

Distributed by Addison Wesley Longman

SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE: $199

Computers & E.T.C.™ Electronics

Conveniently located in University Store

THE BIGGEST BACK TO SCHOOL POSTER SALE

1000's of Choices

Incredible Selection

Where: STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
When: Mon. Sept. 7 thru Fri. Sept. 11
Time: 9 AM - 4:30 PM
Sponsor: WMUA 91.1 FM

CHECK OUT OUR GREAT POSTERS AND PRICES!!

MOST IMAGES ONLY $6, $7 AND $8

J.CREW

WAREHOUSE SALE

Fashions from the pages of the J.CREW catalog discounted up to 70%

September 15-18, 9am-9pm

Free Admission
Open to the Public

Mullins Center
University of Massachussetts at Amherst
Commonwealth Avenue
Amherst, MA 01003

We accept VISA, MasterCard, American Express, J.Crew credit cards, cash and personal checks (with proper identification).

Directions: From South: Springfield, Hartford, or New York. Take I-91N or I-84W to Hartford. I-91N through Springfield to Exit 19 (Rt. 9 Northampton). Right turn onto Rt. 9. Left turn onto Rt. 116N to first exit (UMASS). From North: Greenfield, Vermont, New Hampshire. Take I-91S to Rt. 116S, Amherst/Whately exit. From the left, bear right onto Rt. 116S to UMASS exit. Left onto campus from exit ramp.

~ ART GALLERIES ~

Hampshire College — Main Gallery. Currently on display: Archives and Archetypes, a retrospective exhibition of photographs by Barbara Norfleet. Gallery hours are Monday–Friday, 10:30 a.m–4:30 p.m; Sunday, 2–5 p.m. Call the gallery at 559-5544.

Jones Library — Burnett Gallery. Now on display are paintings and drawings by Bonita McLaughlin. Hours are Monday–Saturday, 9 a.m.–5:30 p.m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays until 9:30 p.m.

Mount Holyoke College — Art Museum. American Modernism, Roy R. Neuberger's collection, is now on display. Hours are Tuesday–Friday, 11 a.m.–5 p.m; Saturday– Sunday, 1–5 p.m. Call 538–2245.

Mount Holyoke College — Art Museum. The exhibition On the Nature of Landscape is now on display. Hours are Tuesday–Friday, 11 a.m.–5 p.m; Saturday–Sunday, 1–5 p.m. Call 538–2245.

University of Massachusetts — Wheeler Gallery. An interactive installation called On a scale from one to one will be on display starting September 17. Hours are Monday–Thursday, 4–8 p.m., Sunday 2–5 p.m. Call 545-0680 for more information.

University of Massachusetts — 125A Herter Hall. Annual Foundations Exhibit. Hours are Monday–Friday, 11 a.m.–4 p.m. Saturday–Sunday 1–4 p.m. Call 545-0976.

–compiled by Bryan McAllister

Houston R&B group Destiny's Child finds fame with first major album

By Pauline Arrillaga
Associated Press

HOUSTON — There's a particular tidbit that record producer Mathew Knowles likes to mention when pitching his fast-rising rhythm and blues group Destiny's Child.

The four girls who form the Houston-based ensemble have performed more than Mariah Carey and Whitney Houston combined, Knowles boasts, and they are only 16 and 17 years old.

He offers this nugget not only to impress but to show that the group's success is due to more than just destiny.

"They're not where they are by luck," Knowles says. "The success is because the group has already developed. It's all old fat to them."

Belting out soulful ballads and hip-hop dance tunes might well be old hat, but fame is a new fringe benefit that these ladies have welcomed with the enthusiasm of teen-agers and the humility of professionals.

The group's self-titled debut album, released in February, has gone gold after selling almost 1 million copies worldwide. The first single, "No, No, No," is double platinum with some 2 million copies sold.

Destiny's Child also has been featured on soundtracks for the films "Men in Black" and "Why Do Fools Fall in Love."

"It's a trip, but it's a blessing," 16-year-old Beyonce Knowles, Mathew's daughter and the lead singer of Destiny's Child, says of the group's success.

Rounding out the quartet are LaTavia Roberson, also 16, Kelly Rowland and LeToya Luckett, both 17.

The group got its start about seven years ago when Beyonce and LaTavia, then 9, joined a singing and dancing group called Girls Tyme.

With its hip-hop songs and bubble-gum lyrics, Girls Tyme performed at birthday parties, talent competitions and clubs from Houston to Dallas. The group even recorded an album but had no luck in landing a record deal.

Then in 1992, Girls Tyme got its first big break when it won an appearance on the televised talent competition "Star Search." But the group was placed in the rap category and performed its only rap song – not its best. The girls lost to a rock band.

"We did not win," recalls Beyonce, "but that was the turning point in our career."

After the disappointing loss, Beyonce's father started managing the group and set out to change its image. The dancers were scrapped. LeToya and Kelly came aboard, and the girls began honing their vocal skills.

During the summers, they received voice lessons and rehearsed daily. Once school started, they rehearsed at night and performed on weekends. At the end of their ninth-grade year, they quit school and hired tutors.

"Everybody else was outside playing, and we were working. But we still played," says Kelly. "We had to make up our own games, but we made sure we had fun."

All the while, the girls continued recording songs and hunting for a record deal.

Their luck finally changed after a representative from Columbia Records saw the group perform at a Houston expo. Afterward, they were invited to perform in a showcase of up-and-coming stars and, in 1996, Columbia signed them to its label.

After two years in the studio, the album "Destiny's Child" was released.

John Moran, owner of Digital Services Recording in Houston, likens the group's deal with Columbia to a baseball player "coming out of high school and going directly to the major leagues." "It's impressive that they were signed directly to Columbia," said Moran, whose studio was used by Destiny's Child to record its early material.

Also impressive is the lineup of stars who pitched in on the album. Wyclef Jean of the rap group the Fugees collaborated with the girls on "No, No, No." Dwayne Wiggins of the rhythm and blues group Tony, Toni, Tone produced several tracks, as did Vincent Herbert, who has produced hits for Toni Braxton.

With its studio backing and talent, Destiny's Child is destined for big things, says Moran, who describes the quartet as the young Supremes. The group also could help expand the image of Houston's music scene, known more for its rap artists.

"There is an intangible quality that is evident in most people who can be described as stars – presence. They have that," Moran says. "And the girls themselves work very, very hard and have been doing so for many, many years. That is the major key."

TAIZÉ

Sunday mornings, 11am
at the Ark
Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass

PRAYER • CHANT • SILENCE

Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass
758 North Pleasant Street

(2 doors north of Lederle Tower)
Phone: 549-5929 for more information

American Heart Association.
Fighting Heart Disease and Stroke

If this is the only pressure you check, your tires may outlast you.

Checking your tire pressure is a good idea. Checking your blood pressure is an even better one. High blood pressure greatly increases your risk of heart attack and stroke. And those are harder to deal with than a flat tire. To learn more, contact your nearest American Heart Association at 1-800-AHA-USA1 or online at http://www.amhrt.org

This space provided as a public service ©1992, 1998, American Heart Association

A&E

Need something to do?

Arts & Living is always welcoming new writers. No experience necessary. Come to a new writers meeting this Tuesday, September 15, at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center Basement or call Bryan at 545-1361.

Attention All New and Returning Writers:

There will be a introductory meeting for all those interested in writing for Arts & Living on Thursday, September 15, at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center Basement. For more information, call 545-1361 and ask for Bryan McAllister, Arts & Living Editor.

Eric Bibb shows off his Good Stuff

New release provides soulful mix of blues, gospel and rock and roll

With his soulful vocals and nimble finger-picking, Eric Bibb was named Best Newcomer in the British Blues awards, and his recent release on Earthbeat, entitled Good Stuff lives up to the accolade.

The native New Yorker teams with his backing group, Needed Time, to provide an eclectic mix of blues, gospel, and a small slice of rock 'n roll which is underlined fully by what the blues is about — soul.

Characterized by soulful but not overbearing vocals and outstanding finger-picking, the title track, "Good Stuff," opens the CD as a quirky downhome ditty that describes the recording perfectly. The whole thing is good stuff.

"Saucer 'n' Cup" shows Bibb's quiet power in a sentimental ode to his woman, again showing off his proficiency on the strings with a nice little solo. They go together like saucer 'n' cup.

The third track, "Shingle by Shingle," is one of the highlights of the album, as Bibb shows his gospel side with determined, hopeful lyrics. He is subtlely inspirational, downplaying the music (though the musicianship is quietly outstanding), and singing in a way that seems to suggest he is confiding in the listener.

Jazz/Blues Weekly

The gospel sound continues to a greater extent on "Where the Green Grass Grows," which features a solemn organ intro and a background chorus there to add emphasis to Bibb's spiritual lyrics. The guitar on this track sounds a lot like Clapton's on "Running on Faith" — just close your eyes and nod knowingly to this one.

"Too Much Whiskey" reverts back to the more secular blues tradition of singing about overindulgence, and then repenting. Showcasing some great work on the banjo and moaning the refrain: "Yes it's time to pray for peace of mind," this may be the one track for the sinner looking for salvation.

After having incorporated harmonicas, banjos, and background singers on the earlier songs, Bibb and Needed Time extend themselves even further on "All of My Love." Not to be confused with the Led Zeppelin song of the same title, this track is highlighted by accordion accompaniment which hints of Zydeco music retrieved from the streets of the French Quarter and delivered straight to the listener at home.

Bibb sings "I feel like I got to travel on," on the traditional, "Done Laid Around," and the walking banjo emphasizes this traveling feel. He does just that as the CD comes to a close shortly after.

The use of varied, seemingly unrelated instruments (accordion, banjos, harmonica, snare drums, cow bells, etc.) tied in with Bibb's evangelical vocals and spry guitar playing helps the recording to build with each track. It makes for music that not only sounds good, but lifts the soul.

Joe Sullivan is a Collegian columnist.

Affordable
Jewelry Natural Fiber Scarves
Blouses Skirts Dresses
Cards Earrings India Print Bedspreads T-Shirts
Posters Candles Incense Chinese Shoes
Rings Bracelets Chains Sweaters Dresses Area Rugs Socks Leather Sole Baskets Paper Lampshades Mugs
Sale 20 to 50% off selected Clothing
The Mercantile GreatGifts Visa / MC Th.Fri.9PM Sun 12-5 Daily 10-6
Amherst-Carriage Shops Northampton-108 Main St.

Welcome back... NOW GO AWAY!
Change for Lots Great Deals
Nice people
travel accessories and backpacks sold here! European railpasses and international student ID cards issued on the spot!
Council Travel
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange
44 Main St., Amherst
(413) 256-1261
www.counciltravel.com

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

IN SHAPE NUTRITION
NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA
Exercise & Nutrition Programs Available
Great Products, Great Prices, Great Service!
20%-50% OFF RETAIL PRICES EVERYDAY
Walking Distance 549-7434

Wedding singer wears pads

Adam Sandler tries his hand at football in the upcoming hit comedy, The Waterboy.

Minutemart
GRAND OPENING SPECIALS
Sale ends Saturday, September 12. Some specials may be continued at UStore's option.
UMASS Laundry Bags $10 Reg. $12.99
Excedrin 24 pack Extra Strength Tablets Aspirin Free Caplets Migraine Caplets/Tablets $2.99 Regularly up to $3.99
Always Plus Thin Maxi 20pk $2.99 Reg. $3.99
PantenePro-V All Varieties $2.99 Regularly up to $4.19
Right Guard All Varieties $2.29 Regularly up to $3.29
RENU by Bausch & Lomb Multi-Purpose Fluid 12oz. $5.99 Reg. $7.99
Arm & Hammer Dental Care All Varieties, 4.5oz. $2.29 Regularly up to $3.39
SPECIAL HOURS
9am to 7pm
Tonight
Thursday, Sept. 10
In the Campus Center 413-545-2619
Open 9-5 Daily. Saturdays 11-4.
The New University Store
Not like a mall... Better.

This kid's got a record!
...his grades.
Pablo knew in a couple of years he would be ready for college. He also knew it would be tough to afford. He even thought about dealing drugs to pay for it. Fortunately for Pablo, two community policing officers took him under their wing. They steered him to counselors and programs that could help him pay for college. Now the only record he'll have is his grades.
LESS CRIME IS NO ACCIDENT
It takes you — and programs that work.
Call 1-800-WE PREVENT, and we'll send you a free booklet on how you can support programs in your community that keep kids away from crime and crime away from kids.
1-800-WE PREVENT www.weprevent.org
Ad Council
TAKE A BITE OUT OF CRIME

An SGA update on Course and Teacher Evaluations...

September 3, 1998

Dear Students,

During August many of you received a letter from us explaining our attempt to gain access for students to course and teacher evaluations. This letter is to update you.

As you may recall, last spring the SGA proposed that a standard evaluation form be used in every class on campus and that the results of the evaluations be made available to students on a web page. It would enable you to find out what other students thought about a specific course and teacher. This service would allow you to get information by the course and/or by the instructor.

The campus administration agreed with the proposal and brought it to the faculty union for consideration in their contract negotiations. Then the administration and the faculty union decided to postpone the discussion until after the contract was settled. We objected. We felt that if the discussions happened outside the union contract negotiations there would be no incentive for the faculty union to negotiate on the issue.

During the month of August the SGA met twice with Governor Cellucci's staff to ask them not to approve the faculty union contract until this access to course and teacher evaluations is provided. We asked you and your family to call the Governor's office and ask for his support. As of today the Governor has not yet approved the contract.

The faculty union and the administration have agreed to form a task force with the SGA to negotiate on the issue. We expect this task force to convene in the next few weeks.

In the meantime, please stay tuned. We'll be posting new information as it becomes available in the Collegian and on our web page www.umass.edu/rso/sga. We're hopeful that the faculty union will work diligently with us to provide this much-needed access to course and teacher information.

We'll be in touch. And thanks for your support!

The SGA Leadership

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Watch out for those Wolverines

Brooke Bartlett (left) and Tarah Tokarchik (right) will lead the Massachusetts women's soccer team into Ann Arbor, Mich. this weekend to take on UM and Evansville.

Write for sports

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

FREE DRAWING
Weekend Getaway
Season Pass
Lift Tickets

13th ANNUAL TENT SALE

COMPETITIVE EDGE Ski & Bike Outlet

GRAND OPENING in East Longmeadow Columbus Weekend October 10-11-12

SAVE 40-80% on all Leftover Equipment
Purchase SHAPED SKIS at LOWEST PRICE of the Season

SKIS — Salomon, Atomic Ski, Elan, Olin Skis, Volkl
Selection of LEFTOVER SKIS Retail to $400 ... NOW $49 - $99

SKI ACCESSORIES — Reflex Composite SKI POLES List $89 SALE $29
Swiss Bobs - Sled $29 — BOOT SKIS $69 — Combi Rear Mount Bike & Ski Rack $90 — $29
BIG FOOT 50% off like
Select SKI & GEAR BAGS Large Selection 50% off List
LEATHER RACING GLOVES Reg $40 SALE $24
97 CARRERA & OAKLEY SKI GOGGLES includes lens-world cup and OTG's 50% off List

BOOTS — TECNICA Lange San Marco Salomon DOLOMITE

EXAMPLE	List	SALE
Dolomite Cybex 4	$400	$189
Dolomite Cybex 3	$350	$149
Dolomite VX	$475	$199
Koflach LC3	$275	$99
Dalbello MX39	$290	$99
Dalbello TX 807	$425	$169
Tecnica Garanx	$325	$125
Salomon Evolution	$325	$149
Lange X09	$575	$287
Lange GX9	$585	$292
JUNIOR	$400	$199
San Marco RE	$170	$49
2+3 Buckle Boot	$160	$59
Dalbello RF	$125	$59
96 Lange Race Jr	$230	$89

PACKAGES — JR SEASONAL LEASE PKGS. — RESERVE NOW! — NEW $109 — USED $79
Junior ELAN SKI TYROLIA BINDINGS POLES CUSTOM MOUNTING $139.00
Junior SHAPE PACKAGE ELAN SKI SALOMON BINDINGS ELAN POLES CUSTOM MOUNTING $169.00
RECREATIONAL/INT Men's & Womens Models ELAN PSX PC SALOMON BINDINGS ELAN POLES CUSTOM MOUNTING List $650 $259.00
RECREATIONAL/INT K2 EC5 or Reflex SKI Marker M27V Reflex Poles CUSTOM MOUNTING $289.00
All Mountain/Mogul ELAN MBA Oversize MARKER BINDINGS SCOTT POLES CUSTOM MOUNTING List $825 $299.00
INTERMEDIATE ADVANCED ATOMIC Metron 8 MARKER BINDINGS SCOTT POLES CUSTOM MOUNTING $389.00
INT/EXPERT SHAPE K2 Four SKI SALOMON BINDINGS $499.00
RACE PACKAGE K2 ATOMIC SL or RS MARKER BINDINGS List $950 $399.00

CLOTHING — HUNDREDS of PARKAS and SUITS to choose from
'97 PARKAS THE NORTH FACE 40% OFF LIST INCLUDING STEEP TECH GEAR AND EXTREME
'97 SPYDER-PHENIX COULOIR-NIKE ACG COLUMBIA-OBERMEYER 50% and CB OFF RETAIL PARKAS-SUITS PANTS & FLEECE
Black Diamond FLEECE VESTS MANY COLORS TO CHOOSE FROM retail $49.99 $29.99
MEN'S SCHNEIDER SHELLS List $175 $29.99
GS SUITS BY DESCENTE-SPYDER LOUIS GARNEAU Starting at $139.00
One Piece Suits STARTING AT $49
KIDS '97 Phenix Obermeyer Columbia PARKAS-SUITS FLEECE 50% off
Goretex Side-Zip Pants Retail $225 $99.00
BINDINGS — Salomon-Marker Tyrolia-Atomic ALL '97 MODELS 30-50% off EXAMPLE: Marker M51 Selective Control WAS $390 $169.00

BIKES — Specialized-Gary Fisher-K2-Raleigh-PRO FLEX EVERY MOUNTAIN-ROAD-CROSS-HYBRID LOWEST PRICES on all IN STOCK MODELS

EXAMPLE	List	SALE
PRO FLEX 1997 Model 957	$3000	$1499
1998 Model K2	30% OFF	RETAIL
SPECIALIZED Grump A1	$699	$459
MO (18")	$999	$789
1999 RALEIGH M20 Q1 spd	NOW $199

LEFTOVER KHS MODELS 50% OFF RETAIL

IN-LINE — ROLLERBLADE-OXYGEN-K2-ROCES TECNICA....Fitness & Agressive Models
LOWEST PRICES 50% off List

EXAMPLE	List	SALE
97 OXYGEN-K2 ROLLERBLADE OXYGEN XE 1.1	$215	$99
OXYGEN 3.1	$149	$79
K2 Flight 76	$219	$159
K2 Power	$279	$199

COMPETITIVE EDGE Ski & Bike Outlet
377½ Russell Rd. HADLEY 585-8833
500 Northampton St. HOLYOKE 538-7662
SPECIAL SALE HOURS
Thursday, September 10th - Sunday, September 13th
Thurs & Fri 10-8, Sat 10-6, Sun 12-6
Season's Pass $179 before 12/7/98 Phone: 413-848-2860

TOTAL FITNESS WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139 ★Student Special★ 4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE • LIFEROWER • CRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

DEPARTMENT OF GERMANIC LANGUAGES & LITERATURES
OPEN CLASSES
510 Herter Hall 545-2350

All German Language Courses, Elementary To Advanced

All German Literature Courses Taught In German

The following General-Interest Courses (Taught In English)

German 297A	Crusades and The Image of Islam MWF 12:20
German 591A	Poetics of Colonialism TuTh 2:30-3:45
Dutch 110	Elementary Dutch TuTh 11:15-12:30
Swedish 391A	Swedish Literature (Taught in Swedish) MWF 1:25

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
part-time study for people of all ages
FALL 1998

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE
- Nearly 100 credit courses - in the evening! Including:
  Intro to Arts Management
  Public Speaking
  Environmental Health Sciences
  Corporation Finance
  Interpreters' Studies
  Intro to Public Relations
  Human Resource Management
  Energy Healing In Nursing Practice
  Online Course: Sioux Families of the Pine Ridge Reservation
- Opportunities to enroll in University day courses
- Part-time degree programs, both graduate and undergraduate
  Bachelor of General Studies
  Master's in Library and Information Studies
  M.S. in Labor Studies
  Master of Music Education
  M.S. in Plant & Soil Sciences
  Master's in Education
  MBA Professional Program
  RN to BS in Nursing
  Master of Public Health

Classes begin September 14
For a free course catalog, call 413-545-0107 or e-mail continue@admin.umass.edu
www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated course information
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Amherst
a quality education at an affordable price

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Dowhtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring "Bush and Bushlight" $10." 30/pk
Meridian Cab. Savignon Chardinay $7.99
Sam Adams "White Ale & American Collection" $8."
GENUINE DRAFT $9.99 cse bots GENUINE LIGHT
Guinness "Pub cans" 4/pk $4."
Your Choice! Catamount Mill City $9.95
Smutty Nose Pete's, all flavors mix/match two 6/pks....
Vodka 80° $8.99 1.75 lt
Cider Jack $4.99 6 pk
Check Out Russell's Indoor Wine Specials!
• Delivery Available • OPEN 9:00AM to 11:00PM • Visa/Mastercard • All Beers Plus Deposit •

Pats' rookie Edwards may make fans forget about Curtis Martin

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — New England Patriots rookie running back Robert Edwards had his first test. And he passed, rushing for 50 yards on 13 carries in the team's 27-21 loss to Denver on Monday night.

But Edwards himself will be the first to tell you — or the second, after coach Pete Carroll — that it was just one game in a long season of games. A test? Call it a quiz.

The yardage total wasn't the most impressive thing about Edwards' performance; it was the short gains — a 1-yard run for a touchdown, a 2-yard gain on 3rd-and-1; a 3-yard pickup on 2nd-and-2. That's what a coach looks for in a back, to get the job done.

Edwards was drafted by the Patriots with their first of two first-round draft choices this year. The pick came from the New York Jets along with a third-round pick as compensation for the loss of restricted free agent Curtis Martin.

A pop quiz for Carroll: When will Edwards get his chance to make everyone forget Martin? This Sunday's home opener against Indianapolis, perhaps?

Yesterday, Carroll wouldn't say who Sunday night's big back would be. Or even if there would be a big back. He hinted that he might again have Edwards split time with Sedrick Shaw, who gained 25 yards on seven carries against the Broncos.

"Like I said, we will wait until tomorrow," Carroll said of the decision on Edwards' workload. "I like the way he played. I like the way Sedrick [Shaw] played as well."

In other words, the tryout isn't over yet. That's OK with Edwards. He's not ready to play every down.

"I haven't gotten to that point yet," Edwards said on his way out of Foxboro Stadium yesterday. "I'm still working on that. I'm emphasizing that in practice this week, building up my endurance. I was kind of winded out there" at Mile High Stadium, where winded is par.

But believe it or not, the team's top draft pick said it doesn't matter whether he's the team's top running back.

"That's really not the most important thing to me right now," Edwards said. "What's important to me is just helping the team the best I can. We've got tremendous backs, and we're going to work together to make the team productive in the running game."

"We want to start something here," Edwards said of Foxboro Stadium. "We don't want to lose at home. We want to make this a really tough place to play for opponents."

Sosa homerless in return to the Windy City

CHICAGO (AP) — Sammy Sosa returned to Wrigley Field. His power stroke didn't.

"I can't do it every day," Sosa said after going homerless for the fourth straight game as the Chicago Cubs beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 yesterday.

"Right now they are not giving me much to hit," Sosa said. "They're pitching me really well."

With 16 games left, Sosa's chances of catching his rival and newest best buddy Mark McGwire grow slimmer.

"I got to keep playing the way I'm supposed, no matter what," Sosa said. "If I catch him fine. If I don't, I want to go to the playoffs and that's what counts for me. I'm not thinking about passing Mark McGwire. The season ends Sept. 27 and Mark will go home. I want to go to the playoffs."

Sosa said the emotions of Tuesday night, when he witnessed McGwire's historic 62nd homer, were still with him.

"I almost cried," Sosa said, describing the joy he felt. "I didn't cry because I'm a tough guy."

Sosa went 0-for-3 with a walk and has gone four games without a homer for the first time since Aug. 11-15.

WELCOME BACK TO THE LOWEST PRICES IN TOWN!
LIQUORS 44 Don't Drink and Drive

Coors & Coors LIGHT 30 PACK CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS $15.49 + DEP
BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT 30 PACK CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS $10.49 + DEP
MILLER GENUINE DRAFT & GENUINE DRAFT LIGHT CASE 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES $9.99 + DEP
CIDER JACK 6 PK. BOTTLES $4.99
NATURAL LIGHT & NATURAL ICE CASE OF 2-12 PK. CANS $8.49 + DEP.
MOLSON GOLDEN ICE / LIGHT CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES $13.49 + DEP.
MAGIC HAT 6 PK. BOTTLES ALL FLAVORS $5.99 + DEP.
SPATEN OKTOBERFEST 6 PK. BOTTLES $5.99 + DEP.
NATURAL LIGHT & ICE ½ BARRELS $33.99 + DEP.
½ KEGS ROLLING ROCK, ICEHOUSE, RED DOG $36.99 + DEP.
½ KEGS BUD, BUD LT., BUD ICE, MICH., MICH. LT., AMBER BOCK, LITE, COORS LIGHT $39.99 + DEP.

WINE OF THE MONTH
Mystic Cliffs CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750ML $5.99
FRANZIA 5 LT BAG-IN-A-BOX BLUSH, CHABLIS, WHITE GRENACHE, CUVEE BLANC, FRENCH COLOMBARD, CHILLABLE RED, RHINE, WHITE ZINFANDEL RED
BERINGER WHITE ZINFANDEL 750ML $3.99
INGLENOOK VINEYARDS ESTATES CELLARS 1.5L CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON $6.99
RENE JUNOT BLUSH, WHITE 1.5L $5.99
ARBOR MIST EXOTIC FRUIT WHITE ZINFANDEL, PEACH CHARDONNAY, STRAWBERRY WHITE ZINFANDEL 750ML $2.99
MERIDIAN CHARDONNAY 750ML $7.99
JACK DANIELS COUNTRY COCKTAILS 4 PACK $3.69

GORDONS VODKA 1.75L $12.99
BACARDI RUM LIGHT & DARK 1.75L $15.49
NEW KAHLÚA 1.75L $13.49
READY-TO-DRINK CHILLERS MUDSLIDE, BUSHWACKER, MAHUACONO
POLAND SPRINGS GIN 1.75L $9.99
Captain Morgan SPICED RUM 1.75L $18.49
JENKINS VODKA 1.75L $8.99
DEWARS WHITE LABEL SCOTCH 750ML $15.99
GIRO TEQUILA WHITE & GOLD 1.0L $6.99
SOUTHERN COMFORT 1.75L SALE $16.49 MAIL-IN REBATE -3.00 FINAL COST $13.49

Discounts Available on Cases of Wine & Liquor. Ask For Details.
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY 253-9344 NORTHAMPTON 586-3007 HOLYOKE 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 9/10/98 THRU WEDS. 9/16/98
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THAT'S US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS: CARDIO KICKBOXING, YOGA, REEBOK BENCH, LOW IMPACT
BEST MACHINES: PRECOR ELLIPTICALS, TREADMILLS • BIKES, RECUMBENTS, STAIRMASTERS
BEST PRICES: 1 MO.....$49, 3 MO.....$129, 6 MOS.....$229, 12 MO.....$389
Big Enough to Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 West St. On Bus Route www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

Five College Self-Instructional Language Program
102 BARTLETT HALL 545-3453
www.umass.edu/fclrc
Czech Serbo-Croatian Hindi Swahili
Modern Greek Thai Hungarian Turkish
Indonesian Urdu Norwegian
ELEMENTARY LANGUAGES COURSES FOR UMASS UNDERGRADUATES.
CONTACT THE PROGRAM BY SEPT. 14 FOR FALL 1998 ENROLLMENT.
(THESE COURSES DO NOT MEET THE LANGUAGE REQUIREMENT.)
Native Speakers of these languages interested in working as conversation partners for the program please contact us for an application form.

CHECK OUT A GREAT CLASS!
GOTTA BE A PEER EDUCATOR
While there is still room!!
Peer Health Educators...
...learn about cool stuff
...teach workshops in the residence halls and Greek area.
...give out condoms and other goodies at the Campus Center and special events.
...enhance their own self-knowledge.
...make new friends.
...MAKE A DIFFERENCE!
PEER HEALTH EDUCATION I & II
COMUNITY HEALTH EDUCATION/EDUCATION 213/214
6 Credits - 2 Semester Commitment Required -
Class time: Tuesdays 2:30 - 5:00 pm
For more information call Lauri Turkovsky at 577-5181.

$25.00 CASH BACK
For details, click on www.ti.com/calc/02offer
Put some bite in your TI-92 with the TI-92 Plus Module.
Only the TI-92 offers powerful functionality with features such as dropdown menus, split screen mode, symbolic manipulation with pretty print, 3D graphing, and text editor.
Adding the TI-92 Plus Module takes all that capability to a whole new level. Plug it in to your TI-92 and get:
• Over 500K more memory.
• Electronic upgradability.
• Advanced Mathematics Software including differential equations solving, 3D graph rotations, more linear algebra, an interactive numeric solver, constants, and unit conversions.
You can buy the TI-92 at your college bookstore or local retailer. The TI-92 Plus Module can be purchased from our on line accessory store, or by calling 1-800-TI-CARES.
TEXAS INSTRUMENTS

McGwire bashes No. 62, breaks Maris' HR record

Record-breaking blast has profound effect worldwide

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The baseball that Mark McGwire hit for his 62nd home run finally landed yesterday right where he said it belonged — in the Hall of Fame.

And the ball, which was autographed by McGwire and dated "9-8-98," had plenty of company when it was transported down Main Street in a state police sport utility vehicle.

Accompanying it were McGwire's brown, flamed-treated Rawlings bat, with his signature just above the label; his bat, uniform, size 13 cleats and batting gloves; the uniform his batboy son Matt was wearing; and the official scorecard of the game kept by Jack Buck, who noted the home run with a jubilant "62!"

"This is like Christmas," said Hall of Fame president Don Marr, who put on a pair of white gloves to hold the bat aloft for cameras to record the historic moment. "We knew Mark McGwire was going to be generous, but we didn't know it would be so spontaneous, in the heat of the celebration."

More than 200 people awaited the arrival of the artifacts and broke out into a chorus of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" just before the cache arrived.

"All right! 62! 62! 62!" they shouted in unison as the items were carried inside the Hall of Fame. "Show us the bat!" That will have to wait until 11 a.m. today, when a display — "The March on Maris" — will be unveiled in the main lobby. The exhibit will be there at least one year, said exhibits curator Ted Spencer.

Also part of the bonanza of artifacts was the black Rawlings bat Sammy Sosa of the Chicago Cubs was using when he hit his 57th home run of the season. That drive broke Hack Wilson's Cubs record, which had stood as the National League record until McGwire and Sosa came along.

"This is a particularly monumental day for the Hall of Fame," Marr said. "This speaks volumes about baseball players. They're our greatest supporters. Both players could not have been more generous. Fortunately, the ball was retrieved and given to Mark. We found that refreshing."

A photo of Babe Ruth giving his farewell address at Yankees Stadium just before his death a half-century ago hung on a wall to the left of Marr, making the moment that much more poignant.

Mark McGwire has said these artifacts belong here," said Marr, who slept with them Tuesday night just to make sure. "He's a man of his word. It was a spontaneous reaction by McGwire in the locker room. We didn't expect to be coming home with this."

Marr and two of his colleagues at the Hall of Fame traveled to St. Louis on Tuesday carrying the bat that Roger Maris used to hit his 61st home run in 1961, the drive that broke Ruth's hallowed mark of 60, set in 1927.

Marr said the idea was to share the memory with McGwire, Sosa and the Maris family, also in attendance at Busch Stadium since the weekend.

"They were really touched by the bat," Marr said. "We told Sammy it was the same size, weight and length. He really got excited, ran out, and brought in the bat he hit No. 57 with. Mark took Maris' bat, rubbed his chest with it, and said, 'Roger, you're with me today.'"

Marr said the home run race has affected attendance at the Hall of Fame, which had declined after the baseball strike in 1994. In 1998, attendance has been up each month for the first time since the strike, he said.

"I've been in baseball for over 20 years," Marr said. "It's the most exciting moment of my career."

Big Mac isn't the only one having fun in 1998

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Perhaps it's fitting that Mark McGwire's most measly home run of the year turned out to be one of the most meaningful hits in baseball history.

Because all along, it's been a season of extremes.

McGwire hitting 62. Kerry Wood striking out 20.

The New York Yankees hoping to become the winningest team ever, the Florida Marlins finishing the worst fall for a World Series champion.

Juan Gonzalez trying to run up the biggest RBI count since 1938, Greg Maddux and Roger Clemens aiming at a record fifth Cy Young Award.

"It's been an exciting year," McGwire said, "and it's not over."

Indeed, so many treats in an expansion season that started with so many expectations — high and low. And with 2 1/2 weeks left, there's plenty worth watching before the playoffs begin.

Even though he won the race to break Roger Maris' 37-year-old record, McGwire's chase to be the 1998 home run king is not over. Sammy Sosa stands at 58 and could catch up, though he's not counting on it.

"Everybody knows that 62 was the mark and he has it," said Sosa, whose Chicago Cubs are in the wild-card hunt. "I think now everything is probably going to cool off."

The Yankees, though, show no signs of stopping. Already assured a playoff spot, they're on a pace to top the AL win record of 111 by the 1954 Cleveland Indians and might break the major league mark of 116 by the 1906 Chicago Cubs.

"Our guys know what's out there," Yankees manager Joe Torre said.

No such luck for the Marlins. Decimated during the winter and further dismantled in midseason, Florida probably will finish with the worst record in the majors, behind the first-year Arizona Diamondbacks and Tampa Bay Devil Rays.

The Marlins have made history, too, but not the kind manager Jim Leyland wanted. They're guaranteed of the worst record for a World Series champion, sinking far below the 74-88 mark by the 1991 Cincinnati Reds after their title.

In fact, at 48-97 through Tuesday, the Marlins could become the first team in the majors to lose 110 games since San Diego and Montreal did it in their first seasons of 1969.

As often happens, numbers zoom during expansion.

Gonzalez proved that, rapidly piled up RBIs in the first half and going into the All-Star break with 101. He slowed a bit since, yet at 149 through Tuesday, the Texas star remains on a pace to finish with the most in the majors since Jimmie Foxx drove in 175 runs in 1938.

Ken Griffey Jr. recently hit his 50th home run, marking the first time three players have reached the plateau in the same season. Greg Vaughn and Albert Belle could soon join them. McGwire, by the way, may set another record by not swinging in St. Louis' final 18 games. He went into yesterday at Cincinnati with 149 walks — the major league record is 170 by Babe Ruth in 1923 and the NL mark is 151 by Barry Bonds in 1996.

Not all pitchers have struggled to find the plate, however. Clemens and Maddux are in contention to win another Cy Young, while Wood and David Wells provided the top individual performances.

Wells pitched the 13th perfect game in modern history and came close to throwing another one for the Yankees. Wood, a Cubs rookie, tied Clemens' big league record by striking out 20 in a game against Houston.

Still, the biggest number for most fans this season is 62. And no one will have trouble remembering the date McGwire hit it — 9-8-98.

No. 62 has worldwide impact

NEW YORK (AP) — Japan's prime minister called him a "superman." A newspaper in Nicaragua said he "entered heaven." Mark McGwire's record homer was indeed a shot heard 'round the world.

From Central America to Japan, fans were transfixed by home run No. 62 in St. Louis on Tuesday night.

The Japanese responded to McGwire's home run with front-page newspaper stories and a congratulatory telegram from Prime Minister Keizo Obuchi.

"You have brightened up the world, which needed good news. Let me wish you continued success in your play," read the telegram from Obuchi, a baseball player in his youth.

In Nicaragua, the daily La Prensa greeted the feat by saying "McGwire entered into heaven." Vice President Enrique Bolanos said the first thing discussed at a government meeting was McGwire's home run.

Even bastions of baseball apathy found the moment hard to ignore.

Italians, who normally care little about baseball, awakened to a full-page spread on McGwire in the country's major sports daily, La Gazzetta dello Sport.

In most European countries, where the home run chase has received scant attention, McGwire's record came too late in the night to make it into most of yesterday's newspapers.

FUTONS AND FRAMES STARTING AT $156

L.A. Wood

Futons, CD racks, computer desks, tables & chairs and much more

FREE LOCAL DELIVERY
259-1100
LA Wood INC 401 Main St Amherst

KARA VAUTOUR / COLLEGIAN

The Big Mac attack continues

Mark McGwire, the new single-season record holder for home runs, will bring his traveling road show to Houston this weekend to take on Randy Johnson and the Astros.

JOIN QPE Today!

- Need to add a class?
- Do you like to give workshops?
- Are you creative and enegetic?
- Are you committed to educating others about health and wellness issues?
- How about hosting safer sex parties?
- Want to make a difference for you and your peers?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, call QPE Lauri today at 7-5252 or e-mail - lauri@educ.umass.edu.
1, 2, or 3 credit independent studies are available.
Open to all 5-college students.

Queer Peer Education

EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER OPEN HOUSE
September, 14, 1998
12:00-7:00 Open House
4pm-7pm Reception and Entertainment
Refreshments
WILDER HALL ground floor
ALL WELCOME
Information: 545-0883 V/TTY
*snow date Feb. 26 1998

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

UMass Student Legal Services Office
FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students! 545-1995
CALL TODAY!
922 CAMPUS CENTER

Planning to observe
ROSH HASHANAH and YOM KIPPUR?

Make sure to
NOTIFY INSTRUCTORS WELL IN ADVANCE IF YOU WILL MISS CLASSES.

If you experience any difficulties, please contact the department head, or call the Ombuds Office at 545-0867.

The coupons in today's insert are dated to expire on September 8th. Klein's will honor the coupon regardless of the date that appears on it.

KLEIN'S ALL★SPORTS

Atlanta's 3-2 loss marks eighth defeat in 10 Brave games

MONTREAL (AP) — Tom Glavine didn't mince words after another late-inning loss.

"The way we're playing right now, if the playoffs start tomorrow, we're not going to win," he said.

Chris Widger hit a leadoff homer in the ninth inning last night, leading the Montreal Expos over Atlanta 3-2 and sending the Braves to their eighth loss in 10 games.

Atlanta has lost five of six on its road trip, including losses to the Mets on eighth-inning homers at New York on Saturday and Monday.

Coupled with Houston's 6-2 victory over Milwaukee, the loss dropped Atlanta one game behind the Astros for the NL's best record.

"I don't think it's a question of guys not playing hard, but I think we could certainly play with a little more enthusiasm, a little more fire, instead of playing like the season's going to last two more days and let's hurry up and get into the playoffs," Glavine said.

Widger connected off John Rocker (1-3) for his 15th homer of the season as the Expos, who are 35 games behind the NL-East leading Braves, won for the fourth time in their last five.

"It doesn't matter if you're 40 back or 40 in front, you've got to go out and play the same," Widger said.

Ugueth Urbina (5-3) struck out three straight batters in the ninth as the Expos won for the fourth time in five games.

Vladimir Guerrero went 2-for-4 with a double, as did Atlanta's Chipper Jones. Glavine failed in his bid to become the NL's first 19-game winner, allowing two runs and four hits in six innings. "We've got enough veteran guys in here that ought to realize what's going on around here," Glavine said. "I think we all realize we need to play better and we've just got to go out there and do it."

Andruw Jones, who was limited to a single after homering in his previous four games, made two nice defensive plays in center field. He threw out Widger at the plate in the second inning for his major league-leading 18th outfield assist and made a diving catch of Widger's sinking liner with two on and one out in the fourth.

Trailing 2-0 in the seventh, Atlanta tied the game with a pair of unearned runs. Ryan Klesko walked leading off, and Javy Lopez and Andruw Jones hit consecutive singles off Dustin Hermanson. Michael Tucker then hit a chopper to first baseman Ryan McGuire, whose throw home bounced before the plate and pulled catcher Widger's foot off the plate for an error as Klesko scored.

"We had a tough play at the plate," Widger said. "He [home plate umpire C.B. Bucknor] said I came off the plate. I didn't think I did but he's the ump and you've got to live with the calls."

Greg Colbrunn, pinch-hitting for Glavine, popped out to short and Ozzie Guillen followed with a sacrifice fly.

"It's just a shame when you get that kind of play," Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said about losing, despite Jones' defensive efforts.

"He saved a run at home plate, he saved a run with one of the greatest catches you'll ever want to see — at least one run — then we've got our chance to go way ahead with the bases loaded and no outs and we end up getting one run."

Montreal went ahead in the fifth on Wilton Guerrero's run-scoring triple and F.P. Santangelo's RBI single.

Hermanson gave up two unearned runs and six hits in seven innings and has allowed only one earned run in his last three starts, covering 21 2/3 innings. He struck out six and walked one.

University Health Services
Mental Health Groups Fall '98

MONDAY
Coed Self Exploration Group
(for Undergraduate Students)
In this group members will be able to address their relationships such as: friendship; intimacy; family issues; work and school, etc. Members may join this group at any point in the school year (as space permits).
Monday, 1:00 - 2:30 p.m.

Supporting Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Identities
Exploring such issues as coming out, building community dating relationships, family of origin and stress management.
Monday, 3:45 - 5:00 p.m.

TUESDAY
On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself.
Tuesday, 1:00 - 2:30 p.m.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress.
Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

WEDNESDAY
Adult Children of Dysfunctional Families
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMass students.
Wednesday, 3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

Groups are conducted by Mental Health Division staff. Group sessions are covered under UHS Basic Health Plan and Kaiser pre-paid plan. Groups require an initial screening which can be arranged by calling 545-2337 or by stopping by at 127 Hills North Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m. For further information refer to the Mental Health web site at www.umass.edu/uhs/mentalhealth

THURSDAY
Women's Self-Exploration Group
(For older undergraduates, graduate students, student dependents and Kaiser/CHP members.)
This group provides as opportunity for women to explore personal relationships, work, studies, family of origin, health, acculturation and other relevant concerns. This group is ongoing with members added as space permits.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30 a.m.

Coed Self-Exploration Group
(For older undergraduates, graduate students, student dependents and Kaiser/CHP members.)
This group provides an opportunity for men and women to explore their interpersonal relationships. This group is ongoing with members added as space permits.
Thursday, 3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

MORE GROUPS BEGINNING IN THE SPRING
CALL 545-2337

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

Spirit Haus
YOU HAVE TO SEE IT TO BELIEVE IT!

MICRO BREWS
Long Trail 12 Pack Bottles (Ale, IPA, Brown Ale, Polenator, Harvest, Blackberry) $10.99 mix & match
Loon 6 Pack Bottles (Special Ale, Pale Ale) $4.99
Sea Dog 6 Pack Bottles (Blonde Ale, Brown Ale, IPA) $4.99
Berkshire Brewing Co. $2.99 each 4 oz Bottle (Porter, Berkshire Ale, Steel Pail)

BEER SPECIALS
Michelob/Michelob Light $9.99 18 pack cans
Molson Golden/Ice 12 Pack Bottles $7.99 + dep
Ice House 30 Pack cans $12.99
Harp 12 Pack Bottles $10.99 + dep

LIQUOR SPECIALS
Captain Morgan 750 ml $9.99 + dep
Smirnoff Vodka 80 ml $8.79 + dep
Bombay Gin 750ml $14.49 + dep
Dekuyper (Peachtree, Buttershots, Pepper...) $7.79 + dep
Jack Daniels Country Cocktails (All Flavors) $3.79 4/Pak

1/2 KEG SPECIALS
Long trail Ale $95.00
Paper City $90.00
Sam Adams $90.80
Harvard Lager $125.00
(Cold Plate, CO2 tanks, Bulk Ice, Glass Wear Available)

Micro Kegs In Stock
DISCOVER, VISA, MASTERCARD ACCEPTED OPEN 9am to 11pm
RT. 9 EAST / 338 COLLEGE ST (413)253-5384 / TAKE I-91 TO EXIT 19 / RT. 9 east
Full Redemption Center

UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex UMASS AMHERST

For 1 Hour
You Can Park in the Campus Center Garage
ON US

From Tuesday, September 8, 1998 through Saturday, September 12, 1998 you will get 1 free hour of parking in the Campus Center Garage on the same day you make a purchase in the textbook Annex.

After you shop at the Annex, show the attendant at the garage your textbook Annex receipt and receive 1 free hour of parking. The receipt must be dated for the day you are parking in the garage.

Keep your receipt and use it later to obtain a rebate on the new books you purchase.

J. Crew Clothing Sale

Sept. 15 - Sept. 18

Temporary Help Needed
for large J. Crew Clothing Sale
to be held at
The Mullins Center at the University of Massachusetts
September 15 - 18, 1998

To sign up, stop by our table in the Campus Center Concourse on Wednesday 9/9; 9am - 4pm & Thursday 9/10; 9am - 1pm

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

AUTO FOR SALE

1990 Ford Taurus LX 4dr STN, ABS, airbag All power, new engine, 40k $7400 253-7009.

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center 545-1995.

CHILD CARE

Child Care Vouchers: Are undergraduate parents taking 6 or more credits and on financial aid. Come to Rm 420 Student Union or call 545-0865

EMPLOYMENT

Amherst Leisure Services Seeks

Sports Related Positions:

+ Adult Volleyball Officials / Supervisors
+ Adult Basketball Score Keeper
+ Youth Basketball Supervisor/ Officials
+ Facility Supervisors
+ Certified Swim Instructor
+ Certified Canoe Instructor

Immediate need for

+ Experienced Stage Manager for Towns Community Theater (nights and weekends)
+ Adult Ed. Supervisor (evenings)

Applications available at Human Resources 4 Boltwood Walk Amherst, Ma. 01002 EOE Prefered Deadline September 15

CANTONE'S PIZZA CO seeks drivers. Must have reliable vehicle. Part-Time & Full-Time. Also hiring experienced pizza cooks. Call 256-6100 or apply in person: 481 West St., Rte 16, South Amherst.

Best Jobs On Campus Come to the basement of MEMORIAL HALL and apply today 545-3509

EMPLOYMENT

MAKE YOUR OWN HOURS Sell Kodak Spring Break '99 Trips

HIGHEST COMMISSION- LOWEST PRICES NO COST TO YOU Travel FREE including food, drink & non-stop parties!!!

WORLD CLASS VACATIONS

1998 STUDENT TRAVEL PLANNER "TOP PRODUCER"

1-800-222-4432

Student Rep AT&T Authorized Agent needs 20 students now! No experience, will train. $100-300/wk. PT/FT 800-592-2121 ext 133.

EARN CASH

Flexible Hours Now hiring at Sbarro's Hampshire Mall

Full/Part-Time positions available now; as movers. Flexible hours needed. Need transportation. Contact Kathy Banas 584-4746.

EMPLOYMENT

Kitchen Help Wanted Apply at D.P. Dough.

Delivery Persons Wanted Apply at D.P. Dough.

ENTERTAINMENT

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

FOR RENT

Lockers For Rent: $10 for academic year. Going fast! Come to Rm 428 Student Union.

FURNITURE

Quality Made Ikea Futon Couch/Bed For Sale $120. It's in great condition. Call 585-1593 after 7pm and ask for John.

INSTRUCTION

Boxing Lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. (413)732-8817.

MUSIC INSTRUCTION

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

SERVICES

Cheap Heating Oil Join The Pioneer Valley Oil Coop. Come to CSHRC, Rm 428 Student Union or call 545-0865.

TUTORING SERVICES

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

TYPING

Mort & Son Typing Service Call 549-6942

YOUR AD COULD GO HERE

What are you looking for?

Find everything you need for the new school year in The Collegian Classifieds

Students 20¢ / word
Non-students 40¢ / word

Call us Today at 545-3500 or visit us in The Campus Center Basement

AVAILABLE HEADINGS:

Activities, Announcements, Apartment for Rent, Auto for Sale, Auto Parts, Childcare, Community Events, Computers, Employment, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Furniture, Greek, Announcements, Happy Birthday, Health & Beauty, Houses for Rent, Houses for Sale, Housesitting, Jewelry, Instruction, Lost & Found, Miscellaneous, Motorcycles, Musical Instruments, Musicians, Musicians Wanted, Music Lessons, Personals, Pets for Sale, Resumes, Rides Wanted, Room for Rent, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Sports, Stereo/CD Equip., Summer Sublet, TVs for Sale, Tickets, To Sublet, Travel, Transportation, Typing Services, Tutoring Services, Tutor Wanted, Used Books, Wanted To Rent, Wanted, World Wide Web, Yard Sales

Five College Community Calendar

THURSDAY, SEPT. 10

Blood drive — There will be an American Red Cross Blood Drive to be held from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Campus Center 101.

Composition — The second annual composition competition will be held in Franklin basement at 8 p.m.

Ballroom — The Ballroom Dancing Club will be holding its first meeting in Campus Center 101 at 5 p.m. Call Brandon at 546-3008 for more information.

Slide show — Kay Marion Raymond, local artist and activist, will present a slide show entitled Living in the Valley Lesbian Community at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 805. Contact the Stonewall Center at 545-4824 for more information.

Yoga and Meditation — Free instruction by Acarya Ramanuja, a yogic renunciate. Open to all, no experience necessary. The session will be held at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 168C.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 11

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild will be holding auditions for their fall production of "The Wiz", at 6 p.m. in Campus Center 101. No preparation necessary and all are welcome. For more information, call 545-0415.

Lecture — Rosana Pellizzari, M.D. will give a lecture entitled Universal Health Care: The Canadian Model, What We Can Learn at 11 a.m. at 129 Main St. in Northampton. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild will be holding auditions for their fall production of "The Wiz", at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. No preparation necessary and all are welcome. For more information, call 545-0415.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 12

Astronomy — There will be free solar observing at 1 p.m. at Amherst town common. Anyone is welcome to attend.

NOTICES

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through October 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. Contact Gina at (508) 849-3600 ext. 201 for more details.

Voting — Absentee ballots are now available in the Town Clerk's office for the Sept. 15 state primary. The deadline to apply for an absentee ballot is noon on Sept. 14.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Grand Opening Specials End Saturday!

The NEW Ustore™ Not like a mall... Better.™

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board	18 UVC–TV19
3 CBS/3 Hartford	20 ABC/40 Springfield
4 CBS/4 Boston	22 NBC/22 Springfield
5 ABC/5 Boston	23 CNN
6 PBS/57 Springfield	24 CNN SI
7 HSCN Movie Ch.	25 Headline News
9 UPN/20 Hartford	26 UCTV
9 Weather Channel	27 TBS
10 NBC/30 New Britain	28 BET
11 Fox/61 Hartford	29 TV Land
12 PBS/24 Hartford	30 Univision
13 WCCH & HSCN	31 Comedy Central
14 International	32 Cartoon
15 UMass Academic TV	33 Much Music
17 HSCN Programming

THURSDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 10, 1998

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	12	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Magnificent Journeys		Mystery!: Memoirs of Holmes		Keeping Up	Wait for God	Chef!	This Old Hse.
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV	JAG "The Stalker" (In Stereo)		Billy Graham Crusade		48 Hours "Nowhere to Hide"		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Lottery Spect.	Ent. Tonight	JAG "The Stalker" (In Stereo)		Diagnosis Murder (In Stereo)		48 Hours "Nowhere to Hide"		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Best Commercials-Never		Dangerous World: The Kennedy Years (R) (In Stereo)		News		News	Nightline
WLVI		Full House	Boy!Girl	Fresh Prince	Fresh Prince	★★ "Medicine Man" (1992, Drama) Sean Connery				ER "Suffer the Little Children"		Star Trek: Next Gener.
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Seinfeld (R)	Seinfeld "The Finale" (R) (In Stereo)			ER "Suffer the Little Children"		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	8	Married...With	Home imp.	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess (R)		News	LAPD	Vibe (R)
WVIT	10	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Seinfeld (R)	Seinfeld "The Finale" (R) (In Stereo)			ER "Suffer the Little Children"		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	11	Simpsons	Home imp.	Seinfeld	Frasier	World's Wildest Police Videos	Fox Files (In Stereo)			News		Med Abt. You	Med Abt. You
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Seinfeld (R)	Seinfeld "The Finale" (R) (In Stereo)			ER "Suffer the Little Children"		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	1	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With	Jim Lehrer	This Old Hse.	Drs. on Call	Jewel in the Crown				Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	28	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	Best Commercials-Never		Dangerous World: The Kennedy Years (R) (In Stereo)		News		Nightline
WSBK	38	Med Abt. You	Med Abt. You	Seinfeld	Frasier	★★ "Ninja III — The Domination" (1984)		Lucinda Dickey		News	Cheers	M*A*S*H	Real TV
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Andy Griffith	WCW Thunder		WCW Thunder		★★ "Warlock" (1989, Horror)		Julian Sands, Lori Singer
A&E	69	Northern Exposure		Law & Order		Biography: Joan Rivers		Unexplained (R)		Murder, She Wrote		Law & Order
CNN	29	Worldview	Moneyline	Newsbour		World Today		Larry King Live		Newsstand: Entertainment		Sports	Moneyline
COM	30	Comic Cabana	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Strein's Money	★★½ "Unfit" (1989, Comedy)		Al Yankovic, Michael Richards		Dana Carvey: Critic's Choice		Daily Show	Strein's Money
DISC	40	Wings "Assault	Gimme Shelter (R)			Wild Discovery: Meaning		Into Unknown	Movie Magic	Wings "Future Wings" (R)		Justice Files	"Bad Medicine"
ESPN	43	Up Close	Sportscenter		GameNight	College Football	Rutgers at Wake Forest (Live)					Sportscenter
LIFE	45	Ellen	Ellen	Party of Five	"Brother's Keeper"	Chicago Hope (In Stereo)		★★★ "A Killing in a Small Town" (1990, Drama)				Barbara Hershey,	New Attitudes
MTV	46	Ultra Sound	Video Music Awards Opening Act			MTV Video Music Awards (In Stereo Live)						Awards Post	MTV Awards
NICK	47	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Drug	Rugrats	Thornberrys	Skeeter	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	I Love Lucy	Bewitched
SCIFI	48	Quantum Leap (In Stereo)		Sightings	Star Trek "Mirr			Talwar "Tekfab"				Sightings	Star Trek
TLC	28	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	Medical Detect	Without Wrrn.	Globetrotters		Panama Canal (R)		Medical Detect	Without Wrrn.
TNT	49	Babylon 5 "Racing Mars"		ER "Into That Good Night"		★★ "Bodily Harm" (1995, Suspense)		Linda Fiorentino,		★★★ "Tripped" (1989, Suspense)		Kathleen Quinlan, Bruce Abbott,
USA	50	USA High	Xena: Warrior Princess		U.S. Open Tennis	Mixed Doubles Final and Men's and Women's Quarterfinals. (In Stereo Live)						Sits Stallings, "Dead Asleep"
HBO	60	(5:30) "The Cable Guy" (1996)		★★ "Little Nikita" (1988, Drama)		Sidney Poitier (In Stereo) PG		"Undiscreet" (1998, Suspense)		Luke Perry, (In Stereo) R		Inside the NFL (In Stereo)
MAX	61	★★★ "Men in Black" (1997)		Tommy Lee Jones. PG-13		★★★ "A Bronx Tale" (1993, Drama)		Robert De Niro. R		★★½ "Day of the Warrior" (1997)		Kevin Lgtr, Fr.	"Above Law"
SHOW	62	★★ "The Birdcage" (1996, Horror)		Sting. (In Stereo) PG-13		★★½ "The Fan" (1996, Suspense)		Robert De Niro. (In Stereo) R		Link. (R)		Rude Awaken.	Compromising

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN — Thursday September 10, 1998 / Page 15

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

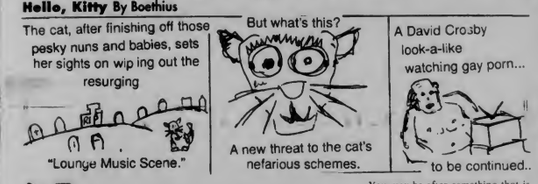
Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Foxtrot By Bill Amend



Non Sequitor By Wiley

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Hello, Kitty By Boethius

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — You're going to have to be just a little more careful today than usual, in order to avoid a hazard that has been developing for some time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — Your enthusiasm for something — or someone — isn't likely to be dampened today simply because your life is more complicated as a result.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You should be able to demonstrate — with relative ease — that your methods and way of thinking can be beneficial to everyone around you today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You're going to want to complete one phase of a current project today before moving on to the next. You must do everything in the right order.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — It's a good day to focus on your own well-being — mentally, physically, and spiritually. You may want to start with a change of routine.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Emotional health is directly tied to your own contentment in the workplace. It may be that you're not being creatively fulfilled right now.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) -- If you play your cards right, you should be able to gain the advantage much more quickly than expected today. Enthusiasm is on the rise.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You must strive to present yourself and your ideas with as little fuss as possible. Avoid anything that distracts from your main point today.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You may be after something that is currently out of reach, but that's no reason for you to give up — or slow down. Keep up the good work!

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — There are some things you don't need to know today, yet you'll be compelled to find out more than necessary. Take only measured risks right now.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — A family member has news for you, and you're not likely to take it well — at least not in the beginning. Your reactions says a lot about you.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Claiming ignorance will not release you from a commitment you've made or a responsibility you've accepted. You must get the job done.

Quote of the Day

"I gotta go... I gotta go sleep with freshmen."

–"Kicking and Screaming".

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Adding you to our car insurance as a teen-ager will triple our rate. From now on, wear this mask and overcoat, and go by the name 'Uncle Mort.'"

Today's D.C. Menu

Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin

LUNCH
Texas Chili
Meatball Grinder
Quiche Lorraine

DINNER
Greek Style Lemon Chicken
Breaded Veal Pattie
Fiesta Rice and Cheese
Quarter Pound (Swiss) Burger

Worcester

LUNCH
Turkey Burger
Chili Con Carne
Sesame Noodles and Pea Pods

DINNER
Duchess Meat Pie
Greek Style Lemon Chicken
Hot & Spicy Vegetable Pasta
Pastabilities

Hampshire

LUNCH
Hamburger on a roll
Charbroiled Chicken Sandwich
Turkey Bacon Swiss Folded Pita

DINNER
Greek Style Lemon Chicken
Veal Parmesan

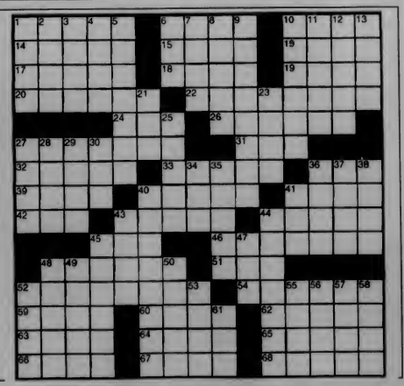
Berkshire

LUNCH
Hamburger on a roll
Reuben Sandwich on Rye
Fettuccini/Tomato Sauce
Sesame Noodles and Pea Pods

DINNER
Boneless Pesto Chicken
Veal Parmesan
Garden Chili
Pastabilities

ACROSS

1 Marry in haste
6 Eve's mate
10 Goad
14 Citrus fruit
15 Arizona river
16 Llama country
17 More sensible
18 Soon
19 Fury
20 Writer Isaac —
22 Shuddered
24 "Crooklyn" director
26 Off the track
27 Snow vehicle
31 W. Hemisphere alliance
32 Glances
33 Dentist's tool
36 Wane
39 Nothing but
40 Horror-flick role
41 Mayberry boy
42 Halloween creature
44 Encounters
45 "Golly!"
46 Hillary's conquest
48 Puzzle direction
51 Mystery writer Stout
52 Predatory fish
54 Headdresses for princesses
59 Radiate
60 Actress Sommer
62 Clench
63 18-wheeler
64 Agitate
65 Excuse
66 Keats' works
67 Use a keyboard
68 Drip-dry fabric



DOWN

1 Famous lioness
2 Meadows
3 Atlanta arena
4 Sonnet, e.g.
5 Registers
6 — Khan
7 Hubbubs
8 Honolulu welcome
9 Varied
10 Binges
11 Oyster's treasure
12 Persuaded
13 Was sorry
21 Goose formation
23 Bottle
25 Actor Cantor
27 Amorphous mass
28 A Chaplin
29 Lock part
30 Upper atmosphere
34 Female sandpiper
35 Secret
36 Fencing weapon
37 Scraps
38 Most excellent
40 Crispest
41 Above: poet.
43 Laborer
44 Juarez native
45 Free
47 Old soldier
48 Intended
49 It doesn't pay!
50 Like pretzels
52 Senor's coin
53 Omit
55 Friend
56 Banister
57 Pulpit
58 Quick drive
61 Before, to a poet

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

OHARA GROWN MAM
TOPAZ RODEO AMA
TWEET ALDER XII
FAVES MAINS
SKETCHY MARMOT
HOARSE SPILT
URSA MELON ILLIE
TEEN WAR COST
SASH FEVER LASH
MOOSE AVENUE
ROVING DRESSER
UNITS GREAT MEN AFOOT OVERT
BAY LEASE EARNS
ADL ENTER STRAP

6-10-98 © 1998 United Feature Syndicate

Night Editor: Victoria Graves
Photo Technician: Brian McDermott
Copy Editor: Casey Kane
Production Supervisor: David Valdon
Production Staff: Angie Annese, Jeremy Brothers

SPORTS

Thursday, September 10, 1998 — The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

UMass soccer teams still looking for win No. 1

Men stopped by Hawks; women fall to Sun Devils

By Sanford Appell
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's soccer team dropped a heartbreaking decision to the University of Hartford 1-0 yesterday at Totman Field.

After playing to a standstill for nearly the entire regulation, Dominic Willock broke the monotony with a goal with 3:07 left in the game.

Willock was assisted by Andrew Mills and Cristoffer Hartmann. Mills set the play up by heading the ball to Hartmann near the midfield stripe.

Hartmann then crossed the ball to a waiting Willock, who settled the ball off his chest before kicking an 18-footer by UMass goalie Todd Fowler.

Ironically, Willock has now knifed the hearts of the Minutemen for two consecutive years. It was his goal that gave the Hawks a stirring double overtime, 1-0 win last year season in the Insurance City.

"I am glad I was able to help the team out again," Willock said. "We proved we could win a close game and more importantly take one on the road as well."

As for the goal, Willock said he felt he had the ability to score as soon as Hartmann made the pass across field.

The Minutemen fell to 0-2-1 with the loss, as they have yet to score a goal this season.

"The offense is a major problem right now" Massachusetts coach Sam Koch said. "We had been shooting better as a team in practices lately, and we will perform better on the field this season."

One positive the Minutemen can take away from this game is that they outshot the Hawks, 12-9 (7-5 in the first half).

"The team was aggressive at some points," Koch said. "We just did not finish off the chances we had, and that is what led to this disappointing loss."

UMass applied some pressure in the first half as Hartford goalie Christopher Doyle was forced to make five saves.

Freshman Mike Janusz came up with two shots within two minutes of each other in the half to help lead the attack.

However, Hartford controlled the action for much of the second half, before Willock broke through with the game winner.

Hartford senior Charlie O'Hara appeared to have a clear shot of the goal off a pass from Kristjan Kristjansson with 6:21 remaining, but the shot trickled just to the right of the post.

Yesterday's loss came on the heels of another frustrating match, in which UMass played Siena to a 0-0 tie on Sunday afternoon at Totman Field.

Amazingly, the Minutemen outshot their counterparts 31- 10, but were unable to secure a victory.

The 31 shots were the most recorded by the Minutemen since 1994, when they tallied 32 against Hartford on Sept. 28 of that year.

Junior Adam Black led the way with six shots for the Minutemen against the Saints. Fowler recorded his first shutout of the season in net for UMass.

UMass will next travel to the University of Maine where they will face the Bears on Saturday afternoon.

Right now the team's future this season is still in doubt, but Koch will aim to point the team in the right direction immediately.

"Some questions for this team have already been answered," Koch said. "But there are still some issues that need to be settled so we can move on and improve on our performance."

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts men's soccer team fell to 0–2–1 on the season with a heartbreaking 1–0 loss to Hartford yesterday afternoon at Totman Field.

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

AGAWAM — Sometimes winning isn't all about being skilled. Sometimes you can be real lucky and win.

It was an open-ended debate as to whether or not the Arizona State women's soccer team outplayed their hosts from Massachusetts on Saturday night at Agawam High, but one fact was very clear.

The Sun Devils got all the bounces.

Three ASU goals were the results of Minutewomen deflections, and the game-winner, scored by Jennifer Peterson, tipped off the hands of UMass goalkeeper Angie Napoli and off the crossbar before crossing the goal line.

"This was a very hard played game tonight. They were a little bigger, and that was a big factor in the two goals that they scored off corners," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said. "If you look at their goals, a couple of them got knocked down and then they just trickled over the line."

The Sun Devils struck for a quick 1-0 lead in the 16th minute. Off an ASU throw-in, a loose ball was knocked down in the box by a UMass defender before Peterson was waiting on the doorstep to slide the ball off the outstretched fingertips of Napoli and into the net.

UMass took advantage of the aggressive style of play used by ASU goalkeeper Kari Laughlin just over seven minutes later. The senior netminder strayed from her net towards the left flank in pursuit of a loose ball, but Sophie Lecot won the race and found Kara Green. The sophomore then tucked home the ball into the empty cage and knotted the game at 1–1.

Stacey Tullock put the Sun Devils back on top in the 29th minute, depositing the rebound of an ASU shot past a fallen Napoli, giving her squad a 2–1 lead.

"Some of their players had nice creativity and made some nice plays out there," Rudy said of the Sun Devils.

The freak bounces continued in the second half as well, with UMass getting the equalizer when Emma Kurowski netted her first of the year off a deflection in the box during the 48th minute.

After Peterson's goal with 35:51 left to play gave ASU a 3–2 lead, Karine Inoue iced the game about 10 minutes later. The sophomore headed home a corner kick that was the result of a spectacular diving stop by Napoli.

Kurowski and Green each had late scoring chances, but were unsuccessful in finding the net.

Despite the loss, which drops UMass to 0–2 on the year heading into a key weekend against Michigan and Evansville, Rudy was pleased with his team's effort.

"I admire the fighting spirit of this team. I think a lesser team would have folded," Rudy said. "That's the kind of effort you see out of UMass teams. They're tough. These kids know the tradition of this program."

"We had opportunities to score. In fact, it could've been 4–4 right now if we had scored a couple of brilliant goals," continued Rudy. "They played away from our two primary jumpers, and scored two corners. When you lose players in the back like Danielle Dion, Amy Burrill and Erica Iverson, you lose a lot of air power. We just didn't match up well against them tonight."

Rudy also pointed out the fact that some of his primary offensive weapons, Green, Lecot and Brooke Bartlett are not at full strength.

"Kara has great resiliency as does Brooke, who has a badly pulled hamstring. Sophie is also beat up, but they're all still playing," Rudy said.

The Minutewomen will play Michigan tomorrow afternoon at 4 p.m. in Ann Arbor and Evansville on Sunday afternoon. Pick up a copy of tomorrow's Collegian for a preview of this weekend's action.

Putnam, Tucker propel UM to first victory of the season

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts field hockey team gave its future opponents something to think about with their 1-0 win over No. 7 Northeastern Monday at Richard F. Garber Field.

With potent scoring threat Erica Johnston on the bench recovering from a head injury suffered in their 2-0 season- opening loss to New Hampshire on Saturday, the No. 16 Minutewomen put together a cohesive team attack. In doing so, they served notice that UMass is not a one-player team.

"These players are going to have to depend on each other," UMass coach Patty Shea said after Monday's game. "Erica is a force on the field. It hurts not to have her, because her presence disrupts opponents. I think they needed [this game] to find out they're going to be there for each other."

A major source of UMass' support came from Zowie Tucker, the Minutewomen's second-year goalie, who made seven saves against the Huskies.

"Zowie is a year more experienced than last year," Shea said. "She is having fun playing and that's making a difference."

Tucker's experience paid off in the final minute of the contest against NU. Facing four penalty corners in the final 1:40, Tucker and the UMass defensive corner battery had their work cut out for them.

Northeastern had perhaps its best chance on the day when a shot that found the back of the net was called back because it was too high with 54 seconds remaining.

"There were so many people, they all tried to clear the ball," Tucker said. "I got a pad on the one that went in, and I let out a sigh of relief when it didn't count."

Northeastern's final corner of the afternoon was called with only three seconds remaining on the clock, but a team is allowed to play out its corner even if time has expired.

Therefore, the victory was solidified only after UMass' defensive unit had cleared the ball from its circle.

"They were very poised in a real pressure situation," Shea said of the Minutewomen. "Everyone did their respective jobs."

The Minutewomen made the most of their second offensive corner opportunity. After Anke Breummer's initial shot was deflected by NU goalie Kathleen Madaus, Kate Putnam collected the rebound and fired an unassisted shot past Madaus.

"Right before that corner [the players] talked and we said that everyone needed to get in on the rebounds," Putnam said. "Then Patty yelled to us that their goalie stands up on the corners. So by instinct, I kept my place and the ball came back to me."

UMass did not have the same luck on any of its three penalty corners against UNH on Saturday. The Wildcats, however, took advantage and notched a 1-0 lead on a corner of their own.

Kelly Stowe cracked a strike off Becky Craigue's pass for the UNH edge. Craigue then knocked in an unassisted tally of her own on a breakaway for the final 2-0 margin.

The Minutewomen played at instrastate rival Boston College last night, losing to the Eagles 1-0 for the first time in school history. Catch tomorrow's Collegian for a wrap-up of that contest.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Even though Erica Johnston was out of commission with a head injury, the Massachusetts field hockey team came through with a 1–0 win over Northeastern on Monday.

Spikers start season with two wins

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's volleyball team hosted the Phoenix Invitational this weekend at Curry Hicks Cage. This tournament brought together five teams from all parts of the country to test their skills.

Although the Minutewomen were tripped up in their season opener on Saturday against Rutgers, they bounced back and had a stellar tournament.

The Minutewomen faced Rutgers in the first match on Saturday and showed that they would be a force to reckon with in this tournament. They beat Rutgers in the first game 15-6.

UMass, which had a 1-0 lead in the match at that point, then suffered some tough breaks. In the second game the Minutewomen hung tough, but were edged out 17-15. In game three the results were similar, except this time UMass led 12-8 but faltered late and lost 15-13.

Rutgers finished up the victory in game four with a 15-8 win.

"Well, we got out of system, and that basically took us out of the match and also out of our tempo. And Rutgers played harder and better," Massachusetts coach Bonnie Kenny said. "It could have been a much better match if we had maintained our intensity and stayed in our system."

"The younger girls were scared and we really didn't help pull them out of that fear," co-captain Jill Meyers said. "Instead of letting each player do their part, we called for all the shots. By the fourth game it was over, we were so off key."

Another major problem for UMass in the Rutgers contest was that it failed to set its middle, which had been a plus for the Minutewomen in game one. Meyers and co-captain Kari Hogancamp each had over 50 kill attempts, while in the middle Rebecca Hasson, who was named A-10 Player of the Week for her efforts, had 18 sets, eight kills and no errors.

The second match on Saturday for UMass was against Siena College. Despite a slow start in game one UMass took what they learned from Rutgers and applied it quickly to the Siena match. UMass disposed of Siena, 15-7, 15-7, 15-2.

"This is a match our young girls won for us. We had a freshman middle [Celia Wiste] in and our freshman setter [Heather Holtsberg]. Hopefully they gained some confidence and we all learned from this match," Meyers said.

Although the Minutewomen were expected to overpower Siena, there were many positives to draw from that match.

"What we did better in this game was our middle Rebecca Hasson and freshman Celia Wiste dominated at net. They touched every ball," Kenny said. "We definitely got better during this match."

In match No. 3 UMass faced Delaware. Delaware came out strong and gave the Minutewomen a scare by taking the first game, 15-13, but UMass answered with three hard fought victories in the next three games, to take it, 15-13, 15-12 and 15-10.

In the third game against the Blue Hens, UMass was trailing 10-0 when it turned things around. It started with good play in the middle, which the Minutewomen received consistently all tournament from Hasson and Hogancamp. UMass then scored 10 unanswered points on its way to winning the game.

"We went on that run because we started passing, instead of getting served off the court. Hogancamp went on a run which lead ut to the game, culminating in a great block by Meyers," Kenny said.

UMass struggled in the tough games against Rutgers, but the experience paid off as it won all close games on Sunday against Delaware.

One of the big reasons UMass was better in close games was due to the return of outside hitter Katie Gibbons. Gibbons missed Saturday's action with the flu bug, but returned in style against Delaware.

Gibbons, a highly touted transfer from Purdue, buried 10 kills, and also had 12 digs against Delaware. Most of all though, she did add a spark, possibly the last piece to an almost complete puzzle.

The win over Delaware improved UMass's record to 2–1 heading into a crucial match with No. 8 Brigham Young University Sunday night.

UMass went into the last match against BYU, playing the it's best volleyball of the weekend, but in games one and two they hung with BYU better than any other team in the tournament, losing by scores of 15-7 and 15-9.

In game three they roared out to a 6–2 lead, but BYU quickly roared back to tie it at 7–7 behind All–American Korie Rogers. The Minutewomen hung tough physically and mentally and regained the lead on kills by Meyers and Gibbons, and blocking from Lymaric Llovet and Hanson.

The game finished off with two nice blocks by Llovet and a Meyers kill which gave UMass a game over BYU. UMass was the only team at this tournament who had accomplished this.

Eventually the overpowering group of All–Americans overcame UMass 15–3 in the final game.

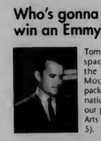
"I was disappointed with the effort in the fourth game. It seemed like they were just happy to have stolen a game from BYU, but it was a great effort. I just wish we could have built on that," Kenny said.

The Minutewomen finished the weekend 2–2, and next head to Arizona for the Varsity Club of America Classic.

"It's great that we could steal a game from one of the top teams in the nation, and we did get better this weekend," Kenny said. "But, we are still making questionable decisions."

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CIV Issue 3 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Friday, September 11, 1998

Hungry for win No. 1

Senior co-captain Kerry Taylor will lead the UMass football team into Richmond tomorrow to take on the Spiders (see Sports, page 12).

Who's gonna win an Emmy?

Tom Hanks and his space epic "From the Earth to the Moon" leads the pack with 17 nominations. Check out our predictions (see Arts & Living, page 5).

WORLD

Nine Iranians dead, Afghan rulers say

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghanistan's rulers said yesterday that nine of 11 Iranian diplomats missing since a battle last month are dead but denied responsibility for the killings.

The bodies of the nine were found Wednesday, a month after the Taliban seized the northern Afghan city of Mazar-e-Sharif from rival forces, said a top spokesman for the Taliban militia. They were reported missing shortly after the takeover.

Afghanistan's ambassador to Pakistan, Maluvi Saeed-ur-Rehman, quoted the spokesman, Maulvi Wakil Ahmed, as saying the bodies were found in the mountains.

There was no word on the fate of two other diplomats who have been reported missing.

According to the envoy, Ahmed blamed the killings on opponents trying to foment conflict between Iran and the hard-line Islamic movement that rules most of Afghanistan.

NATION

Progress reported amid Northwest strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for Northwest Airlines and its pilots put the finishing touches on a deal yesterday as the strike that has grounded the airline stretched into Day 13.

Reports of progress came as the protracted work stoppage was increasing the possibility that the Clinton administration would intervene, according to sources familiar with the talks.

A top presidential adviser was on hand to help the bargaining, which was being conducted under a news blackout. Officials from Northwest and the Air Line Pilots Association declined comment. But sources familiar with the negotiations, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said all the major stumbling blocks had been cleared and the parties were working on details of when the pilots would return to work.

A tentative agreement could not be sealed until the back-to-work deal was completed, the sources said. Nevertheless, the company told mechanics to stop preparing planes for storage and began calling ground workers back from layoff.

The breakthrough came during overnight negotiations, as the National Mediation Board's Maggie Jacobsen kept discussions going until 4 a.m. today.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 77 LOW: 47	HIGH: 78 LOW: 58	HIGH: 72 LOW: 57

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Crossword.....page 11
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

UMass to receive increase in state aid for 1999 budget

By Lorraine Kennedy
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst has been appropriated $204.2 million out of the state budget for the 1999 fiscal year, Associate Vice Chancellor of Finance and Budget Joyce Hatch said.

The appropriation is an increase of $8.4 million, or 4.3 percent, from last year.

The University also received a separate $1.75 million appropriation for Commonwealth College, the new honors college on the Amherst campus, Hatch said.

"The increase in next year's appropriation is very good news indeed," Chancellor David K. Scott said in a press release. "The increase proves once again the Legislature's recognition of the importance of public higher education."

The chancellor's office had not yet released an official plan for spending at prests time, however a list of priorities was issued in a press release following the announcement of the allocation.

Priorities include improving student access by increasing financial aid and keeping costs low; programs related to the campus's education, research and outreach mission, including distance learning and computer — based learning programs; and continuing to improve the buildings on campus.

This is the third consecutive substantial increase in state funding for the UMass system. In total, the five-campus UMass system received $425.8 million, an increase of $22.6 million, or 5.6 percent, slightly more than the 5.3 percent increase the University requested for this year. The Amherst campus generally receives about one-half of the entire appropriation, according to a press release.

"We're very grateful for the recognition of the University's value in creating an educated populace," said UMass President William M. Bulger in a press release.

"We recognize that the encouragement and resources provided by the Legislature imposes upon us a corresponding responsibility to give our very best to the task of education."

Marching band traveling outside U.S.

Power and Class of New England to play Alouettes halftime show

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Minuteman Marching Band is currently preparing to embark on their first ever international performance, to be held in Montreal, Saturday, Sept. 13.

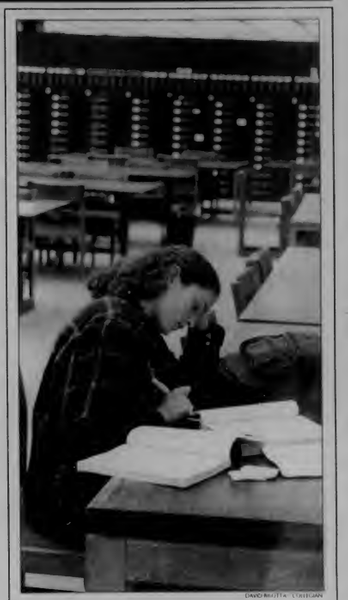
The band was invited by the Montreal Alouettes football team, in association with the Canadian Football League (CFL), to perform as the halftime entertainment along with the "Power and Class of New England" pep band.

More than 350 UMass students from the band will be making the trip this weekend commemorating a historic moment in the band's history.

"It's going to be a wonderful experience," said Evan Adler, band manager. "It is also a great opportunity to have the band be known internationally, and we look forward to pleasing audiences wherever we go."

In addition to playing its first international performance, the band will be receiving what is to many the "Heisman Trophy of Collegiate Marching Bands." The 1998 Louis C. Sudler Trophy will be awarded to the UMass Minuteman Marching Band on Oct. 10, 1998 at the football game against James Madison University.

The award is given out by the John Philips Sousa Foundation each year to recognize marching bands that have displayed a contribution to work ethic, innovative marching drills, perseverance and other standards.



The marching band, under the direction of George Parks, will be making other stops across the country. The marching band has accepted the invitation to perform at the halftime of a University of Delaware exhibition football game.

Heidi Sarver, a past UMass graduate student under Parks, is now the UD marching band director, and her connection has contributed to the UD craze to hear the UMass marching band.

"The UMass band is so popular at the University of Delaware," Parks said. "Since we weren't able to attend a pre–season game at home against UD, they want us to make a special road trip to perform for them in front of their own home team at one of their football games."

After performing in Delaware, the marching band will be travelling to Allentown, Pa. to represent UMass in a collegiate marching band exposition. West Chester University is hosting the event in which colleges and universities nationwide will exhibit their marching talents.

The Marching Band can be seen performing at home football games and at traditional events such as convocation and multi–band concerts. For information about the band, call 545–3410.

DAVID BRUTTA / COLLEGIAN

Table for one

Sarah Goldberg, a freshman pre–nursing major, studies in the library yesterday afternoon.

Satellites destroyed in Siberia

MOSCOW (AP) — Twelve U.S. commercial satellites and the rocket that carried them partially burned up in the atmosphere yesterday when the Russian-organized launch failed minutes after blastoff. The Zenit-2 booster was launched by Russia's space agency from the Baikonur cosmodrome, which Russia rents in the former Soviet republic of Kazakstan.

The rocket's control system failed in its fifth minute of flight, shutting down the engines. The Ukrainian manufacturer acknowledged it might be responsible, saying it was probably a computer malfunction.

Fragments of the rocket and the Globalstar satellites fell in a sparsely populated area in southern Siberia, the Russian Space Agency told the ITAR-Tass news agency.

The satellites were built by Space Systems Loral, a subsidiary of Loral Space and Communications Ltd. of New York. The satellites were going to be used as part of a $2.6 billion global hand-held mobile satellite phone system, said company spokesman David Benton. The lost satellites cost $190 million and were covered by insurance, Benton said.

Globalstar plans to launch its next four satellites in November and plans to have 32 satellites in orbit by late next year, he said.

On the Nasdaq Stock Market, shares of Globalstar plunged 40 percent yesterday, losing $7 1/2 1/2 to close at $10.75 per share. Shares of Loral Space dropped $5.06 1/4, or 28 percent, to close at $13. Loral Space was the most heavily traded issue on the New York Stock Exchange, with 21 million shares changing hands.

The Russian Space Agency blamed Yuzhnoye, the Ukrainian government-owned rocket design and production center, for the failure, ITAR-Tass reported.

"The launching was considered Ukraine's responsibility: the Russian side exercised only general coordination of the work," space agency spokesman Vyacheslav Mikhaillchenko said.

Yuzhnoye officials said the cause most likely was a malfunction in the rocket's computer, which controlled its engines. The computer was produced by an institute in Moscow, Interfax said. Yuzhnoye said upcoming launches should not be affected by yesterday's failure.

Drinking down at nation's colleges

Numbers of binge drinkers remains same, non–drinkers rises

By Robin Estrin
Associated Press

BOSTON — More than half the nation's college students who drank last year did so intending to get drunk, but the number of binge drinkers was virtually unchanged from four years ago, according to research released today.

The survey of 14,521 students by the Harvard School of Public Health followed up on an analysis of 15,103 students in 1993. Both surveys queried students randomly at 130 colleges across the country.

The report published in this month's issue of the Journal of American College Health shows that more students who consumed alcohol did so to get drunk — 39 percent in 1993 compared with 52 percent in 1997.

The number of students who were drunk three or more times in the month prior to answering the survey jumped by 22 percent.

In both reports, fraternity and sorority members were the biggest alcohol guzzlers. Four out of five of these students qualified as "binge" drinkers — defined as five drinks in a row for men and four drinks in a row for women.

Overall, 42.7 percent of students surveyed were considered binge drinkers in 1997, a slight decrease from the 44.1 percent in 1993. Wechsler said the drop is attributed mostly to an increase in students who do not drink at all.

Nineteen percent of students surveyed said they hadn't touched a drink in a year, up from 15.6 percent in the earlier study. Why students were abstaining more is difficult to gauge, but Wechsler doubted it was due to lack of access to booze. More likely, he said, those students had listened to the warnings of school administrators — or were repelled by the drinking of their peers.

The study did not show which specific colleges had the most drinkers, though schools in the Northeast and Midwest tended to produce more drinking.

Students at historically black and women's colleges, as well as commuter schools without dorms, tended to drink less, researchers said.

High-profile deaths from alcohol — like those at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Louisiana State last year — sober up their peers, but only until the next party rolls around, Wechsler said.

Some schools have responded by making it tougher to access alcohol, increasing the penalties for drinking, establishing substance-free dorms and promoting social alternatives, said Diane Barry, a spokeswoman for the Higher Education Center for Alcohol and Other Drug Prevention in Newton.

DAVID BRUTTA / COLLEGIAN

Say cheese!

MassLine.com worker Holly Lawrence photographs Mahtab Khushkhou, an undeclared sophomore, outside the Student Union yesterday.

Swissair crash creates impact seismic activity

By David Crary
Associated Press

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia — Swissair Flight 111 crashed into the ocean off Nova Scotia with such force that the impact registered at a regional seismic center, investigators said Thursday.

Only 2 percent of the aircraft has been retrieved so far, mostly small pieces that were floating on the surface of the Atlantic, said Vic Gerden, the chief crash investigator.

Gerden confirmed that parts of a seat cover from the cockpit showed signs of soot and heat damage, a sign that perhaps they had been seared by fire or intense heat. He said fire and explosion experts were still assessing the seat cover and other heat-damaged items from the cockpit.

Gerden repeatedly skirted questions from reporters about specific theories as to why the plane crashed, including the possibility of electrical-wiring problems.

"We're not zeroing in on anything at this point," he said. He also gave new details about the last minutes of Flight 111, which crashed Sept. 2 en route from New York to Geneva, killing all 229 people on board.

He said the last signal from the plane came just after 10:26 p.m. Atlantic time (9:26 p.m. EDT), when it was flying at 9,700 feet at a speed of 275 mph.

The plane disappeared from radar screens five minutes later, and a few seconds after that an impact was recorded on seismic graphs at a geological center 25 miles away near Halifax, Gerden said. The pilots had reported smoke in the cockpit about 16 minutes before the crash, and were trying to dump fuel before making an emergency landing at Halifax airport.

Gerden said the plane's recovered flight data recorder indicated irregularities in various systems on the plane during the last five minutes before the recorder stopped working, one minute before the plane's last signal.

He said experts are assessing the pattern of the problems, hoping to trace them to a common area of the aircraft.

Several larger pieces of the plane, including sections of the fuselage, have been located at a depth of 190 feet, and a U.S. Navy salvage ship, the USS Grapple, has arrived to try to raise those pieces over the next few days.

Divers are trying to retrieve bodies from the wreckage and also recover the plane's cockpit voice recorder, but rough seas Thursday forced a delay in the diving operations.

Francios family asks for privacy as police conduct investigation

By Shannon McCaffrey
Associated Press

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. — Breaking a week-long silence, the family of alleged serial killer Kendall Francois today pleaded for privacy and described being "plagued by unimaginable circumstances" since police began pulling the corpses of eight women from its home.

The statement, issued through the family's Poughkeepsie lawyer Marco Caviglia, came one day after Francois pleaded innocent to a charge of second-degree murder at a brief, but emotional, arraignment.

"We have virtually lost everything, been dispossessed of our home and cast into the street with only the clothes on our backs," the statement said. "The family asks that under these extraordinary circumstances the public and media respect the only two items we have now, our privacy and personal respect."

Francois lived with his mother, a registered nurse, his father and younger sister at his town of Poughkeepsie home.

Francois' court appearance on Wednesday was interrupted by shouting and a near scuffle when relatives of the victims learned they would not be given the bodies of their loved ones for burial until defense forensic experts had an opportunity to examine the remains.

The daughter of 51-year-old Sandra French, whose body was among those found in Francois' home, nearly had to be ejected by court officials.

"He's not having my mother for another day," Heidi Cramer shouted from her seat after the defense request to examine the bodies.

"We want the body today. That man had my mother for three months. I'm not giving him another day with her. That's a slap in the face," she yelled.

A bailiff grabbed Cramer by the arm after she failed to stop screaming but she refused to budge from her seat. A short tugging match ensued before state Supreme Court Justice Thomas Dolan instructed that she be left alone.

The family of Catina Newmaster said they will have to delay funeral plans made for this week.

"He killed my daughter," sobbed Barbara Perry, Newmaster's mother.

Francois stood motionless with his head bent slightly downward during the commotion. His only visible sign of emotion was to blink rapidly during the exchange.

Francois was charged on Wednesday with strangling Newmaster. She was the last of eight women with histories of prostitution and drug use to be reported missing from Poughkeepsie over almost two years.

Police last week pulled eight corpses in various states of decay from the attic, basement and crawl space of Francois' home. Some family members of the victims were emotionally overcome as soon as Francois entered the Dutchess County courtroom in handcuffs and leg irons.

Soft crying and mutterings of "Oh, my God" echoed through the chamber as the burly 27-year-old was led in wearing street clothes, orange jail shoes without laces and large glasses.

At 6-foot-4 and more than 300 pounds, the former middle school hall monitor towered over his lawyer Randolph Treece of the state Capital Defenders Office, who entered his plea for him. Afterward he was returned to Dutchess County Jail where he is being held without bail.

Outside the courthouse, Dutchess County District Attorney William Grady said he was sympathetic to the families' feelings, but was bound by laws allowing defense experts to examine the remains.

"Unfortunately, the legal process interferes with the legitimate right of the families that want to get their loved ones back," Grady said.

He added that he would press to release the bodies if the defense team didn't conduct its autopsies within a couple of days. Treece said later that the defense team was in the process of hiring a forensic expert.

"We intend to move as quickly as possible so that the bodies are returned as soon as possible to their families," he said, "but we want to see what the bodies show."

Some family members had made funeral arrangements for this week. Authorities have already conducted autopsies on the eight bodies. Seven have been identified as among the eight missing women police were investigating. The eighth was identified as Audrey Pugliese, who had never been reported missing and has left authorities wondering if there are other bodies on the premises.

Investigators are continuing to search for additional remains at the Francois home. Outside the house Wednesday, flowers and teddy bears had been draped around a nearby tree.

Also Wednesday, Grady responded to rising criticism that police ignored complaints from other prostitutes about Francois and should have arrested him sooner.

In defense of police, Grady revealed for the first time that Francois had taken and passed a polygraph test prior to his arrest and had been under surveillance. He also said a police officer had been inside one room of the Francois home, but had not gathered enough information to obtain a search warrant.

DAVID BILOTTA / COLLEGIAN

Say cheese!

MassLive.com worker Holly Lawrence photographs Mahtab Khushkhou, an undeclared sophomore, outside the Student Union yesterday.

TAIZÉ

Sunday mornings, 11am
at the Ark
Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass

PRAYER • CHANT • SILENCE

Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass
758 North Pleasant Street

(2 doors north of Lederle Tower)
Phone: 549-5929 for more information

Collegian News-

(All that fits from the world, the state and the campus)

TEXTBOOK RECEIPTS=REBATES

GET A 5% REBATE ON THE NEW BOOKS YOU PURCHASE SAVE YOUR RECEIPTS

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

University Store • Textbook Annex

SAVE YOUR RECEIPT

Our Refund Policy

If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within 7 calendar days of the first day of classes. Thereafter, incorrect titles may be returned within 48 hours of purchase providing the book is new and unmarked.

1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the month of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule obtained from the Registrar. Any new books must be unmarked.

2. Keep your receipt(s). Refunds on textbooks cannot be made unless the receipt(s) accompanies the book.

3. Always have your current I.D. available. This is required for any refund transactions.

The return of unsold books to the publisher begins seven weeks after the beginning of the semester. After the seventh week you might not be able to purchase the book you need.

RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH MONDAY SEPTEMBER 21, 1998.

Beginning TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1998 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.

The schedule may be obtained from the registrars office in Whitmore do not wait for them to mail.

New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.

Any incorrect titles purchased after TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase. Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.

Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21.

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

UNIVERSITY ST

Textbook Annex

AMHERST

textbook annex

Fall '98 Schedule

We accept cash, personal check, Ucard, Visa, and MasterCard as forms of payment.

We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.

buyback

FIRST WEEK - Sept. 8-11
Tuesday - Friday 9am - 5pm

SECOND WEEK - Sept. 14 -18
Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm

Monday - Friday, 9am-4pm at the Textbook Annex, beginning September 21, 1998

annex rush

Fall 1998
Book Rush Hours

First Week - Sept. 6 - 12
Thursday Sept. 10 9am - 9pm
Friday Sept. 11 9am - 6pm
Saturday Sept. 12 11am - 5pm

Second Week Sept. 14 - 18
Monday - Friday 9am - 6pm

Third Week
Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm

Normal Hours
Monday - Friday 9am - 4pm

Police Log

Accident — Leaving the Scene
Sept. 4
A parked vehicle was struck near Melville Residence Hall.

Accident — Property Damage
Sept. 8
A two-vehicle accident was reported on North Pleasant St. Amherst Police were notified.
A two-vehicle accident was reported in the Campus Center Garage.
A minor accident was reported in Lot 32.
Sept. 7
A vehicle in Lot 49 rolled into another vehicle.
A parked vehicle was struck from behind near Pierpont Residential Hall.
Sept. 6
A minor accident was reported on Infirmary Way.

Annoying Behavior
Sept. 8
A domestic problem was reported at Van Meter Residence Hall.
Sept. 5
An individual was reported driving on the sidewalk on Hicks Way.

Assault & Battery
Sept. 4
A sexual assault was reported in the area of Sylvan Residence Hall.

B&E/Burglary
Sept. 7
A vehicle in Lot 79 was broken into. A cell phone and charger were reported stolen.

Domestic Disturbance
Sept. 8
A verbal dispute was reported between two individuals on Stockbridge Rd.

Health and Safety Hazard
Sept. 7
A person tripped on Massachusetts Ave. Physical Plant was notified of a defective sidewalk.

Larceny
Sept. 8
Air hose fittings and calipers were reported stolen from Gunness Lab.
An individual reported a record collection stolen from an elevator in Coolidge Hall.
Sept. 6
Sneakers and a walkman, valued at more than $85, were reported stolen from an unlocked room in Emerson Residence Hall.

Suspicious Person/Activity
Sept. 8
Derek Braxton, 31, of 170 East Hadley Rd., Amherst, was arrested on a warrant at the Textbook Annex.

Traffic Stop
Sept. 8
Eric Hassay, 18, of 240 Still Water Rd., Deerfield, was arrested for operating under the influence of liquor, reckless operation of a motor vehicle, failure to stop/yield, failure to stop for a police officer, speeding, failure to wear a seatbelt and one-way violation.
Sept. 7
Glen Duarte, 20, of 786 Hood St., Fall River, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license, equipment violation and miscellaneous infractions.
Mark O'Connor, 19, of 35 Elmwood St., Auburn, was arrested for possessing and transporting liquor under the age of 21.
Van Johnson, 20, of 45 Chestnut Ave., Brighton, was arrested operating a motor vehicle with a revoked license, no inspection sticker and miscellaneous infractions.
George Skip Silva III, 19, of 4 Shady Ln., Mattapoisett, was arrested operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor, speeding and unsafe operation of a motor vehicle.

Vandalism
Sept. 6
Damage to a vehicle was reported in Lot 71.

Primakov named Russian Prime Minister

By Greg Myre
Associated Press

MOSCOW — Boris Yeltsin stepped back from confrontation yesterday and named a compromise candidate for prime minister, defusing a power struggle that stalled efforts to rescue Russia's economy.

His choice: Yevgeny Primakov, Russia's tough-talking foreign minister and a former spy chief.

Parliament, despite its hostility to Yeltsin, is expected to quickly approve Primakov even though he has little economic experience to face a nation impatient for a way out of its political and economic chaos.

The president's decision to put him at the head of a new government was well-received by most opposition politicians and had a calming effect on a country in turmoil.

Washington also welcomed the nomination, even though Primakov has been criticized in the West for his hard foreign policy line, including a willingness to compromise with Iraq and other regimes at odds with the West.

Primakov could be confirmed in parliament as early as today. He will need to quickly assemble a Cabinet to deal with the most severe economic crisis since the 1991 Soviet collapse.

"I think he will get [parliament's] support. Common sense has prevailed," said Communist leader Gennady Zyuganov, who spearheaded the opposition to Yeltsin's previous candidate for premier, Viktor Chernomyrdin.

In a nationally televised address, Chernomyrdin said parliament's refusal to confirm him was part of a Communist plot to force Yeltsin to resign and seize power.

"It's a creeping coup," he said.

In Washington, White House press secretary Mike McCurry said the U.S. government "knows and respects" Primakov, adding "we would expect to have a good and close working relationship."

In Russia's battered markets, the ruble strengthened for a second day yesterday and stocks rose in response to Primakov's nomination. But bringing Russia out of a wrenching, decade-old economic slump will be a massive undertaking. The nation is suffering high inflation, widespread unemployment and industrial stagnation.

Yeltsin's compromise was seen by some opposition leaders as a major defeat for the president. But Primakov is a long-time Yeltsin ally who is unlikely to challenge him.

Primakov, 68, is highly regarded by most Russian political groups and is not ideologically linked to any faction.

Still, the low-key Primakov appears more comfortable handling discreet diplomatic negotiations than enduring the glare of publicity that his new job would bring.

Primakov is expected to support economic reforms, but he has not made any public comments about what sort of economic plan he envisions.

"He wasn't bad as a foreign minister, but what's his program?" asked coal miner Konstantin Gormotov, picketing outside the government's headquarters in a months-long protest for back wages and Yeltsin's ouster. "He's got no idea how to get Russia out of its crisis."

DAVID BILOTTA / COLLEGIAN

Do not enter

Caution tape surrounds the Fine Arts Center as construction gets under way.

We're looking for writers and we want you!

The News Department is looking for reporters for various beats including, Amherst\Hadley, Five college and Faculty Administration.

Come down to the Collegian this week and apply for a News Associate position or just get your feet wet writing an article or two as a Collegian Correspondant.

It'll give your resume a boost and it's a great way to get involved.

Ask for Jill Carroll for more information.

Welcome back... NOW GO AWAY!

Cheap hotels. Great rates. Nice people.

travel accessories and backpacks sold here! European railpasses and international student ID cards issued on the spot!

Council Travel
(U.S. Council on International Educational Exchange)
44 Main St., Amherst
(413) 256-1261
www.counciltravel.com

FACE FACTS:

There are some things college doesn't prepare you for...

there's something about mary

TWENTIETH CENTURY FOX presents A FARRELLY BROTHERS movie CAMERON DIAZ MATT DILLON BEN STILLER "THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT MARY"
LEE EVANS CHRIS ELLIOTT and JONATHAN RICHMAN and HAPPY WALTERS & TOM WOLFE MARC S. FISCHER and CHRISTOPHER GREENBURY
MARK BROWN, A.S.C., C.S.C. PETER FARRELLY & BOBBY FARRELLY FRANK BEDOR & MICHAEL STEINBERG and CHARLES B. WESSLER & BRADLEY THOMAS
ED DECTER & JOHN J. STRAUSS ED DECTER & JOHN J. STRAUSS and PETER FARRELLY & BOBBY FARRELLY BOBBY FARRELLY & PETER FARRELLY

R

www.aboutmary.com

20th FOX

...on in the world Before you BeL against it

WHETHER YOU WANT TO TAKE ISSUE WITH INTERNATIONAL EVENTS OR THE LATEST CULTURE TRENDS, THE BOSTON GLOBE WILL KEEP YOU INFORMED. (AND IT'S DELIVERED TO YOU ON CAMPUS, TOO.) FOR A 50% OFF STUDENT SUBSCRIPTION RATE, CALL 1-800-858-4275. ASK FOR SPECIAL OFFER #350.

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian

As the page turns

I was glued to the television and I bought the newspapers every day this summer, but I wasn't looking for the latest information on the Bill Clinton–Monica Lewinsky soap opera.

Instead, I was riveted by what has happened at The Boston Globe over the last few months.

A quick review: Former Globe Metro columnist Patricia Smith is accused of fabricating material for several columns. After an investigation into her work, Globe editor Matt Storin asked for, and received, her resignation.

At the same time, several people accused Metro columnist Mike Barnicle of making up characters and quotes as well. After a subsequent inquiry into his work, Barnicle was in the clear.

That is until Aug. 2, when several references in his "I was just thinking..." column more than closely resembled items in George Carlin's book "Braindroppings." Barnicle, who had recommended the Carlin book on Channel 5's "Chronicle" program, insisted he had done nothing wrong (in fact, he insisted that he had never even read the book) and wouldn't hand in his resignation.

He received a two-month suspension. Several days later he resigned, again amid accusations he fabricated material.

The Barnicle–Smith issue was as hotly debated as the much talked about Clinton–Lewinsky situation at the paper where I interned this summer. Most people asked their colleagues whether Smith or Barnicle had committed a graver offense, or if Barnicle deserved to be fired after the Carlin controversy.

I served up an opinion at the office water cooler, but many people asked me a much different question as well.

"Are you sure you still want to do this? I mean, as a career?" a co-worker asked. "At least you don't really have to worry about this kind of thing until you graduate. I mean, people don't expect this stuff from a college paper."

I wasn't surprised by the question. In the face of industry upheaval many people question whether or not the path they have chosen is in the right field.

Rather, I was shocked by the statement, by the insinuation that the work collegiate journalists do at school papers is somehow less important, less significant than that of professional news organizations.

On the contrary, the student writers at The Massachusetts Daily Collegian face the same task as writers at the Globe, The New York Times, The University of Arizona Daily Wildcat and every other paper across the country: To inform and entertain an audience with stories and columns.

> "If they had put down the pen, told their editors they could not write, Smith and Barnicle may have faced punishment, but they would have personally and professionally saved face."
>
> Casey Kane

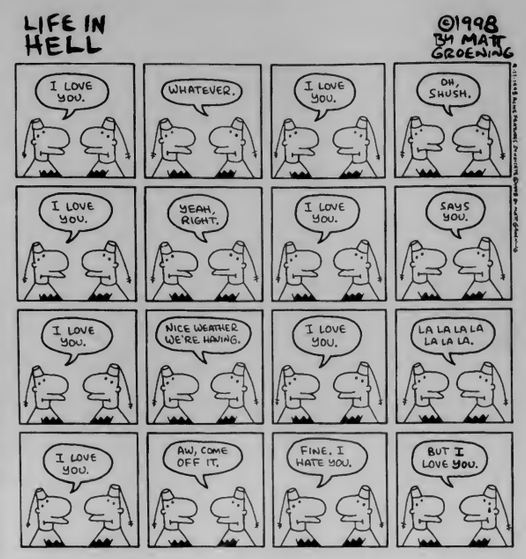
That very fact, that main purpose, is the tie that binds the Collegian with the Globe. And that tie is what made this summer's Metro column shakeup hit so much closer to home.

So, as I watched each new installment of "As the Page Turns," I was forced to think about not only my present situation, but also my future.

I am entering my final year at the Collegian, and I have a pretty good idea what lies ahead in the job market. I know that there will always be an opportunity to write, but what if I can't compete? What if what I write isn't what an editor or a reader wants to see in the next day's edition?

Or what if I write a thrice-weekly Metro column at one of the nation's best papers...

I have never seen someone go through the editorial wringer. I have never experienced it myself. But if ever such a times comes, I hope I will have the integrity and the respect for my job to simply stop writing.



What both Barnicle and Smith have done is undermine the public's confidence in all journalists. They jeopardized not only their futures in this business, but public perception of the Globe.

If they had put down the pen, told their editors they could not write, Smith and Barnicle may have faced punishment, but they would have personally and professionally saved face.

Neither did, and journalism as an entity paid a hefty price. But other journalists may have benefitted from learning that the damage which can be done to a profession by one, two or a few careless (or carelessly fearless) people does not harm them alone.

It harms the future as well.

Casey Kane is a Collegian columnist.

The secret history

Suicide doesn't usually happen in a vacuum. It certainly didn't for my ex–girlfriend Meghan, who killed herself during the last week of August.

When I first heard, I was sad, but I wasn't that surprised. Suicide had been a constant presence in her life. While it was several years since we'd seen each other, the quality of her damage was such that I'm sure she still had the same essential dilemma: trying to survive with memories of being raped as a child.

Let me tell you some things that happened — her story. Then maybe you can understand a little bit how she struggled.

> "The denials and cover–ups by people who can't believe the survivor often contribute to making "truth" a very unstable thing."
>
> Daniel Bodah

One day when I was at Meghan's house, she was standing at the sink washing a cup out. She had a pair of leopard– print bell bottoms on over tall leather boots. Her father, a respected local doctor, sidled up to her, put his arm around her shoulders, and lifted a leg of her pants up with his foot. "Nice boots," he purred into her ear, and kissed her.

Meghan's dad gave her a key chain for her 15th birthday. The metal handle depicted an anatomically–accurate naked man and woman, the man standing behind the woman. When the chain was pulled, the figures would have sex.

When Meghan was in middle school, she showed up for school one day with large red hand prints clearly visible on the backs of her thighs. The teacher, as teachers should, asked her how the marks got there. When she said her dad made them, she got sent to the principle's office. "You're lying," the principle told her. "You did that yourself."

Meghan's parents had a sauna at their house and were fond of having guests over to sit in there. No one ever bothered about clothes. When Meghan's breasts started to develop, she started keeping her bathing suit on. Her father made fun of her modesty in front of their guests and tried to convince her to take it off.

Meghan drew some obvious conclusions from her father's behavior, her aversion to him and her deep anxieties about her body and all things related to sex. The difficult thing is, even she couldn't remember everything.

I held her through flashbacks, intense screaming fits when she went into a sort of trance. But in the aftermath, her conscious mind couldn't remember what she'd just relived. She could remember rape, threats, pain... but never the whole situation, how many times it happened, or the face of the bastard.

When vague memories first started surfacing, Meghan became self–destructive — she scratched her arms up with a razor blade. Staff at the elite prep school she was attending noticed; within a month she was spending time in a Behaviorist mental hospital, trying to earn an early release by using proper table manners in the lunch hall.

She was labelled crazy and told that her memories weren't real. She was put on an anti–depressive drug called Wellbutrin that had sped through the FDA approval process in two years, without once being tested on teenagers. When she suffered massive side effects, it took weeks before they put her on something else.

In spite of all of this, Meghan fought and kicked and screamed to get better. Surviving taught her a wicked sense of humor. She became an expert at manipulating situations, and she could turn the most boring event into a riot.

She made everything more than it was without her — more fun, more peaceful or sometimes more out–of–control. There really weren't any dull moments when she was around, and she challenged us all with her sharp flashes of humor and blunt honesty.

Like Meghan herself, her death has turned out to be hard to know. She was living on Long Island, attending school there when she died. Our hometown paper didn't say anything about how she died — her parents are, after all, pillars of the small community we come from.

From one person I have heard that Meghan overdosed on something. Another person, who works in the hospital where Meghan's dad practices, told my sister that Meghan suffocated herself with a plastic bag. I can't even be absolutely sure that it was suicide.

But I could never be absolutely sure of anything with her. It seems to be a problem shared with some other women I know who suffered sexual abuse as kids. The kind of lies and artificial realities that abusers require, that they cower behind, have far–reaching effects on their children. And the denials and cover–ups by people who can't believe the survivor often contribute to making "truth" a very unstable thing.

What's most important to me now is that Meghan's story is told in context. She was not "just crazy," and her suicide is not a surprise to anyone who knew her. This didn't happen out of the blue. Meghan, like millions of other women, had a personal struggle with the effects of sexism and patriarchy.

If her life, her struggle, is to be honored as it deserves, then we'd better open our eyes and do what we can to stop sexual violence against women.

Yes, the decision to commit suicide was Meghan's to make and ultimately her responsibility. But others worked hard to ensure that this suffering young woman wouldn't have much incentive to stick around. The people who ignored the abuse, the people who covered up to avoid a scandal, the people who told Meghan it was her fault — those people could be you and I.

Daniel Bodah is a Collegian columnist.

Dur

I believe in change. Yes! I believe in change, transformation, and the abolition of the word "gradual." "Gradual" change is the excuse of those who are lazy enough to use it. Kill gradual. Bear hope in action.

I am hoping for harmony. I see society as a rainbow: a whole created by separate and individual colors (equally recognized and presented). If just one color is missing, a rainbow has not been created. Its form is incomplete. No gold will be found. "No rainbow, no gold," the leprechaun said.

I liked speaking to him. (He being a symbol like God.) Then I realized I was talking to myself. Myself. Myself God.

I hate God. the God, the Illusional God, the God that fools, called "The Majority," waste their lives following. He's such a restriction. What if the word sin meant being a human being? What if sacrifice was actually a crime? What if I did Ecstasy and danced to techno in your churches? What if I had sex without shame?

I do I am I be. I do I am I be. What you do is what you be? Or is it: what I be is what I am? How would you be then? What is being? Someone once said "actions speak louder than words." He was a radio D.J. His words were his actions. Like durr.

Durr. duh duh. Who made up linguistics? I can understand "blah blah blah," (especially in Italian), but durr? No I am sorry, I can not accept that.

The best thing about the alphabet, kids, is that you can create any word you want. Forget the rules they teach us here in kindergarten — college. "Phat" is a dope example.

But that is just language. Forget language, know silence. Silence is bliss. Silence is like the winter. Snow falls and covers everything. Human beings forget about all that is underneath the snow. Everything is absent. The absence of everything is bliss. Does this mean death is bliss? If life is not death than death means bliss (Not that I am in a hurry).

I really do love life. I think we are so lucky. Can you believe it? I can talk! Can you believe it? I can see colors. I can move. I can laugh, and I can even cry too! Look at all the possibilities I have being a human being. My imagination alone strikes color, like paint to canvas, in my mind. We are human beings.

> "Cuore is the Italian word for heart. Blah is the Italian word for blah. There is no translation in dur."
>
> Dahlia DeSimone

I like cats more than dogs. I often think cats are the Buddha. They are so simple, independent, and solitary that their wisdom must equal a human being sitting under a tree non–thinking about life. I am sure of it.

I hate when people say "I am sure of it." What are you sure of? I ask. How can you be so sure? How would you know, or really, how would we know to be for sure? People who learn from most institutions aren't sure about anything. Even if they learned "everything" by heart, I would still say they were caged by their own volition to believe in everything they were taught to know. Now if you say you know something by heart, I'd ask you to explain it by using more than text books and old professor's perceptions. Stress what they do not stress in class. It might be less damaging to your heart than your so called "higher" education.

Cuore is the Italian word for heart. Blah is the Italian word for blah. There is no translation in dur.

Dur is such a dirty word. Let's stop using it. Let's write "parental discretion is advised" and then rap like N.W.A. Then if we expressed ourselves with our full capabilities we would be living in correctional facilities. Do you see what the government does?

Ice Cube was once featured on a Sister Soulja album. Sister Soulja faced a certain audience and said "you created this wicked system. They say two wrongs don't make it right, but it damn sure makes it even."

Lauryn Hill's new album dropped in August. She is a more contemporary female rapper. She mentions the Million Woman March that happened in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The Million Woman March occurred October 25 of last year. It was a day of brilliance. I wondered why so few white women showed up. Why wouldn't any of them want to be brilliant, especially with African mothers, sisters, goddesses, and wisdom?

Des'ree says "stand up and be counted." I believe her. The revolution will only come through activity. I am stood up and counted but only when I am in court. I am stood up and counted only when it's important to pay the government's price or accept penalization. Otherwise, I am not important, my ideas are not important, and a crowd's cry for revolution is not important.

"Don't you know we're talking about a revolution? Finally the tables are going to turn, we're talking about a revolution," said Tracy Chapman. "It's been a long time coming, but I know change gone come," said Sam Cooke. "It is necessary, therefore it is possible," goes G.A Borghese. What do you say? Like durr. I mean what do you do for change? (The leprechaun can't help you anymore.)

Dahlia DeSimone is a UMass student.

Point/Counterpoint writers needed.

We hope to publish a Point/Counterpoint piece in the future concerning the new alcohol policy on campus. We challenge you to write provocative, informed pieces on this subject and submit them in person to the Ed/Op desk in the Campus Center basement. If you can't make it down here, send them to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst, MA 01003. Columns must be typed, and between 600 and 800 words. We have pamphlets addressing the issue down here if you want to know more about the issue. Any questions, call Mike Messaros at 545– 1491.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor–in–Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri–Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

HBO, "X–Files" lead Emmy Awards

COURTESY PHILIP CAIRNS

Tom Hanks' series "From the Earth to the Moon" is up for 17 Emmys at this Sunday's awards.

By Ryan Benharris
Collegian Staff

This year's Emmy Awards (Sunday, NBC, 7 p.m.) contain both familiar nominees from years past, as well as surprising new faces that could be the pace setters for years to come.

Leading the way is HBO's "From the Earth to the Moon" with 17 nominations. The 12 part drama series, produced by Tom Hanks, caused some controversy from major broadcast networks because they felt it was too lengthy to be considered a mini–series. However, the Academy overlooked all of these complaints and chose to acknowledge it. "ER" and "The X–Files" made their usual impact on the awards with 16 nods apiece, and NBC's epic movie Merlin had 15.

But the big question Sunday night is, "who will win?"

The best way to take the awards apart is to find out not only who will win, but who should win. As everyone knows, the winner is not always the right choice.

Best Actor in a Comedy Series: Gary Shandling may get the sentimental vote here because his show signed off this past spring, but he'll get some heavy competition from "Frasier's" Kelsey Grammer.

Best Actress in a Comedy Series: One of the biggest questions of the night will be if Helen Hunt can pull off a best actress award at both the Emmys and the Oscars; the latter she won for As Good as it Gets. I think she'll be able to pull it off.

My Pick: Newcomer Calista Flockhart (Ally McBeal) definitely deserves this award. Her original, witty humor is enough to make her one of the best actresses on T.V.

Best Actor in a Drama Series: Count out the "Blue's" boys, Dennis Franz and Jimmy Smits. This year the top gun for this award will be "ER's" Anthony Edwards.

My Pick: Edwards certainly deserves it, but if there's someone who didn't get nominated that should have, it's "The Practice's" Dylan McDermott. It's pretty much because of him that this excellent show has a fairly big following.

Best Actress in a Drama Series: The trophy will probably go to Turn to EMMY, page 6

More Emmy predictions from the experts

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Will Andre Braugher of the estimable "Homicide" finally see justice done and get his overdue Emmy? Does Calista Flockhart's Ally McBeal have the moxie to snatch the best comedy actress trophy from Helen Hunt?

The answers will be revealed Sunday, scattered throughout the course of a marathon four-hour ceremony that marks the 50th anniversary of the Emmy Awards.

But why wait until then? Guessing the outcome of any awards show is always a big part of the fun, almost as rewarding as making withering comments about Hollywood's taste in fashion.

Now is the time to roll the dice and say the brilliantly original "The Larry Sanders Show" finally will be recognized as best comedy series or that Ving Rhames will grab the trophy for his astounding performance in the movie "Don King: Only in America."

Speculating on Emmy victories, however, can be tougher than gazing into Oscar's crystal ball. The TV awards process is more focused than the movie ritual and less swayed by sentiment or buzz, according to Thomas O'Neil, author of the recently published The Emmys (Perigee).

An Emmy trophy is a reflection not of a show's or performer's entire season, but of a specific episode or episodes submitted for judging. And the members of the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences doing the judging must watch before they vote.

Here is O'Neil's take on likely winners and losers, along with ours. Besides guessing who might win in six major categories, we also play favorites and suggest the outcomes we'd like to see:

Best actor in a comedy series: O'Neil views it as contest between John Lithgow for a "3rd Rock From the Sun" episode in which he tries to win back his old girlfriend, and Kelsey Grammer for a "Frasier" story that has him dating a model. Lithgow won the past two years, but this episode doesn't compare. Grammer, on the other hand, is "hilarious," O'Neil said.

Our pick: Grammer wins for his elegantly madcap performance, and deserves to.

Best actress in a comedy series: O'Neil thinks the only guaranteed lock is Calista Flockhart for "Ally McBeal." Series creator David E. Kelley dared to enter the hourlong show alongside half-hour sitcoms, and O'Neil thinks the range

Turn to PREDICTIONS, page 6

COURTESY LINDA CHEN

Hot off his second movie, David Duchovny tests his T.V. acting skills as Agent Mulder in "The X–Files" at the Emmys.

Execs work hard for new music hits

By David Bauder
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Music you've never heard before is turning up in the strangest places.

You can hear it over the loudspeaker at minor league basketball games, on TV sets displayed in department stores or in movie theaters before the trailers begin.

Every note is a measure of the desperation that record companies feel about having their new music heard by possible buyers in a radio climate in which decisions on what to play are made by fewer and fewer people.

The search for new ways to expose music even revived a practice that once shamed the industry: a record company paying a radio station to play a song. The practice was called payola decades ago.

Now it's called business.

Songs will always be able to capture the public imagination, like this summer's duel between Brandy and Monica on "The Boy Is Mine" or Shania Twain's genre-smashing "You're Still the One."

But for every hit, there's a bigger pile of misses. The business of making a hit record is complicated today by changes in how radio stations operate, the fragmentation of public tastes and the sheer volume of music competing for air time.

"You can't just count on people hearing it on the radio and going to the store on Saturday," sighed Ron Shapiro, executive vice president and general manager of Atlantic Records.

Subject to the whims of public taste, creating a hit record has never been a science. Who knew that so many teen-age girls would swoon over "My Heart Will Go On," or that teen-age boys would emphatically reject the new Van Halen?

At least the process was relatively simple: Get a few key radio stations to play the record, make sure MTV airs the video, and let music fans decide.

Consolidation of the radio industry has changed the rules. Dominant companies like Chancellor Media, Jacor Communications and CBS have bought hundreds of stations across the country. Executives for these companies often decide what songs will or won't be played on dozens of stations.

It's rare now for one disc jockey to take a liking to a song, champion it in defiance of industry experts, and see it catch fire.

That's how a hit like Marc Cohn's "Walking in Memphis" got its start a few years ago.

"What made music exciting is when a station somewhere decided to play one song that nobody

Turn to MUSIC, page 7

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THAT'S US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB

BEST AEROBICS	BEST MACHINES	BEST PRICES
CARDIO KICKBOXING YOGA REEBOK BENCH LOW IMPACT	PRECOR ELLIPTICALS TREADMILLS • BIKES RECUMBENTS STAIRMASTERS	1 MO.....$49 3 MO.....$129 6 MO.....$229 12 MO.....$380

Big Enough To Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 West St. On Bus Route www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

The one book you'll need through all 4 years of college.

Low Monthly Fee
No Minimum Balance Requirement
Unlimited No-fee Electronic Access
Web Banking and Free PC Banking*
Over 2400 Fleet24 ATMs in 13 states

Open a Fleet Self Service Checking Account and get summers free.

There are all kinds of books you'll need for college. This is the one you need to pay for them – and lots of other things. The Fleet Self Service Checking Account. We know you probably don't have tons of money, so the monthly fee is low and we charge no monthly fee for the summer. We require only a $50 initial deposit with no minimum balance. Plus, you get 20 checks per statement period, unlimited electronic access, conveniently located ATMs and more. And it's easy to open one. Just call 1-800-CALL-FLEET (1-800-225-5353). Or visit our website at www.fleet.com.

Fleet
Ready When You Are

www.fleet.com

*A one-time shipping and handling fee of $9.95 applies. Ready When You Are is a service mark and Fleet is a registered mark of Fleet Financial Group, Inc. Fleet Bank is a Member FDIC. ©1998 Fleet Financial Group, Inc. All rights reserved.

COURTESY MERRICK MORTON

Golden Globe winner Ving Rhames competes for an Emmy for "Don King: Only in America."

■ predictions

continued from page 5

Hackhart gets to display in the comedy drama seals her victory.

Our pick: Hackhart makes neurosis fun in her submitted episode about a legal review board questioning her mental fitness. But previous winner Helen Hunt hits the high notes in a "Mad About You" about postpartum depression. Call it Hackhart by a miniskirt, a fresh choice we can live with.

Best actor in a drama series: O'Neil asserts that Dennis Franz, who held the award three out of the past four years for "NYPD Blue," will lose out because of a weak episode in which he confronts illness. Instead, he sees Braugher, in his farewell on "Homicide: Life on the Street," vying with David Duchovny for an episode of "The X-Files" in which Duchovny tries to help his FBI partner (Anderson) with a mysterious cancer. The prickly nature of Braugher's character means the "likability" factor that undercut Lahti could affect his chances, O'Neil said.

Our pick: Duchovny has taken unfair hits for his coolly understated work (which X-Philes know is a perfect match for the show's ironic nature) but he could overcome detractors with a performance that lets him range, and rage, over the emotional map. Braugher, however, has been the fiery heart of "Homicide" since the start.

If Braugher doesn't win, we're calling 911 to report a crime.

Best actress in a drama: O'Neil fears Lahti, despite a vivid performance in an episode in which she kills a rapist, may again lose out to Anderson because of the sympathy factor. This time the "X-Files" star is being judged on an hour in which she tries to save children from a supernatural death.

Our pick: The "Chicago Hope" actress, playing one of television's most complex female characters, pulls out all the stops. Anderson is superbly soulful, but we'd like to see Lahti get her turn in the Emmy spotlight.

Best comedy series: O'Neil predicts victory for the beautifully crafted "Frasier," but he says there's a spoiler lurking: Voters might give the edge to "Ally McBeal" because the hourlong show can plumb emotional depths a sitcom can't.

Our pick: "Frasier," which sets the standard for comedy with a brain, wins a record-setting fifth trophy. What we'd love to see: a tie with "Larry Sanders," the cable series' last chance to be honored as a comedy ground-breaker.

Best dramatic series: It's a horse race between "Law & Order," last year's winner, and the legal drama "The Practice," O'Neil says, with the latter's "emotional fearlessness" giving it a possible edge. "The X-Files" is deserving, he says, but science fiction never wins.

Our pick: "The Practice," which came into its own this past season with engaging courtroom and bedroom tales that made the most of a talented cast. Perfect world: It would be "The X-Files" for its clever blend of drama and satire, or a show not even nominated: the shamefully overlooked "Homicide."

■ Emmy

Gillian Anderson (Agent Dana Scully), but it just as well should go to Julianna Margolies — it seemed like she was carrying men on her back this season on "ER," and the reward for being such a workhorse should be an Emmy.

Best Comedy Series: It'll be interesting to see if the Academy chooses to acknowledge the two shows that left the air this season. Almost everyone watched the series finale of "Seinfeld," which was lousy at best, but an excellent final episode was HBO's "The Larry Sanders Show." In perhaps another example of the precedence of cable T.V. these days, the Academy will probably venerate "Larry Sanders."

My Pick: It wasn't nominated, but "Spin City" consistently delivers the goods and deserves a spot on the nominee list.

Best Drama Series: Though last year NBC's "Law and Order" surprised everyone by taking home the trophy, there will be no surprises this year — "The X-Files" will and should come up victorious.

Outstanding Mini-Series: HBO's "From the Earth to the Moon" should easily clean up this category, and deservingly so, although TNT's "George Wallace" was almost equally worthy.

Outstanding Made-For-T.V. Movie: HBO's "A Bright Shining Lie" was excellent, as was their "Don King: Only in America," which Ving Rhames should take home the actor award for.

My Pick: Not enough consideration will be given to Showtime's remake of "12 Angry Men," which was very good but not good enough to compete with anything HBO offered in the past year.

COURTESY NBC

Jay Leno goes head to head with David Letterman in company for best variety show at the Emmys.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS
• CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS •
LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R.
BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

Arts
write for it.
now, more than ever...

The Campus Activities Office at UMass Amherst presents
TONIGHT!
FIRST WEEK '98
Visit Our Calendar Website:
http://www.umass.edu/events/calendar.htm
Friday September 11, 1998
UMass Student Union Ballroom:
Comedian Rudy Rush returns to UMass to begin the SEF series @ 8PM
Dance Instruction by Gotta Dance Studio in Northampton and DJ
Dance to follow in SUB
@ approx. 9PM.
Gotta Dance!
"MULAN" will be shown in the CCA @ 8PM & 10PM.
Sponsored by Something Every Friday.
TONIGHT!
FREE!
Please call 545-3600 for more information

■ music

continued from page 5

else was playing. Now it's so well-organized and so well-researched," said Andy Allen, president of Alternative Distribution Alliance, a company that delivers music to record stores.

This year, Flip/Interscope Records reportedly paid a radio station in Portland, Ore., $5,000 to repeatedly play "Counterfeit" by its band, Limp Bizkit.

The arrangement raised uncomfortable memories. In the late 1950s payola scandal, popular disc jockey Alan Freed's empire collapsed in disgrace after it was revealed he had accepted money from record companies to play their songs.

The practice was made illegal, but not if the arrangement is disclosed upfront to listeners. A radio DJ might say, for example, that the song is "brought to you by" the record company — much as a corporate sponsor would be announced for a commercial break.

Is this a smart way to get music heard? Or will consumers reject a song so tainted by commercialism? Interscope executives wouldn't talk about whether they considered the experiment a success.

Similar deals reportedly have been in the works for country radio stations, but none has materialized.

"The idea of a cash transaction for airplay so scares them that they run to other practices that can't be accounted for," said Sky Daniels, general manager of the trade publication Radio & Records.

Murkier methods could be record companies giving radio executives free concert tickets to use or give away, or flying in a hot band to play at a station-sponsored concert — stunts that don't show up on a spreadsheet.

Some companies are bypassing radio altogether and becoming their own music programmers. This summer, Island Records produced a half-hour TV show on two of its artists, Tricky and Pulp, who have achieved critical acclaim but little radio airplay. The show aired on local access cable channels in Los Angeles, New York, Chicago and elsewhere.

Movie soundtracks are almost like mini-radio stations on CDs, and consumers have lapped them up this year. Victoria's Secret and Pottery Barn, retailers not traditionally involved in the music business, sell their own custom compilation CDs.

In true 1990s synergy, Atlantic Records placed some of its music on "Dawson's Creek," the TV serial popular with teen-agers on the WB network. Atlantic's corporate partner in Time Warner. Sales of Edwin McCain's song, "I'll Be," rose dramatically when it was on the series' season finale, Shapiro said.

For record companies, the Internet is the new frontier. Some musicians now offer computer-savvy fans a chance to hear new music on web sites before it's available anywhere else. Atlantic has built a special studio where musicians can perform concerts broadcast on the web.

Music fans have long used the Internet to produce obsessively devoted web sites for their favorites, but its use as a marketing tool is unproven. The technology is tantalizing for record companies trapped in a time of transition.

No one knows whether, a decade from now, fans will routinely log on to their computer to hear new music the way they once turned on the radio.

If that's the case, the marketplace could suddenly shift to the opposite extreme: too many choices instead of too few.

For music companies, it's one problem at a time.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The leader of the pack
Kara Green will take her team-leading three goals into Ann Arbor, Mich. this weekend when the Minutewomen square off against the Wolverines and Evansville.

"Hey mom, can i write for arts when i grow up?"
- "You sure can, muffin... Just keep reading..." "

There is a meeting for all new and returning writers this Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 6 p.m. in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center. For more information, or if you get lost finding your way there, call 545-1361 and ask for Bryan.

FUTONS AND FRAMES STARTING AT $156
L.A. Wood
Cubes, CD racks, computer desks, tables & chairs and much more!
FREE LOCAL DELIVERY
259-1100
LA Wood INC 401 Main St Amherst

ARE YOU READY TO BE A PRO?
Why do you need to know Pro/ENGINEER ?
▪ Earn more money!
▪ High industry demand!
Over 15,000 companies use this software worldwide, including: BMW, Toyota, Hyundai, Honeywell, Lockheed Martin, Siemens, Komatsu, Rubbermaid, Motorola and more!
The Pro/ENGINEER® Student Collection featuring Pt/Modeler™, Pt/Render™, and Pt/Library™ 2.0
ISBN 0-201-35642-2
Distributed by Addison Wesley Longman
SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE: $199
Computers & E.T.C.
Conveniently located in University Store

UMass Student Legal Services Office
FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students! 545-1995
CALL TODAY!
922 CAMPUS CENTER

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS
GET THOSE FORMS IN BY
Flag Football (M/W/C).....9/14
Soccer (M/W).....9/14
Co-ed Softball.....9/15
Field Hockey.....9/15
Ice Hockey (M/W).....9/16
Track & Cross Country (M/W).....9/22
call for times and locations
LATE ENTRANTS SHOULD CHECK FOR EXTENSIONS IN BOYDEN 215
On the Web: http://www.umass.edu/umim/
Don't Miss The ACTION
For entry forms and info
545-2693
545-0022

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
EXCLUSIVE 2nd Week! DAILY 7:15 and 9:15
The hit of the Kendall Square in Cambridge is now at your 106 year old Opera House in GREAT DOWNTOWN NORTHAMPTON. Come visit.
DATING IS LIKE A BOX OF CHOCOLATES... YOU NEVER KNOW WHAT YOU'RE GOING TO GET SOME ARE SWEET. SOME ARE NUTS. AND SOME ARE TRULY WONDERFUL.
Romantic and joyful! As the blockbusters sizzle, it's time for a trip to Wonderland! This is a must-see movie!
A refreshingly original and terrifically pleasing romantic comedy!
HOPE DAVIS shines in this Boston-misfit romantic comedy
NEXT STOP WONDERLAND
Check us out on the World Wide Web
http://www.angelfire.com/biz2/academyofmusic/
ACADEMY-MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435

IN SHAPE NUTRITION
NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA
Exercise & Nutrition Programs Available
Great Products, Great Prices, Great Service!
20%-50% OFF RETAIL
PRICES EVERYDAY
Walking Distance 549-7434

"5 reasons why you should take my GRE course."
-John Katzman, Founder & President of The Princeton Review
1. Class time that counts
We spend more time in class to make sure we cover the test exhaustively. You won't have to spend hours working on your own. Class size is limited to 15.
2. You'll score more...
Our students improve on average of 212 points on the GRE
3. If you knew the CAT
No one knows the computer adaptive tests better than we do. So, whether you choose the pencil & paper or CAT format, you'll review powerful techniques to maximize your score.
4. We're on campus!
The Princeton Review was chosen to administer all test-preparation programs for the UMASS Division of Continuing Education
No traveling, no hassle
5. Satisfaction guaranteed
If you complete the course, take the GRE and are not satisfied with your score, we'll work with you again for up to one year, at no fee.
413/584-6848
www.review.com
THE PRINCETON REVIEW
Fall course enrollment has begun!

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS $10.
25 n pleasant st amherst 256 0733
145 main st northampton 586 0155

Affordable
Jewelry Natural Fiber Scarves
Blouses Skirts Dresses
Happy B'day Cards
Earrings
India Print Bedspreads
T-Shirts
Posters
Candles
Incense
Chinese Shoes
Rings
Bracelets
Chains
Sweaters
Dresses
Area Rugs
Socks
Leather Sole
Baskets
Paper Lampshades
Mugs
Sale
20 to 50% off selected Clothing
The GreatGifts Mercantile
Visa / MC
Th.Fri.9PM
Sun 12-5
Daily 10-6
Amherst-Carriage Shops
Northampton-108 Main St.

Michigan's Henson a true jack–of–all–trades

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — When Dan Henson was an assistant football coach at San Jose State 10 years ago, he took 8-year-old son Drew with him to watch game film one day.

In the darkened room, images of the following week's opponent danced on the screen — and the precocious Drew showed his sharp eye.

"Dad, look at that," Henson recalls his son saying. "Isn't that the basic weakness of the two-deep zone?"

Even then Henson suspected his son might be special. Today, perhaps the only real question for this can't miss kid is which sport he's going to star in: football or baseball.

This fall, he's the quarterback-in-waiting at Michigan. Over the summer, he played third base for a New York Yankees farm team in Tampa, Fla.

No matter what sport he plays, Drew Henson excels.

In football, at Brighton High School between Detroit and Ann Arbor, Henson passed for 5,662 yards and 52 touchdowns — both Michigan state records — in three years as the starter. He owns the state record for touchdowns in a game with six.

In baseball, he holds the national high school career record for home runs (70), RBIs (290) and runs scored (259). He was named 1998 High School Player of the Year by the newspaper Baseball America.

So it was only natural that the 6-foot-4, 215-pound Henson would be singled out when he arrived for football camp at Michigan. Wolverines coach Lloyd Carr, who promised Henson he wouldn't recruit another quarterback for two years, has been glowing in his praise.

"I knew he was a good athlete, but he is really even quicker and better on the move than I thought he would be," Carr said. "He's a guy who can make plays when the defense breaks down. If you get pressure and he has to scramble, he can do that. He adds a lot of mobility to that position."

Still, when it came time to pick the starter, Carr turned to fourth-year junior Tom Brady.

Henson didn't get his first taste of college football action until late in the fourth quarter of Michigan's 36-20 opening loss at Notre Dame. He was 5-of-8 for 55 yards and one touchdown.

"Any good athlete wants to play and there's a certain competition that goes on in practice," he says. "But once the game starts, whoever's on the field, you've got to support them."

Henson gets plenty of support from the Yankees. Mark Newman, the team's vice president of player development and scouting, says Henson could be in the majors in less than three years — maybe sooner — if he devoted himself to baseball.

Henson signed a five-year deal worth two million with the Yankees in July. He hit .316 in 10 games over a two-week span with their rookie team in the Gulf Coast League. (The NCAA allows athletes to be a professional in one sport and play college ball in other).

Still, Newman has no regrets about agreeing to let Henson pursue his football dream.

"He convinced us that while he loves football, he's passionate about baseball," Newman says. "He's an exceptional talent."

Henson is following the path of his idol, John Elway, who played pro football while playing college baseball at Stanford. He's wearing Elway's No. 7 on his Michigan jersey.

Dan Henson, who recently quit an assistant coaching job at Eastern Michigan to work for IMG, the company that manages sports stars, says the family helps his son keep a level head. But it was never a hard sell.

"He was always a really good boy, even as a baby," Henson says. "I think the good Lord gave him that disposition. He was just born with it. We never had to tell him to work hard."

While Drew Henson gets extra attention at Michigan, that doesn't mean he avoids being hazed with the other freshmen.

They might have to sing, they might be taped to a goal post, they might get harder-than-usual hits in practice. Michigan freshmen also have never been allowed to dress with the upperclassmen; they have a separate locker room.

Henson takes it all in stride.

"Drew's the kind of guy that's very humble," says Marcus Ray, a strong safety and the defense's co-captain. "He's very mature. He's just one of the guys. That's the kind of guy that you enjoy being around because you can learn a lot from even a freshman."

What about the $2 million he got from the Yankees? Does that mean Henson is expected to spring for pizza every Saturday night? Nah!

"He's a millionaire, but you would never know it just talking to him," senior running back Clarence Williams says. "He's just like us — minus $2 million."

UMass faces stern test against top weekend foes

By Aaron Soykin
Collegian Staff

Beating the No. 1 ranked team in the nation will be, by no means, an easy task. And to do so on the road a mere four games into the season may require the perfect balance between diligence and luck.

But despite all of the forthcoming difficulties, Massachusetts field hockey coach Patty Shea believes that fortune just may favor the bold, and that games of such caliber are necessary hurdles — hurdles which her Minutewomen must allude en route to a third consecutive Atlantic 10 Championship.

"Because we're locked in our conference (play) at the end of the season, we've got to get our strength of schedule games at the beginning," Shea said. "If you want to be the best or even compete with the best, you have to play the best. You need to go out there and play them."

Laura Phelan

The UMass (1–2) field hockey squad may notice a steep incline in its path to the conference summit tomorrow, when top-ranked University of Virginia (2–0) plays host to them at 11 a.m. In what will be perhaps the most formidable Minutewomen task of the 1998 campaign, Shea seems to be extremely pleased to see an All–American Erica Johnston on the road to recovery after missing two games as the result of a head injury she suffered in the opener against New Hampshire. Although her status remains uncertain, Shea's main concern is Johnston's health, not her playing time.

"She'll travel with us, and she might suit up," said Shea of Johnston, who is still feeling the ill-effects of a serious head injury. "Right now she's day–to–day. We just have to make sure she's healthy. Whenever you're dealing with a head injury, you have to look beyond the sport."

Despite allowing only one goal in the past two contests, the UMass defense prepares for the highly–effective Cavalier offense, which is led by seniors Meredith Thorpe (three goals) and Michelle Vizzuso (one goal, four assists).

"We don't really look at stats that much," Shea said, citing her belief that her players should worry about their own game instead of their opponent's. "So many variables can go along with them. We just have to take care of ourselves."

After its battle with Virginia, UMass will return immediately to action the following day against No. 9 James Madison University (1–1) who will be the Minutewomen's second top–ten opponent in as many days.

"I honestly feel that we have a shot to come out on top of every game," Shea said, who admits James Madison may not pose as many problems as the Cavaliers. "In terms of personnel, we matchup a bit better against James Madison."

After eight seasons at the helm of the Dukes' program, James Madison head coach Amy Fowler holds a career record of 104–50–2, which includes a 2–1 victory over UMass last season, en route to a 17–7 mark overall and a berth in the NCAA Tournament.

Although early in the trying weekend comes early in the Minutewoman year, the next two contests may have a profound effect on the entire season. Wednesday's 1–0 defeat at the hands of host Boston College leaves UMass 0–1 at the start of its six–game road swing. The Minutewomen will not see action on the friendly turf of Richard F. Garber Field until October 7. As a result, it may be crucial for coach Shea's squad to rebound from the B.C. loss, and capture at least one of its next three games, which includes the September 16 contest at Harvard.

"I don't think it (the road stretch) will be a big deal because we know that we have a long break after it to recover," Shea said. "Some of our road games are road games, but they're day games too... we're not traveling 13 to 14 hours for them. I honestly think it's how we deal with it. Those things don't bother good teams and champions."

Despite a commendable effort from its defense and goaltender Zowie Tucker, as well as a five–offensive penalty corner surge in the second half, UMass was unable to atone for the lone Eagle goal, which was scored just past the eight–minute mark of the opening frame. The win improved Boston College to 3–0, and dropped the Minutewomen to 1– 2 overall.

"We knew the game would be a tough game because it was a regional game," said Shea of the barn–burner against Boston College. "It's always hit or miss. We came out a little sluggish and it hurt us."

We Have
(Exercise Bike Classes)-
Full Schedule

Personal Training
Friendly Atmosphere

Tanning
Aerobics - Full Schedule
Cardio Theater

Great Hours
Multi-Level Balconies
New Entrance
Trained Staff

Fruit Smoothies,
Supplements, Health Drinks

Pre Cors, Bikes, Rowers,
Treadmills, Stairclimbers

The area's only

IMPROVED!
EXPANDED!
WHAT YOU WANT!

Tennis & Fitness Center

Write for Sports!!!!!

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

Furniture Expo '98
Residents & Students
Campus Center Auditorium

HS
HOUSING SERVICES
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Food
Fun
Music
Hourly Prizes
Grand Prize*

*Eligible with completion of SURVEY. Use of Furniture Display of your choice for you and your roommate for ONE (1) academic year.

Tues., Sept. 15th Noon - 9pm
Wed., Sept. 16th 10am - 4pm
Come Check It Out!

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Keep your head up!

The Massachusetts field hockey team will have to be on top of its game this weekend when it faces No. 1 Virginia and No. 9 James Madison.

Drunken activity mars opener for AU

ALFRED, N.Y. (AP) — Alfred University's season opener was suppose to celebrate all that's good about college football. Instead, last Saturday's scheduled game matching the century-old football programs at Alfred and Susquehanna universities was canceled following a night of hazing and heavy alcohol abuse.

The incident left five freshmen treated and two hospitalized for suspected alcohol poisoning, an upperclassmen expelled and five other players facing charges of serving alcohol to minors and unlawful imprisonment.

Now as the national spotlight has dissolved, the university and the team are left trying to recover.

Six key players — including three potential All-Americans — remain suspended indefinitely from the team pending an investigation.

And the season opener, which was to highlight Alfred's 100th year of football, was cancelled. It was the first disciplinary action of its kind in the school's history.

Those first few days following the announcement were emotional and morale had been deflated, said head coach Dave Murray. Players, who lost their two captains, said the incident dominated their thoughts.

"The first couple days were tough. We were looking for a direction," said starting defensive end Casey Crandall. "But I think the team's coping very well. We're definitely closer. I think everyone is closer."

Murray, who had taken the coaching job only two months before the incident, said all of the players are moving forward.

"We can't be divided as a team. We need to hang together," he said.

A week later, those hit by the canceled game — listed by the NCAA as no contest for both teams — are still recovering.

Like Susquehanna fullback Matt "The Claymont (Del.) Cannonball" Wichlinski. He was 97 yards short of a school career rushing record at 2,080. He still is.

Susquehanna's other seniors also lost one of the last games of their lives, and a nine-game season may hurt the team in any NCAA playoff bid.

"Everyone here was disappointed," said Mike Ferlazzo, Susquehanna's sports information director in Selinsgrove, Pa. "But at the same time, I think everyone was supportive of Alfred's administration. That was a tough call."

Ferlazzo said that ultimately the hard line taken by Alfred, which lost a student to alcohol and hazing in 1978, will be good for college football.

"I think the message by Alfred President [Edward Coll Jr.] hit all campuses," he said. "This president took the first step that maybe nationally administrations won't tolerate this anymore."

Said Murray. "We never wanted to ever jeopardize our integrity and that's why the decision came down the way it did."

Meanwhile, Murray said his team is now focusing on the future and preparing for Saturday's game against Salisbury State.

"The kids have kept a great attitude... We're going to get through this thing and we're going to be better people because of it," he said.

CR
Amherst Athletic Club
1x2
9/11

Join UMass Men's Crew!

A winning tradition since 1871

No prior rowing experience necessary

Please come to informational meeting:
Monday, September 14, 1998 at 7pm
Campus Center Room 168c

Questions??? Call Crew Offices at 545-0487

UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex
UMASS AMHERST

For 1 Hour
You Can Park
in the Campus Center Garage
ON US

From Tuesday, September 8, 1998 through Saturday, September 12, 1998 you will get 1 free hour of parking in the Campus Center Garage on the same day you make a purchase in the textbook Annex.

After you shop at the Annex, show the attendant at the garage your textbook Annex receipt and receive 1 free hour of parking. The receipt must be dated for the day you are parking in the garage.

Keep your receipt and use it later to obtain a rebate on the new books you purchase.

FAT RAT SNOWBOARD SHOP
3 DAYS ONLY
September 11th, 12th, & 13th
BIGGEST SNOWBOARD SALE OF THE YEAR
MEET THE REPS
5th ANNUAL SUMMER SNOWBOARD TENT SALE AND BOARD SWAP!!
(call for details on when to drop off used equipment)
SAVE UP TO 60% on '97 Burton, Oxygen, Morrow, Silence, Lib Tech, Salomon BOOTS-BINDINGS-BOARDS-CLOTHING
• Complete Packages starting at $299
• 97 Step in Boot Binding Combos 40% off List
• Shoes by Airwlk - Simple - Reef - DC...40-60% off List
• Agressive Skates 40-60% off List
K2 - Oxygen - Rollerblade
• All 98 Equipment & Clothing on sale
BMX Bikes from Specialized-Gary Fisher: up to 30% off List
SALE HOURS: Fri. 3-8, Sat. 10-7, Sun. 12-6
Corner of Rt 5 & East St.
Easthampton 586-8766

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
part-time study for people of all ages

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE
• Nearly 100 credit courses - in the evening!
Including:
Intro to Arts Management
Public Speaking
Environmental Health Sciences
Corporation Finance
Interpreter's Studies
Intro to Public Relations
Human Resource Management
Energy Healing In Nursing Practice
Online Course: Sioux Families of the Pine Ridge Reservation
• Opportunities to enroll in University day courses
• Part-time degree programs, both graduate and undergraduate
Bachelor of General Studies
Master's in Library and Information Studies
M.S. in Labor Studies
Master of Music Education
M.S. in Plant & Soil Sciences
Master's in Education
MBA Professional Program
RN to BS in Nursing
Master of Public Health
Classes begin September 14
For a free course catalog, call 413-545-0107 or e-mail contined@admin.umass.edu
www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated course information
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Amherst
FALL 1998
a quality education at an affordable price

EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER
OPEN HOUSE
September, 14, 1998
12:00-7:00 Open House
4pm-7pm Reception and Entertainment
Refreshments
WILDER HALL ground floor
ALL WELCOME
Information: 545-0883 V/TTY
*snow date Feb. 26 1998

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

AUTO FOR SALE

87 Subaru GL Wagon 5 speed. $800. Call Korey 256-6497.

92 Honda Accord LX 4 door, 5 speed, A/C, 88k, $6000. 256-3472.

1990 Ford Taurus LX 4dr SDN, ABS, airbag. All power, new engine, 40k. $2400. 253-7009.

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

CHILDCARE

Child Care Vouchers: For undergraduate parents taking 6 or more credits and on financial aid Come to Rm 428 Student Union or call 545-0865.

COMPUTERS

486 Computer Great For Student Works Good $100. Color VGA $50. (413)584-8857

EMPLOYMENT

Seeking outgoing campus spokespeople to represent companies on campus. 10-15 hours per week. Flexible hours. Customer service experience helpful but not required. Short term and long term positions available. Contact Dan Wolman at CIS (800)922-5579.

Kai Chi Restaurant hiring waitstaff, drivers, bouncers, and bartenders. Apply in person after 4:30 pm. 586-2774.

Best Jobs On Campus Come to the basement of MEMORIAL HALL and apply today. 545-3509.

EMPLOYMENT

CAMPUS DESIGN & COPY has openings for new co-managers. If you've always wanted to run your own business, start with a genuine student-run collective! Applications (due 9/16) and details at 403 Student Union. 545-2271.

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Mornings and evenings. $7.85/hr. 546-0666.

Human Services- Want to make a difference in someone's life? Relief support needed to work with developmentally disabled adults. May lead to permanent hours. Hours include evenings, weekends and/or overnights. Required: driver's license and professionalism. Call (413)323-6872 to start application process. AA/EOE

CANTONE'S PIZZA CO seeks drivers. Must have reliable vehicle. Part-Time & Full-Time. Also hiring experienced pizza cooks. Call 256-6100 or apply in person. 481 West St., Rte 116, South Amherst.

MAKE YOUR OWN HOURS
Sell Kodak Spring Break '99 Trips.
HIGHEST COMMISSION- LOWEST PRICES
NO COST TO YOU
Travel FREE including food, drink & non-stop parties!!!
WORLD CLASS VACATIONS
1998 STUDENT TRAVEL PLANNER "TOP PRODUCER"
1-800-222-4432

Delivery Persons Wanted Apply at D.P. Dough.

EMPLOYMENT

Student Rep AT&T Authorized Agent needs 20 students now! No experience, will train. $100-300/wk. PT/FT. 800-592-2121 ext 133.

EARN CASH
Flexible Hours
Now hiring at Sbarro's. Hampshire Mall.

Full/Part-Time positions available now, as movers. Flexible hours needed. Need transportation. Contact Kathy Banas 584-4746.

Kitchen Help Wanted Apply at D.P. Dough.

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS Abt associates is looking for a few reliablepeople with good communication and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evening and weekend assignments are currently available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $6.25/hr. with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more information or to arrange for a personal interview call 413-587-1697
An Equal Opportunity Employer

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ For Hire: "DJ FOOZ" is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

FOR RENT

Lockers For Rent: $10 for academic year. Going fast! Come to Rm 428 Student Union.

FOR SALE

Earing Lover
Visit our Website
www.earamid.com

For Sale- TV Stand. Franci 253-7606.

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection, from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade. 253-5312.

FURNITURE

Danish teak desk $75, pine dresser $45, end table $10, small bookcase $10, foam mattress $50. Prices firm. 253-9719.

WATERBED Queen size, bookcase headboard, four drawer pedestal, mirror $200/best offer. 253-3318.

Quality Made Ikea Futon Couch/Bed For Sale. $120. It's in great condition. Call 585-1593 after 7pm and ask for John.

INSTRUCTION

Boxing Lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. (413)732-8817.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Can Teach All Styles Call Stephen Page at 256-2612.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Roommate(s) Wanted Looking for 1 or 2 non-smoking persons to share a 2 bedroom townhouse on bus route. Call Toby or Ryan @ 548-7059.

Two Roomates needed for a 4 bedroom apartment on Main St. $300 per month, utilities included. Available 9/11. 253-9795

SERVICES

Rental Problems? Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

Cheap Heating Oil- Join The Pioneer Valley Oil Coop. Come to CSHRC, Rm 428 Student Union or call 545-0865.

TUTORING SERVICE

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

TYPING

Mort & Son Typing Service Call 549-6942

To place a Classified call us at 545-3500 or visit our office in The Campus Center Basement

THE CLASSIFIEDS

Just Imagine What They Could Do For You

AVAILABLE HEADINGS:
Activities
Announcements
Apartment for Rent
Auto for Sale
Auto Parts
Childcare
Community Events
Computers
Employment
Entertainment
For Rent
For Sale
Furniture
Greek Announcements
Happy Birthday
Health & Beauty
Houses for Rent
Houses for Sale
Housesitting
Jewelry
Instruction
Lost & Found
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Musical Instruments
Musicians
Musicians Wanted
Music Lessons
Personals
Pets for Sale
Resumes
Rides Wanted
Room for Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate WantedServices
Sports
Stereo/ CD Equip.
Summer Sublet
TVs for Sale
Tickets
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Typing Services
Tutoring Services
Tutor Wanted
Used Books
Wanted To Rent
Wanted
World Wide Web
Yard Sales

Five College Community Calendar

FRIDAY , SEPT. 111

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild will be holding auditions for their Fall production of "The Wiz," at 6 p.m. in Campus Center 101. No preparation is necessary and all are welcome. For more information, call

SATURDAY, SEPT. 122

545-0415.

Astronomy — There will be free solar observing at 1 p.m. at Amherst town common. Anyone is welcome to attend.

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild will be holding auditions for their Fall production of "The Wiz," at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. No preparation is necessary and all are welcome. For more information, call 545-0415.

Lecture — Rosana Pellizzari, M.D. will give a lecture entitled Universal Health Care — The Canadian Model — What We Can Learn at 11 a.m. at 129 Main St. in Northampton. The lecture is free and open to the public.

NOTICES

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through October 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for its frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. For more information, call 545-0883.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. For more details, contact Gina at (508) 849–5600 ext. 201.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs and to work on special projects. For more details, call 545-0883.

Voting — Absentee ballots are now available in the Town Clerk's office for the September 15 state primary. The deadline to apply for an absentee ballot is noon on September 14.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Grand Opening Specials End Saturday!

NEW Ustore™
Not like a mall... Better.™

HSCN Hosting Services Cable Network

2	HSCN Bulletin Board	10	UVC-TV19
3	CBS/3 Hartford	20	ABC/40 Springfield
4	CBS/4 Boston	22	NBC/22 Springfield
5	ABC/5 Boston	24	CNN
6	PBS/57 Springfield	25	CNN SI
7	HSCN Movie Ch.	26	Headline News
8	UPN/20 Hartford	27	UCTV
9	Weather Channel	28	TBS
12	NBC/30 New Britain	29	BET
21	Fox/61 Hartford	30	TV Land
23	PBS/24 Hartford	31	Univision
32	WCCH & HSCN	34	Comedy Central
146	International	35	Cartoon
147	UMass Academic TV	36	Much Music
148	HSCN Programming

FRIDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 11, 1998

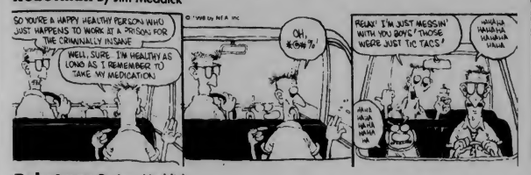
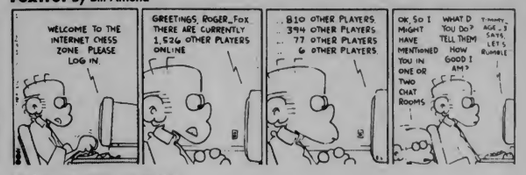
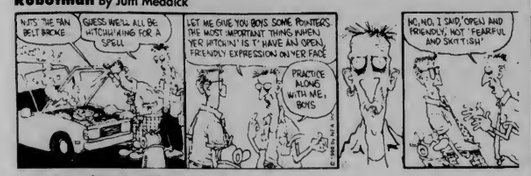
		C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	12	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Connecticut Journal		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	Scientific American Frontiers		Nova "The Doomsday Asteroid"
WFSB	3	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Real TV	JAG "Code Blue" (In Stereo)		Kids-Darndest	Candid C.	Nash Bridges (R) (In Stereo)		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	4	News	CBS News	Billy Graham Crusade		JAG "Code Blue" (In Stereo)		Kids-Darndest	Candid C.	Nash Bridges (R) (In Stereo)		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Sabrina-Witch (One Saturday		Boy-World	Teen Angel	20/20		News	Nightline
WLVI	6	56	Full House	Boy World	Fresh Prince	Fresh Prince	"Flight of the Navigator" (1986, Fantasy) Joey Cramer,				News		Star Trek: Next Gener.
WHDH	7	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Dateline (In Stereo)		Law & Order "Burden" (R)		Homicide: Life on the Street		News	Tonight Show
WTXX		9	Married... With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	"To the Right Thing" (1989, Drama) Danny Aiello,		Law & Order "Burden" (R)		News	LLAPD	Vibe (R)
WWJT		38	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Dateline (In Stereo)		Law & Order "Burden" (R)		Homicide: Life on the Street		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	8	61	Simpsons	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	Frasier	Captivity	Get. Personal	Millennium (In Stereo) (PA)		News		Mad Abt. You	Mad Abt. You
WWLP	9	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Dateline (In Stereo)		Law & Order "Burden" (R)		Homicide: Life on the Street		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	10	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	State We're In	This Week	Monty Python	Monty Python	Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	28	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	Sabrina-Witch	One Saturday	Boy-World	Teen Angel	20/20		News	Nightline
WSBK	38		Mad Abt. You	Mad Abt. You	Seinfeld	Frasier	"Flight of the Intruder" (1991, Adventure) Danny Glover,				News	Cheers	M*A*S*H	Real TV
WTBS	42		Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Major League Baseball	Florida Marlins at Atlanta Braves. (Live).						"All the Right Moves" (1983) Tom Cruise,
A&E	43		Northern Exposure		Law & Order "Discord"		Biography "Geraldo Rivera"		American Justice "L.A.P.D."		Murder, She Wrote		Law & Order "Paranoia"
CNN	44	23	Worldview	Moneyline	Newshour	Crossfire	World Today		Larry King Live		World Today		Sports	Moneyline
COM	45	36	"Soul Man" (1986, Comedy) C. Thomas Howell,				"Johnny Be Good" (1988, Comedy) Anthony Michael Hall,				"Back to School" (1986, Comedy) Rodney Dangerfield,
DISC	46		Wings "Fighter Retreat" (R)		Gimme Shelter (R)		Wild Discovery: Komodo		News	World Wond.	Regina Planet "Blizzard" (R)		Useless Files "Hard Evidence"
ESPN	47		Up Close	Sportscenter		Auto Racing	NASCAR Grand National - Autolite Platinum 250.				NASCAR's Greatest Drivers	Baseball	Sportscenter
LIFE	48		Ellen	Ellen	Party of Five (In Stereo)		Chicago Hope "Internal Affairs"		"Starr" (1983, Drama) Jennie Garth, Ted Wass				New Attitudes	Golden Girls
MTV	49		5:00 Spice Girls' Favorite Videos (R) (In Stereo)				Spice Girls' Favorite Videos		Total Request (In Stereo)		Matt Damon	Fanatic (R)	Fanatic (R)	Loveline (R)
NICK	50		Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Kablam!	Animorphs	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	I Love Lucy	Bewitched
SCIFI	51		Amaz. Stories	Sci-Fi Entert.	Sightings		Star Trek "Daggar of the Mind"		Taken "Talkastic"				Sightings	Star Trek
TLC	52	26	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	48 Hours "Child Hunter" (R)		X Men (R)		Oh Derrick (R)		48 Hours "Child Hunter" (R)
TNT	53		Babylon 5 (In Stereo)		ER "Chicago Hope" (In Stereo)		"Rolling Point" (1993, Drama)		Wesley Snipes, Dennis Hopper,		"Sugar Hill" (1993, Drama)		Wesley Snipes, Michael Wright,
USA	55		Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess		Walker, Texas Ranger				"Drugnet" (1987, Comedy) Dan Aykroyd, (In Stereo)
HBO	60		(5:15) "Addams Family Values"		Inside the NFL (In Stereo)		"Escape From New York" (1981)				"Who Am I?" (1998, Comedy) Jackie Chan, (NR)		Chris Rock
MAX	61		"Summer School" (1987, Comedy) Mark Harmon, PG-13				"A Smile Like Yours" (1997) Greg Kinnear,		Speed 2		"Speed 2: Cruise Control" (1997) Sandra Bullock, PG-13
SHOW	63		"Sing" (1989, Drama) Lorraine Bracco (In Stereo) PG-13				"Grease" (1978, Musical) John Travolta, (In Stereo) PG				Stargate SG-1	Dead Man's Gun		Outer Limits



Dilbert By Scott Adams



Drabble By Kevin Fagan



Robotman By Jim Meddick

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Robotman By Jum Meddick

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — The truth may prove elusive throughout the day, but if you are persistent you can uncover information you need to carry out your plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — There are things best left out of open conversation today— and it's up to you to keep things on the right track all day long.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov 21) — You may be thinking too much about something that is actually far more simple than it seems. Let things happen naturally at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You're going to want to keep your eyes and ears open all day long. Information surrounds you, and you can make use of almost all of it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You're getting more judgmental than usual at this time. Use great care to avoid attracting criticism yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Someone you know well is trying to involve you in a questionable project at this time. You must remind him or her that you are not playing games.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You may find yourself racing against the clock today — even after you tried to schedule your time with greater care. Don't let yourself down.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — The most popular path may not work for you today, and you mustn't let friends talk you into anything that doesn't feel right.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You may find yourself working with someone today who was a stiff competitor only yesterday. You can learn a lot from adopting new strategies.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You're likely to uncover a small piece of information today which may have you changing your plans rather quickly— without any advance warning.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You may feel a strong attraction today to someone from whom you would usually keep your distance. Explore what's going on.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Today's endeavors are likely to take on an unusual tone or character, leading you to think that things are undergoing a permanent change.

Quote of the Day

"Well, how the hell'd you get the beans above the frank?!"

–Mary's step-father

Close to Home By John McPherson

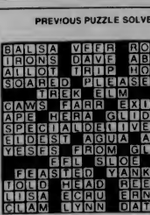
"So then I said, 'A simple procedure that will give me better hearing than I've eve had, and without the hassle of a hearing aid?! Where do I sign?!"

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more informa-

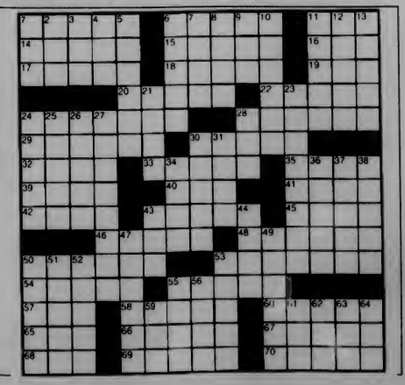
Franklin
LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Fish Munchies
DINNER
Country Style Ribs
Baked Ziti
Charbroiled Chicken BreastSandwich

Worcester
LUNCH
Fish Munchies
Mesquite Chicken Sandwich
Bow Ties/Tomato or Basil Sauce
Tri-Bean Casserole
DINNER
Beef Strips w/Snow Peas & Mush.
Fried Shrimp Dinner
Stir Fry Veggies and Tofu
Pastabilities

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Fish Munchies
DINNER
Beef Strips w/Snow Peas and Mush.
Lemon Pepper Cod



Berkshire
LUNCH
Fish Munchies
Buffalo Chicken/Honey Wheat Wrap
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Vegan Raviloi
DINNER
Beef Strips w/Snow Peas & Mush.
Baked Ziti
Stir Fry Veggies & Tofu
Pastabilities



Night Editor: Erin Murphy
Photo Editor: David Biloha
Copy Editor: Joseph Savitch
Design Assistant: Angie Annese
Production Staff: Jeremy Brothers, David Parmenter

ACROSS
1 Maureen of filmdom
6 Mature
11 Gullet
14 Yellow gem
15 Western show
16 Physicians' org
17 Chirp
18 Birch
19 Roman dozen
20 Overhangs
22 Principal conduits
24 Incomplete
28 Woodchuck
29 Like a fan's voice
30 Overflowed
32 — Minor constellation
33 Honeydew e g
35 Tennis pro Nastase
39 Adolescent
40 Armed conflict
41 Price
42 Be impudent
43 "Saturday Night —"
45 Mascara target
46 Large deer
48 Means of access
50 Wandering
53 Bedroom furnishing
54 Textbook parts
55 Vast 57 Fellows
58 Walking
60 Noticeable
65 Cove
66 Rent
67 Brings in (as salary)
68 Everyth ng
69 Go in 70 Purse handle

DOWN
1 Baseball s Mel
2 In what way?
3 Orangutan for one
4 Norma
5 Conquistadors foes
6 Meat juice
7 Actor's need
8 Chances
9 Tiny
10 Typical
11 Adage
12 — acid
13 Bell's place
21 Feline cough
23 Objects
24 Closes
25 1988 Olympics site
26 Relieves
27 Send
28 Least amt
30 Work hard
31 Tiny opening
34 Flock members
36 Bank transactions
37 Hand out
38 Early anesthetic
43 Haze
44 — avis
47 Reduced for clearance
49 Presidential acts
50 Cuban dance
51 Puper Moon actress
52 Upholstery material
53 Prevent (actions)
55 Farm animal
56 Fragrant flower
59 Bog
61 Tab
62 End up
63 Genetic letters
64 Cook's amt

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

SPORTS

Friday, September 11, 1998 — The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

UMass to square off vs. Spiders

By Brett Mauser
Collegian Staff

Both went up against formidable opponents, both fell by the slightest of margins, and now both the Massachusetts football team and the Richmond Spiders are looking to come out on the winning side.

Only a lapse of concentration from senior co-captain Kerry Taylor could separate the Minutemen (0–1) from chalking up a victory vs. third-ranked Delaware last Thursday. The Maroon and White fell 33–30.

Two days later, Richmond and Division I-A Rutgers battled for four quarters, with the Spiders coming out on the short end, 7–6.

It's the tale of two teams going into tomorrow's 1 p.m. kickoff at UR Stadium (91.1 WMUA). UMass brings an offense that netted the first 300-yard passing game since 1986. Last year, the aerial attack found gaps in the Richmond (0–1) defense, gaining 186 yards total. Taylor caught a six-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jeff Smith in the early moments, but the Minutemen were shut out in the final three quarters. The Minutemen could only muster up 44 yards rushing and were plagued by turnovers, fumbling the ball away twice.

Minuteman quarterback Todd Bankhead opened up his college career with a memorable 323-yard performance, tossing four touchdowns. He especially benefitted from a standout game out of the backfield from Matt Jordan and Marcell Shipp. Jordan caught a career-high seven balls for 74 yards and opened up some holes for Shipp to continue his success, accumulating 88 yards on 17 carries.

Costly turnovers upstaged his career day. An Andy Maclay blocked punt, which turned into six points for the Blue Hens, was followed by a Shipp fumble deep in the Delaware zone.

Linebacker Khari Samuel suffered a broken nose in the loss, but played on to register 15 tackles at the middle linebacker spot. He notched a career-high 19 tackles vs. the Spiders in last year's game and will start in tomorrow's contest.

The Spiders counter with a defense that forced four Scarlet Knights turnovers. Last year's UR defense, which led the Atlantic 10 in total defense, returns only five starters. Among the five is Fall River native Marc Megna, a senior defensive tackle coming off a 14-sack season. Megna, along with Samuel, were the only finalists for the Buck Buchanan Award from the Atlantic 10.

Last weekend a holding penalty brought back a 55-yard pass play that had the Spiders flirting with paydirt at the Rutgers six-yard line. A play later, Richmond punted the ball away and Rutgers held the ball for the remaining four minutes.

Spiders quarterback Jimmie Miles took over the starting job late in the season last year. He was the Achilles' heel in the loss against Rutgers, completing only seven of 16 passes for 57 yards. After a dismal 2-for-9 showing in the first half, Spiders' coach Jim Reid turned to the running game. Miles and two other backs compiled over 60 yards each on the ground to keep it close versus the Scarlet Knights.

The Minutemen will have a tremendous size advantage down the field, as receivers Jimmy Moore and Steve Ley have a few inches on Spiders' defensive backs Chris Anderson and Winston October, who both stand at 5–foot 7– inches. Moore picked up five receptions and a touchdown in the loss to Delaware while Ley saw limited action due to a sore back.

Richmond coach Jim Reid, who spent six years in Amherst coaching the Minutemen, has shifted gears, taking over the reins of the Spiders. In his era, Richmond has a 36–29–2 record, including a 7–3–1 campaign in 1995 in which he garnered Atlantic 10 Co-Coach of the Year honors, in his inaugural season.

Tomorrow's battle marks the 1000th game in Richmond football history. The Minutemen are hoping to be the spoilers, as the Spiders have taken three of the last four decisions from the Minutemen.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts football team will look for its first win of the season tomorrow afternoon at 1 p.m. when they face the University of Richmond.

UMass looking for first victory

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

Talk about a tricky predicament.

That's exactly what the Massachusetts women's soccer team is in after losing its first two games of the season to Brigham Young University and Arizona State University.

Now, this weekend, the Minutewomen will take their 0–2 mark into Ann Arbor, Mich. where they will probably get their toughest test of all this afternoon at 4 p.m. when they face the host Wolverines. UMass will also play Evansville on Sunday afternoon before returning home in preparation for Wednesday's game with regional rival and national runner–up Connecticut.

Kara Green

"Things don't get any easier for us this weekend. In fact, I think that Michigan is probably going to be the most skilled team that we've seen so far," UMass coach Jim Rudy said. "Plus they feel like they owe us one after what happened last year [a 2–1 UMass win in Amherst]."

Emma Kurowski

Offense hasn't been a problem for the Minutewomen in their first two games. Kara Green leads the team with three goals while Emma Kurowski has the other. Along with senior co–captain Sophie Lecot, sophomore Brooke Bartlett and midfielder Tarah Tokarchik, this quintet should provide most of the offensive punch for UMass this weekend.

The defense has also played well in the first two outings, but fell victim to a lack of height in the loss to ASU. The Sun Devils scored a pair of goals off corner kicks and caught some lucky bounces which resulted in goals.

Goalkeeper Angie Napoli has also made some spectacular saves in the net, but the Minutewomen know it will take a combination of solid play from all three components to come away with a pair of victories this weekend.

Sunday's game against Evansville (0–1–1 at press time) will represent the first ever meeting between the two schools. Evansville plays Detroit Mercy today in the other half of the weekend affair.

The Indiana school is led by junior forward Jennifer Lembeck, who has both of her team's goals on the season.

"Evansville is also a very good team," Rudy said. "We know it's not going to get any easier from here until the beginning of October."

The Minutewomen will then travel to Storrs, Conn. on Wednesday at 4 p.m. to face the Huskies. UConn upended UMass, 2–1, last year in Amherst.

Men's soccer looks for win No. 1 against Black Bears

By Lauryn DiBenedetto
Collegian Correspondent

After a heartbreaking loss to the University of Hartford on Wednesday, the Massachusetts men's soccer team has high hopes of a fast recovery when they travel to the University of Maine on Saturday.

Carmelo Garcia

Under the eye of coach Scott Atherley, co–captain and forward Andy Guastaferro will lead the attack for the Black Bears. Guastaferro, a senior midfielder, will have to break through the wall which UMass goalkeeper Todd Fowler creates in front of the net. Fowler, who had the fourth shutout of his career last Sunday, will have to keep a close eye on Guastaferro.

Although the Minutemen have not scored a goal yet this season, coach Sam Koch is confident about Saturday's game.

"The offense is a major problem right now," Koch said in an interview following Wednesday's game against Hartford. "We had been shooting better as a team in practices lately, and we will perform better on the field this season."

Todd Fowler

UMass holds a 21–10–1 all–time advantage over Maine. In a meeting with the Black Bears last year, the Minutemen defeated Maine in a 3–2 overtime game when Mike Butler scored a goal in the first overtime with just six seconds left to play.

The Minutemen may not have Butler to score a goal this time around, but they do have Carmelo "Pic" Garcia and Adam Black to pick up where Butler left off.

Black, who in his first two games of the season had seven shots, will be one player who the Black Bars will have to watch for.

With the Minutemen still reeling from their losses this season, coach Koch seems confident that the Minutemen will prevail and head in the right direction.

"Some questions for this team have already been answered," Koch said. "But there are still some issues that need to be settled so we can move on and improve our performance."

Volleyball heading west for weekend

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The reigning Atlantic 10 Player of the Week, Rebecca Hasson, and the rest of the Massachusetts women's volleyball team are in Arizona this morning as they prepare to engage in their second tournament of the season, the Varsity Club of America Classic.

The Minutewomen take their 2–2 record into Arizona to battle, among others, No. 25 Arizona. Arizona is undefeated heading into this weekend's play. The players the Minutewomen have to watch for are the starting middle blockers from Arizona, Marissa DaLee and Keisha Johnson Demps. Dalee and Demps both had outstanding first tournaments.

UMass will also take on Big West Eastern Conference leader, Idaho (1–0). Jessica Moore is the Vandals best player averaging 5.67 kills per game and well over a block per game.

Portland State will also take to the court against UMass. Portland St. enters this weekend at 2–3 on the season. The Vikings were able to steal wins from Toledo and UC–Irvine.

Western Michigan rounds out the weekend for UMass on Sunday. The Broncos enter the classic 3–2, but their victories have come at the hands of weaker Midwestern opponents.

"Hopefully we can build on the wins at the Phoenix, and have it carry over into the rest of the season," Massachusetts coach Bonnie Kenny said.

UMass heads into the Varsity Club Classic having improved with every game in the Phoenix Invitational last weekend. The star of the tournament for UMass was Rebecca Hasson, who was named A–10 Player of the Week. She set a career high with eight block assists and 18 kills. Hasson led the team with a .295 attack percentage, and 19 blocks. The Riverside, Calif. native also contributed with 39 digs and 42 kills.

Other contributors this weekend will include Heather Holtsberg and Jenny Drennan. from the setter position as they did at the Phoenix Invitational. Drennan had 133 assists, while freshman Holtsberg chipped in with 38, which included a career high 21 in the BYU match.

On the outside UMass will come with the junior attack of Kari Hogancamp and Jill Meyers. Hogancamp has once again started her assault on the A–10 digs title. She has led the conference for the last two seasons, and had 48 this weekend. The junior co–captain is also second on the team behind Meyers with 49 kills.

Meyers will also be a huge part of the Minutewomen attack. She leads the team in kills with 53 and also dug out 37 balls, but the addition that will help the team this weekend is the play of Katie Gibbons, who missed the first two matches of the Phoenix Invitational with the flu. The sophomore's contributions for a full tournament will be helpful to the UMass cause. The Purdue transfer contributed 22 kills and 19 digs to the UMass effort.

The Minutewomen improved their play in the second day of the Phoenix/UMass tournament. This was evident when five players were in double figures in kills against Delaware, and that both setters each had 21 assists against BYU.

If the Minutewomen continue to play as a team this weekend they should be competitive against the Varsity Club of America Classic competition.

"If we stay in system and don't let up we should do fine," Kenny said.

UM water polo squad faces trio this weekend

By Jana Benscoter
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's water polo team is working toward another winning season. They began their season in Annapolis, Md. facing Salem Teikyo, Iona, Bucknell, and Queens at the Navy Invitational this past weekend.

Coach Russ Yarworth

The Minutemen have a strong team again this season, losing only two seniors. Leading the squad with experience are its five seniors; Chad Filiault, Marrero, Scott McCall, Roman, and Stahl. According to Massachusetts coach Russ Yarworth. "These men are leaders by ability and attitude." Joining the squad this year are seven freshmen. Three of the freshmen, Carlos Ramos, Evan Lutz, and Greg Trayer will add strength to this UMass team early. Ramos has already contributed by netting four goals over the weekend.

The Minutemen started off the first game. The top scorers against Salem–Teikyo were seniors Aldo Roman with three goals, and Brian Stahl and Gabriel Marrero with two each. In the second game against Iona, freshmen Carlos Ramos gave the Minutemen a push by scoring four goals. Also scoring against Iona were seniors Marrero and Stahl and juniors Rich Slingluff, Timmy Troupis, and Cory Koenemann, who each netted a pair of goals.

Brian Stahl

Against Bucknell, senior Brian Stahl scored another four goals, while Roman added two. In the final game against Queens, Troupis scored three times and Roman found the net twice.

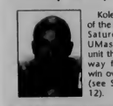
Yarworth spoke very highly of his squad saying they are hard workers, practicing six hours a day, and are among the best athletes in their sport.

In addition, the Minutemen have no home matches this season and have obstacles in their training facilities. The Boyden pool is not the standard size for a water polo competition, being too shallow. However, Yarworth added, "There are obstacles in the facilities, but they [the players] are great teammates."

This weekend the men's team will be heading to Cambridge, Mass. to face the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at 10:30 a.m., Fordham at 1:30 p.m., and Harvard at 7:30 p.m., at the CWPA League Tournament.

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CIV Issue 4 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Monday, September 14, 1998

Good Card Game Hunting

Matt Damon and Edward Norton lead a top–notch cast in the gambling drama Rounders. Check out our review (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Defense wins championships

Kole Ayi was one of the mainstays on Saturday for a UMass defensive unit that paved the way for a 22–17 win over Richmond (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Angry protesters use arson as retaliation

TIRANA, Albania (AP)— Protesters angry over the killing of an opposition leader set fire to Albania's main government building Sunday and sent the prime minister and his Cabinet fleeing in a hail of gunfire.

One protester was killed and four of Prime Minister Fatos Nano's guards were wounded as marchers and police traded gunfire. Clouds of smoke from burning cars rose over the center of the capital. Opposition leader Sali Berisha urged his followers to remain calm until Monday's funeral of popular politician Azem Hajdari, 35, who was shot to death Saturday in front of opposition Democratic Party headquarters. A bodyguard was also killed.

Berisha blamed Nano's Socialist Party for the killing and warned him to resign within 24 hours or face "catastrophic consequences." Berisha's followers, some of them weeping in grief, chanted "kill, kill, kill Fatos Nano."

NATION

Airline settles contract; vow to move forward

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — With its pilots' contract settled, Northwest Airlines is turning its attention to its other five unions, getting planes back in the air and rebuilding relationships with customers. "Once a contract is resolved, everybody has the same common interest in moving forward," Northwest spokesman Jon Austin said. Business was slow Sunday at Twin Cities International Airport, but promised to pick up as a quarter of the flights were expected to be back on schedule by Wednesday. Full service was expected by Sept. 21.

The 17-member executive council of the Air Line Pilots Association ratified the contract Saturday night to send its 6,200 pilots back to work. The 31,000 Northwest employees laid off because of the 15-day strike were told to be ready to return to work.

"The pilots were able to stave off presidential intervention and were able to reach a final agreement that was much closer to what they were looking for than what management was looking for," said Peter Rachleff, labor historian and history professor at Macalester College in St. Paul.

Journalism professor List honored

University of Massachusetts journalism students speak fondly of Freedom Forum honoree

By Mary Grein
Collegian Correspondent

On August 5, when University of Massachusetts Professor Karen List accepted the honor of being named by the Freedom Forum a 1998 Journalism Teacher of the year, the praise was no surprise.

For ten years List has dedicated her time to motivating and encouraging students at UMass. Marc J. Randazza, a UMass alumni and former student, fondly remembers List as the professor who prevented him from failing out of college a second time.

"Professor List motivated [me] in a manner that no other educator ever had before or since," Randazza said.

The $10,000 award was given to three professors to recognize journalism faculty for excellence in classroom teaching: List, Steven J. Helle, University of Illinois at Urbana–Champaign and Jacqueline E. Sharkey, University of Arizona.

List was pleased to be able to win an award for teaching the First Amendment.

"I am really thrilled to have received the award because I love what I teach. It means a lot to win an award for something that I feel is a privilege to teach," List said.

List, who teaches such classes as History of American Journalism and Journalism Ethics touches the hearts of her students while helping them to learn the value of the First Amendment.

"She is a life–changing teacher, one who understands that her most important function is to transform her students into people who know how to teach and to learn [for] themselves," said Dr. Mary Deane Sorcinelli, director of the Center for Teaching at UMass. It is due to this passion that List chooses to turn down administrative positions as director of UMass's Bachelor's Degree in Individual Concentration Program and as chair of the Journalism Department in order to concentrate on her teaching.

Ever since List began teaching in 1972, she has been recognized for her outstanding accomplishments including Distinguished Teaching Awards at the University of Wisconsin in 1979, at the University of Missouri in 1988, and most recently in 1993 at UMass. She was also a nominee for the University of Massachusetts in 1996, 1997 and 1998 for the CASE Professor of the year award.

"Still a reporter at heart," List's own writing has won her numerous awards including the Covert Award for the year's best journalism history article in 1995.

Back in the classroom teaching after having enjoyed a summer of travel and spending time with her children, List is currently National President of Kappa Tau Alpha, the journalism and mass communications honor society.

DAVE RENZI / COLLEGIAN

Looking for a bargain?
Tables set up for a tag sale on the Amherst town common Sunday afternoon.

Bosnia election; first since end of three year war

By Alexandar S. Dragicevic
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Bosnia's second postwar national election ended Sunday after two days of peaceful voting, but officials said it will take days before they know if voters favored moderates or hard-line ethnic leaders.

International officials who supervised the balloting, the second for national leaders since the end of Bosnia's devastating three and a half year war, hoped the outcome would bolster moderates who favor the Western-backed peace plan that halted the fighting.

First results were expected tomorrow but the final count could take nearly a week.

Turnout was high and some 62 polling stations allowed people to vote after the official closing time of 4 p.m., according to the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, which ran the election.

A computer error caused a few dozen of the more than 2,600 polling stations to fail to open Saturday. All but one operated on Sunday.

Bosnian Serb police arrested one man Sunday after a group entered a voting station and damaged a ballot

Turn to BOSNIA page 3

Zeman crosses state in anti-violence walk

By Stacey Shackford
Collegian Correspondent

Ben Zeman is going to attend a walk for women's safety in Boston later this month, but he's already started his commute.

Zeman started his trip to Boston on September 1. He is walking 500 miles solo, across Massachusetts, to raise awareness about domestic and sexual violence before he joins the Jane Doe Walk for Women's Safety in the state's capital September 20.

Zeman is walking to inform men as well as women that domestic violence is not only a "women's issue."

"Men need to get more involved with stopping men's violence against women, and this walk was one idea I had to get myself more involved," Zeman said.

Zeman's journey started in Greenfield and continued through the University of Massachusetts campus on September 3. When he reaches Boston, he will join thousands of others in the Jane Doe Walk.

This is the second year he has traversed the state in his consciousness raising campaign which has been primarily a one-man mission.

He wears a large sign while he walks and hands out flyers that read: "A man's pledge against violence against women". He has been staying in homes of friends and families as well as in churches during the trek.

Jennifer Cooper, who is affiliated with the Jane Doe Safety Fund, has been keeping in contact with Zeman

Turn to WALK, page 3

Clinton's future debated

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional Democrats, joined by a top Republican senator, spoke Sunday of a punishment short of impeachment for President Clinton and demanded his lawyers end "legal hairsplitting" as they rebut Kenneth Starr's report. "There's going to be some sort of sanction here," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. "The question is what — from impeachment to censure to rebuke to condemnation or what," the Utah Republican said.

Added Rep. David Bonior of Michigan, the second-ranking House Democrat: "I think in the days and months ahead you will find people talking about the middle option, that of a public rebuke for his personal behavior."

At the same time, with midterm elections looming, several Democrats said they hope the issue can be dealt with swiftly. Clinton skipped church services during the day, remaining out of the public eye in the White House.

But with his presidency clearly in peril, his lawyers and aides fanned out across the Sunday television talk shows to declare that whatever his transgressions, Clinton committed no impeachable offenses.

Starr's report, released Friday, cites 11 potentially impeachable offenses, all stemming from Clinton's sexual relationship with former intern Monica Lewinsky — described in explicit detail — and his later denials under oath.

The White House issued a blistering rebuttal Saturday that accused Starr of a "hit-and-run smear campaign" without legal merit.

Clinton's lead attorney, David Kendall, argued in the same vein in an appearance on ABC's "This Week." program: "The President did not commit perjury. Starr's report is full of graphic and unnecessarily salacious material. It is not relevant."

That type of lawyerly defense drew dismissive reaction from Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb. "The President's going to lose if they continue to do that," Kerrey said, appearing alongside Hatch on CBS' "Face the Nation."

"He is being very badly served with this legal hairsplitting," agreed Hatch. "I think the president has a chance of getting through this, if he'll quit split-

Jordan listed in Starr file

By Larry Margasak
Associated Press

WASHINGTON—When they met for breakfast, the President's friend Vernon Jordan told Monica Lewinsky to "make sure" any copies of notes she'd written President Clinton disappeared from her apartment.

When she moaned that the President made her mad, Jordan told her the problem was she was in love.

And as he worked to find her a lawyer — and a job — Jordan kept Clinton informed every step of the way, according to Jordan's testimony.

The new details of Jordan's interactions with Lewinsky last fall show that the Washington power broker is at the heart of some allegations against Clinton that Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr has outlined to Congress.

Kenneth Starr

Starr's report alleges that Clinton tried to obstruct justice by triggering the job hunt, when Lewinsky could have become a harmful witness to him in Paula Jones' sexual harassment lawsuit. Starr also contends that Clinton lied in the Jones case by denying his conversations with Jordan about Lewinsky.

Clinton's attorneys say the President generally was aware of Jordan's efforts on Lewinsky's behalf but never sought to facilitate them. "As a private individual, he is free to offer job advice wherever he sees fit," said the White House.

Among details in Starr's report: Lewinsky told Jordan that she "reacted to [Clinton] more as a man and got angry at him like ... just a regular person." Jordan told her: "You're in love, that's what your problem is," Lewinsky said.

Clinton ended his intimate relationship with Lewinsky in May 1997. According to presidential secretary Betty Currie, Clinton "was pushing us [White House staff] hard" to get Lewinsky a second tour of duty in the White House. Senior staffers opposed the move, and no job materialized.

On Oct. 11, Lewinsky asked Clinton whether his friend Jordan could help her.

There is conflicting testimony about who initiated the contact with Jordan. Regardless, Jordan met with Lewinsky, began a job search and, he told the grand jury, kept Clinton informed. "We're in business," Jordan told Lewinsky November 5, 1997, agreeing to use his contacts to help her.

On Dec. 5, Jones' attorneys sent the President's lawyers a witness list that included Lewinsky. Clinton called Lewinsky in the middle of the night December 17 to inform her. On Dec. 19, Lewinsky was subpoenaed by Jones' lawyers. In tears, she called Jordan for help and then went to his office. White House records show the president called there 10 minutes later. Then Jordan contacted Washington lawyer Francis Carter seeking representation for Lewinsky.

"You think he's a good lawyer?" Jordan said he was asked by Clinton. Jordan assured the President he was.

"At some point, according to Jordan, Lewinsky asked him about the future of the Clintons' marriage," the report said. "Jordan testified he then asked her if there had been a sexual relationship with the President, and she denied it."

Visiting with Clinton at the White House the same day, Jordan testified, he asked the President whether he had a sexual relationship with Lewinsky. Clinton replied, "No, never." On the last day of 1997, Lewinsky testified, she and Jordan met for breakfast at Washington's Park Hyatt Hotel. She told Jordan her friend Linda Tripp might have seen "notes from me to the President" in her apartment.

President Bill Clinton

"According to Lewinsky, Jordan said: 'Go home and make sure they're not there.' Lewinsky testified that she understood that Jordan was advising her to 'throw ... away' any copies or drafts she had sent to the President," the Starr report said. "When Lewinsky returned home to her apartment that day, she discarded approximately 50 draft notes to the President," it said. Jordan testified he had not had breakfast with Lewinsky that day. But the Starr report said strong circumstantial evidence existed to support Lewinsky's testimony, including a Park Hyatt receipt.

On Jan. 6, 1998, Lewinsky picked up a draft affidavit from Carter in which she denied a sexual relationship with Clinton. She testified she had Jordan review it because it was "like getting it 'blessed' by the President."

The next day, Jordan said he told the president

Turn to STARR, page 3

EXTENDED FORECAST

Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday
HIGH: 80 LOW: 60	HIGH: 84 LOW: 57	HIGH: 74 LOW: 43

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 12
Comics.....page 13
Crossword .....page 13
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 12
News.....page 1
Sports .....page 14

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

NY Times is issued threat

By Chris Allbritton
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The web page of The New York Times was hacked Sunday morning by a group supporting imprisoned hacker Kevin Mitnick.

An editor discovered the hack at 7:50 a.m., and the page was taken down to be repaired, said Nancy Nielson, a Times spokeswoman. "The material was so offensive," she said.

The Times contacted the FBI, she said.

In a mishmash of creative spelling and vague threats against a black background, a group calling itself HFG, or "Hacking for Girlies," ridiculed several members of the Times staff.

It took special interest in reporter John Markoff, who wrote "TakeDown," a book detailing the search for Mitnick, convicted of computer-related fraud charges, whose imprisonment since 1995 has been a cause celebre in the hacker community.

"Do you have nightmares about helping imprison Kevin?" they wrote. "Knowing that your lies and deceit helped bring down this injustice?"

Nielson said Markoff had been the target of hackers before, but there had been no attacks in "quite a while."

HFG buried additional comments within the source code, the written computer instructions which produced the replacement page. Those comments were less threatening, lacked the creative spellings and included quotes from Alfred Tennyson, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Voltaire.

Kennedy is Supreme Court's "man in the middle"

By Laurie Asseo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Here's a rule of thumb for following the Supreme Court: Keep your eyes on Justice Anthony M. Kennedy. In each of the last six terms, Kennedy has cast fewer dissenting votes than any of his eight colleagues on the nation's highest court. He votes in the majority in most of the court's 5-4 rulings, tipping the balance on such divisive issues as abortion, flag-burning, affirmative action and separation of church and state.

"He is the center of the court," said Michael Dorf, a former Kennedy law clerk who is now a Columbia University law professor. In that way, Kennedy is much like the man he replaced in 1988, the late Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., another "man in the middle" who controlled the outcome of some of the court's most closely contested cases.

But the court has shifted to the right since Powell's day. So is Kennedy's current pivotal role due more to the man or to the justices who surround him?

"There's an intersection of the man and the moment," said University of Virginia law professor A.E. "Dick" Howard. "At another time he might not find himself enjoying this kind of balance of power."

Pepperdine University law professor Douglas Kmiec described Kennedy as a moderate conservative who "has not proven to be the consistent conservative voice that perhaps the Reagan administration thought he would be."

"Will the real Anthony Kennedy please stand up?" said Thomas Jipping of the conservative Free Congress Foundation, who contends Kennedy too often bases his vote on his own views rather than the Constitution's text.

On some cases, Kennedy certainly has not cast the votes that might have been expected from Robert Bork, President Reagan's first choice, whom the Senate refused to confirm. Kennedy was Reagan's third choice after Douglas Ginsburg withdrew over allegations of marijuana-smoking.

Bork says he would have provided the fifth vote to overturn the 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling that legalized abortion nationwide. But in 1992, Kennedy joined with Justices Sandra Day O'Connor and David H. Souter in an unusual co-authored opinion as the court voted 5-4 to reaffirm the right to abortion.

Kennedy's vote in that case reflects his views on the need to uphold legal precedent, said Yale University law professor Akhil Amar.

"He's got this very strong vision of the role of the court," Amar said. "He thought, rightly or wrongly, the court said this and to back away from it would weaken the role of the court." Kennedy has voted to uphold the right to burn the American flag as a political protest and to bar states from imposing term limits on members of Congress. But he also joined 5-4 rulings that imposed significant limits on affirmative action and made it much harder for states to draw voting districts intended to boost the political influence of minorities.

He also is comfortable with the court's decidedly conservative direction on criminal law.

Two years ago, Kennedy wrote for the court when it handed gay-rights advocates a major victory by throwing out a Colorado measure that banned laws protecting homosexuals from discrimination.

Such a decision, and its lofty language that a state cannot "deem a class of persons a stranger to its laws," may have been unexpected from a generally conservative justice. But Howard and others say it follows from Kennedy's votes on affirmative action and his view of a colorblind Constitution.

"The common theme is the notion that you treat people as individuals, not as groups," Howard said.

Kennedy's jurisprudence can result in seemingly inconsistent results. In 1992, he wrote for the court in another narrowly divided ruling that declared school-initiated prayers at public high school graduation ceremonies were an unconstitutional government establishment of religion. But last year, he and four other justices decided that public school teachers can offer remedial help at church-run schools.

Sunday studying
A couple of students take advantage of the good weather by the Durfee Conservatory on the first weekend back at school.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics–Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS
• CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS •
LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • VR
BIKE • LIFEROWER • CRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

TEXTBOOK RECEIPTS=REBATES
GET A 5% REBATE ON THE NEW BOOKS YOU PURCHASE
SAVE YOUR RECEIPTS
www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex
University Store • Textbook Annex
SAVE YOUR RECEIPT
Our Refund Policy
If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within 7 calendar days of the first day of classes. Thereafter, incorrect titles may be returned within 48 hours of purchase providing the book is new and unmarked.
1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the month of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule obtained from the Registrar. Any new books must be unmarked.
2. Keep your receipt(s). Refunds on textbooks cannot be made unless the sales receipt(s) accompanies the book.
3. Always have your current I.D. available. This is required for any refund transactions.
The return of unsold books to the publisher begins seven weeks after the beginning of the semester. After the seventh week you might not be able to purchase the books you need.
RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH MONDAY SEPTEMBER 21, 1998.
Beginning TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1998 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.
The schedule may be obtained from the registrar office in Whitmore; do not wait for them to mail.
New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.
Any incorrect titles purchased after TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase. Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.
Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21.
www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex
Textbook Annex
UNIVERSITY STORE
AMHERST
textbook annex
Fall '98 Schedule
We accept cash, personal check, Ucard, Visa, and MasterCard as forms of payment.
We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.
buyback
SECOND WEEK - Sept. 14 -18
Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm
Monday - Friday, 9am-4pm at the Textbook Annex, beginning September 21, 1998
annex rush
Fall 1998 Book Rush Hours
Second Week Sept. 14 - 18
Monday - Friday 9am - 6pm
Third Week
Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm
Normal Hours
Monday - Friday 9am - 4pm

■ walk

continued from page 1

throughout the walk. She said there has been a good response to his informational journey. Occasionally, people have even joined him along the way.

Zeman is planning to get more people to join him as he completes his walk in Boston and begins the Jane Doe Walk. Between 5,000–8,000 men and women have been participating in the Jane Doe Walk every year since it started in 1991.

The Jane Doe Walk is the annual fundraiser of the Massachusetts Coalition for Battered Women, founded in 1978.

According to Anne-Marie Quemmie-Alleyne, Director of the Jane Doe Safety Fund, 60 percent of the funds from this event go to member programs and 40 percent go to community education. Member programs provide direct services to women and children and include local groups such as the Everywoman's Center and Necesities/Necesidades.

Tim VanNess works at the Men's Resource Center in Amherst and believes there is more awareness among men about domestic violence than there has been in the past. In addition, he feels men's issues are becoming more popular in the cultural mindset.

Men Overcoming Violence (MOVE) is a program of the Men's Resource Center. It is a state certified batterer's intervention program that works with men who have used physical, emotional, verbal, economic or sexual abuse as a means to control their partners.

The program was started in 1989, and presently involves approximately 70 men. VanNess said many of these men seek assistance after noticing control issues in their intimate relationships.

■ Bosnia

continued from page 1

box in the Bosnian Serb village of Lokanj, about 60 miles northeast of Sarajevo, according to U.N. police.

Otherwise, calm prevailed for an election considered crucial to the future of the 1995 Dayton peace accord.

About 33 percent of registered voters cast ballots Saturday and more than that voted on Sunday.

"I think these elections are a good chance to finally change the situation in which we are living now. I'm not quite sure how much people from these areas will use that chance," said Senada Malanovic, 25, a Muslim woman in Mostar in southwestern Bosnia. Under the peace agreement, Bosnia is divided into two entities — a Serb republic and a Muslim-Croat federation. Voters selected a three-member presidency — one from each ethnic group — along with a national parliament and separate parliaments in each entity. But hard-line politicians on all three sides and ethnic mistrust have slowed progress. One of the major issues is refugees — an estimated 1 million displaced people still cannot go home to areas controlled by rival ethnic groups.

More than 30,000 NATO-led troops, mostly from the United States and Europe, impose security in Bosnia as international officials try to use the Dayton agreement to force the country toward European integration.

Western allies led by the United States and the European Union effectively run the country and hope ethnic-driven political parties that waged the war will lose support this weekend and eventually fade away.

In the first postwar election in 1996 and a local ballot last year, the ruling hard-line parties won, but saw their backing decrease.

Ethnic nationalist sentiment remains strong, however, and the outcome of major races involving hard-line candidates was uncertain.

A total of 83 parties, coalitions and independent candidates, were listed on the complicated ballots, with voters choosing only leaders in the entity in which they registered. More than 2.7 million of Bosnia's 4.3 million people were registered.

■ Starr

continued from page 1

Lewinsky signed the affidavit, and Clinton replied, "Fine, good." "Jordan said he was continuing to work on her job, and the president responded, 'Good,'" the Starr report said.

The next day, Jan. 8, Jordan's job search landed Lewinsky an interview in New York with MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. The Interviewer did not offer her a job, but Jordan called company chairman Ronald Perelman "to make things happen," Jordan testified.

On Jan. 9, Lewinsky interviewed with the company's Revlon subsidiary—where Jordan served on the board—and was informally offered a job.

"Mission accomplished," Jordan said he told Currie. "Thank you very much," Jordan quoted Clinton as saying. The job was formally offered on Jan. 13. "This was pretty fast," a Revlon official said in her testimony.

Just over a week later, the job had disappeared along with Lewinsky's private life. The story of her relationship with Clinton was in headlines.

■ future

continued from page 1

ting legal hairs, if he'll quit playing this legal game."

At the same time, the White House's counterattack against Starr was achieving success among the public. A CBS poll, taken Saturday, found 60 percent of those responding believed Starr included numerous lurid sexual details in his report to embarrass the President. Only 33 percent believed it was to prove perjury. Hatch said he talked with Clinton on his car phone Sunday. Asked whether the President told him he might admit perjury and accept censure, Hatch replied, "No, he did not."

Andrew Jackson is the only president to be formally censured by Congress, and the 1834 vote was later expunged by the Senate. Clinton's political fate will begin to come into clearer focus at the beginning of the week, when lawmakers return to Washington from a weekend of campaigning and testing public opinion in their home districts.

Even before Judiciary Committee members have a chance to complete their review of Starr's evidence, officials expressed a growing belief that the House is likely to take the next step and vote a formal impeachment inquiry.

"Ultimately, if the president and the Congress want to have the due process that they are both allowed in this instance, we may end up going to that next level," Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., the third-ranking House Democrat, said on ABC.

Speaking on condition of anonymity, other officials in both parties said such a step was growing more likely, and before Congress wraps up work and returns home for the elections. Such a step would permit the Judiciary Committee to expand its staff and conduct an investigation of its own, a probe that would not necessarily be limited to issues involving Lewinsky. It is not clear whether such a vote would be preceded by a public hearing. Republicans have talked for months about the possibility of convening a hearing, possibly to permit Starr to lay out his evidence, and for a representative of the president to offer a rebuttal.

Sosa ties with McGwire to surpass home run record

By Rick Gano
Associated Press

CHICAGO —Sammy Sosa of the Chicago Cubs hit his 61st and 62nd home runs of the season Sunday to pass Roger Maris and pull into a tie with Mark McGwire for the most homers in a single baseball season.

With his 61st homer, Sosa moved ahead of Babe Ruth, who hit 60 in 1927 for the New York Yankees. Maris had 61 in 1961, also for the Yankees.

The homers gave Sosa four in three games— bringing the slugger back into the chase with McGwire to end the season with one of baseball's most treasured records.

Sosa hit No. 62 in the ninth inning off Milwaukee Brewers off relief pitcher Eric Plunk. The Cubs won the game 11-10 in 10 innings.

Crying as he sat in the dugout after his triumphant tour around the bases, Sosa came out for three emotional curtain calls as fans littered the field while standing and chanting "Sam-mee!

Sam-mee!" The delay lasted six minutes.

"I have to say what I did is for the people of Chicago, for America, for my mother, for my wife, my kids and the people I have around me. My team. It was an emotional moment," Sosa said. In the fifth inning, Sosa hit No. 61 off reliever Bronswell Patrick 480 feet into the street behind the left-field fence at Wrigley Field.

Sosa rounded the bases pumping his fists as a sellout crowd at Wrigley went wild. Once he reached home plate, Sosa got a 15-second embrace from teammate Mark Grace.

Sosa went into the corner of the dugout hugging his teammates along the way and then turned to TV cameras and made his trademark salute - thunping his heart, blowing kisses and making a "V" sign. He then mouthed "I love you, mama," to a TV camera. The game was being broadcast live in his native Dominican Republic.

The News Desk is looking for students interested in becoming editors for the GLBT Issues and the Multicultural Affairs diversity pages.

There are also openings for night and copy editors on Thursday nights through the semester. Anyone interested in any of these positions should have excellent spelling and grammar skills, and preferably some editing experience.

If interested, contact Victoria Groves, Managing Editor in the Collegian newsroom or call 545–1809.

Judicial Hearing Board

A great experience for students who

❖ are interested in campus leadership ❖
❖ wish to improve communication and listening skills ❖
❖ are enrolled full time ❖
❖ have at least a 2.0 G.P.A. ❖
❖ are not on judicial sanction ❖

APPLY NOW TO BE A HEARING BOARD MEMBER
Training held in the Campus Center from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. on:
October 6 Room 903 & October 5 Room 811-15

Applications available at:
Residential Cluster Offices
The Dean of Students Office
Student Government Association

APPLICATION DEADLINE:
5:00 p.m. September 28, 1998

Any questions? Please contact:
Paul Vasconcellos or Jolene Crook
Dean of Students Office
227 Whitmore
Phone: 545-2684

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst 256-0000

COLORADO®
The Ultimate Outdoor Adventure Store
features Apparel, Footwear and Accessories for Men and Women

* August 15th through September 30th. Mail-in Coupon available in store
Cambridgeside Galleria Mall, Cambridge
South Shore Plaza, Braintree • Holyoke Mall, Holyoke
Photo courtesy of MacGillivary Freeman. Everest is a MacGillivary Freeman Film
Key Code 11

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

I Told You So

Well, I told you so.

In the run-up to the presidential election two years ago, in the pages of this august newspaper, I wrote that "this presidential election is the greatest moral test the Valley has faced since the days of the vicious and barbaric Gulf War in 1990-91."

I asked whether, "In the name of an illusory and barren 'pragmatism,' will those who ought to know better be herded like sheep into voting for, endorsing, and causing the return of a proven villain? This election is a moral issue. Clinton's record is clear. You know by now exactly what you are going to get if you vote for him."

I repeatedly warned that support for Clinton was tantamount to embracing disaster.

There is a very large group of people in our readership who were aware of the facts two years ago and chose to vote for Clinton anyway. This article is addressed mainly to them.

As you know, my direst warnings have come disturbingly, systematically true.

How fitting and how disgusting it is that the quintessential image of Clinton's presidency should be a bizarre, through-the-looking-glass, afternoon at the White House.

Inside, Monica Lewinsky, the 21-year-old intern, engages in some "extra-curricular" activities with President Clinton. Meanwhile, outside, Yassir Arafat, once again the perfect emblem of the displaced and disregarded Palestinians, and in this case standing in for all the urgent moral and political crises of the planet, sits forlornly in the Rose Garden staring at his watch, fingers tapping on his knees.

> "Clearly Clinton's obsessive and insatiable sexual appetites have devoured his ability to deal with serious matters in a serious way."
>
> Hussein Ibish

Clearly Clinton's obsessive and insatiable sexual appetites have devoured his ability to deal with serious matters in a serious way or govern in any meaningful sense.

As a result, and in what may be a new low for mindless populist violence, Clinton resorted to bombing a manifestly innocent Sudanese medicine factory and some Afghan training camps for guerrillas who fight Indian rule in Kashmir.

And it did manage to bump Monica off the headlines and bump the polls up for a few days. When in doubt, murder some Muslims.

As the perfect Hollywood president, like a bad movie, Clinton has nothing left to offer but sex and violence. All that remains is to watch him slowly sink down the long spiral pit towards discredit, impeachment and/or resignation.

Two years ago we were told that, in spite of his previous four years of reprehensible right-wing domestic policies and murderous imperialism abroad, Clinton should be supported for re-election because of the danger posed by the Republican party.

He was "the lesser of two evils," we were told.

This position, which was very weak and dubious two years ago, is now totally unsustainable.

It's not just Clinton's genocide in Iraq, concentration camps for Haitians, colonialism in Somalia, malfeasance in the former Yugoslavia, and terrorist bombings here and there, willy-nilly.

It's not just that he rammed through North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the World Trade Organization (WTO), and now the appalling Multi-Lateral Trade Agreement.

It's not just that he gleefully abolished welfare.

Because, even if there was a real political agenda, those offenses notwithstanding, in supporting Slick Willy over the Republicans two years ago, then surely it is Clinton himself who has single-handedly destroyed it.

Six months ago, the Republican party was eating itself alive. The internal GOP splits were so severe that the Democrats seriously threatened to take back a majority in the House in the November elections. Now, they'll be lucky to break even in the House and will surely loose ground in the Senate, all because of Clinton.

Meanwhile, all is forgiven, at least for the meanwhile, among Republicans who were ready to cut each others' throats a few months ago.

In other words, since the election, Clinton couldn't have done more for the supposed "greater evil" if he were its paid agent.

But, of course, there was always only one evil, and one powerbase behind both parties.

Look, its time for all of you who voted for Clinton two years ago to finally face the facts — you were wrong, desperately wrong.

But, I can help you.

Sisters and brothers, take my hand, and repeat after me:

"I (state your name) swear, on the grave of my principles, on a stack of stained cocktail dresses, that I will never again vote for someone I know perfectly well is a shameless opportunist and liar, an enthusiastic imperialist and an immoral bastard."

All right then, I forgive you.

Only, let's try to be a little more intelligent about it next time, OK?

Hussein Ibish is a UMass graduate student.

THE GRIEVING PARENT.

What Are We Gaining?

I didn't want to go to college at all: I felt as though it would be a huge waste of money, time, and energy. I had to accept the fact that if I didn't, at the very least, have a bachelor's degree in something, it would be extremely difficult for me to get a "good" job. The illusion of a "higher education" is so ingrained in our society that it is to be expected of all young adults who are ambitious. The actual collegiate experience, however, is simply a guise for a frighteningly immense industry that sucks money from students and parents only to produce credentials that may or may not have a bearing on future careers. How much enlightenment are we really gaining as students and what, as undergraduates, are we honestly accomplishing?

> "I have three years ahead of me and my future looks as grey as this campus."
>
> Lindsay McCarthy

I ended up at the University of Massachusetts (like many of my peers) solely because it cost one third of most other private colleges and universities. I convinced myself that I could achieve just as much from a state school education as I would from a private education; I would just have to make more of an effort. One year later, I have come to the realization that my initial feelings were correct and I am honestly questioning what I am doing here. This education is very expensive, and what are we receiving?

I say not that much. You get a haphazard assignment to a cement block of a dorm room. Then you're enrolled in some (maybe half if you're really lucky) of the courses you preregistered for, and then you are haunted by the recorded voice from your "easy to access" phone system explaining, "That course is oversubscribed." If you seek advice you are likely to encounter advisors that 1) don't have time to see you, 2) usually can't help you more than the course book itself and 3) may even give wrong information. Then there are the courses themselves, which consist of large anonymous lecture halls where the entire learning process is condensed into four or five cramming sessions before the four or five bubble examinations. Even the smaller, supposedly more focused upper level courses are usually considerably bigger than anticipated and are rarely conducive to discussions of the material. (Of course, you have to actually get into a course to discover that.)

In terms of the "college experience," I have tried my best to be social (without being too much of a drunk) and to participate in different activities. While I have enjoyed keeping myself busy with many extracurricular activities, I still feel as though I'm missing out on some transforming educational experience. Those critical of my perspective might suggest that I attend another school, but the point is that transferring is not an option. I believe that I will run into the same set of issues that I am discussing at any university, not just UMass. So why should I pay the $120,000 price tag of another college instead of UMass's $40,000 tuition?

I am in no way suggesting that the faculty and staff at UMass (or possibly any other university) don't work hard to make our experiences as intellectual and stimulating as possible. Nor am I stating that the students themselves are lacking in any way. I am saying that I, as an undergraduate, have attempted to be an active and involved student, and I am constantly wondering if I somehow missed the boat. How did my expectations of a transforming academic and social experience somehow crumble into the realization that I am simply faced with countless hassles, red tape, bureaucracy, and disappointments?

A classmate of mine once said that we live in a credentialed society, meaning that you need to have at least one, if not multiple degrees in order to be eligible for a decent job, and that statement has prompted me to ponder what my degree truly represents. Am I somehow supposed to become an educated adult simply because I put in the time and my parents' money, or because I managed to pass 120 credit hours? What is this education really worth? Is the point anything other than a piece of paper that may or may not guarantee a possibly decent paying job? How much of the material I study now is going to really expand my mind when most of it is regurgitated for exams and quickly forgotten?

I have three years ahead of me and my future looks as gray as this campus. I feel as though I'm just wasting time before I pay my dues and can financially support myself in the "real world." The bottom line is that I seriously doubt most of the supposed benefits of my college education and I feel as though I am going through some huge, systematically impersonal machine that will eventually spit me out almost exactly the same person I was four years before, only $40,000 in debt.

Lindsay McCarthy is a UMass student.

- Letters to the Editor

From the Administration

To the University Community:

As many of you are aware, just before school started the Massachusetts Department of Public Safety closed a number of areas in Hampden and Berkshire dining commons due to concerns about adequate emergency exits and lighting, fire alarms and various construction issues.

We realize this has caused great inconvenience for a number of individuals and groups, and assure you that several campus organizations are working together, along with the state's district building inspector, to resolve as fast as possible what has turned out to be a complex set of problems.

The safety of the community is everybody's primary concern. We are seeking to arrange acceptable interim solutions so that the affected areas may be reopened or activities may be relocated as soon as possible.

Over the next several weeks we will be meeting with as many individuals as possible to keep everyone informed about our progress.

We apologize for the disruption and ask for your patience. In the meantime, please call the Campus Activities Office at 545-3600 for information on changes and relocations, or, in the case of the New World Theater, please call the Fine Arts Center at 545-2511.

Polling for the primary election on September 15 will be held as scheduled in the Hampden lobby.

F. Javier Cevallos
Interim Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs
Paul J. Page
Vice Chancellor for Administration and Finance

The need for evaluations

To the Editor:

In my view, students should be able to evaluate the faculty members who teach their courses and to make these evaluations widely available to everyone. I further believe that this process should be operated entirely by students, independent of any faculty, administration or union constraints.

Before the advent of computers and the web, the cost of paying for collection and publishing student-controlled evaluations made this activity very costly. With the availability of personal computers and public terminals and the web, it is now very practical for a student organization to create a system of web pages where students can anonymously fill out evaluation forms and record comments on any course for which they are registered. The results can be automatically tabulated and made available to anyone who logs into the UMass web pages.

The value and power of such an arrangement will be that students will be able to design their own evaluation forms, make changes as their own experiences dictate and make it available to all without any other party or agreement controlling any part of the process. I urge student leaders, administration and faculty members to join in promoting such a system.

Joseph S. Larson, Professor
Chair, Faculty Senate Rules Committee

Point/Counterpoint writers needed.

We hope to publish a Point/Counterpoint piece in the future concerning the new alcohol policy on campus. We challenge you to write provocative, informed pieces on this subject and submit them in person to the Ed/Op desk in the Campus Center basement. If you can't make it down here, send them to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass Amherst MA 01003. Columns must be typed, and between 600 and 800 words. We have pamphlets addressing the issue down here if you want to know more on the issue. Any questions call Mike Messaros at 545-1491.

Prospective and returning writers:

There will be a meeting on Monday, September 14 for anyone interested in writing for the Ed/Op section this semester. It will be held at 7:00 p.m. in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center Basement. Please bring a writing sample 600 – 800 words long. If you have any questions or concerns, feel free to call Mike at 545-1491.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor-in-Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kevky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Letter from the Editor

Welcome back to the University of Massachusetts!

I am excited and looking forward to another great semester of Black Affairs. As always, watch for the Black Affairs page every Monday.

For those who are also excited about this new semester, I am looking forward to seeing you. I will be trying to recruit all bright, young black writers in the campus community. You don't need to have had prior journalism experience to write; as long as you are able to walk the great labyrinth of life with a keen eye for the obstacles which are placed before us.

I have a triangular strategy as I approach the page this semester. My first angle is to cover newsworthy events on campus, as well as those in the town of Amherst and surrounding areas. A second angle of approach is to produce informative articles on black organizations on campus. Thirdly, I want to include thought provoking editorial columns which address issues that affect our people on this campus, in America, and across the globe. This strategic triangular approach should provide interesting, informative, and inspirational reading.

This triangle may sound good, but it cannot happen without your help and contribution. I need all of you to throw a stick into this fire as we combat the racism and injustice that continuously tries to hold us down. All writers with even a slight interest in the Black Affairs page should attend a meeting on Wednesday, September 16 at 7:00 p.m. in the Daily Collegian newsroom at 113 Campus Center.

Along with being the Black Affairs page editor, I am also the Senior Diversity Editor at the Collegian. Currently we have two openings for diversity editors. One is for the Multi-Cultural Affairs page and the second is for the GLBT Issues page. The Multi-Cultural Affairs page deals specifically with cultural issues on a broad level. The GLBT Issues page deals with issues affecting our gay, lesbian, bi- sexual and transgender community. If you are interested, or know anyone who might be, please come to the Collegian or call me at 545-1851.

In conclusion, I wish you a productive and successful semester. Keep it real!

Sincerely,
Edgar Barros
Black Affairs Editor

Color-coded health care

While income and education gaps between African Americans and whites are narrowing, the health gap is growing.

The National Institute for Aging recently reported that the average African American remains healthy until the age of 56, compared to 64 years for a white person. African American women are three times as likely to die in childbirth as white women are, and infant mortality rates, while dropping, are still twice as high for African Americans as for whites. Black women are diagnosed with breast cancer at younger ages, and are more likely to die from that disease than are white women. African Americans are three times more likely to die from high blood pressure than are whites. The incidence of tuberculosis, diabetes, cancer, heart disease, and stroke are all higher for African Americans than whites. No matter what health indicator is examined, there is a gap between blacks and whites.

Dr. Julianne Malveaux

Why?

Part of the difference has to do with income. On average, African Americans earn 60 percent of what whites earn. Less money buys a different set of health services. Indeed, the poorest Americans often have health care delivered through emergency rooms, and have no access to preventive care.

But even when incomes are equal, health gaps remain. Do doctors treat black and white patients differently, regardless of income? Some consumers of health services assert that such differences do exist.

Education may also make a difference in the kind of health care people seek out. When education levels are held constant, though, there still remains differences in some health indicators. African Americans may have the ability to seek out the best medical care there is, but may not be able to control the stereotypes that shape the kind of health services they get.

Even when we control a number of factors, including income, education, obesity, and smoking, the health gap remains.

Does the stress of black life in a racist society contribute to the large number of African American men diagnosed with prostate cancer? Does it contribute to the fact that many African American men in their early forties have experienced heart attacks and sometimes died from them? Does it contribute to the alarmingly high levels of high blood pressure among African Americans?

Professor John Hope Franklin, chairman of President Clinton's race-relations advisory board, has spoken poignantly on the frequency with which he experiences racial insults. Although Franklin is in his eighties and has made more than 50 years of stellar scholarly contributions, he is subject to the worst of racial slurs. Would a white contemporary of his have the same experience? What health effect comes from the rush of anger, or even disappointment, at assumptions that one is powerless to control? Can this account for some of the differences in the health status of African Americans?

Consider the victims of a car accident, one black, one white. Bloodied and bruised, no one can tell what their status is when they are rushed to the hospital. Those who make assumptions might provide the white patient with expedited service, leaving the African American to wait. If you say it can't happen, consider Crown Heights, NY., in 1991, where ambulances sped by a dying Gavin Cato to attend to the perpetrator of the accident. Later, they said that the ambulances were "private" and no discrimination was involved. Tell that to the Cato family.

To be sure, cultural factors may also play a role in the health gap. It has been more than 30 years since civil-rights activist Fannie Lou Hamer declared that she was "sick and tired of being sick and tired," but too many African American women, at all income levels, consider sickness and tiredness par for the course.

How do we close the gap?

There has to be equal access to quality health care, but there also have to be shifts in attitudes. Patients have to be much more aggressive about demanding the care that they need. Doctors have to be much more enlightened about the assumptions that shape the care they offer.

The health gap is a shameful reminder of the fact that we need much more than a conversation on race to move us to racial equality.

Julianne Malveaux is a Washington, D.C.-based economist and a nationally syndicated columnist with the KingFeatures Syndicate.

Healthy Tips For Surviving UMass

Hi there, first year persons, how are classes going? Remember me, Cassandra also known as Sandi with an "i"? Remember five co-workers and myself who were part of the summer orientation held by the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black and other Minority Students (CCEBMS)?

As I sit here about to write handy tips for survival here at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, I reflect upon my first year at UMass. I had the time of my life.

Why?

I balanced my time wisely between partying, socializing, studying and associating myself with numerous organizations offered here at the University. One experience I remember distinctly was locking myself out of my room on a Saturday night. My roommate was dead asleep from her earlier activities involving vodka, and the resident assistant was away for the weekend. Let's just say it was a good thing I started our friendship during summer orientation.

By now you have had your own first experiences that will leave lasting impressions you will never forget.

Perhaps you too have locked yourself out of your room. Make sure at all times you carry your key and ID, they're your life. It is a good investment to buy one of those neck chains sold at the University Store in the Campus Center. It is made to hold your key, and by punching a hole at the top of your ID, you can put it on this same chain.

Perhaps you walked into German 490 when looking for Spanish 100, it's a logical mistake. The night before your classes, make sure you check the time and their exact location. Don't be afraid to stop that interestingly attractive person you've been meaning to talk to, and ask for directions.

Cassandra I. Carty

Have you noticed you are the only person of color in most of your classes? Don't be alarmed, it will get worse as you migrate into your major. Hopefully this setback will not deter your drive to move forward here at UMass. Just keep rolling with the punches.

By now, you've probably realized that leaving 15 minutes earlier than the time of your class is not enough. Try 20 minutes. One must allot some time for getting lost and of course, some low key socializing due to all the new faces you will make an effort to meet.

Make sure you balance your time between studying, personal time and partying. I guess I don't have to tell you about limiting your time spent at the Malcolm X Cultural Center and the Southside Room.

As for the Dining Commons, you have already realized eating Ramen noodles isn't so bad in comparison to the Monday pasta surprise, or the Tuesday pasta delight, or the Wednesday pasta special. I've been told however, that the DC menus have gotten respectfully better (yeah right!). It's a good idea to have snacks in your room for those late night hunger attacks.

Another very important bit of information you should know about is that all important visit to your CCEBMS advisor. Trust me, do not blow off your advisor. Go down and see him and her as soon and as often as possible.

Stay away from those credit card tables! They are out to get you like hungry sharks. Yes, you will get that Discover card, and yes, you will get a $1000 credit line, and yes you will take your butt down to the Holyoke Mall and max it out in one night. Tell them you already have enough T-shirts.

Last but not least, you've probably realized your best friend is the ATM card. It is a good idea to have money in the bank for emergencies. Money in your pocket is as good as spent and Bruno's is always leaving flyers under your door.

Simply put, my new fresh -person friends, everyone who has survived UMass was once in your shoes. You are not alone and you too will survive. Just do it. I did.

The feeling of uncertainty along with anxiety, pressure, deadlines, and family expectations will soon go away. You too will breeze from Southwest to Haigis Mall, Haigis to the Campus Center and then to New Africa House, all in under 15 minutes.

Peace...

Cassandra I. Carty is a UMass student..

Inside Sing Sing Prison

In the United States today, there are over 1.7 million young men incarcerated in federal and state prisons. About one half of all prisoners are African American men. Roughly one-third of all young African American males in their twenties are either in prison, on probation, on parole or awaiting trial. We know these terrible statistics, but don't always think about the destructive human costs being experienced by this generation of young black men within the prison-industrial complex and the criminal justice system.

Dr. M. Marable

Yet one really can't understand how an entire generation of our young men is being destroyed until you go inside a prison. Several days ago, I spent the day inside one of the country's most infamous prisons — Sing Sing. Originally constructed in the early nineteenth century, Sing Sing is perched high on the rocky cliffs overlooking the Hudson River, less than forty miles north of New York City. Its' notorious death house, located in the remnants of the former prison grounds, was the site of execution of hundreds of prisoners.

I was the guest of the prison education program sponsored by the New York Theological Seminary. The Masters degree program involves about fifteen to twenty men each academic year, who complete their requirements for positions as counselors, teachers, and chaplains' assistants in the New York prison system. The students pay no tuition, and the program does not receive any government support or funding. Lecturers volunteer their time and services to the prisoners. I thought I knew what to expect, because I have previously visited and spoken in prisons, but Sing Sing is different.

The entrance for such a huge facility was surprisingly small; a narrow doorway and small chamber, with several armed guards and a walk-through metal detector. Behind the first series of barred doors, there was a small cluster of prisoners sitting quietly on several benches along a corridor. I asked the prison chaplain what they were waiting for. He explained that each of them would be waiting for hours, in order to have fifteen minute hearings before the parole board. In fifteen short minutes, they would learn whether they would be released or ordered to spend additional years behind bars.

We walked slowly through the twists and turns of the old building. The chaplain stopped and asked me, "Would you like to see Cell Block B?" I had heard about Cell Block B. About fifteen years ago prisoners in that cell block had seized control for several days, protesting against inhumane conditions. Seventeen prison guards had been taken hostage. The cell block is said to be one of the largest single prison units in the world.

We then walked through a series of double barred steel doors, separated by small interlocking security chambers. Walking through the final door, we came into a vast open space, surrounded by thick concrete walls and ceiling. In the center of this huge room, almost filling up the entire space, was a huge steel cage, five stories high. Each story or tier was comprised of 64 separate prison cells. Floors were separated by small railed catwalks and narrow stairwells. An equal number of cells stood behind this steel wall of cages.

Each cell was a tiny confined space, with barely enough room for a prisoner's toilet, sink and bed. Prisoners were not allowed to place any clothing or items covering the front of their cells, except when using their toilets. In effect, personal privacy was nonexistent. The massive metal structure was like a huge iron and steel echo chamber, where every sound from tier to tier could be easily heard. For me, there was an overwhelming sense of dehumanization and social control. It would be easy to feel hopeless against the oppressive weight of such cruel power.

Yet somehow hope does survive. The brothers I spoke with that day, as well as others who have taken part in the program, reflect an incredible courage and self-awareness. Most of them were in their thirties and forties, and had been incarcerated from ten to twenty-five years. Typical of them was one thirty-nine year old brother from Brooklyn, who had been imprisoned for more than a decade. During his prison time, he had earned two BA degrees, and had nearly completed a Masters of Professional Studies degree. He was actively involved in an anti-violence project with other prisoners.

A second brother, 47 years old, had been in Sing Sing for a quarter century. Over the years he had become one of the prison's outstanding spiritual leaders, and a recipient of both BA and MA degrees. All of these black men had overcome difficulties and mistakes they had made, and with great moral energy and personal strength they had turned their lives around. Some of them reminded me of the courage and commitment of Malcolm X, another prisoner who had started life as "Detroit Red," but who transformed himself into one of our greatest political and ethical leaders.

In the words of one of Sing Sing's prisoners: "We have to be the voices for liberation of the oppressed. We have to be ready and willing to lay down our lives as Jesus was, as Mahatma Gandhi and Malcolm X [were]... We have been redeemed so that we can bring redemption to all those we come in contact with, be it here in prison or in the larger prison of an oppressed society."

The greatest prison for the oppressed is the prison of the mind. In Sing Sing, I found some of the freest and most liberated people of African descent in America.

Dr. Manning Marable is Professor of History and Director, Institute for Research in African American Studies, Columbia University.

Black Affairs writers meeting

Attention all parties interested in writing for THIS page.

Show up at the Collegian newsroom this Wednesday at 7 p.m.

The struggle must continue!

Don't drive while black

Most folks are familiar with the acronym DWI, driving while intoxicated, but not DWB, driving while black.

Take Aaron Campbell, an African-American police officer from Miami, whose arrest and recent trial have drawn some media attention. Campbell was off-duty when he was stopped in Orlando, Florida, in January 1997. The state says that Campbell failed to signal a lane change. The officer who stopped Campbell was white.

Akilah Monifa

Campbell screamed and swore at the officer. He was subsequently arrested and charged with five counts of battery and resisting arrest. At trial, Campbell said that the initial stop was illegal, since he said he had put on his signal when changing lanes. He said he was guilty only of the unwritten crime of DWB.

The jury found him not guilty of four counts and guilty of a misdemeanor count of resisting arrest.

DWB is a common charge.

A recent Orlando Sentinel survey reveals that African Americans constitute 16 percent of the drivers on the Florida turnpike but account for more than 50 percent of the traffic stops. A Maryland study of Interstate 95 between Baltimore and Delaware shows that 73 percent of traffic stops were of African Americans, though that group comprised only 14 percent of all drivers on the highway.

Surveys also show that lighter-skinned blacks don't get stopped as often.

"Nightline" recently devoted a two-part series to the issues of crime and being black in America. A major issue discussed was that of DWB.

Former prosecutor Christopher Darden, now at Southwestern School of Law, stated that he has been stopped at least once annually since getting his driver's license in 1972 — not for committing any traffic violation but apparently for driving through a predominantly white neighborhood, or in a fancy car.

"They can't stop someone solely because of their race, but in most of these situations, it seems that the dominant characteristic or factor is the motorist's race," said Darden.

It's not limited to driving. Another crime is SWB, shopping while black: Those of us of a darker hue get closer scrutiny while shopping.

We are suspects solely because of skin color. Let's have a real dialogue about that.

Akilah Monifa is a free-lance writer and an adjunct professor of law at New College of California in San Francisco.

Black Quote of the Week

"A COWARD DIES A THOUSAND DEATHS, A SOLDIER DIES BUT ONCE"
- Tupac Shakur, "If I Die Tonight"

ARTS & LIVING

Summer heat on the soaps

Greetings, my fellow soap fans. I hope everyone had a festive summer. Mine was, without a doubt, one of the most memorable in recent history thanks to the kind folks over at *Soap Opera Digest*tv, the creme de la creme of soap mags. It has always been a dream of mine to write for a legit soap publication, and for the better half of two months I finally got my wish. It really was an honor to work with such a fine "cast" of journalists. Not only that but you wouldn't believe some of the stuff I found out. Gossip, gossip, gossip. Unfortunately for you I've been sworn to secrecy but if you buy me a few drinks I might be more inclined to leak a few tidbits (just kidding).

I will tell you this, though, and it shouldn't surprise you. The industry is a lot more glamorous from the perspective of an outsider looking in than it is from that of an insider looking out. You do become a bit jaded. But have no fear, my love and admiration for the daytime community is as strong now as it was back then, if not stronger. And nowadays there's a lot to be proud of. Most of the soaps have had one hell of a summer and finally the networks are giving us the respect that we deserve. These primetime specials involving our fave soaps are popping up everywhere, with more on the way.

Well folks, it's been a long, hot (and I do mean HOT) summer, or at least as far as the soaps were concerned. I love soaps during the summer. They always go that extra mile to try and snag a few new viewers, typically college students who have a little extra free time on their hands. And let's not forget about those shameless pool scenes where the stud and studette strut around in their skimpy outfits, or lack there of. My friends and I just adore those. Of course we can't forget about those timeless romances either. Soaps have always thrived in that department and even though there seemed to be more breaking up than making up, there were a few glimmering exceptions. "And away" here's my summer review of what I thought were four of the most gratifying soaps on television.

"Young and the Restless": Before the break you couldn't have paid me to sit though the entire hour. It was that boring. Now, you couldn't pay me not to. What I once considered to be the most annoying soaps on T.V. has now become one of my faves. My former beef with "Y&R" was the show's slow pace. That, and the fact that nothing ever happened. That was then. Now is a completely different story. The cliffhanger involving Joshua and Nikki's shooting was one of the most gripping few minutes of the season. And let's not forget about the battle between Diane and the all powerful and painfully stoic Victor Newman. Victor screwed her over and Diane is intent on making him pay for it. You know what they say," hell hath no fury ..." And who could forget about Nick Scott? My friend, Bonnie, thinks the man is God's gift to women and I can't say I'd argue with her. You really need to check this guy out.

"General Hospital": What can I say about "G.H."? Exceptional, superb, they all fail to express just how damn good the show has been since Bob Guza's return. You know, last year I used to rant and rave about "G.H.", even going so far as to say that it was the best soap on T.V. Then people started complaining that I was just biased because I'd been a diehard fan for 10 or so years. Well, I'm happy to report that my opinions of the show were delusions of grandeur and that the experts happen to agree with me on this one.

The show currently has one of the most touching love stories to date with Lucky and Liz. It's the classic tale of "love conquers all" with a new spin and Bob Guza and company are pulling it off beautifully. It really does tug at the heartstrings. The shared awkward silences and lingering looks bring back such memories of what it was like to be young and in love (before I became the cynical bastard I am today). If you're a hopeless romantic, I strongly suggest you check it out. You'll love it. Now that Katherine is back with a vengeance, things should start to heat up. And let's not forget Carly. I can't imagine her being too pleased with the Robin Jackson situation. Look for her to raise some hell when she returns early next month.

"One Life to Live": Whatever Pam Lang and company are doing, keep it up because "O.L.T.L." has never been better. The show is currently riding one of the most creative sparks in years. The dialogue is smart, surprisingly witty and ever poignant; very reminiscent of the "O.L.T.L." of the late 80's. The show has pumped out some great stories including, but not limited to, Georgie's death and the mystery surrounding it. At every corner was a new clue and another red herring. Not only that but the story finally gave the under utilized Robert Woods and Hillary B. Smith (Bo and Nora) something they could sink their teeth into, and boy did they deliver (I sense an Emmy nod for Smith). What I like about Lang is that she's willing to take a chance and seems to convey a deep understanding of who the characters are and what they stand for. It took guts to toy with the eldest Buchanan boy (Kevin) and turn him into a class A jerk. I happen to believe it though.

And let's give credit where credit's due, Timothy Gibbs is doing a fabulous job. Need more convincing? Well here's two reasons – one for the ladies, one for the guys. Gentlemen, Kassie De Paiva, who plays the bitchy and conniving

Turn to SOAPS, page 7

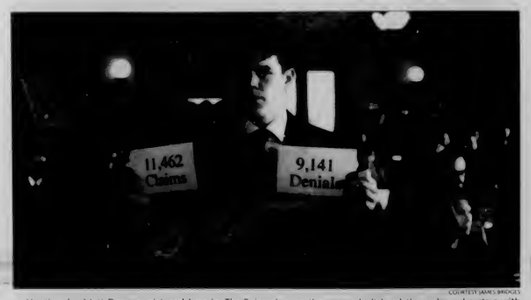
Damon bets a winning hand

Bostonian actor helps Rounders clean house

By Rob Roensch
Collegian Staff

ROUNDERS
Directed by John Dahl
with Matt Damon, Edward Norton, Gretchen Mol
Playing at Hampshire Six Theaters

Rounders tells a deceptively simple story, that of Mike McDermott (Matt Damon) descending into the underworld of gambling to save his friend Worm (Edward Norton) from debt. But things are not as simple as they appear. When Mike vouches for Worm, all of Worm's debts essentially become his, and Worm disappears from the movie. Mike is not a selfless hero. Further, the movie spins harshly away from any underdog-beats-the-odds-and-comes-home story line. But neither is this movie just the brutal disintegration of a flawed human being. It rests in the same difficult moral grey area that life is lived in.



For all its careful detailing and snappy vocabulary, Rounders is less about the gambling scene and more about the power of obsession. The card games are certainly the best part of the movie, fluid and fascinating, but what's important is not the luminous set design, but the way we are forced into the game, to feel the way numbers and suits can change lives. In their smoothness, the card game scenes reminded me of the first scene of Jerry McGuire when Jerry details the flash and lure of his work, and also the basketball scenes from He Got Game. All these movies deal with obsessions, about deeply loving something that society thinks is, in the end, not part of "real life." In Jerry McGuire, Jerry eventually drops his cell phone, gets a girlfriend and everything is fine. In He Got Game, the obsession with basketball is actually woven into society, and becomes an acceptable way to make a living. But, for Mike, card games are not easily thrown away like a cell phone or respectable like basketball.

Because the card games are so involving, we become partners in Mike's obsession and even his addiction. We can feel the longing for the other black ace. It's hard to keep a distance from something that feels so electric and graceful.

It's easy to look down on some types of obsession, like card games, but what about other obsessions that can become more important than love and family like basketball or even architecture? Is giving up a "normal life"in favor of pursuing an obsession always tragic? It is a difficult question and one that, to its credit, Rounders does not attempt to answer.

Damon holds things together with a performance superior to his Oscar nominated turn in Good Will Hunting. He manages to turn down the knob on his Abercrombie-and- Fitch-model glow in favor of a wonderfully subtle balance between ashen-faced concentration and bright life that sparks with the cards. During the card games, his eyes are both dead to the world and, in their absolute focus, pure and alive. It's a good thing Damon keeps his cards mostly hidden, because both Norton and John Malkovich as the head of the Russian mob play to

Turn to ROUNDERS, page 7

COURTESY JAMES BRIDGES

Hunting for Matt Damon, pictured here in The Rainmaker, on the screen isn't hard these days—he stars with Edward Norton in Rounders.

5 Barbers
Unisex Hair Styling
Amherst Barbers
Tel. 253-1722
40 Main Street Amherst, MA
(Next to Newbury Comics)
Hours: Mon-Fri. 8-5:15 Sat 8-3:45
Proprietors Jim Reed and Terri Loncrini
$9 and up
Appointments Not Necessary

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
part-time study for people of all ages
FALL 1998
SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE
● Nearly 100 credit courses - in the evening! Including:
Intro to Arts Management
Public Speaking
Environmental Health Sciences
Corporation Finance
Interpreter's Studies
Intro to Public Relations
Human Resource Management
Energy Healing In Nursing Practice
Online Course: Sioux Families of the Pine Ridge Reservation
● Opportunities to enroll in University day courses
● Part-time degree programs, both graduate and undergraduate
Bachelor of General Studies
Master's in Library and Information Studies
M.S. in Labor Studies
Master of Music Education
M.S. in Plant & Soil Sciences
Master's in Education
MBA Professional Program
RN to BS in Nursing
Master of Public Health
Classes begin September 14
For a free course catalog, call 413-545-0107 or e-mail contined@admin.umass.edu
www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated course information
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Amherst
a quality education at an affordable price

Planning to observe
ROSH HASHANAH and YOM KIPPUR?

Make sure to
NOTIFY INSTRUCTORS WELL IN ADVANCE IF YOU WILL MISS CLASSES.

If you experience any difficulties, please contact the department head, or call the Ombuds Office at 545-0867.

■ Soaps

continued from page 6

Blair, is one of the most attractive and alluring women on T.V. Every time I see her I just melt. And ladies, David Fumaro (Christian) has a body that just won't stop. He's the best thing since the invention of the chocolate covered strawberry. Remember the guy at the tail end of Maria Carey's video for "Honey"? Well, that's him. I'm telling you ladies, take a look and prepare to swoon.

"Sunset Beach": I know, I know. Last year, poor "S.B." used to be the punchline for most of my jokes, but I've had a change of heart. The "little soap that could" has turned into one hell of a roller coaster ride. Remember how much fun "Days" used to be, back when it was the campiest soap on T.V.? Well, "S.B." is all that and more. It really is one of the most shamelessly fun hours of T.V. since the glory days of "Melrose Place" (back when Kimberly blew up the building). Not only is the show a hoot but it's also gutsy. You'd think Aaron Spelling and NBC would pack things up and call it a day after looking at the show's disappointing Nielson numbers (which is a bunch of crap). Nope. In an unprecedented show of loyalty, NBC decided to pump even more money into the soap and help Spelling pull off one of daytime's most epic and ambitious undertakings yet. Of course I'm talking about the huge earthquake and tidal wave that raked the residents of Sunset Beach. Man, was that a doozy. You couldn't have gotten me away from the T.V. no matter how hard you tried. I even turned down the chance to go shopping (no small feat, I assure you) so that I could catch Friday's cliffhanger. And, according to Spelling, that was just the tip of the iceberg. Just last week I was watching the show and laughing hysterically over the scene in which Annie threatened to throw herself over the ledge unless Gregory ripped up the prenuptial agreement. It turns out she had a harness wrapped around her waist. That's my Annie, willing to do whatever it takes to get what she wants. It really was quite amusing. Sure, the soap lacks some of the hard-hitting drama that some of the more serious soaps deal with, but what it lacks in substance it makes up for in camp. That's what sets "S.B." apart from the rest. Couldn't we all use a little variety in the soap world?

The daytime "baby" also hoasts two of daytime's most dashing fellas, namely Father Antonio and Cole. My roommate Aimee thinks Father Antonio is absolutely yummy. Not only is the guy a full blown hottie but he can actually act, too. Forget about those generic and bland soap studs – this guy's where it's at. Ladies, it's time to confess your sins. And Cole – what woman (or man) in their right mind could resist those adorable dimples of his. Each has their own unique appeal but both are bound to set your pulse racing.

Jacob Fanning is a Collegian columnist.

There is a meeting for all new and returning writers this Tuesday, September 15, at 6 p.m. in the Collegian newsroom at 113 Campus Center. Call 545-1361 and ask for Bryan for more information.

Samurai director a legend

Japanese director a "pictoral Shakespeare"

By Bryan McAllister
Collegian Staff

If you've heard the hit Barenaked Ladies single "One Week," you know that one of the lines reads as follows: "Like Kurosawa I make mad films/kay I don't make films/but if I did they'd have a samurai."

The filmmaker they're referring to is probably one you've only heard of when you accidentally switch the channel to "A & E." The name of Akira Kurosawa isn't synonymous with that of Steven Spielberg, Alfred Hitchcock or Orson Welles. But the legendary Japanese director, who passed away last Sunday, September 6 at the age of 88, is a filmmaker that modern cinema – and human culture – holds an equal debt to. In fact, Spielberg himself recently commented to the New York Post that Kurosawa was the "pictoral Shakespeare of our time."

Kurosawa did indeed make films about samurais, but he also explored the Western world – adapting Dostoevsky, Shakespeare and Freud. For this reason, the director was sometimes looked down upon by his native Japan. But equally for this reason, his films became the influence of countless Western movie-makers and helped spread Japanese cinema throughout the world.

But even if you think you've never seen a Kurosawa movie, you in fact have. George Lucas used many visual and mythical ideas from Kurosawa's 1958 film The Hidden Fortress for Star Wars, and his famous 1954 movie The Seven Samurai was remade into The Magnificient Seven in 1960.

It all started in 1950, with the release of perhaps Kurosawa's masterpiece, Rashomon. A winner of the Grand Prix award and the Best Foreign Film Oscar, the movie was a startling look at the nature of truth. Rashomon is the story of a robbery and a rape, but to mix things up and prove his point, Kurosawa directed the tale by telling the story from the viewpoints of four different people involved in the incident, who each tell their own version of what happened. The result was a staggering morality examination on how truth is relative that it depends entirely on the motives and characters of the people relating such "truth." This phenomenon, called the "Rashomon Effect," is now a common term in cultural and anthropological circles; meanwhile, the cinematic world continues to use his method of relative truth in contemporary movies, most recently in Brian De Palma's Snake Eyes.

Kurosawa was also a writer and painter, and throughout his 50 films as a director, he continued to draw his story boards as full-scale paintings. Among his many adaptations was the treatment of Shakespeare's King Lear, entitled Ran, which won a special award at the Cannes Film Festival in 1985. In 1990, he won an Oscar for Lifetime Achievement, but continued making movies right up until his death.

His would-be 31st film, in fact, almost got off the ground. Recently found among his belongings was the screenplay, sketches, and notes for a movie about a group of prostitutes living in the early 17th century. It was to be his first film based entirely around female characters.

As the film world mourns his death, it's inspiring to see that his native Japan has finally fully recognized the importance of such an artist. A couple of days ago, the Japanese government decided to award Kurosawa with one of its highest recognitions, the People's Honor Award. For a man who changed the way we look at ourselves, this is indeed a fitting tribute.

■ Rounders

continued from page 6

the bleachers.

As Mike's girlfriend, silken-voiced Gretchen Mol doesn't do much. The script doesn't do her any favors, but an actress with more backbone, Ashley Judd perhaps, could have made the role resonate. Women in general don't have much to do in the movie. The story centers on men and cards, but the girlfriend's part should have been stronger. She's too easy to let go of.

Despite a few too many dips into ordinary melodrama, Rounders is always involving. In the night scenes, the city has an eerie, hypnotic glow, as if the bricks and iron railings have veins of neon beneath their skin. The world looks different when there is only one thing that can make you happy. B+

COURTESY MIRAMAX COMEDY

John Turturro ups the arrogance of the cast for Rounders.

Write for Arts and help create strong student culture!

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

Welcome back... NOW GO AWAY!
Cheap tickets. Great advice. Nice people.
travel accessories and backpacks sold here! European railpasses and international student ID cards issued on the spot!
Council Travel
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange
44 Main St., Amherst
(413) 256-1261
www.counciltravel.com

Former Alabama Governor George C. Wallace dies at 79

By Kendal Weaver
Associated Press

MONTGOMERY, Ala.— Former Gov. George C. Wallace, who declared "segregation forever" and later was paralyzed by a would-be assassin's bullet as he campaigned for the presidency in 1972, died Sunday. He was 79.

Wallace, a lifelong Democrat who late in life began supporting some Republican candidates, had battled Parkinson's disease as well as the lingering effects of his wounds. He had been hospitalized repeatedly.

Wallace entered the hospital Thursday, suffering from breathing problems and septic shock caused by a severe bacterial infection. He also had been hospitalized this summer with similar problems. The former governor died of respiratory and cardiac arrest, Jackson Hospital officials said. Wallace's son, George Wallace Jr., and one of his daughters, Peggy Wallace Kennedy, were at his side when he died.

"Gov. Wallace has shown tremendous courage for many years in living an active life despite his pain and injury," Gov. Fob James said. "This example is an inspiration to us all. Gov. Wallace now rests with God and with history."

Former President Jimmy Carter issued a statement, praising Wallace for changing his long-held views on race and "his courage in the face of illness and physical handicap."

"With the death of George Wallace, Alabama and the American South have lost one of our favorites sons," Carter said. "His political career both helped to define and to reflect the political life of our region."

As a third-party candidate in 1968, Wallace received nearly 10 million presidential votes and seemed poised to do as well four years later when he was shot.

He had gained national notoriety in the early 1960s when he vowed "segregation forever" and stood in an Alabama schoolhouse door to keep blacks from enrolling. But ultimately he won an unprecedented fourth term as governor with the help of black voters.

"We thought it was in the best interests of all concerned. We were mistaken," he told a black group during his last gubernatorial campaign, in 1982. "The Old South is gone," but "the New South is still opposed to government regulation of our lives."

A political icon in a region long accustomed to fiery oratory, Wallace dominated the state for the better part of two decades before bowing out of politics with the April 1986 announcement that he would not seek a fifth term.

Urging voters to "send 'em a message," Wallace made four runs at the presidency, including the 1968 contest in which he won five Southern states and 46 electoral votes.

He married three times, and put his first wife in the governor's chair when state law barred him from succeeding himself.

As the South reeled from civil rights clashes and the bombing of black churches during his early career, Wallace loomed as a symbol of racial oppression across the region.

But after being crippled by gunshots and confined to a wheelchair for the rest of his life, Wallace no longer was the jut-jawed, fist-shaking figure who threatened to "shake the eye teeth" of the establishment.

Late in life, the shrewd firebrand segregationist had mellowed into a populist who pledged to help poor people of all colors. His election to a fourth term in 1982 was built on a coalition including the black votes he once scorned, and he was courted by liberal members of his party.

Removed from the political spotlight, he worried that history would remember him only for his segregationist defiance.

Stephan Lesher, who wrote a 1994 biography of Wallace, "American Populist," said Wallace's legacy should stretch far beyond his views on race - but concedes that it's unlikely. "It's like the blood stains on Lady Macbeth's hands," Lesher said. "He will never be able to wash out the stains of racism." George Corley Wallace was born Aug. 25, 1919, in Clio, in the rural, row-crop country of southeastern Alabama. His father was a farmer and county commissioner, his mother a county health worker. The short, dark-eyed farm boy became a scrappy Golden Gloves boxer. He earned his law degree from the University of Alabama and served in World War II as a flight engineer on B-29 bombing missions over the Pacific.

After the war, he became an assistant state attorney general, then ran successfully for the Alabama House of Representatives in 1946.

When he won election as a circuit judge in 1952, he used his court post to become known as "the fightin' little judge" for battling federal authorities over blacks' voting records.

In his first race for governor in 1958, he lost the Democratic primary to John Patterson, who had taken a harder line than Wallace in support of racial segregation. Wallace reportedly vowed that he would never be "out-segged" again.

He was successful on his next try in 1962. On Jan. 14, 1963, as bands decked in Rebel uniforms played "Dixie," Wallace took the oath of office beneath the white-domed capitol where Jefferson Davis had been sworn in as president of the Confederacy a century before.

"Let us rise to the call of the freedom-loving blood that is in us and send our answer to the tyranny that clanks its chains upon the South," Wallace told the crowd.

"In the name of the greatest people that have ever trod this earth, I draw the line in the dust and toss the gauntlet before the feet of tyranny. And I say ... segregation today, segregation tomorrow, segregation forever."

Within months of his inauguration, he made his celebrated stand in the schoolhouse door, an unsuccessful bid to block the entrance of two blacks to the University of Alabama.

Wallace ran in a few Democratic primaries in 1964, pulling significant protest votes but hardly stopping President Johnson's steamroller.

Blocked by Alabama law from succeeding himself in the 1966 election, he got his wife, Lurleen, to run in his place. It was a daring move, and she won overwhelmingly, establishing a new mandate for Wallace's politics and a new springboard toward the White House race of 1968.

Mrs. Wallace died of cancer in the spring of 1968. Wallace already was campaigning, and after a period of seclusion following her death he emerged as a third-party candidate with retired Gen. Curtis LeMay as his running mate.

Wallace carried five Southern states in the 1968 presidential election. But he didn't get enough votes to throw it into the U.S. House of Representatives.

ARE YOU READY TO BE A PRO?

Why do you need to know Pro/ENGINEER ?

- Earn more money!
- High industry demand!

Over 15,000 companies use this software worldwide, including: BMW, Toyota, Hyundai, Honeywell, Lockheed Martin, Siemens, Komatsu, Rubbermaid, Motorola and more!

The Pro/ENGINEER® Student Collection featuring PT/Modeler™, PT/Render™, and PT/Library™ 2.0
ISBN 0-201-35662-2

Distributed by Addison Wesley Longman

SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE: $199

Computers & E.T.C. Electronic Technology Course

Conveniently located in the University Store

Join UMass Men's Crew!

A winning tradition since 1871

No prior rowing experience necessary

Please come to informational meeting:
Monday, September 14, 1998 at 7pm
Campus Center Room 168c

Questions??? Call Crew Offices at 545-0487

CHECK OUT A GREAT CLASS!

GOTTA BE A PEER EDUCATOR

While there is still room!!

Peer Health Educators...
...learn about cool stuff
...teach workshops in the residence halls and Greek area.
...give out condoms and other goodies at the Campus Center and special events.
...enhance their own self-knowledge.
...make new friends.
...MAKE A DIFFERENCE!

PEER HEALTH EDUCATION I & II
COMUNITY HEALTH EDUCATION/EDUCATION 213/214.
6 Credits - 2 Semester Commitment Required -
Class time; Tuesdays 2:30 - 5:00 pm
For more information call Lauri Turkovsky at 577-5181.

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Paid Officials Needed -
For Flag Football, Field Hockey, Softball, Soccer, & Ice Hockey

Don't Miss The ACTION

Clinics: Football, Soccer - Sept.16, 17, 18
Co-ed Softball, Field Hockey - Sept. 21, 22
Ice Hockey - Sept. 23
Call For Times and Locations

For more info: 215 Boyden or call 545-2693

Still Time to Enter: Flag Football, Soccer, Field Hockey, & Softball.
On the Web http://www.umass.edu/umsm/

AUDITIONS FOR Not Ready For Bedtime Players

NOT READY FOR BEDTIME PLAYERS

Tuesday, September 15,
6:00PM University Health Sevices
(follow signs to third floor)

For more information call the Health Education Division of the University Health Services and ask for Sally or Mike 577-5181

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THATS US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB

BEST AEROBICS	BEST MACHINES	BEST PRICES
CARDIO KICKBOXING YOGA REEBOK BENCH LOW IMPACT	PRECOR ELLIPTICALS TREADMILLS • BIKES RECUMBENTS STAIRMASTERS	1 MO.....$49 3 MO.....$129 6 MOS.....$229 12 MO.....$389

Big Enough to Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 West St. On Bus Route www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

University Health Services
Mental Health Groups Fall '98

MONDAY

Coed Self Exploration Group
(for Undergraduate Students)
In this group members will be able to address their relationships such as: friendship; intimacy; family issues; work and school, etc. Members may join this group at any point in the school year (as space permits).
Monday, 1:00 - 2:30 p.m.

Supporting Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Identities
Exploring such issues as coming out, building community dating relationships, family of origin and stress management.
Monday, 3:45 - 5:00 p.m.

TUESDAY

On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself.
Tuesday, 1:00 - 2:30 p.m.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress.
Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

WEDNESDAY

Adult Children of Dysfunctional Families
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMass students.
Wednesday, 3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

Groups are conducted by Mental Health Division staff. Group sessions are covered under UHS Basic Health Plan and Kaiser pre-paid plan. Groups require an initial screening which can be arranged by calling 545-2337 or by stopping by at 127 Hills North Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m. For further information refer to the Mental Health web site at www.umass.edu/uhs/mentalhe.alth

THURSDAY

Women's Self-Exploration Group
(For older undergraduates, graduate students, student dependents and Kaiser/CHP members.)
This group provides as opportunity for women to explore personal relationships, work, studies, family of origin, health, acculturation and other relevant concerns. This group is ongoing with members added as space permits.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30 a.m.

Coed Self-Exploration Group
(For older undergraduates, graduate students, student dependents and Kaiser/CHP members.)
This group provides an opportunity for men and women to explore their interpersonal relationships. This group is ongoing with members added as space permits.
Thursday, 3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

MORE GROUPS BEGINNING IN THE SPRING

CALL 545-2337

still time to add 1-credit courses

Jewish Choral/A Cappella Group (Kolot) JS 192B
Mondays 7-9pm, Hillel House // Leader: Avi Wolf
This will be an opportunity to learn and perform Jewish choral and a cappella music as part of a student singing group Kolot ("Voices"). Informal audition.

Music of Jewish Life JS 192U
Tues. 2:30pm, Hillel House/Instructor: Saul Perlmutter
Learn Hebrew and Yiddish folk songs, holiday songs, prayers, and pop songs. No Hebrew or Yiddish necessary.

Mural Painting Workshop JS 192W
Alt. Tues. 7-9pm, Hillel House/Instructor: Jonathan Korhman
Participants will develop a design for a mural, and paint the mural inside a public space at the Hillel House on campus. We will refer to the history of Jewish art and ritual objects.

Exploring and Experimenting with Jewish Prayer JS 192T
Alternate Wed. 7-9pm, Hillel House/Instructor: Amita Jarmon
What is the purpose of prayer? Study the siddur (prayer book) and discover how it can enrich our lives. Focus on Friday night service, its overall structure and the individual jewels within it.

Israel at 50: Implementing the Vision JS 192X
Wed. 3:35pm, Hillel House/Instructor: Jay Shofet
50 years ago the State of Israel began a bold experiment: to find security in a hostile environment, to reunite a diverse people from around the world, to make the desert bloom, to build a society and an economy. Explore Israel's past, present and future regarding the challenges it continues to face.

Jewish Ecological Values JS 192V
Thursdays, 2:30pm, Hillel House/Instructor: David Arfa
Hike the paths of Jewish thought and explore Jewish tradition's wisdom about our relationship and responsibilities toward the natural world.

Torah and Haftarah Cantillation JS 192E
By Arrangement // Instructor: Saul Gladstone
This course will cover the theory and practice of the cantillation (trop) for Torah and Haftarah. Students will need a basic reading knowledge of Hebrew.

Classes meet in the Hillel House. (388 N. Pleasant St.) Call 549-1710 for more info.

FILE PHOTO

Close, but no cigar

Seth Lilburn had a goal on Saturday against Maine, but the Minutemen blew a 2-0 lead and fell to the Black Bears 3-2. UMass remained winless at 0-3-1 with the loss.

■ Defense

continued from page 12

Bankhead tasted the Minutemen in for the winning score, leaving only 1:01 on the clock.

Overall, the UMass defense held the Richmond offense to only three conversions out of 13 third down tries, and zero successful conversions in three fourth down attempts. As the Massachusetts offense turned the ball over four times, the Minutemen defense made those mistakes minimal by acquiring three turnovers in the second half.

Star runner Jasper Pendergrass, who bullied the UMass squad around with a 106 yard performance a year ago, was held to 19 yards on 8 carries aside from a fluke-like 55 yard scamper. Turner, who picked up a heavier load as a result of Pendergrass' ineffectiveness, was also kept under 100 yards, with 75 yards on 18 attempts.

In the end, the total defensive effort culminated in a 22-17 victory, the sweetest statistic of all. And, teamed with the offensive firepower of Bankhead and his crew, the Minutemen look to become a contender once again.

■ Minutemen

continued from page 12

Ayi said.

Tight end Kerry Taylor bounced back from his notorious dropped pass in the Delaware game to haul down a career- high nine passes for 98 yards, including the reception that set up the winning score.

Shipp carried the ball 21 times for 99 yards. Again, though, he coughed up the ball deep in opponents' territory, this time at the 7-yard-line.

The Minutemen have two weeks to prepare for their home opener at Warren P. McGuirk Alumni Stadium when they take on the Buffalo Bulls, one of two victories on the 1997 campaign, when the Minutemen won 26-21 in Buffalo.

FILE PHOTO

Coming through in the clutch

Senior co-captain Sophie Lecot scored with just under five minutes left to give UMass a 2-1 win over Evansville on Sunday. The victory was the first of the year for the Minutewomen.

"Reason No 1 why you should take my LSAT course."

Class time that counts
More class hours with teachers well trained in our techniques means much less time studying on your own. Our average score improvement is 7 points!

Call 1-800-2REVIEW or visit us at www.review.com

Courses held on the UMASS campus, Smith, Mt. Holyoke and WNEC as well.

THE PRINCETON REVIEW

UMass FOOTBALL JOBS!

GAME STAFF POSITIONS AVAILABLE TO WORK ALL HOME FOOTBALL GAMES THIS SEASON. THESE INCLUDE:

USHERS
TICKET TAKERS
PARKING ATTENDANTS
TICKET SELLERS

WE NEED 50 TO 60 PEOPLE.
STOP BY THE CURRY HICKS CAGE BEFORE SEPT. 18. SEE YOU THEN!

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THATS US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB

BEST AEROBICS	BEST MACHINES	BEST PRICES
CARDIO KICKBOXING YOGA REEBOK BENCH LOW IMPACT	PRECOR ELLIPTICALS TREADMILLS • BIKES RECUMBENTS STAIRMASTERS	1 MO.....$49 3 MO.....$129 6 MOS.....$229 12 MO.....$389

Big Enough to Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 West St. On Bus Route www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

.....

KOFI ANNAN

Wednesday, September 16, 1998

Hampshire College
Amherst, Massachusetts

The Inaugural Eqbal Ahmad Lecture
Knowledge and Civilization
by the Secretary-General of the United Nations

5:00 p.m. on the Library Lawn
Free and open to the public. No tickets necessary.
Information: 413-559-5521

"Hampshire Express" buses will leave Hoigis Mall at 4 p.m. and stop at Amherst College. Buses will be available to return students to their campuses.

JOIN QPE Today!

- Need to add a class?
- Do you like to give workshops?
- Are you creative and enegetic?
- Are you committed to educating others about health and wellness issues?
- How about hosting safer sex parties?
- Want to make a difference for you and your peers?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, call QPE Lauri today at 7-5252 or e-mail - lauri@educ.umass.edu.
1, 2, or 3 credit independent studies are available.
Open to all 5-college students.

Queer Peer Education

New Girls are here
The fun is here
You should be here!

Castaway Lounge

Thanks to our Patrons and Advocate-Readers for Voting us the Best in Western New England for Adult Entertainment 2 Years in a Row

Every Monday Night is Football Night
5 Beautiful Exotic Dancers
Starting at 4pm.
All other days entertainment starting at 1pm till 1am.

Come Enjoy Entertainment with 36 Lovely Dancers per Week
Open Tues- Sat 1pm-1am. Must be 21 years old.
Make your private parties in our new V.I.P. Room
North of 91 Ext. 22, Take Rt. 5&10 North 2 miles
South of 91, Ext. 24, Take Rt. 5&10 South 2 miles

GET IN SHAPE!

★ Designer Whey Protein 2lb. $24.95
★ MET-Rx 20 pack $35.95
★ Creatine 500g. $29.95
Andro available

GREAT PRODUCTS, GREAT PRICES, GREAT SERVICE!

NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
EXERCISE + NUTRITION PROGRAMS AVAILABLE

65 UNIVERSITY DR. AMHERST
549-7434

IN SHAPE NUTRITION

WALKING DISTANCE!

Get 100 FREE minutes.
Then call anywhere in the U.S. for only 10¢ a minute.

Sign up for an AT&T One Rate® plan and your first 100 minutes are FREE.* Whatever your calling needs are AT&T has a One Rate plan that's right for you.

100 FREE minutes

AT&T One Rate® Plus: 10¢ a minute—one low rate all the time on state-to-state calls you dial from home. Whoever. Whenever. Wherever you call in the U.S. And just a $4.95 monthly fee.

AT&T One Rate® Off Peak: 10¢ a minute on your state-to-state, direct dialed calls from home from 7pm–7am and all weekend long; 25¢ a minute all other times. And there's no monthly fee.*

Sign up with AT&T and get 100 minutes FREE.
Call 1 800 654-0471
and mention offer code 59917
or visit www.att.com/college/np.html

It's all within your reach.® AT&T

* Terms and conditions apply. Free minutes promotion applies to first full monthly bill. Unused minutes cannot be carried over. Offer expires 10/15/98. Offer based on choice of AT&T One Rate Plus or AT&T One Rate Off Peak Plan. Plans subject to billing availability. In-state rates vary. $1 monthly minimum usage applies to One Rate Off Peak Plan. Call for details. ©1998 AT&T

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Now Hiring
All Positions

Rumors Confirmed
Collegian Ranks #1
Resume Builder on Campus
Graduates Find
Rewarding Jobs

NEWS

What do burning buildings, famous speakers, government scandal, peeping toms and the best resume builder on campus have in common? The News Department of the Collegian!

As a news associate or news correspondent you will be covering the latest issues and events on campus. We have beats where you can gain experience covering everything from the latest crimes to the biggest names that come to campus.

If you want to be a competitive candidate for internships and jobs, nothing on campus will give you hands-on experience like working for the Collegian News Department. Nothing will give employers a better sample of your writing than news articles. So come down to the Collegian and ask for Jill Carroll or call the News Desk at 545-1762.

SPO

Here in the Sports Department we cover a wide range of occurrences in the world of sports. Obviously, the main purpose of the page is to cover UMass sports, but we also run weekly columns on pro baseball, the NFL, NHL, NBA, and college football and basketball. In addition, we also run a weekly "Around the Horn" column, which allows any writer to take a crack at giving their viewpoint on the weeks sporting events.

Another plus in the Sports Department is the opportunity for travel. Just to name a few sites, UMass teams will play in Colorado, Michigan, and Hawaii this year. Last year writers travelled to Boyertown, Penn. for the Atlantic 10 baseball tournament and to Fenway Park for the baseball Beanpot, as well as various other locations.

If you want to write for the Sports Department, just stop down to 113 Campus Center, and ask for Michael Kobylanski. You can also reach me by phone at 545-1749, or by e-mail at kobo3@hotmail.com.

EDITORIAL

Editorial writers are the glitterati of the newsroom. Columnists are the closest thing to celebrity that you will find on the UMass campus.

Are you sick of blathering on about your opinions to random people, or keeping your feelings bottled up inside until they become bitter pills of rage? Then come down and write! Ed/Op writers have the ability to share their opinions with the whole campus, to anger the administration, or to tick off the SGA. For next semester, we are hoping to have a core group of writers who are eager, well-informed and articulate. If you're interested, come on down to the Collegian, ask for Mike Messaros. Or if you're a scaredy-cat, just give a call at 545-1491.

DIVE

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian invites and encourages all to contribute to its diversity pages.

These pages, which include the Black Affairs page, the Multicultural Affairs page, the Women's Issues page, the Jewish Affairs page, the GLBT (Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender) issues page, and the Developing Nations page, present an opportunity for those who may not be extensively represented or covered in the regular pages of the Collegian.

The diversity desks present a forum where students may voice their opinions concerning issues which are relevant to them.

If you want to get involved in news reporting or writing, please come down and fill out an application.

If you are tired of not being heard, call Senior Diversity Editor Edgar Barros at 545-1851 or send email to ebarros@student.umass.edu.

LIVING

From reviewing the latest Dave Matthews Band album to interviews with Wycleffe Jean, Arts & Living is the place to be. We're currently looking for new writers to cover music, theater, film, TV, fashion and more down at the Collegian. This past year, we've given our thoughts on the Grammies, the Oscars, concerts in Northampton and productions at Bowker. The great thing about Arts & Living is that no experience is necessary —all you need are good writing skills and a love for all forms of entertainment. In addition to new writers, we're also hiring a music associate, fine arts associate and film associate for next semester. Applications are due May 8 and can be obtained down at the Collegian, or ask for Bryan at 545-1361.

EDITING

The Collegian is also looking for interested students to work one night per week as copy and night editors. Requirements for both positions include excellent spelling, grammar and communication skills.

Copy editors should be Collegian staff members, have some editing experience and knowledge of Associated Press style. They are responsible for writing accurate headlines for all news stories as well as reading through all stories for accuracy and consistency.

Anyone interested in either of these positions should visit the Collegian office in the 113 Campus Center and speak with Victoria Groves or call 545-1809.

PHOTO

The Photo Department is looking for creative photographers with at least one year experience for technician and staff positions. Photographers should have their own SLR camera. Technicians are responsible for developing black and white negatives, laying out photos for news and scanning negatives in photoshop. Knowledge of photoshop and layout is recommended but not required.

Photographers interact with all departments at the Collegian as well as members of the Five College Area, so good communication skills are a must. The photo department covers all five college events, and UMass sports and area music concerts. This year photographers covered speakers such as Ray Bradbury and Coretta Scott-King in addition to events such as the NCAA Basketball Tournament and Elton John and Wyclef Jean shows. If you are interested in working for the photo department please contact Lauren Kosky to fill out an application and schedule a portfolio review, or call the photo desk at 545-1701.

GRAPHICS

We're what makes the Collegian look good. In the Collegian Graphics Department we are responsible for designing all the advertisements that you see in each edition. National and local companies pay us to make them look good. We're responsible for making each day's paper possible too.

Want to get first hand experience using state-of-the-art technology? In the Collegian Graphics department we have nothing but the latest equipment that is available. Nothing looks better on a resume than showing that you are skilled in the software and hardware applications in demand today.

Positions available include advertisement designers and editorial production staff, who work to layout the newspaper to send it to the printer.

In addition, the Collegian is looking to hire students to work on its ever-improving web site. This includes day and night positions. If interested, contact Dave Voldan in the Graphics Department at 545-1864.

We've got some of the BEST jobs on campus!

The Collegian is Hiring from now 'till the en[illegible] for Fall '98. Visit our friendly offices co[illegible] the Campus Center. We're room 113 [illegible] the escalators, on the opposite end [illegible] Stop by to pick up an application o[illegible] For general questions call 545-350[illegible]

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ACTIVITIES

Free Bridge Lessons for UMass students. "The Club Series." Thurs., 7-9 pm. Start 9/17. Info: Chris 5-4411.

AUTO FOR SALE

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS Automatic, fully loaded, 103k miles. Excellent condition. $3700. 253-5603.

1989 Subaru Wagon Standard, 4WD, highway miles, clean. $1400. (978)544-3783.

89 Chevy Corsica Black. 5 speed. $1200 or B/O. 253-8918.

1988 VW Jetta Gold, 5 speed. Good condition. $1200. 548-9228

88 Honda Accord LX Gold Stick Shift Power Windows/Locks 160k Excellent Condition! (413)323-7536

WANTED: Toyotas, Novas, Prizms, Sentras. Any condition. Cash paid everyday. 1-800-649-4795.

87 Subaru GL Wagon 5 speed. $800. Call Korey 256-6497

92 Honda Accord LX 4 door, 5 speed, A/C, 88k. $6000. 256-3472

1990 Ford Taurus LX 4dr SDN, ABS, airbag. All power, new engine, 40k. $2400. 253-7009

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

CHILDCARE

Child Care Vouchers: For undergraduate parents taking 6 or more credits and on financial aid. Come to Rm 428 Student Union or call 545-0865.

COMPUTERS

486 Computer Great For Student Works Good$100. Color VGA $50. (413)584-8857

COMPUTERS

NEED A NEW COMPUTER? Customized computer systems, fully configured and within your budget. Call Josh @ 6-3680 or email at josh@jyster.com for more info. www.jyster.com.

EMPLOYMENT

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS Abt Associates is looking for a few reliable people with good communication and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evening and weekend assignments are currently available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $6.25/hr with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more information or to arrange a personal interview call 413-587-1607. An Equal Opportunity Employer

Experienced House Cleaner for family farmhouse in Leverett. $10/hr. 548-9870 Susan.

Searching for a hairstylist some afternoons and Saturdays. Regency Hairstylist 253-9526.

Earn Yourself $21!! We need people to participate in an experiment at the UMass Phonetics Lab. You must be a native speaker of American English and be available for a single session between 2:30-5:30pm. For more information, phone 545-6837.

Spring Break '99- Sell Trips, Earn Cash & Go Free!!! STS is now hiring campus reps. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico & Florida. Call 800-648-4849 or apply online at www.ststravel.com.

Best Jobs On Campus Come to the basement of MEMORIAL HALL and apply today. 545-3509.

EMPLOYMENT

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2" 2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and... Earn $$$$ Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks. Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplashtours.com

Undergraduate Business Consultant Gain Accounting Experience, Leadership Skills, and General Business Experience. 10-15 hrs per week, flexible schedule. Must be self motivated; able to work as part of a team. Sophomores and Juniors are encouraged to apply. Pick up an application at the Center for Student Business, 406 Student Union. Questions, call 545-2166. Deadline for apps- Fri., Sept 18.

Best Part-Time Job In The Valley You don't have to wash dishes or flip burgers for the extra money you need. Become a Clean Water Action organizer and earn $7.30-$9.00/hr fighting air and water pollution. Paid training, flexible schedule, evening and weekend hours. 584-9830.

Seeking outgoing campus spokespeople to represent companies on campus. 10-15 hours per week. Flexible hours. Customer service experience helpful but not required. Short term and long term positions available. Contact Dan Wolman at CIS (800)922-5579.

Kai Chi Restaurant hiring waitstaff, drivers, bouncers, and bartenders. Apply in person after 4:30 pm. 586-2774

CAMPUS DESIGN & COPY has openings for new co-managers. If you've always wanted to run your own business, start with a genuine student-run collective! Applications (due 9/16) and details at 403 Student Union. 545-2271.

EMPLOYMENT

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Mornings and evenings. $7.85/hr. 546-0666.

Humen Services- Want to make a difference in someone's life? Relief support needed to work with developmentally disabled adults. May lead to permanent hours. Hours include evenings, weekends and/or overnights. Required: driver's license and professionalism. Call (413)323-6872 to start application process. AA/EOE

CANTONE'S PIZZA CO seeks drivers. Must have reliable vehicle. Part-Time & Full-Time. Also hiring experienced pizza cooks. Call 256-6100 or apply in person. 481 West St., Rte 116, South Amherst

Student Rep AT&T Authorized Agent needs 20 students now! No experience, will train. $100-300/wk PT/FT. 800-592-2121 ext 133.

EARN CASH Flexible Hours Now hiring at Sbarro's. Hampshire Mall.

Full/Part-Time positions available now, as movers. Flexible hours needed. Need transportation. Contact Kathy Banas 584-4746.

Kitchen Help Wanted Apply at D.P. Dough.

Delivery Persons Wanted Apply at D.P. Dough.

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ For HIRE: DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery. 253-9742.

FOR RENT

Lockers For Rent: $10 for academic year. Going fast! Come to Rm 428 Student Union.

FOR SALE

For Sale- TV Stand Franci 253-7606.

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection, from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade. 253-5312.

FURNITURE

Computer Table $30 Bucks. 585-1593.

Desk For Sale $40. 584-7197.

Danish teak desk $75, pine dresser $45, end table $10, small bookcase $10, foam mattress $50. Prices firm. 253-9719.

WATERBED Queen size, bookcase headboard, four drawer pedestal, more. $200/best offer. 253-3318.

Quality Mode Ikea Futon Couch/Bed For Sale. $120. It's in great condition. Call 585-1593 after 7pm and ask for John.

INSTRUCTON

Boxing Lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. (413)732-8817.

LOST & FOUND

LOST JEWELRY Grandmother's silver engagement ring. Lost on 9/10 around Totman and Sylvan parking area. Great sentimental value. Please return. Reward. Call 665-7630.

MUSICAL EQUIP

P.A. SYSTEM FOR SALE Nearly new, awesome little system, multi-effects processor; EQ; tape deck; mixer; 2 power amps, 2 JBL speakers; 2 EV monitors; mikes; road cases with fans; cables; speaker stands. Will not part out. $3500. (413)527-8387. Leave message.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Can Teach All Styles Call Stephen Page at 256-2612.

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 roommates needed for a 4 bedroom apartment on Main St. $300 per month. Utilities included. Available 9/11. 253-9795.

Roommate(s) Wanted Looking for 1 or 2 non-smoking persons to share a 2 bedroom townhouse on bus route. Call Toby or Ryan @ 548-7059.

SERVICES

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Rental Problems? Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

Cheap Heating Oil- Join The Pioneer Valley Oil Coop. Come to CSHRC, Rm 428 Student Union or call 545-0865.

TUTORING SERVICE

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

TYPING

Mort & Son Typing Service Call 549-6942

Amherst Leisure Services Seeks
Sports Referee/Basketball
Adult Volleyball Officials Supervisor
Adult Basketball Score Keeper
Youth Basketball Supervisor, Officials Facility Supervisor, Certified Swim Instructor
Immediate Need For
Experienced Stage Manager for Town Community Theater nights & weekend
Adult Ed Supervisor evening
Application available @ Human Resources 4 Boltwood Walk Amherst, MA 01002 EOE
Prefered Deadline September 15

To place a Classified Call us at 545-3500 or Visit our office in The Campus Center Basement

IF IT'S OUT THERE, IT'S IN HERE!

The Collegian Classifieds

Five College Community Calendar

MONDAY, SEPT. 14

Auditions — Auditions for UMass's Jewish a cappella singing group will be held from 7–9 p.m. at the Hillel House. Call 549–1710 for more information.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 15

Classes — There will be free hypnosis classes to help quit smoking from 6:30–9 p.m. Call 256–4077 to pre–register.

Community — There will be a blood drive in the Student Union Ballroom from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m.

Community — The annual J. Crew Warehouse sale will be at the Mullins Center from 9 a.m.–9 p.m.

Lecture — A lecture entitled "Do Women and Men Communicate Differently?" in the New York Room in Mary Woolley Hall at Mount Holyoke College. The lecture begins at 7:30 p.m.

Open House — The Student Government Association is having an open house from 6–8 p.m. in Campus Center room 174. All are welcome.

NOTICES

Community — Nomination papers for the Student Government Association elections are available in room 420 in the Student Union. Papers need to be turned in by 5 p.m. on September 22, and elections will be held September 28.

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through October 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for its frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. Call 545–0883 for more information.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. Contact Gina at (508) 849–5600 ext. 201 for more details.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs and to work on special projects. Call 545–0883 for more details.

Voting — Absentee ballots are now available in the Town Clerk's office for the September 15 state primary. The deadline to apply for an absentee ballot is 12 p.m. on September 14.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

MONDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 14, 1998

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	6	(13)	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer	Antiques Roadshow (In Stereo)		Evening at Pops (R) (In Stereo)		U.S.-Mexican War (1846-1848) (In Stereo) (Part 2 of 2)
WFSB	3	(3)	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Cosby (R)	Cosby (R)	Everybody Loves Raymond	48 Hours (In Stereo)		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	(4)	News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Cosby (R)	Cosby (R)	Everybody Loves Raymond	48 Hours (In Stereo)		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	(5)	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	NFL Football: San Francisco 49ers at Washington Redskins. (In Stereo Live)					News
WLVI	56		Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Henny	Henny	Th Heaven "...And Girlfriends"	Buffy the Vampire Slayer		News		Star Trek: Next Gener.
WHDH	7		News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Spokesperson for Lee Jeans discusses the Lee Jeans Jeanswear Fund. (Taped)			Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	20	(8)	Married... With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	News	Newsradio	Newsradio	LAW
WVIT	30	(9)	News	NBC News	Inside Edition	Hard Copy	Spokesperson for Lee Jeans discusses the Lee Jeans Jeanswear Fund. (Taped)			Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	(61)	Simpsons	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	Frasier	Melrose Place (In Stereo)		Ally McBeal "The Real World"		News	Mad Abt. You	Mad Abt. You
WWLP	22	(22)	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Spokesperson for Lee Jeans discusses the Lee Jeans Jeanswear Fund. (Taped)			Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	(44)	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer	Evening at Pops (R) (In Stereo)		U.S.-Mexican War (1846-1848) (In Stereo) (Part 2 of 2)				Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	(40)	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	NFL Football: San Francisco 49ers at Washington Redskins. (In Stereo Live)					News
WSBK	38		Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Seinfeld	Frasier	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	News	Mad Abt. You	Frasier	Cheers
WTBS	17		Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Major League Baseball: Philadelphia Phillies at Atlanta Braves. (Live)
A&E	34		Murder, She Wrote (Part 2 of 2)		Law & Order "Family Business"	Biography: Christina Onassis			Tales of the D'Urbervilles (Part 2 of 2)			Law & Order "Humiliation"
CNN	18	(27)	Worldview	Moneyline Newshour		Crossfire	World Today		Larry King Live		Newsstand: Time (R)	Sports	Moneyline
COM	53	(24)	1 Night Stand	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money			Dr. Katz Pro.	Bob-Margaret	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	32		Wings (R)		Jimmie Shelter (R)		Wild Discovery: Wisent		Great Siberian Explosion		Code Red: Submarine Rescue	Justice Files	Why They Kill
ESPN	43		Sportscenter	Monday Night Countdown			Figure Skating: World Championships Gala Exhibition. (R)				River City Dog Show	Baseball	Sportscenter
LIFE	45		Ellen	Ellen	Party of Five "All-Nighters"		Chicago Hope "The Virus"		Undefeated and Primetime	Inside Edition		New Attitudes	Golden Girls
MTV	59		(5:30) Jams Countdown		Fanatic (R)	Beavis-Butt.	Eye Spy	Are We?	Total Request Live (In Stereo)		Road Rules	Martyn Mean	Fanatic (R)
NICK	42		Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Hey Arnold!	Allen Strange	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	Love Lucy	Benchwarmers
SCIFI	46		Quantum Leap (In Stereo)		Sightings	Star Trek "The Corbomite Maneuver"			Sliders "Virtual Side" (R)		Welcome to Paradox	Sightings	Star Trek
TLC	44	(26)	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	Extreme Machines (R)		Baby the Kid (R)		Explosions! (R)	Extreme Machines (R)
TNT	31		Babylon 5 "Comics of Interest"		ER "Another Perfect Day"		WCW Monday Nitro (In Stereo Live)
USA	33		Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess		Walker, Texas Ranger		WWF Raw (In Stereo)		WWF War Zone (In Stereo)	New York Undercover
HBO	50		★★ "Dear God" (1996, Comedy) Greg Kinnear. (In Stereo) PG				★★★ "Jerry Maguire" (1996, Comedy) Tom Cruise. (In Stereo) R					★★★ "Jerry Maguire"
MAX	51		(4:00)		★★ "Wild Bill" (1995) Jeff Bridges.				★★★ "Braveheart" (1995) Mel Gibson. (In Stereo) R
SHOW	54		★★★ "Never Talk to Strangers" (1995) Antonio Banderas. (In Stereo) R						★★ "Wild Things" (1998) Kevin Bacon. (In Stereo) R				Love Street

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Spunk By Mike LaRicca

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

Horoscopes

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — Although you feel as though a wrong decision was made, today's events will prove otherwise.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — Focus on someone else's requests and needs today. Be kind, generous, and considerate of others.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — Be wary of boosting someone's hopes so high that you're unable to meet their expectations. Be realistic.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — Enjoy the ride provided by a friend today. The rewards stemming from it will have long-lasting benefits.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You may feel like there's only one road to traverse today, but you're overlooking many valuable side-streets. Don't miss out!

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Thanks to a friend who knows just what you need, you'll be in for a good time today. Open your mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — Now is the time to beat around the bush. Thoughtfully and efficiently speak your mind today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You may feel that your communication with others is fine at this time, but that might not be the case. Think before you speak.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You can do much to ease someone else's discomfort today. Whether its physical, psychological, or emotional, you'll know how to "fix it."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — Focus on the things that promote peace and harmony in your daily life. Also, seek some private space today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You can promise someone else the world today, but it'll only be a disappointment if you're not willing to "go the distance."

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You may be surprised at the way someone else makes you feel today. It's time for a change or two!

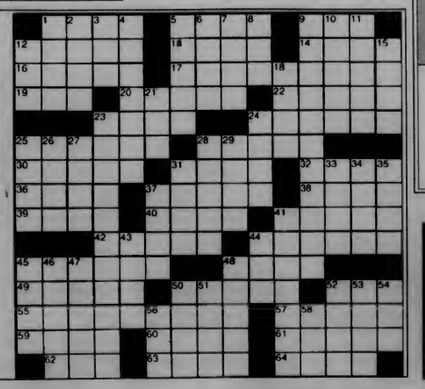
Close to Home By John McPherson

Quote of the Day

"President Clinton – who said he was unable to recall most of his encounters with Ms. Lewinsky – did remember her "back there with a pizza" during the government shutdown."

– The Office of Independent Council's report, "1995: Initial Sexual Encounters - November 15th"

STUMPED? Call for Answers • Touch-tone or Rotary Phones • 95¢ per minute 1-900-370-9600 ext. code 500



ACROSS
1 Cow's foot
5 Leap
9 Like a beet
12 Excel
13 Succulent plant
14 Locale
16 Frequent — (airline user)
17 Percussion instrument
19 Musical notes
20 Ice-cream treat
22 Slice
23 Noticed
24 Hollow stones
25 Water channel
28 Pusan's place
30 Speckled fish
31 Trucker's rig
32 Bandage for a broken arm
36 Staffer
37 Actor Ford
38 Three, in cards
39 South African settler
40 Hindu princess
41 Tobacco product
42 Boasts
44 Apply (oneself) to an activity
45 Was afraid
48 Stack
49 Book of maps
50 Woodland creatures
52 One day time
55 Most talkative
57 Small quantities
59 Docile
60 Recital offering
61 Very very
62 Our's opposite
63 Harem rooms
64 Mailed

DOWN
1 Island dance
2 Singer Redding
3 Sonnet's kin
4 Surrender (a right)
5 Actor Robards
6 Arm bone
7 Castle barrier
8 For each
9 Like uranium
10 Went wrong
11 Two, in cards
12 Not working
15 Iowa town
18 Fencing weapon
21 "— It Be
23 German restaurant entree
24 Smile
25 Take a — at try
26 Small group
27 Went by bus
28 Wails
29 Everywhere: pref.
31 Smelting residue
33 Golden Fleece ship
34 Bench
35 Ancient Phoenician city
37 Degree holder: for short
41 Temperature scale
43 Remainder
44 Loud noise
45 Reality
46 Actor Hawke
47 Crockett's last stand
48 Golf strokes
50 Bitter quarrel
51 On the ocean
52 Business letter abbr.
53 Small pie
54 Sharp — tack
56 Oath response
58 Bullfight cheer

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

Z	I	P	S		S	M	O	G		O	N	U	S
A	B	E	T		T	U	N	I	C		B	O	N	E
G	E	R	O		A	T	O	L	L		M	O	T	E
E	X	T	R	A	C	T		L	E	B	A	N	O	N
			I	N	K	S		A	I	R
A	S	S	E	T	S		G	A	R	D	I	G	A	N
C	L	A	S	S		M	I	L	L		O	L	G	A
H	A	I		S	A	N	D	Y		A	I	M
E	R	E	S		O	R	C	A		A	I	S	L	E
D	E	M	O	L	I	S	H		B	U	S	S	E	D
			M	E	L		O	R	E	L
A	S	C	E	T	I	C		G	A	L	A	H	A	D
L	P	A	H		N	O	E	L	S		R	O	S	Y
M	A	K	O		G	O	E	S		D	O	T	T	E
S	T	E	W		L	A	D	Y		S	K	I	D

9-14-98 © 1998 United Feature Syndicate

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Turkey Tetrazzini
Chirken Cutlet Sandwich
Grilled Steak Sandwich
DINNER
Chicken Breast With Rice Stuffing
Spaghetti/Italian Sweet Sausage
Italian Tofu Balls & Sauce
Quarter Pound Burger
Qtr. Pound American Cheese Burger

Worcester
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
American Chop Suey
Spaghetti/Tomato Sauce
Macaroni, Lentil & Tomatoes
Grilled Cheese On Branola
DINNER
Chicken Breast with Rice Stuffing
Black-Eyed Peas
Pastabilities
Ravioli Alfredo

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger On a Roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Turkey Tetrazzini
DINNER
Chicken Breast with Rice Stuffing
Spaghetti/Italian Sweet Sausage
Tomato Sauce

Berkshire
LUNCH
Turkey Tetrazzini
Hamburger on a Roll
Lentil Chili
DINNER
Chicken Breast with Rice Stuffing
Shrimp & Sausage Jambalaya
Penne with Tomatoes and Spinach
Pastabilities

Night Editor: Victoria Groves
Photo Editor: Dave Finks
Copy Editor: Nicole Racicot
Production Supervisor: Jeremy Brothers
Production Staff: Michelle McGonagle, Lisa Metcalf

SPORTS weekend
Monday, September 14, 1998
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Late drive propels UMass over Spiders, 22–17

By Brett Mauser
Collegian Staff

RICHMOND — The edge was near. Looking over its shoulders, inching closer and closer to its absolute limit, the Massachusetts football team's defense decided that it was not time to lie down quite yet. So they started playing football.

In six trips to Minuteman territory in the first half, Richmond could only come up with a field goal to show for it. The Spiders could see the opportunities go by the wayside and knew that three turnovers would not be offered to them in the second half, never mind another career half from quarterback Jimmie Miles. The defense simply would not give them the satisfaction.

The second half built the drama, but when, with a minute to play, Todd Bankhead found a wide open Jimmy Moore in the end zone with a wobbly lob, it was the defense that would earn its own satisfaction from a 22–17 victory over the Spiders at UR Stadium on Saturday.

"He made a great play," Bankhead said. "I saw him get behind the corner and I just threw it up there. It looked like a punt and he went up and got it."

Bankhead's classic dropback method would not see much success in the scoring department, but rather his improvisational style of play. The junior signal caller, flushed out of the pocket by a penetrating Richmond defense that had sacked him four times on the day, lofted a pass from 18 yards out to Moore deep in the end zone that would eventually become the winning touchdown. His first touchdown pass of the afternoon to Marcell Shipp also included a scramble.

Richmond would have one last chance, but it was four and out for the Spiders. On fourth and five, Miles threw the ball into the ground on a wide receiver screen to Ryan Tolhurst. After an abysmal performance last weekend against Rutgers, Miles kept it close, throwing for 207 yards on 16 for 39 passing.

The Minutemen were lucky enough to have possession with time winding down. They could not move the ball and had to punt the ball away with 3:50 remaining in the game. On the ensuing play, though, at its own 47-yard line, Richmond ran the ball up the middle with TyRonne Turner, but at midfield, he was met by Khari Samuel. Turner lost control of the ball and freshman safety Jeremy Robinson recovered to set the stage for the dramatic finish.

"It was a great win for the kids," coach Mark Whipple said. "They had to give everything they had to find a way to win. They were tired. It was hot, and our guys just found a way."

Bankhead's dream season continues to add more pages to his storybook start in a UMass uniform. The junior college transfer nearly duplicated his debut performance in Delaware, completing 26 of 45 passes for 323 yards and three touchdowns. His only blemish was an interception for Richmond's Winston October that would set up the Spiders' only points of the first half.

With 12 seconds remaining in the first half and the Minutemen facing a fourth and two situation at their own 45 yard line, most of the 10,219 fans at UR Stadium expected the offense to pack it in and head into the locker room with a 7–3 lead. Instead, Bankhead found freshman Adrian Zullo twice, once on the sidelines for 17 yards to stop the clock, and again on a 38-yard connection in the back of the end zone with no time remaining to lengthen the lead to 10 points.

"We told Bankhead if he could get one-on-one to Zullo on the backside to take it," Whipple said. "He made a great throw, his best throw, I think, of the year."

Sophomore linebacker Kole Ayi then went out and supported the praise of his coach. On media day, Whipple had nothing but good words to speak of Ayi. On Saturday, Ayi compiled 13 tackles, 10 of those unassisted, and his first career interception.

"The defense always has to step up," Ayi said. "If the offense scores three points and we take care of business, it's still a win."

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Quarterback Todd Bankhead engineered the game–winning drive for the Massachusetts football team on Saturday, capping it off with a touchdown strike to Jimmy Moore.

Turn to MINUTEMEN page 9

UMass defense the real key to victory

By Seth Koenig
Collegian Staff

RICHMOND — The buzz around the University of Richmond early in the 1998 football season was the Spiders' defense.

And why wouldn't it be? It has never been a secret that Jim Reid has always been a defensive-minded coach. Not to mention that the Richmond defense was ranked first in the Atlantic 10 last year, and although the squad lost seven starters to graduation, three of the returning four were All-Conference selections in '97.

In addition, the Spiders held their opponents to only a touchdown last weekend in a loss to Division I-A Rutgers, a feat that they had accomplished in three out of their first four games last season, including a 21–6 pummeling of the University of Massachusetts.

Defensive lineman Marc Megna led the highly touted group into the game with 14 sacks a year ago, and lived up to his billing come game time, as he took down Minuteman signal callers Todd Bankhead and Jeff Smith three and a half times on Saturday.

Safety Winston October also came into UR Stadium on the heels of a second team spot on the All-Conference team in '97 to record 12 tackles, a sack, and a spectacular, bobbling interception against UMass.

Yet, once the game was over, very few people were talking about the Spiders' defense.

Instead, the buzz was about the Massachusetts defense.

Against a squad that hasn't commanded much respect over the past few seasons, the Spider offense could not break the Minuteman front.

In Richmond's six first half possessions, the home team penetrated the UMass 40 yard line all six times, yet the frustrated Spiders went into the locker room with only a field goal to show for it.

As the Massachusetts offense struggled early to capitalize on their relatively few opportunities across the midfield stripe, the defense, charged by sophomore linebacker Kole Ayi, who led the game with 13 tackles and picked off his first collegiate pass for emphasis, carried the team.

"The defense always has to step up," Ayi said. "If the offense scores three points and we take care of business, it's still a win."

After two punts from the UMass 32 and 38 yard lines, respectively, Richmond decided to go for it on their third possession on a fourth and two from the Minuteman 35. Senior co-captain Khari Samuel, who stands at an intimidating 6-feet-3-inches and tips the scales with a chiseled 240 pound frame, squashed a considerably smaller Tyronne Turner, a 5-foot-8-inch, 170 pound scatback for no- gain.

Then it was the freshman defensive back Jeremy Robinson who saved the day late in the second half, digging the ball out of a pile at the 30 yard line following a Turner fumble. Starting there, quarterback

Turn to DEFENSE page 9

UMass upsets Dukes, falls to UVA

By Aaron Saykin
Collegian Staff

There are two kinds of games for the Massachusetts field hockey team: those with Erica Johnston, and those without her.

After leading the Minutewomen to a 4–2 victory yesterday over host James Madison, Johnston reminded her teammates just how smoothly the offense seems to click while she's in the lineup. After a two-game scoring drought, UMass (2–3) erupted for four goals against the No. 9 ranked team in the nation.

Yesterday marked Johnston's return to her usual scoring ways after suffering a serious head injury in the season–opener against New Hampshire two weeks ago. The senior All–American and reigning Atlantic 10 Player of the Year erupted for a goal and an assist, helping the Minutewomen jump out to a 3–0 lead at the beginning of the second half.

Despite the three-goal deficit, the Dukes (2–3) clawed back in the second half, narrowing the margin to 3–2 before freshman Anke Bruemmer put the game out of reach in the final minute of regulation with her second penalty-corner tally of the contest. Bruemmer a Koeln, Germany native and designated hitter in penalty corner situations, notched the first two goals of her young career, while leading her teammates to their second upset of a top 10 team during the 1998 campaign.

Accounting for the other UMass tally was sophomore forward Kristen Schmidt, scoring off a Johnston assist a mere seven minutes into the contest. Senior co captain Vicky Browne and sophomore back Patty Robinson added to the Minutewoman offense, assisting on both Bruemmer goals.

Although James Madison outshot UMass 14–11, Minutewoman goaltender Zowie Tucker stymied the Dukes offense, en route to a three–save performance. Her counterpart Amada Latz notched five saves for JMU.

Despite entering Saturday's contest against No. 1 Virginia as a heavy underdog, UMass battled the host Cavaliers (4–0) tightly during a 2–0 defeat, yielding a miniscule two goals to one of the most potent offenses in the nation. Virginia scoring leader Michelle Vizzuso truck first for the Cavs with 19 minutes remaining in the opening frame. Her sister Lorraine put the game out of reach with a second–half goal.

Unable to muster a single shot against Virginia, the Minutewomen remained in the game with solid performances from each unit of the entire team, namely the defense and its goaltending. Tucker turned away seven shots, while being bombarded by 17 Cavalier tries, including nine penalty corner attempts.

UMass will continue its road swing on Wednesday, when the team travels to Harvard for a 3:30 afternoon game. The Minutewomen will not return home until October 7.

FILE PHOTO

Senior co–captain Vicky Browne had two assists yesterday to lead the Massachusetts field hockey team in a 4–2 upset over No. 9 James Madison.

Rough weekend for UM volleyball out in Arizona

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's volleyball team battled through a tough weekend in Arizona at the Varsity Club of America Classic, dropping all four matches at the tournament.

UMass started the weekend with Portland State. PSU entered the match 2–4. Despite a great effort in the fifth game by Jill Meyers, UMass dropped the match 15–10, 10– 15, 15–5, 7–15, 15–8.

Meyers recorded a double–double, netting 20 kills, and getting 10 digs. Jennifer Drennan also had 38 assists in the match.

Kari Hogancamp also chipped in 25 digs, but struggled to finish her kills. Hogancamp had as many errors on attack as she had kills.

UMass attempted to regroup quickly for Friday nights date with No. 25 Arizona. The Wildcats came into the contest 4- 0, and would leave 5–0, but not without a Minutewomen challenge. As they did a week earlier against BYU, UMass fell down two games to Arizona by scores of 15–10, 15–7.

In the third game UMass surprised the Wildcats by defeating them 15–9. The decisive victory could have been the spark the Minutewomen needed but as they did against BYU at the Phoenix Invitational, they settled for the one game and were handled the third game 15–6.

The star of the match for UMass against Zona was once again Meyers. The California native contributed 19 kills and nine digs. Meanwhile Hogancamp buried 9 kills and 16 digs.

The Minutewomen entered the second day of action 2–4 and with hope of salvaging two wins in the tournament against Idaho and Western Michigan.

Idaho entered their contest with UMass, 3–1. They served UMass off the court winning in game one 15–2. The Minutewomen bounced back in the second game, but suffered a tough loss by a score of 15–12.

The Minutewomen used game two as motivation for game three and won 15–13, but it was not meant to be as the Vandals won the fourth game in impressive fashion 15–3.

The Minutewomen's best outside hitters Meyers, Hogancamp, and Katie Gibbons, all struggled with the attack percentage through the Idaho game.

UMass entered the final match of the Tournament, with a record of 2–5. Their opponent, 4–4 Western Michigan.

The Minutewomen jumped out to a two games to one lead with winning a close first game 15–11, and dropping a tight second game 15–10. Then UMass showed the staying power which had been missing for most of the tournament. They persevered and won game three 15–9.

UMass hit the hump in each of the next two games. They were in close games that could have secured the match but they dropped both game four and game five 15–11, 15–11.

Hogancamp lead the charge for UMass with 18 kills, 23 digs and five assists. Freshman setter Heather Holtsberg also came through with 55 assists and 11 digs.

The Minutewomen finished the tourney 2–6, and will now get set to begin Atlantic 10 play against Temple on Friday, 5 p.m.

LAUREN KOSKY/COLLEGIAN

Junior co–captain Jill Meyers had an impressive showing over the weekend for the Massachusetts volleyball team, but the Minutewomen dropped four matches to fall to 2–6.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CIV Issue 5 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, September 15, 1998

A jazzy night at FAC

Kevin Mahogany kicks off the Fine Arts Center fall lineup. Check out our preview of all the events (see Arts & Living, page 5).

On the board

Senior forward Sophie Lecot and the Massachusetts women's soccer team garnered their first win of the season this past weekend (see Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Treasure awaits divers at bottom of Atlantic

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia — A treasure trove worth millions of dollars could well be sitting on the ocean floor, buried alongside the mangled wreckage of Swissair Flight 111, authorities said yesterday.

The valuables, including diamonds, jewels, millions of dollars in cash and a Picasso painting worth an estimated $1.5 million were on their way to Geneva when the jet crashed into the Atlantic on Sept. 2, killing all 229 people aboard.

Authorities said their priority is recovering the remains of the victims, only five of whom had been identified by midday yesterday. "The focus isn't on retrieving a safe," said Corp. Carl Hubley, a spokesman for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. In Zurich, Switzerland, Swissair official Klaus Knappik said the Picasso work, "The Painter," was aboard the MD-11 and had probably been destroyed.

The airline would not disclose the identities of the sender or receiver of the painting. A spokesman said it had been in the plane's cargo hold, but not in a valuables container.

Knappik also said nearly 110 pounds of cash and 4 1/2 pounds of diamonds were aboard. The money was being sent from a U.S. bank to a bank in Switzerland.

NATION

Microsoft antitrust suit to go to court

WASHINGTON — A federal judge rejected most of Microsoft Corp.'s request to throw out the government's antitrust case yesterday, handing prosecutors their most significant courtroom victory to date.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson also agreed to delay the trial three weeks, until Oct. 15, to give both sides more time for pretrial interviews with industry executives.

The Justice Department and 20 states allege that Microsoft illegally tried to protect its lucrative Windows operating system and wrest control of the Internet browser market by hurting Netscape Communications Corp., which makes a rival browser called Navigator.

In his 54-page ruling, Jackson said statements by Microsoft executives about their actions toward Netscape "at least raises a question as to Microsoft's intent to monopolize the browser market."

Microsoft has said it "integrated" its browser within Windows to make it better for consumers, but the government said that unfairly forces Windows customers also to use Microsoft's browser rather than Netscape's.

The judge cited previously unreleased e-mail excerpts from top Microsoft executives, such as a February 1997 message from Vice President Moshe Dunie to Chairman Bill Gates.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Tomorrow	Thursday
HIGH: 82	HIGH: 80	HIGH: 66
LOW: 61	LOW: 61	LOW: 48

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics .....page 9
Crossword .....page 8
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 10

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Site for water tank sought

By Jessica Carroll
News Associate

The search for the site of a much-needed water storage tank took center stage at last night's Amherst Select Board meeting.

Discussion of the issue narrowed locations to two main sites. The first proposal is to build the tank next to a small tank that already exists in the Wildwood Conservation area located off of Strong Street. It would be constructed in the west end of the conservation land behind Village Park Apartments.

Alan Woodhull, who lives on Strong Street and opposes this location of the storage tank, was the spokesperson for an alternate site.

"Many of us were disturbed to hear that a tank was proposed to go here," said Woodhull. The proposed tank, which will be approximately forty-seven feet high and one-hundred sixty-five feet in diameter, will be built on land that is not flat. In order to support the tank, a lot of land will have to be filled in underneath. The tank will have a capacity of one million cubic feet and it will be necessary to bring in six-hundred thousand cubic feet of fill to build the platform the tank will stand on.

Woodhull says that the tower "would really be quite an insult to the conservation area," since the fifty foot water tower storage tank would sit atop a sixty-five foot pile of dirt.

Woodhull also said the plan requires an enormous area beyond the area needed for the tank itself. He suggested trading some land which was unbuildable, like swampland, and keeping the conservation land untouched.

An alternative to the Wildwood location is the site where two existing water tanks stand in the University of Massachusetts at Amherst's Orchard Hill residential area behind the Grayson and Field residence halls.

The reasoning for this site is that the tops of the tanks need to be consistent and the height of the tower could be sixty-six feet high and slightly narrower than the proposed tank at Wildwood, a diameter of one-hundred thirty feet. Also, because the area consists of asphalt and cut grass, it would only take three to six months for the area to regain its current appearance. In Wildwood, it would take approximately forty years for the land to grow back.

Select Board member Del Castilho said he supported the formation of a water storage advisory committee, but conservation issues should be left up to the Conservation Committee.

"My recommendation would be to concentrate on water storage issues and be in touch with the Conservation Committee about issues that would come before that committee," said Castilho.

Select Board member Comes agreed saying — "I think the location of the tank should be based on its usefulness and its usefulness is to provide water. That is more important to me than the impact it will have on the residents of Village Park."

Furthermore, Comes disagreed that it would have a long-term effect on the birds and animals which have made the Wildwood Conservation area their home.

David Karnum, another spokesperson for an alternative to the Wildwood site, said he was troubled by the proposal.

"I live right next to the proposed access road. The road is already marked off from Strong Street all the way to the water storage tank, so it seems as if the town has already put into motion that this is going to occur at this location."

He went on to say that many animal habitats would be disrupted if construction were to take place there. The access road would begin on Strong Street and run through the cemetery land, which is not part of the conservation land but is a popular bird-watching area. Woodhull approximated that the road would need to be at least twenty feet wide and fifteen hundred feet long to accommodate six hundred truck loads of fill, each truck carrying about one thousand feet of fill.

"It's a very beautiful area and I find the access road plowing through the area to be very difficult to swallow," said Karnum.

"I would like to know a great deal more about the impact it will have during the construction. I'm really very glad that we will have the time to have a committee look at this, look at all the issues. I would like to have the Conservation Committee assess this very carefully," said Select Board member Schiffer.

According to Schiffer, John Green will be leading a walk through the area to give people an idea of the wildlife that will be disturbed by building the water storage tank in the conservation area.

Last call for clean–up: EPA hopes for accord

PITTSFIELD (AP) — Environmental regulators are giving their final push for an accord with General Electric Co. to clean up PCB pollution around this city, a government spokesman said yesterday.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Peyton Fleming said more talks are set for tomorrow and Thursday. He said his agency decided to give the negotiations "one last shot" in those two days.

He says the EPA has "some hope" of an agreement. He said negotiators hope this week "either to have an agreement ...or to go our own ways and get the work done another way."

EPA officials have pledged to carry out the cleanup under the federal Superfund for toxic sites, if necessary. The Superfund would let the government accomplish the work and sue GE for triple the cost. GE has fought against use of the Superfund, saying an agreement will serve Pittsfield better.

GE spokesman Bruce Bunch confirmed plans for the talks later this week. "Clearly we're working hard to reach common ground," he said.

But he declined to speculate on the outcome, citing a confidentiality agreement with the government.

The EPA opened the on-and-off talks with GE a year ago. In April, government negotiators declared the talks a failure and pledged to advance the cleanup under the federal Superfund for toxic sites. But talks resumed two months later. The EPA has repeatedly set and then extended deadlines.

Tim Gray, director of the Housatonic River Initiative, said the environmental group supports another bid for a settlement. But he said talks should end Thursday, one way or another.

"The extensions are getting a little bit ridiculous. There's a point at which someone's got to stand up and stand firm and do what they were charged with by our country's law — and that's try to clean the place up," he said.

Government and GE officials have been working toward a cleanup of the polluted Housatonic River and redevelopment of an old GE factory site.

During those talks, GE has carried on a voluntary cleanup of about 30 sites. They are mostly residential but include two schools and a park.

GE plans to move on to about 60 others. The total estimated cost is $20 million.

But the EPA has fielded about 40 more requests for PCB testing since May.

Even under the Superfund, the cleanup could take more than a decade and cost up to $500 million, according to the EPA.

Government officials say it is one of the country's biggest cleanups of contamination left by a private polluter.

The cleanup has been in the works for nearly two decades. In a 1981 legal agreement, GE acknowledged that the river contamination came from PCBs it had used in making electrical transformers at its now-closed Pittsfield plant.

Pressure for a faster cleanup swelled last year when soil tests confirmed that dozens of homes, a few schools, and park land had also been contaminated. Before the potential dangers of PCBs were widely known, the company used to give out free PCB-laden fill to homeowners.

Clinton's fate may lie in hands of brother's prosecutor

By Kelly P. Kissel
Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A decade ago, Asa Hutchinson prosecuted Roger Clinton on federal drug charges, an action that President Clinton later said was "the best thing that ever happened" to his half brother.

Now Hutchinson, a freshman on the House Judiciary Committee, will have a voice on whether impeachment hearings should explore potential wrongdoing by the president.

Hutchinson said Monday he'll rely on his experience as a U.S. attorney to weigh evidence against the president. The important question, he says, is whether Clinton lied to a grand jury. "The heart of the matter goes to allegations of perjury before the grand jury," Hutchinson said. "It's the hallmark of our justice system. If the integrity of the grand jury is diminished, then our whole justice system will be weakened."

In 1984, Hutchinson was the Reagan-appointed federal prosecutor for western Arkansas when Roger Clinton was sentenced to two years in prison and, under a plea bargain, agreed to testify in other cocaine-related cases.

The president has long said the conviction helped turn his brother's life around, and he told that directly to Hutchinson on a 1997 trip to Arkansas.

"I flew down on Air Force One back to Arkansas to examine the damage from the (1997) tornadoes, and during that trip we had a very casual visit and the president remarked that that prosecution probably saved his brother's life," Hutchinson said Monday. "The prosecution was very tough on the family and then-Governor Clinton responded to it as a loving brother would," Hutchinson said. "I haven't followed Roger that closely, but I know he's made an effort to change directions."

Friends say Clinton did not hold the conviction against Hutchinson.

"I've been a political opposite of him," Hutchinson said. "He was governor of the state while I was the state (Republican) party chairman. I was running for the Senate while he was running for governor. Our paths have crossed numerous times. I think we've been respectful adversaries," the congressman said.

According to David Maraniss' book on Clinton, "First in his Class," Hutchinson believed Roger's conviction and testimony against others helped stem a growing cocaine scene in central Arkansas.

"Here the brother of the governor was saying, 'Hey, nobody touches me, look who I am!'" Hutchinson is quoted as saying in the book. "And the people had come to think it was all right. The case was important in showing people they couldn't do that."

Hutchinson was U.S. attorney from 1982 to 1985, and Clinton was Arkansas governor through much of that tenure. He ran for the U.S. Senate in 1986 and lost, then was a private lawyer and chairman of the state Republican Party before being elected to the House in 1996. Asa's brother, Tim, then in the House, won a seat in the U.S. Senate in the same election.

Wounded whales: a sign for cruise boats to slow down

By Paisley Dodds
Associated Press

BOSTON — For more than 40 years, visitors have flocked to New England, donning slickers and shelling out big bucks for whale-watching cruises.

But in the last two months, two of the rides have ended in tragedy. A humpback whale was hit and injured, and a minke whale was struck and killed — both by whale-watching boats.

"I still feel horrible," said Capt. Bill Sanchez of the Millennium catamaran, which hit the humpback whale last month. "I can still feel that bump when it hit the ship. I never wanted to hurt any of these animals."

As high-speed catamarans and ferries become popular along the Eastern Seaboard, conservationists and marine officials are renewing calls to regulate the whale-watching industry, a business that reeled in about $24 million in revenue last year, according to the National Marine Fisheries Service.

"Something should be done about the speed limits because right now, there are none," Sanchez said.

On Aug. 2, the 120-foot Millennium — one of the newest high-speed catamarans — struck and injured a 2-year-old humpback whale off of Stellwagen Bank. Sanchez said he sped up to about 21 miles per hour because he thought there were no whales around. Some ships can reach speeds of more than 40 miles per hour.

More recently, the "Whale Watch" cruise ship hit and killed a 20-foot minke whale on Saturday. The boat was on its way back to Barnstable Harbor.

Passengers said the whale's body was bloody when it emerged in the boat's wake. It was unclear how large the boat was, and officials from the company that owns the boat did not immediately return phone calls seeking comment yesterday.

Next week, the U.S. Coast Guard plans to conduct a high-speed craft meeting that will focus on boats and marine mammal issues. "There are currently restrictions on how close the boats can get to endangered species," said Lt. Joe Duffy of the Coast Guard's Marine Safety Division. "For example, boats can only come within 500 yards of the right whale. But there are no restrictions on how fast the boats can go."

In the early 1990s, the idea of regulating whale-watching tour companies was proposed, but many New England companies rejected the idea, saying they already had adequate guidelines, according to Nina Young, a research scientist for the Center for Marine Conservation, based in Washington, D.C.

"Because the New England congressional delegation was very strong back then, those whale-watching regulations were withdrawn," Young said. "Now is a good time to revisit the whole question."

DANIELLE R. GUARCH / COLLEGIAN

Coed Chic

Emma Kate Jaouen, a senior communication major strikes a pose outside of SOM. Love the boots...love'em.

DANIELLE R. GILARDI / COLLEGIAN

Sleeping beauty

Jenn Plante, a junior communication major, takes a mid afternoon doze near the campus pond.

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THAT'S US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB

BEST AEROBICS	BEST MACHINES	BEST PRICES
CARDIO KICKBOXING YOGA REEBOK BENCH LOW IMPACT	PRECOR ELLIPTICALS TREADMILLS • BIKES RECUMBENTS STAIRMASTERS	1 MO.....$49 3 MO.....$129 6 MOS.....$229 12 MO.....$389

Big Enough to Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name

AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB On Bus Route
256-0080 www.amherstathletic.com
460 West St. Open 7 Days

Campus Police Log

Animal Complaint
Sept. 13
A dog was reported chasing swans in a pond on North Pleasant Street.
Sept. 12
An injured bird was reported near Bartlett.

Annoying Behavior
Sept. 13
An unwanted guest was reported in Mary Lyon Residence Hall.
Skateboarders were moved along North Pleasant Street.

Assault & Battery
Sept. 13
An individual reported an earlier assault near Cance Residence Hall.

B&E/Burglary
Sept. 13
A walkman was reported stolen from a room in Field Residence Hall.
Sept. 11
A laptop computer, valued at $1000, was stolen from Coolidge Residence Hall.

Disturbance
Sept. 13
A large crowd was reported on John Adams Road.
A fight was reported near Cance Residence Hall.
Sept. 12
Words were exchanged between two fraternities on North Pleasant Street.

Drug Law Offenses
Sept. 12
Matthew S. Wasley, 19, of 19 Dartmouth Dr., Framingham, was arrested at Baker Hall for possession of Class D and Class B drugs and illegal possession of liquor.
Mark T. McInnis, 17, of 57 Standish St., Weymouth, was arrested at Field Residence Hall for possession of a Class D drug.

Health and Safety Hazard
Sept. 12
Environmental Health and Safety was notified of smoke in the basement of Wheeler Residence Hall.

Larceny
Sept. 12
A wallet and a jacket were stolen from a room in Gorman Residence Hall.
Sept. 11
A backpack was stolen from the Textbook Annex.
A cell phone was stolen from a vehicle in Lot 25 on Commonwealth Avenue.

Suspicious Person/Activity
Sept. 11
Daniel D. Luzon, 18, of 12 Cherry Tree Ln., North Attleborough, was arrested on University Drive for illegal possession of liquor.
Suspicious Vehicle
Sept. 12
Chris C. Meagher, 22, of 1010 North Pleasant St., Amherst, was arrested on Fearing Street for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license and larceny under $250.

Traffic Stop
Sept. 13
Corey J. Cherup, 22, of 29 Pearlree Ln., Dallas, Pa., was arrested on North Pleasant Street for operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor and speeding.
Sept. 12
David L. Acerra, 19, of 112 Orchard St., Millis, was arrested on University Drive for illegal possession of liquor.
Christopher A. Carlson, 19, of 108 Pleasant St., Millis, was arrested on University Drive for illegal possession of liquor and possession of a Class D drug.
Scott M. Collins, 20, of 599 E. Broadway, South Boston, was arrested on Orchard Hill Drive for illegal possession of liquor.
Dianne E. Sykes, 24, of 284 Princeton Rd., Rockville County, NY, was arrested on University Drive for unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and violating a flashing red light.
Justin Cardullo, 20, of 50 Highland St., Concord, was arrested at Southwest Circle for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor.

Weapons Violations
Sept. 13
A shotgun was found in a dumpster on John Adams Road.

Vandalism
Sept. 13
A vehicle was damaged in Lot 32 on Massachusetts Avenue.
Graffiti was scratched into an elevator panel in McNamara Residence Hall.
Racial graffiti was written on several doors in Pierpont Residence Hall.
A vehicle was damaged in Lot 26 on Sylvan Drive.
Sept. 11
A vehicle was damaged in Lot 49 on Windmill Lane.

10 charged with involvement in spy ring

By Tracy Fields
Associated Press

MIAMI — Ten people were charged yesterday in what prosecutors said is the largest Cuban spy ring ever uncovered in the United States since Fidel Castro came to power nearly 40 years ago. The eight men and two women tried to penetrate U.S. military bases, infiltrate anti-Castro groups and manipulate U.S. media and political groups, federal investigators said yesterday.

The FBI said one of the group's targets was the Miami-based U.S. Southern Command, which runs American military operations in Latin America and the Caribbean.

"In scope and in depth, this case, it is really unparalleled in recent years," said U.S. Attorney Thomas E. Scott. "This spy ring was cast by the Cuban government to strike at the very heart of our national security system and our very democratic process." The Cuban foreign ministry in Havana had no comment.

The suspects were held without bond and face charges of espionage and acting as unregistered agents of the Cuban government. Prosecutors said the investigation is continuing, but would not say if more arrests were anticipated.

Charges against five of the suspects carry life sentences. Charges against the other five have maximum sentences of 15 years One of the suspects, Linda Hernandez, was said to be part of a husband-wife spy team. Both she and her husband are members of the Cuban military and longtime operatives, the FBI said. Her lawyer, Vincent Farina, said his client is a housewife, not a spy. "She had nothing to do with this whatsoever," Farina said. According to an FBI affidavit filed in support of the arrests, surveillance dating back to 1995 indicated all 10 members operated with code names and had escape plans and alibis.

FBI agent Raul Fernandez said in the affidavit that the spy group was led by Manuel Viramontes, a Cuban military captain, and used computers with coded material on disk to communicate with each other.

Viramontes had an apartment in Miami and it was there that the disks were found, investigators said.

The disks provided a detailed overview of spy operations reminiscent of Cold War-era espionage, including references to agents as comrades.

"To say the least, folks, this operation was sophisticated," Scott said.

Two of those arrested were identified as U.S. citizens and one as a resident alien. The citizenship of the others was not released, but the FBI said some were agents who slipped in and out of the United States.

Congressional sources said the arrests, made without incident Saturday, were timed to avert an operation planned by the suspects. They provided no further details.

Part of the operation focused on infiltrating six exile groups, according to the FBI.

Among those arrested was Rene Gonzalez, who was formerly affiliated with the Miami-based Cuban exile group Brothers to the Rescue. The group is known for flying mercy flights over the 90 miles of open water between Florida and Cuba, searching for rafters fleeing the communist island nation.

Gonzalez has been linked more recently to the group Democracy Movement, which sails flotillas in the Florida Straits to protest Cuba government actions.

"This is the tip of the iceberg," said Jose Basulto, founder of Brothers to the Rescue.

Four Brothers fliers, including three Americans, were killed in February 1996 when their two planes were shot down by a Cuban MiG fighter jet over international waters.

Soon afterward, federal officials acknowledged they were looking into whether Cuban spies played any part in the aerial attack, which was not mentioned in the FBI affidavit.

The affidavit said two of the suspects set up a surveillance of the Southern Command, MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa and the Boca Chica Naval Air Station in Key West.

The two allegedly produced detailed reports, complete with photos, on the Southern Command and were assigned to report any "unusual exercises, maneuvers, and other activity related to combat readiness at the Naval air station."

Furniture Expo '98
Residents & Students
Campus Center Auditorium

Food
Fun
Music
Hourly Prizes
Grand Prize*

*Eligible with completion of SURVEY
Use of Furniture Display of your choice for you and your roommate for ONE (1) academic year.

Tues., Sept. 15th Noon - 9pm
Wed., 16th 10am - 4pm
Come Check It Out!

CONGRATULATIONS!

The Department of Biochemistry & Molecular Biology wishes to acknowledge the following students who were named to the Deans List - Spring 1998. There were 304 honorees in Arts and Sciences - Natural Sciences and Mathematics -41 from Biochemistry and Molecular Biology!

ABDERAZZAQ, Kareem A.	99	*KRISTEK, Hannah C.	98	*SHUMWAY, Laurence A.	01
ANDREWS, Paul S.	99	*KUROWSKI, Brad G	99	SMELKINSON, Margery G.	01
*BANSAL, Ruby	99	LEVERENCE, Rachael C.	01	ST. LOUIS, Martine	01
*BOIVIN, Christopher D.	01	LI, Ka Wan	99	STRASSNER, Stephen M.III	98
*BURKE, Tara A	00	MALLYA, Amita S.	01	*SULLIVAN, Joseph M.	01
COYNER, Katherine J.	01	MARRERO, Gabriel J.	99	*SUSKI, Henry R.	01
DUFU, Kobina A.	01	*MCEACHERN, Kerry Anne	99	* TURAGA, Srinivas C.	01
EICHENLAUB, Seth S.	00	*NIEMITZ, Emily	98	WEI, Yu	99
*FREEMAN, Michael F.	01	*POLUMBO, Kimberly M.	01	*WEITZE, Brian C.	01
GRANDE, Mark A.	99	POOLE, Paul P.	99	*WEITZE, Scott A.	99
JENSEN, Curtis W.	99	*QUYSNER, Annie G.	00	XU, Jiansong	98
JIN, Song	98	REIBOLD, Rebecca E.	99	*YEUNG, Hang leng	01
*KELLOGG, Adam R	00	RODRIGUEZ, Joshann I.	00	*YU, Wenshu	99
*KOSINSKI, Melissa S.	00	*SCOTT, Brian P.	00

• Indicates Honors

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB
THE AREA'S MOST COMPLETE CLUB • 256-1446

Free HFC T-Shirt

JOIN NOW FOR OUR 15 WEEK
SEMESTER SPECIAL
($169)
& GET A FREE HFC T-SHIRT

90 Gatehouse Rd.
Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center

ON PVTA BUS ROUTE TO ROLLING
GREEN

MasterCard VISA

Fans fight for homerun baseball

By Eric Fidler
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Remember how calmly the guys who caught Mark McGwire's 61st and 62nd home runs handed them over?

Well, that was St. Louis. This is Chicago.

When Sammy Sosa launched his 62nd home run onto Waveland Avenue on Sunday, Chicago Cubs fans bit, kicked and punched one another until one guy emerged with the baseball and had to be whisked away by police for his protection.

"Usually, somebody gets a ball, the struggle stops. But in this situation, I think there were dollar signs," said one of those in the crowd, Bob Milkovich. "This was the biggest home run ball you'd ever catch."

Three people now claim to be the rightful owner. But police said yesterday that possession is 10-tenths of the law in this case, and whoever has the ball now can keep it.

"Only in Chicago," sighed Officer Cindy Lance, a police spokeswoman, who said the affair is no longer a police matter. As Sosa closed in on the home run record broken by McGwire last week, the crowd outside Wrigley Field had swelled to the hundreds. Among those in the crowd outside when Sosa hit No. 62 on Sunday was Milkovich, who left behind his 8 1/2-months-pregnant wife and brought a pager, a cellular phone, a tiny TV set and a camera with a telephoto lens.

Fans were crowded around Milkovich's 2-by-2-inch TV screen when Sosa hit the ninth-inning blast.

"It looked like we had the winner," Milkovich said. "So I'm running to my left with the TV in my hand and everybody following me. The ball just kind of streamed over and when it hits the alley there's just a sea of people."

The battle continued until one man emerged with the ball hidden under his shirt and took off. "As he's running away from me, 500 people took off after him," Milkovich said. "It was pretty scary."

The man found some police officers a half-mile or more from the park.

One man who claimed he was the first to grab the ball showed up at a police station to report a robbery. Police at the station said he had been bitten and kicked and appeared to have a broken hand. Police took a report but said there is no way of getting to the bottom of what happened.

Witnesses said the man who went to the police station was Gary "Moe" Mullins, who has caught thousands of balls in the 40 years or so he has been a game-day fixture on the sidewalks outside Wrigley Field.

DANIELLE R. GILARDI / COLLEGIAN

Making new friends

Jonathan Gibson, a philosophy and English major makes the acquaintance of a new swan yesterday at the campus pond.

DANIELLE R. GILARDI / COLLEGIAN

So I called him a traitor

Rob "Night Train" Gianino was seen with a copy of the Boston Globe yesterday on the steps of the Campus Center. Rob is a senior computer animation major who enjoys boxing and blondes.

Albanian government fights foes

By Merita Dhimgjoka
Associated Press

TIRANA, Albania — Supporters of former President Sali Berisha seized Albanian government buildings yesterday after the weekend killing of a popular Berisha aide, but government forces launched a counterattack and regained key sites in a day of chaotic violence.

Interior Ministry spokesman Artan Bizhga said at least three Berisha supporters were killed and 14 wounded in the counterattack. Berisha remained holed up at the headquarters of his Democratic Party late yesterday.

Diplomats from the United States and European countries were seeking to negotiate a peaceful end to the crisis in this impoverished Balkan country. Many fear the unrest could spread, including to the Serbian province of Kosovo, where ethnic Albanian rebels are fighting for independence.

The violence in Tirana threatened a repeat of nationwide riots that swept Albania last year after the collapse of pyramid investment schemes that cost many people their life's savings. The turmoil sent refugees into Italy, Greece and elsewhere in Europe. The Albanian Interior Ministry advised foreign diplomats they would try to arrest Berisha today, according to government sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

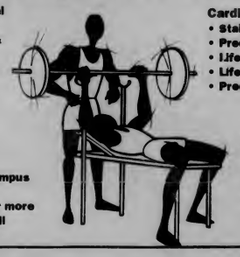
Meanwhile, Berisha called on supporters to hold another rally today.

Daan Everts, chief of the Tirana office of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, said the U.S. and European envoys had sent a signal that Berisha's Democratic Party "has gone too far."

In Washington, State Department spokesman James P. Rubin condemned the use of violence both by government and insurgent forces.

Earlier yesterday, Berisha demanded that Prime Minister Fatos Nano resign and pave the way for new elections. Berisha blamed his rival for the assassination of his aide, Azem Hajdari, who was gunned down along with a bodyguard Saturday in front of his party's headquarters.

Berisha's followers torched Nano's office Sunday in a riot in which one Democratic Party member was killed.



Yesterday, about 10,000 people gathered at Skanderbeg Square for the funeral of Hajdari and the two other Democratic Party members. After the ceremony, mourners carried the three bodies down Tirana's main boulevard to Nano's office.

Suddenly, guards inside the building opened fire. Armed Berisha supporters returned the fire and hurled grenades into the windows. A general uprising ensued, during which opposition gunmen quickly overran state television, parliament and other major buildings. Crowds of looters broke into stores closed for the funeral, carting away jeans, electronic appliances and other goods. For hours, gangs of armed men roamed the city, firing in the air. Protesters seized at least four tanks, which lumbered through the streets as civilians clambered on board.

FITNESS WORKSHOP
Nutritional Supplements
Pure Creatine 500 grams $35.00
Creatine Surge 48oz $39.95
Whey Protein 2lbs $21.00
Offer good until Oct 7th
www.fitnessworkshop.com
Free Giveaways • Online Ordering
1-877-FIT-WORK

Coming Mid September...
UltimateFitness
THE HEALTH AND FITNESS CENTER
Featuring the latest in Fitness Training & Equipment
"Everything You Need in a Gym and More!"

• Certified Personal Trainers
• Fitness Testing & Programming
• Nutritional Consultation
• Tanning
• Sauna
• Juice Bar & Supplements

Cardiovascular Equipment
• Stairmasters
• Precor Treadmills
• Lifecycle Recumbent Bikes
• Lifecycle Upright Bikes
• Precor Crosstrainers

State-of-the-Art Strength Training Equipment
• Bodymasters & Icarian Free Weights
• Cybex Circuit Training Equipment

Located in the Campus Plaza next to Liquors 44. For more information call 253-7571

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

part-time study for people of all ages

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE
● Nearly 100 credit courses - in the evening! including:
Intro to Arts Management
Public Speaking
Environmental Health Sciences
Corporation Finance
Interpreter's Studies
Intro to Public Relations
Human Resource Management
Energy Healing In Nursing Practice
Online Course: Sioux Families of the Pine Ridge Reservation
● Opportunities to enroll in University day courses
● Part-time degree programs, both graduate and undergraduate
Bachelor of General Studies
Master's in Library and Information Studies
M.S. in Labor Studies
Master of Music Education
M.S. in Plant & Soil Sciences
Master's in Education
MBA Professional Program
RN to BS in Nursing
Master of Public Health
Classes begin September 14
For a free course catalog, call 413-545-0107 or e-mail contined@admin.umass.edu
www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated course information
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Amherst
a quality education at an affordable price
FALL 1998

J.CREW
WAREHOUSE SALE

Fashions from the pages of the J.CREW catalog discounted up to 60

September [illegible] Open Sun 9am

[illegible] Convention Center
[illegible] University of Massachusetts at Amherst
[illegible] Connecticut Valley
Amherst, MA [illegible]

We accept VISA, MasterCard, Discover, J.Crew credit cards, [illegible] personal checks and cash. Valid identification [illegible]

Directions: From [illegible] Springfield, Hartford or New York: Take I-91 to I-84W to Hartford I-91N [illegible] Springfield to Exit 19 (Rt. 9) Northampton. Right [illegible] onto Rt. 9. Left [illegible] on Rt. [illegible] first exit (UMASS). From North: Greenfield, Vermont, New Hampshire: Take I-91S to Rt. 116 to Amherst. When [illegible] Take a left, then a right onto Rt. 116S to UMASS exit. Left onto campus from exit ramp

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Oh give me a home...

There's something to be said about coming home to your nice clean sheets after a hard day, turning on some music, going into the fridge for a cold drink. Watch TV, sit in the swivel chair, take a nap: hey, it's your room.

There's something to be said about living in a friggin' lounge, too.

Now I know what both feel like. So finally, I have my own room, off-campus. It took less than a week being labelled a "misplaced student," as if I was a set of car keys, to get me off my butt and move into the great wide open that is off-campus.

Every semester any number of students get caught up in the game of housing musical chairs, left to the devices of proxy sheets, room choosing and housing points, along with all of the bureaucratic rigmarole that goes along with it. This year was my year.

I was not able to attend room choosing last semester, so I filled out a proxy sheet, putting my faith into a little slip of paper I dropped off at the cluster office. I thought that was all I needed to do. That's what I was told, at least. It seems I may as well have filed it with Publisher's Clearinghouse.

I had already gotten screwed out of a single. Somehow, through the magic of housing points, an exchange student who had been here one semester had more points than I did. For some reason, my two semesters of dodging flying beer bottles in Southwest and four semesters dodging Frisbees and bad hippie cover bands in Central didn't amount to anything. I was going back into the lottery system, looking down the barrel at roommate number seven.

But I didn't know that this was a lottery of Shirley Jackson proportions. Instead of finding one permanent place to stay, I found out that I was living in a lounge. Granted, there was a lock on the door, but wouldn't you say there's a bit of a stigma in waking up and coming out of a lounge in the morning? What am I, a squatter?

But it goes beyond stigma. This happens every year. The cliche is "If it ain't broke, don't fix it," guys. The school seems to have it mixed up. Perhaps they were thinking "Uh... we'll attend to this tomorrow." Or the ever popular "What problem?"

Every year we can count on Housing Services to screw this up. Somehow they do not have enough rooms for all the people coming in, and they conveniently stick us in "swing rooms" (though these rooms are not swingin' in the least) and campus hotel rooms hoping to assuage our anger with promises of partial refunds and smiles.

So I decided to stop trying to make sense of everything. To understand some things that go on around here, one must suspend logic, think in non–linear terms.

Mike Messaros

But that wasn't good enough for me. I was stamping my feet like a child, crying "I want my room now!" I believed I had every right to it.

Why can't this be dealt with over the summer? Why was it that every time I asked about the room, I was met with a cold "We can't tell you yet" from some operator? You'd think that there'd be some system of checks and balances that could catch these little inconsistencies. You know, the ones like "These people do not have rooms." When I asked at the housing office after I moved in, they told me it had been dealt with over the summer. "But I'm living in a lounge!" I asked again the other day about my room, and they didn't say anything. It turns out they can't release such information until August 31st.

After a few minutes of circular logic that provided no answers, I decided to go outside and watch a dog chase its tail.

The problem is, I'm at the end of my rope. This was all symptomatic of a school that runs itself like a bureaucracy, that treats everyone like numbers. It doesn't scratch the itch when it arises; It fills out reams and reams of peperwork and waits for the itch to disappear. I'm really tired of this school and the systems it has in place that obviously don't work. I'm tired of them bending over backwards to bend us over a barrel. I'm this close to just dropping out, moving down to Arkansas and forming that jug band I always wanted to start.

So I've decided to stop trying to make sense of everything. To understand some things that go on around here, one must suspend logic, think in non–linear terms. When I asked if I could get a refund of all my money if I were to move off-campus, I was told that there would be a $100 penalty for cancelling my housing.

"What housing? Need I repeat myself? I'm living in a lounge!"

Oh, but I had applied for housing and now they were going to have to go through the trouble of changing it or something. Will they give me my money if I were to help them out: "Mike Messaros is not living in the Gorman lounge anymore." There: done.

But I don't get angry anymore. In a desperate act of self– preservation I removed any system of logic from my swimming head and suddenly it all became clear. Of course, I need to pay this penalty. Yeah, things were coming into focus. I backed out of the office, smiling like an idiot. I then proceeded to stare with the wonder at the Fine Arts Center ("Kind of looks like a piano..."). Now it makes sense.

I was a nomad, a transient of this campus, along with my brethren, quietly walking around campus with our unshaven faces, our dirty overcoats and all our belongings tied up in a handkerchief at the end of a stick (in our terminology, these are called "bindles"). Look kindly upon us. Don't give us your loose change, just give us some respect. That's all we want.

Mike Messaros is a Collegian columnist.

A country boy

In 1978, Anwar Sadat said "A man's village is his peace of mind." Essentially I agree with this statement, despite some less than fond memories of my hometown. Like many students at UMass, I have lived my entire life in a small rural community. After being accustomed to that kind of environment, I've found it somewhat difficult to adjust to the urban–like UMass campus. These changes, however, are not necessarily negative experiences.

John Day, Oregon is the largest town in a county roughly half the size of the state of Connecticut. Two thousand people live within the town limits. The town itself survives only by two industries: logging and ranching. John Day, like many rural settings, lacks any kind of diversity. People there are white "redneck" Protestants. When rural settings become too homogenous, many community members tend to reject anyone that differs from them in background or beliefs. John Day is a haven for racists, homophobes and sexists. Consequently, our diversity is limited to a meager Hispanic population, and an even smaller black community. I think his name is "Joe." Until I arrived at the University I was completely unaware of the benefits that diversity creates. I'm now meeting people who come from different countries, religions, and backgrounds, and realizing how much I can learn from them.

I personally know people who will vote for any candidate on the ballot whose name has an "R" in parentheses next to it.

Raymond Dinsmore

Political viewpoints, in rural environments versus college campuses, definitely contrast as well. Rural towns similar to John Day tend to be ultra–conservative. We generally have a high voter turn–out, consisting of many people who are politically uninformed. I personally know people who will vote for any candidate on the ballot whose name has an "R" in parentheses next to it. A majority of people in John Day will vote Republican based on the party's stance on social issues. Still, other people there will vote Republican because they feel that their ranching and logging jobs are threatened by the "left–wing enviros." For whatever reason people in John Day vote Republican, it is virtually assured that no public office in the county will ever be held by a self– proclaimed Democrat.

Our town is so conservative that I was considered by some to be a left–wing revolutionary wacko because I did not support David Duke's presidential campaign in '88, and because I was of the opinion that it wasn't such a good idea to put all homosexuals on an island and blow it up. My political viewpoints have not changed since I left Oregon, but apparently my party affiliation has. In this campus setting, because of my view on economic policies, I am now considered by many to be a conservative.

The rural environment does have its benefits, though. There is much more of a sense of community in a small town, as well as a sense of belonging. In John Day, I felt more like I was Raymond Dinsmore, as opposed to here where it feels as though my identity is my social security number. I knew the names of everyone in my school and considered most of them to be my friends. UMass is definitely a learning experience for myself and anyone else who comes from a rural environment.

I don't want to give anyone the wrong impression, that John Day, or all rural environments for that fact, harbor only white, redneck, protestant, sexist, homophobic Nazis.

Some of the nicest, most objective people you will ever meet reside in these small towns. These very people may, in fact, outnumber the people who are complete rednecks. The problem with small rural areas is that there is such a disproportionate number of people who cannot accept anyone different from themselves, that they may give the impression that everyone who lives in a small town is a redneck.

It was true that my village was my peace of mind, because I was so used to that type of environment. I am happy to have left though, as the University of Massachusetts can offer me what John Day never could, even if it takes me a while to adjust. I'm looking forward to my stay here and I hope everyone who has moved here from rural areas benefits from the University of Massachusetts as much as I have.

Raymond Dinsmore is a UMass student.

Mother's day

Does my mother feel the "empty nest" syndrome, now that I have moved out permanently? I ask her. I am curious. Surprisingly, she answers no, she certainly feels needed. She reminds me of my brothers and father, who would starve without her. Weekends have been known to pass with my mother out of town at some religious convention. Invariably, she has returned to a skinny, pathetic group of men eating Pop Tarts, and pouring curdled milk into lukewarm coffee. She also points out that emotionally, I still depend on her, with my frantic phone calls for advice, or just someone to listen to me rant. Her husband and children still need care, but who cares for her?

Last week my mother was chatting with one of her sisters, who randomly asked why she never wore her engagement ring. I can picture it exactly as it happened: my mother looking down with a half–smile, murmuring something about it not being important, just a piece of jewelry. She would never admit it to herself, but she may have felt a twinge of wistfulness for my aunt's big rock, embedded in platinum. My mother doesn't wear much jewelry.

I tend to lose sight of other people's needs. Nothing can compare to my deadlines, to my grades, to my hangovers.

Tanya Mannes

I also wonder why my mother never wears the ring, so I ask her what has become of it. Again, she smiles a little and her face turns pink. She laughs as she speaks, but the words are sad. "The stone fell out. I never replaced it, so the ring sits in my jewelry box."

She takes out the ring, which looks lost and forlorn, with a caking of dust in the engraved design. The once modest but acceptable ring is now cheap and nasty, with an empty cavern where the diamond should be. My mother handles it casually, almost with contempt, as if to demonstrate its lack of worth. Despite her lighthearted manner she is embarrassed. "I guess I thought your father should be the one to suggest fixing it."

Months and years passed, but my father noticed exactly what was placed in front of him and nothing more. Maybe at first she thought he would immediately see the space on her hand. Maybe she imagined one day she would come home, open her jewelry box, and there it would be, in a new velvet case. Maybe she decided it wasn't so important; things like a new car, or carpet, or coat were more important.

"When did it fall out?" I asked.

"Twenty years ago."

Twenty years is my lifetime. In my student's world, searching for my own identity, I tend to lose sight of other people's needs. Nothing can compare to my deadlines, to my grades, to my hangovers. For years I have been in this whirlwind of exploration, this obstacle course called college. It's difficult to break focus, look at someone else, and recognize a need. My mother should not have to speak up about something like a piece of jewelry that needs fixing, when I am around to notice. After I finished talking to her, I sat down with my father and told him what I had discovered. Predictably, he was confused. "Twenty years?" he asked. He shook his head, looking tired and a little guilty, and said he would never understand women, and — could I take care of it?

Of course I could take care of it. Sometimes, I wonder what person my mother relies upon for her own attention, her own support. When she lacks something, who notices? My father, who has too much on his mind as it is? My little brothers, absorbed as they are in paintball and shock–rock? People at her Kingdom Hall, who relate everything to the Watchtower? I realize, then, that she turns to her cynical, self–absorbed daughter, a girl like something out of a Daniel Clowes cartoon. Her hints have gone unrecognized. Sometimes the house looked cleaner; the wallpaper seemed faded; the ring sat in a drawer, gathering dust.

Tanya Mannes is a Collegian staff member.

Point/Counterpoint writers needed.

We hope to publish a Point/Counterpoint piece in the future concerning the new alcohol policy on campus. We challenge you to write provocative, informed pieces on this subject and submit them in person to the Ed/Op desk in the Campus Center room 113. If you can't make it down here, send them to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst MA 01003. Columns must be typed and between 600 and 800 words. We have pamphlets addressing the issue in our office if you want to know more. Any questions call Mike Messaros at 545–1491.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor. Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words long, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes.

They can be submitted by mail to Ed Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst MA 01003; by email to letters.oit.umass.edu; or by fax to 413 545 1348. The Collegian reserves the right to edit letters for length, clarity, and style.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1992 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor-in–Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Presties Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri–Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545–3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Fine Arts Center presents eclectic lineup for fall season

By Emily Trask
Collegian Staff

Hold on to your seats, it's going to be an exciting ride this semester as the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center gears up for the 1998 fall season.

"Here at the UMass Fine Arts Center we're preparing for another busy year of concerts and exhibitions," said Office Manager, Bonnie McLaughlin. Events this season will showcase an exciting array of music, dance, theater, performance art, and visual arts.

Some of the major events include a concert with Willie Nelson. The country–music superstar "with a heart as big as Texas" will visit the Pioneer Valley on Sunday, October 11 at 7 p.m., in the UMass Concert Hall.

Hailing from Kansas City, Kevin Mahogany, who has been called one of the most compelling male vocalists in jazz today, will open the Fine Arts Center's 1998–99 season on Thursday, October 1, in Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. This performance also inaugurates the Fine Arts Center and WFCR's "Jazz a la Mode Series" with on–air and onstage host Tom Reney.

The Fine Arts Center and WFCR's "Jazz a la Mode Series" will also present Elian Elias, the Brazilian jazz pianist. Along with her trio, Elias will perform "The Three Americas," a program of music from North, Central, and South America on Saturday, November 7 at 8 p.m., in Bowker Auditorium.

Switching modes from jazz to classical, the St. Petersburg State Symphony Orchestra will grace the Concert Hall at 8 p.m. on Friday, November 20. They will present concert waltzes by Glazounov, Rimsky–Kirsakov's "Scheherazade," and Russian opera arias sung by soprano, Margarita Alaverdian.

A highlight this fall from the Asian Dance and Music Program, a division of the Fine Arts Center, will be "Tamara: Javanese Shadow Theater. 'Stories from Ramayana.'" These ancient and contemporary stories are told with exquisitely carved and painted puppets. Shadow Theatre will take place in the Hatch Recital Hall Theatre at 8 p.m. on Friday, September 25.

Residential Arts, a program of the Fine Arts Center, in conjunction with the Lively Arts, will be presenting the inventive and innovative band Chesapeake on Wednesday, September 23, in Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. This band combines a wide variety of musical genres including rock, folk, country, swing, bluegrass, blues, jazz and even a touch of opera. One critic has called Chesapeake "the hippest thing on eight legs."

"Insular Choices," a fall film series, will focus on the effects life altering situations have on human nature, such as being in a prison cell or being stranded on an island. Forced to challenge convictions of belief, loyalty, courage, self– dignity, and love, individuals are pushed to make choices which determine the very essence of their being. Some of the films being shown are Lord of the Flies, The Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, The Bridge Over the River Kwai and Kiss of the Spider Woman.

All screenings will be held in Herter Hall room 227 at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday evenings unless otherwise indicated.

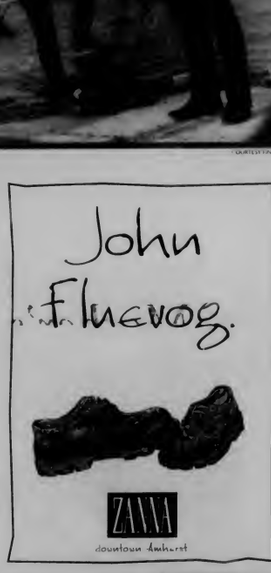
Also this year marks the twentieth anniversary season of the New WORLD Theater. In celebration of this achievement, the New WORLD Theater will continue its dedication to presenting and producing work by artists of color.

This season begins with a special anniversary event: Rent choreographer Marlies Yearby brings her dance company, Movin' Dance Spirits Theater to perform Tears of Silver, Dreams of Glass on Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

During the weekend of October 8–11, New WORLD Theater sponsors "New Works for a New World: An Intersection of Performance, Practice, and Ideas." This three day gathering explores new work practices by artists of color and features Borderscape 2000 by Guillermo Gomez–Pena, the bodies between us by le thi diem thui, and Quinceanera by Alberto Antonio Araiza a.k.a. "beto," Paul Bonin– Rodriquez, and Michael Marinez.

Highlights for the spring season include Stories From a Mini Suite by Charles Moulton, Even the Leaf from the Boroughs featuring Hazelle Goodman and Danny Hoch: Things Fall Apart by Biyi Bandele, adapted from the novel by Chinua Achebe, and directed by Nigerian–based Chuck Mike, as well as many other shows.

Ticket information for all events can be obtained by calling the Box Office at 1–800–999–UMAS or 545–2511. For further information about "Insular Choices," please call the University Gallery at 545–3670.



The eclectic band Chesapeake highlights the Fine Arts Center lineup.

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

Arts & Living COLLEGIAN MAKING THE WORLD A BETTER PLACE

John Flueroog.

downtown Amherst

"Reason No1 why you should take my LSAT course."

Class time that counts

1 More class hours with teachers well trained in our techniques means much less time studying on your own. Our average score improvement is 7 points!

Call 1-800-2REVIEW or visit us at www.review.com

Courses held on the UMASS campus! Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and WNEC as well.

THE PRINCETON REVIEW

AUDITIONS FOR
Not Ready For Bedtime Players

NOT READY FOR BEDTIME PLAYERS

Tuesday, September 15, 6:00PM University Health Sevices (follow signs to third floor)

For more information call the Health Education Division of the University Health Services and ask for Sally or Mike 577-5181

DAILY COLLEGIAN

NOW HIRING!!

STOP BY FOR AN APPLICATION

UMass FOOTBALL JOBS!

GAME STAFF POSITIONS AVAILABLE TO WORK ALL HOME FOOTBALL GAMES THIS SEASON. THESE INCLUDE:
USHERS
TICKET TAKERS
PARKING ATTENDANTS
TICKET SELLERS

WE NEED 50 TO 60 PEOPLE. STOP BY THE CURRY HICKS CAGE BEFORE SEPT. 18. SEE YOU THEN!

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics–Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS
• CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS •
LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R.
BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

IN SHAPE NUTRITION
NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA
Exercise & Nutrition Programs Available
Great Products, Great Prices, Great Service!
20%-50% OFF RETAIL PRICES EVERYDAY
Walking Distance 549-7434

Wednesday September 16 1998

KOFI ANNAN

Hampshire College
Amherst, Massachusetts

The Inaugural Eqbal Ahmad Lecture
Knowledge and Civilization
by the Secretary-General of the United Nations

"Hampshire Express" buses will leave Haigis Mall at 4 p.m. and stop at Amherst College. Buses will be available to return students to their campuses.

5:00 p.m. on the Library Lawn
Free and open to the public. No tickets necessary.
Information: 413-559-5521

Surprises abound at the Emmys

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — "The Practice" surprised everyone by stealing away the best dramatic series award at the 50th annual Emmy Awards, Sunday night. The drama show, created by David E. Kelly of "Ally McBeal" fame, beat out such heavyweight favorites as "ER" and "The X-Files."

"Frasier" won its fifth straight Emmy for best comedy series, and Helen Hunt pulled a stunning feat by winning the Emmy for best actress in a comedy series to go along with her best actress Oscar for As Good as it Gets.

In dramatic acting, Andre Braugher and Christine Lahti won their first Emmys for "Homicide" and "Chicago Hope," respectively.

Kudrow, who plays the ditzy Phoebe in NBC's "Friends," won best supporting actress in a comedy series.

"This isn't possible without you," Kudrow said after naming her co-stars in the comedy about a close-knit band of buddies in New York City.

It was Kudrow's first Emmy and it increased NBC's early lead for the most trophies. The top-rated network had the most nominations and won 12 Emmys presented previously for creative arts.

David Hyde Pierce was honored as best supporting actor in a comedy series for his role as high-strung, highbrow Dr. Niles Crane in NBC's "Frasier."

Pierce acknowledged fellow nominees and paid special tribute to "NewsRadio's" Phil Hartman, who was shot to death this year.

"You all know how great he is. I guess there's nothing else to say," Pierce said.

Hartman's mother, Doris, was in the audience.

An exuberant Camryn Manheim accepted the award for best supporting actress in a drama series for her role as a tough-minded attorney in "The Practice."

"This is for all the fat girls," said the heavyset actress, who held up a small autograph book and invited all the stars on hand to sign it.

Gordon Clapp, who plays the goodhearted Detective Greg Medavoy on "NYPD Blue," was honored as best supporting actor in a drama series.

Somebody asked me what my favorite television moment was...and I think it just changed," Clapp said as he picked up his trophy.

Comedian Garry Shandling won his first Emmy, as a writer for "The Larry Sanders Show." Director Todd Holland also won an Emmy for his work on the critically praised show, which ended its run on HBO in May.

Emmys in 27 categories were to be presented by the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences in an expanded, four-hour anniversary show at the downtown Shrine Auditorium.

The ceremony acknowledged TV's history with salutes to figures both major and minor.

Among those taking bows were the host of "Mike Stokey's Pantomime Quiz," which received the first Emmy 50 years ago, and comedy titans Bob Hope, Milton Berle and Sid Caesar. A frail Hope was seated as the trio received a long standing ovation.

NBC's "ER" and Fox's "The X-Files" were among the leading series nominees with 16 bids each. NBC's "Frasier" was the top comedy nominee with 11 nods, while Fox's "Ally McBeal" had 10 nominations.

The creator-producer of "Ally McBeal," David E. Kelley, took the unusual step of entering the hour-long show about a young attorney in a category that traditionally honors half-hour comedies.

"From the Earth to the Moon," HBO's 12-part, Tom Hanks-produced epic tale of the space program, was the most-nominated entry overall with 17 bids.

"Merlin," the special effects-laden NBC miniseries about the legendary magician who helped King Arthur rule, had 15 bids. It topped the list of programs honored at the earlier ceremony, winning four creative arts trophies.

NBC was the most-nominated network with 86, followed by HBO with 72. ABC had 54 bids. CBS received 36 and Fox had 35.

The Emmy ceremony swapped its home of two decades, the Pasadena Civic Auditorium, for the roomier Shrine this year. Audience capacity was doubled to about 6,000, making more tickets available to industry members and, for the first time, to the public.

Sunday's show had audiences in 92 foreign countries. Last year, the academy estimated a half-billion viewers in 90 countries.

A live Internet "Webcast" was available at http://www.emmycast.com.

In a non-televised ceremony on Aug. 29, awards in categories including outstanding choreography, editing and makeup were announced.

Besides the 12 trophies presented to NBC, eight each went to ABC and HBO. Fox won five and CBS won four.

Four acting awards for guest roles also were presented. They went to Mel Brooks for "Mad About You," Emma Thompson for "Ellen," Cloris Leachman for "Promised Land" and John Larroquette for "The Practice."

In the second year of the Emmy award for best commercial, Apple Computer Inc. received the trophy for its "Think Different" entry.

Hall of Fame to honor blues guitarist

By John Affleck
Associated Press

CLEVELAND — If it's true the blues had a baby and named it rock 'n' roll, then many would agree Robert Johnson was the daddy.

A blues guitarist and singer of almost mythic status among musicians, Johnson's impact can be heard any day on FM radio through the people who were touched by his work.

Yet he never achieved widespread fame, either in his short life or in the 60 years since his mysterious death.

Starting Sunday, Sept. 20, however, the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum is celebrating Johnson's musical legacy with eight days of talks, concerts and jam sessions paying tribute to the early master who recorded just 29 songs.

"Johnson is one of those guys who transcends the whole blues genre," says Joe Louis Walker, one of a list of musical guests expected in Cleveland. "He was very accessible. Everybody from Muddy Waters to Aerosmith — and everybody in between — would have something to say about Robert Johnson."

Robert Santelli, education director at rock's Hall of Fame, is even more succinct: "If you're going to look at the impact of the blues on rock 'n' roll, you have to start with Robert Johnson."

Born in Hazlehurst, Miss., in 1911, Johnson was a man who lived the rock 'n' roll life years before the term "rock 'n' roll" was even coined.

He married young and tried his hand at sharecropping to support himself. But his 16-year-old wife, Virginia, and their first child both died when the baby was born in 1930. Shortly thereafter, Johnson's guitar became his livelihood.

He traveled restlessly, almost ceaselessly, playing on the streets and in the juke joints of the Mississippi Delta. All of his songs were recorded in five sessions in November 1936 and June 1937.

It was a hard life.

"Robert was kind of quiet but he was a good blues player. He liked to drink. He liked his women," recalled guitarist David "Honeyboy" Edwards, who played with Johnson.

In fact, it may have been his taste for alcohol and a woman that cost Johnson his life.

On the night of Aug. 13, 1938, Johnson played a country roadhouse outside Greenwood, Miss. What happened next is still the subject of speculation but according to witnesses, including Edwards, the bar owner — jealous that his wife had taken up with Johnson — poisoned the musician's whisky.

Edwards said Johnson sat in a corner for a while with his guitar in his arms. The crowd asked for blues but Johnson couldn't perform.

"Robert said, 'Well sir, I don't feel good,'" Edwards said. He was taken to a friend's home and died a few days later at age 27.

Biographer Peter Guralnick said what makes Johnson special is that he took the Delta blues he learned from people like Son House, mixed it with popular music and other influences, and came up with something new and intensely emotional that has captured listeners ever since.

"He had his own style of playing and at that time it was different from the other blues musicians in the Delta," Edwards recalled. "He added more to his blues style than any of them had."

The Rolling Stones' Keith Richards has said Johnson was so deft that when he first heard the blues man play solo, he thought two people were playing guitar.

But Johnson was more than a guitar player. He had a gift for writing simple yet compelling lyrics. Consider the final verse of "Love in Vain," a tune later covered by the Stones. Here's how Johnson captures the isolation of a man parting from his lover:

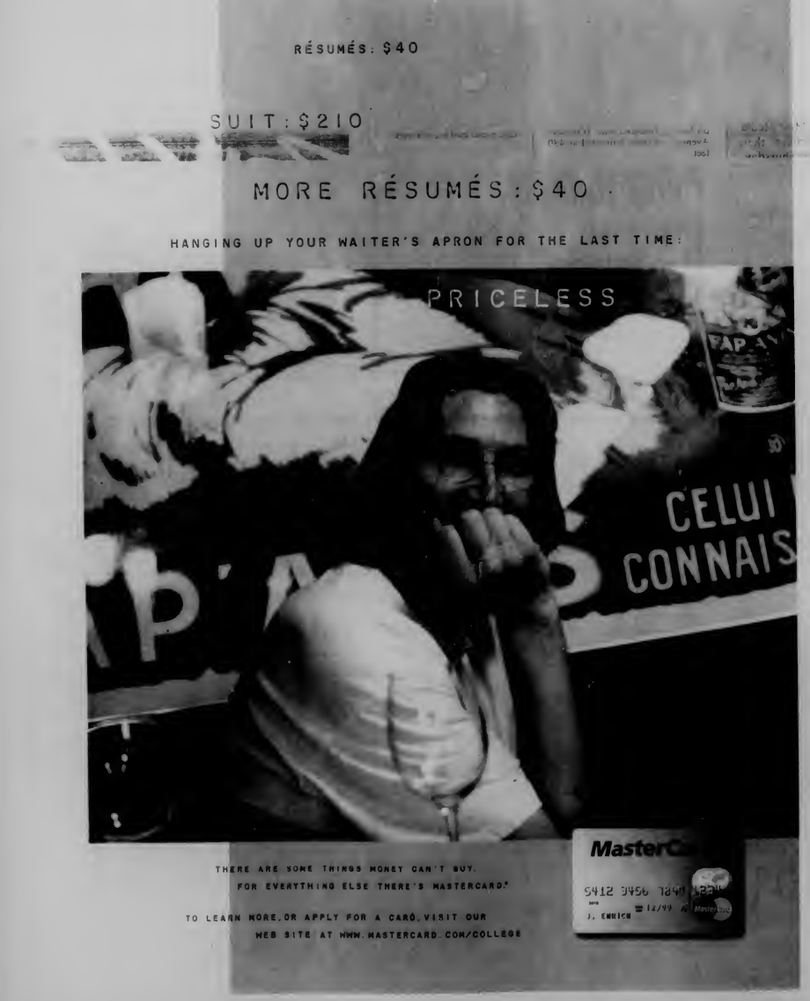
"When the train, it left the station, with two lights on behind. When the train, it left the station, with two lights on behind.

"Well, the blue light was my blues, and the red light was my mind.

"All my love's in vain."

"His poetry is extraordinary," said Larry Cohn, who won a Grammy in 1991 for producing a CD box set of all Johnson's recordings plus alternate takes of some songs. "It's as haunting and current as it was when it was written and will be 100 years from now."

Cohn's release of Johnson's work revived interest in the musician, just as a 1961 release of some of his recordings under the title "King of the Delta Blues Singers" influenced a host of musicians of that era: Eric Clapton, Jimi Hendrix, Jimmy Page.



Coincidentally, "King of the Delta Blues Singer" was reissued Sept. 15 with a bonus, alternate take of "Traveling Riverside Blues" included.

Santelli said the events at the rock hall should show how Johnson's work has spread throughout popular music.

The lineup for a "juke joint jam" at a Cleveland nightclub on Saturday night features Walker, George Thorogood and Johnny Winter.

Staff Meeting Notice

There is a meeting for all new and returning writers tonight at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center room 113. For more information, call Bryan at 545-1361.

FITNESS WORKSHOP
Nutritional Supplements
Pure Creatine 500 grams $35.00
Creatine Surge 4lbs $39.95
Whey Protein 2lbs $21.00
www.fitnessworkshop.com
Free Giveaways • Online Ordering
Offer good until Oct. 7th
1-877-FIT-WORK

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

Welcome back...
NOW GO AWAY!
Cheap tickets. Great advice. Nice people.
Travel accessories and backpacks sold here! European railpasses and international student ID cards issued on the spot!
Council Travel
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange
44 Main St., Amherst
(413) 256-1261
www.counciltravel.com

■ cross country

continued from page 10

Way rounded out the top 10 with a time of 19:59.4.

Junior Sharon Tillotson was the final Minutewomen finisher, capturing 11th place in a time of 20:01.4.

The Minutewomen will next be in action on Saturday for the only home meet of the year, as they will host Boston University, Central Connecticut, and Vermont.

Mens team finishes second in tri-meet

The Massachusetts men's cross country team finished second out of three teams in its season opener last Saturday.

Iona College won the meet with 27 points. UMass was second with 44 and was followed by Northeastern, who had 50.

Kevin Somers was the top UMass finisher in third place. Senior Matt Ely took sixth place and sophomore Brendan Sullivan took tenth place.

Other UMass finishers were freshmen David Marcinowski and Kevin Curtin, who captured 12th and 13th place respectively. Ryan Corbett captured 17th to round out the day for the Minutemen.

UMass will now look ahead to this weekend, when it will host Boston University, Maine, and Vermont in a quad-meet Saturday. This will be the final home meet for the Minutemen this season.

UMass Cross Country Notes: On the women's side, head coach Julie LaFreniere has been leading the Minutewomen since 1987. Over that time she has been named A-10 coach of the year five times, and has led UMass to the A-10 title in five of the last seven years.

On the men's side, head coach Ken O'Brien enters his 32nd season at the helm of both the track and cross country squads. During that time his teams have won 15 Yankee Conference titles, three New England titles, two IC4A titles, and have had six All-Americans.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Concentrate...but think fast!

Kristen Schmidt and the rest of the Massachusetts field hockey team will be preparing for their contest against Harvard tomorrow.

Key cog in big green machine out, may need up to 6 weeks for rehab

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers got through training camp without Dorsey Levens, who parlayed his 44-day holdout into a $25 million contract.

Now the defending NFC champs will have to get along without their Pro Bowl halfback for a good chunk of the regular season. Levens broke his right leg and severely sprained his right ankle in Green Bay's 23-15 victory over Tampa Bay on Sunday.

Levens, who declined comment as he left the team's headquarters yesterday with his leg in an immobilizer, could miss six weeks or more.

The fifth-year pro from Georgia Tech was rusty after missing training camp, averaging just 2.4 yards on 43 carries, but he also served as Brett Favre's favorite outlet for the dump pass, catching 15 balls in two games.

"It's definitely a blow for this team," receiver Antonio Freeman said. "Just getting Dorsey back two weeks ago and then losing him for several weeks? But now it's an opportunity for the backups."

Levens' backups are banged up, too.

Travis Jervey aggravated a pulled hamstring Sunday, so the Packers (2-0) went with rookie backup fullback Michael Blair to replace Levens. Jervey, a special teams Pro Bowler, wasn't in the game when Jacquez Green returned a punt 95 yards for a touchdown, either.

And Raymont Harris was inactive for the first two games with a bad limp after offseason surgery to repair a broken left leg. After the game, Holmgren sort of downplayed Levens' injury, which occurred when linebacker Derrick Brooks' fourth-quarter tackle pinned his right leg awkwardly.

"Well, it's a little more severe than at first we thought," Holmgren said yesterday. He said X-rays revealed a fracture of the fibula, the smaller of the two bones in the lower leg, which will take at least a month to knit.

"Surgery doesn't appear to be necessary," Holmgren said. He insisted Levens' holdout didn't have anything to do with his getting hurt. Maybe if it was a muscle pull, but not a broken bone. "If you saw the play, actually, I'm thankful it wasn't worse," Holmgren said. "He got his leg pinned underneath him pretty good. And we may have dodged a little bullet here, if there's a silver lining at all."

Holmgren said he didn't regret using Levens so much — he got the ball 58 times in two games after not getting hit since the Super Bowl.

"The injury that took place yesterday, anybody, you could have been in training camp for two years and that would have happened," Holmgren said. "So, one does not have anything do to with the other. I don't think we overused him."

Either Harris or Jervey will start Sunday at Cincinnati. "I'll be ready this weekend," promised Jervey, who said he was excited for the chance. "Yeah, totally. I mean, that's what I love to do is play running back. I'm real excited, being on Astroturf, too. I love turf."

Holmgren said he would have preferred to bring Harris along slower and to give Jervey more time to recover from his hamstring and turf toe injuries. "but I'm running out of choices here." Harris, a 1,000-yard gainer for Chicago last year, was going to spend more games on the deactivated list so his leg could heal. "I just saw him and said, 'Plan A is out the window and we're moving to Plan B, which is you're going to get ready to go earlier than maybe we would have liked,'" Holmgren said.

The coach also revealed yesterday he was unaware during the game that Jervey was unavailable for special teams or backfield duty. You can bet Holmgren will get frequent updates on both Jervey and Harris this week. And the Packers will have to change their strategy without Levens, who rushed for 1,435 yards and seven touchdowns last year and caught 53 passes for 370 yards and five TDs.

Mac and Sammy may have more yard work left to do

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sammy Sosa will be reminded of Mark McGwire by the white seat with the red "M" in the second deck of Qualcomm Stadium, where the St. Louis slugger hit a ball in his last visit to San Diego.

With no landmarks like Waveland Avenue or the Green Monster beckoning, the second deck in left is the benchmark for awe-inspiring homers at the stadium formerly known as Jack Murphy, where they've been playing baseball for 30 years.

McGwire hit probably the most impressive homer ever at this stadium when he lined a ball an estimated 458 feet to left-center on July 20. Only 21 balls have reached the second deck. Among the players hitting them there were Dick Allen, Dave Kingman, Kevin Mitchell, Mike Piazza.

Padres slugger Greg Vaughn has reached the second deck twice this year and four times in two years, and Ken Caminiti hit one this year an estimated 457 feet, commemorated by a white seat not far the one marking McGwire's shot.

Chicago Cubs manager Jim Riggleman, who managed the Padres from late 1992 through 1994, said he'd take a homer even if it scraped the back of the fence coming down. But McGwire and Sosa, tied at 62 after Sosa's impressive weekend's work, have spiced up the record chase with prodigious shots.

Both of Sosa's homers for the Cubs on Sunday bounced onto Waveland Avenue and were estimated at 480 feet.

Bronco's quarterback hobbles off field

DENVER (AP) — John Elway limped through the Denver Broncos' locker room yesterday still unsure if his strained right hamstring would prevent him from playing against the despised Oakland Raiders.

His teammates weren't betting against him.

"He went through his workout today, and he's feeling pretty good," backup quarterback Bubby Brister said. "We'll see how it goes. Everybody expects John to play. You never expect him to get hurt to start with."

"I saw him in there riding the bike," wide receiver Rod Smith said. "I'm not a doctor, but it looks pretty good. If he can go, you know he'll definitely go."

Elway, 38, strained the hamstring Sunday during the fourth quarter of Denver's 42-23 win over the Dallas Cowboys. Broncos coach Mike Shanahan said Elway's status for Sunday's game probably won't be determined until late this week.

"We're not going to risk John playing if we think it's going to set him back," Shanahan said. "He's been in the NFL a long time and he knows his body as well as anybody. He knows what he can handle and what he can't handle."

Elway said he felt the hamstring pop as he ran right and completed a 7-yard pass to Ed McCaffrey. Elway handed off to Terrell Davis on the next play and then limped to the sideline clutching the back of his right leg.

"When I could barely get the ball to Terrell, I knew I was done for the day," Elway said.

The injury comes as Denver's offense is threatening to outperform its Super Bowl proficiency of a year ago. The Broncos scored touchdowns on all five first-half possessions Sunday and led 35-17 by halftime. Brister relieved Elway and immediately converted a third-and-1 before completing a 38-yard pass to set up Denver's final touchdown.

"I don't want to start because I want John to play," Brister said. "We have a better chance to win when John's healthy. I know that, you know that and everybody else knows that. I can play, and I think I can get the job done, but I'm still not No. 7." Brister spent a year out of football hunting and fishing before signing with the Broncos in 1997. His last start came Nov. 5, 1995, for the New York Jets. He was replaced midway through the second quarter of a 20-7 loss to New England and played in only one more game the rest of the season.

Write for Sports!

Attention Sports Enthusiasts!

For anyone interested in working in the UMass Media Relations Office in the UMass Athletic Department there will be a meeting in 253 Boyden Building on Thursday, September 17 at 5 p.m.
Become an integral part of the UMass athletic scene — work for Media Relations. Learn valuable skills and gain experience by assisting in the department.
If you have any questions, call 545-2439.

Israel at 50 Lecture Series

Wednesday, September 16
"The Ingathering of Exiles-The Untold Drama of Immigration to Israel."
The U.S. sees itself as a melting pot of immigration; is Israel more of a pressure cooker? How is Israel integrating its many immigrants Lecturer: Jay Shofet, regional director for the Israel Aliyah Center of New England.

Wednesday, October 7
"Economy of Israel."
Lecturer: Michael Habib, Israeli Counsel for Economic affairs to New England

All lectures are free and sponsored by Hillel with help from the Harold Grinspoon Supporting Foundation.
All lectures take place in the Hillel House Conference Room at 3:30pm (Hillel House is located at 388 N.Pleasant St.)
For info on these and more lectures to come call Hillel House at 549-1710. (Future lecture dates October 21,November 4, 18, December 2)

The Boltwood Project-
Your life will NEVER be the same!
>> FALL 1998 <<
TIME 6:30
SEPT 15 & 16
Recruitment Nights:
6:30PM (note: Prompt Starting Time)
February 2-Campus Center Rm.163c
February 3-Campus Center Rm.163c
February 4-Campus Center Rm.163c
Possibility of Earning Credits

AUDITIONS FOR
Not Ready For Bedtime Players
Tuesday, September 15, 6:00PM University Health Sevices
(follow signs to third floor)
For more information call the Health Education Division of the University Health Services and ask for Sally or Mike 577-5181.

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS always $10.
25 n pleasant st amherst 256.0733
145 main st northampton 586.0155

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THAT'S US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS: CARDIO KICKBOXING, YOGA, REEBOK BENCH, LOW IMPACT
BEST MACHINES: PRECOR ELLIPTICALS, TREADMILLS • BIKES, RECUMBENTS, STAIRMASTERS
BEST PRICES: 1 MO.....$40; 3 MOS.....$129; 6 MOS.....$229; 12 MO.....$389
Big Enough to Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB - On Bus Route 256-0080 460 West St. www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

University Health Services
Mental Health Groups Fall '98

MONDAY
Coed Self Exploration Group
(for Undergraduate Students)
In this group members will be able to address their relationships such as: friendship; intimacy; family issues; work and school, etc. Members may join this group at any point in the school year (as space permits).
Monday, 1:00 - 2:30 p.m.

Supporting Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Identities
Exploring such issues as coming out, building community, dating relationships, family of origin and stress management.
Monday, 3:45 - 5:00 p.m.

TUESDAY
On The Road to Self Confidence
In this 8 week group members will learn about effects a lack of self esteem has on their lives. It will also be possible to discover new ways of feeling good about yourself.
Tuesday, 1:00 - 2:30 p.m.

Stress & Anxiety Reduction Workshop
Stress impacts all of us physically and psychologically creating a range of anxiety related physical and emotional symptoms. This 4 week long workshop is designed to show you effective ways to deal with stress.
Tuesday, 4:00 - 5 p.m.

MORE GROUPS BEGINNING IN THE SPRING

WEDNESDAY
Adult Children of Dysfunctional Families
This 8 week group is for individuals wanting to explore the impact of family relationships on their lives as UMass students.
Wednesday, 2:30 - 5:00 p.m.

Groups are conducted by Mental Health Division staff. Group sessions are covered under UHS Basic Health Plan and Kaiser pre-paid plan. Groups require an initial screening which can be arranged by calling 545-2337 or by stopping by at 127 Hills North Mon - Fri 8 a.m. 5 p.m. For further information refer to the Mental Health web site at www.umass.edu/uhs/mentalhe.alth

THURSDAY
Women's Self-Exploration Group
(For older undergraduates, graduate students, student dependents and Kaiser/CHP members.)
This group provides an opportunity for women to explore personal relationships, work, studies, family of origin, health, acculturation and other relevant concerns. This group is ongoing with members added as space permits.
Thursday, 9:00 - 10:30 a.m.

Coed Self-Exploration Group
(For older undergraduates, graduate students, student dependents and Kaiser/CHP members.)
This group provides an opportunity for men and women to explore their interpersonal relationships. This group is ongoing with members added as space permits.
Thursday, 3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

CALL 545-2337

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ACTIVITIES

Free Bridge Lessons for UMass students. "The Club Series." Thurs., 7-9 pm. Start 9/17. Info: Chris 5-4411.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Preparing for Civil Service Exam. (404)366-2813.

AUTO FOR SALE

1989 Mercury Tracer AC/Auto, 4 door hatchback. Great condition. 367-9579.

88 Olds Cutlass Cruiser 117k, station wagon. $1200 or B/O. 259-9287.

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS Automatic, fully loaded, 103k miles. Excellent condition. $3700. 253-5503.

1989 Subaru Wagon Standard, 4WD, highway miles, clean. $1400 (978)544-3783.

89 Chevy Corsica Black, 5 speed. $1200 or B/O. 253-8918.

1988 VW Jetta Gold, 5 speed. Good condition. $1200. 548-9228.

88 Honda Accord LX Gold Stick Shift Power Windows/Locks 160k Excellent Condition! (413)323-7536.

WANTED: Toyotas, Nevas, Prizms, Sentras. Any condition. Cash paid everyday 1-800-649-4795.

87 Subaru GL Wagon 5 speed. $800. Call Korey 256-6497.

92 Honda Accord LX 4 door, 5 speed, A/C, 88k, $6100. 256-3472.

1990 Ford Taurus LX 4dr SDN, ABS, airbag. All power, new engine, 40k. $2400. 253-7009.

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

COMPUTERS

NEED A NEW COMPUTER? Customized computer systems, fully configured and within your budget. Call Josh @ 6-3680 or email at josh@jyster.com for more info. www.jyster.com.

486 Computer Great For Student Works Good $100. Color VGA $50. (413)584-8857.

EMPLOYMENT

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS Abt Associates is looking for a few reliable people with good communication and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evening and weekend assignments are currently available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $6.25/hr with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more information or to arrange a personal interview call 413-587-1607. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Experienced House Cleaner for family farmhouse in Leverett. $10/hr. 548-9870 Susan.

Searching for a hairstylist some afternoons and Saturdays. Regency Hairstylist 253-9526.

Spring Break '99- Sell Trips, Earn Cash & Go Free!!! STS is now hiring campus reps. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico & Florida. Call 800-648-4849 or apply online at www.ststravel.com.

CAMPUS DESIGN & COPY has openings for new co-managers. If you've always wanted to run your own business, start with a genuine student-run collective! Applications (due 9/16) and details at 403 Student Union. 545-2271.

EMPLOYMENT

Amherst Leisure Services Seeks

Sports Related Positions:

+ Adult Volleyball Officials/ Supervisors
+ Adult Basketball Score Keeper
+ Youth Basketball Supervisor, Officials
+ Facility Supervisors
+ Certified Swim Instructor

Immediate Need For

+ Experienced Stage Manager for Town Community Theater (nights & weekends)
+ Adult Ed. Supervisor (evenings)

Applications available at Human Resources 4 Boltwood Walk Amherst, MA 01002 EOE Prefered Deadline September 15

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2" 2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and... Earn $$$. Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks. Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplashtours.com

Undergraduate Business Consultant Gain Accounting Experience, Leadership Skills, and General Business Experience. 10-15 hrs per week, flexible schedule. Must be self motivated, able to work as part of a team. Sophomores and Juniors are encouraged to apply. Pick up an application at the Center for Student Business; 406 Student Union. Questions, call 545-2166. Deadline for apps- Fri., Sept 18.

CANTONE'S PIZZA CO seeks drivers. Must have reliable vehicle. Part-Time & Full-Time. Also hiring experienced pizza cooks. Call 256-6100 or apply in person. 481 West St., Rte 116, South Amherst.

EMPLOYMENT

Best Part-Time Job In The Valley. You don't have to wash dishes or flip burgers for the extra money you need. Become a Clean Water Action organizer and earn $7.30-$9.00/hr fighting air and water pollution. Paid training, flexible schedule, evening and weekend hours. 584-9830.

Kai Chi Restaurant hiring waitstaff, drivers, bouncers, and bartenders. Apply in person after 4:30 pm. 586-2774.

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Mornings and evenings. $7.85/hr. 546-0666.

Human Services- Want to make a difference in someone's life? Relief support needed to work with developmentally disabled adults. May lead to permanent hours. Hours include evenings, weekends and/or overnights. Required: driver's license and professionalism. Call (413)323-6872 to start application process. AA/EOE.

EARN CASH
Flexible Hours
Now hiring at Sbarro's, Hampshire Mall.

Full/Part-Time positions available now, as movers. Flexible hours needed. Need transportation. Contact Kathy Banas 584-4746.

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ FOR HIRE: DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery. 253-9742.

FOR SALE

Pinball Machine Reconditioned. $500. 253-5363.

For Sale- TV Stand. Franci 253-7606.

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection, from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade. 253-5312.

FURNITURE

Desk For Sale $40. 584-7197.

Danish teak desk $75, pine dresser $45, end table $10, small bookcase $10, foam mattress $50. Prices firm. 253-9719.

WATERBED Queen size, bookcase headboard, four drawer pedestal, more. $200/best offer. 253-3318.

Quality Made Ikea Futon Couch/Bed For Sale. $120. It's in great condition. Call 585-1593 after 7pm and ask for John.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK. www.fitnessworkshop.com

INSTRUCTION

Boxing Lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. (413)732-8817.

LOST & FOUND

One pair of glasses found on the small hillside between the Polymer Research Center and the engineering lab. Call 546-0098.

LOST JEWELRY Grandmother's silver engagement ring. Lost on 9/10 around Totman and Sylvan parking area. Great sentimental value. Please return. Reward. Call 665-7630.

MUSICAL EQUIP

P.A. SYSTEM FOR SALE Nearly new, awesome little system; multi-effects processor; EQ; tape deck; mixer; 2 power amps, 2 JBL speakers; 2 EV monitors; mikes; road cases with fans; cables; speaker stands. Will not part out. $3500. (413)527-8387. Leave message.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Can Teach All Styles Call Stephen Page at 256-2612.

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

Room for rent again. Housemate fell thru. $270 plus utilities. 549-4541.

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Rental Problems? Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house, or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906.

TUTORING SERVICE

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

TYPING

Mort & Son Typing Service Call 549-6942.

To place a Classified Call us at 545-3500 or visit us in The Campus Center Basement

Have A Happy Classifieds Day

Five College Community Calendar

TUESDAY, SEPT. 15

Classes — There will be free hypnosis classes to help people quit smoking from 6:30–9 p.m. Call 256-4077 to pre- register.

Community — There will be a blood drive in the Student Union Ballroom from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m.

Community — The annual J. Crew Warehouse sale will be at the Mullin Center from 9 a.m.–9 p.m.

Community — The Pride Alliance will hold its first infosocial at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center room 905.

Lecture — A lecture entitled "Do Women and Men Communicate Differently?" in the New York Room in Mary Woolley Hall at Mount Holyoke College. The lecture begins at 7:30 p.m.

Meeting — The ballroom dance club will be meeting at 5:30 p.m. in Totman room 101. No partner necessary.

Open House — The Student Government Association is having an open house from 6–8 p.m. in the Campus Center room 174. All are welcome.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 16

Community — There will be a community blood drive in the Student Union ballroom from 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m.

Meeting — The Jewish Student Union will be holding its general meeting in the Campus Center at 6 p.m. All are welcome.

Meeting — The UMass poetry society will hold its first meeting at 7 p.m. in Campus Center room 811.

NOTICES

Community — Nomination papers for the Student Government Association elections are available in room 420 in the Student Union. Papers need to be turned in by 5 p.m. on Sept. 22, and elections are Sept. 28.

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through October 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for its frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. For more information, call 545-0883.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. For more information, call Gina at (508) 849-5600 ext. 201.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs and to work on special projects. For more details, call 545-0883.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Next time, try US first. NEW Astoro

Not like a mall... Closer.

TUESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 15, 1998

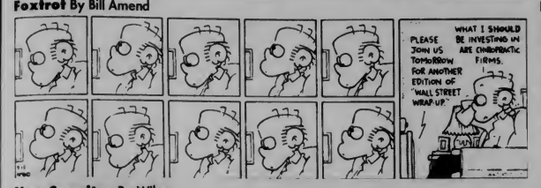
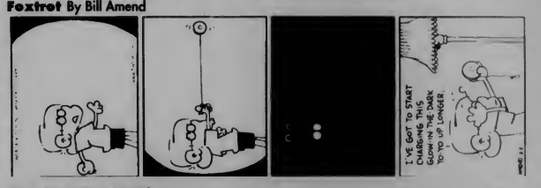
	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEOH	12	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Nova "Coms" (In Stereo)		Oliver Sacks-Mind		P.O.V. (In Stereo)		News	Depression
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	JAG "To Russia, With Love"		The People Next Door (1996, Suspense) Kirsten Dunst,		News		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	JAG "To Russia, With Love"		The People Next Door (1996, Suspense) Kirsten Dunst,		News		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Vote: Primary	Home Imp.	Soul Man	Vote: The Massachusetts Primary		News		News	Nightline
WLVI	56	Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny		Nanny	Buffy the Vampire Slayer	Dawson's Creek "Double Date"		News		Election '98	Star Trek Gen.
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Med Abt. You	Med Abt. You	Just Shoot Me	Just Shoot Me	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	20	Married...With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Moesha (R)	Clueless (R)	Moesha (R)	Clueless (R)	News	Newsradio	News	LAPD
WVIT	30	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Med Abt. You	Med Abt. You	Just Shoot Me	Just Shoot Me	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WFXC	66	Simpsons	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	Frasier	King of the Hill	Costello	Guinness World Records		News		Med Abt. You	Med Abt. You
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Med Abt. You	Med Abt. You	Just Shoot Me	Just Shoot Me	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Nova "Coms" (In Stereo)		Oliver Sacks-Mind		P.O.V. (In Stereo)			Charlie Rose
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	Home Imp.	Soul Man	Spin City	Spin City	Maximum Bob "Once Bitten"		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Seinfeld	Frasier	Moesha (R)	Clueless (R)	Moesha (R)	Clueless (R)	News	Med Abt. You	Frasier	Cheers
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Major League Baseball: Philadelphia Phillies at Atlanta Braves. (Live)
A&E	69	Northern Exposure		Law & Order "House Counsel"		Biography "Jacques Cousteau"		Investigative Reports		Biography "Jacques Cousteau"		Law & Order "Angel"
CNN	24	Worldview	Moneyline Newshour		Crossfire	World Today		Larry King Live		World Today		Sports	Moneyline
COM	26	Lizards	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money					Vivir Veriery	PulpComic	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	67	Wings "Multimission Helicopter"		Gimme Shelter (R)		Wild Discovery		New Detectives: Case Studies		Shark Attack Files (R)		Justice Files "On the Outside"
ESPN	27	Up Close	Sportscenter		Chasing Hist.	Bloopers	Dog Show	Billiards		Baseball Tonight		Sportscenter
LIFE	68	Ellen	Ellen	Party of Five "Ides of March"		Chicago Hope "Full Moon"		Any Day Now (In Stereo)		Maggie	Oh Baby	Great Lifetime Makeover (R)
MTV	70	(5:00) Jams Countdown		Fanatic (R)		Beavis-Butt.	Eye Spy	Say What?	Total Request Live (In Stereo)	Real World	House of Style	Fanatic (R)	Loveline
NICK	71	Figure It Out	Titty Toon	Doug		Rugrats	Thornberrys	Rocket	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	Love Lucy	Switched
SCIFI	73	Quantum Leap (In Stereo)		Masters		Star Trek "The Menagerie" (Part 1 of 2)		Sequoia 2002 (In Stereo)		Will & "Kir" (In Stereo)		Masters	Star Trek
TLC	29	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again		Home Again	Trauma: Life in the ER			Wild Bill Hickok (R)		Trauma: Life in the ER
TNT	74	Babylon 5 (In Stereo)		ER "1/2 Hours" (In Stereo)
USA	75	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess		Walker, Texas Ranger						New York Undercover
HBO	76
MAX	77
SHOW	78

HSCN 4 Hearing Services Cable Network

2	HSCN Bulletin Board		UVC-TV19
3	CBS/3 Hartford		ABC/40 Springfield
4	CBS/4 Boston		NBC/22 Springfield
5	ABC/5 Boston		CNN
6	PBS/57 Springfield		CNN SI
7	HSCN Money Ch.		Headline News
8	UPN/20 Hartford		UCTV
9	Weather Channel		TBS
10	NBC/30 New Britain		BET
11	Fox/61 Hartford		TV Land
12	PBS/24 Hartford		Univision
13	WOCH & HSCN		Comedy Central
14	International		Cartoon
15	UMass Academic TV		Much Music
17	HSCN Programming



Dilbert By Scott Adams



Dilbert By Scott Adams

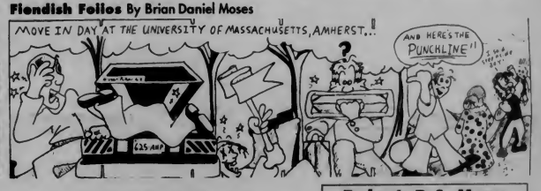
Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Robotman By Jim Meddick



Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Fiendish Follos By Brian Daniel Moses

Horoscopes

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You should be able to promote harmony and peace in a situation riddled with conflict. You may find yourself in the middle.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You can bet that someone will be unusually aggressive toward you today. Be the better person and disarm this individual with passive rationality.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — This is a good day to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Someone is watching or listening. Everything "counts!"

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You'll have to rely on your wits today to escape a situation not of your making. A natural talent is likely to emerge during the night.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You can be quite imaginative today, but also perform tasks in their routine matter. Break free of certain molds but don't lose your head!

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Take care that you're not confusing fact and fiction, reality and fantasy today. A Cancer native may not buy what you're trying to sell.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You're likely to unintentionally set off fireworks of some kind before the day is out. Try to maintain a clear perspective.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — Do not take action without thinking things through today. Make certain that no inadvertent errors are made.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You are feeling capable and confident at this time, but be aware that some believe you are not "up to task."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You're likely to come up with some unusual ideas about how the world works, but only a good friend will listen. Be patient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — A clash of temperament can be expected today. Watch out for a Libra native who claims to know something you don't. Don't lose your cool — it might be a bluff.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You're in no mood for practicality today. You want things to come spontaneously, so be prepared for a path fraught with hazards.

Quote of the Day

"We bring people into the woods and do things to them."

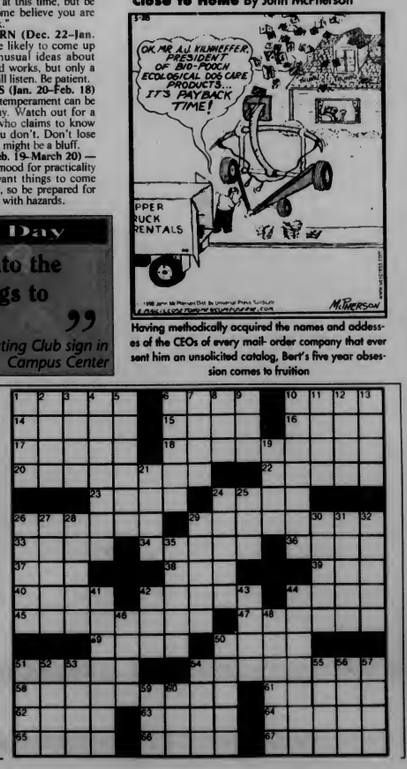
–UMASS Outing Club sign in Campus Center

Close to Home By John McPherson

Having methodically acquired the names and addresses of the CEOs of every mail- order company that ever sent him an unsolicited catalog, Bert's five year obsession comes to fruition

ACROSS

1 Photographer Ansel
6 Clock part
10 Hong —
14 Virginia's — Caverns
15 Singer Brickell
16 Actor Jammings
17 Up and about
18 Fast falcon
20 Hairdressers
22 Devoured
23 House feature
24 Naughty youngster
26 Flowing garment
29 Band instrument
33 Strong as —
34 "Bah!"
36 Alaskan city
37 Evergreen
38 Egg producer
39 Caveman Alley —
40 Oil grp
42 Sibling's child
44 Opposed to
45 More prone to disciplining
47 Washed (off)
49 Grandstand yells
50 Bell sound
51 Camera sound
54 Speaker
58 Buffoon
61 Without any help
62 French girlfriend
63 Oak or maple
64 Succulent fowl
65 Overtake
66 Give the cold shoulder
67 Secret meeting



DOWN

1 Sorrowful cry
2 Do housework
3 Bohemian
4 Letter holder
5 Native of Damascus
6 Distance down
7 Bad day for Caesar
8 Breeze
9 Bruce —
10 Nail substance
11 Skip over
12 Baseball team
13 Singer Campbell
19 Reverse: e.g.
21 Halt
24 White Fr.
25 Uncooked
26 Potent boxing punches
27 Clumsy
28 Yard tool
29 Act like a fan
30 Midays
31 Ham it up
32 Lukewarm
35 Recoils
41 Rings
42 Ultimate
43 TV's Sevared
44 Bony and lean
46 Birthday — units abbr.
48 Whole
50 Star in Cygnus
51 Fellow
52 Dalai —
53 Eye part
54 In — of replacing
55 Viscous
56 Slaughter of the diamond
57 Lease
59 Milk-container units abbr.
60 Vase

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

HOOF JUMP RED
OUTDO ALOE AREA
ENTER SNARE DRUM
PAS FLOAT PIECE
SEEN GOODES
STRAIT KORA
TROUT SEMI CAST
AIDE GLENN TREY
BOER RANT CUGAR
ERAGS DEVOTE FEARED PILE
ATLAS FAUNS ATA
CHATTIEST IOTAS
TAME DUET ULTRA
NON ODAS SENT

9-15-98 © 1998 United Feature Syndicate

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Hungarian Noodle Bake
Tacos
Vegetarian Taco
DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Meatloaf Italiano
Ratatoouille
Captain's Catch on Sesame Seed Roll

Worcester
LUNCH
Native American Tacos
Clam Roll
Ziti/Cheese or Tomato Sauce
Vegitarian Native American Tacos
DINNER
Madarin Chicken
Jamaican Beef Patty
Garbanzo Bean & Rice Provencal
Meatball/Grider Roll

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Charbroiled Chicken Sandwich
Tacos
DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Meatloaf with Gravy

Berkshire
LUNCH
Tacos
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Chef's Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Vegetable Tacos
DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Meatloaf with Gravy
Garbanzo Bean & Rice Provencal
Pastabilities/ Ravioli Alfredo

Collegian Staff

Night Editor	Erin Murphy
Photo Technician	Donnelle Gilardi
Copy Editor	Laura Forster
Production Supervisor	Angie Annese
Production Staff	David Veldon

SPORTS

UM women's soccer gets first win

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

The monkey is finally off the backs of the Massachusetts women's soccer team.

After losing their first three games of the season, it looked like UMass would open up zero for four on Sunday afternoon against Evansville in Ann Arbor, Mich. The Minutewomen trailed 1–0 with seven minutes left, but got the tying goal from Emma Kurowski at the 83 minute mark. Senior co-captain Sophie Lecot then netted the game winner just over two minutes later, and UMass escaped with a 2–1 win.

"It was nice because no one really believed we could do it. We have two outside defenders playing there who really aren't outside defenders (Cindy Garceau and Molly McGrew) and they didn't start," UMass coach Jim Rudy said. "So we went to four defenders. Then Katelyn Jones had to leave midway through the first half with a bad ankle. It was almost like if something could go wrong for us, it did."

The Evansville Purple Aces opened the scoring at the 29 minute mark on a goal by Hally Winberg. The game stayed 1–0 in favor of the Purple Aces until Brooke Bartlett found Kurowski, who headed in a cross to even the game at 1–1 with seven minutes to play.

Lecot then put UMass up for good with just under five minutes to play, breaking free on a pass from Kurowski and blasting home the game-winner.

"We worked real hard. Tactically, we did some great things. They couldn't figure out what we were doing," Rudy said. "We kept changing things and they were totally surprised. Then, once we tied it, we changed it again. Then, when we took the lead, we changed it again. It was a lot of work."

Freshman goalkeeper Cori Stevens made four saves in the winning effort for UMass.

"Cori has come here and done a great job. She's worked hard and deserved an opportunity," Rudy said. "It wasn't a reflection on Angie because she couldn't really do too much about those goals against Michigan."

The Wolverines came out on Friday and easily disposed of the Minutewomen 5–1. Lecot had the lone tally for UMass in the contest, while Kurowski added an assist on the goal.

"We were just dead tired when we got there because the travel plans were changed," Rudy said. "Between the flights, the train, and staying 30 miles away from where we were playing, it was just a bunch of things that went wrong. Finally, by the second half of the Michigan game we woke up and gave them a good run."

"I was disappointed that we got off to such a bad start against Michigan, but I understand it," continued Rudy. "It was probably the worst half I've seen us play this season."

Despite the lackluster 1–3 start and a date with unbeaten regional rival and No. 4 Connecticut on Wednesday in Storrs, Rudy knows it's just a matter of time before things start clicking for the Minutewomen.

"I've enjoyed a long and successful coaching career, and my philosophy is that 85-percent of life is good, and the other 15-percent is bad," he said. "I feel that right now we are in our 15-percent of bad things."

"There have been a bunch of circumstances that have happened and we are trying to be as patient as we can with things. It takes time to learn how to play defense with nondefenders, and I know that we have a great schedule that is here at the wrong time," continued Rudy. "We're not going to give up, and I just hope that our friends and fans aren't fair-weather ones. We're going to pull it together."

Another step in the right direction would occur with a solid outing against UConn on Wednesday. The Huskies, eventual national runners-up last season, beat UMass 2–1 last year in Amherst behind the play of All–American Sara Whalen. Game time Wednesday is 4 p.m. at Morrone Stadium.

FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts women's soccer team put together some last minute heroics over the weekend to give them their first win of the season.

UMass soccer team just misses first win; Fowler remains strong

By Sanford Appell
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's soccer team endured another setback to this year's campaign on Saturday after dropping a road match to Maine. The Minutemen were travelling in search of their first victory, but fell short in a 3–2 decision.

Most disappointing was the fact that UMass held a 2–1 advantage, before surrendering the final two goals of the match.

"The bottom line is we came up short," Massachusetts coach Sam Koch said after Saturday's game. "They came at us very hard in the second half, and did what they had to do."

The two Minutemen goals were the first of the season, but the team fell to 0–3–1 overall.

UMass forward Seth Lilburn opened up the scoring on a soggy Maine playing field. His unassisted goal at 15:15 gave the Minutemen their first lead of the season. Senior Brad Kurowski increased the lead to 2–0 with another unassisted goal at 26:47.

Aaron Benjamin closed out the first half scoring with a Maine goal assisted by Ricky Brown to saw the UMass lead in half.

Despite the lead, UMass was outshot 10–5 at the break, which is one of the reasons the Minutemen knew they were in for a battle.

"The team knew they would need to finish off chances in the second half to win," Koch said. "It was a wet field, we were on the road, and Maine was playing us tough."

UMass appeared to have the situation under control, until the 61:59 mark when Josh Carpenter netted the game at 2 apiece with an unassisted goal.

The goal was Carpenter's first as a collegiate player, as it occurred after a frantic scramble at the net in front of goaltender Todd Fowler.

The bottom fell out for the Minutemen approximately ten minutes later at the 71:56 mark, as Aaron Benjamin found the net for the second time, off a feed from Andy Guastaferro.

Benjamin's second goal closed out the scoring, and the Minutemen boarded the bus for a long ride home after dropping their third match in four tries.

"Give Maine a lot of credit here", Koch said. "They never let that game get away."

Certainly, the loss on Saturday was an improvement from last week's 1–0 loss to Hartford.

The offense is steadily improving, and Fowler's play in net for UMass has been encouraging.

"Todd has played well for us thus far," Koch said. "He made some nice saves (8 for the game), and the ones that got by him were not really stoppable shots."

Water polo plays three more teams into submission; two weeks until next triad

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

Although the season is only two weekends old, the Massachusetts men's water polo team is already showing the rest of the Collegiate Water Polo Association that it will be business as usual in Amherst this year.

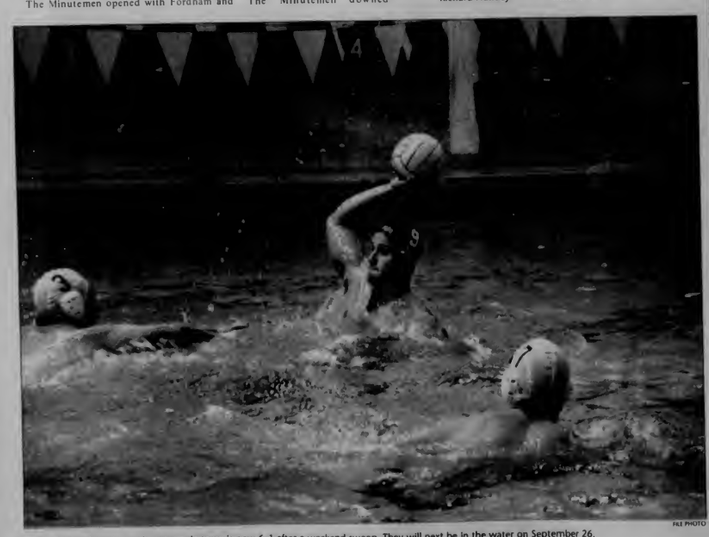
The Minutemen are off to a quick 6–1 start thanks to a three-game sweep of Fordham, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Harvard over the weekend. UMass beat Fordham 16–4, M.I.T. 18–3, and Harvard 18–2.

Junior Timmy Troupis was the team's top offensive threat over the weekend, netting 12 goals in the three games. Senior All–Americans Brian Stahl and Aldo Roman chipped in for seven apiece in the three wins for UMass.

The Minutemen opened with Fordham and easily rolled. Troupis led the way with three goals in the match. An 18–3 rout over M.I.T. was next, with Troupis once again as the high man with five goals. Troupis and Stahl then each tallied four times in the 18–2 win over Harvard.

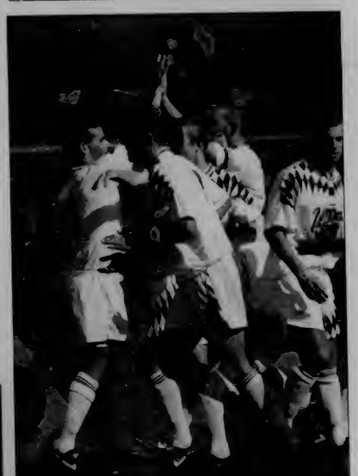
UMass was also aided by strong goaltending. J.R. VanderWall and Richard Huntley combined to allow a mere nine goals in the three games. Overall, the Minutemen outscored their opposition 52–9 over the weekend.

The squad also went 3–1 the weekend before at the Navy Invitational in Annapolis, Md. The Minutemen downed Salem–Teikyo 12–7, Iona 20–4 and Bucknell 14–10. UMass, however, did lose to Queens 7–6 in a nailbiter.



COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Richard Huntley



After having this week off, UMass will be back in action on September 26 in another CWPA league tournament in Providence, RI. The Minutemen will face Boston College, St. Francis and Brown in its three matches that weekend.

UMass is 24–1 all–time versus Boston College, including two victories last season. The Minutemen are also 7–0 all–time versus St. Francis and lead Brown 18–15 in that all–time series.

FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts men's water polo team is now 6–1 after a weekend sweep. They will next be in the water on September 26.

FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts men's soccer team lost over the weekend when their initial lead was eventually erased in the second half.

UMass X–Country teams start out with near sweep

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's cross country team picked up right where it left off last season on Saturday afternoon at Belmont Plateau in Philadelphia, narrowly edging out host LaSalle. UMass had a team score of 39 points, followed by the Explorers, who had 40. Virginia Tech was also a close third with 46 points.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Sally Hirsch

Four UMass runners finished in the top 10, led by junior Sally Hirsch, who finished second with a time of 19:17.6. Sophomore Melissa Henderson was seventh, while senior Tracy Meagher was ninth. Fellow classmate Nicole

Turn to CROSS COUNTRY, page 7

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 6 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday, September 16, 1998

Loaded with funk

Maceo Parker, the master of funk and groove, played to a packed Pearl Street Monday night. For our review, see Arts & Living, page 7.

Looking to avoid the bite

Emma Kurowski and the Massachusetts women's soccer team will head to UConn this afternoon for a 4 p.m. matchup with the Huskies (see Sports, page 18).

WORLD

Tensions rise between Afghanistan and Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — With tensions increasing with neighboring Afghanistan, Iran yesterday put its military and top civilian officials on full alert and called for nationwide demonstrations. The government called on the public to turn out for protest rallies following Friday prayers, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

Both countries have massed troops on their common border since the fundamentalist Taliban admitted Thursday to killing eight Iranian diplomats and a journalist last month.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Iran's supreme leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, as saying yesterday that military and top civilian officials must be ready "for speedy, timely and decisive implementation of whatever decisions the senior political and security authorities deem necessary."

The leadership of Iran's parliament warned that the situation in Afghanistan "will turn into a regional and trans-regional crisis" and urged Islamic nations to meet to counter the threat, IRNA said. In Saudi Arabia, Taliban representative Mawlawi Shehabuldin said the religious army does not want war with Iran but that "we are ready to encounter and fight against any outside Iranian invasion."

NATION

Ramsey investigation goes to grand jury

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A grand jury convened yesterday to investigate the JonBenet Ramsey case and use the panel's subpoena powers to get the answers that have eluded police for nearly two years.

The 6-year-old beauty queen was found beaten and strangled in the basement of her home in December 1996, and the failure to make an arrest since then has led to allegations that police and prosecutors botched the case, perhaps even deliberately.

In March, police asked that the case be turned over to a grand jury, saying they need the panel's subpoena powers to get to the bottom of the slaying.

In making the request, Cmdr. Mark Beckner, now police chief, noted that JonBenet's parents, John and Patsy Ramsey, have refused requests for interviews since he took over the case in December. District Attorney Alex Hunter has said the Ramseys are under "an umbrella of suspicion."

The Ramseys have denied any involvement in their daughter's death. Their attorney had no comment on the convening of the grand jury.

"This is where we've wanted to be for quite some time," Beckner said Monday. "The grand jury can be a good investigative tool and we hope there may be something else out there that we maybe haven't gotten."

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 80 LOW: 56	HIGH: 75 LOW: 46	HIGH: 78 LOW: 59

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 7
Classifieds .....page 14
Comics .....page 15
Crossword .....page 15
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 14
News .....page 2
Sports .....page 16

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

STACY COHEN / COLLEGIAN

A police officer directs traffic near the Mullins Center during a blackout on Commonwealth Ave. yesterday afternoon.

Blackout disrupts UM

By Julie Fialkow and Jill Carroll
Collegian Staff

A broken down generator rendered the University of Massachusetts and the surrounding area powerless yesterday afternoon.

At 2:05 p.m., a Western Massachusetts Electric Company/Northeast Utilities generator lost power due to a bad transformer bank in a substation on College Street.

"All of South Amherst, a little bit of Hadley and a little bit of Pelham are out," said John De Filipi, customer service representative for the electric company.

Power was restored to some parts of the area by 4 p.m. and others were back on line before 5 p.m.

A total of 9,176 customers were affected by the outage and some of those were UMass customers.

Many UMass students and faculty felt the effect of the outage when their computer screens went blank.

"I was working on a research paper on my computer and everything was shut out. The lights went out," said Greg Gallagher, a graduate student. "I have automatic backup on my computer so I only lost 2 minutes (worth of work)."

University Health Services, which relies on electronic equipment to treat and monitor patients, would be in considerable peril with a loss of power. However, it was one of the only areas able to maintain power with an emergency generator. While lights weren't fully operating, areas where physicians need lighting were protected and medical equipment never had a lapse in current.

But other areas of campus didn't enjoy the benefit of a backup system and many have losses due to the outage.

"It's awful. We need to get power back on so bad," People's Market manager Danielle Bartone said during the outage, as the refrigerators in the store warmed up. "If that stays off longer we have cheese, cream cheese [that will spoil] and the coffee can't stay hot."

But People's Market wasn't the only place where food preservation was a worry.

"Lights in the aisles went out. The registers still worked. I don't know if the frozen stuff is still good," said Christina McDonald, a representative from the service desk of Stop & Shop in Granby.

"We can still serve baked goods and any coffee we have left," said Dan Zimmerman, an employee at Claudia's Cafe.

But for on–campus dining there was concern some students might have to make do with peanut butter and jelly as a sign reading "Limited menu due to power outage" was posted on the doors of Worcester Dining Commons.

"We have no steam, no power," said Deb Grosberg, chef for Worcester Dining Hall. "My head cook made another batch of mandarin chicken. We've got enough to feed a couple hundred people. Out of 2,000 kids we've got to feed tonight we only have enough for the first couple hundred."

As some classes around campus were held outside or concluded early because of the power outage those in rooms with windows still felt its effects.

"Because it's dark [in the buildings] people aren't coming in. And the heat. Our fans aren't working. It's very uncomfortable," said Frieda Howard a volunteer for the Red Cross blood donation as she sat in the Student Union Ballroom.

A planning meeting of the leadership of the Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) was held on an outdoor stairway landing near the windowless office that went dark.

"It's pitch black and we don't have air conditioning and we don't have a window," said Emily LaBarbera, GEO president.

"We're still working for you," said Felix Tremino, GEO vice president with a laugh, sitting in the make–shift office of three plastic chairs set up by the stairway.

SGA invites students to apply for elections

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association (SGA) is extending an open invitation to undergraduate students to run for senator and area government positions.

According to Jodi Bailey, associate speaker of the undergraduate senate, the SGA is trying to ensure a large candidate pool for the upcoming elections through increased advertising. Lisa Cook, speaker of the senate, Bron Tamulis, secretary of public relations, and Bailey have been publicizing the upcoming race by postering, providing information sessions in the residence halls, hosting an open house and setting up a table in the Campus Center Concourse.

Bailey is pleased with the outcome of their active solicitation so far. "We've given out at least 95 application forms as of [Monday afternoon]. We want as many students as possible to run," Bailey said. She added that the more students that run for positions, the better the representation of the student population.

According to the SGA Constitution, there is a senator for every 250 students. If a residence hall houses over 250 people it has its own senator, while students living in residence halls with fewer students are represented by a senator–at–large.

Because last year's election for area government was nullified due to low voter turnout, it will take place on the same day as senator elections, Sept. 28. The major distinction between the two positions, said Bailey, is that while senators' responsibilities are more campus–wide, members of area government help facilitate social activities within their residence areas, such as concerts and coffee hours.

Besides these positions, Bailey encourages people to participate in other facets of student government. "We have all kinds of different committees," she said, "it doesn't have to be a senator position. There's some office managerial positions too."

Chancellor of Elections Seth Presser is optimistic that the senator and area government elections won't be reminiscent of last year's presidential/trustee race.

Last year, due to unconstitutional election procedures, the first election was nullified. Additionally, accusations were made that some candidates engaged in unfair campaigning.

"The election committee and myself are doing everything we can to improve things," Presser said.

Nominations for the elections close on Sept. 22 and campaigning will take place Sept. 23–Sept. 28.

Animal smugglers caught

By Anne Gearan
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Agents posing as middlemen in the $6 billion international traffic in illegally trapped wild animals caught a major smuggler who specializes in rare and endangered lizards, tortoises and other wildlife, authorities said yesterday.

Keng Liang "Anson" Wong, a Malaysian, was arrested in Mexico City as he arrived for a meeting Monday night with an undercover U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agent. Wong, 40, is charged in a 55-count indictment with smuggling more than 300 animals from Asia into the United States.

The animals, including at least two species perilously close to extinction in the wild, would be worth about $500,000 on the flourishing black market for exotic reptiles, prosecutors said.

"He's a notorious and flagrant wildlife smuggler," already wanted on similar charges in Florida, said Lois Schiffer, assistant attorney general for environment and natural resources.

A sting operation begun in 1995 also led to the arrests Monday of two men who allegedly orchestrated the animals' sale in the United States.

James Michael Burroughs, 47, was arrested in San Francisco and Beau Lee Lewis, 20, in Buckeye, Ariz. With Wong, they are charged with conspiracy, smuggling and other crimes. The indictment names a fourth defendant, Yuk Wah "Oscar" Shiu, 39, of Hong Kong, who remains a fugitive.

Among animals the ring allegedly smuggled from Asia were specimens of 59 endangered species, including the plowshare tortoise and the Komodo dragon, the Justice Department said in announcing the arrests.

A Mexican Embassy official said Wong was arrested by Mexican police at the request of U.S. authorities. The undercover agent cooperated with Mexican police.

The United States plans to extradite Wong to San Francisco, where all three would be tried in federal court. A trial date has not been set.

"Reptile smuggling is a high-profit criminal enterprise, and the United States is its largest market," said Fish and Wildlife Service Director Jamie Rappaport Clark.

Interpol estimates illegal wildlife trafficking worldwide at $6 billion annually.

Prosecutors claim the ring used human couriers and Federal Express shipments with phony invoices to smuggle the animals from Malaysia, Hong Kong, Indonesia and the Philippines.

Rare species are prized by underground reptile dealers and collectors, who often pay exorbitant prices for illegal or smuggled animals.

The Fish and Wildlife Service set up a front company in San Francisco that dealt in legitimate animal imports and also solicited smuggled animals, authorities said. Wong was one of the first alleged smugglers contacted, said Kevin Adams, chief of law enforcement for the service.

In the Florida case, Wong was charged in 1992 with smuggling rare iguanas, Bengal monitors and Indian soft-shell turtles.

GSS seeks to restore University Apts.

By Jill Carroll
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate (GSS) wants to reopen University Apartments to ease the housing crunch, but costly renovations are causing administrators to look for other options.

The GSS is calling for a vote on a warrant article which calls for the Amherst Representative to Town Meeting to request the Massachusetts State Legislature to provide funds, separate from normal University funding, to renovate or rebuild the apartment complex located on University property at the intersection of Massachusetts Avenue and North Pleasant Street.

The complex, which has over 60 units, has been vacant for approximately 10 years.

Richard McPalmer, GSS treasurer, feels UMass should provide more housing due to the extra residents it brings to Amherst and reopening the complex is a way to do it.

"We're basically asking for the University to take responsibility for the burden it puts on the area," McPalmer said. "My argument is there is an immediate need for housing right now, especially students with families."

The GSS submission of the warrant article petition form to induce a vote of whether to ask the legislature for funding was submitted because the University would not fund a renovation of the complex.

"It's far more expensive to renovate the old apartments than build new ones," said Beverly Wood, associate chancellor of campus planning and space allocation. "They're really not in that great of shape. By the time we got them under code compliance, it was just not cost effective."

Last spring a similar measure was proposed to the Town Meeting and was defeated by one vote with objection to renovation voiced by the University.

However, the University's objection to renovating the complex doesn't make sense to GSS president Juana Mendoza.

"I can see no reason why the University cannot support this article. The renovations will not fiscally impact upon other projects or departments," Mendoza said in a press release.

While members of the GSS and administration

Turn to APARTMENTS, page 3

Renovated Pruddy's reopens

Since the Select Board revoked license, liquor won't be served

By Mike Puffer
Collegian Correspondent

AMHERST — Pruddy's Restaurant plans to reopen today after renovating, but this time without its liquor license.

The Latin–cuisine restaurant, located on 30 Boltwood Lane, had its license to serve alcohol revoked by the Select Board on July 13 for alleged violations of the liquor license, including having minors in possession of alcohol.

"They have had more violations than any other place, and that is why [Pruddy's] is closed down," said Eva Schiffer, a Select Board member.

Town Counsel Alan Seewald said the liquor license was revoked because 16 underage persons with alcohol were allegedly on the premises during early March and April.

Prudencio Gomez Sr., the owner of Pruddy's, said there is a "conspiracy to shut me down," and the Chief of Police Donald Maia is being "forced to go against us."

Gomez said that the conspiracy against him is comprised of Maia, Detective David Knightly, Select Board chair Brian Harvey and others who "wish to see me gone."

When asked about the conspiracy allegation Knightly had no comment and, after several attempts, Maia could not be reached for comment. Harvey said he did not know Gomez Sr., and he had only had contact with him through the Select Board.

Prudencio Gomez Jr. said the town is trying to force Pruddy's to close by singling it out.

"The select board has cops here every single night," Gomez Jr. said.

However, Amherst Police Department Captain Charles Scherpa said Pruddy's receives the same scrutiny as other restaurants in the area.

Gomez Jr. also claims the town has been unfair in regards to Pruddy's zoning permit.

The zoning permit for Pruddy's is currently revoked. According to the Gomez's lawyer, they have an appeal pending.

Gomez Jr. said Pruddy's has been cited for failure to give a receipt for drinks and for serving customers standing up.

"Name me one place that gives you a receipt for each drink you get," Gomez Jr. said.

According to the minutes of the Select Board meeting for June 1, Pruddy's was issued a written warning for failure to post a notice of a cover charge and failure to issue written receipts for a cover charge.

Harvey said the revocation is not a matter of targeting Pruddy's but rather, enforcing the law.

"[It is] hard to support the idea that Pruddy [Gomez Sr.] is being singled out," Harvey said. "He could be in there forever if he were to abide by the terms of his license, quite obviously, he wasn't."

Pruddy's currently has a case

Turn to PRUDDY'S, page 3

DAVID BELOTTA / COLLEGIAN

Pruddy's restaurant and bar may no longer serve alcohol.

STACY COHEN / COLLEGIAN

Stop the drilling!

Eddie Vale, an environmental science major, and Allison Brittman, a travel and tourism major, solicit signatures for a petition to stop oil drilling on federal Arctic lands.

Read the Collegian
It's good. Good for you.
Better than milk. And fruit.
And it's got fiber. Yeah.

FITNESS WORKSHOP
Nutritional Supplements
Pure Creatine 600 grams $35.00
Creatine Surge 4lbs $39.95
Whey Protein 2lbs $21.00
www.fitnessworkshop.com
Free Giveaways - Online Ordering
Offer good until Oct. 7th
1-877-FIT-WORK

Coast Guard returns 400

By Michael Norton
Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — U.S. Coast Guard cutters brought 400 would-be immigrants back to Haiti yesterday, two days after they were found on a dangerously crowded wooden freighter near Florida.

A private fishing boat had spotted the vessel on Sunday — four days into its trip — and alerted the Coast Guard. The Haitians were caught 25 miles from Key Largo.

The passengers would not say how much they paid for the passage to America, but such clandestine trips cost $500 to $1,000. Every month, an estimated 200 boat people risk the dangerous journey and leave the Caribbean country, which suffers from serious economic and political problems.

Aboard the 75-foot boat was Richard Pierre, his wife, Mosa, and his 7-month-old son. Pierre said relatives in Miami had paid his fare.

"We almost made it," Pierre, 35, said when the Coast Guard brought them back home.

The flow of Haitian boat people has slowed considerably since tens of thousands fled a repressive military regime that ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in 1991. In 1994 alone, the U.S. Coast Guard intercepted nearly 25,000 Haitians trying to reach Florida.

Mother of three kills kids, self

By Michael Rubinkam
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Miguellina Estevez had been alone with her 2-year-old triplet sons since the boys' father moved out, apparently returning to the Dominican Republican and another woman. She was 19, had no job and spoke little English.

On Monday, after trying to buy rat poison to kill herself and the boys, police say she shot each of her sons in the head with a semiautomatic pistol and then turned the gun on herself. Police found her body in the second-floor bedroom of her rowhouse and two of her sons dead nearby. The third boy was hospitalized in critical condition.

The boys were identified as Franklin, Frankelly and Fabian, or "Franky." Police Inspector Jerrold Kane said yesterday that authorities weren't sure which one survived the shooting, but said he was unlikely to live.

The tall, thin woman had come here three years ago from the Dominican Republic with her boyfriend, Franklin Sanchez.

About two months ago, recalled a friend, Joselyn Perez, Estevez became despondent after finding another woman's underwear in Sanchez's suitcase.

Confronted with the evidence, Sanchez said he was leaving her to marry the other woman in the Dominican Republic, Perez said. Estevez was devastated. She went to Perez's hair salon almost every afternoon to commiserate.

"It's difficult when you're 19," said Perez, 32. "She just needed to talk to us."

Earlier this month, her mood brightened a little after Sanchez called and said he wanted to work things out.

On Saturday, however, Estevez went to Paulina's Grocery and asked for rat poison, saying she wanted to kill herself.

The storekeepers, Lauro Paulina and his wife Marguerita Diaz, told her they didn't have any.

"Then she said she wanted to go to Roosevelt Boulevard and throw herself in front of the cars, take her children with her," Marguerita Diaz said in Spanish.

Diaz told her to seek help.

The next day, Estevez went back to the hair salon, but instead of discussing her problems, she talked about remodeling her house.

A family friend, Francisco Rodriguez, said Estevez called Sanchez's relatives early Monday, begging them to make her an appointment with a psychiatrist. He said she apparently got an appointment for today, but he didn't know any details. Later, Monday, police say, Estevez placed two of her children on a bed and shot each once in the head, then put the third boy on the floor next to her and shot him in the head, and finally shot herself.

CIA's secret agency losing top agents

By John Diamond
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The CIA's clandestine service is losing its best people amid organizational drift and declining morale, the agency's outgoing inspector general said yesterday.

"The picture is not encouraging," said Frederick Hitz, who was the CIA's chief internal watchdog from 1990 until earlier this year. Writing in an op-ed article in The Washington Post, Hitz said the Directorate of Operations, the CIA's clandestine service of overseas intelligence collectors, "has been shrinking in size and capability since the end of the Cold War."

A recent study showed that departures from the agency due to attrition "involved high quality officers the agency could not afford to lose," Hitz wrote.

Agency and congressional officials said the critique may be outdated as the CIA pumps new money and energy into recruiting. But one knowledgeable congressional staffer said the problem got so bad that an entire incoming class of operatives — perhaps a few dozen recruits — had to be canceled for lack of funding.

Hitz pointed to the difficulty of recruiting in a booming economy and to low morale as a result of "the lack of a clear mission" at CIA.

"Nobody worth his or her salt is going to join an organization that has lost faith in itself, is confused about its mission and is trapped in the sclerosis of a middle-aged bureaucracy," he said. Rep. Porter Goss (R-Fla.), chairman of the House Intelligence Committee and a former CIA clandestine operative, said an instinct to blame the CIA every time a risky intelligence venture fails is taking its toll.

"With so many unyielding critics, the CIA has become gun-shy," Goss said.

Sen. Bob Kerrey (D-Neb.), vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said Hitz has been a leading critic of the clandestine service and may himself be partly to blame for low morale. Still, Kerrey agreed recruitment is a serious problem for the agency.

"I'm very much concerned that we're not doing all that we should be doing to recruit and retain our best," said Kerrey. Sen. Richard Shelby (R-Ala.), the committee chairman, said the CIA must focus on defining its mission more clearly and outlining how it will use field operatives to combat terrorism, weapons proliferation and drug trafficking.

A congressional staffer who spoke on condition of anonymity said recruiting and training problems at CIA "hit bottom" between six months and a year ago.

"CIA had to shut down the pipeline of new hires six months ago — they actually had to cancel a class of new trainees because they didn't have money to train them or pay them," the staffer said. The cancellation involved perhaps two dozen recruits. A CIA spokesman said he knew of no such action, but said it was possible one training seminar had been stopped or postponed.

Since then, however, the House and Senate Intelligence Committees have pushed for more money for the CIA's so-called human intelligence efforts, including its field operatives. And the staffer said the quality of recruits in terms of foreign language and technical skills far surpasses those of their predecessors in previous decades.

CIA Director George Tenet told agency employees in a speech of a major recruitment initiative designed to increase pay, provide hiring bonuses and shorten the waiting time for job offers. "I am committed to bringing the best and brightest into CIA and giving them an incentive to stay for a lifetime of service," Tenet said.

Gil Medeiros, who heads CIA's recruitment center, said in an in-house article that the old slow process of hiring recruits meant that many talented prospects had accepted job offers in the private sector by the time the CIA offered them a job.

The number of CIA employees is classified, but the Federation of American Scientists, a Washington-based group that follows intelligence issues, estimates it has shrunk from more than 20,000 to about 16,000 since the end of the Cold War. The clandestine service is estimated at several thousand.

STACY COHEN / COLLEGIAN

Need more debt?

Aaron Suprenant, a Winchester resident, collects a credit card application from Arieh Kurinsky, a Spanish major, in front of Memorial Hall yesterday afternoon.

■ apartments

continued from page 1

admit there is a housing shortage in the Amherst area, the University is looking into other options to solve the problem.

"We started discussions with the town to talk about housing demands," Wood said. "We're well aware of the demand for housing."

Wood said renovating the apartments is not an option the University is exploring; building new housing is being investigated preliminarily.

"It's kind of a long range plan. We're looking at how other campuses have been able to provide housing on a shorter timeline," Wood said, but was not able to specify the timeline.

Wood said any building project would be a collaboration between the University, the Town of Amherst and a private developer.

The petition will be brought to Town Meeting Oct. 26.

■ Pruddy's

continued from page 1

pending in Hampshire County Superior Court to get the liquor license reinstated until all appeals have been decided.

"We went to superior court to get a stay of enforcement because the town is not the final arbitrator," said Joanne Delong, lawyer for Gomez Sr.

Delong said the next step would be to appeal to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC).

According to Delong the ABCC would allow Pruddy's to serve alcohol until the case was decided.

Town Council Alan Seewald said the father and son are trying to render the decision of the Select Board invalid.

Pruddy's will open today at 9 p.m. Gomez Jr. said. Although it will not have alcohol, the restaurant will be open to all ages and will serve mixers and food. However, patrons can bring their own alcohol.

Scherpa, referring to the opening of Pruddy's, said "We will not pay any particular attention."

www.umass.edu/rso
/colegian

Get on the bus.....
Read the Collegian.

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THAT'S US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS: CARDIO KICKBOXING, YOGA, REEBOK BENCH, LOW IMPACT
BEST MACHINES: PRECOR ELLIPTICALS, TREADMILLS • BIKES, RECUMBENTS, STAIRMASTERS
BEST PRICES: 1 MO.....$49, 3 MO.....$129, 6 MOS.....$229, 12 MO.....$389
Big Enough to Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 West St. On Bus Route www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

Wednesday, September 16, 1998
KOFI ANNAN
Hampshire College
Amherst, Massachusetts
The Inaugural Eqbal Ahmad Lecture
Knowledge and Civilization
by the Secretary-General of the United Nations
"Hampshire Express" buses will leave Haigis Mall at 4 p.m. and stop at Amherst College. Buses will be available to return students to their campuses.
5:00 p.m. on the Library Lawn
Free and open to the public. No tickets necessary.
Information: 413-559-5521

IN 7 DAYS
THE BEST MADE FROM SCRATCH
PIZZA COMES TO AMHERST.

Furniture Expo '98
Residents & Students
Campus Center Auditorium

Food
Fun
Music
Hourly Prizes
Grand Prize*
*Eligible with completion of SURVEY. Use of Furniture Display of your choice for you and your roommate for ONE (1) academic year.
Tues., Sept. 15th Noon - 9pm
Wed., 16th 10am - 4pm
Come Check It Out!

IN 7 DAYS
AUTHENTIC
NEW YORK STYLE
BOILED & HEARTH
BAKED BAGELS
ROLL INTO AMHERST.

IN 7 DAYS
OVERSTUFFED
DELI
SANDWICHES (NEVER SEEN OUTSIDE OF NEW YORK CITY)
COME TO
AMHERST.

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Caught in the middle

Once again, the American public is caught in the middle of lies and manipulation by opposing forces, left with little indication of where the real truth is. On the one hand, we have Independent Counsel Ken Starr and his quest to exorcise the presidency of what he must perceive as an evil demon of some sort.

On the other hand, we have the President attempting to convince the public that oral sex does not constitute a sexual relationship.

Oh, and then we have the media. Who knows where they fit in.

The media comprises much of my complaint about this matter. It should be obvious to anyone that the news organizations are not concerned with what kind of programming people would prefer to watch, but with what will bring them in the most ratings.

"Obviously, the news agencies would rather show the sensational answers ("Impeach him!") than show us the true representation of their own polls."

Justin Smith

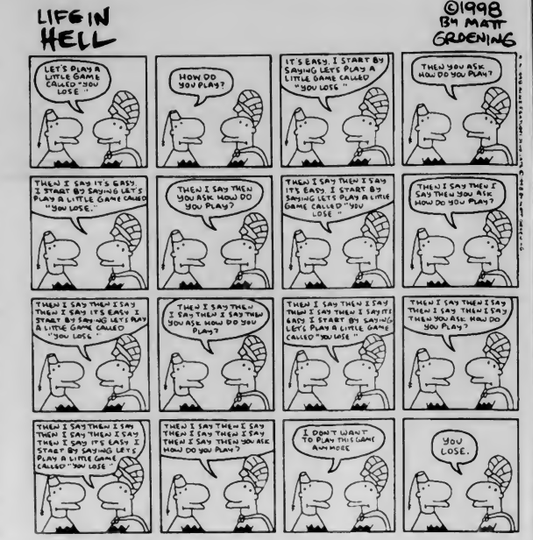
If you watch the news, you've probably seen the "man on the street" interviews that all of the news stations have been doing on this matter, asking the passersby what they think of the matter. How many times have those people answered something other than "I'm sick of hearing about it?" Not very often.

Despite this, the media has only increased its coverage as the time has passed. I had thought the purpose of the media was to provide a service for the public, but in refusing to give the public the one thing that they truly want in this matter (and which the media is capable of providing), they have proven that this is not their intent.

In fact, there is an even better example of the media's tendency to ignore facts in preference of sensationalizing this matter. In the polls taken of those who have an opinion on what the future of the President's career should be, the majority supported him. Nonetheless, when we are shown people interviewed on the street, there has been a disproportionately large number of people who expressed their desire for his resignation or impeachment. Obviously, the news agencies would rather show the sensational answers ("Impeach him!") than show us the true representation of their own polls.

If the media were concerned with presenting the true situation, rather than hyping it, they would have broadcasted interviews of people that accurately depicted the percentages of their opinions. I should note that I am making a generalization here; this is not always the case. However, it does seem to happen more often than not.

Although the media is causing some problems in this matter, they are not entirely to blame. Clinton is certainly to blame for having the affair, and he is also to blame for lying about it. Ken Starr is to blame for asking the question in the first place. In addition, both parties are trying to obfuscate the facts of the matter by providing their own garnished versions of the story.



Starr insisted on presenting an (unnecessarily) sexually graphic report for Congress. The effect it is having is simply amazing. It does much to describe human irrationalities. I confidently can say that most people, even if they had supported the President, already believed he had had the affair. Nonetheless, I am hearing from people who, after reading the report, no longer support the President. Nothing has changed, yet the sexually graphic nature of the report has had an emotional effect on those reading it, as they are given a means of visually imagining the President in those situations as documented in Starr's report. It is incredible how easily people can be manipulated.

On the other hand, Clinton has publicly attacked Starr's investigation, in an attempt to present himself as a victim. He has also tried to redefine the meaning of a "sexual relationship," so that he need not admit to providing false testimony. Clinton's splitting of hairs in this matter is not having the sort of effect that Starr's report is, but you have to give him credit for trying. He isn't a lawyer like Starr, after all, and is not well-versed in those tactics of persuasion.

It may look as though I am trying to support Clinton. On the contrary, I am not going to attempt to try to tell anyone what their opinions should and shouldn't be on this matter. It's up to you to decide that. I'm just trying to remind you all to be aware that both of these political adversaries are not above manipulating the public to sway our support.

In the midst of this battle, we must also weed out the trash given by the media in their hopes of better ratings. Only then can we be certain that our opinions are truly our own opinions.

Justin Smith is a UMass student.

A fine day out

What do you mean, sold out?"

Dad and I gaped at each other in disbelief. The last place, not even close to 500, Bambino–cursed Boston Red Sox were playing before a sold-out crowd? It seemed impossible, but as the stone-faced ticket seller stared at us unfazed, we could see our day unraveling before our eyes. Feeling defeated, Dad and I considered the endless gap of time that stretched before us.

As we trudged outside, our path was blocked by a tall, shifty–eyed man. He discreetly pulled two tickets out of his jacket pocket. Ah–ha, a scalper. "I can get you two tickets, grandstand: $175." I smothered a giggle at the ludicrous price.

Dad politely refused and the scalper stealthily approached his next victim. I glanced up at Dad and we burst into uncontrollable laughter as our eyes met. Suddenly, the gap of time didn't seem quite so ominous anymore. It was time to put this ridiculous situation behind us and make the most of our day in Boston.

Our first stop? Faneuil Hall and Quincy Market. We wandered through the colorful maze of vendors, shops, street shows and cafes. The aromas of Italian, Chinese, Mexican and American cuisines melded to form a mouth–watering scent. Dad stopped to purchase a couple of hot dogs from a street vendor for $7 (which seemed like a relatively good deal after our tickets fiasco).

"Only in Boston can one sip a Coffee Coolatta while gazing at posters for Cats and The King and I that were plastered on the walls."

Jennifer Courmier

As we ate our gourmet–priced, but definitely not gourmet tasting, meals, Dad and I observed the bustling whirlwind of activities — jugglers, magic shows, excited children, frazzled parents. I realized that while it was quite often that I dashed through Quincy Market in search of the ideal gift, it had been years since I had actually taken time to view the scene around me.

After leaving Quincy Market, Dad and I sought shelter from the blistering heat, going into Borders Books. We felt completely underdressed among the business suit clad groups huddled over their cafe lattes and mingling by the classical music. We blissfully strolled through the air–conditioned haven exploring the rows of books, newspapers and CDs.

Minutes later, down the street, we felt completely overdressed in Newbury Comics, where the dusty Shirt/Shoes Required sign was repeatedly and flagrantly ignored. Unlike in Borders, the air–conditioning was broken and a rattly old fan in the corner sort of pushed the oppressive air around the room. Dad stared incredulously around the cramped store, and I knew his thoughts mirrored mine — only in Boston could such a culture clash occur on the same street.

How strange that I had never noticed the irony of the stores' location before.

* * *

"I need a Coffee Coolatta!"

Okay, maybe I was whining, but it was two hours later, and my throat was screaming with thirst. We set off on our quest for the cool frosty drink, but the Coffee Coolatta machines at the first two Dunkin' Donuts we went to were broken. Luckily, there seems to be a multitude of Dunkin' Donuts scattered throughout Boston (about one every two blocks) and I was finally able to quench my thirst at one situated in the Theater District.

Only in Boston can one sip a Coffee Coolatta while gazing at posters for Cats and The King and I that were plastered on the walls. Wondering why I had never noticed this, I realized that I had never sat in a Dunkin' Donuts before — I always drank my Coffee Coolattas on the go, hurrying to my next destination.

Our next stop was the State House. When we arrived, we were greeted by the familiar faces of local TV reporters covering Governor Weld's resignation (by the way, the camera really does add 10 pounds). I vaguely remembered wandering through the building in awe on a second–grade field trip, but I hadn't been there since. In recent years, I considered the State House a mere image on the evening news. On this day, however, as reporters scrambled anxiously about, the State House and the inner workings of our government became a reality to me.

Next, Dad suggested a walk through the Public Gardens and a ride on the Swan Boats. As we stood in line, I surveyed the tacky hunk of floating plastic and the snake–like line of anxious kids awaiting the ride.

"I don't know about this..." I trailed off hesitantly.

"Come on," Dad urged, "I haven't been on these in years."

As we stepped into the shaky swan and glided along, I realized something. Over the years, I'd been to Boston countless times: to tour colleges with my friends, to see The Nutcracker at the Wang, to trudge through museums on various field trips. But I hadn't actually seen Boston since I was a little girl accompanying my grandparents, wandering through the city and gawking at the sights. I remembered when a ride on the Swan Boats was the highlight of my day. To think that a few hours earlier, I had looked upon our day in Boston with dread.

Suddenly, I glanced at Dad and he smiled back at me, I was no longer sitting on a "tacky hunk of floating plastic." I was a five–year–old again, wide–eyed and innocent, mystified by the magic and enchantment of Boston.

Jennifer Courmier is a UMass student.

The TAU of UMass

In case you were not walking by Grayson last Thursday, the following is a representative sample of what could have been easily heard (there has been slight censorship due to the queasiness of some of the potential Collegian audience): "What the fudge is up with this thing?" "I'm going to break this piece of sugar." "What the hell did this fudging thing do to my fudging computer?" and my favorite as yelled by one of my hall–mates from our balcony: "Fudge TAU."

If you were wondering, one of the major problems on my floor in Grayson — and I assume on a great many other floors with freshmen — was attempting to connect to the UMass network using the TAU. For those of you who don't know, TAU stands for terminal adapter unit, which is simply techno talk that translates to "digital modem that will cause freshmen a ridiculous amount of stress." The basic theory behind the TAU is that the phone lines on campus are digital lines which will not allow a regular garden variety modem to work.

"Two weeks later I found myself hating camp. Worst of all, I did not even know why."

Mark Griffin

Since I accept this fact, I'm not actually complaining about my TAU. Anyone want to guess what I might be complaining about? If you guessed the huge pink elephant that stole your pants, I would suggest that you go back to sleep and quit drinking, but if you guessed receiving, hooking up and connecting it, then please feel free to sign up for TAU–kvetching 101.

Anyway, I might as well start with the acquisition of the TAU. Now, I don't really mind waiting in lines, and the line for actually receiving the TAU was relatively short when I went to pick up the innocent little black box. The only problem that I found was the fact that I needed to sign my life away for this small plastic toy. I signed a small piece of paper that assured OIT that I was, in fact, willing to pay $400 when, er... in a fit of rage, I accidently smashed the rather breakable device. Now, at first I was willing to concede that this was a fair, but then I considered one of my friends who had spent $800 on his entire computer. Is this TAU worth half a computer? I think anyone would agree that this is a laughable question.

Well, let's forget about my idiocy in signing my life away. Instead let's consider my idiocy in trying to hook the thing up. Physically connecting the TAU was easy, because I had the proper type of port. Now, in all the mail that I received from the University, I have to say that I never saw anything from OIT which warned that TAUs would occupy an extra serial port. Lucky for me, my computer had a free port, but for a couple of people on my floor, their computers (brought up to school with the purpose of connecting to the network) lack any workable port, making their $400 TAU more or less useless.

Not that it was all that useful to those of us who were able to connect our computers to the TAU. Why were they useless? Well, in order to actually use the device, one needs to have an OIT account. This meant waiting in line, for another hour or so, which wouldn't have been tragic, if the OIT people running the line had actually given out the materials necessary to work the TAU.

Chris Collins

You see, they had copies of a CD that would allow one to set up the TAU correctly. Unfortunately, of the 30 people in my hall that needed the CD, only one had actually been given one by OIT.

This led to problems, as everyone on the floor used this one CD to set up his/her computer, making the process even more painful for those of us who just wanted to check our e–mail. One must wonder if two CDs per floor is too much to ask from OIT who charged everyone $20 for these accounts?

Okay, I must admit that a great deal of this is useless kvetching mostly because, with the exception of those people with absolutely no possible way to connect, everyone on my floor has been connected. But, the point is, OIT (not unlike a great deal of technologically–based companies) needs to work ever so slightly on its ability to deal with the general public, most of whom are not capable of sitting down at a computer and hacking into the Pentagon computer system.

This article was meant as a little constructive criticism to OIT, which I respect completely and who I hope receive this article with a slight smile and a loud geeky laugh, rather than something along the lines of sending death threats to the President using my e–mail address (which has finally started working, at least for now.)

Chris Collins is a UMass student.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor. Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words long, and include name, address, and phone number for confirmation purposes. They can be submitted by mail to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst MA 01003; by e–mail to letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu; or by fax to (413) 545–1592. The Collegian reserves the right to edit letters for length, clarity and style.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor–in–Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Konky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylarski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

The right direction

This semester the University has instituted a new alcohol policy for students living in the residence halls. It calls for stricter sanctions for students caught violating the rules on the possession and the consumption of alcohol. The measures may seem harsh, but they represent an effort on the administration's part to take the alcohol problem at this school seriously.

There is a problem here at UMass. Thousands of underage students are drinking and getting drunk on campus every weekend. The administration has a responsibility to do something about that. These are young people who need to be protected. By assembling all of these students into the dorms, the University has created an environment where people can get hurt if left unregulated. The new policy is a step in the right direction.

The complaints about the new alcohol policy are that the sanctions are far too strict. Under the new rules an underage student found illegally possessing and consuming alcohol can be placed on housing probation for one year and sent to alcohol education. If they are caught a second time they may be removed form their current housing and referred to the Residential Educational Alcohol Program. The first sanction sends a clear message that their behavior will not be tolerated. And if the offender continues to drink after that, the school takes the person out of an environment which may not be good for him or her and gives the offender help in REAP.

The best provision in the new policy is the one that calls for a harsher penalty for distributing alcohol to minors. This applies to the 21–year old on the floor who goes on packie runs every week. If you're caught buying for minors then you can be removed from your residence hall. That's tough, but it's a great way to deal with the main facilitators of underage drinking on campus. And the aim of the policy is to eliminate underage drinking. If you're old enough to buy alcohol, then you should be old enough to know better than to buy it for kids.

The policy is harsh. It is supposed to be. The school should not be tiptoeing around the issue any longer. In the past the problem has been treated with a wink and a nod. The assumption was that kids would go to college and kids would drink. That is an assumption that is finally being challenged. The new alcohol policy gives residence staffs the teeth to attack the problem.

The impetus for the rule change is ridiculous. Over the past year there have been several well–publicized alcohol– related deaths at colleges across the country, including UMass. These people shouldn't have had to die for the schools to wake up to the problem of drinking on campus. Would stricter policies have saved these people? We'll never know. Will they stop some people from drinking and developing a serious alcohol problems that will last the rest of their lives? I think they will.

The new policy is not the affront to personal freedom its opponents would say it is. I've heard it called unfair, unreasonable and even "fascist." What these people are forgetting is that it is illegal for people under the age of 21 to drink. It is not in the Constitution that every freshman is guaranteed a slap on the wrist after being caught with an open container. To avoid the strict sanction in the new alcohol policy, simply refrain from drinking when you're not supposed to.

To any minors out there who are upset by the new policy, it's not the end of the world. Go out and see a movie or something else. And if you can't deal without drinking, do it responsibly. If you're careful and moderate you won't get caught. I don't think anyone believes the new alcohol policy will end drinking on campus, but if it can curtail some of the binge drinking that goes on every weekend it will have done its job.

The drinking on campus has been ridiculous for as long as I've been here. I'm glad to see that the University is finally taking positive steps to alleviate it. In your time here you'll learn as much outside of your classes as you will inside of them, and I hope one of the lessons can be that you should use alcohol responsibly.

Rob Sullivan is a UMass student.

To drink or not to drink

Are you one of the dozens of students living in a lounge or the Campus Center Hotel? Do you wonder why Housing Services, which is open all summer, can't seem to rectify the problem of inadequate space on campus? Well, I think I have the answer.

It's called the new alcohol policy. Yes, it appears that our lovely administration has spent less time on accommodating new students and more time on tightening the noose around the student body.

The preposterous new alcohol policy is not only unnecessary but in time will prove to be ineffective. Thousands of students each year enter college life for the first time, and there are things that are going to be tried, despite any rules and regulations prohibiting such behaviors. Though I'm not condoning the use of illegal drugs or underage drinking, I'm not blind the fact that these things are going to happen and neither is the administration. This new alcohol policy is an attempt to show the country that this university is sorry for the alcohol–related deaths of students on college campuses last year, and it's not going to happen here.

"Changing the alcohol policy isn't going to fix a thing. Education will. Isn't that what we are here for anyway?"

I'm sorry, folks, but that is the biggest crock of B.S. I've ever heard. Threatening students with housing probation for their first offense and suspension from the University for their third won't change a darn thing. All they care about are statistics. They know that students will just be more cautious of the rules, and they will better conceal their alcohol. As long as students are getting written up more, the administration will be high as a kite. But is that accomplishing anything? Of course not.

Students are going to continue to drink on and off campus, and as morbid as it may sound, some are going to get hurt or even killed. Changing the alcohol policy isn't going to fix a thing. Education will. Isn't that what we are here for anyway? College is supposed to prepare us for the future, not spank us when we're bad.

Point Counterpoint

Rob Sullivan

Instead of posters about the consequences of alcohol blanketing every wall in the dorms, how about fliers in mailboxes, mandatory floor meetings or information mailed to students prior to move–in day? Or does that cost too much? Give me a break. Instead of pacifying the infantile cries of the GEO union with increased wages and other wastes of money, more attention should be spent on the education of alcohol. The new alcohol sanctions are just a way of avoiding that.

Here's a quick glance at the asinine new policy: AFTER you get caught with alcohol, you receive education, and if you get caught again, you're referred to REAP, the Residential Education Alcohol Program.

So let me get this straight. You don't learn about it until you've abused it, and if you abuse it twice, you're a potential alcoholic? Look, just because you've had a couple of beers doesn't mean you're a potential AA candidate, okay?

But wait, this new policy doesn't pertain just to those under 21. If you're legal, and you have an open container in the hallway, you suffer the same fate. This further shows the new policy's "see no evil, hear no evil" criteria. As long as they don't see it, it's okay. But couldn't this just be counterproductive?

I mean, if students know that they can get away with it as long as no one sees it, you're not going to have a drier campus, but one with lots of closed doors. The rules are tough, but you'd have to be careless to get caught once and an idiot to get caught two or three times.

Again, I'm not condoning underage drinking, but these rules are not going to bring back any students who unfortunately lost their lives to the misuse of alcohol. It's going to give the administration a clear conscience and a good night's sleep, but I'd be willing to bet that Liquors 44 and other nearby liquor stores' sales will not decrease a bit.

Gary Mendese is a UMass student.

This is growing up

Have you ever heard someone say, "You have got your whole life ahead of you," or "You are at the beginning of a new life," or "Your life will be different now?" It seems like we spend our lives forever suspended between what we were and what we are going to be.

Some people worry about how things have changed, or how things will turn out. Others are always waiting for some sort of break from the norm like the return to school at the end of the summer or the beginning of vacation at the end of the school year. I'm sure you've already heard someone say, "I cannot wait until Christmas break."

"Two weeks later I found myself hating camp. Worst of all, I did not even know why."

Mark Griffin

As human beings, we either look forward to these changes of scenery with ecstatic anticipation, or we dread them and shrink away with fear. The attitudes with which we approach these situations usually result in a fulfillment of our expectations. In other words, if you think something is going to suck, it probably will.

I will always remember what my counselor at camp told me on the first night at camp 11 years ago. You get out of something exactly how much you put into it. In other words, you get what you pay for. I was assured that if I tried my hardest at everything whole life ahead of you," or "Your life will be different now?" It seems like we spend our lives forever suspended between what we were and what we are going to be.

Some people worry about how things have changed, or how things will turn out. Others are always waiting for some sort of break from the norm like the return to school at the end of the summer or the beginning of vacation at the end of the school year. I'm sure you've already heard someone say, "I cannot wait until Christmas break."

As human beings, we either look forward to these changes of scenery with ecstatic anticipation, or we dread them and shrink away with fear. The attitudes with which we approach these situations usually result in a fulfillment of our expectations. In other words, if you think something is going to suck, it probably will.

I will always remember what my counselor at camp told me on the first night at camp 11 years ago. You get out of something exactly how much you put into it. In other words, you get what you pay for. I was assured that if I tried my hardest at everything I would have fun. Sounds like an easy formula, right? But I was scared to be in a new atmosphere with new people and away from all of my friends and, being a spoiled little nine–year–old, I paid no heed to my wise counselor's advice.

Two weeks later I found myself hating camp. Worst of all, I did not even know why. Being the intelligent little boy that I was, I assumed that everyone there had it in for me and that they wanted me to have a bad time.

Ten years later, I found myself in a similar situation. Leaving for UMass, I did not want to leave all of my high school friends behind. I was worried that I would be the only one that I listened, and I know that many of them did not. But I have faith that those who were too proud, or too spoiled to understand my message will learn their lesson. Maybe they did not take it to heart this summer, and maybe they will not even take it to heart eleven summers from now. But growing up is a process and so is moving on.

Mark Griffin is a UMass student.

Point/Counterpoint writers needed.

Our next Point/Counterpoint concerns teenagers on death row. Some states have sentenced young people, convicted of vicious crimes, to death. Should age be taken into consideration when sentences are passed down in these trials? Does it go against our system of rehabilitation?

We challenge you to write provocative, informed pieces on this subject and submit them in person to the Ed/Op desk in the Campus Center basement. If you can't make it down here, send them to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass Amherst MA 01003. Columns must be typed, and between 800 and 1000 words. If you have any story suggestions, feel free to let us know. Any questions call Mike Messaros at 545–1491.

Internship blue

It's nine on a Saturday morning. I am deep in the middle of a dream. Matt Damon and Ben Affleck are furiously feuding over who will marry me and make me the heiress to the "Good Will Hunting" fortune. It was a happy dream. Then, just as the choice was about to be determined, and the solution to the dilemma about my future was to be announced... the Beastie Boys come in?

I am jolted from my future as a Hollywood wife, and as I thrash blindly in my bed, making a futile attempt to find the snooze button on my alarm clock and put an end to the noise, I realize that the Beastie Boys are not coming from any alarm clock, but rather they are, in cruel reality, coming at intense decibels from the all too immense speakers belonging to my 18–year–old brother. I am brutally reminded of where I actually am... my parent's house.

"It's great if you live in an area where you can stay at home and have an internship nearby. In my case, this was impossible."

Elsa Allen

Yes, like many of you out there on campus who had the urge to kiss the ground when you could finally come back to Amherst and leave home at the end of the summer, I was forced to tuck my tail between my legs and accept the idea that free rent and food was worth certain sacrifices. I was forced to return home for the summer.

I had been given the opportunity to take an internship that would have propelled my career into the vast reaches of journalistic stardom and secure a nice cushy future for me and Matt (or Ben). But, rather than struggle through the summer eating Ramen noodles and drinking Kool–Aid as my bank account dropped well into the red, I chose to take a job that actually paid me. What an unfortunate mistake, I now realize.

As my peers in the journalism department spent their summers gaining crucial hands–on experience covering news, meeting famous people, making connections and the like, I was serving greasy fish and chips to people who feel that 7 1/2 percent is an adequate tip to leave for a struggling student/waitress (it's 15 percent, minimum guys!). Glorious.

Not that I don't believe that I have gained important career experience while waitressing. I learned many things, I'm sure. You know, things like, how to delicately inform a customer that he can't order a seventh Long Island Ice Tea, or to tell someone that although the restaurant is on the beach, the waitstaff did not actually catch the fish themselves. However, I seriously doubt that these issues will come up in any of my classes, and if they did, I would be rather scared.

So, there I was, trapped at home, debating the fairness of the whole internship issue. It's great if you live in an area where you can stay at home and have an internship nearby. In my case, this was impossible. To accept an internship would mean that I would have had to find a place to live, rent, buy food, and work... for free. The numbers just didn't add up.

But now, I am stuck in a rut, far behind many students who will be entering my field upon graduation. I have very little to show for my summer besides some improved Tetris skills (courtesy of my younger brother), and some bruises from a drunken bike accident (courtesy of my older brother.)

I have no newspaper clips with my byline on them. I have no recommendations from editors. I have no resume building material, whatsoever. Does this mean that I am less qualified than other members of my class, simply because I was unable to take advantage of the opportunities that some were able to snatch up? Do those who offer these internships realize that the meager to nothing wages that they offer cannot support a person?

I realize that there are internships out there that pay grandiose salaries, but I haven't been able to locate any of these, I simply hear the stories.

Perhaps future employers will be astounded by my dedication and work ethic when they learn that I chose to join the workforce and gain priceless life lessons rather than accept an internship and gain experience that would simply be practical within the limited confines of my career.

Oh, well. As a result of this summer, I know all of the lyrics to "Intergalactic," I know the latest trends in high school boy fashion and I can beat anyone at Tetris. If that isn't valuable experience, I don't know what is.

Elsa Allen is a Collegian columnist.

Apocalypse now

As the lights in Hasbrouck 20 shut down abruptly in the middle of a fairly interesting astronomy class yesterday, I wondered. When I stepped outside and realized that it was a campus–wide thing, I was almost sure. Then later, as I left my second straight abbreviated class due to the power outage and found that the sky had darkened and the heavy air was leading to rain, I was absolutely positive.

The Apocalypse had come to the University of Massachusetts before it reached the rest of the world.

I figured that this was pretty cool, considering that the last time UMass was first in the nation in something was when the women's lacrosse team captured the NCAA title back in 1982. "Decent," I said to myself.

Then I saw the all the bees. I know you've seen them; they've been all over the place. Bees. Even when ending the world, this school can't get things straight — they're supposed to be locusts!

"Bees. Even when ending the world, this school can't get things straight – they're supposed to be locusts!"

Seth Koenig

This did not surprise me, and I started to think of what goals I could accomplish before being carried away by the bees to be judged.

Everything was chaotic at this point, and as I dragged my soaked body out of the campus pond and put my underwear back on, I realized that some of the people I knew and loved would never see me again.

With tear–glazed eyes (not to be confused with the glazed eyes I usually have) I remembered all the times I visited my friends in Whitmore to get my phone jack fixed, and to get my TAU replaced, and to get my room arrangements ironed out, and to make sure that the $2,000 that reappeared on my friend's bill were just some bureaucratic joke, and to see why my class arrangements still hadn't changed.

I thought of all the time I spent on the "University runaround," a wonderful dance developed by the school hierarchy to make sure that you get your exercise when trying to accomplish something relatively simple.

And then I recalled the long, six–hour rides to UMass from my humble home in Durham, Maine, which should have been three and a half hours, but were longer because of the one Massachusetts resident that would drive under the speed limit would manage to stay in front of me the whole time.

I dreamily looked back on the number of occasions I was kicked out of the Campus Center because 1:30 a.m. rolled around, and the super–grande espresso I decided to get about an hour earlier hadn't worn off yet, and I was still mad because the Patriots lost on Monday Night Football for the bagillionth time in a row (That's right, "bagillionth". Look it up.).

I remembered the key lines that seemed to disappear from my articles somewhere in the process of going from the computer to the printing press and saying to myself: "Wow. I sound like an idiot in this."

I also remember the articles that were left completely intact and hearing from others, "Wow. You sound like an idiot in this."

I thought of all the times I ate the food from the dining commons, and of the significantly fewer times I digested it.

I felt the disappointment in the fact that I never found out whether there was one really big store that just sold tight black pants to the girls on campus and baggy jeans to the guys, or if the University issued them out on the first day and I just missed that desk in the dorm lobby.

I felt anger because I still owed money and the bees would probably not stop at the mall on the way to judgement. I remembered that there was a J. Crew sale at the Mullins Center, and became even more enraged.

I recollected the occasions during which I had been hit in the groin, like during preseason football my junior year in high school and that time I spoke out of line to that lady when I was still in the seventh grade. Ah, yes... groin memories.

Then there were the nights I spent working with dorm security and being bored out of my skull for the five hours before the drunks barged in and harassed me because they were too stupid to bring their I.D. with them, and somehow that was my fault.

I recalled all my shifts working in Freeport, Maine, dealing with tourists, who, upon touring, lose any sort of mental capacity they once had (Another column all together. Expect it soon.).

Then the lights came on around campus and the bees flew away. I was a little irritated that the Apocalypse was over already. Life after death was a lot like life before the power went out. I said good bye to the bees, who were undoubtedly on their way to Washington D.C., where their work was cut out for them and enjoyed the grand afterlife.

(Cute story, huh? By the way, if you actually looked up "bagillion" in the dictionary, I will see the word "MORON" stamped on your head and will laugh at you when we pass on campus.)

Seth Koenig is a Collegian columnist.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Jewish Affairs

Wednesday, September 16, 1998

Welcome to Jewish Affairs

Hi everyone!

Welcome back to UMass. We hope your classes are all going well and you're off to a great start.

I'm Morgan Tobor, co-editor of Jewish Affairs. I'm a sophomore pre-journalism major. I'm from Chicago, Ill., and the beauty of New England and the East Coast brought me here to Massachusetts.

I began my journalism career here at UMass. I wrote all last year under Bryan Schwartzman, then editor of Jewish Affairs. When he graduated, Elana and I took over his position and here we are, spreading the word on Jewish Affairs.

And I'm Elana Premack, also co-editor of Jewish Affairs. I'm a sophomore with a double major in journalism and women's studies. This is my third semester at the Collegian, although not my first experience with journalism. I was heavily involved in my high school newspaper, and just can't seem to let journalism go.

I'm originally from Springfield, Va., right outside of Washington, D.C., but I needed to get away from the bustle-and-bustle of the city to a more comfortable, laid-back environment.

Our plans for the page this year include keeping students informed about the Jewish communities here at UMass and within the Five College area. As this year marks the 50th anniversary of the birth of Israel, we will be featuring articles about this celebration and keeping everyone tuned in to developments and news involving Israel.

We're also looking to expand our page, keeping up with the Hillel calendar, but broadening the articles to features about High Holidays and even explanations of everyday symbols that have significance within the Jewish tradition, such as the Star of David. What does it mean and from where is it derived?

We hope you enjoy our first page. We're really looking forward to meeting new people and having new writers, experienced and non-experienced, Jewish and non-Jewish, work with us.

We know how intimidating a staff of driven newspaper reporters and editors can be, and how mind-boggling a newsroom can be — we're relatively new to the Collegian staff — but if you ever wanted to write for a collegiate newspaper, please come and see us.

We are holding a meeting for new Jewish Affairs writers next Wednesday, Sept. 23 at 6 p.m. in the Collegian newsroom. We're located in the basement of the Campus Center.

Drop by, come say hi, leave us a note if you're shy. Come with inquiries and new ideas. We promise we won't bite.

Sincerely,
Elana Premack and Morgan Tobor
Co-Jewish Affairs Editors

"Israel at 50" lecture series begins

Israeli intimates to speak on the nation's development

By Elana Premack
Collegian Staff

In Israel's jubilee year, the University of Massachusetts Hillel has begun a lecture series on the history of Israel's development.

The "Israel at 50" series began last Wednesday and will be continuing throughout the semester. Hillel regularly presents several lecture series every year, but this particular set has a twist: —interested students can attend the lectures for class credit at IS 192X, "Israel at 50: Implementing the Vision."

"Some people are interested in one topic only, and go just once," Hillel Rabbi Saul Perlmutter said. "Others are interested in taking a class. Both opportunities are available."

"The Making of the Vision: From the Rise of the Zionist Movement through the Establishment of the State," the first lecture, was given by Eynat Shlein–Michael, Consul of Israel to New England.

Shlein–Michael discussed the motivations behind the establishment of the State of Israel and highlighted watersheds and influences, including the first Zionist Congress in 1897 and the founder of the Zionist movement Theodor Herzl, in Zionist history.

"The establishment of the State of Israel was looked upon as a miracle," Shlein–Michael said.

She stressed that the goal of those initially supporting the development of Israel was to create a state where Jewish people could "develop normally into normal people living normal lives" with security, confidence and stability, and without persecution.

The mood sparked by Shlein–Michael will continue this afternoon at the second lecture, "The Ingathering of Exiles: The Untold Drama of Immigration to Israel."

Jay Shofet, regional director for the Israel Aliyah Center of New England and emissary of the Young Judea Zionist Youth Movement, will lead the discussion.

A third meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 7. The Israeli economy will be the topic, and Michael Habib, Israeli Counsel for Economic Affairs to New England will lead the lecture. All lectures are funded in part by the Harold Grinspoon Foundation, which supports educational programs. Lectures meet in the Hillel House Conference Room from 3:30–5:30 p.m. Future lectures will commemorate Yitzhak Rabin's death as well as deal with the future of Israel.

The opportunity to attend the lectures as part of a class is unique.

"It's not a textbook history, but is with people who are intimately involved with Israel," said David Arfa, Hillel program director.

COURTESY HILLEL HOUSE

Eynat Shlein–Michael, Consul of Israel to New England, sits in her Boston office. Shlein–Michael led the first lecture in the series "Israel at 50: The Making of the Vision, From the Rise of the Zionist Movement through the Establishment of the State."

UMass offers holiday options

Hillel House will sponsor Rosh Hashanah services

By Morgan Tobor and Elana Premack
Collegian Staff

The Jewish holiday of Rosh Hashanah is known best as the beginning of the Jewish new year. Literally, "Rosh Hashanah" means "head of the year" in Hebrew.

For Jews, the holiday marks the anniversary of the creation of the world. During Rosh Hashanah, Jews look back over the past year and consider what their lives will be like in the future. The time of self-reflection is complemented by Jewish traditions including eating apples and honey (to symbolize the sweetness of the new year) and blowing the Shofar, a ram's horn.

The holiday begins this year at sundown on the night of Sept. 20. Rosh Hashanah continues until sundown on Sept. 22, although some Reform Jews observe only the first day.

The Jewish community at the University of Massachusetts is offering varied options for discovering and celebrating Rosh Hashanah.

Chabad House, located at 30 North Hadley Rd., welcomes Jews of all backgrounds to attend holiday meals and services. A $5 contribution per meal is suggested, but there is no charge to attend services.

The Hillel House will be sponsoring Rosh Hashanah services in the Student Union Ballroom throughout the holiday. Services are free and open to the public.

Holiday meals are also available at the Kosher Dining Commons, located in the Hillel House basement. The deadline for meal sign–up is today; contact Margie at 549–1710 if interested.

"Rosh Hashanah: Unplugged and Outdoors" is a new high holiday offering at UMass. On Sept. 21, students will go into the forests of Amherst to explore the meaning of Rosh Hashanah through conversation and ritual. Today is also the deadline to register for "Rosh Hashanah: Unplugged and Outdoors;" call 549–1710 to register.

A helpful guide to the New Year

Although Rosh Hashanah is a major holiday in the Jewish tradition, many people, Jews and non–Jews alike, do not know the meanings behind some of the customs practiced during the holiday.

The following is a glossary of terms and ideas associated with the celebration of Rosh Hashanah.

Rosh Hashanah: Literally, "head of the year."

L'Shana Tova: Literally, "for a good year." Often the phrase on New Year's cards sent for Rosh Hashanah.

The eating of apples dipped in honey: The practice symbolizes the sweetness of the new year.

Shofar: A ram's horn blown on Rosh Hashanah. Hillel Rabbi Saul Perlmutter views the shofar as "a spiritual and moral alarm clock that wakes us up to new ways of living."

T'Shuvah: Literally, "to return." Rosh Hashanah begins with the 10–day period known as T'Shuvah, a time to reflect and ask for forgiveness.

Tashlich: The practice on the first day of Rosh Hashanah of going to a body of water and symbolically casting off one's sins, often by throwing pieces of bread into the water. Perlmutter sees Tashlich as complimentary to the sedentary prayer of the rest of the holiday.

Round challah: Serving a round challah at Rosh Hashanah meals to represent the continuation of the years is also part of the holiday tradition. The round challah can also be viewed as being representative of a crown, a connection to the "God as a ruler" theme of Rosh Hashanah.

Giving of tzedakah (charity): The tradition of giving tzedakah during Rosh Hashanah fits with the theme of affecting the kind of life each person lives.

Book of life: The idea that each person is given the opportunity at Rosh Hashanah to be inscribed in the book of life for another year is figurative to some and literal to others.

COURTESY MORGAN TOBOR

Symbolizing the sweetness of the New Year, apples and honey are a traditional Rosh Hashanah food.

Hillel House, Chabad House Holiday Event Calendar

Sunday, Sept. 20

5:45 p.m. — Doors open for Hillel Hour

6 p.m. — Service and the Start of Union Ballroom meal at Chabad House; candle lighting at Chabad House

Monday, Sept. 21

10 a.m. — Morning service in the Student Union Ballroom, followed by Unplugged and Outdoors Pond; services at Chabad House; Shofar blowing at approximately 12:15 p.m.

Meals to follow both services

Tuesday, Sept. 22

10 a.m. — Service in the Student Union Ballroom and at Chabad House; Shofar blowing at Chabad House at approximately 12:15 p.m.; Meal following services at Chabad House

UM Jewish Student Union discusses upcoming events, seeks members and ideas

By Morgan Tobor
Collegian Staff

Allowing Jewish students to be involved in Jewish life at the University of Massachusetts via different paths is perhaps one of the Jewish Student Union's (JSU) greatest strengths.

"The JSU is a social organization with a religious feeling," said Rachel Kristol, president of the JSU and a senior political science major.

The JSU is a Registered Student Organization made up of an executive board, chairs and committee members — a total around 35 people.

The executive positions are decided by an election process, while the chair positions are obtained from discussions with the executive board.

At a kickoff meeting on Sept. 9, ideas for upcoming fund raisers and social events were discussed.

Upcoming events discussed included ice cream socials and the planning of a trip to New York City in correlation with the Interfaith Journey, sponsored by Hillel.

The JSU is separate from Hillel, because the organization is responsible for bringing in its own revenue to support its programming. Hillel's first fundraiser of the year is the selling of a stress pig with the saying "We're not Kosher, JSU is" imprinted on the side.

For information on purchasing stress pigs, contact Hillel at 388 N. Pleasant St. or by phone at 549–1710.

The next meeting is tonight at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center Basement. Check at the information desk located on the Campus Center Concourse for room information.

Come with new ideas and find out about the New Jewish Caucus (Hillel doesn't endorse political candidates).

Please contact the Jewish Student Union with any questions or concerns at 423A Student Union, or by phone at 545–4827.

Interested in writing for Jewish Affairs?

The Jewish Affairs desk is looking for new writers. You do not have to have any experience writing, or any experience being Jewish. An interest in learning about Judaism, Israel and the Jewish community at and around UMass are all that is required.

You do not need to be a journalism major, either. Everything is more interesting when a variety of people are involved!

There will be a meeting for new writers next Wednesday, Sept. 23, at 6 p.m. in the Collegian newsroom in the Campus Center basement.

If you cannot make the meeting but are interested in writing, or if you have any questions about the Jewish Affairs desk in general, please call Elana or Morgan at 545– 1851.

Parker lights up a packed Pearl Street

COURTESY WAR RECORDS

Funk–master Maceo Parker ignited the crowd at Pearl Street Monday night.

By Elsa Allen
Collegian Staff

When Maceo Parker's name is mentioned, one word usually comes to mind: groove. Groove is what he did as he heated up the Pearl Street ballroom Monday night, playing to a packed house of all ages.

The crowd, ranging from hippie to hip–hop, erupted as Parker and his band let loose their own brand of music, a unique blend of soul, funk, hip–hop and jazz.

Coming off the success of his latest release "Funk Overload," Parker and crew have been tirelessly touring throughout the summer, bringing their seemingly endless energy to the Valley for the second time in less than a year.

Seeing Parker perform, however, will ease anyone's doubts over how this funk legend could keep up such an excruciating schedule, he obviously loves doing it. A captivating performer, the smile never left his face as Parker laid down the beats to such favorite songs as "Pass the Peas," "Shake Everything You Got," and "I Got to Get You."

The evening had several highlights other than simply watching Parker groove. A special appearance by a younger member of the Parker family, Maceo's son Corey, proved that the musical apple didn't fall far from the tree in this family. The younger Parker served as a back–up singer for his father, and took center stage to lay down his own grooves in the way of a more R&B and rap–oriented performance.

Having his very animated son on–stage with him seemed to infuse Parker with an energy that he has apparently held back during past performances. The fatherly pride was evident in the beaming grin that he flashed as he criss– crossed the stage with his son, bringing the crowd to a frenzy with their excited dancing.

Band member "Sweet Charles" also delighted the audience with an excited rendition of the song "Mustang Sally." Charles performed along with Maceo as part of James Brown's onetime backup band.

Maceo Parker has been noted for the length of his shows, and this trip to Pearl Street was no exception. Early on in the show he declared that "everything from now on shall be funky," and he kept the funk going until midnight, playing for two and a half hours straight.

The surprise hit of the night was the opening band, Stash, who got the crowd moving with their own blend of rap, hip– hop and funk. Stash showed impressive vocals and musical stylings from all members of the group.

Slums looks at reality of family

By Rob Roensch
Collegian Staff

THE SLUMS OF BEVERLY HILLS
Directed by Tamara Jenkins with Natasha Lyonne, Alan Arkin, Marisa Tomei
Playing at Hampshire Six Theaters

If writer/director Tamara Jenkins' semi–autobiographical The Slums of Beverly Hills was a family photo album, it would contain more than smiling parents and children at weddings and birthday parties — it would also have pictures of little brother's bloody nose and that time dad drank too many wine coolers and vomited in the houseplant. It could be called a black comedy about family life, but it is not really dark, just balanced. At times it sears, but more often, it is a fiercely loving tribute to a deeply imperfect family, moving and human precisely because of those imperfections.

The movie tells the story of a white, lower–middle class, single parent family bouncing between apartments near Beverly Hills in 1976. Tellingly, the movie opens with the father (Alan Arkin) buying a bra for his suddenly well–endowed teenage daughter, Vivian (Natasha Lyonne), at once announcing the unusual family dynamic and also introducing one of the movies' most important details: breasts. The movie's use of breasts exists in direct contrast to Hollywood's frequent tantilization of 13–year–old boys. Breasts play a key part in the movie, not just as organs of sex, but also as a metaphor for growth and personality and even as a carrier of memory and family identity. It is a dramatic reversing of common Hollywood imagery.

Despite sensitive subject matter, the acting is loose and sympathetic. While Arkin is distant and Marisa Tomei is slightly grating as the live–in cousin, Lyonne carries the weight with a quiet, distinctive physically comic performance as the teenage daughter Vivian. She uses Vivian's awkwardly blooming body like a tool, her quirks and pratfalls coming from the character instead of exaggerated mannerisms. Steve Martin and Charlie Chaplin would

Turn to SLUMS, page 9

UMass FOOTBALL JOBS!

GAME STAFF POSITIONS AVAILABLE TO WORK ALL HOME FOOTBALL GAMES THIS SEASON. THESE INCLUDE:

USHERS
TICKET TAKERS
PARKING ATTENDANTS
TICKET SELLERS

WE NEED 50 TO 60 PEOPLE.
STOP BY THE CURRY HICKS CAGE
BEFORE SEPT. 18. SEE YOU THEN!

FOR THE EDUCATION AND RESEARCH COMMUNITY

★★★★★ —Morningstar ratings for the CREF Global Equities Account, CREF Equity Index Account, and CREF Growth Account*

"...America's Top Pension Fund." —Money Magazine, January 1998

AAA —S&P and Moody's rating for TIAA

Your service bowled me over! —William Ravdin, TIAA-CREF Participant

HIGH MARKS FROM MORNINGSTAR, S&P, MOODY'S, MONEY MAGAZINE AND BILL.

We take a lot of pride in gaining high marks from the major rating services. But the fact is, we're equally proud of the ratings we get every day from our participants. Because at TIAA-CREF, ensuring the financial futures of the education and research community is something that goes beyond stars and numbers.

We became the world's largest retirement organization by offering people a wide range of sound investments, a commitment to superior service, and operating expenses that are among the lowest in the insurance and mutual fund industries.

With TIAA-CREF, you'll get the right choices — and the dedication — to help you achieve a lifetime of financial goals. The leading experts agree. So does Bill.

Find out how TIAA-CREF can help you build a comfortable, financially secure tomorrow.

Visit our Web site at www.tiaa-cref.org or call us at 1 800 842-2776.

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it.

* Source: Morningstar Inc. July 31, 1998. Morningstar is an independent service that rates mutual funds and variable annuities. The top 10% of funds in an investment category receive five stars and the next 22.5% receive four stars. Morningstar proprietary ratings reflect historical risk-adjusted performance and are subject to change every month. They are calculated from the account's three-, five-, and ten-year average annual returns in excess of 90-day Treasury bill returns with appropriate fee adjustments, and a risk factor that reflects fund performance below 90-day T-bill returns. The overall Morningstar rating for a fund is derived from a weighted average of the three- five- and ten-year ratings for portfolios ending July 31, 1998. The separate (unpublished) ratings for each of the periods are:

Period	CREF Stock Account Star Rating / Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	CREF Global Equities Account Star Rating / Number of International Equity Accounts Rated	CREF Equity Index Account Star Rating / Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	CREF Growth Account Star Rating / Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	CREF Bond Market Account Star Rating / Number of Fixed Income Accounts Rated	CREF Social Choice Account Star Rating / Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated
3 Year	4 / 2,139	4 / 459	5 / 1,139	5 / 2,120	4 / 779	4 / 2,126
5 Year	4 / 1,565	5 / 295	N/A	N/A	4 / 487	4 / 1,562
10 Year	4 / 978	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A

 These ratings are based on TIAA's exceptional financial strength, claims paying ability and overall operating performance. These are users under management. Standard & Poor's Insurance Rating Analysis, 40 years' Analytical Services, Inc. Upper Insurance Analytical Data, 1998 Quantitative Update: Life and Annuities in the TIAA Real Estate Account are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2733, extension 5509. For the CREF and TIAA Real Estate Account prospectuses. Read them carefully before you invest or send money.

6-98

IN 7 DAYS FISH & CHIPS FIT FOR THE QUEEN COME TO AMHERST.

Belle and Sebastian live up to the hype; Giants fall short

SEVERE TIRE DAMAGE
They Might Be Giants
Elektra

The latest release from They Might Be Giants is a simple live album featuring a few of TMBG's best songs, and a few studio tracks thrown in. Unfortunately, Severe Tire Damage fails to capture the goofiness and unpredictability of a They Might Be Giants concert.

The main problem with Severe Tire Damage is not so much what is on the album, as what is not. Songs that TMBG never or rarely play live, such as the immensely popular single "Don't Let's Start" are not here. Although what is here sounds good, it's what one would expect them to play live, "Ana Ng," "Birdhouse In Your Soul," "Istanbul (Not Constantinople)," etc. Sorely missing are the conga lines, confetti cannons, instrumental experimentation and bizarre banter from band members John Linnell and John Flansburgh that cannot be captured on silverdisc.

The studio tracks, however, are excellent. "Doctor Worm" is a sure-fire TMBG classic. The disc on the whole is a lot of fun but doesn't live up to its full potential. B– (Kevin Monahan)

JUNK SCIENCE
Deep Dish
Deconstruction/Arista

After spruicing up other acts' material to be more club- friendly, Deep Dish takes a stab at creating material of their own. Experience gained from crafting chart-topping mixes of material from the likes of Pet Shop Boys and Everything But the Girl has certainly paid off. Junk Science is a vital portrait of the state of dance music in the late '90s.

"Morning Wood" eases the listener in with soothing guitar sounds reminiscent of the Cocteau Twins. This introduction provides no hint as to what lies ahead. In no time at all, the beats arrive fast and heavy with "The Future of the Future (Stay Gold)," a guaranteed crowd pleaser graced by the distinctive vocals of Everything But the Girl's Tracey Thorn. The pace slows ever so slightly with the reggae- tinged "Summer's Over" before the first of many outstanding tracks kick in. "Mohammed is Jesus" resembles the work of Underworld with Richard Morel's droning vocal delivery. The incorporation of a sweeping synth-line provided by BT gives the track a genuine freshness.

The ambient sounds of "Junk Science" follow as synthetic waves wash up a series of guttural tones reminiscent of chanting Tibetan monks. Junk Science's masterpiece, "Chocolate City (Love Songs)" is a mini-symphony combining synth-lines suggestive of Prince's more erotic output with frenzied sax solos that in all of its 10-minute glory never sounds stale.

The album's only drawback — though slight — comes with the inclusion of what feels like filler after the brilliance that preceded it. A dub version of "Mohammed is Jesus" slinks along minus vocals serving to highlight the magic of BT's work on the track and "Wear the Hat" is a dull conclusion to an album full of creativity. Junk Science is truly one of 1998's treasures. A– (Matthew Nixon)

THE BOY WITH THE ARAB STRAP
Belle and Sebastian
Matador

"It's something to speak of the way you are feeling... the boy with the arab strap." Listening to the album is a lot like flying down a hill on your ten-speed on a summer's day. Fresh, breezy melodies, sunny warmth, and bright narrative lyrics explore the gentle emotions of pop — love, laughter, loss, and loneliness. Okay, well, it's not quite as rosy as that. But this, the third LP from the enigmatic octet from Glasgow, is truly a gem.

With only two albums (the first of which was limited to 1,000 vinyl copies) and a handful of EPs and BBC sessions, The Boy With the Arab Strap is one of the most eagerly anticipated albums of the year. As it turns out, it was well worth the wait.

Many of the songs are reminiscent of earlier releases, such as "Sleep Around the Clock." Band member and resident artist Isobel Campbell lends her sweet vocals on "Is It Wicked Not To Care," which is a delight. "A Space Boy Dream" is an Arab Strap–esque number that invites you to cozy up to the speaker for a bit, trying to decipher Stuart's gentle Scottish burr.

Some of the songs contain a bit of melodrama, as does the band itself. The band, originally a sextet, is a child of singer/songwriter Stuart Murdoch. The original six (Murdoch, Campbell, Stuart David, Richard Colburn, Chris Geddes, and Stevie Jackson) were later joined by Sarah Martin. TBWTAS now sees the addition of Mick Cooke.

It's hard to get all the members together at one time. They seem more like a bunch of friends with a hobby than a band. They shun group photos and rarely tour, leaving Scottish fans scampering to catch Murdoch's appearances in local churches or at Serge Gainsburgh tributes, and to flock to see David and his wife Karn perform as Looper.

Thus, it is a genuine treat to listen to TBWAS, and to be able to attend their upcoming U.S. tour (which is hitting Boston in October). Whether you are a Tigermilk toting fan or simply a music lover with an interest in authentic and intelligent pop, The Boy With the Arab Strap will soon become a permanent resident in your CD player. A (Stacey Shackford)

ALL WOUND UP
Godsmack
Universal

Any one familiar with the area's rock stations knows that the Boston-based Godsmack have a bonafide hit single with "Whatever." By listening to the rest of their debut album, All Wound Up, one has to wonder whether this quartet will ever accomplish that feat again. There are the occasional bright spots, but mostly this disc shares the ever-growing dilemma facing music today: "Been there, done that."

The hit track is certainly a great rock song that cannot help but be turned up but, unfortunately, one great song cannot make up an entire album. The band uses trendy gimmicks like inserting audio clips. Vocalist Sully Erna often sings into a distorted microphone in order to produce a megaphone-like sensation that hardly works in songs at all, and definitely does not here.

Songs such as "Moon Baby" and "Keep Away" are explosive, grinding cuts that are carried by guitarist Tony Rambola. The crushing "Immune" both hits and misses at the same time. The cheesy guitar lines backing the vocals keep this song from being great, however, the chorus is a treat. Surprisingly, there are few guitar riffs in the album, but the ones that do show up are both unimaginative and unimpressive, short of the overbearing "Situation." These tracks, like the others, feature the same formula where a long jam enters the song for no reason. "Time Bomb" and "Voodoo" are the only songs to break this mold, but it is obvious that songs like these ones are not the bands strengths.

The songwriting is the worst feature of the album and it must be improved in order for Godsmack to mature. Much like Godsmack's peers, their lyrics are straightforward and bland. Songs about snake bites and "feeling your pins in my eyes" are juvenile and embarrassing. Also, Godsmack should keep in mind that when you mention the phrase "go away" in four songs while having a song titled "Keep Away" you know you're in trouble. C– (Scott Darcy)

Trax On Trax Off

Belle and Sebastian's long awaited Boy with the Arab Strap is worth every penny.

COURTESY RONNIE BEALS

Gameshow Network scores

By Christy Lemire
Associated Press

DALLAS — Would you like to bid on this lovely Broyhill dinette set, or pass? Do you want to buy a vowel or spin the wheel? Where is the strangest place you and your wife have made whoopee? "And please, remember your answers must be in the form of a question."

If these phrases stir fond memories, then come on down! You might be a fan of the Game Show Network. If not, we have some lovely parting gifts for you.

The Los Angeles-based network, available to an estimated 15 million viewers through cable and satellite TV, revives '50s game show classics like "To Tell the Truth" and '70s favorites like "The Joker's Wild" and mixes in contemporary shows like "Wheel of Fortune."

The network's following is cultlike. Why? The memories it evokes, spokesman Darris Gringeri said. Think about it: When did you the last sce polyester-clad celebs like Nipsey Russell, Fannie Flagg or Charles Nelson Reilly?

For the younger viewers, they tune in as a fun curiosity," Gringeri said. "Older viewers watch for the nostalgia."

"The thing about game shows is they've only been aired once, and never again, so really in a way it's fresh programming," he said. "If you look at sitcoms or dramas like "Hill Street Blues, you immediately start to see them in syndication and cable." Network representatives are visiting eight cities in

Turn to GAMESHOWS, page 9

IN 7 DAYS THE WORLD'S LARGEST DONUT COMES TO AMHERST.

★ ARMY BARRACKS, INC. ★

GENUINE U.S. & MILITARY CLOTHING & EQUIPMENT
VINTAGE CLOTHING • OUTDOOR GEAR
• DOC MARTENS • SKETCHERS • DICKIES •
• FLAGS • TAPESTRIES • JEANS • PEACOATS •
• HATS • ARMY FATIGUES •
257 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
585-9330

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
part-time study for people of all ages

FALL 1998

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE! MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE
- Nearly 100 credit courses - in the evening! Including:
  Intro to Arts Management
  Public Speaking
  Environmental Health Sciences
  Corporation Finance
  Interpreter's Studies
  Intro to Public Relations
  Human Resource Management
  Energy Healing In Nursing Practice
  Online Course: Sioux Families of the Pine Ridge Reservation
- Opportunities to enroll in University day courses
- Part-time degree programs, both graduate and undergraduate
  Bachelor of General Studies
  Master's in Library and Information Studies
  M.S. in Labor Studies
  Master of Music Education
  M.S. in Plant & Soil Sciences
  Master's in Education
  MBA Professional Program
  RN to BS in Nursing
  Master of Public Health

Classes begin September 14
For a free course catalog, call 413-545-0107 or e-mail continue@admin.umass.edu
www.umass.edu/continued/ for updated course information
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Amherst
a quality education at an affordable price

Summer memories set to music

Mike Messaros

Summer's gone, it's over. All you have to do is wait for the solstice, and the summer can be officially laid to rest. Goodbye summer 1998; hello braving the wind tunnel known as the Fine Arts Center (it looks like a piano from the air — honest Abe!).

But there are some ghosts you can't exorcise. There are images and memories that stick with you for awhile, that can't be buried on Sept. 22. Maybe there's that long distance crush you brought back from your vacation like a virus and it has you checking e-mail every hour on the hour. Maybe it was some friend you made. Maybe it was your last summer of freedom before that monster called the "real world" straps you up and beats the tar out of you. So how do you deal with this? Quite simply: you wallow.

Yup, wallowing is the greatest thing for a forlorn heart. Just like using a mutated virus as a vaccine against a live one, wallowing actually ends up making you stronger. What doesn't kill you, or something like that.

And the greatest thing to aid in a post-summer wallow is a post-summer soundtrack.

Now not everything on here you've heard of. And there might be some glaring omission in your eyes ("Summer in the City"), but this is more melancholy and wistful than rocking out. The perfect post-summer wallowing soundtrack has to capture the melancholy of the moment, the sadness of leaves changing. This is for the moments that will never happen again. It's like when Bruce Springsteen went down to the river and he realized the river was dry; things will never be the same.

"Summer" — Buffalo Tom. Off of Sleepy Eyed, this song defines the long look back. "Where have heroes gone today/ Mick and Keith and Willie Mays," Bill Janovitz whispers. "Summers gone/ A summer song/ You wasted/ Every day." Perfect. You know when you look back on summer, there are things you should have done or said, and now summer has slipped through your hands.

"Summertime" — The Sundays. From their latest, Static and Silence, this is as poppy as you'll find from the terminally low-key Sundays. Horn charts, reverb and ringing guitar slides mark this beauty about love, real and imagined. "It's you and me in the summertime/ As it turns my white skin to red," lead singer Harriet Wheeler croons. The gorgeous imagery and upbeat music belies a deeper cynicism: "Am I reading too much fiction?/ Or is this how it happens?"—

"Forget Me" — The Promise Ring. From the excellent Nothing Feels Good, this song closes out an album full of regret and melancholy. sung in the key of C. "Forget-me-nots and marigolds/ And other things that don't get old, that don't old/ For between one June and September you're all I remember."

In fact, most Promise Ring songs could go on this sort of mix tape, especially from their first album, 30 degrees Everywhere. Their songs are full of regret and remembrances.

"Summer Babe" — Pavement. This classic track off of Slanted and Enchanted is abstract, but it is Pavement. What else would you expect? Still, we all have that summer babe (or boy) in our past. The only thing that matters is the yearning in the way Stephen Malkmus sings "Oh my... summer babe."

"Half A World Away" — REM. This one comes off of the over-looked Out of Time. "I had too much to drink/ And I didn't think/ I didn't think of you/ I guess that's all I needed," Michael Stipe sings, and you know he's lying.

"Summer's Kiss" — Afghan Whigs. Black Love is a gorgeous, cinematic album that seems to follow a criminal mind like a novel. This song catches the criminal on the downside of his arc, facing the uncertain future. The whole song reminds one of one of those washed out, black and white, post-Labor Day photos of the Jersey shore boardwalk, mist rolling in and people huddled together, trying to enjoy a remnant of summer. "Lay down in the cool grass with me, baby/ Let's watch that summer fade."

Perfect for when you stare longingly at your collection of pictures and postcards. Because you know you do.

Mike Messaros is a Collegian columnist.

■ slums

continued from page 7

have done it the same way. It's an unusually fine performance, one of my favorites so far this year.

The characters the movie surrounds Vivian with tend to be a shade too quirky, like the slow talking, Manson-t-shirt wearing boyfriend and the showtune-singing pothead brother. But this is a minor point, because the film isn't an ensemble piece, it's Vivian's show — her dreams, her imagination, her eccentric point of view. The movie is so personal, it seems to unfold within Vivian's mind (or the filmmakers).

*The Slums of Beverly Hill*z is sloppy and sentimental at times, but at others it surprises with lacerating comedy; a scene about dancing with a vibrator, a joke about a fork stuck into a thigh. There are also necessary scenes of forgiveness and realistic hope that I didn't know I needed, like the family lunch trip to Sizzler under a pale blue California sky. Vivian is able to look past her family's less– than–noble qualities to the confused human beings beneath who she needs and who need her. This honest, risk–taking movie deserves the same patience. A– search of guest hosts for their original game shows.Finalists from each city will travel to Los Angeles in October for a screen test, and the winner will receive $10,000 and spend a week giving away fabulous prizes and cash.

■ gameshows

continued from page 8

Last month, about 200 wannabe Pat Sajaks and Bob Eubanks showed up at an audition at a Dallas mall. The open call drew housewives and aspiring actors, students and ministers.

The network, Gringeri said, is seeking "the game show host of the '90s."

"That means someone who doesn't take on the personality of the stereotypical game show host, the 'Hi, there. How ya doing?' with the tacky voice, loud jacket and — in some cases — toupee. We're looking for a younger, fresher approach."

At the audition, some aspiring hosts fit that description. Others, however, donned their cheesiest duds and used their schmaltziest voices.

Deep-voiced Ralph Baker of Dallas wore a teal sports coat and a golden tan. His white teeth sparkled pearly and his blond hair was pouffed to perfection.

"It's a good gig. It's fun if you let it be fun," said Baker, who identified himself as a 45-year-old freelance talk show host. "You get to go out there and make people happy."

Julie Palmer, a petite Meg Ryan look-alike, wore a Tommy Hilfiger T-shirt, jeans and sneakers.

"Two years ago I had a dream I was on 'The Price is Right' and Bob Barker and I ran off together," the 35-year-old flight attendant said. "I thought it was a sign."

Dallas' winner, Tetia Stroud, is thrilled.

"My kids are big fans of 'The Price is Right,'" said Mrs. Stroud, 34 and a mother of four who's a part-time actress and stand-up comic. "I just think it would be a really neat experience — not the normal, everyday life."

The network also airs episodes of game shows featuring celebrities before they were famous. Arnold Schwarzenegger, Steve Martin, Sally Field and Farrah Fawcett all looked for love on "The Dating Game." Tom Selleck and Burt Reynolds appeared twice as bachelors — and lost twice. And Kirstie Alley won $10,000 on "Password Plus."

Besides capitalizing on kitsch of the past, the network also offers original programming, including Interactive. On "Super Decades," viewers call and answer questions about television, music and politics through the decades. "Trivia Track" pits viewers against each other in a computer-generated horse race. Contestants press buttons on their phones to answer questions. Robert Thompson, a professor of television at Syracuse (N.Y.) University and director of Its Center for the Study of Popular Television, ties much of the Game Show Network's success to its novelty.

"In the last 10 years, we've completely mined the nostalgic stuff of the American pop culture of our youth, especially the baby boomer youth," said Thompson. "Game shows are one of the last places that haven't been completely taken back up and aired out in the cynical age of the 1990s."

Though game shows may come back "in a very big way," he believes the network may be challenged to maintain freshness and lure younger viewers.

"A lot of this stuff isn't very compelling once you get over the groovy clothes and once you get over the thrill of being transported back 20, 25 years."

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

They call me Captain

Senior co-captain Brad Kurowski will look to lead the Massachusetts men's soccer team to its first win of the year today at 3:30 p.m. against New Hampshire.

The Boltwood Project-
Your life will NEVER be the same!
>> FALL 1998 <<
TIME 6:30
SEPT 15 & 16
Recruitment Nights:
6:30PM (note: Prompt Starting Time)
September 16-Campus Center Rm.163c
Possibility of Earning Credits

"Reason №1 why you should take my LSAT course."
Class time that counts
More class hours with teachers well trained in our techniques means much less time studying on your own. Our average score improvement is 7 points!
Call 1-800-2REVIEW or visit us at www.review.com
Courses held on the UMASS campus! Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and WNEC as well.
THE PRINCETON REVIEW

ULTIMATE FITNESS ? THAT'S US!
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB

BEST AEROBICS	BEST MACHINES	BEST PRICES
CARDIO KICKBOXING YOGA REEBOK BENCH LOW IMPACT	PRECOR ELLIPTICALS TREADMILLS • BIKES RECUMBENTS STAIRMASTERS	1 MO.....$49 3 MO.....$129 6 MOS.....$229 12 MO.....$389

Big Enough to Own The Best Equipment but Small Enough To Know Your Name
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 West St. On Bus Route www.amherstathletic.com Open 7 Days

IN 7 DAYS FRESH SEAFOOD MIGRATES UPSTREAM TO AMHERST.

Big Mac hits No. 63; Astros beat Mets, 6–5

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mark McGwire swears he won't mind if he finishes second to Sammy Sosa in the home run chase.

"If he's ahead or I'm ahead, I would not have one complaint, one iota," McGwire said yesterday. "You know what, all I can do is control what I do."

Hours later, McGwire moved one ahead of Sosa by hitting his record 63rd homer, connecting as a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning of St. Louis' 8-6 loss to Pittsburgh in the first game of the doubleheader.

Entering the day, McGwire had just three singles in 18 at-bats in six games since hitting homer No. 62, and had been caught by Sosa.

McGwire did not start the first game, in part to protect a bad back that forced him out of a game in Houston after four innings on Sunday.

"Whatever I end up with, I end up with," McGwire said. "And does it make it any less if I don't lead it? No."

McGwire has had a pair of 29 at-bat homer droughts this year, but winces when they're mentioned. He prefers to look at the big picture.

"I've seen some of the headlines: 'Stuck on 62.' We've spoiled these people," McGwire said. "Holy mackerel, I get singles now and they're, like, boo. I want to hit .300."

McGwire entered the day batting .292 and wants to hit .300 for the third time in his career. He said if he needs a home run to tie Sosa for the title on his final at-bat of the season and also needed a hit to top .300, he'd go for average.

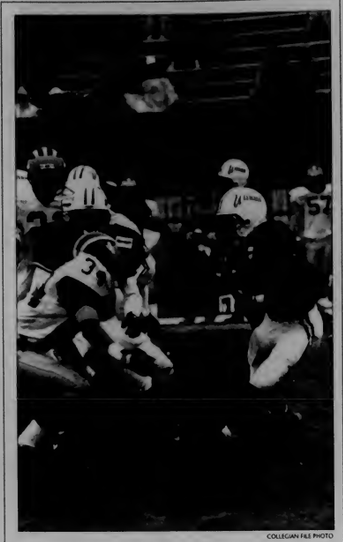
McGwire wants people to know about the friendship that he's developed with Sosa. Sosa ran from right field to embrace McGwire when he hit No. 62 in St. Louis; McGwire telephoned Sosa for a congratulatory call on Monday, the day after Sosa hit two to tie the race.

"I won't tell you what we said, but I know what he's feeling and I know what he's going through," McGwire said. "There's two weeks left and all we can do is our best."

McGwire and Sosa genuinely like each other.

"So much has been said about guys being stuck on themselves and all they think about is their stats and how much money they make," McGwire said. "Now, all of a sudden, the country is looking at two guys from two different countries coming together with total respect and understanding of what they're going through."

Astros come back to down Mets



HOUSTON (AP) — For the second straight night, the New York Mets overcame a two-run deficit in the ninth inning. This time, the Houston Astros came back to win.

Derek Bell hit a leadoff home run in the 12th off Jeff Tam, and the Astros dampened the Mets' wild-card run with a 6-5 victory yesterday in the first game of a doubleheader.

New York began the day tied with Chicago for the NL wild-card lead. The Astros won in their final at-bat for the 26th time this season.

"I guess it keeps our edge," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "We could be playing the Mets in October and we need to do all right against them in here."

The Mets tied it in the ninth on Carlos Baerga's two-run homer off Scott Elarton. Then Mets left fielder Jay Payton threw out the potential winning run in the bottom half.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Taking a little time off

The Massachusetts football team has a bye week coming up, and will next hit the gridiron on Saturday, Sept. 26 when they host Buffalo.

HOT CLUB
SPRINGFIELD'S NEWEST AND LARGEST ENTERTAINMENT COMPLEX
SWINGERS...Swing Club
BELL BOTTOMS...70s & 80s Club
THE MONKEY BAR...Top 40 Club
MY MARTINI...Martini & Cigar lounge
THURSDAY
SPRINGFIELD'S BIGGEST COLLEGE NIGHT
SWING DANCE LESSONS 7-8PM
Featuring the $1000 Hot Bod Contest!
Male & Female
18 plus w/ college ID
FRIDAY
DOORS OPEN AT 5PM FOR THE AFTER WORK Cool Down
SWING DANCE LESSONS 7-8PM $3 plus
SATURDAY
SATURDAY PRIME TIME
THE HOT CLUB IS THE ONLY PLACE TO BE!
SWING DANCE LESSONS 7-8PM $3 plus
THE HOT CLUB IS OPEN THURS, FRI & SAT 7:30 AM - 3:30 • PROPER ID REQUIRED
10-12 STEARNS SQUARE • SPRINGFIELD (formerly Sh-Booms) • For more info call 413-781-4509

Drop in for some killer tunes.

9.99 CD/7.99 Cass. JENNIFER KIMBALL Waiting From The Wave
10.99 CD/8.99 Cass.
10.99 CD/7.99 Cass. TRIP THEORY Something For Your Young Mind
10.99 CD/7.99 Cass. DUKE MUSHBOOT
11.99 CD/8.99 Cass. STRETCH PRINCESS Stretch Princess
11.99 CD/8.99 Cass. BAXTER Baxter
12.99 CD Only
12.99 CD/8.99 Cass. INDIGO SWING
12.99 CD/8.99 Cass. THE FLYS Howdy Man
13.99 CD Only PLASTIKMAN Consumed
13.99 CD/8.99 Cass. CHICAGO CAB
13.99 CD/8.99 Cass. DISHWALLA
12.99 CD/8.99 Cass. ESTHERO
13.99 CD/8.99 Cass. DJ DADO Greatest Hits & Future Bits
13.99 CD/8.99 Cass. JULIANA HATFIELD

Hey Collegians!
(Yes, freshmen. That's what you're called now.)
Sept. 22 & 23 are College Appreciation Days.
Bring your student ID to get great discounts, tasty food and cool prizes.

MUSIC • SOFTWARE MOVIES • BOOKS
MEDIA PLAY®
Your Entertainment Superstore
Hampshire Mall 341 Russell St Hadley (413) 582-0410 • Crossroads Buckland Hills (Corner of Hale and Slater) Manchester (860) 648-5871
Stateline Plaza 136 Elm St Enfield (860) 253-4777 • Newington Commons Plaza 172 Kitts Lane (Berlin Turnpike) Newington (860) 594-7272
Sale ends September 26
All product shown at everyday low prices.

You are getting sleepy...
Very sleepy...
(so are we, we're here all night!)

You will read the Collegian... you will visit our web-site...
you will love it...

Now GO!!!

Welcome back... NOW GO AWAY!
Cheap tickets. Great advice. Nice people.
travel accessories and backpacks sold here! european railpasses and international student ID cards issued on the spot!
Council Travel
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange
44 Main St., Amherst
(413) 256-1261
www.councilltravel.com

FITNESS WORKSHOP
Delivered right to your door...
Creatine Surge Ginseng
Pure Creatine Whey Protein
Weight Loss Aids St. Johns Worts
www.fitnessworkshop.com
1-877-FIT-WORK

TRAVEL SMART!
BEST PRICES FROM BOSTON TO EUROPE, WITHIN THE U.S., AND DESTINATIONS AROUND THE WORLD
CALL 800-272-9676
E-MAIL sales@prismtours.com
OR VISIT US AT www.prismtours.com
Eurailpasses and Student ID cards available.
PRISM TRAVEL
545 Fifth Avenue
New York, NY 10017

'Niners are back on track

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — With Steve Young healthy and Jerry Rice back, the San Francisco 49ers have returned to their roots in sensational fashion.

Young is off to the best two-game start of his 14-year career. Garrison Hearst is leading the league in rushing. And after missing most of last season with two knee injuries, Rice has returned to become yet another force in San Francisco's offensive array.

Six 49ers players scored touchdowns in Monday night's 45-10 win at Washington, and Rice, the NFL's career touchdown leader, wasn't even among them, though his 57-yard reception set up a score.

"We've got so many weapons, I don't know how you can stop us," guard Kevin Gogan said. "I guess I don't have to worry about it."

The only concern might be keeping everybody happy, because there's only one ball to go around.

San Francisco (2-0) rolled up 504 yards in offense against Washington (0-2), a week after gaining 557 yards in a 36-30 overtime victory over the New York Jets. It's the first time since 1961 the 49ers have surpassed 500 yards in successive games.

"All I can say is whatever teams are going to give us is what we're going to take," said Hearst, who rushed for 138 yards and a touchdown Monday night to boost his league-leading total to 325.

San Francisco's wide-open attack is a reflection of coach Steve Mariucci's return to a basic tenet of the West Coast offense — passing first to set up the run.

"We've got our offense back," Young said, who has thrown for 666 yards and six touchdowns in the first two games.

San Francisco is averaging 41 points and 531 yards in offense so far, up from averages of 23 points and 319 yards last season, when the 49ers ran more than they passed. They finished 12th in offense after being at or near the top for the last decade.

Mariucci favored the more conservative approach because he wanted to protect a concussion-prone Young and take pressure off wideouts Terrell Owens and J.J. Stokes in the absence of Rice. Mariucci says he can be more daring now because Young is in good health and he's backed up by Ty Detmer, a former starter in Philadelphia.

In addition, Owens and Stokes gained valuable experience and Rice is quickly regaining his form.

So San Francisco is using plenty of three-wide receiver sets in which Rice, Owens and Stokes are on the field at the same. Against Washington, the three wideouts and fullback Marc Edwards tied for the team lead with four catches apiece.

In addition, the multi-receiver formation has spread out opposing defenses, opening running lanes for Hearst.

"We just felt we could do anything we wanted to do," said Owens, who had a 20-yard touchdown catch Monday night.

With his line holding up well, Young has been able to pick and choose his receivers.

"We feel good about it," Young said as the team prepared for its bye week. "But my gosh, we've got to keep working. You arrive in January. You don't arrive in September."

Griffey reaches more milestones in M's win

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — He was expecting a call from mom. Dad, too. That conversation will be brief.

Hi, son. How are you? How are the kids? Congratulations. Thanks, dad. Talk to you again soon.

That's how historic milestones go for Ken Griffey Jr. — overpowering on the field and understated off it.

Griffey hit his AL-leading 52nd homer and drove in five runs to become the fourth-youngest player ever to reach 1,000 RBI, leading the Seattle Mariners over the Minnesota Twins 12-7 yesterday. As he usually does, Griffey downplayed the significance of yet another awesome step in his brilliant 10-year career. Lots of shrugs. Lots of smiles. Little to say about himself.

He had no plans for big celebrations, either.

"I'll get a call congratulating me from my dad, and my mom," he said. "He'll ask me where the kids are. And I'll say in Seattle. And he'll say 'I'll talk to you later."

Griffey lined a two-run single to center field with the bases loaded in a four-run fourth inning to pass 1,000 RBIs. He then added a three-run homer in a six-run seventh.

Griffey has 1,004 RBIs in 10 seasons. At 28 years and 10 months, he got to 1,000 faster than anyone except Mel Ott (27 years, three months), Jimmie Foxx (27 years, eight months) and Lou Gehrig (28 years, 9 1/2 months).

Kansas City tops Athletics, 6-3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — What a day of positives for the Kansas City Royals.

They beat Oakland 6-3 for their first four-game home winning streak in two years. The victory guaranteed they will avoid three straight last-place finishes in the AL Central. And manager Tony Muser got a one-year contract extension.

"All the players are delighted for Tony," said center fielder Johnny Damon, who singled and scored his team-leading 95th run. "He works hard and he gets along with all the young guys. This will give us stability going into the offseason."

It also was the 100th career victory for Muser, hired from the Chicago Cubs' coaching staff during the 1997 All-Star break.

"If you want a tough job, be a major league manager," the 51-year-old Muser said. "I am happy. It will be a one-year deal. It will be my 32nd year in professional baseball and they've all been one-year deals."

Jeff King and Scott Leius drove in two runs apiece for the Royals, whose 45 home losses are two short of the franchise record set last season. They had not won four straight in Kauffman Stadium since Sept. 13-17, 1996.

The Royals scored three in the fourth off Kenny Rogers (14-8), starting on three days' rest for the first time since last June. Damon and Jose Offerman singled, then Dean Palmer singled home Damon.

"I got myself in trouble," Rogers said. "Two-out hits will kill you, especially with runners on. In the first three innings, I felt fine. Once I got out of the stretch, I got myself in trouble. When I went out of the stretch I lost my zone a little bit. I was trying to be too fine."

After King walked, loading the bases, Rogers got Jeff Conine on a called third strike but Leius singled just over the head of shortstop Miguel Tejada for a 3-1 lead.

With two on and two outs in the fifth, King hit a two-run single that gave him eight RBI in his last four games. Offerman added a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Pat Rapp (12-12) allowed five hits in six innings, including solo homers by A.J. Hinch, Tejada and Matt Stairs. Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his 34th save.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

She shoots, she scores!

Kara Green will lead the UMass women's soccer team into Storrs, Conn. this afternoon for a tilt with No. 4 ranked and regional rival Connecticut.

Attention Sports Enthusiasts !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

For anyone interested in working in the UMass Media Relations Office in the UMass Athletic Department, there will be a meeting in 253 Boyden Building on Thursday, Sept. 17 at 5 p.m.

Become an integral part of the UMass athletic scene by working for Media Relations. Learn valuable skills and gain experience by assisting in the department.

If you have any questions call 545-2439.

Mavi Jeans.

ZAMA
downtown Amherst

IN SHAPE NUTRITION
NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA
Exercise & Nutrition Programs Available
Great Products, Great Prices, Great Service!
20%-50% OFF RETAIL PRICES EVERYDAY
Walking Distance 549-7434

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS
Paid Officials Needed
For Flag Football, Field Hockey, Softball, Soccer, & Ice Hockey
Don't Miss The ACTION
Clinics: Football, Soccer - Sept.16, 17, 18
Co-ed Softball, Field Hockey - Sept. 21, 22
Ice Hockey - Sept. 23
Call For Times and Locations
For more info: 215 Boyden or call 545-2693
Still Time to Enter: Flag Football, Soccer, Field Hockey, & Softball.
On the Web: http://www.umass.edu/umim/

IN 7 DAYS AN AMERICAN OWNED COMPANY SINCE 1936 CONTINUES A TRADITION OF QUALITY & SERVICE IN AMHERST.
Big Y® WORLD CLASS MARKET

Test-pilot the new Gillette MACH3™

THE FIRST TRIPLE-BLADE RAZOR

YOU TAKE ONE STROKE, IT TAKES THREE.

Enter to Win the Grand Prize: BMW M3 and $5,000 Cash.

First Prize: PlayStation game console with Dual Shock Analog Controller.

GUARANTEED WINNER AT THIS SCHOOL!

Call toll-free to enter:
1-877-GO-MACH3
Or visit: www.MACH3.com

Gillette
The Best a Man Can Get

© 1998 The Gillette Company (USA), Inc. PlayStation and the PlayStation logos are registered trademarks of Sony Computer Entertainment Inc. Dual Shock is a trademark of SCEI

CLOSEST SHAVE · FEWER STROKES · LESS IRRITATION

Official Rules. No Purchase Necessary. Void where prohibited or restricted by law.
1. HOW TO ENTER. To enter, go to any participating retail store and request a Gillette MACH3 Sweepstakes Entry Form. Complete the entry form and follow the directions for answering a skill-testing question, providing your name, complete mailing address, phone number, and the last eight digits of your Social Security number. Only one entry per person is allowed. Entries must be received by 11:59 PM EDT on 10/15/98 and must be postmarked by that date. Gillette is not responsible for entries that are incomplete, misdirected, late, illegible, mechanically reproduced, or lost in the mail. Entries become the property of Gillette and will not be returned. Limit one entry per person. Only one entry per person (or group, in organization) allowed. Gillette is not responsible for entries that are illegible, incomplete, late, or lost or misdirected

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ACTIVITIES

Free Bridge Lessons for UMass students. "The Club Series." Thurs., 7-9 pm. Start 9/17. Info: Chris 5-4411

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Preparing for Civil Service Exam (404)366-2813

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 Ford Taurus Station Wagon AC/Auto, sunroof, cassette. 87,000 miles. 256-1619

1989 Mercury Tracer AC/ Auto, 4 door hatchback. Great condition. 367-9579

88 Olds Cutlass Cruiser 117k station wagon $1200 or B.O. 259-9287

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS Automatic, fully loaded, 103k miles. Excellent condition $3700. 253-5503

1989 Subaru Wagon Standard, 4WD, highway miles, clean. $1400. (978)544-3783

89 Chevy Corsica Black, 5 speed. $1200 or B/O. 253-8918

1988 VW Jetta Gold, 5 speed, good condition $1200. 548-9228.

88 Honda Accord LX Gold Stick Shift Power Windows/Locks 160k Excellent Condition! (413)323-7536

WANTED: Toyotas, Novas, Pizms, Sentras Any condition. Cash paid everyday. 1-800-649-4795.

87 Subaru GL Wagon 5 speed. $800. Call Korey 256-6497

92 Honda Accord LX 4 door, 5 speed, A/C, 88k, $6000. 256-3472.

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

AUTO FOR SALE

1990 Ford Taurus LX 4dr SDN, ABS, airbag. All power, new engine, 40k. $2400. 253-7009.

CHILDCARE

Childcare provider needed for 2 1/2 year old girl. 10-15 hrs/wk Tuesdays and Thursdays. Experience required. 665-6759.

COMPUTERS

486 Computer Good Condition $400 Firm 546-2660

486 Computer Great For Student Works Good $100 Color VGA $50 (413)584-8857

EMPLOYMENT

Amherst Leisure Services Seeks
Sports Related Positions:
+ Adult Volleyball Officials/ Supervisors
+ Adult Basketball Score Keeper
+ Youth Basketball Supervisor/ Officials
+ Facility Supervisors
+ Certified Swim Instructor
Immediate Need For
+ Experienced Stage Manager for Town Community Theater (nights & weekends)
+ Adult Ed. Supervisor (evenings)
Applications available @ Human Resources 4 Boltwood Walk, Amherst, MA. 01002 EOE
Prefered Deadline September 15th

Dunkin Donuts
Now Hiring
Apply In Person
Morning Shifts
Rt. 9, Hadley

CANTONE'S PIZZA CO seeks drivers. Must have reliable vehicle. Part-Time & Full-Time. Also hiring experienced pizza cooks. Call 256-6100 or apply in person. 491 West St., Rte 116, South Amherst

EMPLOYMENT

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS
Abt Associates is looking for a few reliable people with good communication and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week Evening and weekend assignments are currently available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $6.25/hr with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more information or to arrange a personal interview call 413-587-1607. An Equal Opportunity Employer

Experienced House Cleaner for family farmhouse in Leverett. $10/hr. 548-9870 Susan

Searching for a hairstylist some afternoons and Saturdays. Regency Hairstylist 253-9526.

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2"
2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and Earn $$$$ Jamaica, Cancun Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks. Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplashtours.com

Undergraduate Business Consultant
Gain Accounting Experience, Leadership Skills, and General Business Experience 10-15 hrs per week, flexible schedule. Must be self-motivated, able to work as part of a team. Sophomores and Juniors are encouraged to apply. Pick up an application at the Center for Student Business, 406 Student Union. Questions, call 545-2166. Deadline for apps- Fri., Sept 18.

Kai Chi Restaurant hiring waitstaff, drivers, bouncers, and bartenders. Apply in person after 4:30 p.m. 586-2774

EMPLOYMENT

Best Part-Time Job in The Valley. You don't have to wash dishes or flip burgers for the extra money you need. Become a Clean Water Action organizer and earn $7.30-$9.00/hr fighting air and water pollution. Paid training, flexible schedule, evening and weekend hours. 584-9830.

CAMPUS DESIGN & COPY has openings for new co-managers. If you've always wanted to run your own business, start with a genuine student-run collective! Applications (due 9/16) and details at 403 Student Union. 545-2271.

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Mornings and evenings. $7.85/hr. 546-0666.

EARN CASH
Flexible Hours
Now hiring at Sbarro's. Hampshire Mall

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ FOR HIRE:
DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery. 253-9742

FOR SALE

Pinball Machine Reconditioned. $500. 253-5363

For Sale- TV Stand. Franci 253-7606.

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection, from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade 253-5312.

FURNITURE

Desk For Sale $40. 584-7197.

WATERBED Queen size, bookcase headboard, four drawer pedestal, more. $200/best offer. 253-3318.

Quality Made Ikea Futon Couch/Bed For Sale. $120. It's in great condition. Call 585-1593 after 7pm and ask for John.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK. www.fitnessworkshop.com

INSTRUCTION

Boxing Lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. (413)732-8817.

LOST & FOUND

Attention New Students- Personal items left at The New Students Program this summer may be picked up at The New Students Office, 304 Admissions Center.

One pair of glasses found on the small hillside between the Polymer Research Center and the engineering lab. Call 546-0998.

MUSICAL EQUIP.

P.A. SYSTEM FOR SALE Nearly new, awesome little system; multi-effects processor; EQ; tape deck; mixer; 2 power amps, 2 JBL speakers; 2 EV monitors; mike and road cases with fans; cables; speaker stands. Will not part out. $3500. (413)527-8387 Leave message.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Can Teach All Styles Call Stephen Page at 256-2612

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

Room for rent again. Housemate fell thru. $270 plus utilities. 549-4541.

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Rental Problems? Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

TUTORING SERVICES

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

WANTED

WANTED:
A friend of Cyndi Arnold's and Jodi Arnold's. Anne Pacific Islander. Anxiety and Allies interested in learning about ethnic identity, gender and sexuality, social politically effective history and other topics. Interested in combining academics with community service? This class is for you.
First Class Session for Asian 197 (course has alternative class schedule) Sept. 21, Monday, 6 pm Herter Hall 601 at 6 pm. For more information E-mail to Khyati Joshi at khyati@educ.umass.edu or call 545-1787. Lucy Burns at email to lmburns@english.umass.edu Nina Ha at email to nha@english.umass.edu

Wondering how to place a classified?

Call us at 545-3500 or visit our office in The Campus Center Basement

Have A Happy Classifieds Day

First A Classified Then ... THE WORLD

Five College Community Calendar

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 16

Community — There will be a community blood drive in the Student Union ballroom from 10:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Meeting — The Jewish Student Union will be holding its general meeting in the Campus Center at 6 p.m. All are welcome.

Meeting — The UMass poetry society will hold its first meeting at 7 p.m. in Campus Center room 811.

Meeting — The University Resource Network will hold its first meeting from noon-1:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 903. Network with others on campus concerned with improving quality of life on campus.

Community — There will be a community blood drive in the Student Union ballroom from 10:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 17

Community — The Pride Alliance will be holding an informal gathering to get acquainted with the campus. Meet in the student union lobby at 7 p.m. to walk to the Stonewall Center for pizza.

Lecture — A lecture entitled "An Anthropological Critique of Third-Gender Categories" at 12:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 804.

Meeting — The ballroom dance club will meet from 5:30- 7 p.m. in Totman room 101.

Meeting — There will be a Jewish theatre group intro meeting at the Hillel house at 6:30 p.m.

Workshop — A creative writing workshop begins tonight in Hadley from 6:30-9 p.m. For more information call 586- 2388.

NOTICES

Community — Nomination papers for the Student Government Association elections are available in room 420 in the Student Union. Papers need to be turned in by 5 p.m. on Sept. 22, and elections are Sept. 28.

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through Oct. 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for its frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. Call 545-0883 for more information.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. Contact Gina at (508) 849-5600 ext. 201 for more details.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs and to work on special projects. Call 545-0883 for more details.

FYIs are public service announcement; printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

If you think that shopping a college store means having no choices...

Think again.

New Univ. Store — Not like a mall... Better.

HSCN 4 — Hosiery, Servicer Cable Network

2	HSCN Bulletin Board	18	UVC-TV19
3	CBS/3 Hartford	20	ABC/40	Springfield
4	CBS/4 Boston	22	NBC/22	Springfield
5	ABC/5 Boston	23	CNN
6	PBS/57 Springfield	24	CNN SI
7	HSCN Movie Ch.	25	Headline News
8	UPN/20 Hartford	28	UCTV
9	Weather Channel	27	TBS
10	NBC/30 New Britain	28	BET
11	Fox/61 Hartford	29	TV Land
12	PBS/24 Hartford	30	Univision
13	WOCH & HSCN	31	Comedy Central
14	International	32	Cartoon
15	UMass Academic TV	33	Much Music
16	HSCN Programming

WEDNESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 16, 1998

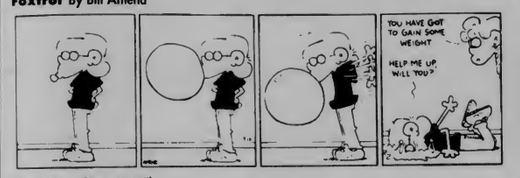
	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	12 Wishbone (R)	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (R)		Anyplace Wild (In Stereo) (R)		Performance at White House		Cancer-Odds for Survival		Connecticut Journal
WFSB	3	3 News (R)	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Nanny "The Wedding" (R)		Pulse Eye (In Stereo)		Chicago Hope (R) (In Stereo)		News (R)	Late Show (R)
WBZ	4	4 News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Nanny "The Wedding" (R)		Public Eye (In Stereo)		Chicago Hope (R) (In Stereo)		News	Late Show (R)
WCVB	5	5 News (R)	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle (R)	Dharma-Greg	Two Guys-Girl	Drew Carey (R)	Depression	20/20 (Season Premiere) (R)		News (R)	Nightline (R)
WLVI	6	Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny (R)	Nanny (R)	Weyans Bros.	Jamie Foxx (R)	Weyans Bros.	Steve Harvey	News		Star Trek: Next Gener.
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy! (R)	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		3rd Rock-Sun	3rd Rock-Sun	Late Night With Conan		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	8	Married...With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy (R)	Judge Judy (R)	Sentinel "Neighborhood Watch"		Star Trek: Voyager (In Stereo)		News	Newsradio (R)	LAPD
WVIT	9	10 News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy (R)	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		3rd Rock-Sun	3rd Rock-Sun	Late Night With Conan		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	11 Simpsons (R)	Home Imp.	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	Beverly Hills, 90210 (R)		Party of Five "Moving On" (R)		News	Med Abt. You	Med ABt. You
WWLP	22	22 News (R)	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy! (R)	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		3rd Rock-Sun	3rd Rock-Sun	Late Night With Conan		News (R)	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	8 Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (R)		Anyplace Wild (In Stereo) (R)		Performance at White House		Into the Rising Sun (R)		Charlie Rose (In Stereo) (R)
WGGB	40	20 News (R)	ABC News	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	Dharma-Greg	Two Guys-Girl	Drew Carey (R)	Drew Carey (R)	20/20 (Season Premiere) (R)		News (R)	Nightline (R)
WSBK	38	Judge Judy (R)	Judge Judy (R)	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	Sentinel "Neighborhood Watch"		Star Trek: Voyager (In Stereo)		News	Med Abt. You	Frasier (R)	Cheers (R)
WTBS	30	Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Andy Griffith	★★ "Kung Fu: The Movie" (1986, Drama) David Carradine.				★★★ "Kung Fu" (1971) David Carradine.			"Force of 1"
A&E	33	Northern Exposure (R)		Law & Order "Blood Is Thicker"		Biography: Hank Williams		American Justice (R)		Sherlock Holmes Mysteries (R)		Law & Order "White Rabbit" (R)
CNN	29	23 Worldview (R)	Moneyline Newshour (R)		Crossfire (R)	World Today (R)		Larry King Live (R)		Newsstand: Fortune (R)		Sports	Moneyline (R)
COM	31	26 1 Night Stand	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	Foxworthy	Foxworthy	Bratt Butler	Drew Carey	South Park (R)	Upright	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	32	Wings "Flight Deck" (R)		Gimme Shelter (R)		Wild Discovery: Dress-Dinner		Discover Magazine (R)		Would You Believe It?		Justice Files "Women at Risk"
ESPN	27	Up Close	Sportscenter			Major League Baseball Teams to Be Announced. (Live) (R)						Major League Baseball. Teams TBA
LIFE	34	Ellen (R)	Ellen (R)	Party of Five "Ready or Not" (R)		Chicago Hope (In Stereo) (R)		★★½ "In the Line of Duty: Ambush in Waco" (1995, Thriller) Timothy Daly.				New Attitudes	Golden Girls
MTV	35	(5:30) Jams Countdown		Fenatic (R)	Beevis-Butt.	Eye Spy	Say What?	Total Request Live (In Stereo)		True Life (R)	Chris Rock	Fenatic (R)	Loveline (R)
NICK	36	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug (R)	Rugrats (R)	Hey Arnold! (R)	Allen Strange	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	Love Lucy (R)	Bewitched
SCIFI	37	Quantum Leap (In Stereo) (R)		Sightings (R)	Star Trek: The Managerie" (Part 2 of 2) (R)			Sequest 2032 (In Stereo) (R)		V "Dreadnought" (In Stereo) (R)		Sightings (R)	Star Trek (R)
TLC	39	24 Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	Tornado (R)	Deadly Forces	James Gang (R)		Blast Masters: Explosion		Tornado (R)	Deadly Forces
TNT	42	Babylon 5 (In Stereo) (R)		ER "ER Confidential" (In Stereo)		★½ "Lawnmower Man 2: Beyond Cyberspace" (1996, Mad Frewer)				Babylon 5 "The Ragged Edge"		Secret KGB UFO Files (R)
USA	41	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess (R)		Walker, Texas Ranger (R)		★★½ "Police Story" (1985, Drama) Jackie Chan. (In Stereo) (R)				New York Undercover (R)
HBO	43	★½ "Vice Versa" (1988, Comedy) Judge Reinhold. "PG" (R)				★★½ "Who Am I?" (1998, Comedy) Jackie Chan. "PG-13" (R)				Oz "The Routine" (In Stereo) (R)		Chris Rock (R)	Real Sex 21 (R)
MAX	44	★★ "Bogus" (1996, Fantasy) Whoopi Goldberg. (In Stereo) "PG" (R)				★★ "Homer & Eddie" (1989) James Belushi. "R"		Making-Rsewd		"The Rainbow Project" (1998) Daniel Baldwin. (R)		★★ "Julien Po"
SHOW	45	★½ "Kiss" (1998, Comedy) Cybill Lauper. (In Stereo) "PG" (R)				★★★ "Phenomena" (1934, Comedy) Lara Flynn Boyle. "R" (R)				"Rogue" (1998, Suspense) Maud Adams. "R"			Love Street

Foxtrot by Bill Amend

Robotman By Jim Meddick



Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Non Sequitor By Wiley

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Spunk By Mike Lariccia

Horoscopes

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — There is a difference between saving and hoarding. It's important that you maintain a healthy balance of the two.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You'll be more interested in doing things for others today. Perhaps you feel that you don't deserve pampering.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — What you're after may seem quite remote and out of reach today, but someone close to you can make it happen for you in no time.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — What you say will be remembered today, so stick to the truth at all times. You can't afford to be caught in a lie!

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Don't expect to have everything you want today. Like it or not, you'll have to pick and choose.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Your natural charm will serve you well today, but make sure you don't cross the line of manipulation. Be simple and honest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — There's no reason for you to think that the day will offer anything more glamorous than usual. Image is relative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — Some may think you're boring today, but don't let them distract you from being centered on your goal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — If things get rough today, others will turn to you for guidance. Also expect to be contacted on a "new level" after dark.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — Watch your finances today with greater vigor and discipline. Keep yourself from making the mistakes that will set you back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Other people will feel that they can turn to you for advice today. Are you feeling up to the task? Perhaps you need someone to lean on.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — Focus on what is reliable today. Don't get mixed up in anything that was hastily put together.

Quote of the Day

"That's not a frozen chicken!!!"

–Overheard during blackout

Close to Home By John McPherson

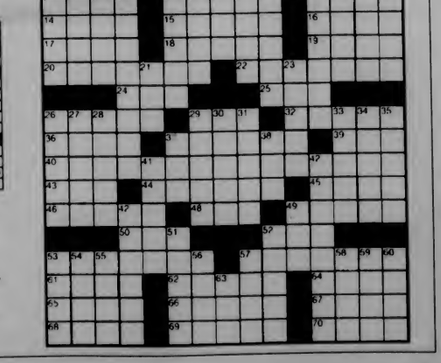
"Since you can't eat solid foods for a week, we're pleased to offer you our new Virtual Reality Meal. Just chew on this rubber bulb, and you'll swear you're eating prime rib."

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Grilled Chicken Sandwich
Hot Pastrami on Rye
Ravioli with Tomato Sauce
Vegan Ravioli/Tomato Sauce
DINNER
Roast Pork
Chili Cheese Puff
Quarter Pound Burger
Quarter Pound Swiss Burger

Worcester
LUNCH
Grilled Chicken Sandwich
Spinach Noodle Casserole
Lentil Chili
DINNER
Roast Pork
Cheese Spinach Strudel
Savory Stuffed Peppers
Pastabilities

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Macaroni & Cheese
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
DINNER
Pineapple Ham Steak
Chicken De Carlos



Berkshire
LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
American Chop Suey
Portabella Mushrooms
DINNER
Roast Pork
Cheese Spinach Strudel
Hot & Spicy Vegetable Pasta
Pastabilities

ACROSS
1 Ali
5 Linen closet item
10 Lhasa
14 Neutral color
15 Like a neglected garden
16 California wine valley
17 Radiate
18 Sea duck
19 Musical symbol
20 Modernize
22 Siblings, e.g.
24 Food fish
25 ___ Paulo, Brazil
26 Lauri Memsal members
29 Record speed abbr.
32 Shrimp
36 A Chapin
37 Miuy Alcott
39 Ghost's hello
40 Hardware-store customers
43 Preserve
44 Eat
45 Facility
46 Weirdow cover
48 Attention-getting shout
49 Like soldiers
50 Ancient
52 Ewe's mate
53 Party
57 Warms over
61 Lady with a thump
62 Not clearly defined
64 Iberian peak's st
65 Russia's Mountains
66 Virgil grazer
67 Linoleum square
68 Spirt
69 Farts
70 Worry

DOWN
1 Malt beverage
2 Peak
3 Part of a hat
4 Despot
5 Wool fabric
6 ___ de-boeuf window
7 Get hitched
8 Parabee
9 Stringed instruments
10 Muse
11 Colorless
12 Gush
13 Lummoxes
21 Spock
23 Of the Vatican
26 Soft drinks
27 Cargo
28 Singer Bryant
29 Coarse
30 Fruit pulp
31 Nickname for Melissa
33 Crosswise in a ship
34 In poorer health
35 ___ around snooped
37 Actor Chaney
38 Go down
41 Highway sign
42 Is in an agitated state
47 Tycoon Trump
49 Sign of satisfaction
51 Conereel explorer
52 Tall glasses
53 Disparaging remark
54 Fabled race participant
55 OPEC member
56 Fester
57 Old Norse inscription
58 Mine entrance
59 Legend
60 Distort
63 Jose

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

Staff

Night Editor	Lorraine Kennedy
Photo Technician	Stacey Cohen
Copy Editor	Casey Kane
Production Supervisor	Jaylyn Lombard
Production Staff	Jeremy Brothers, Lisa Metcalf

SPORTS

Sox fighting to stay alive; Sosa, Mac on fire

These past few weeks call to mind a certain notice which once hung from the wall of my history class back at good ol' Holyoke High. It read something like this: "Would the woman who left her nine children at Fenway Park please come and pick them up. They're beating the Red Sox 5–0 in the last of the sixth inning."

While the boys from Beantown cling to a waning three-game lead in the American League wild card race, one can't help but wonder if the Bambino curse will strike again. Rumors of the Red Sox demise have been greatly unexaggerated. After all,

Aaron Saykin on Major League Baseball

the 1998 campaign has marked the 50th anniversary of his death and the 80th anniversary of the last Boston World Series title. How timely it would be if the Sultan of Swat were to toss another collapsing curve at his former franchise (see 1946, 1967, 1975, 1978 and 1986 for details).

Despite the recent Red Sox woes, I can't help but find comfort in the fact that the Yankees, their storied rival and the benefactor in the Babe Ruth trade, have lost five of their last 10, and are in a mini-slump of their own.

New York ace David Wells seems to be winding down a possible Cy Young season. Boston's Pedro Martinez was the frontrunner after the All Star break, but has since sported a human 8–4 mark during the second half with an occasional shaky no-decision.

The only hurdle in Wells' path to the hardware highway appears to be current Cy favorite and former Sox pitcher Roger Clemens, who in the spirit of Ruth himself, has contributed to the Boston slump and the Blue Jays' surge in the American League wild card race.

• In other news insignificant to the Boston faithful, two men named Sammy Sosa and Mark McGwire did last week what no man has done in 37 years. Although most baseball fans and media appear to be pulling for Big Mac, it appears as though Slammin' Sammy has caught stride, and may finish the McGwire-hyped season with a higher home run total, and more importantly, a playoff berth.

• Now that the frenzy surrounding the historical home run chase has calmed, we can shift our attention to the National League wild card showdown. The resurgent Mets and Giants have Sosa's Cub teammates looking over their shoulders. As of yesterday, New York trails Chicago by one game, and San Francisco lags behind by three and one half games. If the Cubs hold on, they will likely meet the Braves in the opening round of the playoffs, with the Astros and Padres rounding out the most talented playoff field since the inception of the wild card in the 1995 season.

Houston rent-a-player Randy Johnston has his team primed for a run at the series, as they lead the race for the top record in the National League. The Astros are almost a lock to win their opening round series with Johnson able to make two starts if necessary in the five-game set.

Padres top gun Kevin Brown leads the Cy Young Race in the National League, since Atlanta's Greg Maddux has wet the bed since starting the year 12–2. Fellow Brave John Smoltz has been on fire after an 0–2 start. The 1996 Cy Young recipient has since won 15 of his last 16 decisions.

• As much as we all love to hate Chicago's Albert Belle, it is difficult to deny that he is worthy of American League MVP honors. He is currently second in two major AL categories with 45 home runs and 132 RBI. Ranger outfielder Juan Gonzalez may edge Belle, but his team's second half collapse could dissuade many a voter.

And then there's Boston shortstop Nomar Garciaparra, who would have earned a vote or two until the recent Red Sox slump.

• As the Yankees wrap up a memorable regular season, Bronx Bombers fans cannot help but wonder what may lurk in the postseason. Anaheim, which has a winning record against the Yanks, leads the list of three potential New York spoilers.

And, in the season which marks the 20th anniversary of Bucky Dent's "wind–blowing–out" home run, what better ending could there be than a Yankee playoff collapse. Just imagine a shot into the bullpen of Yankee Stadium by the unmighty Mike Benjamin to seal game seven for the BoSox.

• It may be now or never in Beantown. With Mo Vaughn potentially on his way out, I wouldn't be surprised if Dan Duquette was scouting one of those nine children to play first. After all, the child's intelligence would fittingly match that of Boston's front office.

Aaron Saykin is a Collegian staff member.

UMass, UConn set to renew rivalry today

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

The date Sept. 16 was circled on the calendar a long time ago for both the Massachusetts and Connecticut women's soccer teams.

These two regional rivals will take the field this afternoon for the 32nd time at 4 p.m. at Joseph J. Morrone Stadium in Storrs, Conn.

It has always been a hard-fought contest whenever UMass and UConn have squared off, and today's affair should be no different.

"They [UConn] are a great team and are off to a wonderful start," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said. "It's going to be a tough game."

UConn, the reigning national runner-up and current No. 4 team in the country, enters today's matchup with a 4–0 mark.

The Huskies beat UMass 2–1 last year in Amherst behind the strong play of All–American Sara Whalen.

Whalen may not be around this time, but the Minutewomen will have to deal with twins Margaret and Jennifer Tietjen, sophomore forward Jen Carlson, and freshman forward Mary–Francis Monroe, who leads the team with 11 points thus far.

"We're not in a position to try to play any type of matchups against those players," Rudy said. "We're going to come up with a system and try to keep within that style of play."

The Minutewomen, who are riding the heels of an exciting 2–1 win against Evansville on Sunday, were

Soccer

UMass-UConn Women's Soccer
Joseph J. Morrone Stadium
Game time 4 p.m.
Pre–game 3:45 p.m.
91.1 FM, WMUA
Michael Kobylanski — play by play
Matt Perrault — color dealt another setback yesterday.

Sophomore Brooke Bartlett, who netted the only goal for UMass in the game last year with the Huskies, broke her left collarbone and will be out of commission for at least six weeks.

She joins a growing list of injured Minutewomen which includes Kate Webb, Martha Conover and Robin Smith. In addition, Cindy Garceau, Molly McGrew, Sophie Lecot and Katelyn Jones are also nursing injuries.

"It's almost as if anything could go wrong for us, it has," Rudy said. "For about as up as they [UConn] have been, that's about as down as we have been. But we're starting to show some signs of life, and we want to go out there and be competitive and win."

Leading the way for UMass will be junior Emma Kurowski, Lecot and sophomore forward Kara Green. The "Three Amigas," as they are also known, have provided much of the offensive punch for the Minutewomen this season.

Needless to say, nothing would be more satisfying for UMass to take another step in the right direction and turn the same trick that UConn did last year: win on their opponents' home turf.

"I wouldn't look at it as revenge, because that connotes that something vicious happened, which it didn't," Rudy said. "It was a game that was played well on both sides. We're looking forward to it [today's game]. It's going to be a heck of a challenge."

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Brooke Bartlett netted UMass' only goal last year in a 2–1 loss to UConn, but will be a mere spectator this afternoon after breaking her left collarbone in practice yesterday.

Field hockey in midst of tough road swing

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

It is understandable that the members of the Massachusetts field hockey team may have groaned when they first looked at the 1998 schedule.

After a season–opening pair of games at home, the Minutewomen are in the middle of a six–game road swing, and they won't see game action on the turf at Richard F. Garber Field until Oct. 7.

The Minutewomen will play at Harvard today at 3:30 p.m. However, UMass coach Patty Shea believes that such rigorous travel shouldn't be a factor in how the Minutewomen perform in any of the road contests.

"I think any travel leaves your team tired," said Shea, who hasn't discussed the time away from campus. "We can't use that as an excuse. Great teams overcome adversity."

Indeed, UMass showed it can handle challenges on the road with its 4–2 win over No. 9 James Madison on Sunday. The victory came after a 2–0 loss to top–ranked Virginia the day before, but that could even be considered a moral victory by some.

Now, the Minutewomen's task is to turn their attention to the Crimson, which has split its first two home games against Rhode Island (a 2–1 URI win) and Vermont (a 5–0 Harvard win).

"Harvard a very good team. They have a great core of returning starters and excellent goaltending," Shea said.

Anya Cowan, who represents the Crimson's last line of defense, was a second team All–Ivy pick last season with a goals against average and save percentage that ranked among the nation's top 15.

This year, Cowan has made five saves to earn a .714 save percentage and a 1.00 GAA.

At the other end of the field, two–time All–Ivy player Judy Collins, a Crimson co–captain, will lead the Harvard offense. She currently leads the team with two goals and an assist.

The primary focus for the Minutewomen, however, will be maintaining the consistency that earned UMass its win over JMU.

"I think we have to pick up momentum [from any win]," Shea said. "We have to continue to make the changes necessary to improve."

Two players who have picked up momentum recently, helping the Minutewomen's improvement, are freshman back Anke Bruemmer and sophomore back Patty Robinson.

Bruemmer, the primary hitter on penalty corners, netted two goals on corners against the Dukes, while Robinson has solidified the UMass defense.

"Anke has played very consistently," Shea said. "Patty has really stepped it up, she's quietly doing a great job back there."

UM men's soccer hosts UNH today

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's soccer team will get another shot for win No. 1 of the season today at 3:30 p.m. when it will host the University of New Hampshire.

UMass enters the game with an 0–3–1 mark, and are coming off a tough 3–2 loss over Maine on Saturday afternoon. UNH arrives in Amherst with a 2–2–1 mark, but have recorded wins against lower echelon teams Providence and Georgia St.

Leading the way for the Wildcats will be sophomore forward Adam Purcell. The Barrington, R.I. native has three goals on the year to lead the team in scoring. Right behind Purcell is sophomore midfielder Andy Karam, who has four assists for UNH. Junior goalkeeper Mitch Osman should get the start in the net for the Wildcats this afternoon.

On the UMass side of things, a struggling offense rose from the dead to score its first two goals of the year in the loss to Maine. Seth Lilburn and Brad Kurowski had the tallies for the Minutemen in that one. Other offensive threats include James Redmond and Adam Black. Junior netminder Todd Fowler will also be a key for UMass if the Minutemen come away with a win this afternoon.

Todd has played well for us thus far," Massachusetts coach Sam Koch said. "He made some nice saves [against Maine]."

The Wildcats will take the field today looking to avenge a 2–1 loss at the hands of the Minutemen last year. Lilburn scored the tying goal in that game before Ioenal Castima won it in overtime for UMass. The Minutemen hold a career 22–8–5 advantage over UNH in the all–time series.

UMass will then head to Fresno, Calif. this weekend for the Gold Rush Classic. They will play Fresno State on Friday night at 11 p.m. and UNLV on Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts field hockey team will battle Harvard today at 3:30 p.m. in Cambridge.

The Rob Blake saga and other notes from the NHL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ray Ferraro, working his way back from knee injury, looks around the Los Angeles Kings training camp and doesn't see star defenseman Rob Blake. That worries the veteran center.

"We cannot win without him," Ferraro said yesterday. "He's the Norris Trophy winner for a reason and we need him."

Three days into camp, Blake is a holdout as contract negotiations drag on. Also missing are goaltender Jamie Storr, defenseman Aki Berg and left wing Matt Johnson. The Kings don't allow players not under contract to be in camp.

"I'd like to see all the players in camp. I don't think it helps them," Kings general manager Dave Taylor said.

In Blake's case, the dollars being bandied about are big. He's coming off one of his best seasons. He was the NHL's top-scoring defenseman with 23 goals and received the Norris Trophy as the league's best at his position. The restricted free agent has spent eight seasons with the Kings.

Taylor said he last spoke to Blake's agent, Ron Salcer, on Sunday, but no future meetings were scheduled.

"Hopefully, we'll touch base in the next few days," Taylor said.

The team reportedly offered Blake a five-year deal worth $25 million, but he apparently wants more.

"This might be his one kick of the cat, where he's got some leverage," Ferraro said. "I don't think I've heard him say once the offer is poor. It's a lot of money, but he looks around and he says, 'I won the Norris, so maybe it's worth a little more.'"

Ferraro worries that Blake's holdout could last a while.

"If Blakey's out for a month, for the whole training camp, it's going to take time for a guy his size and his style of play to get back into game shape. I know he's burning to come in and play."

So is Ferraro, who was limited to a career-low 40 games after injuring his left knee in the third game last season. He underwent surgery and was able to play in 51 of the final 43 games.

"I feel OK in scrimmage games. I don't fear I'm going to hurt it anymore," he said. "I feel I can still contribute and score 20-plus goals."

Berg, also a restricted free agent, wants to play for the Kings, but it doesn't seem likely. The 21-year-old apparently is close to a deal with a team in his native Finland. Berg would require waivers if he returned to the Kings during the season.

The Kings have received a contract proposal from Storr's agent and are preparing to respond.

"I wouldn't say it's [the money] particularly close," Taylor said.

In other training camp news:

• Coyotes defenseman Keith Carney signed a multiyear contract with the Phoenix Coyotes yesterday. Terms or the length of the contract were not disclosed.

Carney, 28, had been a restricted free agent. He played in 80 games last season with the Chicago Blackhawks and Phoenix, setting career highs in assists (19) and points (22). He also scored one power-play goal and one shorthanded.

Carney spent four seasons with Chicago before he was traded last March to Phoenix along with Jim Cummins in exchange for Jayson More and Chad Kilger. Carney, a member of Team USA at the 1998 Winter Olympics in Nagano, Japan, was expected to join the Coyotes' veteran players at training camp today.

• Canadiens Trent McCleary, a journeyman right wing who once played under coach Alain Vigneault in Ottawa, has been given a tryout at the Montreal Canadiens training camp.

"He works hard," Vigneault said yesterday of McCleary, a checking forward who had four goals in 75 games in 1995-96 for Ottawa, where Vigneault was assistant to coach Rick Bowness at the time. "I spoke to (pro scouts) Mario Tremblay and Pierre Mondou and everyone in the organization thinks he can help us."

McCleary, 26, was traded to Boston in 1996 and spent last season in the minors.

• Red Wings: The Red Wings are happy to see Doug Brown in training camp. The feeling is mutual.

"It was a hectic summer, not knowing where I was going to be playing," Brown said. "I'm just glad both sides could work it out so I could come back to Detroit."

Brown, one of the heroes of Detroit's second straight Stanley Cup victory last season, was picked by the Nashville Predators in the NHL expansion draft in June and reacquired by the Red Wings a month later.

"We knew how valuable he was to our hockey team," Red Wings general manager Ken Holland said yesterday. "That's why we tried to get him back."

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 7 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, September 17, 1998

They're here

The new fall shows — "Join the returning ones, led by Emmy winning Lisa Kudrow and "Friends." Check out our preview (see Arts & Living, page 5).

An assist isn't enough

Freshman forward Kristi Robicheau had the lone assist for the defeated UMass women's soccer team yesterday in a 4–1 loss to UConn (see Sports, page 14).

WORLD

Former president urges protesting

TIRANA, Albania (AP) — Threatened with arrest, Albania's former president urged followers yesterday to break through blockades if police try to stop them from joining new anti-government protests.

About 1,500 supporters cheered Sali Berisha at his Democratic Party headquarters, where his bodyguards brandished semiautomatic rifles in defiance of a government order to hand over weapons by dawn yesterday.

The latest unrest began with the weekend assassination of popular politician Azem Hajdari, which touched off two days of rioting in this impoverished Balkan nation.

The violence has raised fears of a repeat of months of anarchy last year following the collapse of pyramid schemes that cost many people their life's savings. Berisha was president during the crisis and lost elections in its aftermath.

Berisha has been seeking to return to power, tapping outrage over Hajdari's killing, which many blame on the government. There is also widespread disappointment with the government's inability to revive the economy.

NATION

California vineyards fail to meet guidelines

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A sweeping federal investigation of California's grape vineyards shows that nearly 80 percent of the industry violates farm worker protections.

The study, released by the U.S. Labor Department yesterday, also found that many labor contractors used by grape growers fail to meet minimum wage and other workplace guidelines.

The problems run the gamut, from not posting worker protections and shoddy record-keeping to underage and underpaid workers to unsafe housing and transportation.

On a positive note, investigators found a relatively high compliance rate with rules on child labor, health and safety, with the number of those violations going in comparison to cases of unfair wages.

"Nothing like this has ever been done to focus on the industry," said George Friday Jr., acting regional administrator of the department's Wage and Hour Division in San Francisco.

The Labor Department has levied $43,200 in civil penalties and awarded $39,654 in back pay to 369 workers as a result of its first in-depth inspection of the nation's wine-producing business.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 80	HIGH: 71	HIGH: 80
LOW: 51	LOW: 50	LOW: 61

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 12
Comics.....page 13
Crossword .....page 13
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 12
News.....page 2
Sports .....page 14

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegion

Secretary–General Kofi Annan urges globalization of education

By Stacey Shackford
Collegian Correspondent

United Nations Secretary–General Kofi Annan addressed a crowd of 3,000 yesterday on the library lawn at Hampshire College. His speech, entitled "Knowledge and Civilization," addressed the role of education in the age of globalization and the crisis of knowledge in the Third World.

Shortly after 5 p.m., Annan entered the tent erected outside the Hampshire Library to a standing ovation in rhythm to the beat of the Senganbian Drum Ensemble. He was joined on stage by United Nation dignitaries and Five College staff members, including University of Massachusetts Chancellor David K. Scott.

The main focus of Annan's speech was globalization and the concern that education is one of the only aspects of society that is not being globalized.

"In an age where the acquisition and advancement of knowledge is a more powerful weapon in a nation's arsenal than any missile or mine, the knowledge gap between the North and South is widening," Anann said. "Unless we embark urgently on a program of globalizing the generation of and access to knowledge, the unequal development of the world will only continue."

He promised to use his role as secretary–general of the United Nations to make universal access to knowledge central to development activities in countries around the world. He said that he will work with ministers of education and education experts to improve national educational systems as a way of preserving global diversity.

"Restoring a global culture of knowledge must and will be a priority for the United Nations system of the next century," he said.

Appointed as secretary–general in Dec. 1996, Annan has been a career U.N. official since 1962. In his career, he dealt with refugee crises in Rwanda, Zaire, and Tanzania, oversaw the withdrawal of UN forces from Somalia in 1994, and took over peacekeeping operations in Bosnia in 1995.

But it is his role as a negotiator in Iraq that has awarded him the most recognition. In March he reached an agreement with Saddam Hussein for unrestricted inspection of Iraqi weapons.

In a press conference following the lecture, Annan briefly responded to questions about renewed conflicts with Iraq. He acknowledged that relations with Iraq have been difficult and that unless Iraq changes its position about weapons inspection, an escalated United Nations presence in Iraq may be required.

However, Annan's lecture was fundamentally about education, a topic embraced by the more than 2,000 students in attendance. Students also performed and participated directly in the proceedings. A group of Hampshire College students presented Annan with a check for $10,000 to help build schools in Africa.

Another group of students made a presentation concerning the failure of the United States government to pay the $1.6 billion it owes in past dues. As part of the presentation, a Hampshire student passed a hat around, asking about a suggested donation of $500,000 per participant, while another student unveiled a large sign depicting a thermometer with the words, "Our Goal, $1.6 Billion."

Annan responded warmly to their contribution, and later commented that he was fascinated by the energy and enthusiasm of the students.

Many students interviewed after the lecture said that they were impressed with Annan's commitment to education.

Turn to EDUCATION, page 2

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan speaks at Hampshire College yesterday evening.

Local banks offer students range of accounts and rates

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

While you might not talk about the depletion of funds on Wall Street, awareness of financial issues is growing at the University of Massachusetts. More and more students want to know how to invest their college funds in the right type of bank.

With more than 20 banks in the local area, some students may be concerned about how they can get the best out of their banking needs. While it may not seem like an important issue to some, the banking choice that students make now can affect their financial position later.

Most loan companies or automobile insurance dealers prefer clients with a good credit history or current credit standing. Also, because some people do prefer banks that back up student's checking accounts so in case a check they write bounces, the banks will cover account–holders with reserve credit.

Meanwhile, others may feel a bank that gives access to their account over the computer allows convenience that no other bank could provide. These are some of the many important issues that students are concerned with when deciding to side with a bank.

Some of the numerous banks that offer assistance to students in the Amherst area includes BankBoston, Fleet Bank, Springfield Institution for Savings Bank (SIS) and the UMass Five College Federal Credit Union.

For UMass students looking for a bank that will guarantee a high–equity loan rate, many may want to look into the UMass Five College Credit Union, whose rate is 11.9 percent.

In regards to savings account interest rates, SIS and BankBoston offer the highest return rate of 2.0 percent. The bank with the lowest return rate for is Fleet Bank, whose checking interest rate is .75 percent and savings interest rate is 1.49 percent.

The bank with the most ATMs available on campus is BankBoston. With two ATMs in the Campus Center and one in the Newman Center, BankBoston offers its customers convenience and security. But it also allows non–customers to access its ATMs for a surcharge of $1 as of the end of September.

The bank with the least ATMs on campus is the Five College Credit Union, whose only ATM is available on 6 University Dr.

For those students looking for a bank that offers free service, SIS features free accounts and free unlimited use of ATMs. Checking accounts are free of charge and customers can have access to unlimited check use.

The bank whose branch is most available to students is the UMass Five College Credit Union whose location is in the Student Union. The bank is only available to UMass stu-

Turn to BANKS, page 3

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Eleonora Del Federico of Amherst uses an ATM machine in the campus center.

Class size increasing at UMass, as retiring faculty go unreplaced

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Large classes, like this one in Marcus Hall, are becoming more common at the University of Massachusetts.

By Jill Carroll
Collegian Staff

Reducing the number of tenured faculty is saving money for the University of Massachusetts, but causing some of its departments to struggle to offer the same class choices.

"Basically we had no one replaced and several retired," said Jenny Spencer, president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors and English professor, of the department's declining faculty numbers in recent years. "There are fewer classes, there are larger classes and a lot of the required classes don't get taught on a regular basis."

As funds grow tighter, some departments are not receiving enough money to replace faculty that have left. In the past several years there has been a steady decrease in the number of tenure, tenure–track faculty, while there has been an increase of 904 in student enrollment.

During the 1997–98 academic year there were 1,093 tenure and tenure–track faculty. A year earlier there was 1,115. There was a drop from 1,175 tenure and tenure–track faculty in 1994–95 to 1,139 in 1995–96. And compared to 10 years ago, there has been a loss of 272 tenure and tenure–track positions.

"We're not going to have tenure and tenure–track but that doesn't mean we're going to exploit people," said Lee Edwards, dean of the College of Humanities and Fine Arts.

"Right now [the number of tenure faculty] is projected to go back up, but slowly," said Joyce Abel, director of

Turn to FACULTY, page 3

SGA discusses off-campus behavior

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

Drinking, partying, and generally acting irresponsible are,– according to Jodi Bailey, a member of the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association (SGA), traits many Amherst residents use to describe off campus students.

Bailey, the associate speaker of the undergraduate student senate, and other members of SGA are working hard to change what they feel is a misconception, through building a better relationship with the town of Amherst. Last spring, a UMass–Amherst Partnership committee was created to foster this new relationship.

Chancellor Scott, said Bailey, has recently been endorsing an off campus code of conduct.

"We do not want it used; we pay rent to be citizens of this town. The University has no say in what goes on in our homes."

Bailey also said students not only pay a lot of money to live in Amherst, but they also contribute immensely to the town's commerce. According to information compiled by the Collegian, students spend an average on $15 each on restaurant visits; there are over 38 restaurants in the town of Amherst.

"Probably 1 percent of students cause the problems," said Bailey. "The other 99 percent are good people. Most students are good neighbors who care about where they live."

Bailey cited lack of non–alcoholic activities as a possible reason that these 1 percent may be behaving irresponsibly.

"Think about it — there are so many bars downtown: what else is there for students to do late at night?" she said.

The Partnership committee last met Sept. 2, and Bailey said past meetings have left some room for improvement. "The meeting went fine. I disagree with some things that have occurred, but if there is a willingness to change, it will get better," she said.

Bailey also said the partnership is looking into creating a hotline during business hours for Amherst residents; including students. Some problems that might be alleviated by a hotline call are a negligent landlord or a loud party.

The committee has also decided to try and get both UMass and Amherst police to patrol off–campus communities. But Bailey said

Turn to SGA, page 3

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Feeling the beat

Justin Corby, "Ine," and Chip Dunn of Sunderland (from left to right) play handmade drums in Amherst center yesterday afternoon.

Clinton fights a Capitol struggle

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Speaker Newt Gingrich told fellow Republicans on yesterday that President Clinton's own account of his relationship with Monica Lewinsky depicts him as a "misogynist," GOP congressional sources said. Gingrich argued forcefully for releasing a videotape of Clinton's grand jury testimony.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that at a closed-door meeting of GOP lawmakers Gingrich detailed Clinton's version of events in his relationship with the young aide — multiple episodes in which the president received oral sex without touching her sexually and with no instances of sexual intercourse. If that account is to be believed, Gingrich said, Clinton's behavior is that of a "misogynist," a word the dictionary defines as a hatred of women.

Gingrich made the comment as he argued against a suggestion that Republicans reconsider plans to release a videotape of the president's Aug. 17 grand jury testimony.

The full Judiciary Committee is to meet today in closed-door session and is expected to vote to release the videotape — over the objection of Democrats — as well as other evidence. Asked what recourse Democrats have, the panel's senior Democrat, Rep. John Conyers of Michigan replied, "Resist."

In the weekly GOP caucus, or conference, Gingrich noted the House had voted last week to release the material that Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr had compiled as evidence of impeachable offenses. The speaker said Clinton's lawyers continue to mount a legalistic defense, these sources added.

The speaker made his comments as the GOP point man in the impeachment review, Rep. Henry Hyde (R-Ill.) conceded "youthful indiscretions" with a woman more than three decades ago, at a time when both were married to others. Hyde was 41 at the time. He issued the statement as Salon Magazine, an online publication, circulated copies of an article detailing an alleged affair between Hyde and the woman in the 1960s.

In his statement, Hyde said, "The only purpose for this being dredged up now is an obvious attempt to intimidate me, and it won't work. I intend to fulfill my constitutional duty and deal judiciously with the serious felony allegations presented to Congress."

For his part, Clinton urged the public and Congress to avoid getting "mired in all the details" of his relationship with Lewinsky.

Asked whether he might resign, he declined to answer yes or no, responding instead that Americans "want me to go on." He would not respond to questions about whether he had committed perjury or whether Lewinsky told the truth when she described their White House trysts.

According to several sources, Hyde earlier told the GOP caucus that he had heard that friends of the White House had hired two law firms to dig up embarrassing information about prominent Republicans. These sources said Hyde provided no details, and the White House has denied any such "scorched earth strategy."

He later told reporters that the issue had come up last week at a meeting with senior administration officials, and that Deputy Chief of Staff John Podesta and White House counsel Charles Ruff assured him the White House would not tolerate such actions.

Christina Martin, Gingrich's press secretary, issued a statement that did not confirm the speaker's closed-door remarks but said: "Speaking with great clarity and a calm focus, the speaker reminded members that we have a duty to the American people as voted on by Republicans and Democrats alike that includes giving the public access to all the facts."

Taliban arranging visit to Bamiyan

By Nicole Winfield
Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Afghanistan's Taliban leaders and the United Nations are trying to arrange for a U.N. team to go to Afghanistan following the Taliban takeover of a key province.

The Taliban's invitation for a humanitarian team to go to Bamiyan comes amid reports that Taliban troops carried out mass killings after its takeover of the northern city of Mazar-e-Sharif. The U.N. refugee agency reported Tuesday that people fleeing the city reported a "killing frenzy" following the Taliban's Aug. 8 takeover.

Reports from Iran, which the Taliban say is backing the anti-Taliban alliance that has been driven from 90 percent of Afghanistan, have said similar slayings happened in the capture of Bamiyan.

Tensions between the neighboring countries have escalated following the deaths of eight Iranian diplomats and one journalist during the Taliban attack on Mazar-e-Sharif.

Today in Iran, hundreds of men and women demonstrated against the Taliban and condemned Pakistan, which is believed to provide Afghanistan's religious militia with military and other support. The demonstrators read a statement that also accused the United States of interfering in Afghanistan.

U.S. intelligence is closely following the troop movements along the Iran-Afghanistan border, the key Clinton administration goal is to avoid being drawn into any hostilities.

Iranian troops headed to the Afghanistan border today for maneuvers, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported. The divisions will join the bulk of the 70,000 troops that took part in maneuvers earlier this month along the same border.

Iran's supreme leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, put the military on full alert Tuesday as the public and newspapers called for the killings to be avenged.

■ education

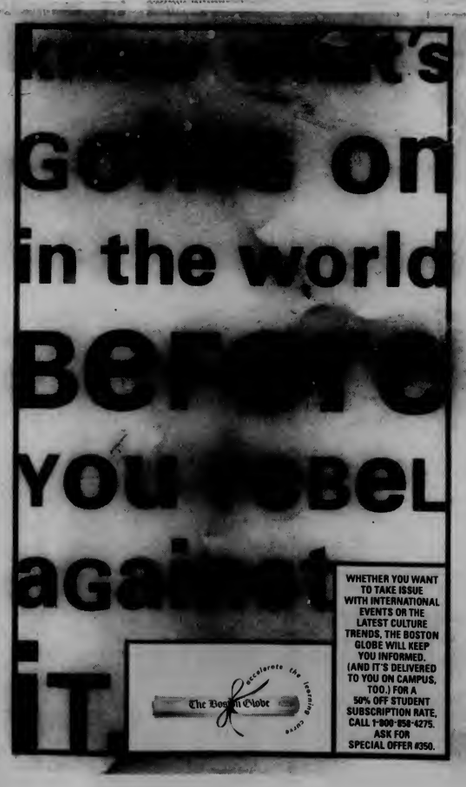
continued from page 1



"I was impressed that a prominent political figure had a long range view in terms of education that was not sensationalist," said Hampshire College transfer student Matthew Latkiewicz.

Students such as Ai Takeuchi and Dina Morad, both first-year students at Mount Holyoke College, said that the lecture made them realize how lucky they were to be receiving a higher education.

"I was involved in Model United Nations in high school, so I was very interested in the topic. I thought it was a special and exciting opportunity, and afterwards felt spoiled compared to other people," Morad said.

The speech was delivered as the inaugural lecture of the Eqbal Ahmad Lecture series. Ahmad, a retired Professor of Politics and Middle Eastern Studies at Hampshire College, attended the lecture and was well received by students in the crowd.

■ faculty

continued from page 1

the academic budget.

However, the number of full-time faculty and non-tenure positions, after declining through the mid 1990s, has been on the rise slightly as visiting and other faculty are being hired.

According to records provided by Marilyn Blaustein, director of the Office of Institutional Research, in fall 1997 there were 1,213 full time positions in the academic ranks and there were 23,932 enrolled students.

In fall 1992 there were 1,195 full-time faculty positions for 23,028 enrolled students.

In fall 1988 there were 1,332 full time faculty and 26,504 which was the "high water mark" for enrolled students.

"The loss since 1988 is a long story of reducing the budget on the state's side some of which was offset by student fees and other fundraising," Abel said.

Contributing to the loss of faculty is an early retirement buy-out program that was concluded last December. The salary for any faculty that left through the program does not completely roll back into the department to hire new faculty.

The department receives 35 percent of the salary while the remaining 65 percent goes into a pool of funds which are re- allocated by the chancellor for various uses throughout the University, not necessarily to hire personnel.

While more non-tenure faculty are being hired, they may not be hired to fill a position in the same department that lost a faculty member.

Several departments in the humanities have been feeling the pinch the drop in tenure and tenure track faculty has caused.

In addition to the English department, the journalism department has lost five faculty members over the last 10 years reducing the total number of positions to five.

"The economic pressure on all of us has forced us to be more resourceful," Edwards said.

But not all departments are having trouble. In the political science department, faculty are being replaced.

"They don't get replaced in their field. We used to have four people who could cover the Middle East, now we have none," said Eric Einhorn, a professor in the political science department. "We really haven't in recent years seen in here. We're not one of the departments that were hurt."

Shrinking numbers of tenure faculty is a worry for many.

"I did a faculty survey for our bargaining priorities that was the one thing people were most concerned about," Spencer said.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Take a seat

At the UMass Housing Services Furniture Expo, senior Renee Foster tests chairs yesterday afternoon.

■ SGA

continued from page 1

that she does not want to see a repeat of what happened last year at Hobart Lane.

On May 2, the student-populated development, hosted nearly 40 Amherst police, in preparation for a "Hobart Hoe- Down." Students claimed they never even planned to have the reputed party.

"Police do not need to take those kinds of drastic measures," Bailey said.

Other SGA members involved in the Partnership Committee are Lisa Cook, Elly Court, Salwa Shamapande, Avi Khanna, Resa Singleton, Bron Tamulis and Seth Avakian.

The next committee meeting will take place the first week of October and will be open to the public.

■ banks

continued from page 1

dents at the Amherst campus and working students from the Five Colleges.

To ease growing technology's demands, all banks in the Amherst area offer direct deposit for students. This allows students to transfer paychecks or loans directly into their account without having to receive and cash checks.

"We are here to serve the students in a long-term relationship," Five College Credit Union manager Francine Frenier said. "Once a member, always a member."

For more information or to set up an account, contact the any of the banks' local branches.

COLLEGIAN NEWS: YOUR SOURCE FOR EVERYTHING IMPORANT.

HOT CLUB
SPRINGFIELD'S NEWEST AND LARGEST ENTERTAINMENT COMPLEX
SWINGERS...Swing Club
BELL BOTTOMS...70s & 80s Club
THE MONKEY BAR...Top 40 Club
MY MARTINI...Martini & Cigar lounge
THURSDAY
SPRINGFIELD'S BIGGEST COLLEGE NIGHT
SWING DANCE LESSONS 7-8PM
FRIDAY
Featuring the $1000 Hot Bod Contest!
Male & Female 18 plus w/ college ID
DOORS OPEN AT 5PM FOR THE AFTER WORK Cool Down
SWING DANCE LESSONS 7-8PM 21 plus
SATURDAY
SATURDAY PRIME TIME
THE HOT CLUB IS THE ONLY PLACE TO BE!
SWING DANCE LESSONS 7-8PM 21 plus
THE HOT CLUB IS OPEN THURS, FRI & SAT TIL 3AM • 21+ PROPER ID REQUIRED
10 12 STEARNS SQUARE • SPRINGFIELD (formerly Sh-Booms) • For more info call 413-781-4509

Judicial Hearing Board

A great experience for students who

❖ are interested in campus leadership ❖
❖ wish to improve communication and listening skills ❖
❖ are enrolled full time ❖
❖ have at least a 2.0 G.P.A. ❖
❖ are not on judicial sanction ❖

APPLY NOW TO BE A HEARING BOARD MEMBER
Training held in the Campus Center from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. on:
October 6 & October 5
Room 903 Room 811-15

Applications available at:
Residential Cluster Offices
The Dean of Students Office
Student Government Association

APPLICATION DEADLINE:
5:00 p.m. September 28, 1998

Any questions? Please contact:
Paul Vasconcellos or Jolene Crook
Dean of Students Office
227 Whitmore
Phone: 545-2684

We Have
(Exercise Bike Classes)
Full Schedule
Personal Training
Friendly Atmosphere
Tanning
Aerobics - Full Schedule
Cardio Theater
Great Hours
Multi-Level Balconies
New Entrance
Trained Staff
Fruit Smoothies, Supplements, Health Drinks
Pre Cors, Bikes, Rowers, Treadmills, Stairclimbers
The area's only
we have IMPROVED!
we have EXPANDED!
we have WHAT YOU WANT!
Tennis & Fitness Center

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
part-time study for people of all ages
FALL 1998
SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE
● Nearly 100 credit courses - in the evening! Including:
Intro to Arts Management
Public Speaking
Environmental Health Sciences
Corporation Finance
Interpreter's Studies
Intro to Public Relations
Human Resource Management
Energy Healing In Nursing Practice
Online Course: Sioux Families of the Pine Ridge Reservation
● Opportunities to enroll in University day courses
● Part-time degree programs, both graduate and undergraduate
Bachelor of General Studies
Master's in Library and Information Studies
M.S. in Labor Studies
Master of Music Education
M.S. in Plant & Soil Sciences
Master's in Education
MBA Professional Program
RN to BS in Nursing
Master of Public Health
Classes begin September 14
For a free course catalog, call 413-545-0107 or e-mail continued@admin.umass.edu
www.umass.edu/continued/ for updated course information
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts Amherst
a quality education at an affordable price

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Give access a chance

Joe Sullivan

Back in January, the issue of student access to course evaluations via a standardized form for all classes bubbled up from the ooze of this and other state educational institutions' internal politics.

The question was, should undergraduates have access to those evaluations filled out at the conclusion of a course in order to gain insight into both the quality of the course and the quality of its instructor? Our Student Government Association, led by Eleanor Court's efforts as representative to the State Board of Higher Education, responded in the affirmative to this question and also proposed the creation of a standardized evaluation so that access could be gained more easily. The Board of Higher Ed, met with support from faculty and administrators with something to hide, denounced the proposal.

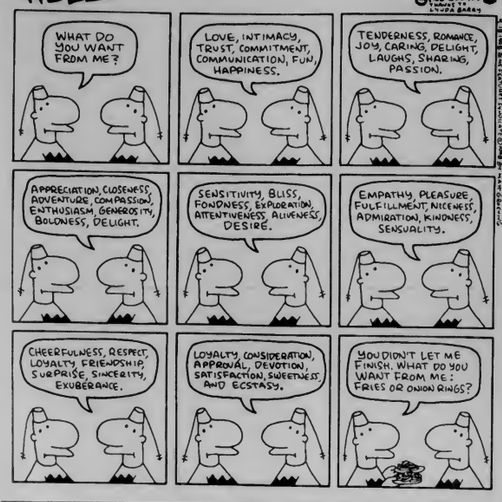
It was noted at the time of this initial controversy that access to evaluations was nothing new since several states, Colorado, Florida, Washington and Wisconsin had already enacted this policy at all state universities. The bigger question that also made the argument for access seem viable was, "shouldn't the public have access to evaluations on state employees, people whose salaries are paid by the public?" Though the answer to this question logically is "yes," and the precedents for access to evaluations are there, students are no closer to gaining access than they were last spring. Why?

Let's look at the current state of affairs.

On Sept. 9, it was reported that access to evaluations was not included in the latest faculty contract, which is waiting for approval from both the Governor and the state legislature. The legislature does not meet until January, so in the interim, the current contract suggests a task force of students, faculty and administrators be formed to research the issue and provide recommendations for whether or not access to evaluations should be allowed. Having sent letters to all UMass students' families urging them to contact the Governor, and placing a full page ad in this paper last week, the SGA wants access to happen, and it cannot happen without the task force. The problem now is, the task force is inoperative.

It was also reported that the task force has yet to get off the ground because administrators have yet to be appointed. Associate Chancellor Susan Pearson, presumably the individual responsible for these appointments, was unavailable for comment as to why nothing has been done. This should be a major point of concern for all students.

We all know that Whitmore is disorganized and inefficient. We all know that it takes its time and twiddles its thumbs while we are left to pick up the pieces. But what if Whitmore's shortcomings were due not to the ineptitude of several of the individuals working there, but instead due to a calculating, manipulative element which thrives on the notion of the status quo? The way things appear right now, Whitmore is intentionally blocking the examination of a policy for access to course evaluations. By withholding administrative appointments to the task force, simple research on the issue of access cannot even take place, never mind getting the policy itself enacted.



We now must face the facts. Whitmore's intention is to avoid appointing the administrative representatives to the task force until after the legislature has reconvened and signed the current faculty contract, avoiding inclusion of a provision for student access to course evaluations.

Why is the administration doing this? What do they have to gain by not allowing students information on courses and faculty paid for by the students? The answer to these questions are unclear, but one can speculate.

Perhaps the administration is afraid that student access to evaluations of courses and the faculty who teach them could lead to student access to administrative evaluations, exposing some unsavory elements in the administration that might incense and incite taxpayers to call for real reforms in the state's public education institutions. Perhaps on a personal level, an individual is attempting to create a crisis which only he or she can remedy, as part of a twisted plan to win praise with superiors.

Whatever the intention of Whitmore, students should be aware that it is the administration that is blocking access to evaluations from becoming a reality, and that they are doing it intentionally.

Joe Sullivan is a Collegian columnist.

Cheese slice inflation

Jamie Waldinger

It's no secret that on any given weekend night, you can find a mob of people crowded around the 12-foot storefront of Antonio's Pizza in downtown Amherst. This is common knowledge amongst anyone who has ever stayed in town long enough to see the sun rise and fall a few times.

You may or may not have noticed, however, that a few things at Antonio's have changed since last semester. Fear not, it's still the best place to get pizza in Amherst or to find anyone you might care to see on a Saturday night. But, the famous cheese slice, which once cost just a dollar, has experienced instantaneous inflation and now costs 25 percent more.

A dollar twenty-five. It's the toll you must pay when you hear, "Welcome to Worcestah;" it's how much you have to feed into a parking meter at Haigis Mall if you hope not to get a ticket before you get out of your lecture class. Now it's the price of a slice of cheese at Antonio's. Just about 25-cents too high if you ask me. And I'm sure you were about to.

This is a tragedy far worse than anything William Shakespeare could ever hope to bring to the stage. They've tried to raise the price before, but for whatever reason they brought it back down and through the end of last year you could still enjoy a cheese slice for just a dollar. This is no longer possible.

Why must we pay the extra quarter? Now, it's not the money that matters here, I'm not that much of a cheapskate. It's a matter of principle. I'm no stranger to the idea of paying more for nothing; just yesterday I bought a shrink-wrapped packet of handouts at the Textbook Annex for a mere $43. Every month I pay an extra $130 rent because my Puffton apartment has been "upgraded." To this day I still can't figure out what about it could possibly be considered an upgrade, except for the jungle print shower curtain, but that was our own addition.

The management at Antonio's enjoy a highly enviable market position. On any weekend night, when the bars let out at "closing time" (to let the words from that irritating summertime chorus echo in your brain one last time), herds of UMass and other Five College students come out of the woodwork and drop whatever cash they haven't spent at the bars on a slice of pizza or two. No one has been able to corner this market of drunken hungry students quite like Antonio's has.

Even the guy with the sausage cart can't compete. It's just another phenomenon of UMass that people have come to accept, along with "hippie beach", shower peepers and the violent mobs that appear on the first snowfall of every year (and I'm not condoning shower peeping or snowball mobs — the latter was responsible for shattered glass throughout my dorm room last fall — but they seem to be as regular a fixture around here as bad DC food, not to beat a dead horse).

The "cheese slice inflation" isn't the only new thing at Antonio's this year. You may or may not have noticed that the "old" red tables have been replaced by shiny new polished granite table-tops. What are these for? Is Martha Stewart coming to town? Is the manager bored and doesn't know what to do with all of the money that drops in his lap every night? I can't imagine what was wrong with the old tables, they matched the crimson of the pizza sauce perfectly.

Then last week I watched as they replaced the red, white and green awning that used to hang above the store window with a newer red, white and green awning. The old one lay to one side, and the only differences I could discern were that the new one was just a little bit cleaner, and the old one had a very small tear. Now, I understand the logic behind replacing dead swans with living swans, but I fail to see why Mr. Antonio needed to replace something that wasn't broken. He doesn't experiment with "barbecued pig's tongue' slices or 'nail clippings and basil' because he knows that what he has works just fine. Maybe he was at a loss for how else to spend this year's $5,000 "awning" budget, I don't know.

Were these improvements really necessary? Is this where my extra pizza money is going? What are the economics of this issue? Perhaps speculation on the Dow Jones has brought about a drastic rebound in pizza futures? It's over my head. I only got as far as Econ 104. But I do know this: Antonio's has a monopoly on the entire downtown Amherst scene after 1 a.m. I won't tell the members of the Justice Department that are prosecuting Microsoft if you don't.

Antonio's owes a great deal of their success to the students, and UMass is their raison d'etre. Mr. Antonio, I implore you, do us all a favor and bring back the dollar cheese slice.

Jamie Waldinger is a UMass student.

The heart of Cuba

Matthew Burke

I traveled to Cuba for two weeks this August. In a sense, I never made it back, for the man who left was not the man who returned. Visiting another world can have that effect, I guess.

That Cuba is isolated from the rest of the world is no accident: it is the central aim of the United States economic embargo. The Helms–Burton Act, which extends sanctions to all foreign companies dealing with Cuba, has been a powerful and cruelly wielded weapon.

And yet, inexplicably, I made many Cuban friends who welcomed me with open arms and showed me a kindness and generosity that I, as an American, could not have expected. One family, very poor, living in a makeshift shack welcomed me into their home and fed me dinner, sharing what little they had materially and opening wide to me a deep reservoir of dignity and kindness. Again and again I was humbled by such gifts of humanity.

It's hard to give much else in Cuba. There aren't any Walmarts in the Cuban towns, or many five-and-dimes either; mostly there is deprivation. I had trouble understanding this before I left, when I asked a friend who'd been there how much money to bring. "Not much, really. There's nothing to buy." Quite a concept for an American.

"There aren't any Walmarts in the Cuban towns, or many five–and–dimes either; mostly there is deprivation."

There aren't any sport utility vehicles in Cuba or BMWs. Most people ride bicycles (the kind without suspension or titanium frames). People with cars usually drive relics from the '50s, left over from the days before the embargo. Honking at dogs is the worst that the road rage gets. It is tempting for the traveler to romanticize the simplicity of life in Cuba and the kindness of her people; the ocean, the palms, lightening flashes across the sea at night. But anyone who does hasn't really been to Cuba.

After dinner with my new family, I learned about the storm that destroyed their previous home two years ago. Along with their house, the storm took their youngest son. He didn't die, but it wasn't he who survived. He had become someone else. The psychological services available to help him were limited. No special opinions, no specialized clinics. No haggling with the HMO.

Maribell, a young friend of the family, told me about her home and family. Her mother sold fruit from a cart, their only income. Their roof had been sagging for some time and was now falling in. It would cost $400 to fix, impossible for a family earning the equivalent of $3 or $4 a month.

In the United States, we are encouraged to imagine that suffering and unhappiness is a kind of failure, a byproduct of some absence, some lack of money, or beauty. But as Victor Frankle said, "If there is to be any meaning in life, there must be meaning in suffering and death — not failures, but irreducible facts of life. As surely as the Cuban people know life, they know this. To find meaning and dignity amidst the hardships of poverty is not to justify or rectify it, but it is the essential human task: to see one's life as it is and to determine its meaning.

Part of their answer is to be found in a Cuban saying: "It is a bitter wine, but it is our wine. In Cuba and the hood; it is a wine they drink together, and it matters less that it is bitter than that it is what they have."

When they heard that I was a student of psychology, my new friends made me promise that after completing my degree I'd come back to help their son. I will make good on my promise, but it is unlikely that I can really save them from that hardship. I think, rather, that they are the ones to save me. Their dignity, their wisdom, and their generosity made clear to me both how much I really have, and how much I lack.

"No importa que sea grande su casa," my friends told me as they gestured to the walls of their house, and then to their chests. "Lo importante es que sea grande su corazon." It doesn't matter the size of your house. What matters is the size of your heart.

Matthew Burke is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

Clinton defense self–funded

To the editor:

In her column "Explaining Clinton," Victoria Groves errs in taking my president to task for spending millions of dollars on defending himself. Individuals must raise their own funds for litigations they become involved in. My understanding from the back-page coverage of the scandal is that the first family has no financial power. They are bordering on bankruptcy because of their legal fees.

The era of which Mr. Starr and his investigation was born was one during which the public was going to be relieved of governmental intrusion into, say, banking. But when it serves the interests of the minority that voted against having an adulterer in public office, government's role evolves backwardly to patrolling the drive-in theater, inviting the press along.

The glare obscures the truths of the independent prosecutor's partisan prejudice, the non-existence of any check on the scope of his investigation or the public monies poured into it.

The point in explaining Clinton is whether the abandonment of rigor in a definitive approach to "lying" and "perjury" is as complete as when fitting Starr's actions to the term "justice." There are many dismaying conditions under which our Constitution deems the means by which actually guilty people are brought before their grand jury.

The fixation with the president's attempt to deny attorneys general (sic) the right to summon grand juries to the bathroom stall implicitly exonerates him of the harassment of Ms. Jones, out of rulings denying her attempt to try him for that nuance of legality of sex.

Glenn Foster
Amherst

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1992 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor–in–Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor
Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Fridays during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

THAT 70'S SHOW
Fox 8 p.m. Sundays
Starring Topher Grace

My pick for this season's most creative title. "That 70's Show" follows a lively bunch of polyester–clad high school students doing everything from streaking at a school assembly to enjoying an occasional joint. The groups' two main characters, played by Topher Grace and Laura Prepon are next–door neighbors and long–time pals.

Things get interesting as Topher's character continues his journey through puberty and the pair realize strange new feelings for each other. The supporting players include a goofy best friend, a handsome jock and his girlfriend and an utterly confused foreign exchange student. It's a mix of camp, butterfly collars and just enough teen angst. (Stephanie Tarantino)

Turn to FROSH, page 7

RETURNING SHOWS ANCHOR THE TUBE

THE SIMPSONS
FOX 8 p.m. Sundays

Now that "Seinfeld" has departed, the throne for TV satire is bestowed on the show that was smarter to begin with. Sure, it's had some animation competition from "South Park," and "King of the Hill," but nothing has come close to "The Simpsons'" crisp, always imaginative visuals and dry, ironic writing.

And it's no hyperbole to say that Homer has become one of the greatest television characters of all time. With a season that includes guess voices from Alec Baldwin, Kim Basinger, Ron Howard, George Carlin and yes, Cyndi Lauper, "The Simpsons" will continue to be the quiet leader in small screen entertainment. (Bryan McAllister)

Turn to OLDIES, page 6

Layout & Design by: Cynthia A. Greene

Another Massive onslaught

Boston was the latest stop for the innovation of Massive Attack. COURTESY ELODIE MONDZAIN

By Kevin Monahan
Collegian Staff

MASSIVE ATTACK
Avalon Ballroom
Sept. 14

BOSTON — A creative mixture of urban contemporary and experimental instrumentation. A head-on collision between hip-hop and psychedelic sampling. A cacophonic intersection of drum and bass, and beat rythmns. Call it what you will, just do NOT call it "trip-hop." The label for this genre of music is already tired and overused. The trio from Bristol, England proved Monday night in Boston that the brand of music they have created defies such easy-to-file labels.

It is unanimous that without Massive Attack there would be no Tricky or Portishead (not just because Massive Attack bought Geoff Barrow his first sampler). Most who understand the precedent set by their first album, 1991's Blue Lines, will argue that Massive Attack is one of the most innovative and influential bands of the 90s.

Reggae legend Horace Andy started things off with his quiet vocals on "Angel," the first song from their latest album, Mezzanine. For the second song, Robert del Naja (a.k.a. 3-D) and Grant Marshall (Daddy G) took from and center, while Andrew Vowles (Mushroom) stood his ground behind the turntables. 3-D and Daddy G took turns rapping on "Risingson," while the lyrics "toy like people make me boy like" resonated throughout the crowd. Guest vocalist Andy returned for "Man Next Door," which borrows its bassline from The Cure's "10:15 Saturday Night"— sampled from the original, then played on a live bass.

Liz Fraiser's appearance for the magically beautiful "Teardrop" was truly a treat. Other highlights include the reggae/hip-hop number "Karmacoma" from 1994's Protection and "Dissolved Girl" from Mezzanine. Fraiser returned for "Unfinished Symphony" the last song performed before returning for two encores, which included 3-D's menacing vocals on "Inertia Creeps" and an intense punk/metal guitar explosion closing incredibly up-tempo with intense strobes.

Core members 3-D, Daddy G and Mushroom were not on stage for more than half of the performance. Although they were excellent when they were visible, it would have been interesting to see them interact more with the guest musicians who carried the show.

Ranging from reggae, hip-hop, punk and jazz, Massive Attack's brand of instrumental beat music is undoubtedly trend-setting. Blue Lines opened up doors to an entirely different genre of music, and as they proved with Mezzanine and their live performances, Massive Attack will continue to do so.

■ oldies

continued from page 5

THE X-FILES
FOX 9 p.m. Sundays
Starring David Duchovny

Even after the excitement of the mediocre-at-best summer movie, it's inevitable that the "cultest" cult show is losing its steam after a disappointing last couple of episodes and some negative press from Duchovny.

So Chris Carter and company are ready for a change. The show's location switches from Vancouver to L.A. and the ante is upped with the Scully–Mulder relationship. That kiss (and more?) should come soon. The sooner the better. (B.M.)

ALLY MCBEAL
FOX 9 p.m. Mondays
Starring Calista Flockhart

"Ally McBeal" frightens me, it really does. Watching it as a woman must be fun, but watching it as a guy is just plain scary. Never before has the female mind been so exposed, albeit the Hollywood female mind. The ironic thing is that the show's writer is a guy, the ever-talented David E. Kelly, who is sure to have a few more surprises up his sleeve this season, including a guest appearance by John Ritter.

The next step? Actually winning those Emmys. But maybe "Ally" shouldn't have been entered in comedy or drama. It's more of a horror show. (B.M.)

BUFFY THE VAMPIRE SLAYER
W.B. 8 p.m. Tuesdays
Starring Sarah Michelle Gellar

The earlier, movie version of this show starred sideburns model Luke Perry. It's about a chirpy, blonde cheerleader who fights the terrors of the night. How on earth did this show ever get popular?

The answer to this question is simple: attractive, young people and snappy writing. Put these things into a show, and young people will watch. It is moodily lit, easy on the eyes, sometimes stupid, sometimes surprisingly lyrical.

This season, expect lots more kickboxing and sarcasm. While Buffy should have a slightly less "angsty" season with her nemesis Angel banished to hell, the romantic tangles of her friends Xander, Willow and Cordelia will add the soap opera edge that keeps the show enjoyably cheesy. (Rob Roensch).

MAD ABOUT YOU
NBC 8 p.m. Tuesdays
Starring Helen Hunt

It's underrated and overshadowed, but an Emmy win from Hunt makes "Mad About You" once again a talked-about show. More gossip should come considering this may be the series' last season.

The departure of "Seinfeld" was a blow to satire, and "Mad About You" will, I think, be an equal blow to romantic comedy. But it is getting a little old. This season should deal more with the baby and, better yet, feature a cameo appearance from Seinfeld himself. (B.M.)

DAWSON'S CREEK
W.B. 9 p.m. Wednesdays
Starring James Van Der Beek

At the end of last season, wishy–washy Dawson came to his senses, forgot about his fabulous hair for a second and finally kissed Joey, the girl–next–door–from–heaven that most guys I know would cut off their toes for. Their love affair will be shitted on to a back burner as new characters arrive to mess things up and to help spout the show's trademark bitchy, convoluted sentences.

The show has the same time slot as "90210," but bet on the "Creek." They've got prettier, more interesting girl characters, and James Van Der Beek has TV's largest forehead. That has to count for something. (R.R.)

FRIENDS
NBC 8 p.m. Thursdays
Starring Jennifer Aniston

Last season ended with Ross reciting his wedding vows to Emily, and then accidentally calling her "Rachel" during the wedding ceremony. It's just the latest in a long line of stupid things Ross has done, but at least it keeps the whole Ross–Rachel storyline going. Expect the love triangle to be a major focus of the new season, along with the Chandler– Monica romance. Phoebe's triplets, and Joey's one–man off– Broadway show. Friends ended last season on a frantic comic high. Hopefully all the heavy story lines won't weigh things down.

ER
NBC 10 p.m. Thursdays
Starring Anthony Edwards

Exit George Clooney, enter "Life Goes On's" Kellie Martin. I'm not sure it's a fair trade, but it should make things a bit more interesting. Clooney departs at the end of this year, but the producers are quiet as to how he'll leave. Meanwhile, Martin is a medical student named Lucy Knight who will have to shed comparisons to Noah Wyle's early days. With all the comings and goings, however, "ER" is still one of the best dramas on television. This is a show that thrives on chaos. (B.M.)

BOY MEETS WORLD
ABC 8 p.m. Friday
Starring Ben Savage

Simply put, "Boy Meets World" is the most delightfully cheesy show since "Saved By the Bell." And in a classic case of Mr. Belding–ism, their former teacher Mr. Feeny (also the next door neighbor and principal) joins Cory in college as a student. Man, this guy is everywhere. As will be Topanga, the obligatory love–of–his–life, and this season will feature Cory pondering her marriage proposal. Say "yes," Cory, you could never get a better name for a wife. (B.M.)

Young Hip Clothes
Roxy
Dollhouse
Esprit
Free People
Co - Operative
Bull Dog
Maui
Buggirl
Tag Rag
Angels
Buffalo
Michael Stars
CK Lingerie
& Lots More.
Shoes, too.
~Details~
Great Accessories
Clothing & Footwear
19 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst • 253-0300

FITNESS WORKSHOP
Nutritional Supplements
Pure Creatine 600 grams $35.00
Creatine Surge 60lbs $39.95
Whey Protein 2lbs $21.00
www.fitnessworkshop.com
Free Giveaways - Online Ordering
Offer good until Oct. 7th
1-877-FIT-WORK

Welcome back...
NOW GO AWAY!
Change is Good. Great advice. Nice people.
Travel accessories and backpacks sold here! European railpasses and international student ID cards issued on the spot!
Council Travel
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange
44 Main St., Amherst
(413) 256-1261
www.counciltravel.com

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount 18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441 Discount
Featuring "PABST BLUE RIBBON" $8.99 CSE BOTS.
KENDALL JACKSON CHARDONNAY $9.99 750 ML
KAHLUA $12.99 750 ML
SAM ADAMS OR CATAMOUNT OCTOBERFEST $9.99 12PK
GENUINE DRAFT $11.99 30 PK
GENUINE LIGHT DRAFT
"WOODCHUCK" CIDER 6/pk $4.99
Your Choice
CATAMOUNT Pete's mix/match two 6/pks.....
BECKS Mill City $9.95
Vodka 80° EVERYDAY PRICE! $8.99 1.75 lt
Check Out Russell's Indoor Wine Specials!
• Delivery Available • OPEN 9:00AM to 11:00PM • Visa/Mastercard • All Beers Plus Deposit •

Coming Mid September...
UltimateFitness
THE HEALTH AND FITNESS CENTER
Featuring the latest in Fitness Training & Equipment
"Everything You Need in a Gym and More!"
• Certified Personal Trainers
• Fitness Testing & Programming
• Nutritional Consultation
• Tanning
• Sauna
• Juice Bar & Supplements
Cardiovascular Equipment
• Stairmasters
• Precor Treadmills
• Lifecycle Recumbent Bikes
• Lifecycle Upright Bikes
• Precor Crosstrainers
State-of-the-Art Strength Training Equipment
• Bodymasters & Icarian Free Weights
• Cybex Circuit Training Equipment
Located in the Campus Plaza next to Liquors 44. For more information call 253-7571

BILLIARDS
10A BELCHERTOWN ROAD AMHERST, MA 01002 256-8284
Friday - 9:45 "The Stripper"
Saturday - 9:45 "Wack Daddy"
$1 Cover
Tuesday Night 7:30 8 Ball Tournament $5 per person
Mass' Best! 1998

■ frosh

continued from page 5

L.A. DOCTORS
CBS 10 p.m. Mondays
Starring Ken Olin

Please, stop the insanity. As if the onslaught of doctor shows wasn't enough with the imaginative "Chicago Hope" and the pulse–pounding "E.R." we now get another glamorized view of the medical world with Olin's "L.A. Doctors."

I don't know about you, but I'm a little sick of seeing the blood and guts. At least "Doctors" promises to be more about getting into the profession than actually about the profession, as four L.A. physicians attempt to share a private practice. But the buzz has been pretty poor, and the address is CBS, so unless you're one of the three existing Ken Olin fans. (Bryan McAllister)

HYPERION BAY
W.B. 9 p.m. Monday
Starring Mark Paul Gosselaar

Gosselaar (do I need to mention "Saved By the Bell"?) returns home to save his small town from economic doom. The target audience for this show is hard to determine, but its promise is intriguing. "The hardest thing about leaving home is going back."

But even if the show sparkles, it almost definitely will be outshone by the WB's highly anticipated "Felicity." (Adam Martignetti)

FELICITY
W 9 p.m. Tuesdays
Starring Keri Russell

The talk of the summer television convenions, "Felicity" is projected to be the biggest hit of the upcoming television season. It starts Keri Russell, who made a splash on the short lived "Malibu Shores" and the "All New Mickey Mouse Club," as a college freshman who gives up her chance to go to Stanford to follow her crush to a less prestigious university in New York City.

It will replace the already popular "Dawson's Creek" time slot, ("Dawson's" has moved to Wednesdays at eight to compete with "Beverly Hills 90210") Tuesdays at 9 p.m. on the WB. Critics believe that the time slot will not only attract Dawson's viewers, but those hanging on after watching the ever popular "Buffy The Vampire Slayer." (Brooke Steinberg)

ENCORE! ENCORE!
NBC 8:30 p.m. Tuesday
Starring Nathan Lane

Nathan Lane has already won an Emmy for a guest appearance on "Frasier," so why not give him his own show? Lane plays a grand, Niles Crane–esque, opera loving womanizer. On the plus side, the show's producers make "Frasier." On the minus side, the pilot was not widely distributed, there were some reasting problems, and it's already been compared to "Union Square." Ouch. (A.M.)

SPORTSNIGHT
ABC 9:30 p.m. Tuesday
Starring Josh Charles

The concept: Think "SportsCenter" with the inside on the anchors' personal lives. This comedy is supposed to be a hit with the jock crowd, poking fun at both the sports and journalism worlds, as well as the personal lives of the male stars. (B.S.)

MAGGIE WINTERS
CBS 8:30 p.m. Wednesday
Starring Faith Ford

Ford, of "Murphy Brown" fame, plays a smart, funny woman who returns home to live with her mom after her boyfriend cheats on her (sure sounds like Hope Floats). This show offers the only alternative to the rest of CBS' testosterone–laden lineup of new shows, like "Martial Law."

If it sticks to comedy and avoids the label of a "chick show," then it should do fine. Early reviews are good, which means Ford could look forward to another 10 years on CBS. (A.M.)

CHARMED
WB 9 p.m. Wednesday
Starring Shannen Doherty

Wild–child Shannen Doherty, who is best known for playing Brenda Walsh on "90210" is back on TV, in yet another Aaron Spelling creation. The show is about three sisters (Doherty, Holly Marie Comb and Alyssa Milano) who discover they possess secret powers. While the pilot is rumored to have been weak, the special effects are sure to draw people in to this new W.B. show. (B.S.)

JESSE
NBC 8:30 p.m. Thursday
Starring Christina Applegate

A single mom raising a 10–year–old son juggles life challenges from both the personal and professional end. The girl who made the ditzy Kelly Bundy famous on "Married... With Children," Christina Applegate, plays the nursing student who pays the bills as a bartender in this comedy. (B.S.)

Flute Jazz strictly for calm times

Guys, slap on those khakis, and ladies, whip out your sundresses. It's time for some Flute Jazz.

After performing extensively and eclectically with the David Grisman Quintet, fluteman Matt Eakle has broken free to make a very skillful though not especially inspirational recording. Taking guitar player Davis Ramey and bassist Harvie Swartz along for backup, Eakle trods upon ground rarely tread upon by most flute players, embracing improvisational music in a jazz trio, rather than sticking to the classical role of flute work in an orchestra or chamber ensemble.

The disk begins with "Gran's Blues," a sneaky and mischievous song, which also predicts many of the subtleties of the album.

The music here is not loud, it is not dramatic, and it does not really make the listener want to move or do anything too strenuous. Think of a Sunday morning, or people talking over coffee — those are the types of things this music describes.

Throughout this CD the bass is the more unique and well–described tracks on the CD, "Troubled Thoughts," actually portrays a slick, urban feel, mostly brought on by Swartz' scheming bass. Eakle pulls some tricks on this one as well, soloing with a gritty, grinding sound that further seems to endorse the metropolitan feel — the track is like a mystery unfolding.

Beginning with a western sounding guitar, "Pra Dizer Adeus" turns into a piece that could be used to narrate some sort of international intrigue. When Eakle's flute is introduced, it gives the cocktail lounge feel of an early James Bond flick, don't be surprised if this one becomes a martini bar classic.

On "A Secret Love," Eakle reveals his skill with his instrument, as he dips into deep, mesmerizing tones, but then ascends with rapid soloing. Ramey's classical European style on the acoustic guitar comes across as very sophisticated on this song.

One of Eakle's more elusive — it's not always heard fully, but we know it's there. Changing gears though on "Speak Low," the bass is a solemn militaristic force, narrating clandestine operations in some kind of wartime scenario — it allows for a great deal of conflict and urgency on this track, and creates opportunities for the other musicians to make many changes throughout.

The work here as a whole is technically close to perfection, though each track seems to be pieced together in a very minimalist sort of way. While Eakle is allowed to solo and direct the music freely, little depth seems to come from Ramey's guitar or Swartz' bass on a consistent basis.

Keep in mind that this is an album of quiet music, seemingly recorded to provide background for life's little everyday activities. It is not meant to be music that stands out flamboyantly like that of a hard–hitting jazz ensemble with full rhythm backup.

If you're working in your garden, painting, drinking coffee and reading the newspaper, or having Sunday brunch, throw on Flute Jazz. It won't hurt you.

Joe Sullivan is a Collegian columnist.

Thanks for reading Collegian Arts!

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
The Only Area Showing of This Film
STARTS FRIDAY FOR 7 DAYS ONLY-DAILY 7:15 & 9:00
PI – Science Fiction thriller – BEST DIRECTOR AWARD at 1998 Sundance Film Festival – A reclusive genius with an experimental computer tries to find, literally, the key to the universe. Working to decode the ultimate system of ordered chaos-THE STOCK MARKET he uncovers a secret everyone is willing to kill for.
"A BRILLIANT INTELLECTUAL ADVENTURE CREATING ONE COMPELLING IMAGE AFTER ANOTHER"
"π is a mesmerizing mind bender"
"π is smart enough to blow your mind, with or without drugs"
www.pithemovie.com
ACADEMY of MUSIC Cinema Arts NORTHAMPTON, 584-8435

BORED?
Okay, by now "get involved" is a college cliche. But if you like to write or know about music, film, TV, books, theater or anything in the entertainment world, come down to the Collegian at 113 Campus Center Basement and we'll fill your day. Or call Bryan at 545-1361.

Looking for Fundraising $$$$$ or Extra Cash?
Attention Fraternities, Sororities, and Student Organizations:
MarketSource Corporation is looking for student organizations or part-time student representatives to assist with promotions on campus. This is an ideal way to meet fundraising goals, earn money for activities or just make extra cash. Positions limited. To learn more about this opportunity please call Alex Iosim at (800) 888-8108 extension 2061.

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS always $10.
25 n pleasant st amherst 256 0733
145 main st northampton 586 0155

IN SHAPE NUTRITION
NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA
Exercise & Nutrition Programs Available
Great Products, Great Prices, Great Service!
20%-50% OFF RETAIL PRICES EVERYDAY
Walking Distance 549-7434

THURSDAY NIGHT... BUD LITE NITE!
$1.50 SNACK BASKETS $1.00
MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
MIKE'S DRINK OF THE WEEK... SEABREEZE! $2.00
ONION RINGS OR POTATO SKINS
TRY MIKES 34 OZ. NEW MINI PITCHER
BUD OR BUD LITE $3.00
FRIDAY AFTERNOON FREE BUFFET! 5:30

"Reason №1 why you should take my LSAT course."
Class time that counts
More class hours with teachers well trained in our techniques means much less time studying on your own. Our average score improvement is 7 points!
Call 1-800-2REVIEW or visit us at www.review.com
Courses held on the UMASS campus! Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and WNEC as well.
THE PRINCETON REVIEW

BACK to SCHOOL

Emilie Boone, Barbara Cohen, Karen Schmitt, Felicia Morrellino, Heather Dembroski, Maureen Tinoso
darby
Contemporary Clothing for Young Women
downtown Amherst

Spirit Haus
LARGEST SELECTION OF SPECIALTY KEGS
LIQUOR SPECIALS
Gordan Flavored Vodka (WILD BERRY, CITRUS ORANGE) 750 ml $6.99 + dep
Ice 101 Peppermint Schnapps 1lt $13.99 + dep
Bacardi Limon 750 ml $9.79 + dep
Gran Centenario Tequila 750ml $19.99 + dep
New this season IN STORE BREWED
WITH + ID
Cider Jack (Thur Sept 17th 5-7) $4.99/6 pack bots
Magic Hat (#9 Hefeflath Ale) $6.29/6 pack bots
Hyland (Amber Ale American Pale Ale) $6.29 sale
Red Hook (ESB, IPA, Hefe-Weizen, glassware available) $5.29 sale /6 pack bots
(Friday Sept. 18 5-7)
(cold plates, CO2 fills, Bulk ice, glasses available)
BEER SPECIALS
Icehouse 30 Pack cans $12.99 + dep
Lowenbrau 12 Pack bots $7.49 + dep
Michelob/Michelob Light 18 Pack cans $9.99 + dep
Hard Lager 12 Pack bots $10.49 + dep
Micro Kegs In Stock
DISCOVER, VISA, MASTERCARD ACCEPTED • OPEN 9am to 11pm
RT 9 EAST / 338 COLLEGE ST (413) 253-5384 / TAKE I-91 TO EXIT 19 / RT 9 east
Full Redemption Center

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Now Hiring All Positions

Rumors Confirmed
Collegian Ranks #1
Resume Builder on Campus
Graduates Find Rewarding Jobs

We've got some of the BEST jobs on campus!

N[illegible]

What do burning buildings, famous speakers, government scandal, peeping toms and the best resume builder on campus have in common? The News Department of the Collegian!

As a news associate or news correspondent you will be covering the latest issues and events on campus. We have beats where you can gain experience covering everything from the latest crimes to the biggest names that come to campus.

If you want to be a competitive candidate for internships and jobs, nothing on campus will give you hands-on experience like working for the Collegian News Department. Nothing will give employers a better sample of your writing than news articles. So come down to the Collegian and ask for Jill Carroll or call the News Desk at 545–1762.

SP[illegible]

Here in the Sports Department we cover a wide range of occurrences in the world of sports. Obviously, the main purpose of the page is to cover UMass sports, but we also run weekly columns on pro baseball, the NFL, NHL, NBA, and college football and basketball. In addition, we also run a weekly "Around the Horn" column, which allows any writer to take a crack at giving their viewpoint on the week's sporting events.

Another plus in the Sports Department is the opportunity for travel. Just to name a few sites, UMass teams will play in Colorado, Michigan and Hawaii this year. Last year, writers travelled to Philadelphia for the Atlantic 10 basketball tournament and to Fenway Park for the baseball Beanpot, as well as various other locations.

If you want to write for the Sports Department, just stop down to 113 Campus Center, and ask for Michael Kobylanski. You can also reach me by phone at 545–1749, or by e-mail at kobo3@hotmail.com.

EDITOR[illegible]

Editorial writers are the glitterati of the newsroom. Columnists are the closest thing to celebrity that you will find on the UMass campus.

Are you sick of blathering on about your opinions to random people, or keeping your feelings bottled up inside until they become bitter pills of rage? Then come down and write! Ed/Op writers have the ability to share their opinions with the whole campus, to anger the administration, or to tick off the SGA.

For this semester, we are hoping to have a core group of writers who are eager, well-informed and articulate. If you're interested, come on down to the Collegian, ask for Mike Messaros. Or if you're a scaredy-cat, just give a call at 545–1491.

DIV[illegible]

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian invites and encourages all to contribute to its diversity pages.

These pages, which include the Black Affairs page, the Multicultural Affairs page, the Women's Issues page, the Jewish Affairs page, the GLBT (Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender) Issues page, and the Developing Nations page, present an opportunity for those who may not be extensively represented or covered in the regular pages of the Collegian.

The diversity desks present a forum where students may voice their opinions concerning issues which are relevant to them.

If you want to get involved in news reporting or writing, please come down and fill out an application.

If you are tired of not being heard, call Senior Diversity Editor Edgar Barros at 545–1851 or send email to ebarros@student.umass.edu.

[illegible] LIVING

From reviewing the latest Dave Matthews Band album to interviews with Wyclef Jean, Arts & Living is the place to be. We're currently looking for new writers to cover music, theater, film, TV, fashion and more down at the Collegian. This past year, we've given our thoughts on the Grammys, the Oscars, concerts in Northampton and productions at Bowker.

The great thing about Arts & Living is that no experience is necessary —all you need are good writing skills and a love for all forms of entertainment. In addition to new writers, we're also hiring a music associate, fine arts associate and film associate for next semester. Come down to the Collegian and ask for Bryan at 545–1361.

[illegible]DITING

The Collegian is also looking for interested students to work one night per week as copy and night editors. Requirements for both positions include excellent spelling, grammar and communication skills.

Copy editors should have some editing experience and knowledge of Associated Press style. They are responsible for writing accurate headlines for all news stories as well as reading through all stories for accuracy and consistency.

Anyone interested in either of these positions should visit the Collegian office In the 113 Campus Center and speak with Managing Editor Victoria Groves or call 545–1809.

[illegible]OTO

The Photo Department is looking for creative photographers with at least one year experience for technician and staff positions. Photographers should have their own SLR camera. Technicians are responsible for developing black and white negatives, laying out photos for news and scanning negatives in photoshop. Knowledge of photoshop and layout is recommended but not required.

Photographers interact with all departments at the Collegian as well as with members of the Five College Area, so good communication skills are a must. The photo department covers all Five College events, and UMass sports and area music concerts.

Last year photographers covered speakers such as Ray Bradbury and Coretta Scott-King in addition to events such as the NCAA basketball tournament and Elton John and Wyclef Jean shows. If you are interested in working for the photo department please contact Lauren Kosky to fill out an application and schedule a portfolio review, or call the photo desk at 545–1701.

[illegible]PHICS

We're what makes the Collegian look good. In the Collegian Graphics Department we are responsible for designing all the advertisements that you see in each edition. National and local companies pay us to make them look good. We're responsible for making each day's paper possible too.

Want to get first hand experience using state-of-the-art technology? In the Collegian Graphics department we have nothing but the latest equipment that is available. Nothing looks better on a resume than showing that you are skilled in the software and hardware applications in demand today.

Positions available include advertisement designers and editorial production staff, who work to layout the newspaper to send it to the printer.

In addition, the Collegian is looking to hire students to work on its ever-improving web site. This includes day and night positions. If interested, contact Production Manager Dave Voldan In the Graphics Department at 545-1864.

The Collegian is always looking for new staff members. Visit our friendly offices conveniently located in the Campus Center. We're room 113 in the lower level, down the escalators, on the opposite end from the ATM machines. Stop by to pick up an application or talk with an Editor. For general questions call 545-350[illegible]

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967

~Art Galleries~

Hampshire College — Main Gallery. Currently on display: Archives and Archetypes, a retrospective exhibition of photographs by Barbara Norfleet. Gallery hours are Monday–Friday, 10:30 a.m.–4:30 p.m.; Sunday, 2–5 p.m. Call the gallery at 559–5544.

Jones Library — Burnett Gallery. Now on display are paintings and drawings by Bolita McLaughlin. Hours are Monday–Saturday, 9 a.m.–5:30 p.m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays until 9:30 p.m.

Mount Holyoke College — Art Museum. American Modernism, Roy R. Neuberger's collection, is now on display. Hours are Tuesday–Friday, 11 a.m.–5 p.m.; Saturday–Sunday, 1–5 p.m. Call 538–2245.

Mount Holyoke College — Art Museum. The exhibition On the Nature of Landscape is now on display. Hours are Tuesday–Friday, 11 a.m.–5 p.m.; Saturday–Sunday, 1–5 p.m. Call 538–2245.

Smith College — Main Gallery. Equal Partners: Men and Women Principals in Contemporary Architectural Practice will run from September 25 through December 13. Museum hours are Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, 9:30 a.m.– 4 p.m. Sunday, 12–4 p.m. Thursday, 12–8 p.m. Call 585–2760 for more details.

Smith College — Erving Gallery. The American Architectural Landscape will be on display from Sept. 10 to Nov. 15.

University of Massachusetts — Wheeler Gallery. An interactive installation called On a scale from one to one will be on display starting Sept. 17. Hours are Monday– Thursday, 4–8 p.m., Sunday 2–5 p.m. Call 545–0680 for more information.

University of Massachusetts — A Herter Hall. Annual Foundations Exhibit. Hours are Monday–Friday, 11 a.m.–4 p.m., Saturday–Sunday 1–4 p.m. Call 545–0976.

University of Massachusetts — Augusta Savage Gallery. From the Book of Triptych, paintings by Called Kodak will be on display beginning Sept. 23 through Oct. 22. Gallery hours are Monday & Tuesday 1–7 p.m., Wednesday–Friday 1–5 p.m. For more information call 545–5177.

University of Massachusetts — Hampden Gallery presents Resting Places: Ceramic Vessels, Tables & Benches, from Sept. 16 to Oct. 9. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday 3–7 p.m. For more information call 545– 0680.

— compiled by Emily Trask

Secrets behind TV success exposed

Tim McKeon

It's fall, and with it comes colder weather, a return to classes, reasons to get up before noon and an onslaught of ridiculous questions from fellow students, such as "Didn't summer fly by?", "Aren't you excited to be back?" and "Why are you following me?".

With fall also comes the new TV season, and this year the networks seem to be going all out. Whether it has something to do with the fact that shows like "Seinfeld" and "Murphy Brown" are off the air or not, there are dozens of new angst- ridden teenagers, comically confused parents, and grown-up (and apparently struggling) child stars coming to a small screen near you.

The sad thing is, out of many new shows this year, only a few will make it. Granted, part of this has to do with bad time slots, bad actors or shows that are just plain bad to begin with, but it also has to do with the fact that TV shows today, for some strange reason, don't look back and learn from TV shows from the past. For a simple reflection upon some popular shows in the 70s and 80s exposes a number of secrets that can make any show successful.

1. For it not to make sense

One of the quickest ways to make a television show successful is for it to not make sense. Look at "McGuyver" for example. Did anyone ever notice that he's really bad at his job? Seriously. He gets caught every episode. Sure, he can always get out of it with a toothpick and bed jerky... But you'd think they'd get a secret agent who wouldn't get caught in the first place.

Or "Head of the Class." Here is a class full of the smartest kids in the entire school and yet still it took them eight years to graduate. Of course part of this could have to do with the fact that they were being taught by an ex-D.J. from WKRP.

2. For it to have numbers in the title

For some reason the existence of a number in the title grants a show longevity. Look at "Eight is Enough," "DeepSpace Nine," "My Two Dads," "My Three Sons" (whose relationship to the former I still can't work out), "Three's Company," "Third Rock From the Sun." In fact, the number "three" seems to have an exceptional amount of pull, but watch out once you start hitting double digits. Need one mention "Just the 10 of Us," the ill-fated "Growing Pains" spin-off?

3. For it to have a joke

Of course the more jokes the better, but for a TV show to be truly successful it really only needs one... that you can tell over and over again. Look at "Perfect Strangers" for example (and we're going for staying power here, not quality): a sitcom based entirely around a silly accent. Or "The Greatest American Hero:" sure he's a superhero, but he's not the greatest if you think about it. I mean really. Then there was "Saved By the Bell," the joke being, of course, that it was just really, really bad.

4. For it to be just plain weird

Last but not least, it seems a show can sometimes survive simply on the basis that it's odd. "A.L.F." is an excellent example. A midget dressed up in a bear rug that eats cats, this is not average fare.

In conclusion, it's only a matter of time until the networks get together with the Nielson people and realize success lies in looking to the past. Already they've based movies on TV shows and made their money back at the box office. Perhaps it's only a matter of time until they base TV shows on TV shows, which would mean, I guess, that we'd be stuck watching re–runs for the rest of our lives. Maybe the end of "Seinfeld" really was more of a tragedy then we all thought.

Tim McKeon is a UMass student.

Bob and weave

Senior midfielder Laura Phelan and the Massachusetts field hockey team visited Harvard yesterday and came back with a 3–1 victory.

FITNESS WORKSHOP
Delivered right to your door...
Creatine Surge Ginseng
Pure Creatine Whey Protein
Weight Loss Aids St. Johns Worts
www.fitnessworkshop.com
1-877-FIT-WORK

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO
SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE
DISCOUNT CARD
WITH THIS COUPON
EXPIRES: 10/15/98
413-253-5592

安城中国饭店
AMHERST
CHINESE FOOD
we do not use "MSG"
• MANDARIN & SZECHUAN CUISINE
• HOME STYLE SEAFOOD
• FRESH ORGANIC GROWN VEGETABLES FROM OUR OWN FARM
• EAT IN OR TAKE OUT
• FULL LIQUOR LICENSE
• OPEN 7 DAYS
253-7835 or 253-2813
63 Main Street, Amherst

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Rounding the corner

The Massachusetts football team will be in action on Family Day against Buffalo, Sept. 26.

Backups wait in wings as Levens has surgery

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Pro Bowl halfback Dorsey Levens had a screw inserted into his severely sprained right ankle on yesterday as the Green Bay Packers began life without their top rusher and receiver.

Levens was already in a cast with a broken bone in his right leg, which was pinned beneath Tampa Bay linebacker Derrick Brooks on Sunday.

Coach Mike Holmgren said the ankle operation was optional but made sense with Levens already sidelined for a good chunk of the season with a fractured fibula.

"We felt as long as the leg had to knit, this was the best way to go," Holmgren said.

The procedure won't add any rehabilitation time, Holmgren and general manager Ron Wolf said. Levens is expected to miss about six weeks.

But Holmgren has been reluctant to pick a target date for his halfback's return.

"I'm not trying to be evasive here. I don't know. And I'm not sure anyone knows for sure," he said. "It will be weeks, though."

Is he certain Levens will play again this season?

"I'm pretty confident he'll play this season," Holmgren said. "We have a lot of season ahead of us. We have 14 weeks with a bye week, so that's 15 weeks."

Until Levens returns to the lineup, his surrogate will be either Ramont Harris or Travis Jervey, neither of whom are in top condition themselves.

Harris still walks with a bad limp from leg surgery last December and Jervey was listed as questionable on the injury report for Sunday's game at Cincinnati with a strained right hamstring. Holmgren said he'll name a starter on Friday.

They are opposites.

"Travis is a fast guy, can hit the corner. Raymont's a power guy inside," quarterback Brett Favre said. "They both can catch."

Jordan to go to court over film dispute

CHICAGO (AP) — Imagine the box-office possibilities of a basketball movie with Michael Jordan.

Even though he wasn't then quite the superstar he is now, the creators of the 1991 film "Heaven is a Playground" still wanted him to appear in it. He didn't, the film flopped, and now they are suing him for breach of contract in Cook County Circuit Court.

"We could have today a movie that is a classic," said Dean Dickie, a lawyer for the plaintiffs, said in opening statements Tuesday.

Loyola Marymount standout Bo Kimble ended up taking Jordan's part and the movie made a paltry $168,000 at the box office, Dickie said. Jordan later did the highly successful movie "Space Jam."

Heaven Corp., makers of "Heaven is a Playground," is seeking $16 million to $20 million in damages, which it says represents the profit it would have made if Jordan appeared in the film.

Jordan's attorney, Frederick Sperling, scoffed at the idea that Jordan would have made that big of a difference, pointing out that the Bulls star was to appear in about 12 minutes of a 104-minute film that was widely panned by critics.

The 1993 lawsuit says Jordan backed out of the film after signing a 1988 contract guaranteeing him $350,000 plus 5 percent of the film's profits.

Sperling said Jordan never refused to appear, the contract was a preliminary agreement that was not legally binding, and that the film's producers knowingly misled Jordan about the financing and missed a deadline to have financing firmly in place.

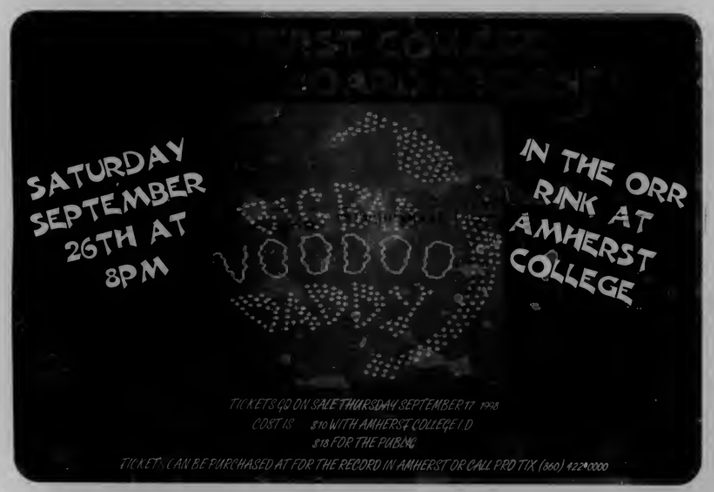
Bills OL ends silence, lashes out at reporters

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Ruben Brown hadn't done much talking lately. On or off the field.

The Bills Pro Bowl offensive lineman ended his month-long silence following practice yesterday when he lashed out at the media for what he said was negative reporting.

"You guys get on my offensive buddies and say they're sorry, they suck, they're no good," Brown said. "You guys suck. There's a very small group out there that do any good reporting."

None of Buffalo's offensive lineman had been talking to reporters.



Brown, 26, spoke to the media in the Buffalo locker room after being persuaded by public relations director Scott Berchtold. "We're pissed off at the media," Brown said. "They seem to enjoy or revel in the dirt and slug mud at us whenever they get the opportunity. That's OK.

"If you keep riding our guys as a whole, there are things that we get tired of hearing," Brown said. "We don't want to keep hearing all of this garbage all the time. We're working hard."

The offensive line unit has given up an NFL-leading 13 sacks in two games.

Admittedly, Brown said, he did not play well in last week's 13-7 loss to Miami. He had three false starts and the offensive line committed five penalties and allowed eight sacks.

"I didn't have a good game and was disappointed with the way I performed," Brown said.

Hold up to mirror for secret message:

This magical moment has been brought to you by your Daily Collegian and the little trolls that live in my shoes.

WITH EVERYTHING THIS BANK ACCOUNT HAS TO OFFER, WE COULDN'T MAKE YOUR LIFE ANY EASIER.

UNLESS, OF COURSE, WE PAID FOR YOUR TUITION.

Only the Student Value Package® gives you so much for so little.

• now, price as low as $3.a month • get free sandwiches at Subway® with coupon • BankBoston Card and a student ID • use 24-hour Online Banking with HomeLink® • over 1,400 BankBoston ATMs • use your BankBoston card at Stop & Shop® — like a plastic check wherever MasterCard® is accepted • get overdraft protection if you overspend a little • call 1-800-2-BOSTON • visit BankBoston.com/students

BankBoston

Get Free SUBWAY® Sandwiches

1 Valid school ID or acceptance letter required. To qualify for a Free Check and Reserve Credit you must be at least 18 years of age and have no adverse credit history. 2. If you make withdrawals, deposits, transfers and balance inquiries electronically by phone, ATM, or computer only, the monthly fee is discounted to $1. The normal monthly Student Value Package fee is $6. 3. Purchase a six-inch Subway® Sandwich and a 21-ounce soft drink and get a second six-inch Subway® Sandwich and 21-ounce soft drink of equal or lesser price free upon presentation of a Student Value Package coupon. Offer expires Mar. 31, 1999. Offer available at participating Subway® locations and may not be combined with any other offer. One coupon per person per visit. Subway is a registered trademark of Doctors Associates Inc. 4. Online Banking with BankBoston HomeLink® is free (e.g., transferring funds, checking balances). There is a $3.50 monthly fee for Online Bill Payment with HomeLink.

Member FDIC

■ men's soccer

continued from page 14

Despite a huge shot advantage for UMass in the second half (28-17 for the game), they were unable to grab a lead and the game headed into overtime.

"It was tough to watch so many missed opportunities," Koch said. "Eventually these shots will find the net, instead of bouncing off posts and the like."

The extra session was dominated for the most part by UNH. They put pressure on UMass goalie Todd Fowler (six saves) from the opening horn.

An enthusiastic Minutemen crowd was silenced at 1:00:23, as forward Adam Purcell dashed their hopes with the game clincher, assisted by Andy Karam.

Karam made a cross pass, which was received by Purcell. Purcell then played the ball off a defender's leg, and put it past fowler for the fatal blow.

"We needed this win as a team," Purcell said, "it is very important to win on the road, and this game served as a piece of revenge for last year."

Purcell was referring to the upset win that UMass garnered at UNH 2-1 in overtime. UNH was ranked No. 22 in the nation at the time.

"These guys are trying very hard to win games," Koch said. "However, in this game it takes more than just pure effort to succeed, we need to be playing smart soccer as well."

■ close

continued from page 14

"We will get better, " Koch said. "We are certainly capable of playing better and it is very important that we concentrate, play smarter and take advantage of opportunities."

Certainly, that appears to be a winning formula for getting that edge, especially for the close ones.

The Minutemen do not have the fire power right now to put teams away, so presumably they will be faced with the task of snatching a couple out of the ditches down the line.

After scoring the lone UMass goal yesterday, Matt Christy saw the need to turn the ship around immediately.

"The trip coming up in California will hopefully get this team to gel," Christy said. "The morale is a little low now, but that will improve if we can pull out some tough ones."

■ field hockey

continued from page 14

suffered in the season opener against New Hampshire.

Senior Kerry Lyons, who scored a pair of thrilling game-winning goals last season, added an insurance tally against the Crimson. She directed a Johnston pass to the back of the Harvard cage just over a minute after her teammate's deciding goal.

On the defensive side of the field, Tucker made six saves in front of the UMass net. Harvard goaltender Anya Cowan stopped six shots as well.

UMass now faces its second straight weekend of travel. The Minutewomen will be in College Park, Md. for the Terp Invitational, where they will take on host Maryland in the first round. On the second day of play, UMass will square off against either Georgetown or American.

The Minutewomen will return home on Oct. 7 when they host intrastate rival Boston University.

CALLING ALL PERSONABLE SPORTS PERSONALITIES:

For all those interested in working in the UMass Media Relations Office in the UMass Athletic Department, there will be a meeting in 253 Boyden Building today at 5 p.m. If you have any questions call 545-2439. Thanks.

Pavel Bure doesn't show at camp, forcing Canucks to suspend him

VANCOUVER (AP) — The Vancouver Canucks made it official yesterday: Pavel Bure is suspended.

As promised, the Canucks suspended their top scorer after he made good on his threat not to show up in training camp.

Bure, who led the Canucks with 51 goals last season, went public last month citing "personal reasons" that he wants to be traded and will never play in a Vancouver uniform again.

The announcement of Bure's suspension was delivered in a terse, one-sentence press release issued following the team's training camp scrimmage.

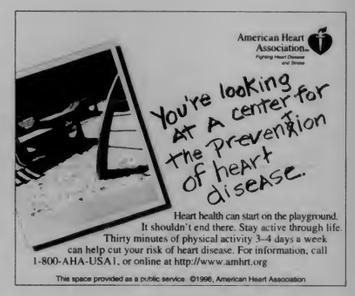
The suspension is more of a formality at this point, as it will not have any real impact until NHL players begin getting paid at the start of the season.

Canucks president and general manager Brian Burke refused comment, sticking to a promise he made to the media last Sunday that he would no longer talk about Bure.

The three-time 50-plus-goal scorer, who broke into the NHL with the Canucks in 1991, has one year left on a contract that is reportedly expected to pay him about $8 million.

Burke has previously said that if the right deal doesn't come along, he is prepared to let Bure miss the entire season. Sabres Dixon Ward scored two goals yesterday night to lead the Sabres to a 5-1 victory over Klagenfurt of the Austrian League in the International Challenge hockey tournament.

The Sabres, Eastern Conference finalists last season in the Stanley Cup playoffs, were shocked early in the first period when Dieter Kalt beat NHL MVP and Czech Olympic hero Dominik Hasek for a 1-0 lead.



The goal served as a wake-up call for the Sabres, who scored five straight goals. Michal Grosek and Ward responded in the first period to put Buffalo ahead 2-1. Paul Kruse's goal made it 3-1 after two and Ward and team captain Mike Peca closed out the scoring in the third.

Penguins Coach Kevin Constantine is hoping that a crop of youngsters will help make up for the defensive deficiencies in last season's Penguins.

In the playoffs against Montreal, the Penguins defensemen couldn't stay with the opposition's speedy forwards.

"They might be ready now, but they might need to play a month or two in the minors or they might need a whole year there," Constantine said of his new defensemen. "When they're ready to play, we'll see if they can earn a spot."

Penguins prospects trying to make the club include Sven Butenschon, Andrew Ference, Tuomas Gronman, Pavel Skrbek, Chris Kelleher, Josef Melichar and Michal Rozsival. Of the group, Gronman spent the most time with the Penguins last season. He primarily split time with Syracuse (AHL, 33 games) and the NHL (22) last season.

Heart health can start on the playground. It shouldn't end there. Stay active through life. Thirty minutes of physical activity 3-4 days a week can help cut your risk of heart disease. For information, call 1-800-AHA-USA1, or online at http://www.amhrt.org

This space provided as a public service. ©1998, American Heart Association

Mavi Jeans.

ZANNA

downtown Amherst

Summer is over but the sales are still HOT at Liquors 44!!

LIQUORS 44 Don't Drink and Drive

BUD-BUD LT.-BUD ICE CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS $15.49 + DEP.

KEYSTONE LIGHT CASE OF 36-12 OZ. CANS $10.49 + DEP. 10 PACK

ROLLING ROCK CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLE $13.49 + DEP.

CAMAMOUNT ALL FLAVORS 6 PK. BOTTLES $4.99 + DEP.

BECK'S BEER REGULAR-DARK-OCTOBERFEST 12 PK. BOTTLE $9.49 + DEP.

NATURAL LIGHT & ICE ½ BARRELS $33.99 + DEP.

1/2 KEGS ROLLING ROCK, ICEHOUSE, RED DOG $36.99 + DEP.

1/2 KEGS BUD, BUD LT, BUD ICE, MICH, MICH LT, AMBER BOCK, LITE, COORS LIGHT $39.99 + DEP.

WINE OF THE MONTH

Mystic Cliffs CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750ML. $5.99

Almaden CHABLIS, BURGUNDY, ALFRESCO RED, BLUSH, GOLDEN RHINE, WHITE GRENACHE 5 LT. BAG-IN-A-BOX $6.99

MANISCHEWITZ ALL FLAVORS 750 ML. $2.99

MARCUS JAMES ALL FLAVORS 1.5L $5.99

ROBERT MONDAVI WOODBRIDGE 1.5L $11.99 CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON

SUTTER HOME WHITE ZINFANDEL $3.99

KAHLUA COMBOS 4 PK $4.49

POLAND SPRINGS VODKA 1.75L $8.99

BACARDI LIMON RUM 750L $9.49

Seagram's 7 BLENDED WHISKEY 1.75L SALE $13.99 MAIL IN REBATE -3.00 FINAL COST $10.99

INVERHOUSE SCOTCH 1.75 L $12.99

JOSE CUERVO GOLD TEQUILA 750 ML. $11.99

TANQUERAY GIN 750 ML. $13.99

Discounts Available on Cases of Wine & Liquor. Ask For Details.

AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA

HADLEY 253-9344 NORTHAMPTON 586-3007 HOLYOKE 534-4555

SALE PRICES THURS. 9/17/98 THRU WEDS. 9/23/98

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Hot Tip: Put the Collegian in the microwave and it tastes like cheese.

fun·food·spirits THE PUB amherst & Western Mass DJ Association are BREAKING ALL THE RULES!

NEW LOW PRICES!

BUD LIGHT 16oz Bottles $2.25

Bucket Of Rocks 4 12oz Rocks plus a T-Shirt $6.99

Lite BEER 20oz Big One $1.99 $2.50

ICEHOUSE PINT REFILLS $1.75

Weekly Specials

THURSDAY
SAM ADAMS NIGHT!
$2.75 PINTS
T-SHIRTS-PRIZES-DANCING
NO COVER BEFORE 10PM

FRIDAY
"TURN BACK THE CLOCK"
70'S MUSIC ALL NIGHT!
DOMESTIC DRAFTS·····16OZ. $1.99
DOMESTIC BOTLES·· ·····$2.00
NO COVER BEFORE 10 PM

SATURDAY
DANCE 9:30 'TILL 1:00AM
1/2 PRICE APPETIZERS AT THE BAR 3 5 & 7 9 EVERYDAY!
NO COVER BEFORE 10 PM

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ACTIVITIES

UMass Womens Rugby Want to play? Practice at 4:30 pm., Tues-Fri, behind Mullins Center. Want to watch? Major Womens Collegiate Tournament, 9/19-9/20. Games behind Mullins Center. For info call Meg at 256-3116.

AUTO FOR SALE

1990 Pontiac Lemans LE 4 dr, auto, AC, PS, 60k Excellent condition $1800. 545-4548

1988 Ford Taurus Station Wagon AC/Auto, sunroof, cassette 87,000 miles. 256-1619.

1989 Mercury Tracer AC/Auto. 4 door hatchback. Great condition. 367-9579.

88 Olds Cutlass Cruiser 117k, station wagon $1200 or B/O. 259-9287.

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS Automatic, fully loaded, 103k miles. Excellent condition $3700. 253-5503

1989 Subaru Wagon Standard, 4WD, highway miles, clean $1400 (97)a544-3783.

WANTED: Toyotas, Novas, Prizms, Sentras Any condition. Cash paid everyday 1-800-649-4795.

92 Honda Accord LX 4 door, 5 speed, A/C, 88k, $6000. 256-3472.

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your legal rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

COMPUTERS

Pentium 133 32MB, 1.2GB, 28.8 Modem, Scanner, 15" monitor $550. Alexa 586-4989.

486 Computer Great For Student Works Good $100 Color VGA $50 (413)584-8857

COMPUTERS

486 Computer Good Condition $400 Firm 546-2660

EMPLOYMENT

Youth Care Workers (2nd &3rd shifts) RN / LPN (Part-time, full-time potential) Maintenance Laborer (full-time) Lake Grove School in Wendell Mass. is a chapter 766 approved year round residential school serving adolescent males with behavioral difficulties. We offer an excelent employee benefit package which includes medical and dental, generous vacation days, sick days and personal days and 401K. All successful candidates attend a 50 hour training program. AA/ EOE. Please send resume with cover letter or stop in and fill out an application to: Lake Grove School Attn: Personnel 6 Farley Rd. Po Box 767 Wendell, Ma. 01379

SCERA is hiring voter registration canvassers $8/hour. Work-Study only. Until November 3. 10-15 hours per week. Must be able to work some nights. Call 545-0355 for information.

Bilingual Tutors for part-time, paid assistance to students speaking Amharic, Chinese, Khmer, Malay, Portuguese, Russian, Tibetan, Vietnamese. Contact ESL/Bilingual Office at 413-549-9857. Amherst Public Schools An Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

SCHOOL CROSSING GUARDS AM and PM elementary school duty. Please contact Maintenance Office, Amherst Public Schools, 549-9955. An Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

EMPLOYMENT

Dunkin Donuts Now Hiring Apply In Person Morning Shifts Rt. 9, Hadley

Searching for a hairstylist some afternoons and Saturdays. Regency Hairstylist 253-9526.

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2" 2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and... Earn $$$$ Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks Limited Offer 1 800-426 7710/www.sunsplashtours.com

Undergraduate Business Consultant Gain Accounting Experience, Leadership Skills, and General Business Experience. 10-15 hrs per week, flexible schedule. Must be self motivated, able to work as part of a team. Sophomores and Juniors are encouraged to apply. Pick up an application at the Center for Student Business, 406 Student Union. Questions, call 545-2166. Deadline for apps: Fri., Sept 18.

Best Part-Time Job In The Valley. You don't have to wash dishes or flip burgers for the extra money you need. Become a Clean Water Action organizer and earn $7.30-$9.00/hr fighting air and water pollution. Paid training, flexible schedule, evening and weekend hours. 584-9830.

Kai Chi Restaurant hiring waitstaff, drivers, bouncers, and bartenders. Apply in person after 4:30 pm. 586-2774.

Personal Care Attendant for male quad. Mornings and evenings $7.85/hr. 546-0666.

EARN CASH Flexible Hours Now hiring at Sbarros Hampshire Mall

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ FOR HIRE: DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery. 253-9742.

FOR SALE

Black, brand new 2 1/2 ft. fridge with freezer included. $50 or B/O. Will deliver. Call Nikole 549-4294.

Graphing Calculator TI-85 Like new, with manual $75. Call after 6pm. 586-5348.

Cannondale R600 Road Bike 1993 Model. Shimano 105 with new Continental Tires. Bike is in good condition. Call 585-1593 and ask for John. $300 or B/O.

Pinball Machine Reconditioned $500. 253-5363.

For Sale- TV Stand. Franci 253-7606.

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection, from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade. 253-5312.

FURNITURE

Desk with rolly chair. Excellent condition. $30. Free delivery. One year old. Single bed, $30. Both for $50. Call Cory 374-6544.

Desk For Sale $40. 584-7197.

WATERBED Queen size, bookcase headboard, four drawer pedestal, more. $200/best offer. 253-3318.

Quality Made Ikea Futon Couch/Bed For Sale. $120. It's in great condition. Call 585-1593 after 7pm and ask for John.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK. www.fitnessworkshop.com

LOST & FOUND

Attention New Students- Personal items left at The New Students Program this summer may be picked up at The New Students Office, 304 Admissions Center.

MUSICAL EQUIP.

P.A. SYSTEM FOR SALE Nearly new, awesome little system, multi-effects processor; EQ; tape deck; mixer, 2 power amps, 2 JBL speakers; 2 EV monitors; mikes; road cases with fans; cables; speaker stands. Will not part out. $3500. (413)527-8387. Leave message.

MUSICAL INSRTUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons. Beginner to Advanced. Can Teach All Styles. Call Stephen Page at 256-2612.

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

SERVICES

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Rental Problems? Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

TRAVEL

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906.

TUTORING SERVICES

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

WANTED

WANTED: Students of South Asian, South East Asian, East Asian, Pacific Islander Ancestry, and Allies interested in learning about ethnic identity, gender and sexuality, social, political, collective history, and other topics? Interested in combining academics with community service? This class is for you. First Class Session for Asian 197 (course has alternative class schedule) Sept. 21, Monday Herter Hall 601 at 6 pm For more information Email Khyati Joshi at email to khyati@educ.umass.edu or call 545-1787 Lucy Burns at email to lmburns@english.umass.edu Nina Ha at email to nha@english.umass.edu

AVAILABLE HEADINGS:

Activities, Announcements, Apartment For Rent, Auto For Sale, Auto Parts, Childcare, Community Events, Computers, Employment, Entertainment, For Rent, For Sale, Furniture, Greek Announcements, Happy Birthday, Health & Beauty, Houses For Rent, Houses For Sale, Housesitting, Jewelry, Instruction, Lost & Found, Miscellaneous, Motorcycles, Musical Instruments, Musicians, Musicians Wanted, Music Lessons, Personals, Pets For Sale, Resumes, Rides Wanted, Room For Rent, Room Wanted, Roommate Wanted, Services, Sports, Stereo & CD Equip, Summer Sublet, TV for Sale, Tickets, TO Sublet, Travel, Transportation, Tutoring Service, Tutors Wanted, Typing Service, Used Books, Wanted To Rent, Wanted, World Wide Web, Yard Sales

CLASSIFIED PRICES:

STUDENTS 20¢ / WORD / DAY

NON- STUDENTS 40¢ / WORD / DAY

TO PLACE A CLASSIFIED CALL US 545-3500 OR VISIT US IN THE CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT

Five College Community Calendar

THURSDAY, SEPT. 17

Community — There will be a community blood drive in the Student Union Ballroom from 10:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Community — The Pride Alliance will be holding an informal gathering to get acquainted with the campus. Meet in the Student Union lobby at 7 p.m. to walk to the Stonewall Center for pizza.

Community — The J. Crew warehouse sale continues today from 9 a.m.-9 p.m. in the Mullins Center.

Lecture — A seminar entitled "An Anthropological Critique of Third-Gender Categories" will be held at 12:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 804.

Meeting — The Ballroom Dance Club will meet from 5:30 p.m.-7 p.m. in Totman room 101.

Meeting — There will be a Jewish Theatre group's next meeting at the Hillel House at 6:30 p.m.

Community — The J. Crew warehouse sale continues today from 9 a.m.-9 p.m. in the Mullins Center.

Workshop — A creative writing workshop begins tonight in Hadley from 6:30-8 p.m. For more information call 586-2586.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 18

Community — The J. Crew warehouse sale continues today from 9 a.m.-9 p.m. in the Mullins Center.

Services — There will be Shabbat services at the Hillel House at 6 p.m.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is currently accepting applications for artistic team for the fall production of You Can't Take It With You. Call 545-0415 or stop by the office at 423A in the Student Union.

Comments — Nomination papers for the Student Government Association elections are available in room 420 in the Student Union. Papers need to be turned in by 5 p.m. on Sept. 22, and elections are Sept. 28.

Community — Prevent your bicycle from being stolen by registering it from September 21-25 at the Student Union circle from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through Oct. 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for its frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. Call 545-0883 for more information.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. Contact Gina at (508) 849-5600 ext. 201 for more details.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs and to work on special projects. Call 545-0883 for more details.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

If you think that shopping a college store means having no choices...

Think again.

New University Store — Not like a mall... Better.

HSCN 4 Housing Services Cable Network

2	HSCN Bulletin Board	16	UVC-TV19
3	CBS/3 Hartford	20	ABC/40 Springfield
4	CBS/4 Boston	22	NBC/22 Springfield
5	ABC/5 Boston	23	CNN
8	PBS/57 Springfield	24	CNN SI
7	HSCN Movie Ch	28	Headline News
8	UPN/20 Hartford	29	UCTV
9	Weather Channel	27	TBS
10	NBC/30 New Britain	28	BET
11	Fox/61 Hartford	29	TV Land
12	PBS/24 Hartford	30	Univision
13	WOCH & HSCN	31	Comedy Central
14	International	32	Cartoon
15	UMass Academic TV	33	Mech Music
17	HSCN Programming

THURSDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 17, 1998

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	12	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		World at National Geographic		Mystery!: Memoirs of Holmes		Cancer-Odds for Survival		Chefl	This Old Hse.
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Diagnosis Murder "Obsession" (R) (In Stereo) (Part 1 of 2)				48 Hours "Kidnapped"		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Diagnosis Murder "Obsession" (R) (In Stereo) (Part 1 of 2)				48 Hours "Kidnapped"		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	The Lethal Weapon 3" (1992, Drama) (PA) Mel Gibson, Danny Glover. (In Stereo)				News		News	Nightline
WLVI		Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny		Wayans Bros.	Jamie Foxx	Steve Harvey	For Your Love	News		Star Trek: Next Gener.
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Friends (R) (In Stereo)		Frasier (R)	Frasier (R)	ER "A Hole in the Heart" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX	8	Married... With	Roma Imp.	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess (R)		News	Newsradio	Newsradio	LAPD
WVIT	10	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Friends (R) (In Stereo)		Frasier (R)	Frasier (R)	ER "A Hole in the Heart" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	11	Simpsons	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	Fresier	World's Wildest Police Videos		Fox Files (In Stereo)		News		Mad Abt. You	Mad Abt. You
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Friends (R) (In Stereo)		Frasier (R)	Frasier (R)	ER "A Hole in the Heart" (R)		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creaturas	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		This Old Hse. "Ons, on Call		Jewel in the Crown		Jewel in the Crown		Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Fresier	The Lethal Weapon 3" (1992, Drama) (PA) Mel Gibson, Danny Glover. (In Stereo)				News		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Seinfeld	Fresier	Delta Force 3: The Killing Game" (1991) Eric Douglas,				News	Mad Abt. You	Fresier	Cheers
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Andy Griffith	WCW Thunder		WCW Thunder		Major League Baseball: Atlanta Braves at Arizona Diamondbacks.
A&E	61	Northern Exposure		Law & Order "Entrapment"		Biography: Nostradamus		Unexplained "Reincarnation"		Touch of Frost (R) (Part 1 of 2)		Law & Order "Virtue"
CNN	23	Worldview	Moneyline Newshour		Crossfire	World Today		Larry King Live		Newsstand: Entertainment	Sports	Moneyline
COM	33	Premium	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	The Johnny Be Good" (1988, Comedy) Anthony Michael Hall.				Pee-wee Herman (R)		Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	63	Wings "The MCC Story" (R)		Gimme Shelter		Wild Discovery: Jurassic		Into Unknown	Mons Magic	Wings (R)		Justice Files "The Con Game"
ESPN	41	Up Close	Sportscenter		GameNight	College Football: Colorado State at Air Force (Live)					Sportscenter
LIFE	62	Ellen	Ellen	Party of Five "Fables"		Chicago Hope "Hello Goodbye"		"From the Files of Unsolved Mysteries: The Sleepwalker Killing"				New Attitudes	Golden Girls
MTV	71	(5:30) Jams Countdown		Fanatic (R)	Beavis-Butt.	Eye Spy	Say What?	Total Request Live (In Stereo)		Celebrity	Super Advent.	Fanatic (R)	Loveline (R)
NICK	69	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Thornberrys	Sweater	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	Love Lucy	Bewitched
SCIFI	64	Quantum Leap (In Stereo)		Masters		Star Trek: "The Conscience of the King"		Sesquest 2032 (In Stereo)		Friday the 13th: The Series		Masters	Star Trek
TLC	65	28 Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	Medical Detect: Without Warn.		John Wesley Hardin (R)		Blast Masters: Explosion		Medical Detect	Without Warn.
TNT	67	Babylon 5 (In Stereo)		ER "Blizzard" (In Stereo)		"Buried Secrets" (1996, Horror)		Ryan Arthur Thiessen
USA	70	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess		Walker, Texas Ranger				"Lionheart" (1990, Adventure)		New York Undercover
HBO	35	(4:00) "Cries!"		"Who's Harry Crumb?" (1989) John Candy		HBO Salutes the Emmys (Part 1 of 2)						Inside the NFL (In Stereo)
MAX	36	(4:15)		"Beavis and Butt-head Do America" (1996)		"No Escape" (1994, Science Fiction) Ray Liotta.				"Hostile Intent" (1997) Rob Lowe.		"Windows"
SHOW	46	"Joe Torre: Curveballs Along the Way" (1997)				Paul Sorvino. "PG"				Dreams-Coins	Uncle P.	Rude Awaken.	Love Street	Dead Man's

FoxTrot By Bill Amend

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Fiendish Foglios By Brian Daniel Moses

FoxTrot By Bill Amend

YOUR COMIC COULD BE HERE!!! COME DOWN TO 113 CAMPUS CENTER AND TALK TO VICKI GROVES OR CALL HER AT 545-1809

Horoscopes

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Do you really feel that you're in a situation that promotes trust among friends and allies? If not, then the time has come to make a change.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Someone will be eager to hear your deepest, darkest secrets today, but don't assume she or he will do the same.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You usually make friends quickly and with relative ease, but you may be feeling rather "on guard" today. Keep your cool!

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You're interested in broadening your circle of allies, but knowing just how to promote your ideas and get others to pledge support may be another story.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Don't expect or allow someone who has pledged friendship to back away when things get rough. A true friend should see you through the good and the bad.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You're in the mood for something special today. During evening hours, a loved one may treat you to something rather luxurious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may be unusually stubborn today. Don't be fooled by someone who claims to have something you need, when he or she is really begging.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You may be nervous today about a new project, but count on someone you know to prevent a mistake from happening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You're in no mood to be pushed around today. However, don't present yourself in a way that invites others to become aggressive or intrusive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You may be asking yourself how to do certain things today. Why do it alone? Employ the help of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — It will take a great deal to stir your anger today, but realize your threshold for tolerance. Use care.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Now is not the time to hold a grudge. No matter what the reasons are, forgive and forget!

Quote of the Day

"'Kay I don't make films but if I did they'd have a samurai!"

–Barenaked Ladies "One WeeK"

Close to Home By John McPherson

Another technological advancement for busy parents: the Clopper-activated ejectable child's seat

Today's D.C. Menu

Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin

LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Pizza Casserole
Vegan Falafel Sandwich w/ Falafel Sauce

DINNER
Breaded Chicken Tenders
Jamaican Beef Patty
Pasta Shells w/ Tofu Mushroom Sauce
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

Worcester

LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Elbow Macaroni/Tomato Sauce
Vegetable Lo Mein

DINNER
Breaded Chicken Tenders
Black Bean Quesadilla
Vegan Black Bean Quesadilla
Pastabilities

Hampshire

LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Charbroiled Chicken Sandwich
Barbecued Beef on a Bun

DINNER
Breaded Chicken Tenders
Jamaican Beef Patty

Berkshire

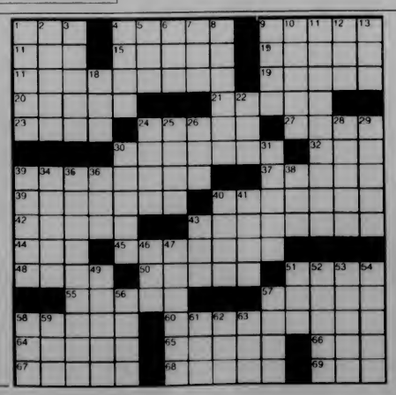
LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Hamburger on a Rolls
Harvest Burger

DINNER
Breaded Chicken Tenders
Jamaican Beef Patty
Pasta Shells w/ Tomato Basil Broth
Pastabilities

Today's Staff

Casey Kane
Brian McDermott
Ken McDonald
Rob Book
D.J. Gray

ACROSS



1 Oily
4 Maureen of the movies
9 Aquarium denizen
14 Flower garland
15 Eva or Juan
16 Used rowing tools
17 Meeting
19 Actor Edward James —
20 Edgar — Poe
21 Trendy digs
23 Looks at
24 Loafers and sandals
27 Stash
30 Explodes
32 Genetic material
33 Swift runner
37 Shun
39 Tell
40 It's golden!
42 Vine-covered
43 Yale and Duke
44 Actor Menéo
45 Sets sail
48 House wings
50 Cousins mothers
51 Young horse
55 Computer screen images
57 Actress Greta —
58 Animal's track
60 Time of rising prices
64 Reddish dye
65 Dynamite inventor
66 Insect
67 Artist's stand
68 Networks
69 "— My Party"

DOWN

1 Seaweed
2 Granular
3 Name
4 Not closed
5 That ship
6 Onassis nickname
7 Howard of "Happy Days"
8 Viewpoints
9 Pooch's sound
10 Stops
11 First man on the moon
12 Name for a lion
13 Sullivan and Koch
18 Owns
22 Midwestern ash
24 Coin receiver
25 Clinton's birthplace
26 Have bills
28 In reserve
29 Walks in water
30 Propeller part
31 Loses interest
33 Liqueur flavor
34 Oil ships
35 Huge numbers
36 Previously, in poems
38 Goose formation
40 Put in order
41 Kinds
43 Preserve
46 Male
47 Transporting
49 Tea cake
51 Chubby
52 African animal
53 More or less
54 Yearns
56 Of the mouth
57 Guys' partners
58 Not he
59 Green shade
61 Postal-creed word
62 Hoover's org.
63 Pioneered

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

B	A	B	A		T	O	W	E	L		A	P	S	O
E	G	R	U		W	E	E	D	Y		N	A	P	A
E	M	I	T		E	I	D	E	R		C	L	E	F
R	E	M	O	D	E	L		N	E	P	H	E	W	S
			C	O	D			S	A	O
S	M	A	R	T		P	P	M		P	R	A	W	N
O	O	N	A		L	O	U	I	S	A		B	O	D
D	O	I	T	Y	O	U	R	S	E	L	F	E	R	S
E	A	C	T		I	N	G	E	S	T		E	A	S	E
S	H	A	D	E		H	E	Y		A	R	M	E	D
			O	L	D			R	A	M
S	H	I	N	D	I	G		R	E	P	H	E	A	T	S
L	A	R	A		V	A	G	U	E		N	D	A	K
U	R	A	I		E	L	A	N	D		T	I	L	E
R	E	N	D		R	A	G	E	S		S	T	E	W

UMass women's soccer can't slow UConn attack as Minutewomen fall, 2-1

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

STORRS, Conn. — Slow starts have been the nemesis of the Massachusetts women's soccer team all season long.

With the exception of the 2-1 win over Evansville on Sunday, the Minutewomen have given up a goal in the first 20 minutes of every contest.

For each of those games, UMass has ended up on the short end of the stick.

Yesterday's game between UMass and Connecticut held true to that pattern in every respect.

The Huskies scored three goals in the opening 10:13 en route to a 4-1 win over the Minutewomen at Joseph J. Morrone Stadium.

"The first 10 minutes were Michigan relived. My hope was for us to just get into halftime down 3-1 and get them [UConn] reorganized," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said.

"That second half we were just looking to pinch a few here and there and we were able to hit the post, go one-on-one with their keeper and to lob one over the keeper with the keeper beaten. We could still be in overtime right now."

UMass (1-4) managed only six shots on the afternoon, but every one was a quality chance.

Sophie Lecot, who netted the lone goal for the Minutewomen in the first half, also hit the crossbar and was robbed of another goal as well.

Freshman Kristy Robicheau, who set up Lecot's goal, added a shot off the right crossbar late in the second half.

Kara Green also had a golden opportunity in the second half, but was denied by UConn keeper Anne-Elisabeth Eskerud.

However, the bottom line in soccer is who scores more goals. And UConn found the net more then UMass on this afternoon.

Sophomore forward Jen Carlson, who finished fourth in the country in goals last year, continued to prove that she is one to watch by scoring a pair of goals in the opening 2:50 of the game. Senior Margaret Tietjen set up both of those tallies.

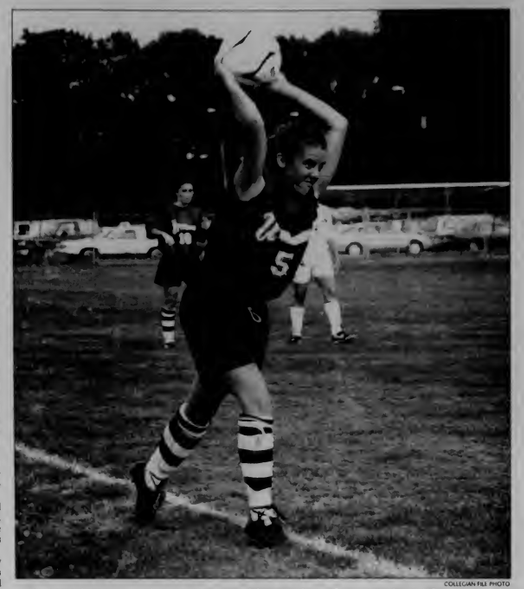
Then, just over seven minutes later, Jen Tietjen added another score for the Huskies, and before UMass had a chance to get settled into its game plan, it was trailing 3-0.

"It really is [discouraging to get behind so quickly], but it's hard to be up right now with all of our injuries," Rudy said. "Everything else imaginable has gone wrong. It seems like if it's going to go wrong, it's going to go wrong this year."

Lecot cut the UConn lead to 3-1 at the 17:35 mark of the first half. Robicheau set the play up by outhustling a UConn defender on the right flank, and then sent a cross into the box which Lecot booted home.

UMass had its opportunities to chip away at the UConn advantage, but the game stayed that way until the final minutes, when Mary-Frances Monroe scored to seal the deal for the Huskies.

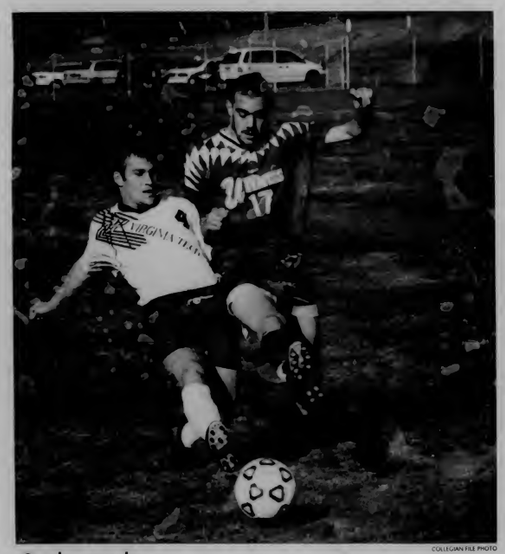
Angie Napoli had a strong game in net for UMass, making 12 saves in the wake of fierce pressure from the Huskies all afternoon.



Another aspect which hurt UMass yesterday was the fact that the Minutewomen had only 12 position players at their disposal, and eventually were reduced to 11 when Molly McGrew left with an injury in the second half.

Despite the tough 1-4 start and more highly competitive games coming up with Colgate and William and Mary this weekend and dates with Colorado and Texas also looming in the near future before the Atlantic 10 slate gets underway, Rudy has not lost confidence in his players at all.

"Right now we're somewhat injured and we've been beaten by four national caliber teams," he said.



"I'm going to keep coaching and they're going to keep training. They're wonderful people. They're the type of people that coaches love to train."

The Minutewomen will now look ahead for weekend dates with Colgate and William and Mary this weekend when they will host the UMass Classic.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts women's soccer team were defeated at Storrs, Conn. yesterday as UConn handed the Minutewomen a 4-1 loss.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

On the attack

The Massachusetts men's soccer team lost another close game to UNH yesterday. They will play next on the West Coast when they travel to California.

UMass fails to register victory with 2-1 loss to UNH Wildcats

By Sanford Appell
Collegian Staff

The frustration level for the Massachusetts men's soccer team reached a new high yesterday, as the team fell to the University of New Hampshire 2-1 at Totman Field.

The loss drops the Minutemen to 0-4-1 on the year (0-2-1 at home).

"This was the type of game you want to win any way you can, and then get out of here as soon as possible," New Hampshire coach Rob Thompson said.

Indeed, at various points in the match, it appeared that UMass was on the verge of its first victory of the season.

The Minutemen fell behind on the sun-drenched Totman Field at 25:35 into the match, as Zach Zeldner scored with the assist by Jay Heimgartner.

UMass was clearly on the defensive in the first half, despite each team registering 10 saves in the frame.

"We became much more aggressive in the second half," Massachusetts coach Sam Koch said. "That was good to see, because we need to be attacking to start winning."

The Minutemen sent a barrage of shots the Wildcats way in a strong attempt to seize the game early in the second half.

Matt Christy came through for the Minutemen, knotting the game at one apiece at 62:56 when he drilled an unassisted six footer from the left side pass UNH goalie Ethan Holmes.

"The ball first floated over the top," Christy said. "Then UNH missed a cross, and I put it through the net. It was one of the easiest ways to score."

Scoring certainly has not come easy for the most part this season for UMass as it has posted a total of 3 goals in the five matches they have played thus far.

Turn to MEN'S SOCCER, page 11

Men's soccer again close and yet still so far away

By Sanford Appell
Collegian Staff

An unfortunate early theme for the Massachusetts men's soccer team has been the inability to pull out the close games.

The Minutemen currently stand uncomfortably at 0-4-1. Yes, it is still early in the season, but the question marks are piling up after UMass fell to UNH 2-1 yesterday afternoon.

This was another match UMass figured it could win, but it has been unable to score goals when they are most needed.

"We expect to win all of our games," Massachusetts coach Sam Koch said. "So to lose a close game does not make anybody feel any better."

The ugly trend began with the home opener when UMass played to a 0-0 tie with Siena.

The pattern continued with a 1-0 defeat at the hands of Hartford.

Perhaps the most frustrating loss came at Maine last Saturday. In this contest, the Minutemen squandered a 2-0 lead, and eventually lost 3-2.

All of these occurrences have put UMass in a precarious position at this juncture.

The Atlantic 10 portion of the season has not yet begun, and already the team is crawling out of a hole that is consistently getting deeper.

Turn to CLOSE, page 11

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts men's soccer team has lost several close games but will try to rebound and recuperate as it travels west.

Field hockey captures second straight win

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

Despite the fact that the Massachusetts field hockey team is in the middle of a six-game road swing, the Minutewomen have not let the travel affect their play.

Yesterday, UMass picked up right where it left off after last Sunday's win over James Madison with a 3-1 victory over Harvard yesterday in Cambridge.

With the win, the Minutewomen improve to an even 3-3 on the year, while the Crimson fall to 1-2.

UMass, which plays on the AstroTurf at Richard F. Garber Field, showed no apparent trouble with the grass at Cumnock Field. Two years ago, the Minutewomen called the grass-covered Totman Field their home. And this week, they practiced on the intramural fields next to the William D. Mullins Center.

Senior midfielder Kate Putnam put the visitors on the board first with an unassisted tally with 8:31 remaining in the first half. It was the second goal of the season for the Greenfield native.

That was all the scoring fans in attendance witnessed until the final 10 minutes of the contest.

Harvard evened the game at one goal apiece when Penny Fairborn knocked a Kate Nagle feed past Minutewoman goaltender Zowie Tucker.

With 3:38 remaining in regulation, senior forward Erica Johnston gave UMass a lead it would not relinquish. Vicky Browne, a senior co-captain who plays in the midfield, notched the assist on the Johnston goal.

Johnston was playing in only her second game after sitting out three because of a mild concussion she

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 11

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 8 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Friday, September 18, 1998

Ruby in Hollywood

Simon Birch is one of fall's most anticipated new releases and Hollywood beauty queen Ashley Judd is its star. Check out an analysis of her career (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Two more big test

As if the Minutewomen haven't been busy enough, Amanda Thompson and the Minutewomen will host Colgate this weekend (see Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Gunmen massacre 19 at Mexican resort

EL SAUZAL, Mexico (AP) — Gunmen apparently sent by a drug lord yanked three families from their beds before dawn yesterday, lined them up against a wall and killed at least 19 men, women and children near a popular Baja California resort.

At least one man was seriously wounded. Police have a witness in protective custody, a 15-year-old girl who hid under a bed during the slaughter, The Associated Press has learned.

The attorney general of Baja California state, Marco Antonio de la Fuente Virrarreal, said the head of one of the households grew marijuana for the Arellano Felix drug-smuggling, the government news agency Notimex reported.

He said the man, Fermin Castro, oversaw the Arellano Felix's marijuana plantations nearby. Castro wasn't killed in the attack, but was in very serious condition with a bullet wound to the head, health officials said.

NATION

Laser pointers causing problems

CHICAGO RIDGE, Ill. (AP) — Youngsters around the country are getting their kicks using handheld laser pointers to flash bright red dots on movie screens, people at shopping malls and pro athletes in action.

While some communities are starting to crack down

The lasers, which are the size of a lipstick or a fountain pen, can throw a concentrated beam of light hundreds of feet and put a shining dot on someone's shirt or forehead, seemingly out of nowhere. Often, pranksters use them to highlight someone's private parts.

"It's become a big nuisance. It's annoying with them flashing that around on people," said Eugene Siegel, mayor of this blue-collar suburb about 15 miles from Chicago.

Chicago Ridge banned the sale of laser pointers to anyone under 18 after mall security guards complained.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Friday	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 74 LOW: 51	HIGH: 80 LOW: 51	HIGH: 81 LOW: 62

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds.....page 8
Comics.....page 9
Crossword.....page 8
Editorial.....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News.....page 3
Sports.....page 10

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Weekend crimes keep police busy

By Lorraine Kennedy
Collegian Staff

If this weekend compares to last weekend, the Amherst and University of Massachusetts police departments will find no shortage of activity around town to keep them busy.

There were a variety of alcohol and drug related incidents last weekend, including several arrests by the two police departments, both on the UMass campus and in the Amherst area.

The UMass police department reported 142 traffic stops Friday, Sept. 11 through Sunday, Sept. 13, six of which resulted in arrests for offenses including operation of a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor, illegal possession of liquor and/or a Class D drug, speeding and other traffic infractions.

In comparison, last year's first weekend resulted in four arrests for illegal possession/transportation of liquor, possession of a Class D substance and misuse of a false identification; three arrests were made following an incidence of breaking and entering.

The UMass police department reported two drug law violations over the weekend, both of which took place in UMass residence halls, for possession of both Class D and Class B drugs.

In addition, the police responded to calls of five incidences of vandalism, three larcenies, two occurrences of breaking and entering or burglary, one assault and one weapons violation.

According to UMass Chief of Police John Luippold, the first weekend was "not above and beyond what happens any other weekend," but noted that it does "bring a variety of incidents to our attention, especially those with alcohol."

Amherst police department also had their hands full, attending to a number of disturbances, assaults, keg violations, noise violations and liquor law violations. In responding to these incidences, several arrests were made; summons's and noise violations were also issued.

A noise complaint shortly after midnight Sept. 12 on Belchertown Road attracted officers, who reportedly discovered a party of about 1,000 people. The residents were instructed to tell the partygoers to leave. Nathan Melanson, 21, and Lauren Rebecca Teres, 21, residents of the duplex, were cited for noise violations and unlawful possession of a keg.

Matthew Zarotney, 20, of Meadow Street in Amherst, was arrested for assault on a police officer after allegedly shoving an officer. The police report that the officer was trying to ascertain if a laser, which was shone upon one of the officers, was perhaps a firearm.

In an unrelated incident, on Sept. 12, a resident awoke to find a stranger, asleep and smelling of alcohol, on her couch. Police arrested Matthew Lambert, 20, of Sterling, for breaking and entering with intent to commit a misdemeanor.

Amherst–Hampton commute to worsen as bridge renovation begins

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

Planning a drive to Northampton on Friday afternoon?

Make sure you have plenty of time and patience because as most Valley drivers know, you could be staring at the bumper stickers in front of you for up to an hour before getting to your destination.

In 1999, Massachusetts Department of Highways will begin a $12 million-dollar construction project for the Coolidge Bridge. The bridge, which crosses the Connecticut River between Northampton and Hadley, will have an additional lane added after the two-year project is completed.

This project, said Joe Yoblanski, spokesperson for the Mass. Dept of Highways, will improve traffic by adding another lane west–bound (towards Northampton.) Currently there are two east–bound lanes, and just one lane heading west–bound (towards Hadley).

"The No. 1 one reason for the construction," said Yoblanski, "is that the traffic volume on Route 9 necessitated putting two lanes each way."

He added that according to bridge maintenance time lines, they needed to build a new sidewalk and deck next year. It seemed reasonable to add a lane during the same construction period.

The construction will restrict bridge traffic into one lane going each way during the two-year period. This might create traffic problems for commuter students like Peter Radocchia, who usually takes the Pioneer Valley Transit Authority bus to Amherst every day.

"Maybe they could build a subway under Route 9," he said with a laugh, "or a commuter lane for the bus."

Michele Goldberg, a spokesperson for PVTA said hopefully the busses will provide a convenient alternative to commuters during bridge work.

"The Minuteman Express, which goes from Northampton to Amherst was started a couple of years ago when they thought they would start construction," she said. According to Goldberg they will continue and possibly expand this service during construction period.

Goldberg said they are exploring many different options to make the bus ride easier, like finding alternative routes.

"Sunderland has the closest bridge, but the concern is a lot of people will do that. We don't want to be stuck there," she said, "and it's 30 miles away."

The PVTA, said Goldberg is welcoming any ideas from the public that could possibly help ease traffic tension.

Apparently, she's already gotten a few.

"We had someone suggest boat–rides across the river."

With plans for expansions at UMass and a new Wal–Mart next to Hampshire Mall underway, some people feel that a more long–term traffic solution is needed.

According to an Aug. 31 edition of The Daily Hampshire Gazette, there has been some talk of a second Route 9 bridge being built over the Connecticut river. The article said that Senator Stanley Rosenberg, D–Amherst is in favor of a second bridge being built.

The article goes on to say that when the bridge was built 50 years ago, it was intended to handle 15,000 cars a day; now that number reaches 40,000 each day.

However, Dana Roscoe, senior transportation planner from the Pioneer Valley Planning Commission said a new bridge is not something being pursued at all right now.

"We are concentrating on the Coolidge Bridge," Roscoe said. "There have been six or eight editorials in the Gazette about this. Some say a bridge should be built near Hatfield. And some say Easthampton would be a good place."

Terry Blunt, Director of the Connecticut River Valley Action Program offered this advice on Pioneer Valley traffic congestion: "Nobody seems to be talking about getting out of their cars."

UMass ranks among top schools in survey by Princeton Review

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

What college has the best athletic program? The best academic program? The best parties? 56,000 students rated their colleges in areas from academics to campus life for The Princeton Review's annually published guidebook The Best 311 Colleges.

The rankings are based on a survey conducted by The Princeton Review, a New York City–based student services company not affiliated with Princeton University. The survey — the largest on–going poll of student opinions of their colleges — is done exclusively for this book at the colleges The Princeton Review considers the best in the nation. The 311 colleges listed in the book represent less than 10% of the nation's colleges.

The University of Massachusetts was one of the colleges that The Princeton Review interviewed and the responses were published in the book and also on the Internet.

Under the category of food, the school with the best food was College of the Atlantic in Bar Harbor, Maine. UMass was listed as being tenth out of the 311 colleges under the category of "Is this food?"

"We disagree with the characterization that we don't have the top offerings at the University Dining Services," News Director Kay Scanlan said.

"Our dining services is very flexible with one of the most extensive serving hours in the nation, and it offers a wide variety of choice," Scanlon said.

For most UMass students, the general consensus on the food is mixed.

"I haven't experienced a lot of college food, so I can't say that it's that great," student Taylor Kidston said.

"But I'm always sure to stay away from the meat," Kidson said.

However, student Vineet Khanre has mixed feelings on the issue.

"The price we pay for the meal plan here at UMass is basically for the convenience of the food being ready to eat without preparation or clean–up, yet the quality could be better," Khare said.

UMass also showed up in other categories. It was ranked as fifteenth in the nation for students dissatisfaction with financial aid.

The Bursar's Office could not be reached for comment.

UMass was also listed eighth for college newspaper most read by the students.

Mount Holyoke College received top honors for having the most beautiful campus.

Smith appeared as one of the top 7 schools to have the best academic programs.

Amherst College also appeared as sixteenth for happiest students and eighth as the toughest schools to get into.

For the complete listing of the college rankings, The Best 311 Colleges can be bought in bookstores or can be viewed over the web at www.review.com/college–rankings.

DAVID BLOTTA / COLLEGIAN

This blood's for you

Maggie Cassel, a freshman psychology major, celebrates her birthday yesterday by giving blood in the Student Union as Red Cross volunteer Vivian Eastman looks on.

MASSPIRG raising issues with credit card companies tactics

UMass students being lured into costly credit cards unaware of the long term responsibilities

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

Thursday afternoon on the University of Massachusetts Concourse of the Campus Center, the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG) held a press conference on the issue of campus credit card traps.

The student organization is raising awareness on the consequences involved in forming long–term credit and accruing large balances.

Credit card companies can be seen making offers to students around campuses nationwide.

MASSPIRG feels such offers seem to draw the average college student into credit loans, and bring large balances they have to pay off later.

According to a MASSPIRG press release, "Despite their lack of existing credit (and their lack of income, generally a key criterion for other potential customers) the industry, attracting by their lifetime profit potential, wants college students."

The card companies figure that if they can get students involved in their line of credit, they can keep them as customers and penalize them once they are in debt.

They attempt to lure students who come from a middle class or low income background, to run up a huge amount of debt, and have to pay it back later.

"What seems even more enticing to many of these credit card companies is that once a customer, always a customer," Provost Faculty Advisor John Cunningham said.

"They feel many students that run into debt once out of school will find good paying jobs that will help them to pay it off later, so why not target them now."

MASSPIRG's Emily Labarbera–Twarog had a personal credit experience, and to this day, she is still feeling the effects.

Presently owning two credit cards, she is still trying to pay off her debt that she accumulated a few years back.

Struggling with student loans, she became introduced to credit counseling, and she doesn't want others to experience what she went through.

"Students get credit cards off the tables at universities at a low credit rate and they aren't aware that these rates will precariously change," Labarbera–Twarog said.

"And with a lack of employment opportunities, many students aren't aware of the downfall," Labarbera–Twarog said.

Cunningham echoed Labarbera–Twarog's sentiment.

"The problem needs to be resolved through educating the public and the student body on what credit card companies are offering them and the whole truth behind the matters they present," Cunningham said.

Labarbera–Twarog wants students to know there are ways to avoid credit card debt.

First, students should invest in only one line of credit and not have multiple credit cards.

Secondly, students should get beyond the free frisbees and candy at credit card tables and find the real issues behind what companies are offering.

Lastly, avoid paying off balances late. Students tend to ring up large debts the more they hold off on getting payments in.

The issue of increased credit card use is becoming more serious.

Cunningham had some advice to avoid getting into credit card debt in the first place.

"Do your homework," Cunningham said.

The press conference was attended by both area television stations and newspapers.

DAVID BLOTTA / COLLEGIAN

You've got mail!

Sophomore sports management major Darryl Racca writes e-mail in the Lederle computer lab yesterday afternoon.

Scientist releases bomb fallout study

By H. Josef Hebert
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The scientist who oversaw a 14-year health study of radiation fallout from Cold War bomb tests apologized Wednesday for years of delay in making the findings public.

"The sense was that nobody was really terribly interested in this," Bruce Wachholz, chief of the radiation effects branch of the National Cancer Institute who coordinated the fallout study, told a Senate hearing.

To which Sen. Susan Collins (R-Maine) responded: "The public couldn't be interested in what the public didn't know."

The study, which tracked fallout nationwide from 100 aboveground nuclear explosions in the Nevada desert during the early years of the Cold War, was released last October, nearly 15 years after Congress ordered it.

Three months earlier, key findings were made public. The study concluded that exposure to iodine-131 from the bomb test fallout may have caused 11,500 to 212,000 additional cases of cancer. Senate Governmental Affairs Committee members asked senior National Cancer Institute officials why the findings were not made public earlier, since the basic results were known as early as 1989 and a final draft report was completed in 1992. Some lawmakers have suggested the release was delayed out of concern about public reaction.

Wachholz said there was "no intention to deceive or conceal this information" but acknowledged the report "received little attention" for several years after it was largely completed as some of the same researchers focused on the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear accident.

"The report should have gotten out faster," said Wachholz. But another witness suggested that public relations concerns may have played a part.

"There was concern within the [National Cancer Institute] about the negative impact that the study might have on public perception about the legacy of atmospheric testing of nuclear devices," said Owen Hoffman, who was a consultant on the fallout research. "This concern may have been partially responsible for delay in publication of the results," said Hoffman, now president of SENES Oak Ridge Inc., a consulting firm on risk analysis.

Richard Klausner, who became NCI director in 1995, acknowledged that he became aware of the study because of an inquiry from Sen. Tom Daschle (D-S.D.)

"Somewhere, obviously, this fell through the cracks," said Sen. John Glenn (D-Ohio.) "We shouldn't have to heckle people to get a report."

In releasing the report last year, the NCI concluded that bomb testing in Nevada between 1951 and 1962 exposed millions of American children to radioactive iodine-131, which can cause thyroid cancer.

The report estimated there would be 11,300 to 212,000 additional cases of thyroid cancer as a result of the exposure, particularly in the Farm Belt where children often drank fallout-contaminated milk.

The NCI last year urged those who believed they were exposed and are worried about it to see a doctor for a thyroid examination. Some scientists have suggested a more formal regional screening of exposed victims, but the NCI said that might cause more problems than it resolves.

U.S. farmers face export crisis

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — America's trade deficit climbed to $13.4 billion as the global financial crisis cut deeper into sales by American farmers and factories, pushing exports down for a fourth straight month.

While the Clinton administration urged joint efforts to ward off a worldwide recession, financial markets tumbled in disappointment yesterday, a day after Alan Greenspan squelched hopes of coordinated interest rate reductions among major countries.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 216.01 points to close at 7,873.77, pushing it back below where it started the year. The 2.7 percent plunge in the Dow followed a 2.4 percent fall in Tokyo's main stock index, which dropped to a 12-year low. Stocks were also down in Europe.

The trade report released yesterday by the Commerce Department showed that the July deficit rose by 2.1 percent from June's imbalance of $13.6 billion as American exports of goods and services fell 1.3 percent to $55.6 billion, the lowest level in 17 months.

Imports were down as well but by a smaller 0.8 percent to $69.3 billion. Most of that decline was attributed to a drop in shipments of auto parts from Canada and Mexico because of the General Motors strike.

The U.S. deficit with Pacific Rim countries, where the global currency crisis began 14 months ago, rose again in July and now totals $87.8 billion for the first seven months of this year, 42 percent higher than in 1997. Many Asian countries have fallen into deep recessions, cutting demand for American products. In addition, weaker currencies have boosted Asian imports into the United States.

The financial turmoil in Asia hit Russia last month, sending stocks and the ruble plummeting, and is now threatening Brazil and other countries in Latin America.

So far this year, the U.S. trade deficit is running at a record annual rate of $185 billion, 68 percent higher than last year's imbalance of $110 billion and private economists predicted further deterioration to come.

"The deficit is going to keep climbing and will worsen further next year as the turmoil comes closer to home," said Andrew Szamosszegi, senior research associate at the Economic Strategy Institute, a Washington think tank. "We are already starting to see the effects of the contagion in Latin America in lower U.S. exports to that region."

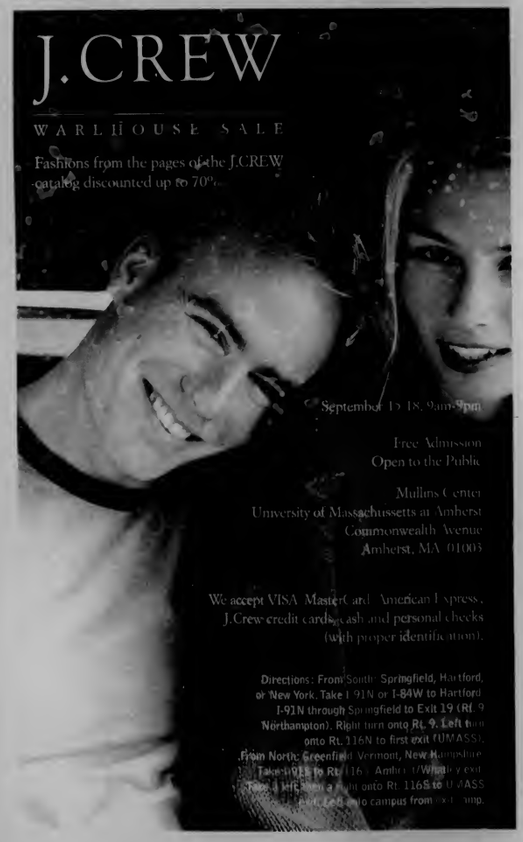
Greenspan, testifying before Congress Wednesday, termed the U.S. economy still strong despite the global upheaval, but he conceded "there are the first signs of erosion at the edges, especially in manufacturing."

Many economists believe the Fed will move to cut U.S. interest rates by the end of the year to insure that the rising trade deficit doesn't push the United States into a recession.

U.S. economic growth has already slowed dramatically and this has helped to keep inflation under control despite low unemployment.

In a separate report yesterday, the Labor Department said that consumer prices edged up a modest 0.2 percent in August as falling energy costs offset a big jump in clothing prices. So far this year, consumer prices are rising at a slight annual rate of 1.6, the best showing in 12 years.

The deficit with China widened to $5.4 billion in July, the largest imbalance with any country, surpassing perennial front-runner Japan for only the eighth time in history.



America's deficit with Japan narrowed slightly to $5.2 billion in July but so far this year is running 16 percent above the 1997 level.

DAVID BLOTTA / COLLEGIAN

Job-hunting blues

Shannon Purtell an undeclared freshman, searches for a job in Whitmore yesterday.

FOR EDUCATION and RESEARCH COMMUNITY

OVER ONE MILLION OF THE BEST MINDS IN AMERICA HAVE ALREADY CHOSEN THE BEST RETIREMENT SYSTEM.

TIAA-CREF.

When it comes to planning a comfortable future, America's best and brightest turn to the expert: TIAA-CREF. With over $230 billion in assets under management, we're the world's largest retirement system, the nation's leader in customer satisfaction,* and the overwhelming choice of people in education, research, and related fields.

Expertise You Can Count On

For 80 years, TIAA-CREF has introduced intelligent solutions to America's long-term planning needs. We pioneered the portable pension, invented the variable annuity, and popularized the very concept of stock investing for retirement. In fact, we manage the largest stock account in the world (based on assets under management).

Today, TIAA-CREF can help you achieve even more of your financial goals. From tax-deferred annuities and IRAs to mutual funds, you'll find the flexibility and choice you need, backed by a proven history of performance, remarkably low expenses, and peerless commitment to personal service.

Find Out For Yourself

To learn more about the world's premier retirement organization, talk to one of our retirement planning experts at 1 800 842-2776. Or better still, speak to one of your colleagues. Find out why, when it comes to planning for tomorrow, great minds think alike.

Visit us on the Internet at www.tiaa-cref.org

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it."

*DALBAR, Inc., 1997 Defined Contribution Excellence Ratings. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. CREF certificates and interests in the TIAA Real Estate Account are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2733, extension 5509, for the prospectuses. Read them carefully before you invest or send money. 8/98

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Jason Trenkle• Photographs by Brian McDermott

Were you informed that the University has plans to renovate the Student Union and include privatized businesses? Do you think the Student Union should be changed and if so how?

"I think it's pretty good the way it is, but if they need to change it, they should add a bowling alley."

Nick Herrera
junior
undecided

"I'd like an Omnimax theater. They need to get some good movies in there."

Jim Cerone
senior civil/environmental engineering

"It needs some windows or something to lighten the place up with. It's a little dim."

Kate Ricci
freshman
communication disorders

"I don't want anything corporate to go in there. I like it the way it is, a very relaxing and cooperative place."

Angela Russo
junior journalism

"I think they should prioritize and concentrate on more necessary things like renovating the old lecture halls."

Karen VanGaasbeck
sophomore nutrition

"I think the Cape Cod Lounge should be turned into a roller-skating rink and the barber shop should be for board games."

Matt Palumbo
senior communications

Connolly looks for immunity

By Erica Noonan
Associated Press

BOSTON — He's the one agent willing to confirm Stephen "The Rifleman" Flemmi's claim that the FBI let mob informants commit crimes in exchange for information on mafia rivals. That's provided he gets immunity from prosecution.

Retired FBI supervisor John Connolly has so far refused to testify in ongoing federal hearings about his close relationship with Flemmi and associate James J. "Whitey" Bulger.

Now defense attorneys want Connolly granted full immunity to tell a judge that he gave Flemmi and Bulger permission to run a gambling and bookmaking operation without fear of prosecution. On Wednesday, defense attorney Martin Weinberg asked U.S. District Judge Mark Wolf to order prosecutors to grant Connolly immunity. Defense attorneys were expected to conclude arguing on that motion yesterday.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, Connolly said he would welcome a chance to testify and that he only invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination while on the witness stand last spring at the advice of his attorney.

"I would welcome immunity," said the former "handler" for the two top-echelon informants. "I've never needed immunity for doing anything wrong or committing any crime. The issue I would be concerned for would be for authorization."

By this, Connolly said, he wanted to make sure it was clear that it was not him alone who allowed Flemmi and his now-fugitive partner to operate their gambling business unimpeded.

"This was not John Connolly policy, this was the policy of the entire FBI," said Connolly, who retired from the bureau in 1990 and now works as an executive at Boston Edison. "These people were guaranteed that they could run a loan-sharking and gambling operation."

Connolly said he felt the indictment of Flemmi and Bulger in 1995 on racketeering charges was "reprehensible."

"We followed the official FBI informant policies," he said. "Top-echelon informants risked their lives to talk to us. We were told to promise them we would never reveal their identities and that if [illegible] necessary we would dismiss cases." [illegible] said.

Two accused of sexual assault

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A man and woman accused of sexually assaulting their three children over several years contend they were merely trying to teach them sex education, police say.

The children — a 17-year-old boy and two girls, 13 and 15 — were removed from their home after the arrest of their stepfather, a 34-year-old maintenance man, over the weekend. Police arrested the children's mother Wednesday.

"I could not believe these people actually thought what they were doing to the kids was right," Detective Fred Gilbert said. "When we brought him in here for a statement, the stepfather said, 'What's wrong with teaching my kids about sex? It's better than having them learn it on the streets."

According to police, the couple began teaching the children about sex when they turned 10. Among other things, they had sex in front of them, molested them and instructed them in the use of [illegible] police said.

Chinese detain political campaigners

By Charles Hutzler
Associated Press

BEIJING — In another sign China's Communist Party leaders are narrowing the limits of dissent, police brought two government critics in for questioning yesterday, apparently over their plans to organize a political opposition party.

Police in Beijing arrested Ren Wanding, a prominent figure in the dissident community, his wife Zhang Fengying said.

An hour later police took away another dissident, Yao Zhenxian, in Shanghai, China's business capital 700 miles to the south, said Lu Siqing of the Hong Kong-based Information Center of Human Rights and Democratic Movement in China.

On Wednesday, authorities in the capital arrested Ma Shaohua, a leader of the 1989 Tiananmen Square democracy movement. They questioned him for several hours before releasing him, the Information Center said.

All three were trying to set up branches of the China Democracy Party. Ma, Ren and three other Beijing dissidents planned to file registration papers for the party on Friday, while Yao had recently traveled to a nearby county to discuss organizing the party, Lu said.

The detentions quashed hopes that authorities were considering permitting the first legal opposition party since the Communists came to power 49 years ago.

Human right groups also reported yesterday that Fang Jue, a government official-turned-democracy campaigner who disappeared nearly eight weeks ago, was in police custody. His sister saw him July 25, the last family member to do so, said New York-based Human Rights in China.

Over the past 10 days, dissidents in five provinces tried to register China Democracy Party branches and were given slight encouragement when officials did not immediately reject their applications.

When applicants tried in June to register the party in eastern Zhejiang province, police arrested 12 people connected to the organization. All were later released.

Their arrests in mid-July — on the heels of President Clinton's China summit — were seen as the start of a clampdown after months of apparently loosening controls.

Fang Jue appears to be a victim of that clampdown. He captured the attention of China's domestic and exiled democracy movement last winter by outlining his program for political change: direct elections, freedom of speech and stronger civilian control of the military.

Interested in writing for News? Come down and talk to Jill.

TAIZÉ

Sunday mornings, 11am at the Ark
Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass

PRAYER • CHANT • SILENCE

Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass
758 North Pleasant Street

(2 doors north of Lederle Tower)
Phone: 549-5929 for more information

DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

part-time study for people of all ages

FALL 1998

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: MAKING DREAMS COME TRUE

- Nearly 100 credit courses - in the evening! Including:
  Intro to Arts Management
  Public Speaking
  Environmental Health Sciences
  Corporation Finance
  Interpreter's Studies
  Intro to Public Relations
  Human Resource Management
  Energy Healing In Nursing Practice
  Online Course: Sioux Families of the Pine Ridge Reservation
- Opportunities to enroll in University day courses
- Part-time degree programs, both graduate and undergraduate
  Bachelor of General Studies
  Master's in Library and Information Studies
  M.S. in Labor Studies
  Master of Music Education
  M.S. in Plant & Soil Sciences
  Master's in Education
  MBA Professional Program
  RN to BS in Nursing
  Master of Public Health

Classes begin September 14
For a free course catalog, call 413-545-0107 or e-mail contined@admin.umass.edu
www.umass.edu/contined/ for updated course information
Division of Continuing Education: University of Massachusetts Amherst
a quality education at an affordable price

Mavi Jeans.

ZANNA
downtown Amherst

FITNESS WORKSHOP
Nutritional Supplements

Pure Creatine 600 grams	$35.00
Creatine Surge 40lbs	$39.95
Whey Protein 2lbs	$21.00

www.fitnessworkshop.com
Free Giveaways - Online Ordering
1-877-FIT-WORK

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO
SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE
DISCOUNT CARD
WITH THIS COUPON
413-253-5592

Healthy Choice! Healthy Choice! Healthy Choice!

ICHIBAN いちばん

Authentic Japanese Restaurant
1 Roundhouse Plaza, Northampton, MA
(413) 585-1185
(Behind City Hall, Off Main St.)

What is the Difference?

#1 Sushi
Daily fresh raw fish over sushi rice.
Stay healthy & live longer!
"This one is what everyone falls in love with"

#2 Tatami Room
Cozy and private, parties available up to 25 people

SPECIAL CATEGORY
Exceptional Catering Service
Sushi chef works at your party
Lunch Specials $4.95 and up

10% OFF Dinner w/ Student ID
Expires 11/31/98
Reserve for Karaoke
Delivery Available
OPEN 7 DAYS
Birthday Party: Chef's Free Meal & Picture
4 person table

We Have
(Exercise Bike Classes)-
Full Schedule

Personal Training
Friendly Atmosphere

Tanning
Aerobics - Full Schedule
Cardio Theater

Great Hours
Multi-Level Balconies
New Entrance
Trained Staff

Fruit Smoothies,
Supplements, Health Drinks

Pre Cors, Bikes, Rowers,
Treadmills, Stairclimbers

The area's only

IMPROVED!
EXPANDED!
WHAT YOU WANT!

Tennis & Fitness Center

... The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ...

Through the woods

This morning I woke early to feelings of excitement and purpose. I made my way through a sleeping campus to the edge of the small wilderness located between Orchard Hill and Sylvan. As I took my first steps into the meadow I was met by one of the most beautiful sights I have ever seen.

There before me, bathed in the light of morning, stood a red fox. Until this time I had only seen the orchard's foxes at dusk or early evening and I silently gave thanks for this awesome sight. They are incredible animals. Their senses are excellent and their level of awareness is almost unparalleled.

She was about the size of a large house cat. Her ears, able to hear the ticking of a watch at 40 yards, stood perked on her head. She was hunting. I watched in awe as she stalked and pounced time and again like a cat playing with a toy. As she trotted off to bed for the day, the bittersweet sting of reality washed away my feelings of elation and rapture: The plans to bulldoze the orchard to make room for Commonwealth College have troubled me for quite some time now.

The orchard, for anyone who doesn't know, is one of the most phenomenal places on campus. Nestled in the tiny area between Orchard Hill, Northeast, Sylvan and East Pleasant Street, it is a dynamic wilderness area made up of wetlands, waterways, thickets and meadows. You will find highlands as well as swamps there; barren places and community forests. The orchard is a forgotten wilderness. Though it is often overlooked, it is able to inspire and conjure feelings of rapture in her visitors as easily as any of this country's natural treasures.

"Is it worth losing all this land and all this life to make room for a few new buildings and some parking lots?"

Erik Becker

If you have only seen the orchard from your car window or from the path between Orchard Hill and Sylvan, I urge you to experience it before it is too late. I urge you to sit quietly in the morning and watch the deer and rabbits feed. I urge you to lie in the meadows and watch the pair of red- tailed hawks hunt. I urge you to get on your hands and knees and explore the slight trails through thickets of wild rose and buckthorn, where animals like weasel, skunk and coyote seek shelter.

Then finally, after you have only begun to learn what the land has to teach, I urge you to ask your self: is it worth it? Is it worth losing all this land and all this life to make room for a few new buildings and some parking lots? We can't allow ourselves to become complacent in our beliefs that some pieces of land simply do not matter. The devastation of a small patch of natural land in a crowded town is as destructive as the selling of farmland for housing or the butchering of virgin timber for parking lots.

It is relatively easy to condemn a piece of land that one has only visited briefly or seen on a map. But I dare you to know this land intimately before you weigh your final decision. True, the land does belong to UMass and yes, maybe there is a need for an honors college, but we are the Earth's caretakers and we must make our decisions more wisely now than ever before.

There was a time when we were so few that the Earth could absorb and correct almost any mistake we made. But this is no longer the case. Our power and influence is far too great now. We all must become aware that the front lines of this great struggle are not in the rain forests of South America or in the timber being clear cut in Oregon, but right here in our own back yard.

We, as a society, must get our feet back in touch with the Earth and realize what a profound effect our decisions of today will have on our children for generations to come. We must regain the feelings of love and compassion for the Earth that were once held sacred by all of our ancestors, for it is only people's hearts that can cure the ills of Earth Mother.

A great number of people here on campus love the orchard and use her land for many different things. I urge you all to imagine the feeling you'll get later this year when bulldozers and chain saws come to clear the land. Imagine the sick feeling that will find you when you realize that the deer and rabbits no longer have a place to feed. Or that the pair of red-tailed hawks no longer have a place to hunt.

Think of the feeling that will overcome you when you know that you will never again have the chance to learn about the foxes, coyotes, skunks, opossums, raccoons, weasels, groundhogs, feral cats, muskrats, turtles, snakes, rodents and birds that once lived there. Think of how it will feel when they are all gone and all that is left is some barren ground, soon to be a parking lot or another building.

If anyone else is troubled by these plans, I urge you to take action before it is to late. Taking action can be making phone calls and writing letters to people in charge or can be as simple as spending some time honoring the land in your own unique way. If any of the people who are involved in the planning or decision making process are reading this, I would love to meet with you. I would love the opportunity to walk through the orchard with you and point out the things that make it so special. I would love to show you where the fox dens are, where the deer bed down and the countless other things that, when noticed, make the land come alive in new and special ways.

A very wise man once likened the present moment to the palm of a hand with each finger representing the avenue of a possible future. Though some futures are more probable than others, nothing is set in stone. All things can be altered.

It is my intention simply to display the whole truth. If someone can honestly say, after they have humbled themselves and learned to know the land on its own terms, that the need to develop is so great that it out weighs the needs of all the things that count on that land for sustenance, then maybe the present decision is the correct one. However, if even a trace of doubt lingers in the minds of the decision makers, I beg you to consider alternatives.

Erik Becker is a UMass student.

Spreading the blame

In recent months we have heard a lot about Bill Clinton. President Clinton is currently being investigated for his actions with former White House intern Monica Lewinsky, and also for perjury under oath. Now the United States Senate has begun its investigation.

Since the beginning of this ordeal, any American could have guessed that Bill Clinton had had a sexual affair with Ms. Lewinsky. If you were still wondering at 10 p.m. on Aug. 17 what he was going to say, then this country has a more serious problem than Bill Clinton.

"I have news for all of you: I don't like to be lied to. Period. Whether it's by the president or anybody else"

Paul Teves

So the President had a sexual affair with Ms. Lewinsky and he lied about it. The problem is that the man has admitted his actions on national television in front of 265 million Americans, and, oh yes, the rest of the free world, that he is a weak family man, and bad husband.

So let's get off his back and let him do the job he was elected to do. After all, he has done a pretty good job; some might even say a great job.

But people like Sen. Joseph Lieberman, as he stated in front of Senate, see Bill Clinton's actions and dishonesty is detrimental to the youth of this nation. Well Senator, he just did you a favor, because this is a problem that goes back to prehistoric times, so maybe now you can address it, along with President Clinton. Oh yeah, and I've never seen a senator or congressman lie to the American public on issues of policy that affects our everyday lives.

These same senators and congressmen have set an equally bad example. Lieberman admitted as much in front of the Senate on Thursday Sept. 3, saying that congressmen and senators, as well as former presidents, ie. So where do these people get off investigating the president every day for eight months, for the same things they do day in and day out? Why aren't they being investigated?

I have news for all of you: I don't like to be lied to. Period. Whether it's by the president or anybody else, including members of both houses of Congress. Don't get me wrong: the president should be censured if the allegations are true, and if the definition of sexual relations is clear, and if he did really attempt to impede justice. But, like two-thirds of America, I feel impeachment is unwarranted.

Dan Qualye, former vice president of the United States, commented on President Clinton's speech to the nation on Aug. 17, 1998. Following the speech he called for Clinton's resignation or his impeachment.

Yet former Vice President Qualye's administration lied to our face about creating new taxes. Remember, Dan? "Read my lips, no new taxes." That little white lie by former President George Bush effected our day to day lives more than Monica Lewinsky and shady Kenneth Starr ever will. This was a lie that affected us during the recession of the lat. 80s and early 90s yet no big deal was made of this.

Then there's my personal favorite, Senator Orrin Hatch, head of the senate judiciary committee. He claimed up and down to anyone who would listen that if President Clinton came out and admitted his mistake that he would have no problems. Well Senator Hatch apparently didn't hear what he wanted to on Aug. 17, because he trashed the president for his speech.

After the speech, Hatch tore apart the president for having claimed that it was his business and that it really should remain a private matter between him and his family, and that maybe Starr's investigation was too personal. That may or may not be true, but when did it become Hatch's job to defend Ken Starr? I believe Hatch is supposed to remain neutral in these proceedings.

Take note: Ken Starr has done this country no favors. He has a serious god complex, and needs to find a real job instead of robbing taxpayers blind. As an American citizen, I see Starr, as a vindictive, spiteful, angry political puppet, who has been given the authority to pass judgement on other citizens and has sworn to give these same citizens a fair trial. This man has made a mockery of our otherwise fine judicial system. Sleep tight.

The biggest hit in all of this is that long after President Clinton is gone, and Ken Starr is just a bad nightmare, the presidency will still be hurting because of Starr. Starr has set a bad precedent for any President who follows Clinton. The next President, whether it's Al Gore, Dick Gephardt or George Bush Jr., will have to spend years reconstructing the trust and the office of the president.

I fear for him because he will be under a microscope; everything he does will be questioned. Worse yet, everything they did 20 years ago will be investigated. I hope Dick Gephardt didn't smoke pot in college.

President Clinton has made a mistake. It wasn't his first and it will not be his last. He's not unlike others before him:

- Lyndon B. Johnson, was reputedly a heavy drinker, and drank heavily when he left the country.
- John F. Kennedy, as well as Franklin D. Roosevelt, were allegedly womanizers, yet you don't quite hear about them. Maybe Camelot just did a better job of hiding it. We don't know if Kennedy obstructed justice because he was never investigated.

Let the media do its job of investigating politicians, not just one guy with a super ego (Starr), who doesn't want to lose a case.

Personal note to Ken Starr: Clinton apologized, forgive him, retire, write a book about the experience, move on with your life and let the big boys in Congress, the Senate and in the Oval Office, do the real work of running the country.

Paul Teves is a Collegian staff member.

I'm that guy

How many times have you been buzzed Top Gun style by a roller-blader attempting speeds that would melt all eight of his rubber wheels and wondered where his head is at? I'm here to explain, because I'm that guy.

I'm also the guy that you have to listen to as I walk out of the Campus Center, complaining into thin air (because no one listens to me anymore) about the fact that my "Lentil Soup," was actually "Lentil Soup with big chunks of ham in it."

And life just wouldn't be the same if I wasn't the guy who comes to fix your cable and generally faces down the entire gamut of questions associated with the ethernet. So, like I said, I'm here to explain.

Roller-blading. People at UMass generally don't like those of us with bikes or rollerblades invading "their space" on the walkways around campus. However, I too consider it my space. If there were specific trails for bikes or rollerblades throughout this vast campus of ours, I would use them. But there aren't any. Getting to my destination quickly is important to me... and it's just fun to go weaving in– between, all the people walking almost shoulder–to–shoulder up the path to class.

So call me selfish. I can't really talk my way out of that one. I've never actually hit anyone but maybe I'm pushing my luck. Even when I don't consider myself to be in the wrong, I can admit when I'm not right. This is one of those times. Therefore, as of late I've tried to give people a wider berth. Sure, it's not as much fun, but at least this way I can be a little more certain I won't get body–slammed by a UMass defensive lineman for accidentally running him down. I now also rollerblade 100 percent sober.

Rob Thomson

This brings me to my sobering experience at the Bluewall. Lovely place. I enjoy sitting there and doing the daily crossword puzzle in the Collegian. In any case, on this afternoon, I decided to venture into the "soup/salad" other– dimension. You know, that slightly "under construction" cafe in back of the Bluewall.

Rolling on in, I proceed to the soup section (mistake No. 1). The sign reads "Lentil Soup." I love lentil soup. I buy the big Progresso cans of it. I know what's in lentil soup. Ham is not a regular ingredient in lentil soup. Now I can understand, some people might say, "Hey, wicked pissa, dude, I got ham in my soup!" — I'm not that guy.

I'm one of the few, the proud, the vegetarian. Don't worry, we are not Jehovah's (not that there's anything wrong with that), we don't recruit, and we're not selling anything.

After consuming a tongue–slickening spoonful of the stuff, I wrinkled my nose and scooped another spoonful for inspection. The second time I was able to enjoy watching a big chunk of ham float to the surface. Oh... yum.

I calmly replaced the lid, walked back to the counter from which I got it, and told them my problem. I also mentioned they might want to put a sign out, to indicate that there is indeed ham in the lentil and ham soup.

This earned me a meeting with the almighty assistant manager, whose name has since slipped my mental Rolodex. She informed me that "all vegetarian dishes are clearly marked vegetarian," and of course lentil soup has ham in it. There were no vegetarian dishes that day, hence no signs. How does a stranger to their operation know this then? Simple, you don't.

My request was simple — a sign or piece of paper with the words "with ham" placed after the "Lentil Soup" sign. No big hassle really, just have someone who can write and manage a roll of tape use up 30 seconds and save other unsuspecting innocents a real bad pre–class experience.

So coming back to my original point. OK, fine, you may not be wrong, but why argue such a small point. Why argue whether or not lentil soup always has ham in it, and what country you're from that has ham in the lentil soup as industry standard, and who expects it. I didn't ask her to change the menu, simply to be more descriptive so I could avoid consuming swine. Was I the offending party, to ask for something like that? I don't know, maybe.

Things is, I was facing down a low–level kitchen manager, who was in all probability just trying to hold onto every last shred of authority and power she had left. So she snubs me. Maybe it was the writing and tape thing. In any case, my problem was not going to be resolved, I realized it and moved on. I moved on outside and complained to everyone on the Campus Center steps and lawn about the ham.

I'm that guy. I tell everyone what I have a problem with. I can understand that kind of person. That's the only way people hear you at a school this big, no matter the size of the issue. I feel your pain man.

As I mentioned, I also fix your cable. I'm that guy. I'm not the ethernet guy. I'm the cable guy. It's a student staff and we're pretty good at getting you guys your "South Park" and "Monday Night Football" on time. People used to love the cable guy.

The ethernet is in my opinion the second worst thing to hit this campus since the ham landed in the lentil soup. I can't answer your questions about the ethernet, nor can I even tell you who else besides OIT to call. I'm with Housing Telecom. I'm that guy.

Oh yeah, and the power outage. That happened right after my altercation in hell's kitchen. They were able to sell no more soup that day.

Rob Thomson is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

Who's the fool?

To the editor:

I am responding to Dahlia DeSimone's article, "Dur," in the Sept. 11 Daily Collegian. In the article, DeSimone makes derogatory remarks about God and people of faith. DeSimone refers to people who believe in God as "fools."

I'd like to ask, what is so foolish about following a God who teaches love and peace? Was Mother Teresa foolish for helping the poor and the sick of Calcutta in God's name? Was she "wasting" her life by doing God's work? Thousands of people of all faiths have dedicated their lives to helping others. What do you dedicate yourself to, Ms. DeSimone? Drugs (Ecstasy) and "sex without shame?"

All God asks of us is to live decent lives and be kind to one another. "Love thy neighbor as thy love thyself," are not idle words. How can that be a restriction? I am not a fool, but an intelligent, educated person who chooses to believe in a loving God. My faith is as valid as your disbelief.

Perhaps someday, you'll come to regret your irrational hatred of God. Until then, God bless you.

Jennifer Rock
Springfield

Looking for volunteers

To the University Community:

The University's home football season will begin on Sept. 26 and the entire community is invited to attend. The football team has already played in two exciting road games, and the award winning UMass Marching Band can always be counted on to give a thrilling performance.

Athletic events are an important part of campus life and we urge everyone who decides to take part to join us in promoting a good time, sharing food and non–alcoholic beverages before and after the game, and generally enjoying the game (win or lose!), the music and the socializing.

As you may recall, last year, due to national and local events surrounding the abuse of alcohol, the University brought tailgating back into accord with the long–standing ban against alcohol consumption on campus. Attendees will receive flyers upon entering the parking lots explaining the new policy and why there is no one special lot set aside for tailgating.

This year, we are seeking volunteers to serve as hosts before and during the games. These volunteers would be on hand to answer questions, to make sure everyone is aware of alcohol and safety regulations, and generally help in maintaining a fun, safe environment for all. Anyone willing to volunteer should call the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs at 545–2300 for further information and dates of a training program/orientation.

We look forward to your participation in making these occasions safe and fun for all.

David K. Scott
Chancellor
University of Massachusetts

Doonesbury — Gary Trudeau

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor–in–Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Mennaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prentes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmed Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Pearl Jam still "Alive"

Old tricks keep Seattle band from becoming stale

COURTESY ANTON CORBIJN

Eddie Vedder and company promoted their latest album Yield, at Great Woods Wednesday night.

By Kevin Monahan
Collegian Staff

PEARL JAM
Great Woods
Sept. 16

MANSFIELD — The smell of stale beer and cheap marijuana wafted through the late summer sky at the Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts Wednesday night, as Pearl Jam played their second date in promotion of their latest release, Yield.

The epitome of the now defunct early 90s musical phenomenon, grunge, Pearl Jam's material has significantly decreased in quality with each album since the release of Ten back in 1991. Their display at Great Woods on Wednesday was tired, a bit self-indulgent, but entertaining nonetheless.

After opening act Ben Harper left the stage, the glorified garage act from Seattle launched into their set of pure, noise-riddled rock that caught everyone's attention during the heyday of grunge. The band, composed of (as if everybody did not already know) singer/guitarist Eddie Vedder, lead and rhythm guitarists Mike McCready and Stone Gossard and bassist Jeff Ament were joined on-stage by former Soundgarden drummer Matt Cameron.

Cameron, filling in for Jack Irons, who could not tour due to health problems, had some trouble modifying his overly agressive drumming to fit Pearl Jam's controlled rhythm section. But Cameron had more than his share of bright spots as he showcased the raw drumming style that

Turn to PEARL JAM, page 6

Judd goes from talented actress to typical Hollywood celebrity

By Rob Roensch
Collegian Staff

Before she dated Michael Bolton, before she became a regular in the pages of People, Ashley Judd was a promising young actress. It's hard to believe, considering the mushy, assembly–line stuff she's been in recently: the sweaty, overcooked Time to Kill and the mediocre thriller Kiss the Girls, which also somehow managed to waste Morgan Freeman.

Her return to the screen in this weekend's poorly reviewed Simon Birch is hardly cause for celebration, but it is a good reason to remember when she wasn't so content to skate by on dim star glamour. Once upon a time she had just completed key roles in two of the best, most underrated movies of the 90s, Victor Nunez's Ruby in Paradise and Michael Mann's Heat.

In Ruby in Paradise, Judd plays Ruby, a poor woman who runs out on an abusive relationship to begin a new life as a cashier in a strip–mall section of Florida. It's not exactly thrill–a–minute stuff to begin with, and director Nunez moves incredibly slowly, dwelling for what seems like hours on ordinary scenes like towels and cheap figurines in a beach souvenir store.

What makes the crawling pace seem human instead of just boring is Judd's performance. She resists all impulses towards emotional venting in favor of a tender curiosity. The camera isn't just pretentiously slow, it's showing us Ruby's patient way of observing the world, through Judd's skill, the camera's point of view and Ruby's blend. She allows us to feel Ruby's reverence for the specific physical world of touristy, run–down Florida that most of us would find cheesy and even ugly.

In Heat, Judd jumped from the indies to the big time. Heat is yet another crime drama about bank robbing and obsession, but it is anything but forgettable. Its L.A. is blank and gigantic, a city as a stage for a Greek tragedy. Heat's blend of atmosphere, Hollywood drama, and realism is seamless. Further, stars Robert DeNiro and Al Pacino are not just another cop and crook, they are battling gods of American crime drama. The ending image of the two famous adversaries clasping hands is one of the most forceful images ever of the slim (or non–existent) line between good and evil.

Although Heat seems like a boy's club, Judd plays a key part, holding her own in pitch–perfect scenes with Val Kilmer and DeNiro and lending the cliched role of gangster's girlfriend an uncommon element of inner strength. Although she never shoots a gun or wears a ski mask, the robberies and murders are just as much on her character's hands as on the other gang members'.

If Judd could not convince us of the fierce, cold steel beneath her skin, her character's decision to let her criminal lover escape from the law would be a sign of weakness instead of a deliberate, thought–out decision. Judd makes us believe in her character, the innocent, uninvolved bystander who is really not so innocent. Her decision to save the father of her child instead of handing him to the law is the movie's turning point. Her performance makes the difficult moral choice real and helps make Heat resonate. It's not just about big–time actors wrestling each other for supremacy, it's about the opposition of love and justice.

So why hasn't Judd been in any large scale, meaty movies recently? Maybe she's lost the fire, or maybe there is a shortage of good parts. In any case, she's a major talent, and it would be a shame if she drifted away from these two wonderful performances and became just another answer in the TV Guide crossword.

COURTESY ALAN MARKFIELD

Simon Birch star and Hollywood siren Ashley Judd has sold out to fame since her indie start in Ruby in Paradise.

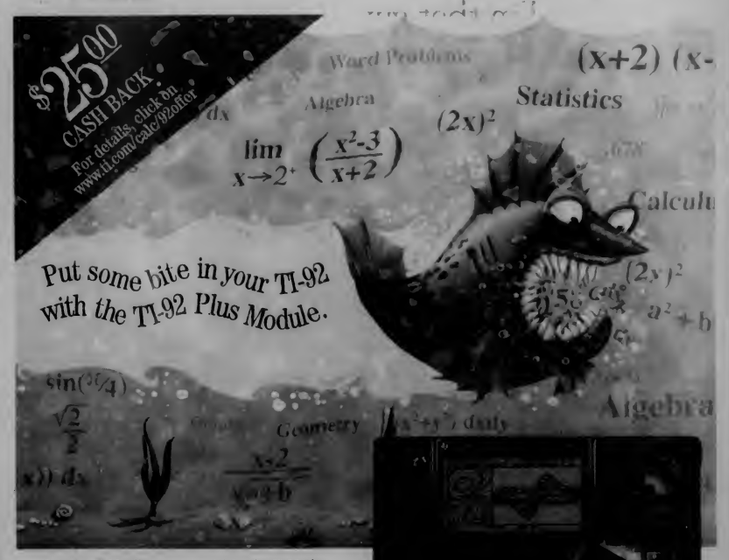
Attention Graduating Seniors

Peace Corps will be hosting a Five-College Area Campaign Sept. 21-25 in an effort to fill hundreds of assignments in Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe and Latin America that will begin departing late May 1999.

HOW FAR ARE YOU

Peace Corps is looking to fill important assignments overseas in development in a variety of sectors. LOOKING FOR LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS ESPECIALLY!

WILLING TO GO



Volunteers receive a monthly living stipend, housing, transportation to and from their host country, complete medical and dental care, vacation, travel subsidy and a $5,400 readjustment allowance upon completion of service.

TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

UMASS-Amherst
General Information Meeting
9/23/98 7:00 pm Room 174-176 Campus Center

(413) 545-2105

Only the TI-92 offers powerful functionality with features such as dropdown menus, split screen mode, symbolic manipulation with pretty print, 3D graphing, and text editor.

Adding the TI-92 Plus Module takes all that capability to a whole new level. Plug it in to your TI-92 and get:

- Over 500K more memory.
- Electronic upgradability.
- Advanced Mathematics Software including differential equations solving, 3D graph rotations, more linear algebra, an interactive numeric solver, constants, and unit conversions.

You can buy the TI-92 at your college bookstore or local retailer. The TI-92 Plus Module can be purchased from our on-line accessory store, or by calling 1-800-TI-CARES.

TEXAS INSTRUMENTS

© 1998 Texas Instruments Incorporated #16199988

Old faces, new places on TV

By Brooke Steinberg
Collegian Correspondent

With the new television season right around the corner, there are an abundance of new shows vying to be the next "Seinfeld," "ER" and "Dawson's Creek."

While all the plots vary, there seems to be a theme this year: Familiar faces are starring in these highly anticipated programs.

Brian Benben, formally of the HBO comedy "Dream On," now has his own show on CBS. "L.A. Doctors" stars "thirtysomething" star Ken Olin. And Faith Ford, who played perky anchor woman Corky Sherwood on "Murphy Brown," is now the protagonist on "Maggie Winters."

Actors who once portrayed memorable teenagers are now leaving those adolescent roles for more mature ones. The new WB show "Charmed" stars Shannen Doherty, who played female twin Brenda Walsh on "Beverly Hills, 90210;" Holly Marie Combs, who played the daughter on "Picket Fences;" and Alyssa Milano, who, despite her recent stint on "Melrose Place," will no doubt be remembered for playing Samantha Mazelli on "Who's the Boss?"

Mark-Paul Gosselaar, best known as Zack Morris from "Saved by the Bell," stars in "Hyperion Bay" in which he plays the antithesis of that class clown from Bayside: a computer genius.

Remember the promiscuous, intelligence-challenged Kelly Bundy on "Married... With Children?" Well Christina Applegate has grown up and now has her own show. On "Jesse," she plays a single mother who is in nursing school and is a bartender. Even cute Ricky Schroder, who made many of us swoon on the 80s hit "Silver Spoons" is back on the tube, joining the cast of "NYPD Blue."

Movie stars have made the switch to the small screen this season. Eric Stoltz plays the new doctor on "Chicago Hope." Peter Gallagher of While You Were Sleeping makes his television debut in "The Secret Lives of Men." Nathan Lane, who played Robin Williams' lover in The Birdcage, as well as being a veteran Broadway actor, stars in the new sitcom, "Encore! Encore!"

Just when you thought you'd make through a television season without seeing a cast member of "Seinfeld," you'll be shocked to see Jerry Stiller, Ben's real dad and the fictional father of George Costanza on "Seinfeld," will appear in "King Of Queens."

Tate Donovan, most recently seen as Rachel's crush on "Friends" last season, portrays a priest on "Trinity." Laura Leighton has left "Melrose Place," and Vanessa Marcil has said goodbye to "General Hospital" to hang out with gang on "Beverly Hills, 90210."

The networks hope these name will draw in viewers and big ratings. But do these stars have enough stamina and talent to succeed on their own? The only way to find out is to stay tuned.

■ Pearl Jam

continued from page 5

worked so well with Soundgarden.

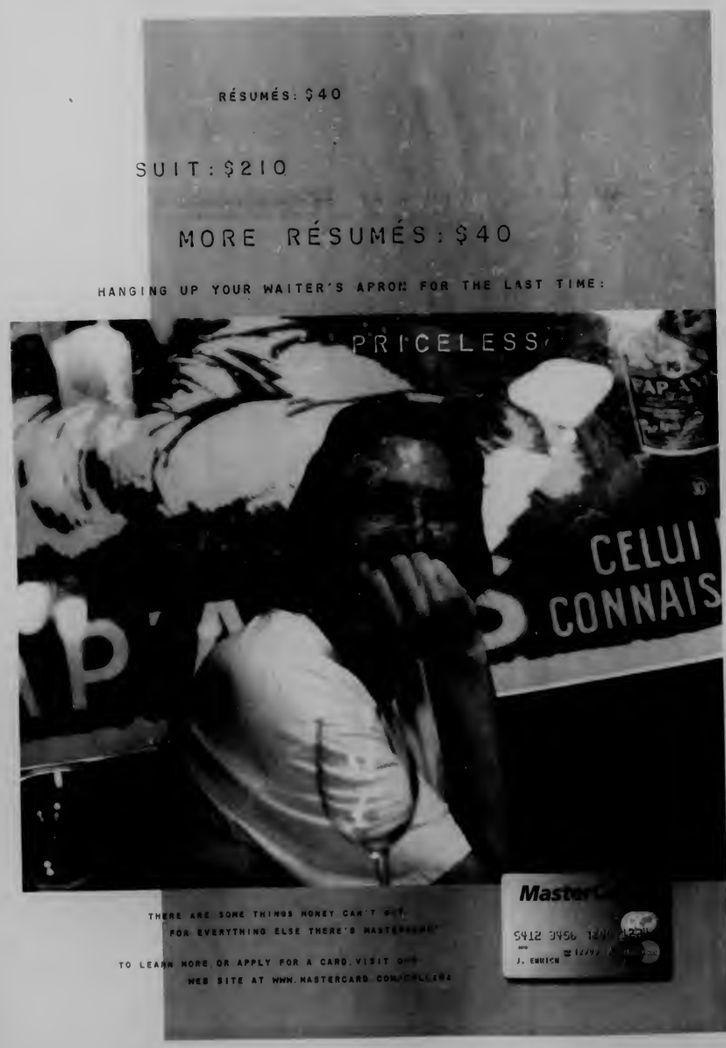
"Dissident" from 1993's Vs. was one of the early songs performed. Vedder's mannerisms — the facial ticks, and the psychotic head shaking — are still present. Vedder declared "take no prisoners time" before the band launched into "Evenflow," one of the biggest hits from Ten. The intense energy of "Spin the Black Circle" from 1994's Vitalogy, was also notable, as was the Neil Young collaboration "I Got Id."

Vedder played guitar for a great deal of the performance, which included what Vedder claimed was "one of my personal favorites," "Present Time." "Black" was the highlight of the show. Vedder's emotional output and vocal range were exploited to its full extent.

Also exploited were the expectations and stereotypes of a Pearl Jam concert as Vedder was held up by the shoulders of a security guard, coming perilously close to crowd surfing during "Porch." And, during an encore performance of "Alive," Vedder climbed up to the highest points of the edge of the stage and, while in the spotlight (much like in the "Evenflow" video) teased the audience by pretending to stage dive.

Returning for the first encore in a green army jacket, Vedder and company performed "Go," "State of Love and Trust," "Rearviewmirror," and "BetterMan" after taking the time to chastise an obnoxious audience member who was pelting Vedder with quarters.

The second encore consisted not of the hits "Daughter" or "Jeremy" as one might expect, but of a cover of the late 1950s song "Last Kiss."



As one of the few surviving bands of the grunge era, Pearl Jam was the group with the power to keep the genre alive. Instead, No Code and Yield strayed from the distortion and feedback that characterized the era. As a result, Pearl Jam does not seem as ground breaking or original as they once were. But, even with the many changes the band has gone through over the years, Pearl Jam can still tantalize an audience.

COURTESY ALAN MARKFIELD

Little man, big heart

Suggested by A Prayer for Owen Meany by John Irving, Simon Birch, with Ian Michael Smith and Ashley Judd, comes out today.

Have a great week end!
From your friends at the Collegian

FITNESS WORKSHOP
Nutritional Supplements Delivered right to your door...
Creatine Surge Ginseng
Pure Creatine Whey Protein
Weight Loss Aids St. Johns Wort
www.fitnessworkshop.com
1-877-FIT-WORK

Calculus Tutor
• Friendly & Helpful
• Affordable
• Available Anytime (at your campus bookstore)

Men's cross country to host this weekend

By Matthew Despres
Collegian Correspondent

Summer may be fading now in favor of fallen leaves and cooler days, but in the athletic circles across campus, Somers is still a topic of big discussion.

Junior Kevin Somers, a Monson native, has made the transition to the No. 1 slot for the Massachusetts men's cross country team. In last week's tri-meet with Iona and Northeastern, Somers finished third at 25:19, a time that led all Minutemen.

UMass coach Ken O'Brien, for one however, was not surprised.

"He's our No. 1 runner this year, which is not surprising since he was No. 2 last year. It's good because he's still fresh to the sport and it's still exciting to him," O'Brien said.

Somers and company will host Boston University, Maine and Vermont this Saturday starting at 12 p.m. The home quad–meet is one O'Brien and his now 1–1 squad are looking forward to. Last year, each of Saturday's opponents defeated the UMass squad at some point in the season.

And don't start to think they have forgotten.

"I expect it to be a redemption," said O'Brien, who has the defeats of last year fresh in his mind. "I expect the home course to be an advantage and for us to run well."

And run well they must. BU placed second in last week's meet, trailing only Dartmouth. They also placed three runners in the Top 20. The Terriers may be running with an international flavor, but they fall short in challenging the depth of the UMass roster.

Maine also has momentum on its side, placing second in last week's University of Hartford Invitational, with six Black Bears taking the Nos. 9–14 spots. In fact, they may be the dark horse of the whole event. They graduated the majority of their team last year, leaving behind a group of unfamiliar but nevertheless dangerous faces.

However, it is Vermont that poses the most serious threat. A roster that includes members of the cross-country ski team, one of the best ways to train for the pavement, must be considered a big threat.

The secret to winning at any sport is a balanced attack, which the Minuteman can boast of. A nearly equally divided roster gives them plenty of experience and young talent. Seniors Somers and Matt Ely are complimented by underclassmen Brendan Sullivan and David Marcinowski, both whom finished in respectable positions last week. They again will be expected to step up and make an impression.

"We have a healthy handful on each side of the ledger," said O'Brien. "With everyone on the team fairly close [in running ability], we can afford to have a bad day due to the depth we have."

■ football

continued from page 10

ter game and still maintain any sort of pride. Let's establish ourselves here.

No. 2 Florida is in Knoxville to lock horns with Tennessee. Peyton Manning is now in the NFL, so the Volunteers turn to a man named Tee. Tee Martin will try to do what Manning couldn't do in his four years: beat Florida. He will feel heat from every direction in the form of Gator linebackers Jevon Kearse and Johnny Rutledge, college football's nastiest duo.

The blitz will be on for most of the day, or at least until Tennessee can establish an interior running game with Lewis or a quick-striking passing attack with Martin throwing to veteran receivers Peerless Price and Jermaine Copeland.

Lewis will show up, despite his lackluster five carry, 11 yard effort last season with the Gators. That leaves Martin as the X-factor no doubt, after having burned Syracuse for two touchdown passes, but on only 9-for-26 accuracy. Martin will get a lot of looks in the Florida secondary. Gators coach Steve Spurrier won't make it easy on the newcomer.

These SEC games that we all have grown to camping in front of on Saturdays are always decided by defensive stops and X-factors. For each team, it's the quarterback. Jesse Palmer has thrown eight scoring passes this season, but against weak competition. Tennessee is not weak competition. It's showtime for both Martin and Palmer.

Martin's scrambling and accuracy passing the ball with the blitz on his back will frustrate Spurrier and force him into a different defensive look. Florida's post–Wuerffel quarterback controversies will continue, as Palmer tosses a couple picks. The story, though, will be Tennessee's veterans stepping up for one last hurrah against the Gators. It's Phil Fulmer's day to shine, after five consecutive losses to his conference rivals. Neyland Stadium will be rocking, as the Vols will rip down the goalpost, coming out on top, 30–22.

On the undercard, in the Big East, Virginia Tech, getting 3, over Miami at the Orange Bowl, and Arizona, giving 11, in a romp over Iowa in the desert.

Brett Mauser is a Collegian columnist.

UMass women's cross country looks for other solid weekend after last week's win

By Alexander Wood
Collegian Correspondent

Coming off a win in the La Salle Invitational last week, the Massachusetts women's cross country team will be looking to continue its winning ways this Saturday at 12 p.m. as it plays host to Boston University, Central Connecticut and Vermont.

Coach Julie LaFreniere's squad will be looking to equal or beat its past week's performance of four runners in the top 10. Junior Sally Hirsch finished second (19:17), sophomore Melissa Henderson seventh (19:50) and seniors Tracy Meagher ninth (19:51) and Nicole Way 10th (19:59).

Juniors Sharon Tillotson (11th, 20:01) and Monica Elmore (16th, 20:40) and freshman Kristin Ciszowski (15th, 20:39) rounded out a group of seven Minutewomen in the top 20.

Despite UMass' great beginning, they will face some stiff competition in Boston University, which is coming off a second place finish in the Dartmouth Invitational last week. Freshman runner Larissa Kleinmann finished the 3.28 mile race first with a time of 19:03 and senior Ann Kovalsky and freshman Lauren Matthews finished in the seventh and eighth slots respectively.

The Terriers possess a well balanced team of experience and youth with six seniors and seven freshmen and will be looking to run well as they head into a October full of important meets including the pre-NCAA meet, the New England Championships and the America East Championships.

Meanwhile, the Minutewomen may have an easier time running against a very young Vermont team that will be in action for the first time on Saturday. Lone senior and captain Alanna Jones leads a Vermont squad consisting of seven freshmen, sophomore Tessa Benoit and junior Joya Tetreault. Vermont coach Ed Kusiak (29th season with the Catamounts) will also be breaking in two new assistant coaches this year with Robert Hoppler and Heather Stroud both in their rookie year at UVM.

Central Connecticut senior Katie Lerz and junior Danielle Bergantino lead a team laden with sophomores into this Saturday's race.

The race will be a good warm up for the Minutewomen as they prepare for the Sept. 26 Meet of Champions at Van Cortland Park in New York. LaFreniere (A-10 Coach of the year five times including last season) has a good mix of runners to work with on this year's squad consisting of seven freshmen and seniors Meagher, Karyn Watt and Way. UMass should also be able to get a gauge for future competition this Saturday as they will run against Boston University again on Oct. 16 in the New England Championships.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Looking to ring the Liberty Bell

The Massachusetts volleyball team will head to Philadelphia this weekend for a pair of Atlantic 10 matches with Temple and La Salle.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The first test

The Massachusetts women's tennis team will open up its 1998–99 season this weekend when they play in the Eastern championships.

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR SPECIALS
Gordan Flavored Vodka (WILD BERRY, CITRUS ORANGE) 750 ml $6.99
Ice 101 Peppermint Schnapps 1lt $13.99
Bacardi Limon 750 ml $9.99
Gran Centenario Tequila 750ml $19.99
Mr. Boston Peach Brandy 750 ml $6.99
LARGEST SELECTION OF SPECIALTY KEGS
New this season
Cider Jack (1hur. Sept 17th 5-7) WITH + ID $4.99 6 pack btls
Magic Hat (#9 Pendulum Ale) (1hur. Sept 17th 7-9) $6.29 6 pk btls +Dep. reg 7.29
Hyland (Amber Ale American Pale Ale) (Sat. Sept 19th 4-7) $6.29 6 pk btls +Dep. reg 7.29
Red Hook (ESB, IPA Hefe-Weizen, Blackhook Blond) (Friday Sept. 18 5-7) $5.29 6 pk btls +Dep. reg 6.29
(cold plates, CO2 taks, Bulk ice, glasses available)
BEER SPECIALS
Icehouse 30 Pack cans $12.99
Lowenbrau 12 Pack btls $7.99
Michelob/Michelob Light 18 Pack cans $9.99
Harp Lager 12 Pack btls $10.99
Micro Kegs In Stock
DISCOVER, VISA, MASTERCARD ACCEPTED. OPEN 9am to 11pm
RT. 9 EAST / 338 COLLEGE ST (413) 253-5304 / TAKE I-91 TO EXIT 19 / RT. 9 east

"Reason No 1 why you should take my LSAT course."
Class time that counts
More class hours with teachers well trained in our techniques means much less time studying on your own. Our average score improvement is 7 points!
Call 1-800-2REVIEW or visit us at www.review.com
Courses held on the UMASS campus! Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and WNEC as well.
THE PRINCETON REVIEW

UMass Student Legal Services Office
FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students! 545-1995
CALL TODAY!
922 CAMPUS CENTER

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS always $10.
25 n. pleasant st. amherst 256-0733
145 main st. northampton 586-0155

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
The Only Area Showing of This Film
STARTS FRIDAY FOR 7 DAYS ONLY-DAILY 7:15 & 9:00
PI – Science Fiction thriller – BEST DIRECTOR AWARD at 1998 Sundance Film Festival – A reclusive genius with an experimental computer tries to find, literally, the key to the universe. Working to decode the ultimate system of ordered chaos-THE STOCK MARKET he uncovers a secret everyone is willing to kill for.
"A BRILLIANT INTELLECTUAL ADVENTURE CREATING ONE COMPELLING IMAGE AFTER ANOTHER"
"π is a mesmerizing mind bender"
"π is smart enough to blow your mind, with or without drugs"
ACADEMY of MUSIC Cinema House NORTHAMPTON 584-8435

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ACTIVITIES

UMass Womans Rugby Want to play? Practice at 4:30 pm Tues-Fri. behind Mullins Center. Want to watch? Major Womens Collegiate Tournament, 9:00-5:00 Games behind Mullins Center. For info e- Meg at 256-3116.

AUTO FOR SALE

1985 BMW 323i 5 speed, recent new parts. 117k. $3000. 256-6379.

1990 Pontiac Lemans LE 4 dr auto AC, PS, 60k. Excellent condition. $1800. 545-4548

1988 Ford Taurus Station Wagon AC/Auto, new exhaust cassette. 87,000 miles. 256-1619.

1989 Mercury Tracer AC/Auto, 4 door hatchback. Great condition. 367-2979.

88 Olds Cutlass Cruiser 117k, station wagon. $1200 or BO. 259-9287.

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS Automatic fully loaded 102k miles. Excellent condition. $3700. 256-5503.

1989 Subaru Wagon 4WD, highway miles. Clean. $1400 (978)544-3783.

WANTED: Toyotas, Honda Prizms, Sentras. Any condition. Cash paid everyday. 800-649-4795.

CHILDCARE

Responsible babysitter needed for 1 year old in Shutesbury. Have references. Monday & Wednesday. Call Michele 256-8800.

COMPUTERS

Pentium 133 32MB, 2.1GB Modem, Scanner, 15" monitor $800. Alexa 586-4989.

486 Computer Great For Student Works Good $100. Color VGA $50 (413)584-8857

COMPUTERS

486 Computer Good Condition $400 Firm 546-2660

EMPLOYMENT

Youth Care Workers (2nd &3rd shifts) RN / LPN (Part-time, full-time potential) Maintenance Laborer (full-time)

Lake Grove School in Wendell Mass. is a chapter 766 approved year round residential school serving adolescent males with behavioral difficulties. We offer an excelent employee benefit package which includes medical and dental, generous vacation days, sick days and personal days and 401K. All successful candidates attend a 50 hour training program. AA/ EOE. Please send resume with cover letter or stop in and fill out an application to:

Lake Grove School
Attn Personnel
6 Farley Rd.
Po Box 767
Wendell, Ma. 01379

AMHERST COLLEGE The Dining Services has part-time openings for dishwashers. Schedules available for Saturday and Sunday lunch (11:00am-2:30pm) and Thursday through Sunday dinner (4:30pm-8:30pm). Rate $5.75 per hour plus pre-work meal included. Interested applicants should apply at

Office of Human Resources
201 Converse Hall
Amherst College
Amherst, MA 01002-5000

Amherst College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and encourages women, minorities and disabled persons to apply.

Spring Break '99- Sell Trips, Earn Cash, & Go Free!!! STS is now hiring campus reps. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico & Florida. Call 800-648-4849 or apply online at www.ststravel.com

EMPLOYMENT

Experienced cleaner for upper level house gutters. $6/hr. 549-0413.

Seeking outgoing campus spokespeople to represent companies on campus. 10-15 hrs/wk. Flexible hours. $8-$12 per hour. Customer service experience helpful, but not required. Contact Dan Wolman at CIS, (800)922-5579.

SCERA is hiring voter registration canvassers. $8/hour. Work-Study only. Until November 3. 10-15 hours per week. Must be able to work some nights. Call 545-0355 for information.

Bilingual Tutors for part-time, paid assistance to students speaking Amharic, Chinese, Khmer, Malay, Portuguese, Russian, Tibetan, Vietnamese. Contact ESL/Bilingual Office at 413-549-9857. Amherst Public Schools An Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

SCHOOL CROSSING GUARDS
AM and PM elementary school duty.
Please contact Maintenance Office, Amherst Public Schools, 549-9855.
An Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

EARN CASH
Flexible Hours
Now hiring at Sbarro's. Hampshire Mall

Searching for a hair-stylist some afternoons and Saturdays. Regency Hairstylist 253-9526.

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2"
2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and... Earn $$$$. Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks. Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplashtours.com

EMPLOYMENT

Best Part-Time Job In The Valley. You don't have to wash dishes or flip burgers for the extra money you need. Become a Clean Water Action organizer and earn $7.30-$9.00/hr fighting air and water pollution. Paid training, flexible schedule, evening and weekend hours. 584-9830.

Kai Chi Restaurant hiring waitstaff, drivers, bouncers, and bartenders. Apply in person after 4:30 pm. 586-2774.

Dunkin Donuts
Now Hiring
Apply In Person
Morning Shifts
Rt. 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ FOR HIRE: DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery. 253-9742.

FOR SALE

Black, brand new 2 1/2 ft fridge with freezer included $50 or B/O. Will deliver. Call Nikole 549-4294.

Graphing Calculator TI-85 Like new, with manual. $75. Call after 6pm. 586-5348

Cannondale R600 Road Bike 1993 Model. Shimano 105 with new Continental Tires. Bike is in good condition. Call 585-1593 and ask for John. $300 or B/O.

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection, from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade. 253-5312

FOR SALE

Pinball Machine Reconditioned. $500. 253-5363.

FURNITURE

Desk with rolly chair. Excellent condition. $30. Free delivery. One year old. Single bed, $30. Both for $50. Call Cory 374-6544

Quality Made Ikea Futon Couch/Bed For Sale. $120. It's in great condition. Call 585-1593 after 7pm and ask for John.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK. www.fitnessworkshop.com

MUSICAL EQUIP

P.A. SYSTEM FOR SALE Nearly new, awesome little system; multi-effects processor; EQ; tape deck; mixer; 2 power amps, 2 JBL speakers; 2 EV monitors; mikes; road cases with fans; cables; speaker stands. Will not part out. $3500. (413)527-8387. Leave message.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Can Teach All Styles Call Stephen Page at 256-2612.

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

Sunny 2 room suite available in Shutesbury with chemically sensitive woman and 2 teenagers. $250/month + utilities and deposit. Call Sharon Raymond 259-1748.

Great room in spacious, exciting home $283/month- all inclusive Millers Falls. Call 413-659-0190.

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 roommates needed for a 4 bedroom apartment on Main St. $300 per month. Utilities included. Available 9/11. 256-1928

Want to get away from campus? Large room in Northampton, on bus line. Available 10/1. Call 586-4664. Ask for Jon or Phil.

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Rental Problems? Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

TUTORING SERVICE

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

Available Headings:

Activities	Musicians
Announcement	Musicians - Wanted
Apartment For Rent	Music Lessons
Auto For Sale	Personals
Auto Parts	Pets For Sale
Childcare	Resumes
Community Events	Rides Wanted
Computers	Room For Rent
Employment	Room Wanted
Entertainment	Roommate Wanted
For Rent	Services
For Sale	Sports
Furniture	Stereo & CD Equip
Greek - Announcement	Summer Sublet
Happy Birthday	TV for Sale
Health & Beauty	Tickets
Houses For Rent	TO Sublet
Houses For Sale	Travel
Housesitting	Transportation
Jewelry	Tutoring
Instruction	Service
Lost & Found	Tutors Wanted
Miscellaneous	Typing Service
Motorcycles	Used Books
Musical Instruments	Wanted To Rent
	Wanted
	World Wide Web
	Yard Sales

CLASSIFIED PRICES:

STUDENTS 20¢ / WORD / DAY

NON- STUDENTS 40¢ / WORD / DAY

TO PLACE A CLASSIFIED CALL US 545-3500 OR VISIT US IN THE CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT

Five College Community Calendar

FRIDAY, SEPT. 18

Community — The J. Crew warehouse sale continues today from 9 a.m.–9 p.m. in the Mullins Center.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 19

Services — There will be Shabbat services at the Hillel House at 6 p.m.

Comedy — MISSION: IMPROVable, the UMass comedy improv group, will perform at the Campus Center in room 163. The performance begins at 8 p.m.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 20

Services — There will be Rosh Hashana services in the Student Union Ballroom at 7 p.m. Kiddush will follow.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is currently accepting applications for artistic team for the fall production of You Can't Take It With You. Call 545–0415 or stop by the office at 423A in the Student Union.

Community — Nomination papers for the Student Government Association elections are available in room 420 in the Student Union. Papers need to be turned in by 5 p.m. on Sept. 22, and elections are Sept. 28.

Community — Prevent your bicycle from being stolen by registering it from Sept. 21–25 at the Student Union circle from 10 a.m.–2 p.m.

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through Oct. 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Internship — Internships are now available for the Peace Development Fund (PDF). For applications and additional information call 256–8306 (ext. 221 or 227).

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. Contact Gina at (508) 849–5600 ext. 201 for more details.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs and to work on special projects. Call 545–0883 for more details.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

If you think that shopping a college store means having no choices...

Think again.

NEW Campus Store — Not like a mall... Better.

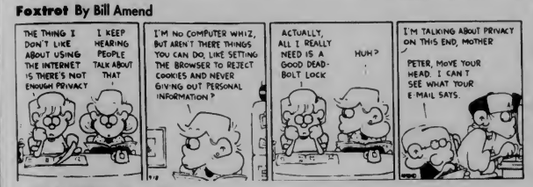
FRIDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 18, 1998

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	(12) Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	Connecticut Journal		Antiques Roadshow (In Stereo)	Nova "Comet" (In Stereo)
WFSB	3	(3) News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Candid C.		True Stories From Angel		Nash Bridges "Bombshell"	News	Late Show
WBZ	4	(4) News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Kids-Darndest	Candid C.	True Stories From Angel		Nash Bridges "Bombshell"	News	Late Show
WCVB	5	(5) News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Sabrina-Witch	Boy Meets World (In Stereo)			20/20	News	Nightline
WLVI	6	Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny	Nanny	News				News		Star Trek: Next Gener.
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Dateline (In Stereo)		Homicide: Life on the Street		Homicide: Life on the Street	News	Tonight Show
WTXX		(9) Married... With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Stargate SG-1 "Children of the Gods"				News	Newsradio	LAPD
WVIT	8	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Dateline (In Stereo)		Dateline (In Stereo)		Homicide: Life on the Street	News	Tonight Show
WTIC	9	(61) Simpsons	Home Imp.	Seinfeld	Frasier	Carpentry	Get. Personal	Millennium (In Stereo) (PA)		News		Med Abt. You	Med Abt. You
WWLP	9	(22) News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Dateline (In Stereo)		Homicide: Life on the Street		Homicide: Life on the Street	News	Tonight Show
WGBY	10	(16) News	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	State We're in	This Week	Monty Python	Monty Python	Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	40	(28) News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	Sabrina-Witch	Boy Meets World (In Stereo)			20/20		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Seinfeld	Frasier	"Deep Cover" (1992, Drama) Larry Fishburne, Jeff Goldblum.				News	Med Abt. You	Frasier	Cheers
WTBS	48	Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Andy Griffith	"Lost World's Gilling" (CC) (1960, Comedy) Jayne Meadows.				Major League Baseball: Atlanta Braves at Arizona Diamondbacks
A&E	51	Northern Exposure	"Cicely"	Law & Order "Legacy"		Biography: Andy Griffith		Tess of the D'Urbervilles (R) (Part 1 of 2)				Law & Order "Blood Libel"
CNN	53	Worldview	Moneyline	Newshour	Crossfire	World Today		Larry King Live		World Today		Sports	Moneyline
COM	36	1 Night Stand	Meka-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	Dana Carvey: Critic's Choice		"Back to School" (1986, Comedy) Rodney Dangerfield.				1 Night Stand	Upright
DISC	52	Wings "Fighter Dogfight" (R)		Gimme Shelter (R)		Wild Discovery: Whales		News		World Wond.		Justice Files	Informers" (R)
ESPN	50	Up Close	Sportscenter		Extreme	Women's Soccer: U.S. Cup – Russia at U.S. National Team.				Baseball Tonight		Sportscenter
LIFE	49	Ellen	Ellen	Party of Five "Dearly Beloved"		Chicago Hope (In Stereo)		"Sleepers" (1996, Drama) Brad Pitt, Robert De Niro.				New Attitudes	Golden Girls
MTV	45	(5:30) Jams Countdown		Fanatic (R)	News	Eye Spy	Say What?	Total Request Live (In Stereo)		Baseballography (R) (In Stereo)
NICK	46	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Kablam!	Animorphs	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	I Love Lucy	Bewitched
SCIFI	47	Amaz. Stories	Sci-Fi Entert.	Sightings	Star Trek	"Balance of Terror"		Seaquest 2032 (In Stereo)		American Gothic "Ring of Fire"	Sightings	Star Trek
TLC	23	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	48 Hours "Behind the Badge"		Early Brothers (R)		Blast Masters: Explosion	48 Hours "Behind the Badge"
TNT	44	Babylon 5 (In Stereo)		ER "The Gift" (In Stereo)		"Dangerous Heart" (1994, Drama) Lauren Holly, Tim Daly.				"Eye Deadly Heart" (1995, Suspense) Harry Hamlin, Annie Potts.
USA	43	Hercules: Legendary Journ.		Xena: Warrior Princess		Walker, Texas Ranger		"Sudden Death" (1995, Drama) Jean-Claude Van Damme.				"Lionheart" (1990)
HBO	39	(5:15) "P.C. Out" (1997)		Inside the NFL (In Stereo)		HBO Salutes the Emmys (Part 2 of 2)				"Random Encounter" (1998) Elizabeth Berkley.		Chris Rock
MAX	41	"Star Trek: First Contact" (1996) Patrick Stewart.		PG-13		"Cool Around the Heart" (1997, Drama)				Making of Men		Emmanuelle
SHOW	42	"Rocco" (1997) Robert John Burke. (In Stereo)		PG-13		"Mimic" (1997, Science Fiction) Mira Sorvino. (In Stereo)				Stargate SG-1 (R) (In Stereo)		Dead Man's Gun	"Harvest"

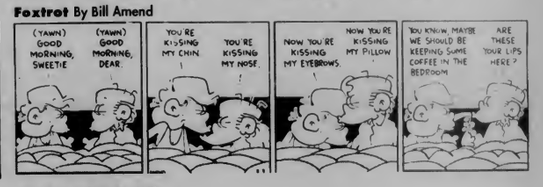
2	HSCN Bulletin Board	19	UVC-TV19
3	CBS/3 Hartford	20	ABC/40 Springfield
4	CBS/4 Boston	22	NBC/22 Springfield
5	ABC/5 Springfield	23	CNN
6	PBS/57 Hartford	24	CNN SI
7	HSCN Movie Ch.	25	Headline News
8	UPN/20 Hartford	26	UCTV
9	Weather Channel	27	TBS
10	NBC/30 New Britain	28	BET
11	Fox/61 Hartford	29	TV Land
12	PBS/24 Hartford	30	Univision
13	WOCH & HSCN	31	Comedy Central
14	International	32	Cartoon
15	UMass Academic TV	33	Much Music
17	HSCN Programming

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Robotman By Jim Meddick



Drabble By Kevin Fagan

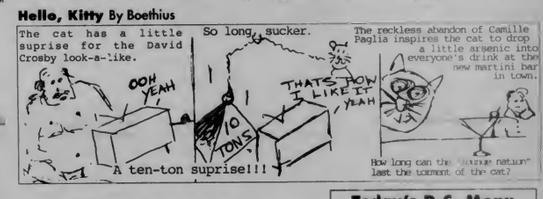


Dilbert By Scott Adams

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Non Sequitor By Wiley



Non Sequitor By Wiley

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

Hello, Kitty By Boethius

Horoscopes

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — Use caution today when you are invited to become a part of a new "team." You want to seem enthusiastic but not come off too strong.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — Your excitement is on the rise, so go out and find some new way to channel this overflow of energy.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — A promise received from a good friend is not to be taken lightly today. He or she is willing to go to any extreme to come through for you.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You may not feel as though you're entirely "in sync" at this time. Wait until you're in a better mood.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Take care that you maintain a healthy and consistent rhythm throughout the day. You don't want to be inconsistent in the way you do things.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — You may be considering a major change at this time. Take a close look at someone who has done something similar and decide what's best for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You may be feeling as though something is missing. Perhaps you need something or someone to take care of you. Turn to a friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — Someone is trying to "size you up," eager to engage in some sort of contest. You're not ready to start something new, just yet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — Don't be afraid to say whatever is on your mind today. The sooner you voice your thoughts, the sooner you move ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You may be eager to help some one else today, but try to accept the time and devotion from others. Their assistance will come in handy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You are not about to forgive being cheated at this time. Warn others against breaking the rules!

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You may not be in the mood to work with others today. Try doing as much as you can on your own. If you hit an obstacle, lay low for awhile.

Quote of the Day

"He didn't push you, he didn't shove you, he didn't crash into you, he rubbed you. And rubbin's racin'"

–Days of Thunder

Close to Home By John McPherson

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin

LUNCH
Hot Beef Sandwich
Fish in Batter
Cheesy Chicken Casserole

DINNER
Fried Chicken
Stuffed Shells in Sauce
Grilled Steak Sandwich

Worcester

LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Krabby Cake Sandwich
Raditore/Tomato or Alfredo Sauce
Harvest Burger

DINNER
Rotisserie Glazed Chicken
Shrimp Scampi Pasta
Vegetable Gumbo Casserole
Pastabilities

Hampshire

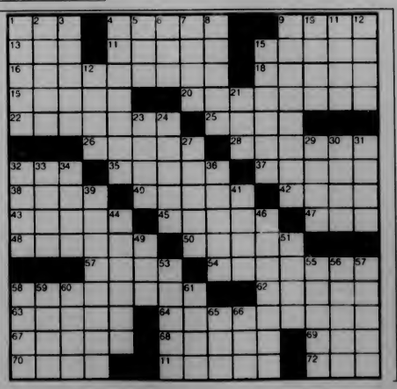
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Captain's Catch/Sesame Roll

DINNER
Rotisserie Glazed Chicken
Stuffed Shells in Sauce

Berkshire

LUNCH
Krabby Cake Sandwich
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Chefs Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Ratatouille

DINNER
Rotisserie Glazed Chicken
Pineapple Ham Steak
Vegetable Gumbo Casserole
Pastabilities



Today's Staff

Night Editor	Victoria Groves
Photo Technician	David Billotta
Copy Editor	Casey Kane
Production Supervisor	Angie Annese
Production Staff	Allen Mackey, Stephen Mackey

ACROSS
1 Truck part
4 Shore
9 Quaker pronoun
13 Long, long —
14 Sound
15 Tailor's marker
16 Halfway
18 Pop up
19 Kit feature
20 Used a ruler
22 Meeting
25 Tastes
26 Nairobi's country
28 Bronze and silver
32 Sweet potato
35 Some meat cuts
37 Musical show
38 Novelist Waugh
40 "Jack — could eat no fat"
42 Raise
43 Jeweler's measure
45 Walked in the woods
47 Deli sandwich
48 "High —" movie
50 Sidelong glances
52 Nursery item
54 Frosty, for one
58 Candy on a stick
62 A Judd
63 Perfect
64 Dietitian's concern
67 Faculty heads
68 Pun response
69 Type of block or deck
70 Hourglass contents
71 Onward
72 Strive

DOWN
1 Sleeps in a tent
2 Nimble
3 Portends
4 More spiteful
5 Not their
6 Summer cooler
7 "Anna and the King of —"
8 Scholarly volumes
9 Rocket-engine part
10 Salon concern
11 "What — is new?"
12 — out: made ends meet
15 Friendly ghost
17 Cain province
21 Goal
23 Burden
24 Young, beautiful girl
27 Spring month
29 Sl. crossers
30 Hula dance least
31 Belgrade native
32 Gabs
33 Jai —
34 Pierre's mother
36 Interests
39 Romance queen Barbara
41 High-school student
44 Paths
46 Monotonous sound
49 Jungfrau, for one
51 Hit
53 Chain dance
55 Damp
56 Love, in Paris
57 Ass
58 Covers
59 Music halls
60 Nonfat
61 Knitting term
65 — close for comfort
66 Jogged

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

Mizzou looking for some respect; trophy hopefuls?

Going into the weekend, Missouri's Corby Jones is thinking about playing hooky. He is lying in his bed at night trying to think of an excuse for his coach.

Thermometer to the lamp?

Fake a lost voice to make it impossible to call plays in the huddle?

Not this time, Corb. Missouri's relying on you.

The hit he took last year from Ohio State's Butkus Award candidate Andy Katzenmoyer still has the critics talking and the Gary Danielsons of the world wincing in pain. Plain and simple, it was vicious.

This weekend, Jones will look across the line and see the very same Katzenmoyer, this time with a heck of a lot more on the line. The

Brett Mauser on College

19th-ranked Tigers, with arguably the nation's toughest schedule, head into Columbus to face the top-rated Buckeyes on Saturday afternoon. For Mizzou, it's only the beginning. A win brings national attention, a loss, especially of lopsided proportion, ruins the morale of a team that could make a run.

What the Tigers do not have is any sort of respect. Las Vegas has OSU favored by 26 big ones. But what Tiger Town is boasting is the top rusher in all of college football. Devin West was a non-factor in last year's 31–10 thrashing to the hands of the Buckeyes. This year, West takes the field averaging 222 yards on the ground. Ohio State, on the other hand, has held opponents to 92 yards rushing per game and scoreless for the last six quarters.

So it will come down the battle of the quarterbacks. In the red corner, Joe Germaine. In the, er, black corner, Jones, who has put the ball in the air only 27 times in two games. Like it was in the overtime thriller against Nebraska last season, Mizzou's air attack will need to be on the ball.

Ohio State, after having handled West Virginia and Toledo, represent the Tigers' first road opponents on a bill that pits Mizzou against Nebraska, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, and an upstart Iowa State, all away from the friendly confines of Memorial Stadium. And don't forget those crucial late-season home dates against Kansas State and Colorado.

Twenty-six points? By no means.

Jones dreams of once getting back at the Big Kat for the express that he brought. No better way than a win on Saturday in front of a packed house. A victory puts the issue to rest, the stadium to rest and the Tigers on the prowl for a national championship.

• Quick trivia: On 3rd-and-long, name your starting four receivers active in the NFL who have come from the SEC. Two should be easy. The third a reach. But four... good luck. That's what a system will do for you, ladies and gentlemen. In all the years, just three.

• Heisman Watch: There's a bit of a rivalry brewing in the state of Texas. The Longhorns' Ricky Williams, whose face has been shown in just about every sports publication in America, has become a role model for all college players, after remaining in school for his senior year.

He captured Texas' career rushing mark last week against UCLA, overtaking Earl Campbell, and beats opposing defenses for 188 rushing yards a game. The problem: currently, he's not even the best Ricky Williams in his own state. His namesake from Texas Tech, has scampered for 46 more yards in the same two-game span. Let's just say, though, that Tech's version of Ricky Williams, only a sophomore, has a bit more work to do.

Tim Couch, has to be the leader among quarterbacks for college's greatest individual honor, despite taking advantage of hapless Louisville and Eastern Kentucky. After facing annual Big Ten doormat Indiana, Couch ventures into Gainesville to show the nation where he stands among the greats.

The SEC has its share of Heisman candidates, with Couch leading the parade, but as the only quarterback candidate. The conference boasts LSU's Kevin Faulk and Tennessee's Jamal Lewis as well. Making a case for himself next week against Vanderbilt, though, was Alabama's Shaun Alexander, who broke through for his second 200-yard performance of his career. Thanks to Alexander, the Tide are 2–0, with wins over the Commodores and BYU. Alabama tangles with Arkansas this weekend.

• Mauser's Toilet Bowl Pick of the Week: Now, I could easily take Army at home against Cincinnati with a point to spare, but a college football columnist can't avoid this week's but-

Turn to FOOTBALL page 7

Minutewomen looking toward two day Classic

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

After spending nearly three weeks away from the friendly confines of Totman Field, the Massachusetts women's soccer team will head back to its old stomping ground this weekend when it hosts the UMass Classic. Joining the Minutewomen in the two-day affair will be Dartmouth, Colgate, and William & Mary.

UMass will play William & Mary on Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. and then Colgate on Sunday at the same time. A 12 p.m. game will precede UMass on each day.

The banged-up Minutewomen will look to get back on the winning track this weekend, but that will be easier said than done. Colgate and William & Mary are two of the top teams in the Northeast, even though they play in the anonymity of the Patriot League and Colonial Athletic Association respectively.

"William & Mary is a very good team and will be technically sound," UMass coach Jim Rudy said. "John Daly is not only a good personal buddy of mine, but is also a very good coach. They have been on a roll for the past two years."

"Colgate is the defending Patriot League champs, and have a good coach [Kathy Brawn]. She is a bright spot in the future of women's soccer coaches," added Rudy.

One of the main questions that still needs to be addressed is the health of the Minutewomen. Kate Webb, Martha Conover and Brooke Bartlett are all out, while the status of Aiesha Barnes, Molly McGrew, Anna Morosuk and Katelyn Jones have still yet to have been determined for the weekend's games.

"It looks like they [the doctors] are going to hold out until Saturday or Sunday with Aiesha. That's the indication we have now," Rudy said. "Molly is a question mark for Saturday, but if she can only come back and play 15 minutes, then we're almost in a position to just let her rest. Hamstring injuries don't come back quickly."

"Katelyn's status is still undetermined. She bruised one ankle and rolled the other one over," continued Rudy. "Now we added Anna, who has an aggravation of her MCL (medial collateral ligament)."

Rudy is also concerned with his team's slow starts. UMass has given up goals in the first 20 minutes four times this season, and is winless when that happens.

"We're playing home against some good teams," Rudy said. "Our goal is to just go out there and get that first half behind us without allowing any goals."

Finally, the hope is that the Classic will continue to bring out the loyal fan base that the Minutewomen have in the area.

"They've [the school] has worked very hard on preparing the field and making it wider, but it has changed the environment a bit," Rudy said. "We hope that our fans will come out this weekend and give us some power. They've been one of the reasons why we've always been so good at home, and we're hoping to get the place really rocking."

JORMA KANGANEN / SPECIAL TO THE COLLEGIAN

Sarah Cook and the Massachusetts women's soccer team will host the UMass Classic this weekend at Totman Field. Dartmouth, Colgate and William and Mary will also be in the two-day tournament.

Volleyball heads to Philadelphia for a pair of conference matches

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's volleyball team is looking to rebound this weekend from a tough West Coast trip. The Minutewomen take to the court in Philadelphia this weekend to start their conference schedule against defending Atlantic 10 champions, Temple (3–3) and La Salle (7–1).

"Temple is a really good team, they're defending champs, and we will have to play well to beat them," UMass coach Bonnie Kenny said. "La Salle compares to Delaware, and we will have to beat them at the net because that's where we are stronger than they are."

UMass has had moments of brilliance on the court this season. The Maroon and White won big games over big teams such as nationally ranked BYU, Arizona and Idaho, a team which may soon be ranked.

"We have shown signs of playing well. We just need to have six players out their that are hitting on all cylinders throug out an entire match," Kenny said.

The struggles for UMass during these big games and close games has been maintaining the intensity level.

"We can play with anybody. We just need to keep the intensity level high, and not settle for winning a game," Kenny said.

The Minutewomen have had excellent contributions off the bench from freshman setter Heather Holtsberg and redshirt freshamn Lymarie Llovet, who has been a productive hitter as well as a developing threat to block big shots at the net.

As for the big guns on this team, they have also played like a team that can be a force to be reckon with in the A- 10.

Jill Meyers, Kari Hogancamp and Katie Gibbons consistently fired big kills in big situations. The area where they need to sure up is on the attack, where they need to reduce errors.

The Minutewomen also need to go to a very productive middle, otherwise known as Rebecca Hasson. She has consistently hit the ball well this season, and has also been a vocal leader on the team.

"We need to get the ball to our middle more, the error percentage is low, and it's really worked for us. We really should take advantage of that against La Salle because we are a stronger and more physical team than they are," Kenny said.

The firepower for UMass will continue to come from the outside. Meyers and Hogancamp will continue to be the thrust of the UMass attack.

Meyers was named to the Varsity Club Classic All- Tournament team, after her outstanding performance in this past weekend's affair.

Hogancamp takes her 126 digs into this weekends contest, this gives her a 4.33 digs per game average. The Minutewomen will need the two California natives to have a great weekend. They will also be counting on Hasson, and Gibbons to continue to produce good games.

"We have put together great games, this weekend maybe we'll learn how to win," Kenny said.

Men's soccer still looking for first win

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's soccer team will head west this weekend in search of its first victory of the season. After going winless in their opening five matches in the Northeast, the Minutemen will look to turn things around at the Goal Rush Classic in Fresno, Ca.

UMass (0–4–1) will play Fresno St. on Friday night at 11 p.m. and the University of Nevada–Las Vegas on Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Paul Corcoran

"The trip to California will hopefully get this team to gel," said Matt Christy, who had the goal for UMass in a 2–1 loss to New Hampshire on Wednesday. "The morale is a little low now but that will improve if we can pull out some tough ones."

Fresno St., the host of the tournament, brings a 2–1 record into the weekend. The Bulldogs, who play in the Western Athletic Conference, have defeated Cal–State Bakersfield and UC–Irvine this season, but lost to No. 1 ranked UCLA 3–0.

FSU has a balanced offensive attack and will rely on strong goaltending from senior Jeff Fluharty in the net.

UNLV, who will be UMass' opponent on Sunday, will enter the weekend's action at 2–2. The Running Rebels downed Sacramento State and St. Mary's (Ca.), but fell to Memphis and Central Florida.

The duo of freshman forward Tyler Turchi and senior midfielder Kika Medina provide most of the offensive punch for UNLV. Others who will complement those two include senior forward Michael Griego and junior Todd Roberts.

The goaltending situation for the Running Rebels is still undetermined at this point. Sophomore Russell Miller, a transfer from the University of North Carolina–Charlotte, and fellow classmate Ryan Bledsoe, a transfer from Santa Clara have platooned in the net for UNLV.

On the UMass side of things, the offense is starting to show signs of life after going scoreless in its first three games. However, the Minutemen have dropped three one goal contests on the year, and will hope to reverse their fortunes this weekend.

"These guys are trying very hard to win games," UMass coach Sam Koch said. "However, in this game it takes more than just pure effort to succeed. We need to be playing smart soccer as well."

Keys for the Minutemen in this couplet will be strong goaltending, which Todd Fowler has provided all season. Offensively, it will be those like Seth Lilburn and Brad Kurowski who will be looked upon to provide the scoring touch.

UMass will then break into its Atlantic 10 schedule next Saturday when it hosts Rhode Island at 11 a.m.

Another road trip for field hockey squad

By Aaron Saykin
Collegian Staff

It's no secret that most college teams don't like to travel. Long bus rides, plane delays and a handful of other factors contribute to the nuisance of road games.

Despite all of the drawbacks, Massachusetts field hockey coach Patty Shea feels that the mental game involved with traveling can offer her team a true test of both their durability and character. As they prepare for this weekend's Terp Invitational at College Park, Md., the Minutewomen look to extend their two-game winning streak tomorrow against Georgetown. The contest will mark the fifth-straight road game for Shea's squad, which has yet to exhibit any ill-effects from the traveling.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Zowie Tucker

"The players know that [with traveling] a lot of it becomes a mental game," said Shea, who has reminded her players not to worry about that which they can not control. "[Traveling] is all in the way that you approach it, and it just can't be an issue."

During the two-game tournament, UMass faces a field of three top national field hockey programs. In their first game, the Minutewomen will meet the Hoyas (1–2), who look to rebound after a 3–0 loss to Princeton last Friday. Having been familiarized with Atlantic 10–style field hockey after its Sept. 2 victory over A–10 member St. Joseph's, Georgetown poses a threat to the Minutewomen, who actually know very little about their upcoming opponent.

"We really don't know that much about them," Shea said. "What we do know is that they have a strong team and are very competitive. Every team we play [during the season] is a very formidable opponent. Every team is out to get UMass."

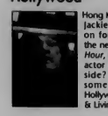
If the Minutewomen advance past Georgetown, they will meet the winner of the University of Maryland/American University contest on Sunday afternoon. The Terps, who are hosting the invitational, are currently No. 12 in the nation with a 3–1 mark. American University stands at 2–3 for the season with impressive wins over Providence and Wake Forest.

"I think it's great that Maryland wants to bring us into their tournament. It's a sign of respect and a great compliment," Shea said of the host, who may prove to be a tough opponent for UMass if the teams meet on Sunday.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Patty Robinson

One of the main factors which has contributed to the recent UMass surge is the comeback of senior All-American Erica Johnston. After returning from a concussion suffered during the season opener, Johnston has sparked the Minutewomen to two straight victories over teams which defeated them in the 1997 campaign. Although Johnston has been the focal point of the recent surge, Shea feels that she has helped those around improve their game.



"We're playing a bit better because everyone seems to be picking their game up," Shea said. "Other teams tend to key on Erica because she poses a threat before we even step out on the field."

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 9 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Monday, September 21, 1998

Hooray for Hollywood

Hong Kong superstar Jackie Chan hangs on for dear life in the new movie Rush Hour, but does the actor have a softer side? Check out some news from Hollywood (see Arts & Living, page 7).

Making Colgate Green with envy

Kara Green scored two goals, including the game winner, to lift the Massachusetts women's soccer team to a 4–2 win over Colgate (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Hurricane Georges hits Carribean

By Robert Hoffman
Associated Press

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua— Hurricane Georges began lashing the easternmost islands of the Caribbean on Sunday, forcing families to huddle in basements and businesses to pile sandbags in front of their entrances.

Winds were gusting to 50 mph in Antigua by late afternoon, with forecasters predicting the hurricane's full 130-mph fury by later Sunday evening.

Government officials throughout the region warned that Georges could cause the worst damage in decades. The storm is a category 4 hurricane, comparable to Hurricane Andrew, which tore through parts of southern Florida in 1992.

Residents of Guadeloupe and Dominica, fearing the hurricane would peel off roofs from homes, moved beds into their basements or headed to hurricane shelters in schools. Church congregations on many islands cut short Sunday services to convert their sanctuaries into shelters.

"We expect a full house tonight," said Priscilla Nicholas, a volunteer at the Seventh Day Adventist church in Cedar Grove, Antigua.

NATION

Justice Rehnquist riding high

By Richard Carelli
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Almost 74 and beginning his 13th year as the nation's top judge, Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist is riding high.

Once dubbed "the Lone Ranger" for his frequent, consistently conservative dissents — often without allies — Rehnquist today finds himself near the court's ideological center.

"His side has won," said Mary Cheh, a George Washington University law professor. "He's been successful in steering the Supreme Court to a sensitivity to states' rights and a general cutting back on the whole individual-rights revolution of the 1960s."

Rehnquist had a busier-than-usual summer, even with the highest court in recess. Acting alone, he rejected a pair of emergency requests that sought to shield White House lawyers and Secret Service officials from having to testify in the Monica Lewinsky investigation.

Rehnquist would preside over a trial in the Senate if President Clinton is impeached by the House.

Rehnquist has been on the nation's highest court for 26 years and chief justice — the so-called first among equals — since Sept. 26, 1986. Few expect him to retire before the presidential election in 2000.

Constitutional scholars and lawyers who once worked for him say Rehnquist's core judicial philosophy has not wavered.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday
HIGH: 83 LOW: 58	HIGH: 70 LOW: 61	HIGH: 55 LOW: 37

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics .....page 11
Crossword .....page 11
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News .....page 1
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

UM library funding allows improvements

By Erin Renner
Collegian Correspondent

After years of ups and downs with funding, the W.E.B. DuBois tower library finally has the money and the direction to make some major improvements both inside and out.

The basic improvements have been to the computer systems and services, as well as the staff appearance of the library.

"We are making an effort to be usable and useful as a library can be," said Emily Silverman, the library's new communication specialist.

Several new work stations have been installed on the main floor which for some students cuts down on the overcrowded seventh floor computer labs.

"The main floor's computers are much easier to use, much faster," said Jennifer Guerin, UMass undergraduate.

Because many of the new computers are internet accessible only, it cuts down on the number of users.

"It is not so crowded with computer science and programming majors on the seventh floor," Guerin said.

One new system Silverman can see many students taking advantage of is the Infotrac Search Bank, which has been improved by faster printing time. It also allows a full text to be printed out from materials found in the magazine and journal articles that can be accessed from the system where only portions could before.

The funding for these improvements and many more have come from a network of people and sources. Silverman attributes a lot of funding to UMass President William Bulger who has had an agenda to support and improve the library since he took over the position.

Also, Silverman and fellow colleagues took the opportunity to suggest improvement when Margo Christ, the new library director was hired one and a half years ago. Silverman also acknowledges the statewide initiatives to update the computer systems and computer accessibility and literacy in Massachusetts libraries. The volunteer efforts of planting flowers and installing benches donated by the UMass Amherst Alumni Association are responsible for the transformation of the courtyard.

The basis for improvement was taken from telephone and mail surveys where most complained for greater online access and full–text journals, two items which have been installed.

Today, the library will unveil a Network Laser Printer which is "extremely faster and has higher quality than the clunky, old printers," Silverman said. "Now the challenge is to keep up improvements and continue to grow each year."

LAUREN KUSKY / COLLEGIAN

W.E.B. DuBois Library has gotten funding to make some major improvements on the interior and exterior of the building.

Clinton videotape will be released today

By John Solomon
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A key democratic senator suggested Sunday that President Clinton immediately volunteer to testify before Congress to halt a "political water torture" that is expected to escalate this morning when Americans view raw footage of the President's grand jury testimony about Monica Lewinsky.

That video will show Clinton admitting "inappropriate intimate contact" and "sexual banter" with Lewinsky but resisting prosecutors' efforts to define the conduct further. Clinton offers many legalistic replies and, at times, shows remorse.

"I regret that what began as friendship came to include this conduct," the President answered when he was first asked a sex-related question by prosecutors just seven minutes into his Aug. 17 testimony. The President's testimony was described to The Associated Press by lawyers familiar with it.

The moments of presidential regret are interspersed with legal hairsplitting involving the terms "sexual relations" and "alone" and, in one exchange, the tense of a verb.

At one point, Clinton was asked why he failed to produce to Paula Jones' lawyers a series of correspondence between himself and Kathleen Willey, the former White House volunteer who accused the president of an unwanted sexual advance near the Oval Office in 1993.

Clinton replied that he understood the subpoena to cover personal documents, and the Willey letters were in White House files. If the lawyer wanted the letters, Clinton said, they should have issued two subpoenas — one personal and the other official, lawyers said.

The White House and Congress — both facing perils in the unfolding impeachment proceedings — braced for the release Monday of an avalanche of new evidence that includes more material in which Lewinsky explicitly describes sex acts with Clinton, the President's videotape, presidential phone messages left at Lewinsky's home and the FBI test results that conclude semen on one of Lewinsky's dresses belongs to Clinton.

Clinton made a brief appearance Sunday morning at a fundraiser aboard a Potomac River cruise ship and then he and Mrs. Clinton attended services at Foundry United Methodist Church, the first time since before his Aug. 17 grand jury testimony. On Monday, when the 2,800 pages of documents and videotape are released, Clinton will be in New York City addressing the United Nations.

A key senator suggested on the Sunday talk shows that Clinton immediately volunteer to testify to the House Judiciary Committee and answer all questions fully to spare the country further embarrassment.

"I believe the president would be well served to explain exactly what he did, exactly what he was thinking, do it to the Judiciary Committee and let's vote and let's move on one way or the other," said Sen. John Kerry, a Massachusetts democrat and Clinton ally.

"The nation is being ill served by this political water torture that is taking place in a highly calculated, highly partisan way." Kerry told NBC regarding Congress' selected release of evidence. Kerry's call for voluntary Clinton testimony was embraced by several colleagues, including Republican Sen. John Ashcroft, a presidential aspirant and harsh Clinton critic, and House Judiciary Committee members Barney Frank, D-Mass., and Lindsey Graham, R-S.C. In an event unparalleled in history, the unfiltered footage of the president's grand jury testimony will be aired by cable news channels simultaneous with its release, expected shortly after the breakfast hour Monday.

Congress risked a political backlash by releasing a videotape that 52 percent of Americans said they planned to watch but that 69 percent felt was unnecessary to release, according to a CBS survey. The CBS poll indicated Congress' approval rating had dropped from 56 percent earlier last week to 44 percent, and that 59 percent of the public believed the tape's release had more to do with embarrassing the presi-

Turn to CLINTON, page 3

DAVE FINKS / COLLEGIAN

Cash or charge?
Elaine Reinoso, an undeclared freshman, works on the last day of the J.Crew sale Friday at the Mullins Center.

"Interfaith Journey" offers opportunity for students

Mary Grein
Collegian Correspondent

For the past ten years, students and staff have experienced what they feel is the most moving experience of their life on the Interfaith Journey. This year a program for the weekend of October 2–4 has been planned by the Hillel House, the Muslim Student Association, the United Christian Foundation, the Ark Episcopal Chaplaincy and the Dean of Students Office.

The trip has been designed to promote greater mutual respect among various religious communities represented at University of Massachusetts, and at the same time build awareness of some of the world's needs. During the weekend the group will spend time within various religious communities, including celebrating the Earth Mass, which is a celebration of the environment.

The entire experience of the Interfaith Journey is one that has been said to change many people's views on life.

"Students feel they are going there to give something to the less fortunate, but they come back with so much more," said Chris Carlisle, an Episcopal chaplin who has been a member of the group since it began.

The weekend begins on Friday at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, where the Paul Winter Consort will perform in addition to a number of UMass choral groups. Following the performance, students are invited to a reception for Winter at which time they will hear more about his concern for environmental justice.

On Saturday, a group of 45 students, faculty, and staff will travel to New York City to participate in programs such as "The Midnight Run."

The Run, in which volunteers help to feed, clothe and talk with the people on the streets of New York, has been called an amazing experience. Carlisle feels the one-night experience has the power to change lives.

"Overwhelming, when students come back from the trip, the Midnight Run sticks out in their mind. Feeding, clothing, but most of all just talking to people on the streets of New York City changes their lives. They have so much to give," Carlisle said.

While in the city, the group will also make stops at homeless shelters and teen drop-in centers. Saturday night will be spent at the Congregation B'nai Jeshurn/St. Paul and St. Andrew's United Methodist Church. At the Islamic Cultural Center of New York, the group will participate in Fajr and Asr. The center serves 800,000 of New York's Muslim population.

The last day of the trip will be spent in the largest cathedral in the world, the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Students will attend the Earth Mass in celebration of ecology and the earth, which includes a musical performance from Paul Winter's and a procession and Blessing of the Animals.

The trip is open to all interested UMass students, even those who are not religious.

"This trip is for everyone. People who don't think of themselves as religious, but want an amazing experience are encouraged to come," Carlisle said.

The total cost of the trip is $10 as a result of support from the Chancellor's Counsel on Community, Diversity and Social Justice, and the Office of Human Relations. Students interested in participating in the New York Interfaith Trip and experiencing New York must sign up with one of the sponsoring organizations or at Hillel 549–1710) by Friday September 25.

Y2K problem to affect everyone

Turn of the century to cause problems for computer owners

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

Let's say it's 12:05 A.M. on January 1, 2000, and you're in Boston ringing in the New Year. You decide to call your friend in Los Angeles where it is still December 31. Imagine your surprise when your next phone bill has a charge for a call that started from the year 1900 to 1999, over $5 million in costs.

Many of us have probably heard something about the Year 2000 Bug, often referred to as the Y2K bug. This computer "bug" is expected to cause a financial and computerized near–catastrophe for many businesses by the turn of the century.

The problem lies in the fact that most computers designed 35 years ago were not programmed to take into consideration the turn of the century. The reasoning behind this is that most computer experts didn't expect their software to be used past the year 2000. Also, many people don't realize that 35 years ago computers were very expensive, especially when it came to storage space and processing speeds. Data was stored on punch cards which only held 80 characters. It was very convenient and technologically efficient to store the date December 21, 1960 as 122160, helping to reduce the number of characters taking up space in the memory.

The downfall of this method is that when the turn of the century comes around, most computers will go back to 010100, with the "00" registering as the year 1900, when it's supposed to read 2000.

As a result, computer experts' estimates claim that 90 percent of all accounting systems will fail come the year 2000. Even if your business were Y2K compliant, chances are that half of all customers won't be able to pay you and half of the vendors wouldn't be able to deliver. This could put just about any company out of business. Yet, other claims amount to estimates that 30 percent of all computer applications are not Y2K compliant.

OIT computer specialist Michael Gorman feels the problem could become quite serious.

"The worst thing that could occur is that the computer wouldn't start up," Gorman said. "The software would be under the impression that it hasn't been created yet."

The seemingly simple solution to the problem is for computer owners or specialists to go into the hard drive and set the extra two digits to the date of the new century. However, this solution makes the assumption that all the known dates have been located on a memory drive with more than 1 million lines of code. To go through every line and every character would take a person almost 13 years to locate every position of the dates.

Gorman said any person who wrote a program will have the Y2K problem.

"Anyone that wrote a program will have the problem of the software subtracting the year 1998 from 1900, causing a huge debt increase for programmers' costs," Gorman said.

What can companies and computer owners do to find out whether they have the Y2K bug? The simplest test involves three steps: First, set your clock to 11:59 p.m. on December 31, 1999. Second, turn off the computer and wait five minutes. Finally, turn the computer back on and check the date. If the date is something like February 4, 1980, the computer software has the bug.

Once the Y2K problem has been identified, numerous things can be done. With an up–to–date BIOS, after the millennium, the BIOS should automatically change the century. If the BIOS doesn't keep track of the century, a flash BIOS upgrade may be able to fix the problem. One other option is to install a Terminate and Stay Resident program available from the http:www.RighTime.com website.

The only other option is to go out and get a new computer that is Y2K compliant.

With the new century approaching, many big businesses are in jeopardy of losing their system thanks, complete with financial records and program files. For more information on the Y2K bug, visit the Year 2000 web page at http://www.year2000.com.

Israel worried over Palestinian stalemate

By Mark Lavie
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Workers got bonuses from employers and shoppers scooped up gifts and food. Even so, a feeling of malaise cast a shadow over Israel as it prepared to ring in the Jewish New Year on Sunday.

The two-day Rosh Hashanah holiday, beginning at sundown Sunday, finds Israel where it was a year ago: in the midst of a political stalemate with the Palestinians. Few are expecting a breakthrough soon.

American mediator Dennis Ross left for Washington Sunday after yet another inconclusive peace mission.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has managed to anger supporters and opponents alike. Some charge he has conceded too much to the Palestinians, others say he has killed the peace process.

"A believing Jew is always optimistic, but I cannot hide the concern that we have," said Rabbi Eliezer Waldman, head of a rabbinical school in Kiryat Arba, a militant Jewish settlement in the West Bank.

He is worried that the Netanyahu government will carry out Israel's commitment to turn over more West Bank land to the Palestinians. Waldman believes Israel must retain all of the West Bank for religious and security reasons.

Israeli peace activists, for their part, complain that Netanyahu has no intention of making peace with the Palestinians. Israeli newspaper columnist B. Michael, exhorted the peace camp to persevere.

"Don't give up, don't despair, lie low, hold on to what we have, and wait for this evil regime to pass," he wrote in the Yediot Aharonot newspaper.

Israeli faces problems apart from the 18-month stalemate in the peace process.

More than 200,000 Israelis — representing more than 9 percent of the work force — faced the New Year holiday unemployed. Economists say Israel is in recession. The government is trying to reduce inflation by cutting spending, and interest rates remain relatively high.

On the eve of the New Year, Israelis crowded shopping malls and traditional open-air markets, stocking up on food and gifts for the holiday. Businesses gave bonus presents to workers, some worth hundreds of dollars.

But there was tension in the air. On streets and in markets, — as shoppers scurried around, sellers hocked their goods and children scooted underfoot — Israeli soldiers kept a vigilant watch. Security was tight. The militant Islamic group Hamas had threatened bombings and kidnappings during the holidays to avenge the killings of two Hamas members earlier this month by Israeli troops.

Clinton scandal poll revealing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans think the House Judiciary Committee is motivated by a desire to embarrass the President rather than a search for the facts in its decision to release the videotape of President Clinton's grand jury testimony, according to a new poll.

In the CBS News poll, released yesterday, 59 percent said the committee voted to disseminate the tape Monday to embarrass and damage Clinton. Another 35 percent said the tapes were being made public so others can judge whether Clinton committed perjury in statements about his relationship with Monica Lewinsky.

Democrats on the committee have protested the Republican majority's decision to make the tape public, saying the release was intended mainly to further humiliate Clinton.

The poll also found that 57 percent didn't feel the Judiciary Committee needed to begin impeachment hearings against the President, while 37 percent supported hearings.

But there was little doubt among the public that those hearings would take place. Four out of five predicted there would be hearings, while only 14 percent said there would not.

Only a third of respondents thought Republicans and Democrats would work together in a fair and non-partisan way. Another third said Republicans should be blamed for what they predicted would be partisan proceedings, while 10 percent said they blamed Democrats and 13 percent both.

Thirty-seven percent thought it would be better for the country if Clinton resigned, up from 32 percent in a CBS poll a week earlier, while 61 percent — down from 64 percent — thought it would be better if he finished his term.

The poll of 533 adults, taken Saturday, had a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

DAVE FINKS / COLLEGIAN

And what do you want for Christmas?

Liam Quilty-Dunn, a freshman economics major, plays "Santa" for a hypnotized volunteer for Bob Hern, a hypnotist who performed at Something Every Friday in the Campus Center Auditorium.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS
• CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS •
LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R.
BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

Libya protests trial site

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Libya expressed reservations Sunday about holding the trial of two suspects in the 1988 Lockerbie bombing at a former U.S. air base in the Netherlands.

The government said it was astonished at the choice of Camp Zeist at the Soesterberg air base and wants to inspect it before agreeing to holding the trial there, according to Libya's official JANA news agency.

The Dutch and British governments on Friday signed an agreement to use Camp Zeist, 20 miles southeast of Amsterdam, for the proposed trial of the two Libyans.

Soesterberg was a U.S. Air Force base from 1954 to 1993.

Libya was "astonished that the two countries could not find anywhere else to hold the trial in the Netherlands except in a camp near an air base," JANA quoted a Libyan Foreign Ministry official as saying.

He said the site would impede a fair trial because it would deny the defense team a "calm and serene atmosphere" to work in. He also complained that Libya had not been formally informed of the venue of the trial.

"Libya retains the right to express its reservations," said the official.

UNIVERSITY STORE'S
Textbook Annex
UMASS AMHERST

DAVE FINKS / COLLEGIAN

Savoring the last day.

People enjoy the last weekend of summer by eating outside at a local cafe in Amherst.

Accusations fly regarding anthem

By Paul Geitner
Associated Press

BERLIN— A nation's anthem is usually played and loved by all parties in an election campaign. But as Germany's race enters its final week, the "Deutschlandlied" is no longer just background music.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl's camp accuses left-wing politicians organizing next month's German Unity Day celebrations of desecrating the anthem by hiring a composer to add a few bars from the one played in communist East Germany. Some are threatening to boycott the official festivities.

Leftists say the conservatives are stomping on the sensitivities of 18 million former East Germans in their effort to score political points.

With only a week until the Sept 27 parliamentary election, no one is sure how the anthem fight will play among voters in the east, now a potentially vital swing region in a tight national race.

But the reaction underscores how Germans from the two halves are still struggling to follow the same tune, eight years after unification.

The composition was commissioned by the Lower Saxony state government for the official Oct. 3 Unity Day ceremony, to be held in the state capital of Hanover this year.

The state's governor happens to be Gerhard Schroeder, the Social Democrat challenging Kohl in the federal election.

When word about the "musical collage" got out this summer, Kohl's party wasted no time chastising Schroeder and the Social Democrats for "tactlessness."

Although the 15-minute medley also includes parts of a song written and sung by concentration camp inmates, as well as a German pop tune, the attacks have focused solely on the anthem mix. Germany's national anthem, with music written by Joseph Haydn in 1797, was kept by the western half after World War II, although the controversial first verse from 1841 starting with "Deutschland, Deutschland ueber alles" (Germany above all), is no longer sung. The general secretary of Kohl's conservative Christian

Democrats, Peter Hintze, says that to those caught behind the Berlin Wall, the West's anthem was "the melody of freedom," and shouldn't be "disfigured."

■ Clinton

continued from page 1

dent than letting the public judge him. The White House sharpened its attack Sunday along those lines. "They (lawmakers) decided that rather than just doing a document dump they would do a garbage dump on Monday, and I think people are going to wonder about that," White House Deputy Chief of Staff John Podesta said.

Though only Clinton will be visible on the videotape, which was made as part of a closed-circuit TV feed from the White House map room to the federal court house, the public also will get its first glimpse of the conduct of Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's prosecutors whose work has been conducted in the secrecy of the grand jury.

Four prosecutors can be heard posing questions to the president, frequently using graphic sexual terms and even starting off the entire question with a debate over the oath the president had just taken.

Lawmakers who already viewed the tape sought to lower expectations about its long-term political impact. "Frankly, large portions of it are rather boring," Rep. Asa Hutchinson, R-Ark. told ABC.

"If you like the president there are going to be times when you feel sympathy for him," said Graham, a conservative Republican. "If you think he is a guy you don't like there are going to be things you seize upon, but it is not going to be a knockout blow." Rep. Marty Meehan, D-Mass., another House Judiciary Committee member, agreed: "I don't think it will have a great positive or negative effect," he told ABC.

At times combative and evasive, Clinton also lets his guard down on occasion during the testimony, according to one lawyer familiar with it.

At one point he spoke of the pain of having to acknowledge under oath in his Jan. 17 Paula Jones deposition having "sexual relations" with Gennifer Flowers, the Arkansas woman whose allegation of an affair nearly derailed his 1992 presidential bid. He also expressed regret that Lewinsky, now 25, had been embroiled in the Starr investigation. He portrayed himself as a concerned friend who after their sexual contact ended, still tried to help find her a new job and to help her avoid having to testify in the Jones sexual harassment lawsuit.

"I think he is very sincere, you can tell that this has hurt the guy," said Graham, a Republican who has seen the videotape.

Duchess' mother dies in London car crash

By Maureen Johnson
Associated Press

LONDON— Susan Barrantes, mother of the Duchess of York, has been killed in a car crash in Argentina, dealing the former Sarah Ferguson another blow just a year after her onetime sister-in-law Princess Diana died in a Paris crash.

The duchess, or "fergie," ex-wife of Queen Elizabeth II's second son, Prince Andrew, heard the news early Sunday while on vacation in Italy.

She was flying back to Britain and will leave Sunday night for Argentina, where Mrs. Barrantes settled in 1975 with her second husband, Argentine professional polo player the late Hector Barrantes.

"She is devastated," said spokeswoman Kate Waddington. Mrs. Barrantes, 61, was killed instantly Saturday night when the Land Rover she was driving was in collision with a van on a rural road near Tres Lomas, about 310 miles southwest of the capital, Buenos Aires, police said.

Mrs. Barrantes was decapitated in the crash, Tres Lomas Police Commissioner Hector Dimas Molenceuvo told The Associated Press in Buenos Aires.

The collision on the Argentine pampas was near the ranch, El Pucora, where she raised polo ponies. She also had a TV station in Buenos Aires.

The Land Rover was left a heap of twisted metal, shattered glass and plastic. However, Mrs. Barrantes's passenger, nephew by marriage Rafael Barrantes, 25, escaped with minor injuries. The driver of the other car, Jose Maria Rodriguez, suffered a broken ankle, police said.

Mrs. Barrantes abruptly left Maj. Ronald Ferguson, the queen's former polo manager, and their two daughters, then teen-agers, for Barrantes — becoming in the parlance of the English upper-classes "a bolter."

Barrantes at the ranch shortly before his death from cancer in 1990.

Collegian News.
All the [illegible]
We Never Stop. Ever.

Register Now For Fall Semester
Religious Studies Program At Newman
Sponsored by the Newman Center in Cooperation With The Elms College
 REL. 204 - Christian Ethics ***
This course will investigate contemporary ethical thinking from the perspective of historical religeon. Attention will be given to the historical development and contemporary status of practical ethical issues, human sexuality, medical care, human rights and ecological justice. 3 credits (Gen. Ed. AT)
* CREDITS TRANSFERABLE TO UMASS *
INSTRUCTOR: Professor Martin [illegible]
Elms College Faculty
WHEN: Tuesday Evenings 6:30 - 9:20 p.m.
Beginning September 15, 1998
WHERE: Newman Center, 472 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA
REGISTER: Main Office at Newman Center
FEE: • $50 for UMass and 5 College Students
• Other adults pay regular Elms College Fee
• Auditors pay one half of Elms coure Fee
• Check payable to Elms College
If Interested, Please Sign Up in Main Office at Newman or Call The Office At (413) 549-0300

We Have Power Cycle (Exercise Bike Classes)- Full Schedule
Personal Training
Friendly Atmosphere
Tanning
Aerobics - Full Schedule
Cardio Theater
Great Hours
Multi-Level Balconies
New Entrance
Trained Staff
Fruit Smoothies, Supplements, Health Drinks
Pre Cors, Bikes, Rowers, Treadmills, Stairclimbers
The area's only
we have IMPROVED!
we have EXPANDED!
we have WHAT YOU WANT!
Tennis & Fitness Center

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

New Girls are here
The fun is here
You should be here!
Castaway Lounge
Rt. 5 & 10 • Wheatly, MA
413-665-2733
Thanks to our Patrons and Advocate Readers for Voting us the Best in Western New England for Adult Entertainment 2 Years in a Row
Every Monday Night is Football Night
5 Beautiful Exotic Dancers
Starting at 4pm.
All other days entertainment starting at 1pm till 1am.
Come Enjoy Entertainment with 36 Lovely Dancers per Week
Open Tues- Sat 1pm-1am. Must be 21 years old.
Make your private parties in our new V.I.P. Room
North of 91 Ext. 22, Take Rt. 5&10 North 2 miles
South of 91, Ext. 24, Take Rt. 5&10 South 2 miles

GEORGE CARLIN
ON SALE NOW!

PLUS SPECIAL GUEST DENNIS BLAIR
SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 26
MULLINS CENTER
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE, THRU [illegible] OUTLETS & CHARGE-BY-PHONE: (413) 733-2500 • (860) 525-4500.
EVENT DATE & TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE
PRODUCED BY METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT GROUP
AN ORDER ENTERTAINMENT COMPANY VISIT US AT WWW.CONCERTNETLINE.COM

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of The Collegian

Rock the vote

I can't exactly tell you what the t-shirt says, but if you picture the "Rock the Vote" logo and change the first word to one which rhymes with "puck" then you get the idea. A friend of mine purchased this shirt at one of the tables set up in the Campus Center where people were trying to sign people up for activities during the first week of school.

One night, while he was wearing the shirt, I asked him why he had bought it. He told me that those three words perfectly express his views on voting in America. He did not mention fashion or matching his eyes or anything. No, he said, he doesn't vote. He thinks his vote is meaningless, because "America's politics are far too corrupt for my vote, or anyone's, to make a difference."

I think that we should bear in mind that this is an eighteen-year-old. This young man was born after Watergate, probably barely remembers Iran-Contra, and only cares about the Lewinsky affair because it amuses him. If those scandals aren't the reason for his disdain for government, then what is? Have we reached the point where people just take it for granted that the system is wasted?

> " It seems like disrespect for the government is just being passed down through the generations now. "
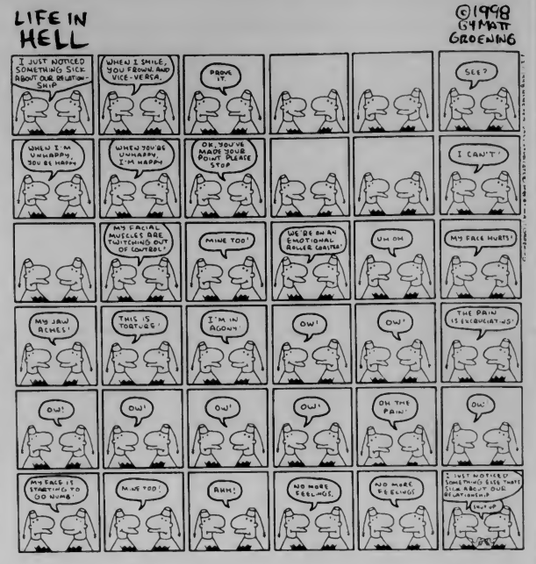
>
> Rob Schulze

I myself can remember being in the single digits, age-wise, and hearing my parents make jokes about Mike Dukakis. They weren't always specific jokes, either. My parents just had a general disdain for politicians and the political process. To them politicians are corrupt, and dead men in Chicago voted for J.F.K. and that's just always how it has been.

My generation grew up in an age of mistrust; we don't remember Watergate, but our parents do, and we learn many things from our parents. My father stopped voting after Nixon's election because he thought politics was stupid and he didn't want to dignify it with a response. It seems like disrespect for the government is just being passed down through the generations now.



This is really nothing new. I've never even seen a tax form, let alone tried to file my own taxes, but just from listening to my father's muttering around April 1 still have this image of the IRS as an evil place filled with vindictive zombies wearing cheap neckties who would like nothing better than to break up my home. That's how it goes for many people nowadays regarding not just the tax branch but the entire government in general. Inherited mistrust is becoming more widespread, with consequences all over the place, like the one sitting on my bed playing video games.

So here we are, with my young friend who is just disenchanted out of his mind. Youths are supposed to be somewhat jaded, but this is extreme, and he is not alone. Of all my friends who are eighteen, there is not one who votes. They just don't bother, and all for the same repeated reasons: it doesn't count, it's meaningless, it's a waste of time. I can understand not wanting to dignify the orgy that's on TV every night. It makes me as sick as anyone else. The problem is that things are never going to change if we don't start doing something about it. It's all well and good to be all cool, and wear black, and damn the establishment, but ignoring the problem doesn't make it go away.

As cheesy as it may be, "Rocking the Vote" really is the answer. The system is set up in favor of numbers, and there are many more young people than anyone else in this country. Sad as it may be, that obvious advantage is going to waste because the elderly outvote the young three to one. If all the young people of America started going out to that ballot box and stating their minds, politicians would wise up quickly. One kid voting may not mean much, but 18,000 UMass students pulling the lever could definitely keep some fat white guys awake at night.

You may have noticed that I haven't said anything about my personal voting habits, and that I'm merely harping on those of others. Well, the sad truth is that I don't vote either. Then again, I'm seventeen. I also need a permission slip to give blood. Isn't it sad? Regardless, when I do turn eighteen next week (feel free to send me cash gifts) one of the first things I'm going to do, immediately after buying myself some good ol' American porn, is get myself registered to vote. The next time an election rolls around I'm going to make myself known. Who knows? Perhaps some young nihilists may even join me.

Rob Schulze is UMass student.

Get Your Free Junk Here!

Free T-shirt when you sign up for your UMass Visa!"

Is this vile offer truly necessary upon entry to the University? The first things most students see when going to the dining halls are these mindless, debt-pushing morons coercing students into applying for their credit card. But the offer doesn't stop there; sometimes they offer you a pre-paid phone card that if, you're lucky, lasts the entire duration of a 15 minute call! Wow! Are you sold yet? I'm not. I hate to be crude, but I can't overlook potentially getting thousands of dollars in debt for a free fucking t-shirt, even with the lovely Citibank, First USA, and AT&T logos on them!

No, like many students, I have loans to be paid off, books to buy, car insurance to pay, and many other expenses necessary to my survival at UMass. The last thing I need is another Fortune 500 company feeding on me and my peers like blood-sucking vampires. They are smart, though. They prey on the right victims. They prey on those who can't defend themselves: usually freshmen. Free junk, I mean free stuff, sounds enticing to someone away from home, probably with no job, little money, and no one to warn them about these money-hungry pirates.

I mean, why would the administration warn them? They're very busy fixing the air conditioning in Whitmore Administration Building, catering to the every desire of our beloved Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) union so they won't disrupt campus life any further, or deciding what other campus resources they're going to take away besides Antonio's. They're far too busy rebuilding the Old Chapel, continuing their vain attempt at making this campus a dry one, and denying students entry into the classes they need because the honors hall seating 400 people is "full." With all of that in mind, it's no wonder why the credit card vultures are still here, right? Wrong! The one complaint GEO has that I agree with is that Whitmore's name should be Waitmore. This credit card issue as well as many others should gain precedence over the frivolous concerns previously discussed.

UMass is a huge school and can be very intimidating for all students. As if moving away from home for the first time isn't difficult enough, some students don't even get a room and live in lounges or the Campus Center Hotel, waiting for the housing office to assign them a room. The last thing they need is some imbecile with a substandard I.Q. encouraging them to sign their finances away.

> Gary Mendese

I want you to understand that there is a purpose to my digression. The problem lies not just with the credit card companies themselves, but with the University administration as well. This credit card dilemma is just one result of the nonchalant attitude the administration has toward campus life. All they care about is their paychecks, and the fact that they permit these credit leeches to prey on students without forewarning of the consequences is unacceptable, to put it mildly.

Students should be warned that the more you apply for credit the worse your credit rating, and when you apply for a card, your name is sold to numerous other companies that will then solicit you, thus... you guessed it: you apply for yet another card. And what about interest rates? Some offer an introductory rate for six months, but then the rate skyrockets to 18 percent or more. Some of these cards claim to have no annual fee, but if you read the fine print, you may discover that this "grace period" sometimes lasts as little as 0 months, and then jumps to $30 or more! These companies wow you with "eye candy," but the truth of the matter is that these slime dwelling serpents don't care about you, just their wallets.

Look, I want to mention that I don't abhor credit cards altogether. In fact, I have several, but I know how to play the monopoly-like game, and don't go far into debt. They are certainly valuable tools to have if used wisely, and can save you in a difficult situation.

We need to educate the campus of the dangers of credit card and other various solicitations seen on campus before these revolting offers are forced upon the student body. And before you vote for your student senator, ask them what they plan on doing about these issues. I'd love to hear what they have to say.

Gary Mendese is a UMass student.

Improve your sex life

The whole world is talking about the infamous Kenneth Starr report that was sent to Congress last week. As we all know it's only about sex, and nothing else. This may disappoint all of you evil Clinton bashers. Bill Clinton has been an honest and exemplary President, a man of impeccable character. Despite his current crisis, William Jefferson Clinton has always inspired me.

All of this sex stuff has really revved up my love life with my girlfriend thanks to our Commander-in-Chief, my inspiration. Before the Starr report was released, I would have rather waited in line at Whitmore than "do the do" since it had become ever so boring. Then I read the sultry report on the Net, and well, if my dorm room's a-rocking...

It is now my moral obligation to help you enhance your love life using the very same "sex stuff" from the Starr report that has helped me. I will not make mention of the allegations of phone sex or that cigar thing. That's all fluff, and besides, you perverts were all probably into those things the first week you were dating. Instead I'll share the juicy secrets that will put the lemon-lime back in your Sprite.

This first tidbit will work better than Viagra to get things started. It is called "Perjury." Though it may not be the most salacious of items in the Starr report, it makes great foreplay. We all lie about sex, whether it is about how many, how often, or which farm animal, no biggie. If this kind of lying were a gerbil, it would not even turn on Richard Gere. To do it right — really seductively — perjury Clinton-style has to be under oath and to a federal grand jury. Lie about things like gifts, visits, or even sex (whatever your definition is). Your false testimony has to affect the outcome of a civil trial (as Clinton's did in the Paula Jones case). This is the first way to arouse your significant other.

Now that you have your partner begging for more, try adding some "Obstruction of Justice." You can add nipple tassels and motion lotion to this, but my girlfriend and I find that the tassels are superfluous and whipped cream works better. What also works rather well is altering White House files to mislead investigators. If you really want to wake the neighbors, order that all critical

> "Before the Starr report was released, I would have rather waited in line at Whitmore than "do the do." Then I read the sultry report on the Net, and well, if my dorm room's a-rocking..."
>
> Lenny Holston

and pertinent memos, notes, and documents "disappear."

Quite similar to "Obstruction of Justice" is "Witness Tampering." Coaching your lover or intern into what to testify about just may do it. To get him or her squealing like a pig, find that special someone a job at Revlon. That is what Mr. Clinton and Vernon Jordan did for "Love Lips" Lewinsky. You can also intimidate or bribe potential witnesses, have your secretary lie for you, or have another intern you've shagged ironically get slain in a drive-by shooting. Hey relax, it's only sex.

I guarantee that these tips will make you an improved lover, but you are not done yet. To "finish" you have to use the "Abuse of Power" technique. Misuse taxpayer-funded White House counsel for your personal needs. Claim Executive Privilege for everything, even if you know better. Usually, engaging in an "inappropriate relationship" with a subordinate is considered Abuse of Power and would get the average Joe fired anywhere else using this sex technique. Lastly, use your power to obtain F.B.I. files on any enemies who dare question your authority. Now that's the stuff!

There are also 136 more Presidential-inspired guides to great sex in the Starr report with 18 boxes of supporting evidence. There is way too much to fit into this column. There is one "sex thing" that we mere mortals may want to avoid. Do not look your friends, children, or wife (or 265 million of your fellow Americans, for that matter) in the face and lie to them for seven months (as well as running up the tab they will have to pick up). My girlfriend dumped me when I tried this one. This only works when you are a democratic president.

And for more hot presidential sex tips stay tuned for the "Illegal Campaign Finance" technique. This one involves Slick Willy and the Democratic National Committee exchanging top-secret satellite technology for illegal, foreign campaign contributions. Wow, you will not even need Vaseline for this one.

By emulating the President you will experience a great sex life (and prison time) just like me. Thank God none of this "sex stuff" is impeachable.

Lenny Holston is a UMass student.

Questions, Comments?
The Collegian's new e-mail address is:
letters@oitunix. oit.umass.edu

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor-in-Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Bill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor
Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Plight of a people Goodell part two?

Greetings, people? It looks as if we have been overlooked once again. I am referring to the closing of our cultural centers. "They" (referring to the powers that be here at the University of Massachusetts) have decided that our Malcolm X Cultural Center, our Latin American Cultural Center and the Southside Room are no longer safe. Apparently these structures do not meet current building codes.

True, our cultural centers are not housed in structures which are up to par as far as building codes are concerned. True, it is not in our best interests to congregate in such unsafe locations. True, they are helping us out by pointing out such inefficiencies such as — not enough exit routes, lack of an adequate sprinkler system, and the presence of fire-vulnerable building materials. To all the great people over at Auxiliary Services and the Physical Plant, I thank you for looking out for us.

One other thing though...

What is wrong with your management skills?

Why wasn't this problem eradicated years ago? Why have we been continually convinced that our cultural centers were safe, when in fact they weren't? And why were we not given notice in advance that these buildings were going to be shut down?

Why weren't these inspections done over the summer? Were you guys that busy over this past summer? I guess those new sidewalks and big boxes of flowers you installed all over campus were more important.

We, the occupants of these cultural centers, were simply overlooked.

No, I don't believe they shut down these cultural centers because they are utilized mostly by students of color, but they have overlooked these repairs over the years because they are mostly utilized by students of color. They have also overlooked the need to send a formal warning to the organizations which utilize these unsafe buildings because the membership of these organizations are comprised

> "Well I hope so, because people are upset. In fact, people are so upset, there is no telling what could happen."
>
> Edgar A. Barros

of mostly students of color.

"They" say that we are going to be accommodated with rooms and spaces across campus so that we may still hold our programs and activities, which would normally take place at our cultural centers, but come on — it is not going to happen. "They" say that they have classified these repairs as an emergency, but come on — "you can fool some people all of the time and you can fool all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time."

"They" say that the South Side Room and the Latin American Cultural Center are closed until Sept. of 1999, but the Malcolm X Cultural Center may again become functional by the end of October.

Well, I hope so, because people are upset. In fact, people are so upset, there is no telling what could happen.

Goodell? Who said that!

STOP!

National TV — No!

That is no threat, I'm just being analytical.

Occupants of these cultural centers are tired, tired, tired, of being overlooked. Our people are continuously overlooked. It seems that we are always last on everyone's priority list. If the Campus Center was missing a few sprinklers, or missing a couple of exit routes, we would not be hearing the words, "A couple of months," or "by next September."

"They" overlook, therefore we overtake. This seems to be our plight.

We have taken over the Goodell Building, the Whitmore Building, the Collegian, the New Africa House, etc. Why? All because we were overlooked. After all of these takeovers were said and done, we believed things would get better, we would no longer become victims of "overlooked-ness." Why then, does this continue?

When will the atrocities and hypocrisies end? How many buildings do we have to take over so that "they" may take us seriously?

The struggle is not over. The need to fight for respect is not over.

It will be interesting to see how this next chapter of, "The overlooked at UMass," plays out.

Do we as a student body need to take over another building? I don't know, I'm asking you; what will it take to stop this?

What we need to do is organize and mobilize as a people.

Stay tuned.

Edgar A. Barros is Collegian Staff.

One time for the mind Ladies, we must recognize

Wonderful, that's what you are. Black women of essence, hold on to your jewels of productivity. The satin within you that makes your pearl of a smile gleam like no other; your temple created with trimmings of mahogany, copper, sage, tawny red, blue-black, cinnamon, and sandy brown. Yet, you cannot see. The painted faces and material possessions are your security blanket. You even refuse to take a glimpse in the mirror which shows a faint reflection of you. Your eye cannot focus because the colors of you are too shady, too shady for you to see who you really are. And you sit with the five, flipping, fly friends who you think are your girls or boys for life.

There will be a day when their glossy smiles and transparent personalities will no longer be your emotional pleasures. You'll be left one day, ALONE. You may say, "I need a man, I need sex."

Well, tell me woman, or sex fiend, when you die, who goes with you? Surely not your man, or your mate. Nothing should supersede the heart: no man, or circumstance, only God. Your temple is so precious that not just anyone should enter, but that is where you fall. Many men have entered your internal dome only to take it for granted.

Stop allowing your temple to be stepped on. Stop allowing the token phrase "It's OK because you are a strong black woman," to be used as a mask to condone the ill actions you have allowed in your life.

Though there are moments you may confide and entrust your emotional security into a man, it is time to turn the tables.

> "Your temple is so precious not just anyone should enter, but that is where you fall. Many men have entered your internal dome only to take it for granted."
>
> Allana E. Todman

Yes, I'm talking to you. You know how it is. You get all dolled up on a Thursday night to go and see your boo. Of course the man your talking to, no one else knows. He's just your mate. Or is he your man? Or is he your under cover lover. Then when you walk by the pond to go to your classes, you just might happen to see him. And instead of exchanging a smile you may exchange eye contact.

By taking the advice of bell hooks, education and self definition will lead to the gaining of respect.

With these actions we will find all of the entrances that exist within our temples. Sorry, no back door entrances. Can you handle this? The quest of cleansing your temple? Here is your time to find truth. As Iyanla Vanzant, author of, In the Meantime said, "Truth is the mother of love," and these should dwell within.

Women, and men alike, please allow this year to be one of integrity. Start from the Interior, and everything on the external will follow. Yes, the pressures of college life may challenge the individual you know that you can be. It's a lie that black woman and men do not have enough, control, intellect, or confidence to lead successful lives, or relationships.

It's the 90's, and in order to survive this harsh world, one must have more than wit to succeed. To everyone good luck in your internal quest.

And remember, you can never read, One Time For The Mind, without thinking twice.

Allana E. Todman is a UMass student.

No home to go to

Those of us who are returning students are probably wondering about what happened to the cultural centers in the Southwest Residential Area as well as the Southside Room. And for those that are first year students, you probably don't have a clue as to what I'm talking about. As you have probably realized by now, the Malcolm X Cultural Center has been closed for most of the semester. The Latin American Cultural Center (LACC) and the Southside Room have been closed for the entire year. Those of us who have been here for a while know what we're now missing; first year students do not exactly know what we're missing, so let me do the honors and break it down for you.

Feel the vibes with me here.

My first semester at this university I did not have a computer. The Crampton computer lab always required an ID, and was a hassle to get into. I was told by a friend that there were computers available to the campus community at the Latin American Cultural Center. My friend told me where it was located and I went to type my paper.

My first day at UMass, I attended a welcome back party that took place at the Campus Center in room 1009, and later on that night I was told that there was an after party at the Malcolm X Center. This was a great opportunity to meet new people, being that it was my first day at a gigantic university. I met new people who looked like me, spoke like me and thought like me. It gave me reassurance that although I was far from home, I had a second home — a second family.

> "It gave me reassurance that although I was far from home, I had a second home — a second family."
>
> Ceylin Guillermo

I am a member of several student organizations on campus and many of our activities took place at these cultural centers, as well as in the Southside Room. Here is an example: Casa Dominican has a folkloric dance group called, "Cane," that holds its tryouts and practices in the Southside Room. Where are they going to perform these activities now? How about the general body meetings of Boricuas Annates in the LACC? Or better yet, what about those movie nights at the Malcolm X Cultural Center or the LACC after a stressful midterm. And for those thinking about the picnic and step shows at the X, sorry guys!

Upon my arrival this semester I was looking forward to participating in all of these activities, but this semester it is going to be impossible. If there is no safety in these places, why wasn't this problem fixed before students arrived in September? If, indeed, there is a possible fire hazard in these places why wasn't it detected earlier instead of allowing students to perform activities there? Why weren't we notified of the closing of these centers? Were we not notified of the new alcohol policy, the off-campus meal plan, and other students issues? After all, we do pay very high student activity fees in order to help ensure that these centers are safe and up to code.

I thought that our high fees could include a little renovation, and a couple of fire extinguishers and maybe a sprinkler system here and there. Don't you think so?

Finally I have one last question in mind. Why weren't these necessary repairs dealt with a long time ago? Wasn't the university performing routine inspections?

Ceylin Guillermo is a UMass student.

Insurrection: The dilemma of the Free Negro

Part one of a two-part series.

Insurrection: n. 1. Act or instance of revolting against civil or political authority, or the established government.

In the heat of the humid summer of 1964, a bill was signed by the President of the United States, amidst many witnesses in the Oval Office. With this decree, Lyndon B. Johnson put into effect the ramifications of 15 years of the Black Civil Rights Movement. The Civil Rights Act of 1964 declared that all segregated facilities that existed would be null, and it ultimately reversed the practices and policies of Jim Crow laws in the South. The impact of Johnson's signature on this bill was both vital and exemplary.

So, you ask, what relevance does this have to you? My brothers and sisters, this has everything to do with your well-being, life and struggles as young adults in college, and approaching the "Golden Gates" of the next millennium. But are these gates so golden for people of the African Diaspora?

We are faced with the possibilities of vast technological advances, an increasing baby boom, hostile foreign policy, and a rise in the foreign free market.

Still, you may wonder what messages or ideas I am trying to convey. As we enter our third week of classes, and for some, our third week of "independence" from our parents, we are caught in what I dub, "The Free Negro Dilemma". In that mentality we truly feel that life is so grand and triumphant, that we can occupy ourselves with consuming liquor, smoking marijuana, and having multiple sex partners. In college!

Understandably, college is the environment where we truly find ourselves and encounter new friends, make connections, and network, but let us not forget the will and dreams of those who are depending on us to graduate and become successful.

My emphasis on being in college is solely due to the aspirations my mother, grandmother, sister, great aunt, and brother have for me. I've always been regarded as a black male with potential (aren't we all?). Whenever I go home, I am expected to relay all the knowledge I have gathered from this institution. My grandmother and great aunt are no longer living, so I feel it is all the more crucial for me to graduate and live to my "potential". I also have an obligation to my peers and "boys" at home to "make it". I recall a conversation I had with one of my friends in which he told me of his pride in me for being the only male from around the way to be in college. Now, these are gentlemen that I had grown up with and had been involved in many endeavors with. The fact that I am the only one in college speaks

> "Let us not forget the will and dreams of those who are depending on us to graduate and become successful."
>
> Kenny Toussaint Lacoste

many words. I'm sure the same is true for every black individual at this institution. There are dreams in our grasps, and it is our responsibility to be successful and give back.

Recently, I attended the CCEBMS Freshman Evening, where new students were introduced to the program and their peer counselors. As SGA President Salwa Shamapande addressed the crowd, I noticed the plethora of inapressionable faces that consumed the Class of 2002, especially the young ladies. I make mention of the beautiful sisters because of the tumultuous mentalities we, as African men, have developed in regarding our women as mere sexual objects and confectioners of our sexual fantasies, rather than pillars of strength and support, constituents, and family.

If it is our job as the "Talented Tenth" of our people to achieve and distribute our reapings to our communities, what is happening? I'll try to produce my reasoning for this question. W.E.B. DuBois, a great scholar, philosopher and civil rights activist, invented the "Talented Tenth" theory in the early twentieth century, attempting to explain the dilemma of our Diaspora. If you put it in perspective, it is a God-awful shame, (my apologies to those that are truly religious for the use of the term), that only 10 percent of black people are able to graduate college, but only a mere percentage of those are able to make "serious cream".

The University of Massachusetts Amherst is the perfect place of learning for understanding the problem of black people. We are going under the assumption that UMass is the microcosm of the real world! On top of the financial and academic grief we entail, we don't put into regards our psychological, mobile, social, and emotional burdens that are prevalent at this institution. There are about 800 undergraduates of African decent out of a student body of about 18,000. That's less that 10 percent, ladies and gentlemen. We are so occupied with the notion of socializing and "chilling," that we have adopted the perspective of paying four to five days a week, skipping classes and drinking, and fondling and pampering women. That is in no way part of our culture, destiny or path. We are not a spoiled people. We are not a passive people. We are the oppressed!

Giving into the acts and guidance of the oppressor is not the direction in which we should be heading.

I can recall my previous three years at this "breeding facility," and can tell you the distraught I faced as a black man. I, too, have fallen victim to the ills of smoking, drinking, and promiscuous behavior. I have understood the trials and tribulations needed to receive an eight by eleven piece of paper covered with calligraphy and the racist State Seal (that's an article for another week), that bears witness to my college graduation. This reminds me of the 1964 Civil Rights Act exemplifying our rights as citizens in this much-revered slave holding colony.

I have witnessed many practices and policies of this bureaucracy, as a former Black Student Union President and SGA executive officer, that reflect the politics of the "real world". (I guess they helped to give foster my nationalist and radical philosophies). I often ponder what our would ancestors say if they saw our inadequate habits today, in 1998.

Kenny Toussaint Lacoste is a UMass student.

Black Quote of the Week:

"Get up, stand up, don't give up the fight!"

—Bob Marley

Old "90210" stars return to the silver screen

If you're watching TV this fall and experiencing that strange feeling known as deja vu—don't adjust your television set.

Many familiar faces will be returning to prime time (some after a longer break than others). How many of you remember the last episode of "Beverly Hills 90210" that Dylan (Luke Perry) was in? How could we forget the powerful last scene of Dylan holding his wife's limp body in his arms after she had been shot by her father's henchmen? Who didn't shed a tear when Dylan rode off into the sunset on his bike, never to be heard from again? I was so upset that I refused to eat for the week that followed his departure in the hopes that others would follow my example and the network would be forced to bring Luke Perry back. But for some reason, it never caught on. Fear not, lovers of deliciously bad TV — Perry will reprise his role as the loner/rebel this fall in an attempt to boost the show's plummeting ratings.

"90210" alum Shannon Doherty will be resurfacing on a show called "Charmed" for the WB. The show follows three sisters (Doherty, Holly Marie Comb and Alyssa Milano) who are blessed with magical powers. Will the public welcome Doherty back with open arms? The concept of Doherty playing a witch on TV is dripping with irony, considering her real-life reputation and her long-time love affair with sleazy tabloids that portrayed her in a less than stellar light. One thing is for sure — "Charmed" has landed an incredible time slot. The show follows the WB's most popular show from last season, "Dawson's Creek." But is the draw of Doherty enough to keep people glued to their sets?

Stephanie Tarantino

Another familiar face is Josie Bissett who'll be returning to her home on "Melrose Place." After departing last year when the show seemed about to crumble, she'll rejoin the cast this season and see what she can do for the struggling soap. Not long ago, "Melrose" was at the top of its game and the place to be. With the "Queen of Mean," Heather Locklear aboard, the show was a guilty pleasure that everyone loved to hate. Presently, it seems to have lost some of its bite, functioning more like an old man with no teeth than the steamy soap it once was. Will Josie Bissett bring the ratings back up, and serve the show well as she once did? Only time will tell.

Stephanie Tarantino is a UMass student.

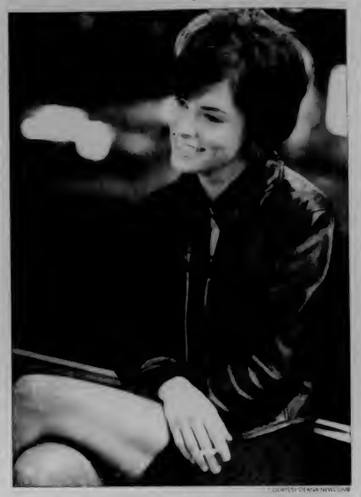
Henry Fool shows off Hartley's skills

By Kevin Monahan
Collegian Staff

HENRY FOOL
Directed by Hal Hartley
with Thomas Jay Ryan, James Urbaniak, Parker Posey
Playing at Pleasant St. Theater

If there has been any doubt whether Hal Hartley was a master of his craft, Henry Fool should clear up those doubts rather quickly. Hartley's films, from The Unbelievable Truth (1990) to Flirt (1996), have not always been to everyone's taste — but they are a taste worth acquiring. Henry Fool is no exception. With Henry Fool, which took the writer/director best screenplay prize at Cannes, everything that is great about a Hal Hartley film is heightened to the tenth power. It is funnier and more engaging than his previous work, and it is also more uncomfortable and more profound.

Simon Grim (James Urbaniak) was content to lead his asocial lifestyle supporting his sedated mother and nymphomaniac sister, Fay (Parker Posey) with his job as a garbage man. Simon takes a break from cleaning up the streets of Queens when he meets Henry, an egomaniacal, ex- con writer — played by Thomas Jay Ryan in a role tailor- made for Martin Donovan.



When Henry accidentally discovers slow-witted Simon's writing skills, he offers to be a tutor/inspirational advisor for Simon. In no time at all, Simon fleshes out an epic poem that makes him both famous and infamous in the local community.

Although we have seen these characters before, we cannot help but to be intrigued by what happens to them. Henry and Simon are put through tests that few of Hartley's characters have ever had to encounter. The superb acting on the part of Urbaniak and Ryan add to the effectiveness of the characters. Urbaniak's performance as Simon is absolutely charming and Ryan is more intense in this role than Donovan has ever been. Posey also gives a great performance in her relatively small role as Fay.

With Henry Fool, Hartley is also more daring than he has been in the past. When he doesn't get sidetracked, he has a lot to say about politics, publishing, society, and the darker side of human nature. Hartley is straightforward and painfully blunt here, which can make the film difficult for some to watch at times, forcing the audience to think about the theme at hand. At the same time, the film is hilarious. Hartley's trademark dark, deadpan humor is on display, along with his penchant for bizarre, razor-sharp dialogue. Although, some may think that Hartley's highbrow humor has sunk down a few notches.

Another striking aspect of Henry Fool is Hartley's eye for visual composition. There isn't one shot of this film that's not expertly photographed and intricately framed.

Hartley's talents as an auteur are his intense character studies, and he exploits this talent to his full extent here. There is something truly dark about each character's soul, despite how likeable they are. Henry Fool is one of the most hard-hitting films of the year, and — a fan might argue — Hal Hartley's best work to date. A

COURTESY OF MIRAMAX/NEWSCOM

Indie queen Parker Posey co-stars in Hal Hartley's Henry Fool.

Diabetes no match for the new Miss America

By John Curran
Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Diabetes has a new face: Miss America's.

Hours after being crowned Miss America 1999, Nicole Johnson, who suffers from juvenile diabetes and wears an insulin pump 24 hours a day, promised Sunday to use her newfound fame to spotlight the disease.

"It makes me the perfect spokesperson for that issue," said the aspiring TV news anchor from Roanoke, Va.

The 24-year-old native of Seminole, Fla., is a graduate of the University of South Florida and Regent University in Virginia Beach, Va., who has worked for the Christian Broadcasting Network.

Seeking scholarship money, she competed twice in the Miss Florida Pageant before moving to Virginia to attend graduate school and competing in that state's pageant three times, finally winning this year.

She walked off with the Miss America crown — and a $40,000 scholarship — on Saturday, after performing "That's Life," a song about triumph over adversity.

It's a topic she knows plenty about.

"I've been taught, since I was a little girl, to never give up," she said.

She was diagnosed with juvenile diabetes, an uncommon form of the disease, at the age of 19. For four years, she had to eat meals at the same time each day, take insulin injections and carefully monitor her blood sugar levels.

Fourteen months ago, Johnson got an insulin pump, a small instrument that looks like a telephone pager. It delivers insulin through a needle and regulates the flow, giving her as much as she needs.

The device has freed her from the restrictions and injections, Johnson said. She wore it during all phases of the pageant, except the swimsuit competition.

One thing she won't be wearing is the crown.

Pageant officials are de-emphasizing the royal aspects of Miss America in hopes of casting her as a relevant, down-to-earth role model.

Turn to DIABETES, page 7

Write for Arts it's good for you

IN SHAPE NUTRITION
NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA
GET IN SHAPE!
"WE CARRY THE BEST BRANDS AT DISCOUNTED PRICES"
Fat Burners, Creatine, Meal Replacements, Testosterone Boosters, Protein Powders, Bars, Women's Supplements, & Much More...
20%-50% OFF RETAIL PRICES EVERYDAY
WALKING DISTANCE - 549-7434

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS always $10.
25 n. pleasant st. amherst 256.0733
145 main st. northampton 586.0155

American Heart Association.
Fighting Heart Disease and Stroke

You're looking AT A center for the Prevention of heart disease.

Heart health can start on the playground. It shouldn't end there. Stay active through life. Thirty minutes of physical activity 3–4 days a week can help cut your risk of heart disease. For information, call 1-800-AHA-USA1, or online at http://www.amhrt.org

This space provided as a public service ©1996, American Heart Association

Attention Graduating Seniors

Peace Corps will be hosting a Five College Area Campaign Sept 21-25 in an effort to fill hundreds of assignments in Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe and Latin America that will begin departing late May 1999.

HOW FAR ARE YOU

Peace Corps is looking to fill important assignments overseas in development in a variety of sectors. LOOKING FOR LIBERAL ARTS MAJORS ESPECIALLY.

WILLING TO GO

Volunteers receive a monthly living stipend, housing, transportation to and from their host country, complete medical and dental care, vacation, travel subsidy and a $5,400 readjustment allowance upon completion of service.

TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

UMASS-Amherst
General information Meeting
9/23/98 7:00 pm Room 174-176 Campus Center

(413) 545-2105

For Fast Easy Delivery Call 256-4110

La Cucina di PINOCCHIO of Amherst 30 Boltwood

#1 Delivery in Town

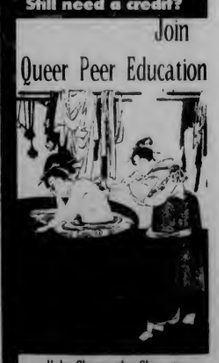
Monday Night Football Special!!

Back by popular demand: Specials running Monday - Thursday!

1 Large Cheese Pizza $8.00/tax included
Please Add $1.50 for Toppings and $3.00 for Double Toppings

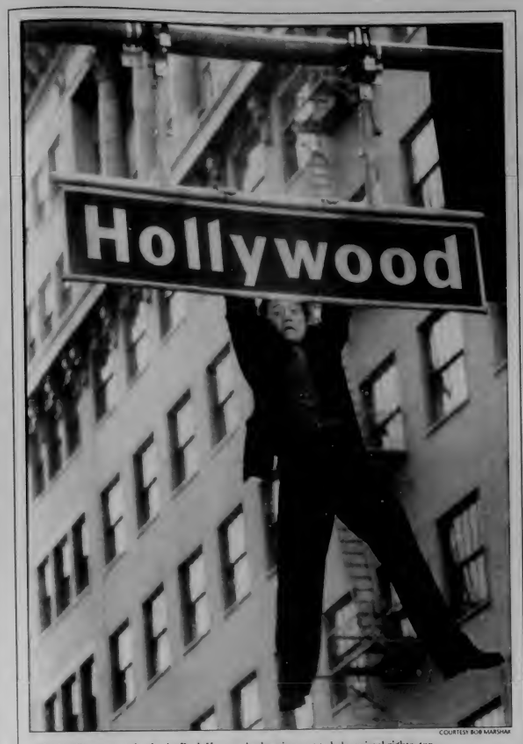
Any Two Calzones
$8.00/tax included
Must Mention Ad When Ordering

Delivery Only, Not Valid in Restaraunt



Offer Expires 5/31/99

Make a Difference!



Still need a credit?

Join Queer Peer Education

QPE still needs lots more people to help educate gay, lesbian, bsexual, and transgender students about safer sex, responsible drinking, and more. 1, 2 or 3 credits of independant study are available. Do your part to educate.

Help Choose the Class time. Call now - 577-5252

COURTESY BOB MARSHAK

Jackie Chan saves the day in Rush Hour, and takes time out to help animal rights, too.

Black groups against new UPN how

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Black activists are condemning "The Secret Diary of Desmond Pfeiffer," an upcoming UPN comedy set during the Civil War, saying that it makes fun of slavery.

"This show desensitizes the pain and devastating suffering of slavery," said Ron Wright, pastor of the Emmanuel AME Church in Los Angeles.

"There is no compromise on this. This show need not air," said Danny Bakewell, head of the Brotherhood Crusade civil rights group.

Bakewell and Wright said they plan to organize a protest to demand that the show be kept off the air, and say they will target advertisers if it does appear.

The network has no plans to yank the show. UPN President Dean Valentine told the Los Angeles Times, "We have nothing to feel bad about," he said. "They can march up and down the street all they want to."

The series, set to debut October 5, is a farce about a black English nobleman who winds up as a servant and adviser to Abraham Lincoln.

Chi McBride, who plays Pfeiffer, said he anticipated the controversy but stands by the show.

"If this were a comedy about slavery, I would not be involved," [illegible] he said.

There are a few jokes referring to slavery in early episodes, including one in which Lincoln's chief of staff sees the title character relaxing in the kitchen and remarks: "The slaves haven't been emancipated yet, Pfeiffer. Get your feet off that table."

Valentine said the pilot was shown to black groups, who "found it incredibly funny."

He said the network has gone out of its way to avoid alienating blacks. "The last thing we want to do is offend an important part of our constituency."

Hollywood stars speak out

Jackie Chan shows his soft side; Stiller gets darker

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Ally McBeal" star Calista Flockhart was far from thrilled to see her face on the cover of Time magazine this summer.

"I won't say I was horrified, but I was quite depressed," Flockhart said.

That's because the June 29 Time cover displayed the actress opposite feminist icons such as Susan B. Anthony and asked in its headline: "Is Feminism Dead?"

"I mean, this is a comedy about an exaggerated character, and to compare her to Susan B. Anthony is outrageous," Flockhart says in the Sept. 26-Oct. 2 issue of TV Guide.

Flockhart takes offense that people confuse her with her character, a neurotic lawyer obsessed with being single and her ticking biological clock.

"This is a woman who falls down, who throws her shoes — she's far from real," Flockhart said. "I'm afraid that's all I'll be known for."

Known on film for zinging the bad guys, Jackie Chan has a soft spot in his heart for animals.

The Hong Kong action star is asking the Taiwanese legislature to pass the nation's first animal protection law, one that would ban the killing of stray dogs.

"I was saddened to learn recently that dogs in Taiwan are being killed cruelly by poisoning, electrocution and starvation. This treatment of dogs goes against everything that an advanced, human nation like Taiwan represents," Chan wrote in a Sept. 16 letter to Secretary General Liu Pi-Liang.

Chan, who stars in the new movie "Rush Hour," enjoys Tom Cruise-like status in Hong Kong and Japan.

He made the appeal on behalf of the group People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, which says there are some two million stray dogs on the streets of Taiwan. Dogs are popular pets on the island, but there is no registration system, and they are frequently abandoned.

Ben Stiller made his name as a funny guy — a nerd, a weenie. But he thinks of himself in much darker terms.

"I, more than anyone I know, have been at the bock and call of the Mr. Meanjeans in my head for most of my life," Stiller says in Feel This Book, an upcoming mock self-help guide he wrote with actress-comedian Janeane Garofalo. "I'm talking about dark, dark nights of despair and thoughts of suicide, further exacerbated by whatever drug of choice I had overindulged in that month."

In Sunday's editions of The New York Times, Stiller talks about some of those low times, including a bad acid trip during his senior year in high school when he called his father, actor Jerry Stiller.

"I know what you're going through. When I was 12, a kid gave me a Pall Mall, and I was sick for two days," Stiller recalls his father saying. "My dad meant well, but his words didn't exactly comfort me."

It took 1,700 special effects to get the metaphor right in Gary Ross' upcoming film Pleasantville.

The story about two teen-agers transported to the world of a 1950s black-and-white TV show took more than two years to make and involved complex problems of lighting and digital coloring. In the film, scheduled to open next month, the teens slowly begin to transform the gray-town into full color.

But writer and first-time director Ross wanted to get it right.

"I realized I had stumbled on a wonderful metaphor to express what it means to come alive," Ross said in Sunday's editions of the Los Angeles Times.

Ross, who received Oscar nominations for helping write the Tom Hanks hit Big and the presidential comedy Dave, said he wanted to show the faults of the idealized America of the 1950s — a period when his father, screenwriter Arthur Ross, was blacklisted.

"Many people are in love with past that I don't think ever existed — one that was devoid of conflict or poverty or strife," Ross said. "It's like telling ourselves big, 3-D lies because we don't want to face the consequences of what a big society is."

Talk about a crowd pleaser.

When Garth Brooks' Oct. 6 show sold out Saturday in 11 minutes, he wound up scheduling eight other shows to accommodate all his fans.

"Garth wants to play to everyone he can," said Caryn Fine, spokeswoman for the Target Center, where Brooks will be performing.

When hundreds of people lined up outside the center Saturday, organizers kept adding concerts until everyone had tickets. To prevent fans from camping out, they handed out wristbands that people could redeem for tickets.

A total of 159,000 people bought tickets for the nine shows, which will run from Oct. 6-14.

■ diabetes

continued from page 6

and Johnson declined to put the crown on during a news conference Sunday, offering instead to hold it.

Her diabetes didn't interfere with tradition. After getting two and a half hours sleep, she frolicked in the surf for photographers, a tradition for all new Miss Americas.

And it won't get in her way as Miss America, she said.

"I've always been a go-getter," she said.

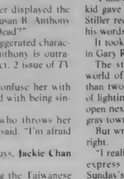
Asked for her opinion on the White House sex scandal, Johnson called on President Clinton to resign for the good of the country.

"I personally think it would be better for him to resign," she said. "That's my personal opinion because I think it is so sad. He is the number one role model in the world, basically."

"We're dealing with far more than his personal life. It is affecting children...it is affecting families."

The acerbic wit of Janeane Garofalo goes on display in a new book written with Ben Stiller, Feel This Book.

ARTS.
ARTS.
IT'S NOT JUST ABOUT MOVIES & MUSIC.
AT LEAST THAT'S WHAT SOMEONE TOLD US....



Arts & Living loves you.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • VR. BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 S. Amherst 256-0060

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE DISCOUNT CARD WITH THIS COUPON
413-253-5592

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
we do not use "MSG"
• MANDARIN & SZECHUAN CUISINE
• HOME STYLE COOKING
• FRESH ORGANIC GROWN VEGETABLES
• SPECIAL LUNCH MENU
• EAT IN OR TAKE OUT
• FULL BEER & WINE LICENSE
253-7835 or 253-2813
62 Main Street, Amherst

Calculus Tutor
• Friendly & Helpful
• Affordable
• Available Anytime (at your campus bookstore)
EAGLEBAY Web
www.wizpower.com

"Reason №3 why you should take my GMAT course."

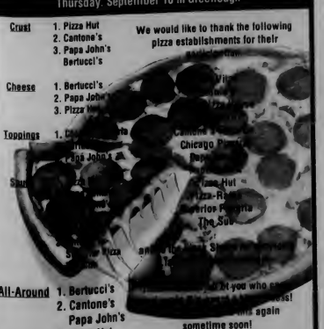
Better Research
We spend millions of dollars each year researching the GMAT CAT and revising our techniques and materials, so you le...the best information. No one knows the Computer Adaptive Test better than we do.

Call 1-800-2REVIEW or visit us at www.review.com

Courses held on the UMASS campus! Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and WNEC as well

THE PRINCETON REVIEW

Results of the 2nd Annual Pizza Tasting Competition sponsored by the InterVarsity Christian Fellowship of UMass on Thursday, September 10 in Greenough



We would like to thank the following pizza establishments for their participation:

Crust 1. Pizza Hut 2. Cantone's 3. Papa John's Bertucci's

Cheese 1. Bertucci's 2. Papa John's 3. Pizza Hut

Toppings 1. Chicago Pizza

All-Around 1. Bertucci's 2. Camione's Papa John's 3. Pizza Hut

...you who ...again sometime soon!

IN SHAPE NUTRITION
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA

Whey Protein 2 lb.	$18.95
Micronized Creatine 500g	$29.95
Creatine Loading Factor 4lb.	$35.95

ANDRO SALE!
BEST BRANDS! BEST PRICES!
WALKING DISTANCE - 549-7434

PIZZA SUBS GYROS
the SUB
Pizza
Subs
Calzones
and more...
Are You Ready For Some Football?
Monday Night Football Pizza Special
Large Cheese Pizza for only $5.25
Free delivery
Offer Valid Mondays only 7pm - 11pm
Sept. 7 - Dec 21
Price does not include 5% Mass meals tax
Hours: 11am - 2am
549-5140
Best! DINE Best! TWIN member O.C.M.P.

Together again.

ZAVA
downtown Amherst

Big Y® WORLD CLASS MARKET™
175 University Drive

LOOK HERE
FOR EVERYTHING YOU NEED!

Bumble Bee Chunk Light Tuna
6 oz. in Water
2 for $1 SAVE ON UP TO 10

BIG Y SPORT BOTTLE SPRING WATER
4 FOR $1 LIMIT 20
200 POINTS ON 4
ON UP TO 20

WE'VE GOT
free
PHONE CARDS!

Dannon Light Yogurt
or Light n' Crunchy,
8 oz. All Varieties
10 for $3
SAVE ON UP TO 50

NISSEN NOODLES
3 OZ.
ALL VARIETIES
10 FOR $1
SAVE ON UP TO 50

EASY CARE
Tropical Foliage Plants
10" Pot.
3 to 4 Feet Tall
$6.99

MADE FROM SCRATCH
NEW YORK STYLE BAGELS
4 FOR $1 OVER 15 VARIETIES

PART TIME
HELP WANTED
COME JOIN Big Y®
COMPETITIVE WAGES
EXCELLENT TRAINING
FLEXIBLE SCHEDULES
Apply in person at the Customer Service Desk at any Big Y Store.
As a family of quality minded people, we are a committed equal opportunity employer.

FREE LARGE SODA
WITH THE PURCHASE OF ANY SLICE OF PIZZA
SAVE ON UP TO 5

PRICES EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 21 THRU 27, 1998
IN OUR AMHERST STORE ONLY

Glenn and Pats Stop Oilers 27–16, Chargers, Leaf Struggles in KC

FOXBORO (AP) — Drew Bledsoe challenged receiver Terry Glenn to come through. Breaking loose for the winning 51-yard touchdown should take care of that.

Glenn raced into the end zone after catching Bledsoe's short pass as the New England Patriots scored two touchdowns in an 18-second span in the final five minutes to beat the Tennessee Oilers 27-16 yesterday.

"Before the game, I went to him and told him it's time for you to have a big game," Bledsoe said. "Terry was never a guy I was worried about. I knew he was going to be there."

Glenn struggled through an injury-plagued 1997 season after catching 90 passes as a rookie first-round draft pick in 1996. Eddie George — his teammate at Ohio State and another 1996 first-rounder — had outplayed him the past two seasons.

George did yesterday, as well — rushing for 100 yards on 23 carries and catching a 22-yard scoring pass for the Oilers — until Bledsoe caught Tennessee (1-2) in a blitz and hit Glenn on a slant pattern at about the Oilers' 40-yard line.

With 4:25 left, the Patriots had their first lead, 20-16. "I don't know if it's a confidence thing or a pride thing, but the first year felt like the pressure was off," Glenn said. "Now it's not like that. You have to go out and make plays."

George has seen it before.

"Knowing him, when the game was on the line like that, I knew they'd go to him sooner or later," George said, "and the nightmare happened."

It got scarier for the Oilers 18 seconds later when Lawyer Milloy broke Steve McNair's string of 100 passes without an interception by returning one 30 yards for a touchdown and a 27-16 lead with 4:07 left.

"This game hurts bad," McNair said. "They shouldn't have beat us. We had the game."

The Oilers kept the ball away from the Patriots (2-1) with a conservative offense and held the ball 13 minutes longer.

"Somewhere along the line, someone from our club is going to have to make two plays at the end of a close ballgame to win," Oilers coach Jeff Fisher said.

"It just shows the type of team we are," Patriots wide receiver Vincent Brisby said. "Every time they scored, we came back."

The late burst overcame the patience of an Oiler offense that improved since gaining just 250 yards in a 13-7 loss to San Diego a week earlier.

George, who matched his career-low with 11 yards rushing against the Chargers, scored on the 22-yard hookup with McNair early in the third quarter, breaking a 6-6 halftime tie.

New England came right back to tie the game 13-13 with a 77-yard drive capped by first-round draft choice Robert Edwards' third touchdown of the season, a 7-yard run.

Tennessee went ahead, 16-13, on Al Del Greco's third field goal, a 45-yarder with 10:54 left. The Oilers punted on their next series and the Patriots, after waiting all game to take control, did it in a hurry. Edwards ran four yards to the New England 49.

Then Bledsoe hit Glenn, slanting from left to right.

"I got it out to him and he did the rest by himself. Those are the fun ones as a quarterback," Bledsoe said.

The Oilers' comeback hopes faded when McNair looked for Yancey Thigpen but found strong safety Milloy, who scored the Patriots' second touchdown on an interception in as many games. Ty Law had one in a 29-6 win over Indianapolis.

It was the first turnover by the Oilers offense all season. The Patriots still haven't turned the ball over. The win was their 15th straight in games in which they had a positive turnover ratio, and they've won 15 of their last 16 games in which Bledsoe didn't throw an interception.

The Patriots struggled with their running game for the third consecutive week. They gained just 46 yards on 14 plays until their final drive of the first half began with 1:53 left. On the next 11 plays, they gained 65 yards and ended the half with Adam Vinatieri's 41-yard field goal that tied the game 6-6.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two days after Ryan Leaf got out of the hospital, his game took a turn for the worse.

The previously undefeated rookie quarterback completed his first throw Sunday in chilly and rainy Arrowhead Stadium, then missed his next 14 and set a San Diego record for passing futility. He also committed five turnovers in his first seven possessions, and the Kansas City Chiefs accepted all his gifts in a sloppy, penalty-filled 23-7 victory over the Chargers.

Leaf wound up 1-for-15 for 4 yards, breaking the team record for fewest completions. The previous record of three was set 23 years ago.

But he refused to blame the flu symptoms that hospitalized him overnight Thursday.

"We lost, man. We didn't play well, especially on my part," he said. "I take full blame."

The first rookie quarterback since John Elway in 1983 to start his career 2-0 had three fumbles and two interceptions against a Kansas City defense that planned all week to fool and confuse him. But instead, the Chiefs blitzed less than normally and just let the driving rain and San Diego's own mistakes do the Chargers in. "He had a long day today," linebacker Anthony Davis said. "A rookie is a rookie. But he'll get better."

■ soccer

continued from page 9

Green, who tucked it home for a 3-1 lead.

Lees got one of her own about eight minutes after Green's second tally, grabbing the rebound of a Katelyn Jones shot and adding the insurance goal. Colgate would strike for a goal later in the half, but UMass held on for a 4-2 win.

"We definitely needed to keep our confidence up. We played well except for the first 30 seconds, but after that we kind of clicked and brought it all together," Green said.

Said Machamer: "Today was a good win for us. I think it will turn things around."

UMass will now have the luxury of some time off, which should help in allowing some of the Minutewomen to recover from nagging injuries. The Maroon and White will not take to the field again until Friday afternoon when they face Colorado. UMass will also play Texas on Sunday afternoon in the second half of the weekend double-header.

"Tomorrow's an off-day. Tuesday will be light and Wednesday will a little harder," Rudy said. "But we can't go too hard at this point because we're going to altitude. We can't be tired when we get there."

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Running Strong
The Massachusetts women's cross country team finished second at Saturday's tri-meet at UMass.

Wanted Advertisers

sell your:
car computer
furniture motorcycle
used books
rent your room need a roomate

Collegian Classifieds
"they work"

NOT HAPPY WITH OUR DECISION TO ELIMINATE THE CROSSWORD PUZZLE FROM THE PAPER? TRY OUR NEW E-MAIL ADDRESS OUT AND VOICE YOUR OPINION. *

letters
letters@oitunix.oit.umass.edu

* JUST KIDDING

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

AUTO FOR SALE

1987 Cutlass Supreme S/roof Blk/ 236-1014

1985 VW Gulf 4 door, sunroof, stereo $800 with rims. 100 929-[illegible]

Pontiac Sunbird Runs perfect. $900 or B/O. Call 259-[illegible]

CARS $100-$500
Police impounds!
Hondas, Chevys, Jeeps, & Sport Utilities
MUST SELL!
(refer) 772-7730 x4554

87 Olds Cutlass Ciera [illegible] Reliable $800. [illegible]-5985

1990 Pontiac Lemans LE 4 dr, auto, AC, PS, 60k miles, [illegible] condition $1800. 549-[illegible]

1989 Mercury Tracer LTS, 4 door hatchback [illegible] 367-9579

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS 4 cyl, fully loaded, 103k miles. Excellent condition $[illegible] 253-7503

1989 Subaru Wagon Turbo, AWD, highway miles, [illegible] $1400. [illegible]-4193

WANTED: Toyotas, Novas, Corollas, Sentras. Any condition. Cash paid everyday 1-800-[illegible]-4765

AUTO PARTS

Headlight Covers and Hood for 1985-98 Mustang $40 for both Call Liz at 549-2[illegible] after 6

CHILDCARE

Responsible babysitter needed for 1 year old. Must have references. Monday & Wednesday 10-12 Call [illegible]-9632

COMPUTERS

Pentium 133 32MB, 1.2GB, 4mb Video, Soundcard, 15" monitor $550 Alexa 586-[illegible]

486 Computer Great for Student Works Good $100 Super VGA $50 (413)584-8857

EMPLOYMENT

Dunkin Donuts Now Hiring Hours In Person Morning Shifts 91 S. Hadley

EMPLOYMENT

Youth Care Workers
(2nd & 3rd shifts)
RN/ LPN (Part-time, Full-Time Potential)
Maintence Laborers
(Full Time)

Lake School in Wendell, Mass. is a chapter 766 approved year-round residential school serving adolescent males with behavioral difficulties. We offer an excellent employee benefit package which includes medical and dental, generous vacation days, sick days, and personal days, and 401K. All successful canadates attend a 50 hour training program. AA/ EOE. Please send resume with cover letter or stop in and fill out an application to:

Lake Grove School
Attn: Personnel
6 Farley Rd
PO Box 767
Wendell, Ma. 01379

Spring Break '99- Sell Trips, Earn Cash & Go Free!!! STS is now hiring campus reps. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico & Florida. Call 800-648-4849 or apply online at www.ststravel.com

AMHERST COLLEGE
The Dining Services has part-time openings for dishwashers. Schedules available for Saturday and Sunday lunch (11:00am-2:30pm) and Thursday through Sunday dinner (4:30pm-8:30pm). Rate $5.75 per hour plus pre-work meal included. Interested applicants should apply at:
Office of Human Resources
201 Converse Hall
Amherst College
Amherst, MA 01002-5000
Amherst College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and encourages women, minorities and disabled persons to apply.

Housecleaning/Yardwork Good pay, flexible hours. 548-9635.

Best Part-Time Job In The Valley. You don't have to wash dishes or flip burgers for the extra money you need. Become a Clean Water Action organizer and earn $7.30-$9.00/hr. fighting air and water pollution. Paid training, flexible schedule, evening and weekend hours. 584-9830

EMPLOYMENT

Research Interviewers Abt Associates is looking for a few good reliable people with good communication and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evenings and weekends available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $ 6.25 / Hr. with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. for more info or to arrange an interview call 413-587-1607. an Equal Opportunity Employer

Seeking outgoing campus spokespeople to represent companies on campus. 10-15 hrs/wk. Flexible hours. $8-$12 per hour. Customer service experience helpful, but not required. Contact Dan Wolman at CIS, (800)922-5579.

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2"
2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and... Earn $$$$ Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplashtours.com

EARN CASH
Flexible Hours
Now hiring at Sbarro's Hampshire Mall

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ For Hire:
DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery. 253-9742

FOR SALE

Black, brand new 2 1/2 ft fridge with freezer included. $50 or B/O. Will deliver. Call Nikole 549-4294

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection, from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade 253-5312

FOR SALE

Pinball Machine Reconditioned. $500. 253-5363.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK www.fitnessworkshop.com

INSTRUCTION

KICKBOXING LESSONS
Learn to kickbox in a fun, friendly environment. First lesson free! Call 253-7757.

Boxing lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. 413-732-8817

LOST & FOUND

Found: TI Programmable Calculator Call 545-1769.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher
Offering Fall Lessons
Beginner to Advanced
Can Teach All Styles
Call Stephen Page at 256-2612

Piano Lessons
Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

Sunny 2 room suite available in Shutesbury with chemically sensitive woman and 2 teenagers. $250/month + utilities and deposit. Call Sharon Raymond 259-1748

Great room in spacious, exciting home. $283/month-all inclusive. Millers Falls Call 413-659-0190

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 roommates needed for a 4 bedroom apartment on Main St. $300 per month. Utilities included. Available 9/11. 256-1928

Want to get away from campus? Large room in Northampton, on bus line. Available 10/1. Call 586-4664. Ask for Jen or Phil

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Rental Problems? Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

STEREO & CD EQUIP.

HEY YOU...!
2 Way Carpeted DJ Speakers
500 RMS 18" Woofers with 15" Passive
Fused HI & Lows (1/4" Jacks)
$650/Pr.
Call Jimmy
413-774-5648

TRAVEL

Now hiring motivated individuals to promote America's best Spring Break vacations. Sell trips, earn cash, go free! 1-800-234-7007; www.endlessSummertours.com.

TUTORING SERVICE

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

To Place a Classified-
Call us at 545-3500
or visit us in
The Campus Center Basement

Wanted Advertisers

sell your:

- car
- computer
- furniture
- motorcycle
- used books
- rent your room
- need a roomate

Collegian Classifieds "they work"

Five College Community Calendar

MONDAY, SEP. 21

Meeting — The Animal Rights Coalition will have its first general meeting at 7 p.m. in room 506 of the Student Union. Everyone is welcome to attend.

TUESDAY, SEP. 22

Blood Drive — There will be a blood drive in Campus Center 168 from 10:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Class — The second session of free hypnosis classes to help quit smoking will be held from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Call 256-4077 for more information.

Lecture — A lecture entitled "Finding Language: The Particulars of Place" will be held in Gamble Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College. The lecture is sponsored by the Art Department.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is currently accepting applications for the artistic team for the Fall production of You Can't Take It With You. Call 545-0415 or stop by the 423A of the Student Union.

Community — Nomination papers for the Student Government Association elections are available in room 420 in the Student Union. Papers need to be turned in by 5 p.m. on Sept. 22, and elections are Sept. 28.

Community — Prevent your bicycle from being stolen by registering it from Sept. 21-25 at the Student Union circle from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through Oct. 18 are three video sculptures by artist Sam Jane Paik.

Internship — Internships are now available for the Peace Development Fund (PDF). For applications and additional information call 256-8306 (ext. 221 or 227).

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for its frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. Call 545-0883 for more information.

Job — The Student Government Association is currently accepting applications for the position of webmaster for the semester. Please submit your resume to Avi Khanna in 420 student union. Call 545-0342 for more details.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. Contact Gina at (508) 843-3600 ext. 201 for more details.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs and to work on special projects. Call 545-0883 for more details.

PSAs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PSA, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to The Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

9-PIN TAU CABLES FOR PCs NOW IN STOCK!

Computers & E.T.C. Electronic Technology Center

Conveniently located in Bay State Store

M-F 9 to 5
Sat. 11 to 4
413-545-2619

HSCN Channel 4 Housing Services Cable Network

2	HSCN Bulletin Board
3	CBS/3 Hartford
4	CBS/4 Boston
5	ABC/5 Boston
6	PBS/57 Springfield
7	HSCN Movie Ch.
8	UPN/20 Hartford
9	Weather Channel
10	NBC/30 New Britain
11	Fox/61 Hartford
12	PBS/24 Hartford
13	WOCH & HSCN
14	International
15	UMass Academic TV
17	HSCN Programming
18	UVC-TV19
20	ABC/40 Springfield
22	NBC/22 Springfield
23	CNN
24	CNN SI
25	Headline News
26	UCTV
27	TBS
28	BET
29	TV Land
30	Univision
31	Comedy Central
32	Cartoon
33	Much Music

MONDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 21, 1998

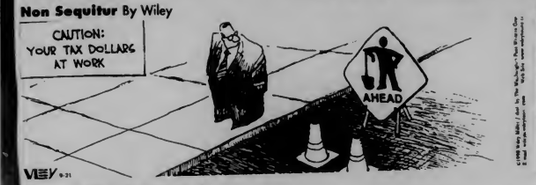
	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEOH	2	12 Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Antiques Roadshow (In Stereo)		Frontline "The Farmer's Wife"				In the Life (In Stereo)
WFSB	3	3 News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Cosby	King	Raymond	Brian Benben	L.A. Doctors "Pilot"		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	4 News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Cosby	King	Raymond	Brian Benben	L.A. Doctors "Pilot"		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	5 News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	NFL Football: Dallas Cowboys at New York Giants. (In Stereo Live)			Hyperion Bay "Pilot"			Friends	Nanny
WLVI	56	Sister, Sister	Nanny	Friends "Pilot" (In Stereo)		Sudden Susan	Conrad Bloom	Caroline	Will & Grace	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Sudden Susan	Conrad Bloom	Caroline	Will & Grace	Dateline (In Stereo)		Newsradio	LAPD
WTXX		8 Married...With	Home Img.	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	News		News	Tonight Show
WVIT		10 News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Melrose Place (In Stereo)		Ally McBeal (In Stereo)		News		Friends	Seinfeld
WTIC	61	11 Singapore	Friends "Pilot" (In Stereo)		Frasier	Sudden Susan	Conrad Bloom	Caroline	Will & Grace	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
WWLP	22	22 News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Championship Skating		Frontline "The Farmer's Wife"				News	Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGBY	57	6 Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		NFL Football: Dallas Cowboys at New York Giants. (In Stereo Live)						News
WGGB	40	28 News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	In the House	Malcolm-Eddie	News		Mad Abt. You	Frasier Cheers
WSBK	38	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Seinfeld	Frasier	Extreme Machines (R)
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Andy Griffith	Sister, Sister (R)		Investigative Reports (R)		Parrot		Law & Order "Remand"
A&E	69	Northern Exposure		Law & Order		Biography: Sister Dershess		Larry King Live		Newsstand: Time (R)		Sports	Monaylino
CNN	30	23 Worldview	Moneyline Newsnour		Crossfire	World Today				Dr. Katz Pro.	Bob-Margaret	Daily Show	Stein's Money
COM	63	38 Lounge Liz	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	"Clue" (1985, Comedy) Madeline Kahn, Eileen Brennan.				Shadows of the Forest (R)		Justice Files
DISC	53	Wings "Rebus Mission" (R)		Gimme Shelter (R)		Wild Discovery: Phantoms		Iceberg		Cheerleading		Baseball	Sportscenter
ESPN	43	Sportscenter	Monday Night Countdown			Gymnastics: Stars of Gymnastics			Jump Rope Championship			New Attitudes	Golden Girls
LIFE	67	Breaking Through (In Stereo)		Party of Five "Have No Fear"		Chicago Hope "A Corpus Stiff"		"Moment of Truth: Caught in the Crossfire" (1994, Drama)				Fanatic (R)	Loveline (R)
MTV	70	(3:30) Jems Countdown		Fanatic (R)	Twisted Toons	Eye Spy Video: Say What?		Total Request Live (In Stereo)		Road Rules	Daria (R)	I Love Lucy	Benched
NICK	68	Figure 3 Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Rugrats	Allen Strange	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	Sightings	Star Trek
SCIFI	66	Quantum Leap (In Stereo)		Sightings	Star Trek: Deep Space Nine			Sliders "World Killer" (In Stereo)		Walcotte to Paradox		Extreme Machines (R)
TLC	29	28 Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	Extreme Machines (R)				Earth Story "Fire Down Below"		Earth Story "Frozen in Time"
TNT	72	Babylon 5 (In Stereo)		ER "Happy New Year"		WCW Monday Nitro (In Stereo Live)						Babylon 5 "The Ragged Edge"
USA	59	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess		Walker, Texas Ranger		WWF Raw (In Stereo)		WWF War Zone (In Stereo)		New York Undercover
HBO	45	"The Next Karate Kid" (1994) Noriyuki "Pat" Morita. PG				"Selena" (1997, Biography) Jennifer Lopez. PG				"The Edge" (1997, Suspense) Anthony Hopkins. R
MAX	46	(5:00)	"Space Jam" (1996) Michael Jordan. PG			"Crocodile Dundee" (1986, Comedy) Paul Hogan. PG-13				"Vicious Circles" (1997) Ben Gazzara. NR		"Ship Search"
SHOW	49	"Grizzly Mountain" (1997, Adventure) Dan Haggerty. G				"In the Doghouse" (1998, Comedy) Matt Frewer		"Mimic" (1997, Science Fiction) Mira Sorvino. (In Stereo)				Compromising

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams



Cathy By Cathy Guisewite

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Spunk By Mike LaRiccia

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

Sven By Stephen Higgins

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Surround yourself with a few "wacky" friends if you're looking for a receptive group to share your unusual ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You're eager to be a part of everything today. You'll have to make choices every step of the way if you want to keep your options open.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — Are you really in a mood to surprise those around you? You already know how, so do it in a way that is sure to be fondly remembered.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You'll have an opinion on everything today, so find someone who will listen with an open mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — This is a good day to plan a project that involves a lot of people. Effectively gather your forces.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You may not be giving your primary task the focus it deserves today. Get this done first, then move onto something more fun.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — Expect to be corrected again and again today by someone who thinks he or she knows better. Remain calm, confident, and unshaken.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — It's absolutely essential that you concentrate on one thing at a time today. Discipline is the key to success.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You may not be receptive to hearing new ideas from those in charge, but like it or not, you must perform your duty well.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — Your communication skills may actually let you down for awhile today. Calm your nerves and make up for lost ground.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — Don't become so scatter- brained today that you are unable to complete anything to your satisfaction. Get things done right!

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You're in the mood for change, but you don't know how. Watch and listen to what goes on around you today and you'll be inspired.

Quote of the Day

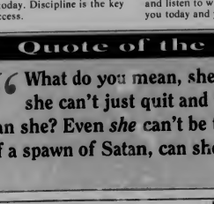
"What do you mean, she's quitting, she can't just quit and not call, can she? Even she can't be that much of a spawn of Satan, can she?"

–Overheard

Close to Home By John McPherson

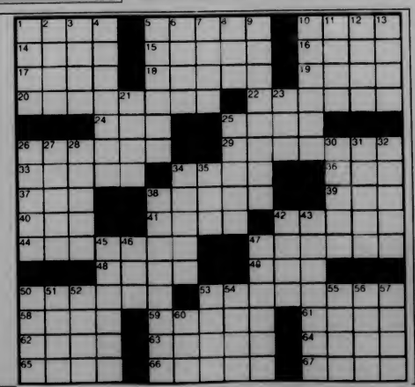
Today's D.C. Menu Not Available

Call 545-2626



for more information.

Thank you.



ACROSS
1 Car part
5 English Channel port
10 Cat's utterance
14 Pinto, for one
15 Dunne of films
16 Hence
17 Platoon or squadron
18 Whinny
19 Wedding cake layer
20 Kitchen herb
22 Got, as salary
24 Suffix meaning "sort of"
25 Big Foot's cousin
26 Divergent religious belief
29 Chose
33 Captain's word
34 Foundation
36 — Got a Secret
37 Hold up
38 Observed
39 Hall-of-Famer Ott
40 Glide downhill
41 On the — at odds with 42 '— we a part'
44 Fencing (in) with bushes
47 Type of daisy
48 Mascara target
49 "Silent President
50 Suave
53 Some singers
58 Atmosphere
59 Unsophisticated
61 Golf club
62 Unlawful
63 Scatter about
64 "Cinder" ending
65 Views
66 Manicurist's board
67 Intense

DOWN
1 Border on
2 Lucy Lawless role
3 Cougar's home
4 Vestibules
5 Rowboat
6 Popular cookie
7 Blood vessel
8 UK part
9 Repaired a pump
10 Measuring system
11 Another name for Ireland
12 Type of molding
13 Tidings
21 Helper: abbr
23 Snacked
25 Votes in favor
26 Stern
27 Summon up
28 Fanatical
30 Uses a stopwatch
31 Happening
32 Actress Burke
34 Limb
35 Ot. worker
38 Tomfoolery
42 Moby Dick's pursuer
43 Camp back to win
45 Clearings
46 Singer Janis
47 Loony, slangily
50 Refs. kin
51 Dissipated one
52 Be tiresome
53 Cable
54 Affirm positively
55 — Stanley Gardner
56 Movie part
57 Ginger cookie
60 Bank amenity: abbr

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

© 1998 United Feature Syndicate

Night Editor: Victoria Groves
Photo Technician: Dave Pinks
Copy Editor: Nicole Rocicot
Production Supervisor: Jeromy Brothers
Production Staff: Allen Mackey, Lisa Metcalf

SPORTS weekend

Monday, September 21, 1998 | The Massachusetts Daily Collegian | Page 12

Minutewomen split pair vs. Colgate and W&M

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

For once, it was the Massachusetts soccer team who caught the breaks during yesterday's game with Colgate at Totman Field.

With notorious bad luck hampering the Minutewomen during their sluggish 1–5 start, UMass finally got some bounces en route to a 4–2 win over the Red Raiders. The Minutewomen moved to 2–5 on the year with the victory, and will now have a few days off before heading to Boulder, Colo. this weekend for a pair of games.

"This was a great win for us. To be down that early after everything that's gone on with us, and all of the doubts that probably went through our players' minds," Massachusetts women's soccer coach Jim Rudy said. "But they persevered. I think you're starting to see the stuff that's in there [the inner drive of the team]."

Allowing early goals continued to haunt the Minutewomen yesterday. Colgate's Sena Maziarz blasted a shot from just outside the box and into the top right corner of the net at the 38 second mark. Before UMass could even settle into its game plan, it was down 1–0.

"We didn't start out well. We had a planned tactic that we wanted to engage and play defense, but we didn't do it," Rudy said. "For whatever reason we didn't get started...Then at halftime they did exactly what I asked them to. We needed to push the second person [Sophie Lecot] up front and go at them very aggressively. Tactically it worked to a dime."

Late in the first half, however, the tides began to turn for UMass. Kara Green's left-footed boot off the inside of the left post crossed the goal line, tying the game at 1–1.

Colgate threatened to regain the lead right after the intermission, but a Red Raiders goal was called back, and the Minutewomen took control of the game from there.

Sarah Cook, who had her first collegiate goal on Saturday, threaded a beautiful cross into the box from the right flank. Sophomore Kathleen Machamer was waiting all alone on the left hash, and deposited a right-footed into an empty net for a 2–1 UMass lead at the 49:02 mark.

"It was really exciting for me. I hadn't scored yet this season and it was my first collegiate goal," said Machamer, who sat out all of last season with a torn anterior cruciate ligament in her right knee. "It was nice scoring the goal with my right foot because I'm known for my left foot. My right foot is kind of my kickstand. I'm glad that the team pulled through and we got a couple of more."

Added Rudy: "How did I feel for her getting a right-footed goal, the knee that she had surgery on? It was great. I tried not to run out onto the field and pick up a yellow card. I was about to run over there, but I figured it was her moment of glory."

Green then added the eventual game-winner three and a half minutes later. Sophie Lecot outhustled a Colgate defender and knocked a loose ball away from Red Raiders keeper Kelly Tyrell, who had strayed about 15 yards out from the net. The ball ended up right on the foot on

Turn to SOCCER, page 9

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore midfielder, Kathleen Machamer scored her first collegiate goal in the Massachusetts women's soccer team 4–2 win over Colgate yesterday afternoon.

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

Regardless of the fact that the William and Mary women's soccer team plays in the anonymity of the Colonial Athletic Association, it is making its mark in the college soccer ranks.

After a trip to the Elite Eight last season before losing to eventual runner-up Connecticut, the Tribe is off to a 6-0-1 mark and a No. 8 national ranking. The Massachusetts women's soccer team was an obstacle in the road on Saturday at Totman Field, but ended up a mere speed bump, falling to the Virginia school 5-2.

"I wish I could say they got a good goal today, but I can't," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said. "They had a deflection, a penalty kick, a lucky knockdown when Cori [Stevens, the UMass keeper] came out, and then another deflection. I just can't believe we're having so much bad luck."

William and Mary's Carrie Moore came through with a goal at the 28:22 mark of the opening half, and the Tribe added to that lead five minutes later on a penalty kick tally by Lindsay Nohl.

UMass cut the lead in half just over five minutes into the second half thanks to a great individual effort by Sophie Lecot. The senior co-captain ran down a ball on the left flank, pulling Tribe keeper Michaelle Horbaly out of the net in the process, before finding a wide open Emma Kurowski in the box. The junior tappped home the pass from three yards out, and the Minutewomen had trimmed the William and Mary advantage.

Six minutes later it appeared that UMass had tied the game, but it was ruled that Lecot had knocked the ball in with her hand, and the game stayed 2-1 in favor of William and Mary.

"We had some good stuff going. It felt awfully like Brigham Young," said Rudy in reference to another goal that was disallowed in UMass' season opener against the Cougars. "That was a goal."

The game remained 2-1 until the 72:59 mark, when William and Mary's Missy Wycinsky scored to make it 3-1. Then, less then two minutes later, the junior forward struck again to give the Tribe a 4-1 lead.

UMass midfielder Sarah Cook then netted her first collegiate goal off a feed from Tarah Tokarchik to trim the W&M lead to 4-2 with 6:46 to play. However, the Tribe put the game away less then two minutes later on a goal by Kristin Ryan.

"I think us getting the third goal was key. When they [UMass] had the goal called back, at that time they figured they were still in the game," William and Mary coach John Daly said. "After that goal they knew it would be tough to come back, but Jim's squad battled and battled and stuck in there and made a game of it."

Said Rudy: "I'm real proud of my kids. They worked their butts off today. That was the goal, for us to go out there and play hard and hustle. We just sort of ran out of speed there. It just seems like there's one thing after another [that went wrong]."

Hogancamp Powers UM to a Split in A–10 Opener

Gibbons one dig shy of a double-double

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's volleyball team came up with a split in the Atlantic 10 Conference opener. The Minutewomen fell to A-10 defending champs, Temple, but came up with a big win over LaSalle to get the team back on the winning track.

"It was huge for us to get our first A-10 win. We almost set an NCAA record on offense against LaSalle, and it showed that we could all play well at the same time," said UMass Coach Bonnie Kenny.

MEDIA SERVICES

Katie Gibbons

"It was also good to see that no one ever let up out their, and that we were able to maintain high iniensity throughout the match," Kenny said.

UMass (3-7, 1-1 in A-10) destroyed LaSalle, 15-6, 15-6, 15-2, but they also jumped to a lead and played well with defending A-10 champ Temple.

In the Match with the Owls, UMass did as they have done all season long, they won a big game from a big team. They posted a win in game one 15-4. Then they lost a heartbreaker in game two 15-13, after leading 10-2. The loss in game two, robbed the Minutewomen of their momentum.

"We were up 10-2 in game two and Temple made some adjustments, and we recognized them, but instead of reacting we got passive and defensive," Kenny said.

MEDIA SERVICES

Kari Hogancamp

They then proceeded to lose games three and four 15-5 and 15-7, respectively.

"We stuck to our game plan in the Temple match and it worked for a game and a half, but once we stopped running the middle, we struggled," Kenny said. "This affected our tempo, and it eventually cost us the match."

Junior outsider hitter Kari Hogancamp added to her career double-double totals, as she tallied 17 kills and 19 digs. She also had a super human attack percentage of .406. Katie Gibbons also provided some clutch spark for UMass with 15 kills and nine digs.

"Kari had a huge weekend for us, she kept us in the match against Temple, and she played phenomenal against LaSalle as did many of our players," Kenny said.

Freshman setter Heather Holtsberg came through with another big game for UMass, as she had 29 assists. Jennifer Drennan also chipped in with 13 assists of her own.

Temple had to much firepower in the end as Alma Kovaci had a match high 21 kills and nine digs, while Maria Vutskova came through for the Owls with 18 kills.

UMass regrouped quickly and hammered LaSalle. Hogancamp, Gibbons and Jill Meyers were phenomenal in this match as they combined for 30 kills and no errors. Hogancamp came through with yet another double-double, as she posted 12 kills and 12 digs. Meyers also chipped in with nine digs of her own.

"This kind of win was huge for us, we had great speed on offense and that's what we needed to win. It can also create other opportunities for us, so we need to keep that type of tempo," Kenny said.

Rebecca Hasson was also a major factor in this match as she tallied six kills and 15 digs. Drennan had 25 assists to help lift the team to victory.

The best part of the match for UMass had to be the incredible attack percentage, which was .429.

Several UMass players had 50 percent or better. Meyers, Gibbons and Drennan all had an attack percentage of .500. "We needed that kind of win, it will helps us believe in one another and it will also help us over the course of our season," Kenny said.

Field hockey beats G'town, falls to Terrapins to earn weekend split at Maryland invitational

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

In high school, Lindsey Abbott was a marked player. As a forward for local Northampton High, she faced sonie of the opposition's top defenders, and consistently beat them to the goal.

Still in the early stages of her freshman campaign on the Massachusetts field hockey team, Abbott had yet to see much of any opponent's cage or enjoy much scoring success.

Abbott took a step towards changing that Saturday, as she scored her first collegiate goal and helped the Minutewomen to a 4-1 win over Georgetown in first-day action at the Terp Invitational at Maryland.

UMass was not as lucky on the second day of the invitational, falling to the host Terrapins, 3-0, yesterday.

Abbott's chance came two minutes into the second half of Saturday's contest, but the Minutewomen were already leading, 2-0.

Halfway through the first half, senior Laura Phelan converted on a penalty corner with assists from Patty Robinson and Vicky Browne.

Seven minutes later, sophomore forward Kristen Schmidt, who played against Abbott in high school, knocked an Erica Johnston feed home for the 2-0 halftime edge.

UMass supplemented its scoring with an Anke Bremmer tally on another penalty corner. Robinson and Browne again earned the assists.

The lone Hoya goal came from Caitlin McLean, who was assisted by Susan Stewart.

Yesterday, the Minutewomen could not achieve the same result against the top-tier Terrapins.

After playing to a scoreless tie at halftime, Maryland found a way to break the UMass defense shortly after the second half began.

Five minutes into the half, Carla Tagliante netted a penalty corner goal with assists from Jen Pratt and Molly Kauffman. Four minutes later, Kauffman connected for a score of her own, also on a corner, and Tagliante and Pratt notched the assists.

Maryland was not finished, and the momentum from the first two goals carried the Terrapins to their final goal of the day just 1:50 after their second. Kasey Keiser fed Megan Kelly and she got the ball past Massachsetts goalie Zowie Tucker.

Tucker, who made five saves to Georgetown goaltender Lori Sousa's 16 on Saturday, stopped 10 shots yesterday. Maryland keeper Angela Platt made three saves.

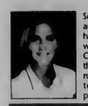
The Minutewomen will have ample time to rest up after their six-game road swing. Their next play Oct. 7 at home against Boston University.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Senior midfielder, Laura Phelan scored a goal to help lift the Massachusetts field hockey team to a 4–1 win over Georgetown Saturday afternoon.

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CIV Issue 10 | New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 | Tuesday, September 22, 1998

The price of fame

Courtney Love attacks Hollywood and other conventions on the long awaited new Hole album, Celebrity Skin (see Arts & Living, page 6).

Citizen Kane

Senior Gillian Kane and her classmates have a bone to pick with rival Amherst College today when they travel down the road for a 3:30 contest (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Russia issues money to fight bank collapse

By John Iams
Associated Press

MOSCOW— Russia has issued $60 million in new rubles in a bid to prevent the collapse of commercial banks, the Central Bank said yesterday, playing down concerns the move would fuel inflation. The announcement came while President Boris Yeltsin and Prime Minister Yevgeny Primakov met to complete Cabinet selections and work on a strategy to jump-start the moribund economy.

The financial crisis has caused a backlog of bank payments totaling more than $2 billion, Andrei Kozlov, first deputy chairman of the Central Bank, told a news conference yesterday.

The bank launched an emergency rescue plan on Friday to help settle $666 million of the payments, Kozlov said.

As part of the effort, the Central Bank printed $60 million in rubles and issued short-term credits to banks. Kozlov stressed that the amount was too small to affect the ruble's rate and inflation. But many analysts feared the move may set a dangerous precedent, and if such a policy is continued, it could fuel inflation and lead to further declines in the ruble. The ruble is officially valued at 16 to the dollar, down from six a month ago.

NATION

Five–million gallons of water flood town

By Larry Gerber
Associated Press

WESTMINSTER, Calif. — A 5-million-gallon water tank ruptured early yesterday, sending a rumbling wave through the streets that swept away trees, cars and condominiums.

One firefighter was hospitalized in serious condition. Another firefighter and five residents suffered minor injuries.

A search through the rubble of collapsed buildings determined no one was killed or trapped.

"You know how before an earthquake you heard a rumble? it was just a big rumble," said Rose Scorsone, whose family was not hurt. She said a pickup truck wound up inside her neighbor's kitchen. "I've never been this scared before in my life," she said. Authorities were unsure why the tank ruptured.

A giant portion of the concrete tank's wall blew out around daybreak, sending an estimated 4 million gallons of water rushing down two residential streets in this city of 82,500 people about 25 miles south of Los Angeles.

"It's a mess out there, it's like Armageddon," police Lt. Bob Amren said

At least 50 condomintums or garages and 14 vehicles were damaged.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 78 LOW: 57	HIGH: 63 LOW: 43	HIGH: 65 LOW: 45

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Crossword .....page 11
Editorial.....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News.....page 3
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Clinton testifies to Lewinsky relationship

By Alan Fram
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress laid before a wary nation yesterday the raw footage of President Clinton's grand jury testimony and 3,183 pages of evidence chronicling his relationship with Monica Lewinsky in explicit detail. "It's an embarrassing and personally painful thing," Clinton told the grand jurors.

The videotape of Clinton's testimony began playing unedited on television sets across America shortly before 9:30 a.m. EDT. White House press secretary Mike McCurry blamed its release on "rank partisanship" and dismissed most of the new material as irrelevant.

The tape portrayed Clinton as sometimes angry at prosecutors' questions and other times expressing bitterness at how the Paula Jones lawsuit precipitated Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's criminal investigation of the Lewinsky matter.

"I deplored what they were doing," Clinton said of the Jones lawsuit. Jabbing his hand at prosecutors for emphasis, he insisted that in his January testimony in the Jones case, he was "determined to walk through the minefield of this deposition without violating the law, and I believe I did."

"I deplored the innocent people they were tormenting and traumatizing. I deplored their illegal leaking," Clinton said. The two-volume set of evidence made public today includes Ms. Lewinsky's own account to prosecutors and the grand jury, in which she calls the president her "sexual soulmate" and testifies about her frustration that the president hadn't taken their sexual activity further.

"Maybe that was his way of being able to feel OK about it, his way of being able to justify it or rationalize it," she testified. Away from the spectacle, the president was at the United Nations in New York. His speech on combating terrorism got a standing ovation — "the warmest and most enthusiastic reception' he has received in six U.N. speeches, said White House spokesman Joe Lockhart. He said Clinton didn't watch the video.

Hillary Rodham Clinton, appearing at a New York University forum, made no mention of the Lewinsky matter in her opening remarks.

McCurry said the videotape shows "repeated efforts by Mr. Starr and his prosecutors to browbeat and badger" Clinton into discussing intimate details of his relationship.

The materials released today provide one side of the story: the evidence that Starr said supports his case for 11 possible impeachable offenses against the president. McCurry's response: "That the president's conduct does not rise to the level of an impeachable offense should now be clear to everyone."

With the House not in session, few lawmakers were on hand at the Capitol. Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said it was "unfortunate" that Republicans insisted on releasing the tape over Democrats' objections. As for its impact, he said, "how damaging [it is] is not something anybody can assess right now."

Rep. John Conyers Jr., ranking Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, decried the release of "irrelevant, unnecessary disclosure of salacious and lurid details" meant to embarrass the president.

But Republican members of the committee said the videotape revealed Clinton's legal maneuvering. Committing perjury before the grand jury would be grounds for impeachment, said Rep. Charles Canady, R-Fla. The president "understands the obligation to tell the truth and the whole truth," Canady said. "And we'll have to make a judgment about whether he has done that."

Ms. Lewinsky's testimony contradicted the president's on several key aspects. She insisted he did touch her body during their sexual encounters and that they were alone at times in the Oval Office. She dates their first sexual encounter to November 1995 while she was still an intern; he said the contacts began in January 1996 after she had a paid White House job.

At the request of one grand juror, Ms. Lewinsky recounted her conversations with Clinton about concealing or denying their sexual relationship, discussions that prosecutors allege amounted to obstruction of justice.

"I told him I could always — I would always deny it. I would always protect him," Ms. Lewinsky said. She was then asked by a juror to recount what the president said.

"I'm seeing him smile and I'm hearing him saying 'that's good,' or — something affirmative. You know. Not — 'don't deny it.'"

Clinton said he "absolutely never asked her to lie." And he said there was nothing improper in their conversations about turning gifts that he had given to Ms. Lewinsky over to Oval Office secretary Betty Currie after they were subpoenaed. The handoff of the gifts was cited by prosecutors as evidence that Clinton obstructed justice.

COURTESY NBC NEWS

Clinton testifies before the grand jury.

Ms. Lewinsky "may have been worried about this gift business but it didn't bother me," Clinton testified.

The evidence included a table chronicling Clinton and Ms. Lewinsky's encounters, which began in August 1995 with "eye contact" and "flirtation" and led to "physical intimacy" that November. The table's last meeting is a Dec. 28, 1997, meeting in which Ms. Lewinsky gave Clinton Christmas gifts that included a sexually suggestive candy gag gift.

Americans watching on TVs and computers across the country saw their president taking the oath before a grand jury, wrestling with difficult and graphic questions and trying to fall back on a technical, legal defense.

"I am not going to answer your trick questions," the president snapped at prosecutors at one point. At another, he tells lawyers his memory "is not what it was when I came here" because of the crush of information that he faces as president.

At an office food court in Atlanta, attorney Larry Ellerbe stopped briefly to watch Clinton's testimony on a large-screen TV. Ellerbe said it was "wrong

Turn to CLINTON, page 3

Hurricane hits Puerto Rico, Virgin Is.

By Dan Perry
Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — A menacing Hurricane Georges cut a swath through the northeast Caribbean yesterday, packing 110 mph winds and churning up 20-foot seas. Thousands took shelter in Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands as the storm approached. The hurricane toppled power lines, mangled trees and blew away roofs in St. Kitts, Antigua and other islands earlier yesterday. No serious injuries were reported by afternoon, but officials said they feared Georges would strike densely populated areas. "This hurricane has the characteristics of being the strongest that we have confronted in Puerto Rico in decades," warned Gov. Pedro Rossello. "Our people have very difficult days to come." At 5 p.m. EDT, Georges' center was estimated near latitude 17.9 north and longitude 65.2 west, passing St. Croix, one of the U.S. Virgin Islands, where all power was knocked out.

Moving west-northwest at 16 mph, the storm packed hurricane-force winds up to 85 miles from the eye, mostly to the northeast.

The U.S. National Hurricane Center warned that Georges' winds — while diminished from the 150 mph recorded Sunday — remained "extremely dangerous."

Advance teams from the U.S. Federal Emergency Management Agency, the FBI and the American Red Cross arrived in the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. Both territories declared states of emergency and called up National Guard troops.

The first strong winds were felt around 3 p.m. EDT in the San Juan area, where almost half of Puerto Rico's 3.8 million people live.

Rossello banned liquor sales and ordered more than 330 shelters opened. Banks and schools closed, airlines canceled flights to and from the U.S. mainland, and ferry service was suspended. People were ordered off the beaches.

More than 9,700 people left their homes for shelters in San Juan, Arecibo, Mayaguez and other cities.

With up to 15 inches of rain expected in Puerto Rico's mountains, the threat of mudslides drove many mountain residents to shelters in San Juan.

"The roof of my house is made of wood and cardboard, and I'd rather be here before it goes flying," said Miguel Mercado Romero. In St. Croix, raging winds bent palm trees to one-third of their height, shook parked cars and destroyed part of the boardwalk. Gov. Roy Schneider, speaking on WVWI-AM radio, said a 50-foot sailboat had been driven aground. In St. Thomas, also part of the U.S. Virgin Islands, winds were at about 75 mph and increasing. Georges' path would also take it to island of Hispaniola, which is shared by the Dominican Republic and Haiti. Hurricane watches also went into effect for the southeastern Bahamas and the Turks and Caicos islands.

In Cuba, the Interior Ministry issued a hurricane warning to residents of the island's easternmost provinces. The area has been hit hard by a drought in recent months.

Some cruise ships headed south to get out of Georges' way, and others changed their schedules to make Caribbean stops before heading to storm-free Mexico.

Georges hit land Sunday night, downing trees and utility lines, ripping wooden and galvanized roofs from homes and pelting sheets of rain into residences on the northern Leeward islands.

In Antigua, where 5,700 people spent the night in shelters, the storm split open government-built homes in northern Cedar Grove Garden and ripped corrugated roofs off hundreds of other houses. Antiguan shop owners erected sandbag barricades to stop flooding. Civil defense workers distributed flashlights, mosquito coils, water and toilet paper to nervous shelter residents. All of the island's television and radio stations were off the air, and rain washed out the road near Urlins, on the southern coast, stranding a bus. The bus was pulled from the water by a backhoe, and no injuries were reported.

In the French island of Guadeloupe, swirling winds knocked out power in several towns. One man was shot and killed by guards while trying to escape from jail.

DANIELLE R. GUARDI / COLLEGIAN

BLAH

Baron the Police horse hams it up for the camera outside the Student Union yesterday, Officer Waite looks on.

UMass student dies

University of Massachusetts sophomore, David E. Case, of Greenfield, Mass., died of natural causes at approximately 9:15 p.m. last night. Case, a pre-English, disabled student, lived in Brett residence hall.

Dean of Students, Jo-Anne Vanin confirmed Case's death last night and plans to issue a statement with more information today, according to Kay Scanlan News Director of the UMass News Office.

— Laura Forster

Ethics code proposed

By Harmonie Toros
Associated Press

ISTANBUL, Turkey — A press group decided yesterday to move ahead with its controversial proposal to establish a code of ethics for journalists worldwide and an international news council to mediate complaints.

At a briefing ending a three-day conference of journalists and media experts, the World Association of Press Councils said committees would draft an ethics code and consider forming a body to ensure it is respected.

Another committee is charged with coming up with a plan for an independent news council that would rule on complaints by and against the press. Those committee members will look into the feasibility of establishing, financing and attracting media and public support for a body that would handle transnational complaints, said David Flint, chairman of the world association. Flint is to lead the working group; its members also will include the president of the Turkish Press Council and a former executive of the Egyptian Press Council.

About 30 news councils exist worldwide. The most prominent in the United States is the Minnesota News Council, founded in 1971 to promote media fairness.

Turn to CODE, page 2

Caps rejected for campaign finances

By Jean McMillan
Associated Press

BOSTON — Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci yesterday rejected campaign spending limits and said his campaign would spend upwards of $5 million to win the general election.

"We don't know what we'll spend," said Cellucci campaign spokesman Andy Antrobus. "It gives us the flexibility to spend what we need to compete with the Democrats and the large amounts of soft money the Democrats will spend on this race."

Cellucci's campaign with Jane Swift — the governor and lieutenant governor nominees must run as one team — reported its maximum expected expenditures to the Office of Campaign and Political Finance in time to meet yesterday's deadline.

Antrobus said the campaign currently has roughly $2 million on hand.

Democratic gubernatorial nominee Scott Harshbarger had agreed to a cap of $1.5 million, which entitled him to $750,000 in public financing. He and running mate Warren Tolman are now free to spend as much as their opponents.

But rather than $5 million declared by Cellucci, that number is $19.5 billion, the figure submitted by the Libertarian party for the governor/lieutenant governor, secretary and auditor races. Dean Cook, the Libertarian Party's candidate for governor, said he is opposed to the political finance laws because they restrict free speech.

Asked why they chose to put down a number matching the state's budget, Cook said, "If you're going to pick a ridiculous number, look at the budget — it's a ridiculous number."

DANIELLE R. GIARDI / COLLEGIAN

Chillin'

Rick Sommer (above) and Billye Smith (below) both have the same idea as they soak in the last day of official summer sun.

Campus Police Log

Accident — Property Damage
Sept. 18
A parked vehicle in Lot 71 on Massachusetts Avenue was struck by a hit and run vehicle.

Annoying Behavior
Sept. 20
A planter was overturned on Hicks Way.
Sept. 19
Individuals attempted to force a door open in Gorman Residence Hall.
Sept. 18
An individual received an annoying e-mail message in Wheeler Hall.

B&E/Burglary
Sept. 19
A room broken into in Cance Residence Hall. Furniture was disrupted.

Disturbance
Sept. 19
Jose L. Hernandez, 21, of 218 Ferry St., Lawrence, was arrested in Gorman Residence Hall for disorderly conduct and assault and battery.
Paul R. Barros, 21, of 32 Brook Ave., Roxbury, was arrested in Gorman Residence Hall for disorderly conduct and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

Domestic Disturbance
Sept. 20
Two individuals were involved in a verbal argument in Gorman Hall.

Larceny
Sept. 18
A wallet was stolen from Field Residence Hall.
A backpack was stolen from the Textbook Annex.

Liquor Law Violations
Sept. 19
Thomas M. Winchell, 18, of 27 Chestnut St., Douglas, was arrested on Commonwealth Ave. for illegal possession of liquor and littering.
Sept. 18
Joseph G. Boyd, 20, of 117 Gardiner Rd., Quincy and Kyle R. Hamilton, 19, of 21 Lake Ave., Newton, were arrested on Clark Hill Road for illegal possession of liquor.

Motor Vehicle Theft
Sept. 18
A vehicle was stolen from Lot 49 on Windmill Lane.
A vehicle was reported stolen from Lot 25 on Commonwealth Avenue.

Traffic Stop
Sept. 19
Jean R. Metayer, 21, of 1515 Selwyn Ave., Apt. 3B, Bronx, NY, was arrested on North Pleasant Street for improper operation of a motor vehicle (i.e. excess smoke) and operation under the influence of liquor.
Sept. 18
Steven A. Biafore, 20, of 33 Majestic Ave., Warwick, RI, was arrested on University Drive for illegal procurement and possession of liquor.
Ryan N. Hennessey, 19, of 433 Branch Rd., Wells, ME, was arrested on University Drive for transportation and illegal possession of liquor.
Roberto M. Carrion, 18, of 4 Beaver Dam Dr., Westford, was arrested on University Drive for illegal possession of liquor.
David Michael O'Neil, 22, of 65 Maravista Ave., Waltham, was arrested on University Drive for possession of a Class D drug.

Warrant Service
Sept. 19
Linda Accime, 19, of 248 Kelton St., Brighton, was arrested at Kennedy Residence Hall on a warrant.

Vandalism
Sept. 20
A cement flower pot was overturned on Thatcher Way.
A vehicle window was smashed in Lot 21 on Massachusetts Ave.
A planter was overturned on Stockbridge Road.

■ code

continued from page 1

Composed of journalists and non-journalists, its findings carry no sanctions. Complainants must waive their right to sue for libel — an incentive for media organizations to participate — but find the council a less costly route than the courts to public vindication.

The proposal for an international news council has been criticized by many in the industry, including the American Society of Newspaper Editors, fear such a mechanism could be used to restrict journalists.

"Who wants this?" asked Ronald Koven, European representative of the World Press Freedom Committee. "And in whose interests is it? Certainly not the press freedom organizations or the representatives of the industry."

The prospect of an international code of ethics for journalists also divided conference delegates. Claude Moisy, president of UNESCO's Advisory Group on Press Freedom, said a code for journalists would be wrong in principle, impossible to formulate and impossible to enforce.

Established in New Delhi in 1992, the World Association of Press Councils has 16 news councils in various countries to deal with local complaints about the news media.

The working committees are scheduled to submit their conclusions at a June conference in Brisbane, Australia.

Correction

In the Sept. 18 issue of the Collegian, Emily Labarbera–Twarog was incorrectly identified. She is the president of the Graduate Employee Organization, not from MassPirg. The Collegian regrets the error.

Do you want students to hold POWER on campus?

Are you up for the challenge of fighting for student RIGHTS

Are you tired of being ANOTHER NUMBER without a face?

Are the ANSWERS to each of these questions yes?

Then join the Student Government! The SGA is now accepting nomination papers for the positions of Area Government and Senators.

Papers are available in the SGA office 420 Student Union. Don't wait! Papers are due by 5:00 p.m. Tuesday September 22nd.

For more information: Call Jodi Bailey at 545-1286.

DANIELLE R. GIARDI / COLLEGIAN

Stairway silhouette

An unknown figure passes through a stairwell in the student union yesterday.

Airlines form worldwide alliance

By Dirk Beveridge
Associated Press

LONDON — American Airlines and British Airways teamed up yesterday with three partners in the industry's second super alliance, saying they will be able to fly virtually anywhere in the world. The alliance also includes Canadian Airlines, Australia's Qantas and Hong Kong's Cathay Pacific Airways — and they hope to expand soon with partners from continental Europe and Japan.

The airlines say their venture, called "oneworld," will be a tough competitor to the Star Alliance put together by United Airlines and Germany's Lufthansa.

But one rival warned that passengers may end up paying too much as competition dries up on some routes.

Billionaire Richard Branson, who runs Virgin Atlantic Airways, said the oneworld group will stifle competition on flights between Britain and Australia or London and Hong Kong.

Virgin said it controls 16 percent of the traffic between London and Hong Kong while British Airways and Cathay Pacific have the other 84 percent.

"For 'oneworld,' read one company, one monopoly and millions of passengers taken for a ride," Branson said in a statement. Canadian Airlines and Australia's Qantas already had marketing partnerships with American and British Airways — and Cathay Pacific came aboard yesterday.

Executives told a news conference that they had invited the Spanish flag carrier Iberia to join up. Finnair president Antti Potila said later his company was negotiating to get into the group.

The executives also have their eyes set on a bigger prize: Japan Airlines.

"It's really up to the Japanese to make their decision on that," said Don Carty, the chief executive at American. Asked about getting a Latin American partner, Carty said this, too, was a possibility although he said American already has an extensive route network in the region.

Oneworld was launched even as American and British Airways continue their fight to gain regulatory approval for a separate deal that would give them U.S. antitrust immunity to set prices on routes across the Atlantic.

The new alliance is "not a substitute," said Bob Ayling, chief executive at British Airways.

The alliance is a first for Cathay Pacific, which said its associate carrier Dragonair, serving some destinations in China, might also join after setting up a frequent flyer program and making other necessary changes.

The airlines say they will coordinate their flight schedules and ticketing, while cooperating on their frequent flier programs to better serve customers beginning early next year.

Alliances are becoming increasingly common in the international aviation industry, where travel is booming, but leading airlines realized long ago it wouldn't be feasible to get big enough to cover the entire globe single-handedly

■ Clinton

continued from page 1

and improper" for Congress to release the tape but that "sadly enough," he would probably watch all of the testimony later.

Eighteen-year-old Chris Junker tuned in at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln student union. Clinton has "done a bunch of lying so far and now he's just trying to make up for it," Junker said. "He's in pretty deep."

A different view came from cab driver Fofana Sekou, watching in the Greyhound bus station in Philadelphia. "If the man is doing a good job, you got to give him a chance to let him finish what he's doing," Sekou said.

The president testified in the Map Room under bright light that contrasted with the warm muted glow bathing the same room when he gave his TV address to the nation later that day.

The formality and legalism of his testimony contrasts starkly with that of the youthful Ms. Lewinsky, who spoke of a "mushy note" and scolded prosecutors during tough questions by saying, "Oh, you really want to embarrass me don't you?"

Clinton read a statement early on describing his relationship with Ms. Lewinsky as involving "sexual banter" and "inappropriate intimate contact." He then refused to describe the relationship further when prosecutors pressed for more.

"I think it is clear what inappropriately intimate is. I have said what it did not include. I — it did not include sexual intercourse — and I do not believe it included conduct which falls within the definition I was given in the Jones deposition," Clinton says in one exchange. "And I would like to stay with that characterization."

Deputy Independent Counsel Robert Bittman, the first of four prosecutors to question Clinton, said at the start: "The questions are uncomfortable and I apologize for that in advance."

Clinton gradually grew more animated. He grasped his chin, pointed his finger thoughtfully and took frequent sips of water as he discussed the meaning of sexual relations in almost businesslike fashion. He peered over his reading glasses to look into the camera at times, taking them off and gesturing at others.

At one point, Clinton bristles at prosecutors questioning him about specific details.

"Again I say, sir, just from the tone of your voice and the way you're asking questions here, it's obvious this is the most important thing in the world, and that everybody was focused on all the details at the time. But that's not the way it worked. I was, I was doing my best to remember," the president said.

Get involved!! Write for news!!

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

PRINCIPLES OF SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

RECENTLY, MORNINGSTAR CALLED US CHEAP.

IT'S NOT EVERY DAY YOU GET A COMPLIMENT LIKE THAT.

All financial companies charge operating fees and expenses—some more than others. Of course, the lower the expenses you pay, the better. That way, more of your money goes where it should—towards building a comfortable future.

We make low expenses a top priority.

As the largest retirement system in the world[1]—a nonprofit company focused exclusively on the financial needs of the educational and research communities—our expenses are among the lowest in the insurance and mutual fund industries.[2]

In fact, TIAA-CREF's 0.31% average fund expenses are less than half of the expense charges of comparable funds.[3] It's why Morningstar—one of the nation's leading sources of annuity and mutual fund information—says, "At that level [TIAA-CREF] is cheaper than any other [variable annuity] policy, and is even competitive with the cheapest mutual fund complexes, though it offers far more benefits."[4]

"TIAA-CREF sets the standard in the financial services industry."

Of course, expenses are only one factor to consider when you make an investment decision. Morningstar also noted our commitment to "consumer education, service" and "solid investment performance." Because that can make a difference in the long run, too.

At TIAA-CREF, we believe people would like to spend more in retirement, not on their retirement company. Today, over two million people count on that approach to help them build a comfortable and secure future. So can you. To find out more, call us at 1 800 842-2776. We'd consider it a compliment.

Visit us on the Internet at www.tiaa-cref.org

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it.®

1. Based on $256 billion in assets under management. 2. Standard & Poor's Insurance Rating Analysis: 1998, Lipper Analytical Services, Inc., Lipper-Directors' Analysis/Data 1998 (Quarterly). 3. Of the 4,829 variable annuities tracked by Morningstar, the average fund had total fees combining annual expenses of 0.82% plus an insurance expense of 1.27%. Source: Morningstar, Inc., for periods ending 7/31/98. 4. Source: Morningstar Principia Variable Annuities/Life 4/30/98.

TIAA-CREF expenses are subject to change and are not guaranteed for the future. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services distributes CREF certificates and interests in the TIAA Real Estate Account. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2776, extension 5509, for the prospectuses. Read them carefully before you invest or send money.

©1998 TIAA-CREF • 730 Third Avenue • New York, NY

Get in the box

Ahhh!... It's another beautiful morning. I wake up before my alarm is supposed to go off... again. I stretch out of bed, put my feet on the floor and wander over to my window, throwing it wide open to the cool Pioneer Valley air. "Good morning, Mr. Sparrow," I say to a singing bird. "May your sweet tune carry me through my day. Good morning, Mr. Sun. Let's keep today at a nice 72 degrees. OK? Good morning, strange-man-with-high-powered-binoculars-in-the-window-across-from-mine. I'm planning on doing something really embarrassing today around 5 p.m. I probably won't be wearing pants."

After getting the thumbs up from my ashen-faced hermit neighbor, I wash up, get dressed and head out the door. As I'm about to step out the front door, I hear the low rumble of a truck making its way down the street. Ahh, trash day. It's like a civil service cleansing of the soul. Gone are all those empty bottles of cheap liquor you consumed alone; gone are all those receipts from the porn shack. Tuesday means a new beginning.

Mike Messsaros

I step out the door and call to the trash men: "Good morning, civil service engineers! God bless..." I freeze. I realize something is wrong. Standing alone and defeated, like at my eighth grade dance, are my two over-sized cardboard boxes that I had put out as a sacrifice to the sanitation gods. "My boxes." I call out to the trash truck, making its way down the street, "My boxes!"

I'm sure they're laughing at me. I pick up the boxes awkwardly and chase the truck down the street. "You forgot these boxes," I yell, losing breath with each step, as a nagging stitch grows in my side. Tears began appearing at the corners of my eyes and I fell to my knees, defeated. "Are you too good for my boxes? Are you too good for trash, trashmen? You elitist jerks, you... you bourgeois bastards!"

I now wore these boxes like an albatross around my neck. Two big, cardboard albatrusses. I dragged them down the street behind me, the low, guttural scrape of cardboard on asphalt creating a sad mourning song, a dirge for the whole neighborhood to hear. People glanced furtively out of windows. Mothers pulled children out of front lawns, throwing nervous glances over maternal shoulders.

What was I to do? I was saddled with these two boxes now for a week more. My room was too small, and I didn't want to leave them out for another week.

The smell of the cardboard carried me back to my childhood. As people got new washers, dryers or refrigerators, the children of the neighborhood would grab them before they were put in the trash. They would color them, cut them up. You would get in them and roll down the hill. You could slide down them like some sort of bizarre Slip 'N' Slide. Then, when the box was ready for retirement, we'd leave it on the front lawn of a neighbor's house (preferably the witch who put razorblades in her Halloween candy).

That was it! I could pass along the joys of the cardboard box to new generations to enjoy. I could become a missionary of cardboard, a kind of Santa Claus in September. I was going to show the kids of this town how to live!

***

"Come on. You get in it, then you roll down the hill. What can be more fun? They're building a ride like this at Riverside Amusement Park." This is what I told the first kid I found. Along with a friend, they had been playing by a large hill on the outskirts of town.

"I don't know," he answered tentatively. "It looks kind of dangerous. Do I need a helmet or pads?"

"Is this how you kids are raised these days? What are your parents teaching you? In my day, we didn't even use helmets in hockey. Get in the box."

"No."

I grabbed his thin forearm. "Listen," I breathed hot and angrily into his little face. "Listen you little [expletive]! Get in the [expletive] box!"

With that I threw him in. His weight sent the box toppling headlong down the hill. I could hear his little shrieks of joy as the box tripped violently down the uneven hill. His excitement ended when the box came to a halt by wrapping itself around a tree.

His friend looked suspiciously at me. "What was your name again?"

"Uh... William Bulger. You may have read my autobiography..."

I still had one box left. A smaller box, not good for hill- sliding, and too big to stuff into a trash can.

On my slow walk, I ran into an elderly woman. She was small and carried a cane. We chatted a bit. "How would you like to go for a ride in a box?" I asked.

So she crept into the little box and I heard a low tone of assent from inside. "Here we go, grandma," I shoved the box down the hill and as it tumbled and rolled I heard her yell, "I'm king of the world!"

And as I stood on that hill, sun setting behind me, I thought, we're all king of the world. Young and old. All we need is a box. And a heart full of dreams. And the trashmen all of a sudden being ultra-selective about just what is trash.

Mike Messaros is a Collegian columnist.

A piece of paradise

Hawaii. I'm not going to display an account of a spring vacation where I got lei'd and watched a pig thrown into the ground on a beach to make me feel like I was at a "real" luau. My version of island paradise goes beyond Waikiki and into the culture, the economy, and the little things learned from being raised in the most geographically isolated place on earth.

Hawaii is culture. It literally is where the East meets the West; many children are born hapa, a word meaning "mixed Asian and Caucasian." These children and myself, a hapa girl, are perfect examples of the way Hawaii has taught me to live.

I didn't have to deal with the stereotypes of minorities in America. We lived alongside each other, not in separate groups that happened to go to the same school or play in the same park as children. There were obvious traits that separated each culture distinctively, but they helped us learn about the world and its traditions. It was interesting to see the struggle of mixing cultures, as I myself have see-sawed back and forth between my conservative-Catholic-hard- working father and my spontaneous and liberal-let's-not-worry-about-tradition Caucasian mother.

The question remains: why would I come here to the East Coast? Or better yet, why didn't I just stay in Hawaii? This is not a question I can answer in simple terms.

Alicia Upano

The economy is terrible. Hawaii has found itself supported by tourists. Unfortunately, the tourism economy is failing. Waikiki has turned into a concrete jungle and the beach that is left is overpopulated with tourists and the homeless. At night, it turns into a city with clubs, prostitutes, and drunk marines. A fun place to be for a night, but many tourists that have traveled from the other side of the world are pretty disappointed to see this along with the staged luaus and pineapple served at the nearest McDonald's.

This is why Maui, Kauai and even the lesser known islands such as Molokai are becoming more popular. Here, tourists are heading to the Hawaii they came here for: quiet beaches from a magazine, mountains of purple and the spirit of aloha — which hasn't been completely lost but seems to be waning.

There was an isolated incident when a tourist was set on fire, and a time when a sovereignty group passed out flyers on Waikiki beach basically telling the tourists to go home. However, the rumors that locals despise tourists aren't completely true. Many of the working locals are employed by the hospitality industry.

For example, I was in Waikiki waiting beside two elderly tourists to cross the street. A local woman leaned over from her car and asked why they had come. They answered that they were on their 50th wedding anniversary. She then took a lei and handed it to the man for his wife and wished them a happy anniversary. The light changed and she left. That is what I mean by the spirit of aloha: random acts of kindness.

On the topic of more pressing events, sovereignty is a big issue in Hawaii. I cannot do it justice in a simple paragraph and am not completely educated upon the recent events. Various groups are fighting for the land the West; many children are born hapa, a word meaning "mixed Asian and Caucasian." These children and myself, a hapa girl, are perfect examples of the way Hawaii has taught me to live.

I didn't have to deal with the stereotypes of minorities in America. We lived alongside each other, not in separate groups that happened to go to the same school or play in the same park as children. There were obvious traits that separated each culture distinctively, but they helped us learn about the world and its traditions. It was interesting to see the struggle of mixing cultures, as I myself have see-sawed back and forth between my conservative-Catholic-hard- working father and my spontaneous and liberal-let's-not-worry-about-tradition Caucasian mother.

The question remains: why would I come here to the East Coast? Or better yet, why didn't I just stay in Hawaii? This is not a question I can answer in simple terms.

Alicia Upano

The economy is terrible. Hawaii has found itself supported by tourists. Unfortunately, the tourism economy is failing. Waikiki has turned into a concrete jungle and the beach that is left is overpopulated with tourists and the homeless. At night, it turns into a city with clubs, prostitutes, and drunk marines. A fun place to be for a night, but many tourists that have traveled from the other side of the world are pretty disappointed to see this along with the staged luaus and pineapple served at the nearest McDonald's.

This is why Maui, Kauai and even the lesser known islands such as Molokai are becoming more popular. Here, tourists are heading to the Hawaii they came here for: quiet beaches from a magazine, mountains of purple and the spirit of aloha — which hasn't been completely lost but seems to be waning.

There was an isolated incident when a tourist was set on fire, and a time when a sovereignty group passed out flyers on Waikiki beach basically telling the tourists to go home. However, the rumors that locals despise tourists aren't completely true. Many of the working locals are employed by the hospitality industry.

For example, I was in Waikiki waiting beside two elderly tourists to cross the street. A local woman leaned over from her car and asked why they had come. They answered that they were on their 50th wedding anniversary. She then took a lei and handed it to the man for his wife and wished them a happy anniversary. The light changed and she left. That is what I mean by the spirit of aloha: random acts of kindness.

On the topic of more pressing events, sovereignty is a big issue in Hawaii. I cannot do it justice in a simple paragraph and am not completely educated upon the recent events. Various groups are fighting for the land the West; many children are born hapa, a word meaning "mixed Asian and Caucasian." These children and myself, a hapa girl, are perfect examples of the way Hawaii has taught me to live.

I didn't have to deal with the stereotypes of minorities in America. We lived alongside each other, not in separate groups that happened to go to the same school or play in the same park as children. There were obvious traits that separated each culture distinctively, but they helped us learn about the world and its traditions. It was interesting to see the struggle of mixing cultures, as I myself have see-sawed back and forth between my conservative-Catholic-hard- working father and my spontaneous and liberal-let's-not-worry-about-tradition Caucasian mother.

The question remains: why would I come here to the East Coast? Or better yet, why didn't I just stay in Hawaii? This is not a question I can answer in simple terms.

Alicia Upano

The economy is terrible. Hawaii has found itself supported by tourists. Unfortunately, the tourism economy is failing. Waikiki has turned into a concrete jungle and the beach that is left is overpopulated with tourists and the homeless. At night, it turns into a city with clubs, prostitutes, and drunk marines. A fun place to be for a night, but many tourists that have traveled from the other side of the world are pretty disappointed to see this along with the staged luaus and pineapple served at the nearest McDonald's.

This is why Maui, Kauai and even the lesser known islands such as Molokai are becoming more popular. Here, tourists are heading to the Hawaii they came here for: quiet,

ARTS & LIVING

Less brazen Love makes Celebrity Skin worthwhile

COURTESY GUZMAN

From left to right: Melissa Auf der maur, Courtney Love, Patty Schemel and Eric Erlandson of Hole.

By Kevin Monahan
Collegian Staff

CELEBRITY SKIN
Hole
Geffen

It has been four years. We've waited four years for this album. Yes, it's about time, and Hole has changed with the times — a lot. You won't find any songs like "Teenage Whore" on Celebrity Skin. The consistent anger of songs like "Violet" and "Jennifer's Body" aren't here either. At first glance, it might seem as if Hole has fallen into the alterno-pop pit, but listen again. Celebrity Skin might not sound as raw or angry as 1991's Pretty On the Inside or 1994's Live Through This. Rather, the new album is catchy and sardonic. Celebrity Skin has its weak spots in abundance, but there are a few songs that make the album worth the wait.

The anger of Hole's previous work is still present, you just have to look beneath the surface. It's there, under the thick layers of sarcasm. "Celebrity Skin," the first track of the album, lets you know right away what you're in for. The cute and clever commentary on fame and stardom seems fitting for Courtney Love's recent public appearances. The lyrics, "When I wake up, in my makeup/have you ever felt so used up as this?/It's all so s u g a r l e s s hooker/waitress/model/actress/oh, just go nameless" capture Love's experience with the Hollywood scene.

"Awful" is also a catchy, poppy delight. The song has a lot to say, and Love's lyrics: "They royalty rate all the girls like you/and they sell it out to the girls like you/to incorpo-

Turn to CELEBRITY SKIN, page7

"Days"' might jump to ABC

There's a whole lot of shakin' going on concerning daytime's longest running joke, "Days of Our Lives." Rumor has it, "Days" might, and I emphasize the word "might," swap networks: ABC has reportedly expressed an interest in acquiring the soap should negotiations with NBC fall through. In case you hadn't heard, "Days'" contract with the network is almost up and there has been some speculation as to whether or not NBC would try to woo the soap to sign on for another few years.

"Why not?" you ask. Well, it's no secret that the big wigs over at NBC are a little peed off at the show's recent dealings with Direct TV. Earlier this year, Tri Star — "Days'" parent company, made a deal with Direct TV that would allow the satellite company to run "Days'" commercial free. You can imagine why NBC wasn't exactly thrilled with the prospect. It's hard enough competing against "All My Children" and "Young and the Restless" than to have to compete with yourself...it's a bit too much. Why would anyone bother with NBC when they could just tune into Direct TV's new and improved station and avoid the hassle of these pain in the butt commercials?

Adding fuel to the fire is the network's current dilemma. NBC now finds itself between a rock and a hard place in that it's faced with the difficult decision of cancelling one of its three current soaps to make room for its latest incarnation.

Early last year, James E. Riley, formerly of "Days'" fame, pitched the idea of a new soap (tentatively titled "Passions") to NBC, and the execs took the bait — hook, line and sinker. It wasn't a hard decision given the man's track record. In just a few years and with a little help from that oh-so-amusing possessions storyline, Riley managed to pull the show up from the depths of ratings despair to the cozy spot it shares now (number two on the Nielsons).

There was one problem however, where the heck would they put it? Hence comes the decision to can one of the network's three crowning glories. Insiders weren't talking but for a while it looked as if the rating plagued "Another World" might take the hit. Recent developments, however, have left the industry buzzing about the possibility that "Days" could have just signed its own death warrant with this latest move, despite the show's continued success. The field's still wide open though and NBC has got until next year to weigh its options. Either way, ABC has just let the soap know that should things with NBC fall apart, they might be there with shovel in hand, to pick up the pieces.

What would that mean for ABC's current line up? Soap Opera Weekly speculates that the network might consider cancelling "Port Charles" (no surprise given the show's stagnant Nielson numbers) and cutting "One Life to Live" down to half an hour. Bad move if you ask me. No offense to loyal "Days'" fans, but the soap isn't really worth the sacrifice (at least not lately). Of course all of this is just pure speculation, but you can bet I'll keep you posted should there be any more developments.

Well my friends, it's been a somber past few weeks as far as "General Hospital" is concerned. The love of my life, Vanessa Marcil, a.k.a — Brenda, has left the show for a gig on "90210" (you call that an upgrade?) Last Thursday, the show ended with an incredibly moving montage of Brenda's finest moments from her debut as Julia's snotty and slightly troubled sister to her final moments with Jax. My friends and I were in tears. Head writer, Bob Guza, definitely deserves a standing ovation for his touching tribute to one of my all time fave characters. It seems like just yesterday when Brenda blew into town like a bat out of hell and wreaked havoc on poor Karen (couldn't stand the sanctimonious witch) and any other woman who dared to come between her and the man of her dreams. Of course, if I had a dime for each man she thought was "the one" for her I'd be a . . . well, you know. And watching Vanessa blossom into the veteran actress she is today has been a joy (a work in progress). You've come a long way honey (just one look at those clips says it all). If anyone can bring "90210" back from the dead it's Vanessa. Throw in a little dash of Luke Perry (yes ladies, he's back) and you've just bought yourself a fan for life, I know where I'll be Wednesday nights; care to join me.

Here's a glimpse of what to expect this week:

"All My Children": Allie grows even more desperate (as if that's possible) in her attempt to hang onto Jake. Dimitri finds himself a hot date who ruffles Edmund's feathers.

"AW": Kirkland (Vicky's son) finds himself an unlikely pawn in Cindy's battle with Grant. Marley, no doubt, continues to lose her mind over this sick obsession with Jake, her sister's husband. And I thought I was dysfunctional.

"As the World Turns": Jack and Holden track down David. Emily's latest scheme threatens to rip Margo and Tom apart.

"B&B": Brook and Stephanie go at it.

"Days": Tragedy strikes the Bayou. Jay threatens Nicole. Lucas almost lets the cat out of the bag.

"GH": Jax is arrested (as if things weren't bad enough already). Nikolas begins to suspect that Laura and Stefan are hiding something from him.

"GL": Dinah and Hart face a terrible tragedy.

"OLTL": Drew's funeral commences. Barbara, the psychotic witch that she is, tries to sabotage Cassie's recovery. Darian tries to cut a deal with Sykes to save her own hide.

"PC": Eve faces danger. The town tries to come to terms with Lucy and Scott's "deaths." Trust me, PC is the soap to watch this week.

"Sunset Beach": Father Antonio, sans shirt, discovers the identity of the woman who's been plaguing her dreams. Gregory, overcome by the Viagra Annie slipped him, ravages his ex, Olivia, while trapped in an elevator. Ben finds Maria in his bed.

"Y&R": Victor and Diane square off yet again. Michael turns up missing.

On a final side note, "Sunset Beach" was cancelled yet

Turn to SOAP CHAT, page7

■ celebrity skin

continued from page 6

rate little girls" and "If the world is so wrong/you can break them all with one song" are both optimistic and pessimistic at the same time. Things go downhill from there with "Hit So Hard." The uninteresting music clash with the disturbing lyrics. Things pick back up with "Malibu," which was co- written by Pumpkin–head, and old friend of Love, Billy Corgan, along with "Celebrity Skin," "Hit So Hard," "Dying" and "Petals." "Malibu" is an infectious song, full of fun melodies and hooks.

Love is obviously "forever in debt to the priceless advice" of Corgan on "Dying," which sounds more like a Smashing Pumpkins song than a Hole song. "Reasons To Be Beautiful," co-written by Charlotte Caffey (formerly of the Go–Go's), "Use Once & Destroy" and "Northern Star" slow the album down with their blandness, and "Heaven Tonight" and "Petals" serve as a weak close to an otherwise promising album. However, the second half of the album is salvaged by "Boys On the Radio" and "Playing Your Song." The former of which sounds more like the Hole of Live Through This than anything else on Celebrity Skin, and the latter of which is fierce, and sounds like nothing Hole has ever done before.

For the most part, Love and lead guitarist Eric Erlandson do not do anything spectacular with their instrumentation. Love and Erlandson keep their guitars loud and fast in the appropriate places. Bassist Melissa Auf der Maur does an adequate job of keeping up with Patty Schemel's furious drumming, and perfectly harmonizes with Love.

Dropping their usual rough edged sound for a polished, poppy sound may upset a lot of Hole fans, but a lot of it sounds very good. Most of the tracks are thoroughly enjoyable. I like it, but I know I shouldn't. Celebrity Skin is one of the guilty pleasures of 1998. B

■ soap chat

continued from page 6

again, because of the Clinton scandal. Generally I keep my nose out of matters like this (soaps are my forte, not politics) but when it interferes with my fave soaps, all bets are off. Enough is enough. This is just the latest example of "legitimate" news sources trying to pass sleazy tabloid journalism off as "real" news (anything in the name of ratings, eh?). It's exploitation plain and simple. Not only am I not interested in how many times and under what conditions Monica performed oral sex on the President, but I'm not sure the rest of the country has a right to know.

The people's thirst for this crap has made us the laughing stock in the eyes of the rest of the world and for the first time in my life, I'm almost embarrassed to be a citizen of this country. If the media feels the need to pump this scandal for all it's worth, go ahead, but do me a favor and don't do it at the expense of my soaps.

Jacob Fanning is a Collegian columnist. For comments or questions about this column, email Jacob at jfanning@student.umass.edu.

New albums offer fun and wit

By David Bauder
Associated Press

Writing from a perspective she knows well, that of a 39-year-old single mom struggling to make ends meet, Amy Rigby offers a voice seldom heard in a music world filled with youthful angst.

Her songs are filled with sharp images, sung in a voice that can be tender, playful and — even trickier — vulnerable, despite a tough facade. She defines the album's title, Middlescence, as the time of life between arrested development and hard-won maturity.

The narrator of "What I Need" is a woman trying to entertain a date after putting cranky kids to bed. "What I need is for you to disappear and still be here when he goes home," she sings plaintively.

"The Summer of My Wasted Youth" is a vivid recollection of a romance in the summer of 1985, when times were simpler and j-o-b was a dirty word. On the winning rocker, "All I Want," Rigby asks for something seemingly simple from a man: "Just want a little hug and kiss from you, not a list of things I didn't do."

These strengths aside, Middlescence is less consistent that her superb 1996 solo debut, "Diary of a Mod Housewife." She risks repeating herself: "Raising the Bar" is an attempt to write a blue-collar anthem that she has done better before. And she misfires when straying from the twangy rock and ballads she does best, like on "Calling Professor Longhair" and the ill-advised cocktail lounge-styled "Laboratory of Love."

The characters Rigby sings about never give up despite obstacles and setbacks, though. Neither should she.

Obscure singer-songwriter Bap Kennedy may become well-known because of the company he keeps. The latest disc by the Belfast native features a stellar cast, including co-producer Steve Earle on guitar, Peter Rowan on mandolin and virtuoso Jerry Douglas on dobro and lap steel. The result is plenty of lusty picking and playing behind Kennedy's rather ordinary Dylanesque singing.

But if the guests get credit for the execution on Domestic Blues, Kennedy deserves credit for the concept — a blend of Irish folk with American country and bluegrass. It's the sound of Belfast filtered through Nashville and Austin.

Recorded in less than a week, Domestic Blues achieves an unvarnished, timeless quality that's charming. Eleven of the 13 songs were written by Kennedy who shows a droll wit and focuses on turbulent relationships such as one that leads him to conclude, "Never let a vampire into your home."

There's only one complaint: The final cut, an unlisted version of the folk standard "Dirty Old Town," comes after seven minutes of silence. The tired gimmick of a hidden track only undermines Kennedy's robust duet with Earle.

Otherwise, Domestic Blues is a fine, fun record.

Jazz and classical to mix at Bowker

COURTESY THE ARTS LINDER

Billy Taylor (right) and Estela Olevsky (left) combine talents for a classical/jazz piano performance at Bowker this Thursday.

By Emily Trask
Collegian Staff

Esteemed pianists Billy Taylor and Estela Olevsky will come together on the Bowker Auditorium stage on Thursday, Sept. 24 in a program entitled "It's All Music." Performing classical and jazz piano music, these two musicians will open the lines of communication between two different musical styles.

Taylor will perform his own compositions, arrangements of classical and Latin-American–inspired works, while Olevsky's performance will include music by J.S. Bach, Chopin, Scriabin, and piano music from Argentina and Brazil. Olevsky will join Taylor in several jazz renditions.

"This is a most unusual concert; jazz and classical artists don't often share and dialogue with one another in front of an audience," says Marilyn Kushick, Director of Public Relations and Development for the University's Department of Music & Dance.

"Billy and Estela did a concert in a similar format two years ago at UMass that was highly successful. Concertgoers have been asking the two artists for another such event and the artists themselves love the format."

"The timing is right for a concert like this," remarked Olevsky. "The musics of the world have come together, people love to hear all music. Today there is less and less of a separate audience for the classics and jazz. Whether people like jazz, classics, symphonic, solo, etc., they like it in one program. And these two idioms in particular belong on the same stage. This is not pops; this is the classical music of America, so it belongs with classical music of Europe. The cross-over has existed for many years. Just listen to Kurt Weill's tangos, Stravinsky's tango and some of Ravel's music. The influence of jazz is strong."

Olevsky, Professor of Music and Dance, has performed throughout South America, the Far East, New Zealand, Europe and the United States. She has appeared as a soloist with the Mozart Orchestra (New York), the Bach Festival Orchestra (Buenos Aires) and the Oxford Pro Musica. She has recorded on the Musical Heritage Society, King Records, Pathe Marconi, Stradivari Classics and Centaur labels.

Taylor — performer, composer, writer and teacher — has been associated with many legendary figures of jazz including Charlie Parker, Miles Davis, John Coltrane, Billie Holiday, Ella Fitzgerald, Ed Thigpen, Earl May, Art Blakey, and Charles Mingus. Artistic Advisor for Jazz to the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, he successfully wed jazz with European classical music in commissions by the national Symphony Orchestra, Parsons Dance Company and Atlanta Symphony. He received his doctorate from UMass, is a Duke Ellington Fellow at Yale, and holds sixteen honorary degrees.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. in Stockbridge Hall, Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $15 for the general public and $10 for students, elders and children under 18. Tickets are available at the Bowker Box Office, 413-545-2511

The Women of Color Leadership Network
(formerly the Women of Color Program) of the Everywoman's Center presents

6th Annual Women of Color Reception

LOOKING BACK
LOOKING FORWARD
HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVES

Thursday,
September 24, 1998
VIP Room, Mullins Center
6 - 9 PM

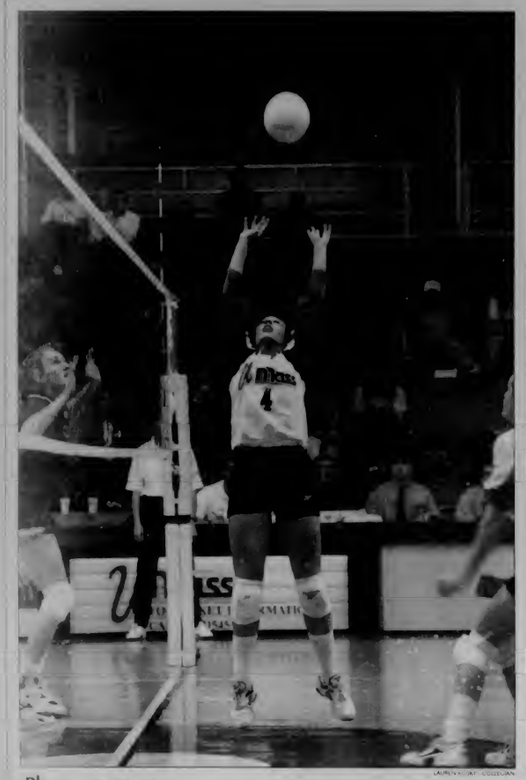
VENDOR & INFORMATION TABLES
REFRESHMENTS SERVED

For further information contact EWC at 545-0883

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB
THE AREA'S MOST COMPLETE CLUB • 256-6446
Free HFC T-Shirt
JOIN NOW FOR OUR 15 WEEK
SEMESTER SPECIAL
($169)
& GET A FREE HFC T-SHIRT
90 Gatehouse Rd. Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center
ON PVTA BUS ROUTE TO ROLLING GREEN
MasterCard VISA

Campus Career Network
University of Massachusetts Amherst
SENIORS
Employment Options & Career Library
Career Network Central Office
(413) 545-2224
A NEW WAY TO ACCESS EMPLOYMENT INFORMATION
WWW-CCN.ACAD.UMASS.EDU
● Create your online RESUME!
● Access hundreds of EMPLOYMENT listings!
● View our expanded CAREER SERVICES!
● There is no charge!
DEADLINES APPROACHING
FOR ON CAMPUS RECRUITING!!!
LOG ON TODAY!

DON'T MISS THIS!
SAVE 50 TO 70% OFF!
BOOKBAGS BRIEFCASES WALLETS TRAVEL BAGS SPORT BAGS HAND BAGS
PLUS MUCH MORE!
CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE 9/21-9/25
UNBELIEVABLE PRICES!
SPONSORED BY UMass BASEBALL



Sponsored by the Newman Center in Cooperation With The Elms College
 REL. 204 - Christian Ethics ***
This course will investigate contemporary ethical thinking from the perspective of historical religeon. Attention will be given to the historical development and contemporary status of practical ethical issues, human sexuality, medical care, human rights and ecological justice. 3 credits (Gen. ED - AT)
* CREDITS TRANSFERABLE TO UMASS *
INSTRUCTOR: Professor Martin Pion, Elms College Faculty
WHEN: Tuesday Evenings 6:30 - 9:20 p.m. Beginning September 15, 1998
WHERE: Newman Center, 472 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA
REGISTER: Main Office at Newman Center
FEE: • $50 for UMass and 5 College Students • Other adults pay regular Elms College Fee • Auditors pay one half of Elms coure Fee • Check payable to Elms College
If Interested, Please Sign Up in Main Office at Newman or Call The Office At (413) 549-0300

THE FINE ARTS CENTER SERIES
TICKETS ONLY $5 $7 $9 FOR FIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS
Solid Mahogany
THE FINE ARTS CENTER AND JAZZ A LA MODE PRESENT
KEVIN MAHOGANY
Take equal parts of Joe Williams, Mel Grayson, and Teddy Pendergrass and filter them through a brilliant vocal style that belongs to no one else, and the result is solid Mahogany. Kevin and his trio present jazz, r & b, classic soul and a hint of gospel for one of the freshest nights of live music this side of Kansas City. "There is little he cannot do . . ." THE NEW YORKER
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1998
8PM, BOWKER AUDITORIUM
The Full Nelson
AN EVENING WITH
Willie Nelson
The living legend comes to the Concert Hall with his full band, The Family, for one unforgettable night of unmistakable Willie. Good seats still available! Call today.
SUNDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1998
7PM, CONCERT HALL
PRESENTED WITH THE GENEROUS SUPPORT OF COCA COLA, FLEET BANK, AND THE RIVER 93.3FM
Street Smart Dance
Hubbard Street DANCE CHICAGO
One of the most celebrated dance companies in America comes to the Valley with their distinctive brand of physical fireworks. Smart, sophisticated, and totally captivating! "Exceptional . . . bold . . . shines with originality." LE FIGARO
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14
8PM, CONCERT HALL
PRESENTED WITH THE GENEROUS SUPPORT OF WRNX 100.9FM
WE'RE RAISING THE ROOF!
While our new lobby is under construction, you may enter the Concert Hall via alternate entrances. On-site signs and guides will show you the way.
The Fine Arts Center, University of Massachusetts Amherst
Call 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS for tickets

TRAVEL SMART!
BEST PRICES FROM BOSTON TO EUROPE, WITHIN THE U.S., AND DESTINATIONS AROUND THE WORLD
CALL 800-272-9676
E-MAIL sales@prismtours.com
OR VISIT US AT www.prismtours.com
Eurailpasses and Student ID cards available.
PRISM TRAVEL
545 Fifth Avenue
New York, NY 10017

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE DISCOUNT CARD WITH THIS COUPON
413-253-5592

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

LAUREN NOLAN / COLLEGIAN

Places everyone

Massachusetts volleyball team sophomore Jennifer Drennan will hope to assist the Minutewomen in forward today.

Ripken's endurance run cemented as streak ends

BALTIMORE (AP) — For decades, the baseball number associated with longevity, perseverance and resilience was 2,130.

That's how many consecutive games Lou Gehrig played for the New York Yankees, a record that stood for 56 years until Cal Ripken bettered the mark on Sept. 6, 1995.

Now that Ripken has finally ended his own astonishing streak, there's a new number that sets the standard for durability: 2,632. Cal Ripken closed his record run Sunday night, removing himself from the starting lineup in the Baltimore Orioles' final home game of the season against the Yankees.

"The streak was born out of a desire to play and a lot of managers wanting to put me in the lineup," Ripken said. "It's your job to come to the ballpark and be available if the manager wants to put you in there you play. I feel very proud, not necessarily with the numbers the streak is, but very proud that my teammates and my manager could count on me."

To Ripken, showing up at the ballpark and playing every day is what a baseball player is supposed to do.

Now that he's finally taken a day off, the next question is: Can anyone ever come close to duplicating his record run?

"You wouldn't think so," said the Yankees' Joe Girardi. "That's a lot of years to go so long without being injured. I don't see that record ever being broken."

Ripken isn't so sure.

"If I did it someone else can do it. I don't see myself as superhuman," he said after watching an Orioles' game from the dugout for the first time since May 29, 1982.

To be sure, it takes many special circumstances to play every game for more than 16 seasons. Avoiding injuries is only a part of it.

"It's a special set of circumstances," Ripken said. "You have to be worthy of being in the lineup. You have to have a determination and desire to be in there. You have to have a love of the game. You have to be persistent. You have to be stubborn. Everything has to go your way."

There's no telling how long Ripken could have gone. Gehrig's streak ended when he could no longer cope with a rare muscular disorder that later became known as Lou Gehrig's disease.

Ripken was completely healthy. He just got tired of the controversy surrounding the streak — more than one columnist called him selfish — and decided that spring training in 1999 might be more fun if he didn't have to talk about playing another full season.

So, without tipping any of his teammates except Brady Anderson, his best friend on the Orioles, Ripken walked into manager Ray Miller's office a half-hour before the game and asked to have his name removed from the starting lineup.

"I was shocked," teammate Roberto Alomar said. "I didn't expect the record to end that way. But there was a lot of criticism of him and I think that's why he ended it. That's sad, because people don't know his work ethic."

Anderson knew well in advance that Ripken would be watching Sunday's game instead of playing in it. He tried to talk Ripken out of it, but quickly realized his effort would be futile.

"It's so much easier for me to want to keep the streak alive because I'm not the one who has to do it," Anderson said. "Playing every game in one season is tough enough."

For Ripken, sitting out that one game proved to be the most difficult thing he had done since breaking into the league in 1981. For one thing, he had no idea what to do to keep himself occupied. Ripken fidgeted on the bench before getting a call from reliever Alan Mills.

"He goes, 'What are you doing?' And I said, 'I'm going to sit here and watch a ball game,'" Ripken said. "I said, 'You want me to come out there and visit with you?'"

Ripken did just that. He talked with the fans and posed for pictures between innings, but afterward he made it clear that most of his days next season will be spent playing third base — from the first inning through the ninth.

"It's not going to change who I am. It's not going to change the way I approach the game of baseball," he said. "I still consider myself an everyday player. I plan on coming out every single day and proving that on a daily basis."

Just "another day" in penant race

CHICAGO (AP) — Sammy Sosa's locker overflows. There are hats, boxes of congratulatory letters, a replica of a Chicago expressway billboard that features him swinging, even a cereal box with Roberto Clemente on the front.

A bodyguard follows him everywhere, a public relations man guides him from interview to photo session to ball signing. People shout his name with every step he takes. Flashbulbs snap every time he swings.

Sosa is still smiling through all the distractions, even if they are hurting his concentration.

Sosa is in an 0-for-17 slump. Not only have his homers dried up since he hit No. 65 in a grand slam last Wednesday in San Diego, he can't get any hits, either, and he's struck out six times during the skid.

The Cubs, meanwhile, have fallen one game behind the Mets for the NL wild-card berth. At a time when the Cubs need Sosa the most, he hopes to regroup against his favorite pitching staff — the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Cubs play two games in Milwaukee before finishing with three in Houston. Sosa has hit 10 of his homers against the Brewers this season, his most against any team.

Earlier this month, he connected for Nos. 59-62 against Milwaukee during a three-game series.

"I will go out there to Milwaukee and Houston and forget about everything here and try to play a lot better. I think we will have our chances," Sosa says.

After winning three of four games in San Diego, the Cubs came home and were swept in three games by the Cincinnati Reds. The poor play spoiled a weekend of celebration for Sosa's season, capped by a Sunday ceremony featuring his family and dignitaries from major league baseball and his native Dominican Republic.

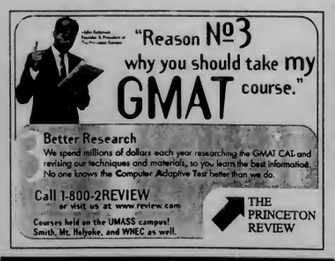
Sosa admitted after going 0-for-5 with two strikeouts Sunday that he might have been trying to impress.

"I am a human being," he said. "I have to take what happened like a man."

Sosa enters today's game at County Stadium two homers behind McGwire, who hit his 65th against the Brewers on Sunday.

"I am going to go over there and relax and make something happen," Sosa said.

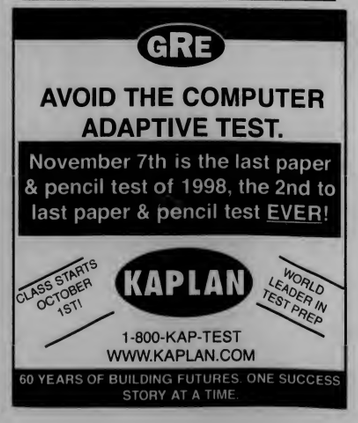
Chicago manager Jim Riggleman maintains the Cubs are not struggling because of the Sosa hype. But he acknowledges the hoopla is wearing on his best player.



"One person has gotten so much of this and handled it so well and at some point it has to be a distraction for Sammy," Riggleman said.

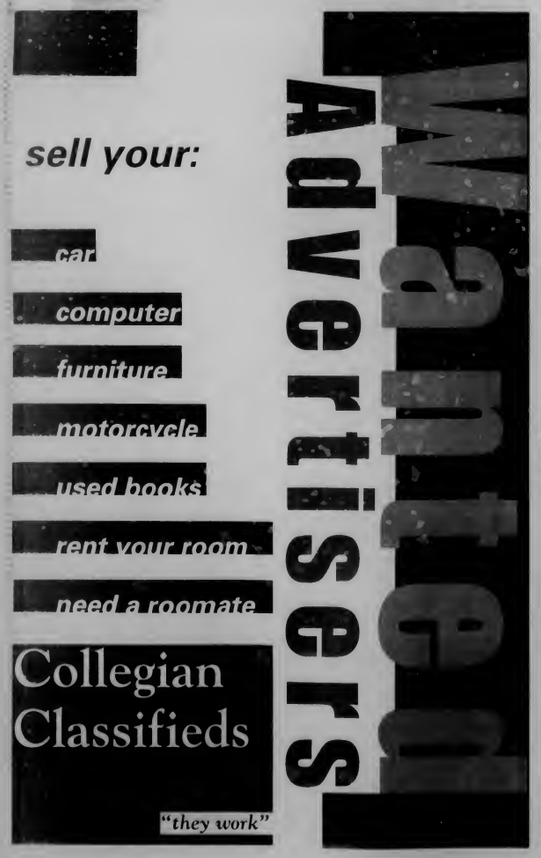
"I feel for him. I know it would be tough for anybody to handle. He's been outstanding. But as a team I don't think it a distraction. As I said to the team, we need to take all this attention and turn it into a positive."

Sosa's four-game skid is certainly not the reason the Cubs played so badly in their final regular-season homestand.



Chicago's pitching has been poor, especially middle and setup relief, and getting to closer Rod Beck, who is one save from 50, has been a chore. And the loss the of rookie Kerry Wood, out with a sprained elbow ligament, has hurt the starting staff.

"We just have to go out like the last three days didn't happen," Sosa said. "We have to play much better. To me it will be another day."



■ men's cross country

continued from page 12

him among the top finishers.

"Last week he was over-pumped and came out too strong, leading in the first half," O'Brien said. "It was extremely hot and he lost his momentum for the rest of the race. He's changed his game plan since then, and it has certainly paid off."

This win was quite fulfilling for O'Brien, who reflected upon defeats from last year. The depth of this team is certainly to its advantage and both the upperclassmen and freshmen are working hard to replace former top runner and recent graduate Ryan Carerra.

Next up for the UMass harriers will be the first large meet of the season when they travel to New York City for the Meet of Champions this Saturday.

■ women's cross country

continued from page 12

19:03, finishing in tenth place.

Other placing Minutewomen were freshman Kristen Cisowski with a time of 19:07 in eleventh place and senior Tracy Meagher, finishing twelfth (19:08).

It was the Terriers that took the lead early, however, pushing the pace controlled by prodigy Larissa Kleinmann (17:36).

Spaced behind her were teammates Ann Kovalsky (18:08) and Lauren Matthews (18:31).

Vermont was paced xby Jessica Pinette who finished fourth at 18:44.

The Minutewomen next run in the Big Apple when they travel to the Meet of Champions this Saturday. The meet will be held at Van Cortlandt Park, Bronx, N.Y.

■ Joyner

continued from page 12

electrical technician and mother was a teacher.

She graduated from Jordan High School in Los Angeles in 1978, attended Cal State Los Angeles for two years, then graduated from UCLA in 1983 with a degree in psychology.

She married Al Joyner on Oct. 10, 1987.

For many years, she was coached by Bob Kersee, husband of Jackie Joyner-Kersee, but Al acted as her coach after the 1988 trials. Funeral arrangements were not immediately announced.

Maturity may differ by position

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

Ryan Leaf's line in Kansas City was almost impossible to believe: 15 passes, one completion, four yards.

In fact, he had more turnovers (five) than yards.

Yes, on-the-job training for NFL quarterbacks can be embarrassing. But in a league where there aren't enough capable quarterbacks, what other way to teach a rookie?

"I'm going to play 'til I'm 50," said 36-year-old Bubby Brister, who relieved John Elway on Sunday and helped Denver to a 34-17 win in Oakland. "There are certainly enough jobs for experienced, old guys."

The problems for the young guys were evident Sunday for three rookies — Leaf, Peyton Manning of the Colts and Charlie Batch of the Lions. Leaf and Manning were making their third NFL starts and Batch his first.

But they were equally evident for some second-year starters — Kordell Stewart of the Steelers, Bobby Hoying of the Eagles and Jake Plummer of the Cardinals.

The Cardinals and Eagles struggled through three quarters at 0-0. That was the first scoreless three quarters in the NFL since 1987 in a strike-replacement contest between the Giants and Bills that can hardly be considered major league football.

All this demonstrates how hard it is for quarterbacks to step right in.

The only instant success in the past two decades is Dan Marino, who became Miami's starter late in his rookie season of 1983 and in his second season set a passel of records, including 48 TD passes. But he had the benefit of joining a team that had been to the Super Bowl the previous season, unusual for a first-round quarterback. But John Elway had problems, so did Terry Bradshaw, who at various times lost his job to Terry Hanratty and Joe Gilliam. And Brett Favre was so little thought of by Atlanta, which drafted him in the second round in 1991 that he was traded to Green Bay after the season. Even Roger Staubach, who came out of the Navy in his late 20s, began his career as a backup to Craig Morton.

Some stats:

— Of the 30 first-string quarterbacks in the NFL, six are in their first year as a starter, five more are in their second and two more in their third. Thirteen essentially are undergoing on-the-job training.

— Of the rest, five have more than 10 seasons in the league — Marino, 37; Elway, 38; Warren Moon, 41; Steve Young, 36; and Randall Cunningham 34.

— Of the remaining dozen, only Drew Bledsoe, Mark Brunell, Jeff George, Jim Harbaugh, Troy Aikman, Brad Johnson, Elvis Grbac and Favre are first-rate starters in their prime. And with Harbaugh, Johnson and Aikman hurt, the talent pool is reduced even more. The backups?

Brister, 44-year-old Steve DeBerg and a few decent (or at least experienced) quarterbacks — Cunningham, filling in for Johnson; Rich Gannon, Grbac's backup; the Eagles' Rodney Peete; the 49ers' Ty Detmer; he Ravens' Eric Zeier; the Oilers' 40-year-old Dave Krieg; the Jets' Vinny Testaverde; Doug Flutie, the Canadian refugee in Buffalo; and maybe Kent Graham of the Giants, one of the most sought-after free-agent quarterbacks this year, even though he was a backup.

Then there are busted starters — Dave Brown of Arizona, Scott Mitchell of Detroit, Gus Frerotte of Washington.

But all the backups are backups for a reason. Peete, for example, relieved Hoying on Sunday night and moved the Eagles. But he also fumbled to set up the game's first touchdown.

Why so few quarterbacks?

1. Salary cap.

"You can't afford to keep a high-priced backup," said Colts president Bill Polian, who traded Harbaugh to the Colts before he even drafted Manning. So letting Manning sit behind a veteran isn't an option. His backups are Kelly Holcomb and Doug Nussmeier.

2. Few pro-style quarterbacks in college.

The best prospects are Tim Couch of Kentucky, Damon Huard of Washington and Daunte Culpepper of Central Florida, with Syracuse's Donovan McNabb a prospect who will take time to learn NFL ways. Down the road: two high-school seniors with good genes — Chris Simms, son of Phil, in New Jersey, and yet another Manning, Eli, in Louisiana.

But Rick Mirer, David Klingler, Andre Ware, Dave Brown and other first-round failures demonstrate that some prospects don't necessarily deliver. Some prospects simply end up good backups.

3. Expansion.

When Cleveland rejoins the league next year, there will be 31 teams. With injuries so prevalent, that means 62 respectable quarterbacks will be needed.

They don't exist.

So Leaf, Manning, Batch (and Brian Griese with Elway's retirement) will get on-the-job training. So will Couch and Culpepper and Chris Simms and Eli Manning.

—

ON THE OTHER HAND. You can normally tell early about running backs.

Two first-rounders demonstrated their talents Sunday — New England's Robert Edwards, who gained 92 yards in 12 carries; and Jacksonville's Fred Taylor, who gained 128 yards in 23 carries. Taylor was the second running back taken in the draft and Edwards, who was injury-prone at Georgia, was the third. The first, Curtis Enis of Chicago, is also off to a good start despite holding out until the final week of preseason.

That bucks a trend.

The best running backs in recent years have been drafted later — Denver's Terrell Davis in the sixth round and Curtis Martin in the third in 1995, the same year the Giants took Tyrone Wheatley and the Bears chose Rashaan Salaam in the first.

BUCKING THE ODDS: Tampa Bay opened its new stadium on Sunday and began playing like the Bucs who went 13 straight seasons with 10 or more losses. At halftime, they were down 15-0 to the Bears and seemed on the verge of an 0-3 start after a 10-6 season that engendered Super Bowl hopes.

Then they came out and scored 27 second-half points to win going away.

"It was a pretty big fire, wasn't it?" asked Warren Sapp, one of the young team leaders. "It was out of character the way we played for 2 1/2 weeks. We went in at halftime, looked each other in the eyes and said 'This is not us.'"

But was it inspiration or the running game?

Warrick Dunn, who had run 24 times for 85 yards in the first two games, carried 10 times and gained 82 yards, one short of his total for the first two games. Mike Alstott, who had just 22 yards in 13 carries, was 20-for-103 as the Bucs ended up with 220 yards on the ground.

COLLEGIAN FILE

Kick it good!

The UMass soccer team was edged out by UNLV Sunday, 2-1, but will look to rebound in a home date with Rhode Island Saturday.

IN SHAPE NUTRITION
NUTRITION SUPPLEMENT DISCOUNTER
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA
GET IN SHAPE!
"WE CARRY THE BEST NUTRITION PRODUCTS AT DISCOUNTED PRICES"
CHOOSE FROM MET-RX, EAS, TWINLAB, SPORT PHARMA AND MUCH MORE...
WALKING DISTANCE - 549-7434

Newman Center
Jubilee 2000 Lecture Series
Dr. Judith Baskin, Prof. of Judaic Studies SUNY Albany
Thursday September 24, 1998, 8:00PM
Quigley Room, Newman Center
All Are Welcome - No Admission Charge

Shear Bliss
HOLISTIC DAY SPA FOR MEN AND WOMEN
• CUT AND GLOSS SPECIAL
• FREE MAKEOVER
(A $25 VALUE!)
413-253-2322

amc
Hampshire 6 • 584-7550
Hampshire Mall
Mt Forms 4 • 584-9153
Mt. Forms Mall
EVER AFTER: A CINDERELLA STORY (PG-13) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:10
SLUMS OF BEVERLY HILLS (R) Today @ 8:30
ONE TRUE THING (R) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
BLADE (R) Today (5:40 @ $2.50) 8:20
THE PARENT TRAP (PG) Today (5:20 @ $2.50)
RUSH HOUR (PG-13) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
SAVING PRIVATE RYAN (R) Today (5:00 @ $2.50) 8:20
54 (R) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
ROUNDERS (R) Today (5:20 @ $2.50) 8:10
SIMON BIRCH (PG) Today (5:40 @ $2.50) 8:20
THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT MARY (R) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:10

NOT HAPPY WITH OUR DECISION TO ELIMINATE THE CROSSWORD PUZZLE FROM THE PAPER? TRY OUR NEW E-MAIL ADDRESS OUT AND VOICE YOUR OPINION. *
letters@oitunix.oit.umass.edu
letters
letters letters
letters
letters@oitunix.oit.umass.edu
* JUST KIDDING

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 VW Jetta Gold, 5 [illegible] Good condition $1700 548-9228

1987 Cutlass Supreme [illegible] 256-1014

1985 VW Gulf 4 door, sun [illegible] $800 with [illegible] Tim

Pontiac Sunbird Runs [illegible] $900 or B/O Call [illegible]

CARS $100-$500 [illegible] surrounds [illegible] Jeeps, & [illegible] Utilities [illegible] SELL! 1-800-319-4730 x4554

87 Olds Cutlass Ciera [illegible] reliable $900 549-5285

1990 Pontiac Lemans LE [illegible] SD, PS, bulk [illegible] $1800

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS [illegible] fully loaded [illegible] Excellent con [illegible] 253-5503

1989 Subaru Wagon 4WD Highway [illegible] $1400

WANTED: Toyotas, [illegible] Sentras [illegible] Cash paid [illegible] 1-800-649-4795

AUTO PARTS

Headlight Covers and [illegible] for 1995-98 [illegible] Asking $60 for [illegible] at 549-2031

CHILDCARE

Experienced babysit [illegible] ter [illegible] person [illegible] necessary for [illegible] 4:30 to [illegible] Work Study only. [illegible] Please apply at [illegible] Services, Rm [illegible] Union or call [illegible] 1309

COMPUTERS

486 Computer [illegible] Color Super [illegible] Woodwood [illegible] $700 [illegible] CA $50 [illegible] 1-8-57

COMPUTERS

Pentium 133 32M8, 1.2GB, 28.8 Modem, Scanner, 15" monitor $550. Alexa 586-4989.

EMPLOYMENT

Spring Break '99- Sell Trips, Earn Cash & Go Free!!! STS is now hiring campus reps. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico & Florida. Call 800-648-4849 or apply online at www.ststravel.com

AMHERST COLLEGE The Dining Services has part-time openings for dishwashers. Schedules available for Saturday and Sunday lunch (11:00am - 2:30pm) and Thursday through Sunday dinner (4:30pm-8:30pm). Rate: $5.75 per hour plus pre-work meal included. Interested applicants should apply at:
Office of Human Resources
201 Converse Hall
Amherst College
Amherst, MA 01002-5000
Amherst College is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and encourages women, minorities and disabled persons to apply.

Seeking outgoing campus spokespeople to represent companies on campus. 10-15 hrs/wk. Flexible hours. $8-$12 per hour. Customer service experience helpful but not required. Contact Dan Wolman at CIS. (800)922-5579.

Dunkin Donuts
Now Hiring
Apply In Person
Morning Shifts
Rt. 9, Hadley

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2" [illegible] FREE TRIPS ON ON[illegible]'S SALES and Earn $$$$ Jamaica Cancun Bahamas Florida Padre Lowest prices! Free Meal Parties & Drinks Limited Offer 1.800.426.7710! www.sunsplash tours.com

EMPLOYMENT

Best Part-Time Job In The Valley You don't have to wash dishes or flip burgers for the extra money you need. Become a Clean Water Action organizer and earn $7.30-$9.00/hr fighting air and water pollution. Paid training, flexible schedule, evening and weekend hours. 584-9830.

Housecleaning/Yardwork Good pay, flexible hours. 548-9635

EARN CASH
Flexible Hours
Now hiring at Sbarro's Hampshire Mall

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ For Hire: DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery 253-9742

FOR SALE

Black, brand new 2.1/2 ft fridge with freezer, included $50 or B/O. Will deliver. Call Nikole 549-4294

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade 253-5312

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate Creatine Surge DHEA Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT WORK www.fitnessworkshop.com

INSTRUCTION

Kickboxing Lessons Develop fighting skills while getting into great shape. Call Joe 546-8979

INSTRUCTION

KICKBOXING LESSONS Learn to kickbox in a fun, friendly environment. First lesson free! Call 253-7757.

Boxing lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. 413-732-8817.

LOST & FOUND

Found: TI Programmable Calculator Call 545-1769.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher
Offering Fall Lessons
Beginner to Advanced
Can Teach All Styles
Call Stephen Page at 256-2612

Piano Lessons
Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

Great room in spacious, exciting home. $283/month- all inclusive. Millers Falls. Call 413-659-0190.

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 roommates needed for a 4 bedroom apartment on Main St. $300 per month. Utilities included. Available 9/11. 256-1928.

Want to get away from campus? Large room in Northampton, on bus line. Available 10/1. Call 586-4664. Ask for Jon or Phil.

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center 545-1995.

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906.

STEREO & CD EQUIP

HEY YOU...!
2 Way Carpeted DJ Speakers
500 RMS 18" Woofers with 15" Passive
Fused HI & Lows (1/4" Jacks)
$650/Pr
Call Jimmy
413-774-5648

TRAVEL

SPRING BREAK 99!
Cancun * Nassau * Jamaica * Mazatlan * Acapulco * Bahamas
Cruise * Florida * South Padre
Travel Free and make lots of Cash!
Top reps are offered full-time staff jobs
Lowest price Guaranteed
Call now for details!
www.classtravel.com
800-838-6411
930 Comm Ave South
On BU's West Campus

TUTORING SERVICE

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

Wondering how to place a Classified?

Call us at 545-3500 or Visit us in The Campus Center Basement

PRICES:
Students- 20¢ /word/ day
NonStudents- 40¢ /word/ day

Want to sell your: car, computer, furniture, motorcycle, used books, rent your room, need a roomate

Collegian Classifieds "they work"

Want to Advertise?

Five College Community Calendar

TUESDAY, SEPT. 22

[illegible] Meeting — The Undergrad [illegible] Association will meet at 7 p.m. in [illegible] Union. [illegible] Association of Undergraduate Students, and this meeting is open to all undergraduate students. [illegible] 545-0634 for more information.

Meeting — The UMass Model United Nations will meet at 7 p.m. in [illegible] Campus Center. [illegible] Association of Undergraduate Students, and this meeting is open to all undergraduate students. [illegible] 545-0634 for more information.

Meeting — The Amherst Area Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgender Community Center will meet at 7 p.m. in [illegible] Center at 7 p.m.

Meeting — The Index Yearbook committee will be meeting in the Student Union room 364 at 6:30 p.m. for all interested staff of the 1999 UMass yearbook. For more information, call 546-6667.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 23

Meeting — The [illegible] Club will meet at 7 p.m. in [illegible] Campus Center. [illegible] Association of Undergraduate Students, and this meeting is open to all undergraduate students. [illegible] 545-0634 for more information.

Meeting — The Psychology Undergraduate Association will meet at 7 p.m. in [illegible] Campus Center. [illegible] Association of Undergraduate Students, and this meeting is open to all undergraduate students. [illegible] 545-0634 for more information.

Meeting — The Amherst Area Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgender Community Center will meet at 7 p.m. in [illegible] Center at 7 p.m.

Meeting — The Index Yearbook committee will be meeting in the Student Union room 364 at 6:30 p.m. for all interested staff of the 1999 UMass yearbook. For more information, call 546-6667.

Meeting — The Spectrum Literary Magazine will be holding a meeting for interested writers in their office on the top floor of the Student Union at 7 p.m. For more information, call Yvonne at 546-6667.

Meeting — There is an informational meeting of the UMass Queen Ian Club in the Cape Cod Lounge at 4 p.m. For more information, call Sabrina at 665-0947.

Community — There is an open mic night at the Hillel House for poets, musicians and others interested at 7 p.m.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 24

Community — Nomination papers for the Student Government Association elections are available in room 420 in the Student Union. Papers need to be turned in by 5 p.m. on September 22, and elections are September 29.

Community — Prevent your bicycle from being stolen by registering it from September 21-25 at the Student Union circle from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

NOTICES

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through October 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Internship — Internships are now available for the Peace Development Fund (PDF). For applications and additional information, call 256-8306 (ext. 21 or 227).

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for its front/line and Resource/Referral staffs. Call 545-0883 for more information.

Job — The Student Government Association is currently accepting applications for the position of Web-Master for the semester. Please submit your resume to Avi Khanna in 420 student union. Call 545-0342 for more details.

CALCULATORS FOR LESS!
FOR YOUR TOUGHEST NUMBER-CRUNCHING CLASSES. THAN YOU'D PAY ELSEWHERE.

Computers & E.T.C. ELECTRONIC TECHNOLOGY CENTER
CONVENIENTLY LOCATED IN University Store
M-F 9 TO 5
SAT, 11 TO 4
413-545-2619

TUESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 22, 1998

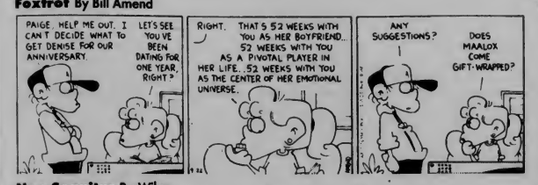
C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
12	Wishbone	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Nova (In Stereo)		Frontline "The Farmer's Wife" (In Stereo) (Part 2 of 3)				How to Irritate People
3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	JAG "Gypsy Eyes"		★★★ "Primal Fear" (1996, Suspense) Richard Gere, Laura Linney (In Stereo)				News
4	News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	JAG "Gypsy Eyes"		★★★ "Primal Fear" (1996, Suspense) Richard Gere, Laura Linney (In Stereo)				News
5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Home Imp.	Roughleys	Spin City	Sports Night	Sex With Cindy Crawford		News	Nightline
6	Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny	Friends	Buffy the Vampire Slayer		Hyperion Bay "Pilot" (In Stereo)		News		Friends	Nanny
7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Mad Abt. You	Encore	Just Shoot Me	Working	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
11	Simpsons	Friends	Seinfeld	Fraser	King of the Hill	Costello	Guinness World Records		News		Friends	Mad Abt. You
22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Mad Abt. You	Encore	Just Shoot Me	Working	Dateline (In Stereo)		News	Tonight Show
6	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Nova (In Stereo)		Frontline "The Farmer's Wife" (In Stereo) (Part 2 of 3)				Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
20	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Fraser	Home Imp.	Roughleys	Spin City	Sports Night	Sex With Cindy Crawford		News	Nightline
	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Seinfeld	Fraser	Moesha (In Stereo)	Clueless	Moesha (In Stereo)	Clueless	News	Mad Abt. You	Fraser	Cheers
	Family Matters	Family Matters	Major League Baseball	Atlanta Braves vs Florida Marlins (Live)					Cold War: Making History		"Escape From Alcatraz" (1979)
	Northern Exposure		Law & Order	Menace	Biography: Jeffrey Dahmer		Investigative Reports		"Inspector Morse: Absolute"		Law & Order "Corpus Delicti"
23	Worldview	Moneyline News hour		Crossfire	World Today		Larry King Live		World Today		Sports	Moneyline
39	Comic Cabana	Make-Laugh	Daily Show	Stein's Money	"The Odds Must Be Crazy" (1981) Comedy. Marius Weyers.				Viva Variety	Pulp-VI	Daily Show	Stein's Money
27	Wings		Gimme Shelter		Wild Discovery: Golden River		New Detectives: Case Studies		Egypt Uncovered		Justice Files "All in the Family"
	Up Close	Sportscenter		Up Close	Billiards		Billiards		Baseball Tonight		Sportscenter
	Weddings of a Lifetime XII		Party of Five		Chicago Hope (In Stereo)		Any Day Now "Pilot" (In Stereo)		Magpie	Oh Baby	New Attitudes	Breaking
	Jams Countdown		Fanatic		Twisted Toons	Eye Spy Video	Say What?		Total Request Live (In Stereo)		Real World	Biorhythm	Fanatic	Loveline
	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug		Rugrats	Thornberrys	Cousin		Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	I Love Lucy	Bewitched
	Quantum Leap		Sightings		Star Trek	The Galileo Seven			Seaquest 2032 (In Stereo)		VR.5 "Escape" (In Stereo)		Sightings	Star Trek
28	Renovation		Home Again		Home Again	Trauma: Life in the ER			Earth Story "Evolution"		Earth Story "Beyond Blue"		Trauma: Life in the ER
	Babylon 5		ER "Luck of the Draw"		"Muhammad Ali-Story"				Boxing: Eduardo Morales vs. "Sugar" Shane Mosley				"Muhammad Ali-Story"
	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess		Walker, Texas Ranger "Lonely		★★★ "Sea of Love" (1989, Drama) Al Pacino, Ellen Barkin. (In Stereo)					Undercover
	(5:45) ★★★ "A League of Their Own" (1992, Comedy) Geena Davis. PG				★★½ "The Devil's Advocate" (1997, Horror) Keanu Reeves. (In Stereo)						Perversions	Real Sex 21 (R) (In Stereo)
	(4:45) "Father"	★★ "Julian Po" (1997) Christian Slater. PG-13			★★½ "Carried Away" (1996, Drama) Dennis Hopper. R						★½ "Baby Face Nelson" (1996, Suspense) R	Emmanuelle
	★★★ "The Chris Direction" (1978, Comedy) Peter Falk. PG				★★ "Extremities" (1997) Mark Harmon. R		★ "Poison Ivy: The New Seduction" (1997) R				★★ "Julian Po" (1997) PG-13

2	HSCN Bulletin Board	19	UVC-TV19
3	CBS/3 Hartford	20	ABC/40 Springfield
4	CBS/4 Boston	22	NBC/22 Springfield
5	ABC/5 Boston	23	CNN
6	PBS/57 Springfield	24	CNN SI
7	HSCN Movie Ch.	25	Headline News
8	UPN/20 Hartford	26	UCTV
9	Weather Channel	27	TBS
10	NBC/30 New Britain	28	BET
11	Fox/61 Hartford	29	TV Land
12	PBS/24 Hartford	30	Univision
13	WOCH & HSCN	31	Comedy Central
14	International	32	Cartoon
15	UMass Academic TV	33	Much Music
17	HSCN Programming

Cathy By Cathy Guisewite

Robotman By Jim Meddick



Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Liberty Meadows By Frank Cho

Fiendish Folios By Brian D. Moses

Non-Cents By John Zaccone Jr.

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You're facing quite a puzzle at this time. Don't rush yourself, and be willing to put the pieces in place one at a time. Get the big picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — This is a good day to enjoy some private fun — but be sure you're not enjoying yourself at someone else's expense.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Your day will be filled with tricky transitions, but only because you're not feeling quite up to par.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — External dangers are few today, but you can stand in your own way if you're not careful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You're likely to come up with a far more interesting — and successful — way of doing something routine today. Share what you know.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — There's no room for negative emotions today; you must strive for harmony when working with others. Be willing to compromise.

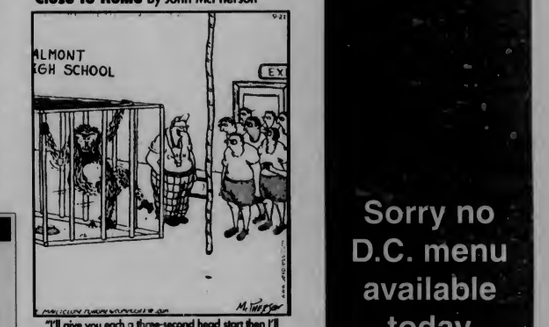
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You're sure to get a great deal of unsolicited advice before the day is out. One suggestion is likely to stand out toward day's end.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may want to hide yourself away and avoid any kind of social contact for a while today — in order to realign your thoughts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You and a teammate may have to separate today in order to make progress. Trust is a key ingredient at this time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Do not be tempted by a seemingly-golden opportunity. Beneath the surface are many hazards.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You're likely to have too many decisions to make before the day is out. Be willing to rely on instinct — and timing.



LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — To give yourself every chance to succeed at a new endeavor today, learn all you can about how things were done in the past.

Quote of the Day

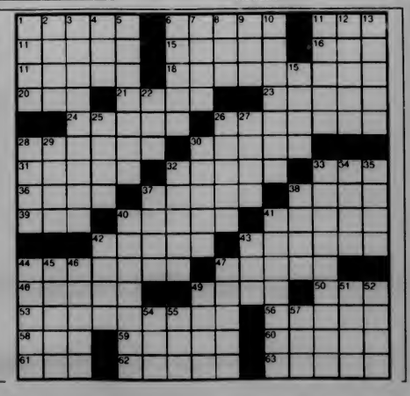
"So, what did Clinton do with that cigar??"

Overheard

Close to Home By John McPherson

"I'll give you each a three-second head start then I'll send Choonga up after you. If he catches up to you before you reach the top, you owe me 20 laps around the track."

Sorry no D.C. menu available today



ACROSS
1 Tomato jelly
6 Theme
11 Type of league
14 City on the Nile
15 Swiftly
16 Antique auto
17 Goodie for Fido
18 Clerk's concern
20 Knight's title
21 Like basketball players
23 Washer cycle
24 Orchard
26 Fortunate
28 Lead ore
30 Emulated John Grisham
31 Egg shapes
32 Entices
33 Guernsey, e.g.
36 Optimistic
37 Long stories
38 Gymnast Korbut
39 Navy officer: abbr.
40 Buffalo
41 Get some knowledge
42 Wheat or rye
43 Woke up
44 Uses coupons
47 Hairdos
48 Greek market
49 Bird treat
50 Inked
53 Raised a false alarm
56 Clean off
58 Long fish
59 Burglar
60 Foes
61 Pig's abode
62 Contains
63 Talk

DOWN
1 Parts of a play
2 Hindu woman's attire
3 Full-length mirror
4 Gershwin brother
5 Popular fabrics
6 — -leaf
7 Indescent gem
8 Spigot
9 Kind of cube
10 Some house pets
11 Golf clubs
12 Stanza
13 Hitched
19 Smart
22 Actress Gardner
25 Trust
26 Skater Boitano
27 House sites
28 Al or Tipper
29 Cosmetics

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

ELOPE ADAM SPUR
LEMON GILA PERU
SANER ANON RAGE
ASIMOV SHIVERED
LEE AFIELD
BOBSLED OAS
LOOKS DRILL EBB
ONLY FIEND OPIE
BAT GREEN MEETS
EVEREST
ACROSS REX
PIRANHAS TIARAS
EMIT ELKE CLAMP
SEMI STIR ALIBI
ODES TYPE NYLON company

30 Cart
32 Foundation
33 School friend
34 Giant in fairy tales
35 Magician's stick
37 Thailand, formerly
38 Egg, in France
40 Width
41 Dawdles
42 Actor
43 Caviar, actually
44 Political campaigns
45 Heron
46 Lace mat
47 Shirt parts
49 Snow coaster
51 On the briny
52 Student's seat
54 Owl's question
55 Grease
57 Knock

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Erin Murphy
Photo Technician	Danielle Gilardi
Copy Editor	Laura Forster
Production Supervisor	Angie Annese
Production Staff	Keren Charles

UM tennis fares well over weekend

Minutewomen to meet Amherst College today

By James Murphy and Jenn Gaylord
Collegian Correspondents

When asked what her team's goals for the season are, Massachusetts women's tennis coach Judy Dixon enthusiastically replied, "to obtain a national ranking."

Although UMass has never been nationally ranked, in their last three seasons the team has improved dramatically in the Atlantic-10 Conference standings.

It has finished seventh, fourth and second the last three years, with coach Dixon being named the Atlantic-10 coach of the year last season.

One could even say that this is a team on the rise.

Since Coach Dixon arrived here seven seasons ago, she has compiled a 61-35 record with a .635 winning percentage.

The Minutewomen will hope to rise to the occasion this afternoon, when they face a well-rounded Amherst College squad.

"We're still in the middle of the pack in terms of the national scene, and this year we want to get to the top," Dixon said.

This might be the best time to do so, because according to Dixon this is the best team UMass has ever had. With the returning players and the incoming freshmen, Dixon believes that the team has a great chance to make a name for themselves nationally.

"We'll play anybody, anytime," Dixon said. "There isn't a school on the East Coast with a tougher schedule."

From the looks of their schedule, (10 nationally ranked teams) she's not kidding.

According to senior Gillian Kane, who co-captains the team with senior Jackie Braunstein, the team's schedule, along with incoming freshmen, are a reflection of just how much the program has grown.

"One of the biggest improvements was that when I came here we couldn't have even imagined such a schedule being feasible," Kane said. "This year's team is just so deep though, we are really consistent all the way down; and in 3- 6 singles we can beat anyone on any given day."

Kane also pointed out that the recruits and incoming freshmen have improved every year she has been here.

"Everytime we've graduated or lost someone good, we've been able to bring in freshmen that can come right in and contribute, and that's something that couldn't be said when I came here."

The Minutewomen opened their season this past weekend at the Eastern Championships in Princeton, N.J. and came away with some sound performances. Junior Ola Gerasimova won the Flight A consolation round (6–2, 6–4), freshman Helana Horak advanced to the third round of the Flight B singles in her first collegiate tennis tournament and Braunstein advanced to the third round of the Flight C singles. Freshman Alison Tros and Annie Hamilton paired for the first time in competition, advancing to the quarterfinals of the Flight A Bracket doubles.

The Minutewomen haven't beaten Amherst College, however, in three years. UMass was defeated 4–3 by the Lady Jeffs last year, their second meeting ever with the cross-town rivals. Amherst was ranked 4th in Division III last year and leads the all-time series 2-0.

Today's match will be an opportune contest to catch, as the Minutewomen have only one home date remaining. That will be on October 3rd against Saint John's.

Minutewomen notes:

Gerasimova and Hamilton lead the team for individual wins with three apiece.

COLLEGIAN FILE

After finishing up at the Eastern Championships, the Massachusetts women's team has a monkey to get off their back in their Amherst College foes.

UM X–C pack runs to quad win

By Gary Mendese
Collegian Correspondent

At their final home meet of the season, the Massachusetts men's cross country team went home with a smile after dominating the competition on Saturday afternoon.

The now 4–1 Minutemen won the meet with a score of 27 points — a solid improvement on last week's 44. With the home field advantage, UMass easily surpassed Boston University (44), Maine (74), and Vermont (97). Ironically, their biggest threat, Vermont, faired much worse than anticipated.

"Vermont's top two runners, who are world–class cross country skiers, didn't have NCAA clearance and couldn't compete this weekend," said coach Ken O'Brien.

"However, I believe we would have won even if they had; the gap between the two scores just wouldn't have been so great."

The Minutemen's victory was further complimented with seven of its runners finishing in the top ten, led by senior Dan Leboeuf, who finished in third place overall (25:00). Junior Kevin Somers finished fourth (25:05), followed by senior Matt Fly in fifth (25:10) and freshmen David Marcinowski and Ryan Corbett in seventh (25:30) and eighth (25:31) respectively.

Sophomore Brendan Sullivan at ninth (25:33) and freshman Kevin Curtin at tenth (25:34) rounded out the top 10.

Each athlete for UMass bettered his time of last week's meet with an average of 0:35 for the team. Four improved with a margin greater than 1:30, and the Minutemen's top finisher, LeBoeuf, finished almost 2:00 faster.

When asked about LeBoeuf's performance, O'Brien commented that it was not a surprise to see

Turn to MEN'S X COUNTRY, page 9

COLLEGIAN FILE

The Massachusetts men's harriers were strung together well in their win over the weekend in preparation for the large meet portion of the schedule.

UM runners squeezed by area school squads

By Sean Lavoine
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts women's cross country team followed up their first place showing at the LaSalle Invitational last week with a solid second last Saturday.

Running against proven Boston University and Vermont squads, the Minutewomen managed to place three runners in the top ten and scored 45 points, behind BU (23) and in front of Vermont (59).

Junior Sally Hirsch led the team with a time of 18:33, taking fifth overall. Also placing in the top ten for UMass were senior Nicole Way at 18:53 in seventh place, and sophomore Melissa Henderson at

Turn to WOMEN'S X COUNTRY, page 9

COLLEGIAN FILE

The Massachusetts women's cross country team was led by junior Sally Hirsch in their second place showing. The team next travels to Van Cortland Park, N.Y.

Track & field sprint legend dies unexpectedly

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Florence Griffith Joyner, the triple gold medalist at the 1988 Olympics who captivated the world with her meteoric speed and flamboyant style, died yesterday of an apparent heart seizure. She was 38.

Griffith Joyner was the wife of 1984 Olympic triple-jump gold medalist Al Joyner and the sister-in-law of Jackie Joyner-Kersee, the six-time Olympic medalist and world heptathlon record-holder. Greg Foster, the three-time world champion in the 110-meter hurdles, said he had been told of the death by Joyner-Kersee, who had heard of it from her brother, Al.

The sheriff's office in Orange County said a Florence Griffith Joyner, 38, died at home in Mission Viejo, but could not confirm that it was the former track star.

Griffith Joyner had suffered a heart seizure two years ago on a flight to St. Louis.

"We lost one of the great track and field athletes in history," Foster said. "She's going to be missed. It's definitely a shock, a great loss."

Primo Nebiolo, the head of the IAAF, track's international federation, said he knew Griffith Joyner had "some serious heart problems in recent months" but that the news still was "a great shock...which makes me extremely sad."

"I will never forget this extraordinary athlete who stunned the world in Seoul 10 years ago with her amazing sprints and spectacular outfits," Nebiolo said in Brussels. "Sadly, her life has passed as rapidly as her races."

Ten years ago this week, Griffith Joyner turned the women's sprints at the Seoul Olympics into her personal showcase.

Griffith Joyner still holds world records in the 100- and 200-meter dashes. She set the 100 mark of 10.49 seconds at the quarterfinals of the 1988 Olympic trials at Indianapolis, and since then, no one has even broken 10.60. At Seoul, she won the gold medal in a wind-aided 10.54.

She then smashed the world 200 record in the Olympic final, clocking 21.34. Marion Jones, with a 21.62 at the World Cup in South Africa earlier this month, is the only other woman to run the 200 in under 21.70.

She also won a gold medal in the 400 relay and just missed a fourth gold medal when the U.S. team finished second in the 1,600 relay, which Griffith Joyner anchored.

Not only did "Flojo" dazzle fans with her stunning speed, she caught their attention with her colorful bodysuits and her 6-inch decorated fingernails.

She also displayed a muscular physique, which prompted talk of steroid use. Griffith Joyner insisted she never used performance enhancers and she never failed a drug test.

At the 1988 trials, where she ran the three fastest 100-meter times ever by a woman and set the American record in the 200, she also set standards in track fashion.

One eye-catching outfit was a purple bodysuit with a turquoise bikini brief over it, but with nothing on her left leg, a design she referred to as a "one-legger."

At the Olympics, she painted three of her fingernails red, white and blue, and she painted a fourth gold to signify her goal. At the 1987 World Championships in Rome, she caused a sensation by running the first two rounds in a skintight suit similar to a speedskater's togs.

But her health was a concern.

In 1996, she suffered a seizure on an airplane flight from California to St. Louis. She was hospitalized for one day, and the family requested that no other details be released.

At the time, Griffith Joyner, accompanied by her husband and daughter, Mary, was en route to the Jackie Joyner-Kersee Relays for high school athletes.

"She was a role model for girls and young women in sports and her legacy will be one that included kindness and an interest in children," U.S. Olympic Committee president Bill Hybl said yesterday. "She will be missed."

Griffith Joyner was voted The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year for 1988 and also won the Sullivan Award as the nation's top amateur athlete.

After retiring from track in the wake of the Seoul Games, she served for a time as co-chair of the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

She began designing and modeling clothes and working with children, both through sports programs and a series of books. She was preparing for a comeback as a 400-meter runner in 1996 when she said an Achilles tendon injury halted her hopes of reaching the Olympics in Atlanta. She said the injury developed in March 1996.

Later in 1996, she ended a five-year legal struggle by settling lawsuits against her former lawyer and ex-manager.

Griffith-Joyner had sued Gordon Baskin in December 1991, claiming she hired him as a talent agent but later found out that he was unlicensed and had prepared an unfair contract that overcharged her.

A year later, Griffith-Joyner sued her former lawyer, Rafael Chodos, contending he failed to tell her he also was Baskin's lawyer when he looked over the contract.

Griffith Joyner was born Dec. 21, 1959, in south Los Angeles, one of 11 children whose father was an

Turn to JOYNER, page 9

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 11 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday, September 23, 1998

Good bedtime listening...

Juliana Hatfield will kick off her Bed tour beginning tomorrow at Pearl Street Nightclub at 8:30 p.m (see Arts & Living, page 6).

Two more close calls

Todd Fowler had an outstanding weekend in net for the Massachusetts men's soccer team, but the Minutemen still fell to Fresno St. and UNLV (see Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Hundreds of soldiers leaving N. Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Hundreds of British soldiers will soon return home in response to April's peace agreement, the Northern Ireland police commander announced yesterday.

Chief Constable Ronnie Flanagan said about 400 soldiers from the Royal Artillery and Highlander regiments would fly out within days, reducing troop strength in the British-ruled territory to about 16,000.

One battalion of 400 has already left since the agreement. Flanagan also said he and army chiefs were considering how many of their high-walled barracks should close in response to the cease-fires being observed by Northern Ireland's major outlawed groups: the Irish Republican Army on the anti-British side, and the Ulster Defense Association and Ulster Volunteer Force on the pro-British side.

The major threat to security-force installations comes from the IRA, which began a campaign of bombings and shootings in 1970 in hopes of ending British rule of Northern Ireland. The group has been observing a truce for 14 months but is refusing to disarm as envisioned in April's peace agreement

NATION

Hemophiliacs may be compensated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is poised to compensate hemophiliacs who contracted the AIDS virus when too little was being done to safeguard the blood supply. But legislation authorizing payments has caught a snag: Hemophiliacs weren't the only ones infected by tainted blood.

Now the question is whether to add payments for people who picked up the virus through blood transfusions, which would more than double the cost of the bill. Hemophiliacs were infected by blood products that allow clotting.

The dispute, to be aired in a Senate committee Wednesday, has wound up pitting one group of victims against another.

"I thought we were all in this together, and I quickly found out it was a community vs. community kind of thing," said Steve Grissom, 49, of Cary, N.C., who received a transfusion of infected blood in 1985 while being treated for leukemia.

Hemophiliacs have been working for this legislation for five years. They fear the entire bill will die if another group of victims is added in the final days.

"There are certain political realities," said Val Bias of the National Hemophilia Foundation, who was infected with HIV while using a clotting agent.

Hemophiliacs and transfusion recipients were both infected during the early years of the AIDS crisis when blood donated by people who carried the HIV virus.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 60 LOW: 50	HIGH: 64 LOW: 38	HIGH: 70 LOW: 48

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics.....page 9
Crossword .....page 9
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 8
News.....page 3
Sports .....page 10

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Historic West Cemetery named an endangered site

By Christie Vincent
Collegian Staff

In an effort to help save and restore West cemetery in Amherst, it has been designated one of the ten most endangered historic sites in the state by Historical Massachusetts, a nonprofit organization which works to preserve historically important sites around the state.

Amherst has also applied for 2 grants from the State Department of Environmental Management, according to Jonathan Tucker of the department of planning and development.

The cemetery has fallen into disrepair due to lack of maintenance, age, vandalism, environmental factors and unregulated foot traffic, according to the historical commission.

Cindy Dickinson of the historical commission said that being put on the endangered list "does not mean the cemetery receives an automatic grant," however, "receiving the grant is a natural tie in."

Part of the first grant is going to West Cemetery and the second is a Historic Landscapes grant, according to Lynda Faye, town liason for the historical commission. This grant would be used for planning and conserving the cemetery.

Faye said the comission did not know yet if they received the second grant.

A ceremony was held last Friday in which the designation from Historical Massachusetts was announced formally.

West cemetery was laid out in 1730, and was the only cemetery for Amherst until 1887. It currently has about 5000 graves, and is still an active burial ground, with four to six burials per year.

Notable people buried in the cemetery include poet Emily Dickinson, educator William Clark, as well as black Americans who served in the Civil War.

DAVID BLOTTA / COLLEGIAN

Lunch buddies

Angela Richard and Megan Alexander, both junior pre- veterinary majors, eating lunch and studying in the Bluewall yesterday.

David Case, 19, dies of respiratory failure

University of Massachusetts sophomore David E. Case, 19, of 10 Franklin St., Greenfield, died of respiratory failure Monday in Brett Residence Hall.

Born in Greenfield June 27, 1979 to parents David H. and Cheryl (Duke) Case, he graduated in 1996 from Greenfield High School and was pursuing a liberal arts degree at UMass.

Case enjoyed soccer, reading and movies. He was also a computer enthusiast and participated in the Iowa State Computer Association.

Case leaves his parents; a sister, Nikkol Duke of Northfield; his paternal grandmother, Ethel "Riski" (Riscala) Case of Greenfield; his maternal grandmother, Mary (Caliswski) Duke of Greenfield; and several aunts, uncles and cousins.

Calling hours will be held Thursday, Sept. 24 from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Kostanski Funeral Home in Greenfield followed by a funeral at 11 a.m. in the Green River Cemetery.

Contributions may be made in his memory to the Stavros Center for Independent Living, 55 Federal St., Greenfield, MA 01301, or to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, Western Massachusetts Chapter, 167 Dwight St., suite 102, Longmeadow, MA 01106.

Some information for this article was provided by the Greenfield Recorder.

—Lorraine Kennedy

UMass student dies of accidental causes

University of Massachusetts student Scott E. Zissell, 21, of North Main Street, South Hadley, died Sept. 16 in Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton of accidental causes.

Zissell was a senior at the University, majoring in computer science. He had been living at an off campus residence in Amherst.

A memorial service will be held Sept. 26 at 4 p.m. at the Beuleh Baptist Church in the Fairview section of Chicopee. The Ryder Funeral Home in South Hadley is handling the arrangements. There will be no calling hours. The burial will be held at the convenience of the family.

Chaplains and other resources are available to students, faculty and staff through the Dean of Students office in Whitmore at 545-2684.

—Lorraine Kennedy

Bars still defying ban; a compromise sought

By Jill Carroll
Collegian Staff

The Amherst Board of Health postponed doling out punishments to bars defying the smoking ban until their next meeting in the hope of reaching a compromise beforehand.

"The day before the (Sept. 16) meeting, the bar owners made overtures that they would compromise," said Valerie Steinberg, Board of Health chairperson.

"What is most important at this point is... reaching a compromise without litigation," said Steven Winniman, an attorney representing the bar owners.

Bars that have been disobeying the Amherst smoking ban face possible revocations of their food license at the next Board meeting Oct. 7 If a compromise between the two groups is not reached. But Board members and bar owners are working to find a middle ground.

"My clients are flexible. Up until now there had been a lack of meaningful dialogue between my clients and the Board of Health," Winniman said.

The owners, who have been permitting smoking in their establishments in protest of the ban, have submitted smoking policies they feel will be satisfactory to the Board and themselves. But these conciliatory solutions have so far been rejected by the Board.

"They had a proposal. It was really

Turn to BAN page 2

Visit by Annan protested

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

Members of the Tibetan Association of Western Massachusetts protested the Secretary General of the United Nations' Organization Kofi Annan's visit to Hampshire College last week.

The representatives of the Tibetan Community handed a letter to Annan asking him to address the problems Tibetans are facing, as a result of China's colonization of the country more than 48 years ago.

According to Lhamo, vice president and treasurer of the Tibetan Association of Western Massachusetts, the Association is asking Annan to mediate and restore human rights to the Tibetan people.

"We hope he will do as much as possible, with what power he has," she said.

In the letter given to Annan, written by the Tibetan Association's president, Thondup Tsering, he emphasized Tibet's struggle.

It stated that the Dalai Lama and the Tibetan people have maintained a peaceful struggle trying to reclaim their land from China. In spite of their commitment to non-violence, the letter said, more than 1.2 million Tibetans have died and 6,000 monasteries have been destroyed.

In addition, Taering said in the letter that because of China's tightening control over all spheres of economic, social, religious and political life, Tibetan people are "being reduced to a minority In their own land."

Dawa Gyaltsen, a member of Students for A Free Tibet/Tibetan Students Association said the United Nations only takes immediate action in situations such as this, when violence or terrorism is involved.

"In the case of Tibetan struggle, there has been 40 years of non-violence," he said "The United Nations takes cognizance in cases which are violent in nature.

"There is a growing kind of belief among young Tibetans. The failure to garner support is giving them a second thought in the direction the movement should take."

Gyaltsen said that the Tibetan people are beginning to doubt the effectiveness of peaceful resistance.

Tsering urged in the letter to Annan that he and other members of the United Nations do 4 key things: resume the United Nation's past debates on Tibet; appoint a "Special Repertoire" to investigate human rights violations in Chinese–occupied Tibet; initiate a United Nations-supervised vote to ascertain the wishes of the Tibetan people and appoint a special diplomat to promote a peaceful settlement for Tibet.

Gyaltsen said that three resolutions concerning the plight of Tibetans have been passed by United Nations officials: one in 1959, 1961 and 1965.

"The resolutions passed have been lying there and no one has taken any actions," he said.

Gyaltsen also noted that Americans who are aware of the Tibetan struggle have been very sympathetic to the cause and that students are among those who have been especially vocal in supporting the Tibetan freedom movement

Tsering made a final plea to Annan in the closing of his letter.

"With your commitment to truth, justice, and world peace," he said, "we hope you will carefully address the Tibet question in the near future. Time Is running out for Tibet."

UMass senior to attend beauty pageant

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

On Sunday, Sept. 27 at 6 p.m., University of Massachusetts senior Bachelor's with Individual Concentration major Marita Long will participate in her first nationwide Plus USA Women's Pageant in Chicago, Ill.

The Plus USA Women's Beauty Pageant and Convention is the first of its kind exclusively for plus–size females. Participants have the chance to be offered a professional model contract with Dimensions Plus Model Agency and other top national agencies.

Long did not previously have much interest in modeling; the opportunity to participate In a nationwide pageant had never even occurred to her. She only became aware of her potential talents when she came across a New York modeling agency representative in the Holyoke Mall at Ingleside. The representative was impressed with Long's body structure and encouraged her to apply to the size 12 and up women's modeling division in New York.

For Long, the possibility of starting a career in the modeling industry was both honorable and enticing for many reasons.

"I was flattered and thought about the opportunity for a while," Long said. "All my friends and family were very supportive of the process."

Over nine months, Long has been busily working on a modeling portfolio and has sent In photos to numerous top modeling companies looking for possible positions.

When her mother recommended that she participate in the upcoming Plus Pageant, Long paid the entrance fee and sent in three photos to the pageant organizers. When they responded with interest in having Long participate, she didn't hesitate at all. In fact, she has good hopes that she may win.

"It would be nice to win, but I'd really like to get more offers from agencies," Long said.

Already, she has been offered two modeling positions from agencies across the nation. However, she couldn't accept the job because she would like to finish college before committing to any one business.

However, because many professional modeling agencies will be present at the pageant, Long can't help but consider her dream of attaining a position with one of these big agencies.

"I'm just waiting to see if any opportunity arises with the more famous agencies," Long said.

The winning model of the pageant will receive prizes including a $2,000 cash prize, a one carat diamond ring, cosmetics, gift certificates, trophies and fashion wardrobes.

Long and the others will also be introduced to seminars on modeling, health, fitness and beauty before the Plus USA Women's Beauty Pageant. In addition, there will be a segment in which Long will meet special guests, including Delta Burke of Designing Women and Sonia Allyene of BELLE magazine.

DAVID BLOTTA / COLLEGIAN

Marita Long is competing in the Plus USA Women's Beauty Pageant and Convention.

Women of Color expands program

By Allana E. Todman
Collegian Staff

The Women Of Color Leadership Network will present their theme entitled, "Looking Back, Looking Forward: Historical Perspectives," tomorrow at a free reception in the Mullins Center VIP room from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Lisa Scott, director of the Women of Color Leadership Network (WOCLN), and staff members will present the history and change of the program, which was formerly known as the Women of Color program. Upon entering the event, refreshments and vendors will be present. An open mic segment will also be held for students to make important announcements.

"We were all things to all people," Scott said, explaining the need to expand the program.

With students visiting for more than academic services, she said, the small staff of four needed to be augmented.

"Work needed to be done... it couldn't be done effectively with just one or two people," she said.

In the past, the Women of Color Program provided services which included advising, training and counseling. The staff of four acted as liaisons to many outside programs within the University of Massachusetts. The high demand for more services increased as students used the program as a resource. The program filled a void for many students who did not feel the connection between academics and personal life.

"This program was a refuge," said staff member Jaqui Pinn.

In August 1998, the Women of Color Program decided to embark on a new plan to extend their services. With an advisory board comprised of twelve members from both faculty and staff, the program was titled the Women of Color Network.

One highlight for WOCLN is the Leadership Training Program. This program will offer a series of academic and life skill courses. Intro to Writing, Listening Skills and Self expression are just some of the courses being offered. Internship opportunities will also be available to women from UMass and the surrounding areas. These courses will enhance women's analytical skills and writing technique. A course on listening will assist the leaders to become stronger skilled mentors.

With the WOCLN functioning as a site for internships, they are looking forward to providing students who have focuses on social justice work, outreach, and economic health issues for women of color.

In their revised Mission statement, the WOCLN states: "Women will be able to explore a broad set of issues that impact the lives of women of color: self, group identity, isolation, oppression, and physical, emotional, and spiritual health."

■ ban

(continued from page 1)

not acceptable," Steinberg said.

She said bar owners suggested requiring bars opening in the future to obey the smoking ban but not bars that currently exist. They also proposed having non-smoking sections of bars. Both ideas were rejected by the Board because employees and patrons would still be exposed to secondhand smoke.

"Any agreement would require people who were patrons or employees not be exposed to secondhand smoke," Steinberg said.

But some progress has been made between the two groups looking for a smoking policy they both can accept, she said.

"While the litigation is going on they will take down signs that said smoking was allowed," Steinberg said.

Bar owners, who have been issued non-criminal tickets and appealed them, say they are just responding to what their customers want.

"They are not looking to dictate to anyone. They are looking to respond to their clients' needs," Winniman said.

But customer's needs are not a major concern for the Board when it comes to secondhand smoke.

"Every other workplace is smoke-free essentially in this area and we feel it wasn't quite fair the bartenders and wait[staff] are not protected," Steinberg said.

While employees of bars that allow smoking may not support the ban, breathing cigarette smoke during their shift is an annoyance.

"It gets to you after a while — you're standing behind the bar with smoke blowing in your face. I'm in support of the smoking ban if everyone does it," said Yvette, a bartender of seven years at Rafter's, who declined to give her last name. "There's only so much you can take."

DAVID BLOTTA / COLLEGIAN

Water, water everywhere...

Torrential rains caused the campus pond to overflow yesterday afternoon.

Annual report highlights variation in HMO quality

By Laura Meckler
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Patient satisfaction, clinical care and customer service vary widely among the nation's HMOs, according to an annual set of ratings that suggest patients in New England fare better in getting quality medical care.

On average, 56 percent of people were "completely" or "very" satisfied with their plans, according to the National Committee for Quality Assurance, which collects data on health maintenance organizations and other managed care plans.

About eight in 10 said they did not have trouble with delays in care until payments were approved, or problems seeing a specialist — meaning nearly 20 percent had at least some trouble.

But only 58 percent rated their plan's availability of information about services as good or excellent, and just 42 percent said the number of doctors they had to choose from was good or excellent.

New England HMOs scored the best on nearly every measure, although there was also wide variation among plans within every region.

The data, to be released today, is intended primarily for employers choosing insurance plans for their workers, but it also is available to reporters who write about local companies or compile "report cards" on HMOs. It is not available directly to consumers.

In a year when managed care has taken a beating in Washington, fewer insurance companies were willing to publicly release data showing how their health plans performed.

"Maybe it's a sign that there's not enough pressure to publicly report," said Margaret E. O'Kane, the quality assurance committee's president.

The group's ratings focus on medical care: How many children are immunized? How many women are screened for breast cancer? How many diabetics are given eye exams? — and are largely unchanged from a year earlier. For example:

•The top plans immunized 79.1 percent of children; the bottom, less than 25 percent.

•The best plans gave 93.1 percent of people with heart disease beta blockers, drugs that can reduce the chances of a heart attack. The worst provided the drugs to just over half their members with heart disease.

•The best plans gave mammograms to 80.9 percent of older women in the past two years; the worst gave these breast cancer screening tests to just 62.6 percent.

•Top-performing plans gave 82.7 percent of adult women pap smears to screen for cervical cancer; the worst gave the tests to just 59.8 percent.

"No matter how we look at it, we see unexplained variation," O'Kane said. "Science may say, 'Treat this way.' But we have gaps in practice."

TEXTBOOK RECEIPTS=REBATES

GET A 5% REBATE ON THE NEW BOOKS YOU PURCHASE
SAVE YOUR RECEIPTS

RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH MONDAY SEPTEMBER 21, 1998.

Beginning TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1998 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.

The schedule may be obtained from the registrars office in Whitmore: do not wait for them to mail.

New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.

Any incorrect titles purchased after TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase. Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.

Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21.

UNIVERSITY ST — AMHERST

Textbook Annex

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

University Store • Textbook Annex
SAVE YOUR RECEIPT

Our Refund Policy
If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within 7 calendar days of the first day of classes. Thereafter, incorrect titles may be returned within 48 hours of purchase providing the book is new and unmarked.

1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the month of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule obtained from the Registrar. Any new books must be unmarked.

2. Keep your receipt(s). Refunds on textbooks cannot be made unless the sales receipt(s) accompanies the book.

3. Always have your current I.D. available. This is required for any refund transactions.

The return of unsold books to the publisher begins seven weeks after the beginning of the semester. After the seventh week you might not be able to purchase the books you need.

textbook annex

Fall '98 Schedule

We accept cash, personal check, Ucard, Visa, and MasterCard as forms of payment.

We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.

buyback
Monday - Friday, 9am-4pm at the Textbook Annex, beginning September 21, 1998

annex rush
Fall 1998 Book Rush Hours
Third Week
Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm
Normal Hours
Monday - Friday 9am - 4pm

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

DAVID BLOTTA / COLLEGIAN

Laboratory learning

Chemistry graduate student George DeBusk helps Vanessa Solis, a sophomore biology major, with her chemistry lab.

Minimum wage increase rejected

By Marcy Gordon
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate today rejected a $1 election-year increase in the federal hourly minimum wage pushed by Sen. Edward Kennedy and other Democrats.

By a 55-44 vote senators killed the proposal, which would have raised the minimum wage earned by some 12 million Americans to $6.15 on Jan. 1, 2000. The first 50-cent increase would have taken effect next New Year's Day.

The House has not acted on such an increase.

Kennedy (D-Mass.) had pushed to have his proposal adopted as an amendment to legislation to overhaul the personal bankruptcy laws and make it harder for people to sweep away their debts.

The strategy was similar to the one used by Democrats in 1996, when they held up action on other legislation until Republicans agreed to vote to raise the federal minimum, then $4.25 an hour, to $5.15 by September 1997.

Kennedy said a new increase was needed to help "hard-working Americans who deserve a living wage." At a time of unparalleled prosperity, people who work in factories, restaurants, hotels, retail businesses and in other modest jobs actually have seen their purchasing power eroded, he maintained.

Workers earning the minimum wage make an average $10,700 a year — $2,900 below the official poverty level for a family of three, Kennedy said.

"Giving low-wage workers an additional 50 cents an hour can make all the difference," he said. "It can help to buy groceries or pay the rent or defray the cost of job-training courses at the local community college. The need is real. Raising the minimum wage can keep families out of soup kitchens and homeless shelters." Opponents said an increase would hurt small businesses and cause unemployment.

It "could actually have an adverse impact upon our economy" and could cause unemployment "that hurts the low-income workers the hardest," Sen. Rod Grams (R-Minn.) said before the vote. Sen. James Jeffords (R-Vt.) cited statistics showing that more than half of minimum wage workers live in families with annual incomes exceeding $25,000, and that the majority of the workers are young, single and childless.

Yugoslavia threatened with military force

By Nicole Winfield
Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Germany threatened Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic with military force today if he doesn't loosen his grip on the separatist province of Kosovo, saying NATO was prepared to act to resolve the crisis.

In a speech to world leaders gathered for the General Assembly, German Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel condemned the use of force by Milosevic's men and the Kosovo Liberation Army. The KLA is fighting for independence for Kosovo, where ethnic Albanians make up 90 percent of the population.

"Most of the responsibility for this drama lies with Belgrade, with President Milosevic," Kinkel said. "He must realize that the international community will react with military force if necessary."

Milosevic also came under heated criticism by Wolfgang Schussel, the Austrian foreign minister, who demanded he withdraw Serbian and Yugoslav forces from Kosovo.

"Their police and military operations have led to consequences for the civilian population that are out of any justifiable proportion," Schussel said, speaking on behalf of the European Union.

He called for negotiations to "define a new status for Kosovo."

"However, without cessation of the ongoing Serb offensive, an end to further bloodshed, and a significant improvement of the catastrophic humanitarian situation, a meaningful dialogue cannot be started," Schussel said.

Hundreds have been killed and over a quarter million displaced since Serb forces began a crackdown in February on ethnic Albanian separatists in Kosovo. Western nations support restoring Kosovo's autonomy, which was withdrawn by Milosevic in 1989.

Serb forces today attacked villages in Kosovo with heavy artillery and tank fire.

On Monday, British Prime Minister Tony Blair urged strong action by the Security Council to halt the fighting in Kosovo.

Britain and France last week began drafting a resolution that would demand an immediate cease-fire and "an urgent end to the trampling on the rights of the inhabitants of Kosovo," Blair said. The two countries were pushing for a council resolution that would authorize force to make Milosevic comply, council sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Russia, which has veto power over resolutions as a permanent member of the Security Council, has said it opposes any threats of force in Kosovo.

Clinton, gaining some sympathy, considers Capitol Hill appearance to respond to questions about scandal

By John Diamond
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Lawmakers see impeachment proceedings against President Clinton as likely but are willing to hear a direct appeal to Congress by the president, an option the White House is actively considering.

Clinton today appeared to prefer sticking to his job as president and letting the impeachment politics play out in Washington. Meeting in New York with Japanese Prime Minister Keizo Obuchi, Clinton told reporters, "I don't have any contribution to make" to the discussion of the broadcast videotape of his grand jury testimony.

Clinton claimed to be avoiding immersing himself in the flood of material from Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr made public this week by the House Judiciary Committee. "Believe it or not, I haven't read the (Starr) report or my lawyers' replies. I think it's important that I focus on what I'm doing for the American people," Clinton said.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott (R-Miss.) said today Clinton should come to Capitol Hill and answer questions, but questioned whether it would change anything.

"Any time the president comes forward and comes clean in a formal setting... it would probably be a positive development," Lott said. The problem, he said, is what happens after that. "The whole thing is demeaning for the country," Lott said, blaming Clinton for allowing the controversy to drag on so long. "It's just sad. I don't know of any other way to describe it." Struggling to digest a historic but wrenching avalanche of testimony, the people who now hold Clinton's future in their hands say the president may have gained some sympathy with the airing of his grand jury testimony Monday in the Monica Lewinsky affair. But while no one says the nationally televised spectacle severely damaged Clinton, neither do lawmakers suggest his troubles will go away.

One Democratic senator says he is absorbing details under the assumption he will sit as juror in an impeachment trial. "As a member of the U.S. Senate, I'm a potential juror in this case," said Sen. Robert Torricelli (D-N.J.), for years one of Clinton's staunchest defenders on Capitol Hill. "Whatever affections I've held for Bill Clinton are entirely eclipsed by my sense of responsibility."

Clinton's standing rose slightly in one public opinion poll taken after the videotape of his testimony was released, and fewer people thought he should be impeached.

A CNN-USA Today-Gallup poll taken Monday showed the president's approval rate rising to 66 percent, compared with 60 percent Sunday, and his disapproval rating down to 31 percent from 34 percent.

Those favoring impeachment and removal from office fell from 35 percent to 32 percent, and those who said he should not be impeached increased from 60 percent to 66 percent, roughly the same figures as recorded a week earlier.

PRUDDY'S is Open Late Night

BYOB
-WE GOT THE Party
-YOU BRING THE BOOZE

"Best DJ's in the Area"
Thursday DJ Fooz | Friday DJ SEV | Saturday Guest DJ

PRUDDY'S
• FOOD • TROPICAL DRINKS • FRIENDS •

ALL AGES/ ALL AGES/ ALL AGES/

-- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian --

Learning curve

I was perusing The Boston Globe not long ago, mostly because as a journalism student I am required to do so. If I had my way, I would rather not waste my time learning any more about the details of the president's sex life, and would gladly live as though I was under a rock or in a cave. But, as I said, being the dedicated student that I am, I religiously pick up the Globe and wade through pages of rhetoric regarding the sexual exploits of our nation's leader.

Thus, it was with great surprise that I noticed, tucked in the corner of the front page of this particular paper, Thursday, Sept. 17, that the Globe was concerned with something other than Monica Lewinsky.

The headline read "Standards toughened in state schools." Well, I thought to myself, could this actually be something interesting that doesn't contain the words Kenneth Starr or allegedly? Hmmmm...

I began reading, and soon learned that the state has approved "a series of new hurdles" for students who wish to enter public universities within Massachusetts. According to the article, students entering these universities, beginning in the fall of 1999, will be subjected to math and writing tests. Similar tests of "literacy and 'critical thinking'" will be given to students before they are allowed to graduate from the universities.

Goodness, I muttered to nobody in particular, is all this really necessary?

Overall, I believe that the state of public education in Massachusetts is dismal. These new standards show just how little faith the state Board of Education seems to have in the teachers that they have hired, and the methods that are currently being used to judge the success of the students.

To test students prior to graduation demonstrates a disappointing belief on the part of the government, that we may be receiving an inadequate education, or at least that is what they seem to be saying to us through these new rules. If the state feels the need to test students before allowing them to graduate from college, what does it say about their opinion of the teachers who grade these students? Do they feel that the teachers are letting kids slip through the cracks by giving them passing grades when they do not have a sufficient grasp of the subject matter? It has been my understanding, and somebody please correct me if I am mistaken, that I will not receive a passing grade in a class if I do not do learn the material.

Elsa Allen

To me, testing in such a way seems like a monumental waste of time, money and effort. If the Board of Education feels that there are problems within the system that need to be addressed, shouldn't they locate the source of the problem? If they fear that students are not learning enough, then perhaps they should look at the curriculum or the manner in which the teachers are presenting the information.

The story in the Globe also stated that "representatives of the state schools warned that a higher bar might exclude or discourage many students." Does this mean that the schools have been accepting students who they feel would be unable to meet these new standards? Are they afraid that enrollment will decrease when these new standards are implemented? Why haven't these stricter admission standards already been put in place? Our campus clearly has more students that it can accommodate.

Test scores and statistics will not make this a better school. What we need is an administration and Board of Education that looks at us as people, not just as tuition figures and ratings in U.S. News and World Report. They need to look at the overall picture and realize that as students we are forced to work with what they give us. By forcing us to take another test, they are only disheartening us by showing how little they believe in the education that they are offering to us.

If there is a problem at hand, what good will it do to try to catch it at the end? The problem should be controlled from the very beginning with closer attention from the faculty and administration. Extra support should be made accessible to students in every class if they need it, and they should be encouraged by teachers to accept this assistance. Perhaps if classes were not overcrowded, students would be able to receive more personal attention from professors.

We are all at this University to get an education, as clouded as that concept may have become with all the recent controversy over so many other campus issues. Test scores may offer comfort to the higher-ups, but what good will the extra testing really do for the student body as a whole? Who will be held responsible for the results of these tests if they prove to be insufficient?

Administrators may be able to relax if we reach some standard that they have decided is the bottom line for students, but as students, we will still have to battle things like over-crowded classrooms and problems with financial aid. There exists a myriad of problems within this University that seem to go unaddressed year after year. It is upsetting to me to see that the people who are in charge of our lives at this University have chosen to disregard these matters once again and focus on matters that will have little to no positive effect on our lives as students.

I think I'll go back to reading the Starr report.

Elsa Allen is a Collegian columnist.

A poetic moment

The freshman class is always the biggest, no matter what university you're looking at. The reason for this is because basically three quarters of the undergraduate students never make graduation. Students drop off little by little, year by year, and eventually you are left with only the cream of the crop (theoretically).

Why do the students drop out? The unfortunate truth is that a lot of students have what it takes, but can simply not swing the bill. Others leave for a variety of different reasons, some known by surrounding others, and some not.

A creative, yet not necessarily a tactful (nobody ever accused me of being subtle or ultra-sensitive), way of expressing this grand number of deterring factors, is to place them in poem form — paying homage to the old piece known as "10 Little Indians".

Here is my poem: "3,700 Little Undergrads":

3,700 Little Undergrads coming their first day.
200 had never driven in this state before,
and never found their way.

3,500 Little Undergrads unpacking with their "Pop".
2 Arkansas kids brought daddy's guns,
and this time wouldn't stop.

3,300 Little Undergrads made it their first night.
Friday came, the students drank,
and 100 began to fight.

3,200 Little Undergrads heading to first class.
The professor assigned them homework,
and 600 didn't last.

2,600 Little Undergrads running all about.
200 entered Machmer Hall,
and couldn't get back out.

2,400 Little Undergrads jumping in the sack.
400 didn't wear protection,
100 more then smoked some crack.

1,900 Little Undergrads going for a thrill.
The 100 that tried the campus pond, were floating very still.

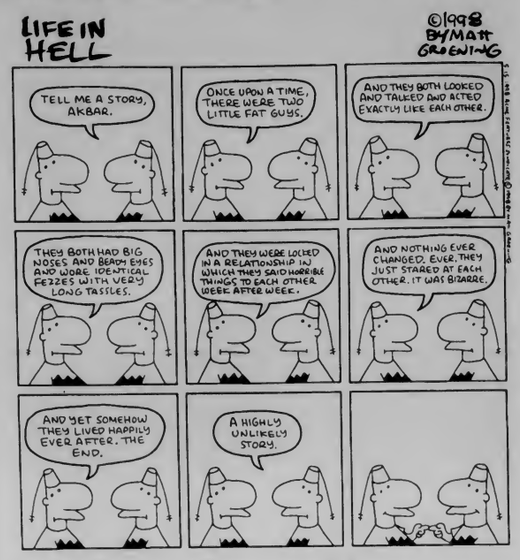
1,800 Little Undergrads attempting something new.
200 figured that heroin
was as good for you as crew.

1,600 Little Undergrads made it through the year.
Summer came, 200 got a job,
and preferred that life to here.

1,400 Little Undergrads came back full of pride.
400 couldn't find more easy classes,
yet found a place to hide.

1,000 Little Undergrads went to play a sport.
To 100 it wasn't whether they passed or failed,
but how often they hit the court.

900 Little Undergrads playing in their bands.
100 followed "The Benjamins"
as they rose to "greatest in the land".



800 Little Undergrads betting on the game.
100 put their savings on it;
the Red Sox blew the final frame.

700 Little Undergrads with a tired stare, grabbed onto their diploma
and threw their hats into the air!

Seth Koenig is a Collegian columnist.

"Why do the students drop out? The unfortunate truth is that a lot of students have what it takes, but can simply not swing the bill."

Seth Koenig

More about Clinton

All right. Everybody join hands and repeat after me:

"I will resist the urge to endlessly discuss, offer opinions on, or even think about Monica Lewinsky, Bill Clinton and the whole sordid affair that, if pursued, will push the faltering economy over the brink."

Again. Repeat until any urges fade.

Ah, screw it. As Hunter S. Thompson said, "Politics is an addiction worse than heroin." This particular scandal has made political junkies out of all of us, even the most ill- informed and uninterested. I thought maybe, after nine months of constant bombardment in the media, of the endless conversations overheard and participated in, I had my fill. I even told myself that I would avoid the subject like the plague in any column I ever wrote.

I was actually doing well; it seemed that the whole thing had died down, the television media and the Republicans in Congress beating a dead horse with their talk of censure and impeachment. No one seemed to care, and the president's approval rating was still almost at 60 percent. While the talk of impeachment had died down a little bit, more and more Democrats were jumping ship to denounce their one-time hero.

On Friday, Sept. 11, though, Congress released the Starr report, the 400-odd page document that, among other things, details numerous sexual encounters between President Clinton and... well, you know. The Boston Globe, along with other newspapers, printed the report in its entirety. Other papers refused, citing the explicit nature of some of the material included in the report.

I cracked. I gave in, I admit it. I tried to resist, but I made the foolish mistake of going home that weekend to pack up the rest of my stuff. My parents are both political junkies. We get two newspapers delivered daily, subscribe to Time, Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report. CNN is God in my house, and my father hangs on to newspaper clippings older than I am. So at 7 a.m. Saturday morning, they were both poring over the paper, clucking their tongues and letting out the occasional snort of disbelief.

My parents, like the rest of us, exclaimed their disgust at the actions of the president. Hey, I have to admit it, the cigar story made me a little queasy. And, like the rest of us, my parents and I dove in for more. Over our morning coffee, we wallowed in the cesspool that the national and international media has become, gloating in our innate moral superiority over the man who holds the title "leader of the free world." He is a pig, the paper tells us. He seduces young women and then lies to his wife, Congress and the country.

He is a liar, a cheat, now finally caught in his own deception. He is, we are told, getting what he deserves. Impeachment is too good for him, according to some members of the House and Senate. Public stoning would be better.

Ahem. Reality check.

Clinton is what he has always been. He is the consummate politician, a chameleon who changes to suit his surroundings. We want him to be contrite, and he is. We want him to be angry, to take action against a foreign power? No problem. He is what we have made him. We, as a nation, voted him into office knowing full well that he is a draft-dodging, pot-smoking philanderer who has a great deal of difficulty telling anyone, even himself, the whole truth.

William Jefferson Clinton is a man who has spent his entire life in pursuit of one office: the president of the United States. Many men have held that title; a few were good honest men who tried to make this country a better place. Most failed to live up to their own ideals, and often used the power of their office for personal gain. Care to compare? Jefferson publicly denounced slavery, but never freed his own; he even fathered a child by one of them. Eisenhower and Harding had affairs; Harding also fathered a child out of wedlock. Woodrow Wilson was responsible for the racial segregation of the federal government. And what of the golden boy of Camelot, JFK? He and Clinton have much in common — except that Kennedy was sleeping with Marilyn Monroe. Let's not even discuss Nixon.

Paul Martinez

Today, all of these men, if not heroes, are at least respectable. Clinton is no worse — and in some cases, he's far better — than any of them.

So while we have become a nation of self-righteous voyeurs, titillated over the sexual escapades of our commander-in-chief, we would do well to remember that he is only a reflection of our values. He was elected by a landslide, burying Bob Dole, who is not a draft-dodging lying philanderer, by us. We validated the morals (or lack thereof) of Bill Clinton, in effect telling him that we didn't care what he did in his private life as long as the economy was doing well. While the ultimate blame rests on Clinton himself, we as a country must take responsibility for our actions as well.

Except for me. I voted Socialist, saving myself a dirty conscience by throwing away my vote. Don't worry — I'll read every last word of Starr's report and tell you all the details.

Paul Martinez is a UMass student.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

Letter Writers!

Take note of our new address if you plan to send your letters via e-mail:
letters@oitunix.oit.umass.edu

And please remember to keep your letters to at most 400 words. Any questions? Call Mike at 545-1491.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor-in-Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Bill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylarski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Developing Nations

Message from the DN editor

Hello all!

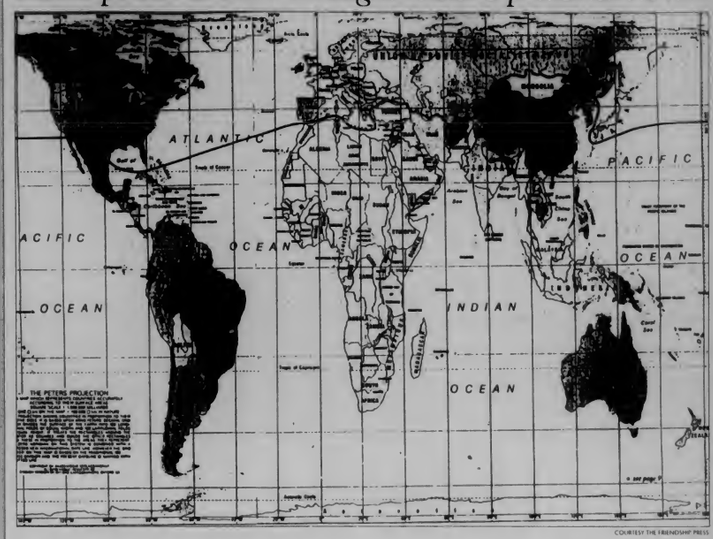
Well here's our first edition of the Developing Nations Page and as the new editor to the page this semester, I want to tell you what I hope to accomplish. My own experience and interest in this page comes from the semester abroad I just completed in South Africa. After wanting to go to Africa for as long as I can remember, I finally went ahead and did. Because South Africa is probably the most developed country in Africa, I also took the opportunity to go to Zimbabwe and Zambia before coming back and both areas opened my eyes to the lack of coverage the news has had on Third World countries.

The fact that many people close to me pictured my daily life abroad full of rides on elephants and lion-clothed natives who hoped I had brought Coca-Cola and Levi Jeans to them, also slammed home the idea that something was missing in our current information system.

My experience abroad was remarkable and I still have not been able to capture it in any explainable form, but I do know that the people were what made the impact on me. The way of life and ideologies of a culture completely opposite from the U.S. were what stay with me the most about my time away.

The term "developing nations" is hard to swallow due to the negative connotation it carries with it. Yes, these areas may be having difficult times developing economically, politically and socially but a look at the current news in the United States dredges up images of President Clinton and Mike Parracle which raise the question of how developed the U.S. is morally, now doesn't it?

I suppose what I am getting at is that when referring to "developing nations" on this page I hope to provide some peeks into areas of the Third World that you don't often hear about. I'm talking about going beyond the fact that there are starving children in Africa, frequent typhoons in Asia and a whole lot of wars in the Middle East. I am not saying as a journalism student that such events are not newsworthy, rather that I've noticed the tremendous lack of knowledge on life in such areas beyond these international stage-stealing events.



What I hope to present are stories and insights into life from developing nations which you don't know about if you have never been to such areas. I hope to show that there are people more tangible and understandable than the Discovery Channel or National Geographic may show.

One goal I have is to run editorials, quotes, poetry, etc. by students who are either from such developing nations or who are there from UMass on exchange. Either way, I think there are valuable points and ideas to be heard from such individuals. I also plan to run stories which highlight the "other" perspective.

This is not going to be easy however since current news tends to stay away from such aspects of the news, which is why I ask for all the feedback, help and contributions you may have to offer the page. UMass has all the outlets to make this page successful and as the working appendages I hope you will make this possible.

—Laura Forster

An Upside–Down or Right–side Up world view?

COURTESY THE FRIENDSHIP PRESS

The Peters Projection Map, illustrating a different view of the world.

The Peters Projection Map is the first world map to show each country in its correct proportion and in its correct position in relationship to all the others.

This equal area map was designed by German historian Arno Peters in 1974 to address problems of existing maps which presented a Eurocentric view of the world, giving the Northern Hemisphere two-thirds of the map surface and compressing the Southern Hemisphere into the remaining third.

The Peters map makes accurate comparisons possible as the north-south directions are vertical and east-west directions horizontal.

Thus, the Peters map shows us that South America (17.8 million square miles) is in fact twice the size of Europe (9.7 million square miles); China (9.5 million square miles) is four times the size of Greenland (2.1 million square miles); and the former Soviet Union (22.4 million square miles) is actually smaller than Africa (30 million square miles.)

The Peters map, which corrects many people's understanding of the geographical picture of the world, may be viewed on the internet at: www.webcom.com/bright/page9.html.

—Laura Forster

Primakov approved as Russ. prime minister

The confirmation of Yevgeny Primakov as Russian prime minister by the Duma last Friday brought overwhelmingly pessimistic responses from most analysts, according to a compilation of global media commentary from the Foreign Media Reaction Daily Digest — "Situation in Russia: 'New Red Menace' In the Offing?"

The Digest which is part of the United States Information Agency, drew from 71 reports representing 27 countries responses from Europe, Asia, the Middle East and Latin America.

Primakov's position was met with some relief as some observers expressed hope that Primakov would be able to round up political support to carry out "unpopular" economic measures — something they said while reformist officials were unable to do so. Others pointed out that the political vacuum created by the departure of Sergei Kiriyenko — Primakov's predecessor — had been filled and that was sufficient to halt the political crisis threatening Russia, if only temporarily.

In A Rotterdam, Netherlands' centrist newspaper, Algemeen Dagblad observed: "It was a good idea to nominate... Primakov... He is regarded as being experienced enough to be able to maintain himself in the political mine field between the Duma and the Kremlin."

On the other end of the spectrum are critics who say Primakov is sorely lacking because he has no expertise in economic policy and thus will not be of help to Russia's situation. Many commentators pronounced Russian President Boris Yeltsin "politically dead" and expressed concern that the reins of the Russian government would soon be in the hands of the Duma. This talk further supported the belief of many analysts that Russia is distancing itself from the West and its policies, and that the former superpower intends to "go its own way."

Former national editor of the Moscow Tribune and former reporter for Reuters in Russia, Maria Korolov Trombly agrees with the departure of Russia from Western policy and feels "that is best for Russia."

As a reporter based in Russia who covered about 10 of the civil wars there, Trombly remembers the old system as "pretty darn efficient, though less efficient than the Western methods... (still) good enough to work."

Trombly feels the standard of living in Russia 3 years ago, when there was universalized health care, higher education and full employment, was not that different from the U.S.

However, Trombly feels that such factors as infrastructure are not equipped to take on the same policies and standards of living as the U.S. She sees a mixed economy as a possibility for strengthening Russia's situation but for now, she says, "[t]hey're going to have to figure out a way to use the existing system."

Compiled by Laura Forster Collegian staff writer

Mandela accepts an honorary doctorate from Harvard Univ.

COURTESY UNIVERSITY OF FORT HARE STAFF

Nelson Mandela, recent recipient of an honorary doctorate at Harvard University.

The president of the Republic of South Africa, Nelson Mandela, was present at Harvard University last Friday to accept an honorary doctorate, the third ever awarded by the University.

Accepting the award on what he saw as on the behalf of all South Africans, Mandela expressed his honor at being the first African to receive an honorary doctorate from the University.

George Washington and Winston Churchill were the only other recipients of the doctorate.

Mandela hailed Harvard University as "...one of the great educational institutions in the nation and the world" and made reference in his speech to the ever present "disparities between the rich and the poor both within countries and between different parts of the world."

Mandela summed up his address saying that "we" (South Africans) accepted the degree "...as a symbol of how South Africa and the United States, Africa and the West, the developed and developing world, are reaching out and joining hands..."

The president shared his hope that Harvard would help to continue this mission.

Mandela said that this would probably be his last trip to the United States since he will be retiring next year.

-Laura Forster

"Conscience of a people, soul of a nation, he has brought forth freedom from the crucible of oppression and inspired, by his courageous example, the better angles of our nature."

— The honorary degree citation for the President of the Republic of South Africa, Nelson Mandela.

Go Global!!!

There will be a meeting on Monday, Sept. 28 at 4 p.m. at the Collegian in the Campus Center basement. All interested in reporting, writing and contributing to issues related to Third World nations are welcome to come. Students who have recently returned from exchange or are from such areas are invited to share their ideas and/or opinions on their experiences. Anyone else interested is also welcome, regardless of major or background. For more information, call Laura Forster at 545-1851.

Construction of $65 million telescope begins in Mexico

By Daniel Fallon
Collegian Staff

Construction of the Large Millimeter Telescope (LMT), the world's largest telescope operating at millimeter wavelengths, starts today as project representatives from the University of Massachusetts and the Mexican National Institute for Astrophysics, Optics, and Electronics (INAOE) meet at an initiation ceremony in Puebla, Mexico to kick-off the event.

As a $65 million joint project by the two universities, the telescope is set to be installed on a 15,000-foot high mountain site — Cerro La Negra, 140 miles east of Mexico City. According to Stephen Strom, professor of astronomy at the University of Massachusetts and LMT principal investigator for the United States, the LMT is expected to be finished by the year 2000 and will enable astronomers to carry out scientific programs to advance the understanding of the origin of the universe and its constituent building blocks.

Among some of the key note speakers at the ceremony are University of Massachusetts alumnus Jeffrey Davidow, who is currently U.S. Ambassador to Mexico and Governor of the State of Puebla, Mexico, Manuel Bartlett-Diaz.

Members of the University Five College science community have been aiding the INAOE with this huge endeavor by hiring a lobbying firm and requiring support from Massachusetts Congressional Delegations. The results of these efforts have provided $5 million from Massachusetts for the LMT.

Puebla was chosen as the site for its extremely rural location, far from lights and waves that may interfere with its information collection. Upon its completion, LMT will be shared equally between both partnering universities and will provide an invaluable research opportunity for Graduate Students from the University of Massachusetts and other institutions throughout the United States.

Dr. Alfonso Serrano, director general of INAOE and deputy director of the Mexican National Science Foundation expressed his opinion of the project.

"It symbolizes the deep commitment of both Mexico and the U.S. to support the exploration at the frontiers of knowledge... To a large extent, the economic health and vitality of both societies rests in their hands."

Nyana Rattanasone, a senior at UMass, shared her view of the project.

"I'm extremely excited to find out what the telescope will find, but I'm also glad that the U.S. and Mexico are brought together scientifically and academically. That sort of thing only brings about a closer relationship between governments and citizens."

Catch us on the Web!!!!
www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Gomez's new album "Brings It On"

DEATH OF A MINOR TV CELEBRITY
The Candyskins
Ultimote/Velvet

This album is all about rebirth. Free from "the clutches" of their former label as they put it, The Candyskins fourth full- length is a paean to perseverance.

The Heaven's Gate mass suicide inspired "Feed It" and the Pixies influenced "It's A Sign" kick things off at such an energetic pace, they alone make this a CD to pick up. The songs recall the "woo hoo" energy of Blur's "Song 2."

The Candyskins suggested some thing was up musically in Oxford, England in 1990 when they formed. Unfortunately, they missed out when fellow Oxfordians Radiohead and Supergrass hit it big everywhere. The band were touring the States in support of a mediocre album. By 1996, the Candyskins were without a label.

Slower songs pop up amongst more peppy fair. The title track and "Teenage Suicide" let the band tip their collective hat to Radiohead with the incorporation of spaced-out keyboards.

The Candyskins decision to stick with it and rebuild has resulted in a stunner of an album. B+ (Matthew Nixon)

RIALTO
Rialto
China/Sire

Trax On Trax Off

While this band's name conjures up memories of a defunct chain of movie theaters for British music writers, us Americans have no such obvious comparison to link this band's name and sound to.

Slapping the "cinematic" tag on this 6-piece's debut ignores a recording that encompasses so much more than sounds evocative of 007.

This is true Britpop, melding everything from John Lennon to Suede to Pulp. The songs detail lost dreams as in the "saccharine and silicone" world depicted on "Broken Barbie Doll" and paranoia associated with boyfriend waiting for girlfriend to arrive heard on "Monday Morning 5:19." So like Pulp — yet without the bite of anything on "Different Class." Rialto just tries too hard and frontman Louis Eliot is no Jarvis Cocker.

A search for Rialto on the Internet reveals South Pasadena's Rialto Theatre. Next Stop Wonderland is showing. There is significance in this randomness. The words on the marquee sum up both the disappointment and hope this album solicits.

We can only hope that their next album is the masterpiece these newcomers have in them. In the end, I was not shaken and not stirred. B- (M.N.)

BRING IT ON Gomez
Virgin

This is, no doubt, one of the strangest debuts you'll hear this year. Britain's Gomez packs their first album with an array of sound effects, new and weird instrumentation, an interesting (for lack of a better word) voice, and a very American sound that is too cool to be American.

Blues, funk, hard rock, soft rock and psychedelica are some, just to name a few influences that Gomez draws upon with Bring It On. The album wanders off in all sorts of directions, but it's fun to be along for the ride. Gomez, consisting of Tom Gray on vocals/guitars/keyboards, Ian Ball on vocals/guitars/harmonica, Ben Ottewell on vocals/guitars, Paul Blackburn on bass/vocals and Olly Peacock on drums/percussion, create something wholly original, while drawing on old influences. Bring It On is the most welcome surprise of the year. A- (Kevin Monahan)

XO
Elliot Smith
DreamWorks

I could have given a damn about Elliot Smith before. Sometimes when hype follows an artist before the sounds actually hit my ears, I turn off automatically. There's too much talk, not enough rock. Music is not about the buzz of industry, but about the humming of lyrics.

But enough about that. The new Elliot Smith is good. It's not great. It's probably not hype-worthy. But the album itself seems like a good precursor to an exciting career.

The name of the album, XO, implies a certain heartfelt romanticism, sending mash notes to that girl you're pining for. Mix thin with a nihilism that only a romantic alcoholic knows. The album comes off like an "xo" at the end of an incomplete suicide note. There's hope in just spilling out words and feelings, maybe a bit of cynicism (that only comes from idealistic disappointment).

The whole album plays like a photo album, full of pain, regret and hope. The first words sung are "Cut this picture into you and me/ burn it backwards kill this history." Other songs include a snapshot of a family at a karaoke bar ("First the mic then half a cigarette/ singing Cathy's clown/ that's the man she's married to now/ that's the girl he takes around town.") on Waltz #2 (XO). The cover art shows blurry Polaroids.

The whole photo theme is a poignant one. Photographs can be seen as physical evidence of times one would rather forget — which leads us to the alcohol. "Baby Britain feels the best/ floating over/a sea of vodka" is one of the album's most touching, tender moments. Alcohol seems to be the only way to escape the memories he's trying to burn away, and the lulling comfort embedded in those lines gives us a hint at the desperation, and the need to escape that seeps through this album like old alcohol. B+ (Mike Messaros)

In control of her Bed

COURTESY G. SMITH

Juliana Hatfield, rejoicing over her new album Bed and the kickoff tour which begins tomorrow.

By Kevin Monahan
Collegian Staff

In support of her new album, Bed, Juliana Hatfield will be hitting Pearl Street tomorrow for the first stop on her tour.

Bed, released late this past summer, showcases Hatfield's talents as a musician. In a brief interview with the Collegian, Hatfield, as writer and producer of Bed, said that she has had more control over this album than any of her previous albums.

"I spent a lot of time on it. It took three months to write it, we spent one week working on the songs, and six days in the studio." Due to the short amount of time spent in the studio, Hatfield says that she's pleased at the result, "I love how it turned out. It has the raw sound that I wanted."

Hatfield also says that Bed is "less tense" and "more relaxed" than her previous released. "I've got more of a groove [with the new album]. And instead of hating myself, blaming everything on myself, I now have an outside villain."

Bed is also Hatfield's first release on Boston's Zoe label, a division of Rounder Records. She said that Zoe has been more than helpful and expressed her relief over her split with Atlantic/Mammoth, the label she had been with since her days in Blake Babies. "I felt good about it," said Hatfield. "Relieved. I'm thankful they let me go. I wasn't appreciated over there... they could have held onto me just because they could, so they were pretty cool to let me go."

Commenting on her previous statement on a shortage of women in rock Hatfield said, "It's not that I don't think women possess the skills [to be good musicians]... I just wanted a woman [musician], like Courtney Love, to kick my [butt]."

Hatfield also expressed excitement and uncertainty about her upcoming tour. "The tour hasn't started yet, so I don't know what to expect," said Hatfield, "and Northampton is just a skip away [from Boston], but I'm looking forward to it... I'll tell you how it went after the show."

Juliana Hatfield with the Maggies will be playing tomorrow at Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton at 8:30 p.m. Doors open at 7 p.m.. Tickets are $10 in advance, $12 at the door.

TRAVEL SMART!
BEST PRICES FROM BOSTON TO EUROPE, WITHIN THE U.S., AND DESTINATIONS AROUND THE WORLD
CALL 800-272-9676
E-MAIL sales@prismtours.com
OR VISIT US AT www.prismtours.com
Eurailpasses and Student ID cards available.
PRISM TRAVEL
545 Fifth Avenue New York, NY 10017

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street South Amherst, 256-0080

Visions in Action
Africa or Mexico
Human rights, health, refugee relief, environmental, community development, journalism, macroeconomics, & more.
202-625-7403 • Voice@igc.org www.visionaction.org

GRE
AVOID THE COMPUTER ADAPTIVE TEST.
November 7th is the last paper & pencil test of 1998, the 2nd to last paper & pencil test EVER!
CLASS STARTS OCTOBER 1ST!
KAPLAN
WORLD LEADER IN TEST PREP
1-800-KAP-TEST
WWW.KAPLAN.COM
60 YEARS OF BUILDING FUTURES. ONE SUCCESS STORY AT A TIME.

HAMPSHIRE MALL PRESENTS
FUN FLICKS!
Totally Interactive Video
Star in Your Own Movie and Music Video
★★ and take home the video! ★★
Fly Like Superman!
Sing Like Celine Dion!
Dance like Janet Jackson!
JUST $25.00
3 DAYS ONLY! FRI. • SAT. • SUN
★ Sept. 25 Fri., 3-9 PM ★
★ Sept. 26, Sat., 1-7 PM ★
★ Sept. 27, Sun. 12-6 PM ★
Redeem Your Hampshire Mall Receipt for FUN BUCKS to use towards your Video!
Hampshire Mall
AT CAFE SQUARE
FOR MORE INFO CALL 586-5700
ROUTE 9 • HADLEY

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS always $10.
25 n pleasant st amherst 256-0733
145 main st northampton 586-0155

At Pruddy's
we Don't Have a Cover Charge
Just Donations
To pay our lawyers so they can fight for our rights.

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 26TH AT 8PM
IN THE ORR RINK AT AMHERST COLLEGE
TICKETS GO ON SALE THURSDAY SEPTEMBER
COST IS $10 WITH AMHERST COLLEGE
$12 FOR THE PUBLIC
TICKETS CAN BE PURCHASED AT FOR THE RECORD IN AMHERST

It's a Skechers.
ZANNA
downtown Amherst

The Big Unit and Big Mac are ready to square off once again

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Randy Johnson faces Mark McGwire for the second time in 11 days tonight, he'll have a tough time duplicating the conditions.

This time he'll face baseball's newest home run king on the road and outdoors. And, Johnson is healthy.

"If I knew I was going to get the same results, I would do something to get the flu," Johnson said yesterday. "Obviously I'm healthy now and I don't know if that's going to be a plus or a minus.

"I was pretty happy with the results the last time we faced him in Houston."

Johnson felt so lousy he nearly skipped his Sept. 12 start against the St. Louis Cardinals in the Astrodome. He beat them anyway without his A material and 98-mph fastballs, holding McGwire to 0-for-2 with a walk in Houston's 3-2 victory.

"It was a situation where I had to go out there and pitch more than trying to overpower everybody," Johnson said.

The matchup between Johnson, an 18-game winner with six shutouts and more than 300 strikeouts, and the all-or-nothing McGwire is a baseball classic. Johnson relishes such confrontations.

"It's kind of a clash of two powers, a guy that throws hard and a guy that hits the ball far," Johnson said. "That's what the fans want to see.

"They want to see Mark McGwire hit home runs and I guess they want to see me throw fastballs and strike people out. They surely don't want to see me walk him, that's for sure."

Cardinals manager Tony La Russa discounted a reporter's suggestion that the Astrodome is one of the darker places to play, and that it helps Johnson, who is 9-1 with a 1.28 ERA and four shutouts since joining Houston at the trading deadline.

"You could have brilliant sunshine and this guy is hard to hit," La Russa said. "He could pitch in the Little League World Series park and he may not give up a home run."

McGwire is 6-for-27 with two homers over his career against Johnson, a former college buddy at Southern California in the early 1980s. One of the home runs was a monster 538-foot shot on June 24, 1997, when McGwire was with Oakland and Johnson with Seattle. At the time, it was the longest homer of McGwire's career. It's still the longest home run surrendered by Johnson, and as a footnote he ended up a loser in a 19-strikeout game.

"It counted for one run, but if we're going by distance it probably should have counted as two," Johnson said. "I think a lot of people have always wondered if I threw my best fastball and he put his best swing on a pitch, where would it go?

"I remember the guy that was doing the radar gun that day saying it went in at 97 (mph) and came out at 102 (mph)." That memory alone is enough to make Johnson bear down extra. No way he wants to be another name among those who have been taken deep by McGwire.

"I'm not going to say 'Hey Mark, here comes a fastball belt-high where you want it,'" Johnson said. "If it happens, it happens."

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Rain, rain go away

The Massachusetts women's tennis team had its match with Amherst College rained out yesterday afternoon.

The passing of Flo-Jo still clouded with uncertainties

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The night before she died, Florence Griffith Joyner felt "a little tired" but showed no outward signs of illness, her former coach said yesterday.

"Losing Florence suddenly was a shock to the family," Bob Kersee said at UCLA's Drake Stadium, where he once coached Griffith Joyner. "It took me the whole flight from St. Louis to believe it. I don't know if I accept it, but as a Christian, I understand it."

The 38-year-old Olympic gold medalist was found "unresponsive and not breathing" by her husband, Al Joyner, on Monday at their Mission Viejo home. Medical examiners were working to determine why yet another outwardly healthy athlete died at such a young age.

Three-time world champion hurdler Greg Foster said he was told by the family that Griffith Joyner died of a heart-related problem. Kersee, however, said she never had any heart problems but did suffer from exercise-induced asthma and migraines.

On Sunday, Griffith Joyner went to Santa Barbara to appear at a gymnastics meet and had stopped by her mother's house, Kersee said. According to Kersee, Al Joyner told him that she reported feeling "a little tired" and went to bed, but otherwise there were "no signs whatsoever that Florence was ill."

Asked about a seizure Griffith Joyner had in St. Louis two years ago, Kersee said she was hospitalized overnight but doctors could find nothing wrong and released her.

"It's just a mystery to us," he said.

Her death reignited questions about whether Griffith Joyner, mother of a 7-year-old girl, had ever used performance-enhancing substances during her track career.

Her sister-in-law, six-time Olympic medalist and world heptathlon record-holder Jackie Joyner-Kersee, urged everyone to wait for the autopsy results and not to jump to conclusions.

"At this time I don't feel that it is appropriate, but I do know that there is going to be speculation, but right now we don't have time to be concerned about that," Joyner-Kersee said on NBC's "Today" show.

After her three gold medals in the 1988 Seoul Olympics, opponents and some U.S. sprinters accused Griffith Joyner of using performance-enhancing drugs. She denied using any drugs, attributing her success to a strenuous workout program.

Kersee was adamant that no athlete he has coached ever failed or avoided a drug test.

"How would you feel if someone was spreading false rumors about you and your daughter had to read about this?" Kersee said.

In 1989, U.S. sprinter Darrell Robinson said in the German magazine Stern that he bought banned growth hormones for Griffith Joyner. Robinson was paid $25,000 for his interview with the magazine.

Griffith Joyner denied Robinson's charge that year, saying: "Darrell... you are a compulsive crazy lying lunatic."

Arne Ljungqvist, vice president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation and the organization's top antidoping official, said yesterday that it would be unfair to speculate about Griffith Joyner.

Griffith Joyner, who won gold medals in the 100- and 200-meter dash and the 400-meter relay at Seoul, exuded an appearance of good health, as have other major athletes who have died young.

This decade, at least three well known athletes died of heart-related conditions.

• Boston Celtics forward Reggie Lewis collapsed and died while casually shooting baskets during a postseason workout in 1993. He had collapsed on the court a few months before during a playoff game.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Hit the deck

Jennifer Drennan and the Massachusetts volleyball team faced Harvard last night in Cambridge. Pick up tomorrow's Collegian for a wrap-up of that match.

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE DISCOUNT CARD WITH THIS COUPON
413-253-5592

"Reason №3 why you should take my GMAT course."
Better Research
We spend millions of dollars each year researching the GMAT CAT and revising our techniques and materials... so you learn the best information. No one knows the Computer Adaptive Test better than we do.
Call 1-800-2REVIEW or visit us at www.review.com
Courses held on the UMASS campus! Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and WNEC as well.
THE PRINCETON REVIEW

Newman Center
Jubilee 2000 Lecture Series
Judaism In The 1st Years Before And After Christ
Dr. Judith Baskin, Prof. of Judaic Studies SUNY Albany
Thursday September 24, 1998, 8:00PM
Quigley Room, Newman Center
All Are Welcome - No Admission Charge

amc
Hampshire 6 - 584-7550 Hampshire Mall
Mt. Farms 4 - 584-9153 Mt. Farms Mall
EVER AFTER: A CINDERELLA STORY (PG-13) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:10
SLUMS OF BEVERLY HILLS (R) Today @ 8:30
ONE TRUE THING (R) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
BLADE (R) Today (5:40 @ $2.50) 8:20
THE PARENT TRAP (PG) Today (5:20 @ $2.50)
RUSH HOUR (PG-13) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
SAVING PRIVATE RYAN (R) Today (5:00 @ $2.50) 8:20
54 (R) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
ROUNDERS (R) Today (5:20 @ $2.50) 8:10
SIMON BIRCH (PG) Today (5:40 @ $2.50) 8:20
THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT MARY (R) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:10

Welcome back... NOW GO AWAY!
Cheap tickets. Great advice. Nice people.
travel accessories and backpacks sold here! European railpasses and international student ID cards issued on the spot!
Council Travel
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange
44 Main St., Amherst
(413) 256-1261
www.counciltravel.com

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0060

NOT HAPPY WITH OUR DECISION TO ELIMINATE THE CROSSWORD PUZZLE FROM THE PAPER? TRY OUR NEW E-MAIL ADDRESS OUT AND VOICE YOUR OPINION.*
letters letters letters letters
letters@oitunix.oit.umass.edu
letters@oitunix.oit.
* JUST KIDDING

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dance At Midnight Madness! Funk Club Auditions Sat., Sept 26. 12-5 pm., Boyden Wrestling Room. Hip-Hop/Reggae Dancers. Questions? Amelia 665-8649, Charlene 546-5590.

AUTO FOR SALE

'87 Ford Mustang GT V8 Great fun, car winter stored, impeccable condition, preformance extras, only 80 K miles. Call 549-6045.

1988 VW Jetta Gold. 5 speed. Good condition. $1200/BO. 548-9228.

1987 Cutlass Supreme $750 or B/O. 256-1014.

Pontiac Sunbird Runs perfect. $900 or B/O. Call 259-1915.

CARS $100-$500
Police Impounds.
Hondas, Chevys, Jeeps, & Sport Utilities
MUST SELL!
1-800-522-2730 x4554

87 Olds Cutlass Ciera 98,000 miles. Reliable. $900. Sarah 549-5285.

1990 Pontiac Lemans LE 4 dr auto, AC, PS, 60k. Excellent condition. $1800. 545-4548.

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS Automatic, fully loaded, 103k miles. Excellent condition. $3700. 253-5503.

1989 Subaru Wagon Standard, 4WD, highway miles, clean $1400 (978)544-7783.

WANTED: Toyotas, Novas, Prizms, Sentras. Any condition. Cash paid everyday 1-800-649-4795.

AUTO PARTS

Headlight Covers and Hood Bra for 1995-98 Mustang. Asking $60 for both. Call Liz at 549-2031 after 6.

CHILDCARE

Experienced babysitter/childcare persons needed immediately for Monday evenings, 4:30 to 7:30. Work Study only. $6.00/hr. Come apply at Commuter Services, Rm 428 Student Union or call Barbara at 545-2309.

COMPUTERS

486 Computer
Great For Student
Works Good
$100
Color VGA $50
(413)684-8857

EMPLOYMENT

Survey Personnel Needed for PVTA Ridership Survey- The Pioneer Valley Planning Commission (PVPC) will be conducting a PVTA route ridership survey in Holyoke (Oct 24-30). Surveyors will be paid $7.50-$8.50 an hour to distribute/collect survey forms, answer questions, and collect ridership information. All shifts are available. Applications will be accepted until October 7, 1998. Download applications from www.pvpc.org, or call 413-781-6045 or apply in person at PVPC, 26 Central St., W Springfield, MA 01089. PVPC is an EOE/AA employer.

Research Interviewers Abt Associates is looking for a few good reliable people with good communication and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evenings and weekends available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $6.25/hr with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more info or to arrange an interview call 413-587-1607. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

EARN CASH
Flexible Hours
Now hiring at Sbarro's
Hampshire Mall

PART TIME- 10 hrs/wk. Flexible schedule. Assist arts organization directors. Computer skills required. Amherst location. 413-549-0299 or 413-548-8006.

Dunkin Donuts
Now Hiring
Apply In Person
Morning Shifts
Rt. 9, Hadley

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK... "TAKE 2" 2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and... Earn $$$$. Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks. Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplash-tours.com

Best Part-Time Job In The Valley. You don't have to wash dishes or flip burgers for the extra money you need. Become a Clean Water Action organizer and earn $7.30-$9.00/hr fighting air and water pollution. Paid training, flexible schedule, evening and weekend hours. 584-9830.

Teacher needed to home-school 9th grade student. Flexible schedule. Please call 413-562-9701 after 6:00pm or email jng@aol.com.

ENTERTAINMENT

DJ For Hire: DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

FOR RENT

Lockers For Rent: $10 for academic year. Going fast! Come to Commuter Services, Rm 428 Student Union.

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery. 253-9742.

FOR SALE

STEREO EQUIPMENT Large selection, from basic to audiophile. Used/Reconditioned, guaranteed. Buy-Sell-Trade. 253-5312.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK. www.fitnessworkshop.com

INSTRUCTION

Kickboxing Lessons Develop fighting skills while getting into great shape. Call Joe 548-8979.

KICKBOXING LESSONS Learn to kickbox in a fun, friendly environment. First lesson free! Call 253-7757.

Boxing lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. 413-732-8817.

LOST & FOUND

FOUND- Bracelet near Brown Tuesday call 546-6988 with description

MOTORCYCLES

Suzuki GS750E 16V Very large bike. Old model. Great looking and well maintained. Has great engine, new tires, and more. $1000/BO. Call Kirin 256-8701.

Kawasaki EX 250 Ninja 1994 4500 miles. Excellent condition. $2000 or B/O. 585-0052.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher
Offering Fall Lessons
Beginner to Advanced
Can Teach All Styles
Call Stephen Page at 256-2612.

Piano Lessons
Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

In Amherst Quiet setting, kitchen privileges, laundry, parking, non-smoking. $350 inclusive. 549-4853.

Great room in spacious, exciting home. $283/month- all inclusive. Millers Falls. Call 413-659-0190.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Want to get away from campus? Large room in Northampton, on bus line. Available 10/1. Call 586-4664. Ask for Jon or Phil.

SERVICES

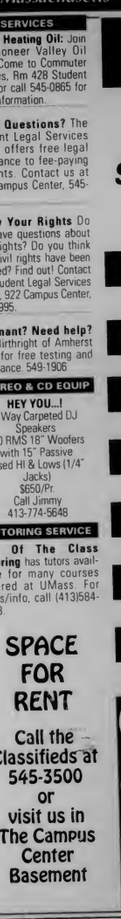
Cheap Heating Oil: Join The Pioneer Valley Oil Coop. Come to Commuter Services, Rm 428 Student Union or call 545-0865 for more information.

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Know Your Rights Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906.

STEREO & CD EQUIP



HEY YOU...!
2 Way Carpeted DJ Speakers
500 RMS 18" Woofers with 15" Passive
Fused HI & Lows (1/4" Jacks)
$650/Pr.
Call Jimmy
413-774-5648

TUTORING SERVICE

Top Of The Class Tutoring has tutors available for many courses offered at UMass. For rates/info, call (413)584-3793.

SPACE FOR RENT
Call the Classifieds at 545-3500 or visit us in The Campus Center Basement

Advertise sell your: car computer furniture motorcycle used books rent your room need a roomate Collegian Classifieds "they work"

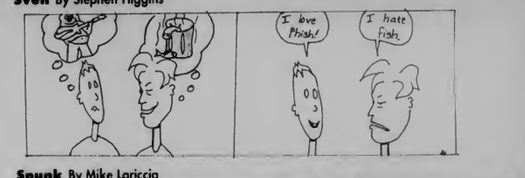
CATHY By Cathy Guisewite

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Foxtrot By Bill Amend



Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Sven By Stephen Higgins

Kampus Kids ByAdam Souliere

Spunk By Mike Lariccia

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Don't try to fill your head with too many facts and figures today. "Average" is not for you. Follow your instincts and you'll surely excel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You won't have a lot of time to make the decisions that the day demands. Get yourself up and active as soon as possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You may discover that someone who has been close to you for some time can actually be more than just a friend. Discuss your plans openly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You will have to tread very carefully today if you expect to combine business and pleasure with any degree of success. Much depends on timing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You may be tempted to form a new union — either personally or professionally — with someone who has rubbed you the wrong way for a long time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Take care that you're not too overbearing today. You'll want to be sure that others get the job done, but do so with style.

FISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — The time has come for you to do things in ways that are expected of you. Don't rock the boat today.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — Someone may upset you today unintentionally, but the fact that it happens gives you food for thought. Perhaps your plans must change.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — Although you're in the mood for more freedom today, you may not know how to get it. Follow unwritten signs to achieve your goal.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — A certain sign is likely to be sent your way during the first part of the day. Do you have what it takes to respond in kind?

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — This is a good day for you to take on more responsibility. You'll have the chance to show what it means to take care of others.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Don't be put off by cries of incompatibility today. The truth is that you can get along well with almost anyone if you try hard enough.

Quote of the Day

"3 out of 4 people make up 75% of the population."
–unknown

Close to Home By John McPherson

To her horror, Barnica triggers the store's used-the-Rest-Room-but didn't make a purchase alarm.

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Chicken Breast Sandwich
Mesquite Chicken Sandwich
Rotini/Tomato Lentil Sauce
DINNER
Roast Turkey
Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole
Mesquite Chicken Sandwich

Worcester
LUNCH
Grilled Steak Sandwich
Homemade Chicken Pot Pie
Rotini /Tomato meat sauce
Rotini/Tomato Lentil Sauce
DINNER
Roast Turkey
Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole
Pastabilities Cheese Lasagna

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
BBQued Pork on a Bun
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
DINNER
Roast Turkey
Fried Shrimp Dinner

Berkshire
LUNCH
Grilled Steak Sandwich
Rotini/Tomato Lentil Sauce
Mesquite Chicken Sandwich
DINNER
Roast Turkey
Haricut Cod Sub
Penne with Tomatoes and Spinich

Five College Community Calendar

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 23

Audition — A female a capella group is holding auditions in room 149 of the Fine Arts Center at 7 p.m.

Forum — Members of the Leadership Network will hold a public forum from noon–1:30 p.m. in the Campus Center room 903.

Informational — An informational session on eating disorders will be held from 4–5:30 p.m. in room 302 at the Student Health Services.

Meeting — The Student Health Advisory Board will hold an open meeting at 5:30 p.m. in University Health Services room 304.

Meeting — Mass PIRG is having a kick off meeting at 8 p.m. in Thompson 106. Anyone is welcome to attend.

Meeting — The UMass theatre guild will be holding a general informational meeting at 7 p.m. in room 101 in the Campus Center.

Meeting — The UMass Poetry Society is having a meeting in room 804 in the Campus Center at 7 p.m.

Video — A video entitled "The Bloody Blundering Business" will be shown at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center room 811. The video is about the U.S. invasion of the Philippines in 1898.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 24

Dance — The UMass Ballroom Dance Club is having its fourth annual Hooked on Ballroom Dance in the Campus Center auditorium from 7–11 p.m. Lessons will be from 7–8:30 p.m. No partner is necessary. A casual attire is recommended.

Lecture — A lecture entitled "Censorship and Queer Representation: From McCarthy to the NEA" will be held at 12:30 p.m. in the Campus Center room 903. All are welcome to attend.

Meeting — The UMass Queen fan club's meeting will be held in the Cape Cod Lounge at 4 p.m.

Meeting — The Spectrum Literary Magazine is having a meeting at 7 p.m. in the Spectrum office on the top floor of the student union.

Meeting — LVC-TV 19 will have a news meeting at 6 p.m. in the studio. LVC is looking for new journalists, and technical help. Anyone is welcome to attend.

Open Mic — There will be an open mic night at the Hillel House at 7 p.m. Anyone welcome.

Workshop — The UMass graduate school will be holding a workshop on how to finance your education, how to find the best schools, and the details of the procedure from 7–8:30 p.m. in 908 Goodell.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is currently accepting applications for artistic team for its Fall production of You Can't Take It With You. Call 545-0415 or stop by the office at 423A in the Student Union.

Community — Prevent your bicycle from being stolen by registering it from Sept. 21–25 in the Student Union circle from 10 a.m.–2 p.m.

Community — NEWSAU will be collecting coats for their ninth annual "Coats for Kids Campaign." Drop off the coats at one of the following participating businesses: Manny's TV & Appliances, Rocky's Hardware, Subway stores, or any branch of United Cooperative Bank. Or bring the coats to WGGB at 1500 Liberty Street in Springfield.

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through October 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Exhibit — "Equal Partners" is being shown at the Smith College Museum of Art from Sept. 25–Dec. 13. This exhibit showcases the work of 13 American firms founded by female/male partners.

Internships — Internships are now available for the Peace Development Fund (PDF). For applications and additional information call 256-8306 (ext. 221 or 227).

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for the Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. Call 545-0883 for more information.

Job — The Student Government Association is currently accepting applications for the position of Web Master for the semester. Please submit your resume to Avi Khanna in 420 student union. Call 545-0342 for more details.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. Contact Gina at (508) 849-3600 ext. 201 for more details.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. Call to work on special projects. Call 545-0883 for more details.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person, to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

If you think that shopping a college store means having no choices... Think again. NEW Astore Not like a mall... Better.

WEDNESDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 23, 1998

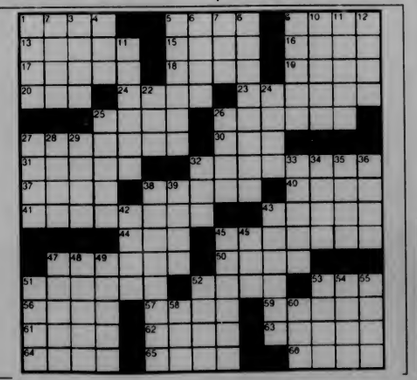
	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	12	Washboone (R)	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (R)	World of National Geographic		Frontline "The Farmer's Wife" (In Stereo) (Part 3 of 3) (R)					Depression
WFSB	3	3	News (R)	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Country Music Association Awards (In Stereo Live) (R)					News (R)	Late Show (R)
WBZ	4	4	News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Country Music Association Awards (In Stereo Live) (R)					News (R)	Nightline (R)
WCVB	5	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle (R)	Dharma-Greg	Two Guys-Girl	Drew Carey (R)	Whose Line?	20/20 (R)	News (R)	Nanny (R)
WLVI	6		Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny (R)	Friends (R)	Dawson's Creek "The Scare"		Dawson's Creek (In Stereo) (R)		News		Tonight Show
WHDH	7		News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy! (R)	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		3rd Rock-Sun	Newsradio (R)	Law & Order "Cherished" (R)	News	Tonight Show
WTXX	8	9	Moesha (R) (R)	Home Imp.	Judge Judy (R)	Judge Judy (R)	Sentinel "night Shift" (In Stereo)		Star Trek: Voyager (In Stereo)		News	Newsradio (R)	LAPD
WVIT	9	10	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy (R)	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		3rd Rock-Sun	Newsradio (R)	Law & Order "Cherished" (R)	News	Mad Abt. You
WTIC	61	11	Simpsons (R)	Friends (R)	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	Beverly Hills, 90210 (In Stereo)		Party of Five (In Stereo) (R)		News	Friends (R)	Tonight Show
WWLP	61	22	News (R)	NBC News	Wheel Fortune	Jeopardy! (R)	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)		3rd Rock-Sun	Newsradio (R)	Law & Order "Cherished" (R)	News	Charlie Rose
WGBY	57	6	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (R)		World of National Geographic		Frontline "The Farmer's Wife" (In Stereo) (Part 3 of 3) (R)				Nightline (R)
WGGB	40	20	News (R)	ABC News	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	Dharma-Greg	Two Guys-Girl	Drew Carey (R)	Whose Line?	20/20 (R)	News (R)	Cheers (R)
WSBK	38		Judge Judy (R)	Judge Judy (R)	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	★★½ "Magnum Force" (1973, Drama) Clint Eastwood, Hal Holbrook				★★½ "Dead Silence" (1997) James Garner
WTBS	46		Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Andy Griffith	Biography: Nero		Investigative Reports (R)		Sherlock Holmes Mysteries (R)	Law & Order "Trophy" (R)
A&E	49		Northern Exposure (R)		Law & Order "Barter" (R)		World Today (R)		Larry King Live (R)		Newsstand: Fortune (R)	Sports	Moneyline (R)
CNN	50	32	Worldview (R)	Moneyline Newshour (R)		Crossfire (R)	★★★ "Hairspray" (1988, Comedy) Ricki Lake, Divine.		Ricki Lake (R)		South Park	Upright Citizens Brigade (R)	Daily Show	Stein's Money
CDN	51	30	★★½ "Polyester" (1981, Comedy) Divine, Tab Hunter.				Wild Discovery: Piranha		Discover Magazine "Poison"		Warrior Island "Komodo" (R)	Justice Files "Car Crime" (R)
DISC	52		Wings "Doomsday Mission" (R)	Gimma Shelter (R)			Major League Baseball Teams TBA					Major League Baseball Teams TBA
ESPN	53		Up Close	Sportscenter		Major League Baseball						New Attitudes	Golden Girls
LIFE	54		Ellen (R)	Ellen (R)	Party of Five "Annogenic" (R)		Chicago Hope "Wild Cards" (R)		★★ "Shadow of a Doubt" (1991, Suspense) Mark Harmon.			Fanatic (R)	Lovaline (R)
MTV	55		(5:30) Jims Countdown		Fanatic (R)	Twisted Toons	Eye Spy Video	Say What?	Total Request Live (In Stereo)		True Life TBA		Lovaline (R)
NICK	56		Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug (R)	Rugrats (R)	Hey Arnold! (R)	Allen Strange	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	I Love Lucy (R)	Bewitched
SCIFI	57		Quantum Leap (In Stereo) (R)		Sightings (R)	Star Trek "The Squire of Gothos" (R)			Sequest 2032 "Spindrift" (R)		V "Breakout" (R) (In Stereo) (R)	Sightings (R)	Star Trek (R)
TLC	58	28	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	World's Deadliest Volcanoes		Earth Story "Earth Movers" (R)		Earth Story (R)		World's Deadliest Volcanoes
TNT	59		Babylon 5 (In Stereo) (R)		ER "Long Day's Journey" (R)		★★★ "All the Right Moves" (1983, Drama) Tom Cruise.				Bah, for 5 (R) (In Stereo) (R)		"All the Right Moves" (1983)
USA	60		Hercules: Legendary Jrnys		Xena: Warrior Princess (R)		Walker, Texas Ranger "Locust"		★½ "The Hunted" (1995, Suspense) Christopher Lambert. (R)				New York Undercover "Tasha
HBO	63		★½ "Major League II" (1994, Comedy) Charlie Sheen. "PG" (R)				★★★ "Don King: Only in America" (1997, Drama) Ving Rhames. "R"				Oz (R) (In Stereo) (R)	Chris Rock (R)	Real Sports (R)
MAX	64		★ "Speed 2: Cruise Control" (1997) Sandra Bullock. "PG-13" (R)				★★½ "Falling Down" (1993, Drama) Michael Douglas. "R" (R)				★ "Holy Life" (1969, Horror) Scott Grimes. "R"		"Bleeding"
SHOW	65		★★ "The Second Jungle Book: Mowgli and Baloo"		Dreams-Coma		"The Inspector" (1998, Suspense) Louis Gossett Jr.				★ "Holy Life" (1969, Horror) Scott Grimes. "R"		Love Street



HSCN Bulletin Board
CBS/3 Hartford
CBS/4 Boston
ABC/7 Boston
PBS/57 Springfield
HCCN Movie Ch.
UPN/20 Hartford
Weather Channel
NBC/30 New Britain
Fox/61 Hartford
PBS/24 Hartford
WOCH & HSCN
International
UMass Academic TV
HSCN Programming
UVC-TV19
ABC/40 Springfield
NBC/22 Springfield
CNN
CNN SI
Headline News
UCTV
TBS
BET
TV Land
Univision
Comedy Central Cartoon
Much Music

ACROSS
1 Explorers needs
5 Adam's son
9 Reputation
13 Old cattle town
15 Clocher Strauss
16 Singer Billy —
17 Star in Orion
18 Tree part
19 Exam type
20 Society-column word
21 Religious image
23 Kind of soup
25 Cat's sound
26 Weekend follower
27 Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket
30 Shipboard direction
31 Bankrupts
32 Some glasses
37 As well
38 Gratings
40 "I smell —"
41 Mined
43 Vowel mark
44 Stop
45 Jetsam's partner
47 Cake toppings
50 Rowboat needs
51 Took big steps
52 Walked
53 Collection
56 Tight
57 Paper amount
59 Summon up
61 'M'A'S'H' actor
62 Ancient musical instrument
63 Goes by bus
64 Some breads
65 2000, for one
66 Ungentlemanly ones

DOWN
1 Poet's new day
2 Jacques' girlfriend
3 Beep
4 — sells seashells'
5 Permits
6 "How ve ya —?"
7 One of the Gabors
8 Canaveral occasions
9 Norwegian bay
10 Important artery
11 Dry and crumbly
12 Fashion magazine
14 Sigourney Weaver movie
22 — liver oil
24 "Do — others"
25 E state
26 Servant
27 Kuwait neighbor
28 Captain Kirk's navigator
29 Kudrow or Hartman
32 Participate in an auction
33 Shoppers' needs
34 War deity
35 Volcanic flow
36 Flower stalk
38 Cautiously
39 Cerise and scarlet
42 Split
43 Frontier
45 Previous
46 — 'tzu
47 Rome's place
48 Like some oil
49 Small quantities
51 Leading lady
52 GWTW home
53 Kind of cracker
54 — out stretched
55 Hardy lass
58 Potato bud
60 Singer Damone

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

ASPIC MOTIF IVY
CAIRO APACE REO
TREAT PAPERWORK
STIR HALL RINSE
GROVE BLESSED
GALENA WROTE
OVALS BAITS COW
HOSEY SAGAS OLGA
ENS BISON LEARN
GRAIN ROUSED
REDEEMS COIFS
AGORA SUET MAD
CHIEDWOLF ERASE
CEIL THIEF MATES
STY HOLDS SPEAK

(SHIT)
Night Editor: Lorraine Kennedy
Photo Technition: David Bilotta
Copy Editor: Joseph D. Savrich
Production Supervisor: Jaylyn Lombard
Production Staff: Sakly Am

Reflections on a bad memory from a Sox fan

Last night my cousin Max from New York City felt the need to remind me that the Mets are leading the Wild Card race in the National League. This is the same cousin who went out and bought a Mets jacket after the 1986 World Series, and just to rub salt into my proverbial wound, made me watch the highlight video of the series in his apartment.

Without failure, he never forgets to

Aaron Savkin
Major League Baseball

remind me that I, a disappointed little lad and die-hard Sox fan at the time, began to cry as Wade Boggs did at the end of the video.

And when I checked my e-mail last night, and saw a message from him, I knew damn well that he would waste no time mentioning the fact that his Miracle Mets now have a better record than my precious Red Sox (only half of a game better to be exact). Nor did he hesitate to remind me that Met first baseman John Olerud is two points away from the incredible feat of winning the batting title in both leagues (Larry Walker leads the NL at .356).

After reading his heckling letter, I did what any self- respecting Bosox fan would do. I wrote back, telling him what was on my mind and promptly reminded him the my team still holds a 3 1/2 game advantage in the AL Wild Card race, and that its first baseman, Mo Vaughn, is tied for the league batting lead with Yankee Bernie Williams.

Max also brought to my attention the poor outing by Sox ace Pedro Martinez last weekend in Chicago, where he removed himself from Cy Young contention after allowing a second–inning three run homer en route to his seventh defeat of the season. "So what," I wrote back. Former Boston hero Roger Clemens is on his way to a fifth Cy Young award with a 20-6 record, 2.58 ERA and 260 K's— all of which are tops in the AL (OK, so he doesn't play for the Sox any more, but Max still brags about Darryl Strawberry).

In other happenings...

• As the 1998 season winds down, I can't help but wonder if the illustrious career of Cal Ripken is winding down as well. For the first time since 1982, baseball's iron man watched his team play, marking the end of a remarkable run. Fans will also be watching the possible migration of other birds.

As one of the few bright spots and expensive commodities during disappointing 500 season, first baseman Rafael Palmeiro handles list of current Orioles who may not return next season. High expectations always accompany a high payroll, and the mid–par 1998 Baltimore performance may result in salary splicing.

• The Seattle Mariners, another victim to high salary disappointment, already began shaving their payroll in early August with the trade of Randy Johnson to the Houston Astros. The Mariners front office have continued to starve an already famished pitching staff, which owns the worst bullpen in the majors. Ken Griffey Jr. and Alex Rodriguez can combine for 100 home runs every year and it won't matter if Seattle doesn't remedy is pitching problem.

• Although the regular season is not quite finished, it's not too early to start handing out some awards.

AL Most Surprising Player: I have no choice but to offer this distinction to Eric Davis. After a bout with cancer during the 1997 season, the Baltimore outfielder has rebounded with a .326 average (fourth in the AL), 27 home runs, and 85 RBI.

AL Most Disappointing Player: Sorry White Sox fans. Frank Thomas has wet the bed. Two years ago, people whispering Cooperstown. Now, they're crying schwag.

NL Most Surprising Player (...Besides Sammy Sosa): I have to call this one a draw. Vladimir Guerrero has been brilliant for Les Expos. And former Montreal star Moises Alou has been pretty impressive himself with a career–high 38 home runs and 122 RBI.

NL Most Disappointing Player: I refuse to give this award to Braves closer Mark Wohlers because he lived four houses down the street from me in Holyoke. So, I'll give it to Arizona's Matt Williams, who went from chasing Maris in 1998 to chasing lousy pitches all over the strike zone in 1998.

The "Worthy of Treats from His Girlfriend/Spouse" Award: This honor is paid annually to the nastiest, most pissed off, volatile, yet effective player. As much as I hate the Yankees, I have to give this one to Paul O'Neill. You have to love the guy. He could have been 5–5 at the plate, and his team could be up 12–0, yet he would still beat the living crap out of the water bucket if he flies or grounds out. God bless 'ya, Paul! Go home and get some treats from the old lady.

Aaron Saykin is a Collegian columnist.

Zullo a strong asset to UMass football

By Seth Koenig
Collegian Staff

Everyone in Virginia knew that the Massachusetts quarterback Todd Bankhead was going deep.

The fans in the stands of UR Stadium watching the contest between their beloved home team, the Richmond Spiders and the Minutemen knew. The Spiders' defensive backs, including 1997 Atlantic 10 All–Conference selections Chris Anderson and Winston October, knew. Everyone knew.

How could they not have? There was five seconds left on the clock just before halftime, and UMass held the ball on the Richmond 38 yard line, a good fifteen yards out of field goal range. The Minutemen clung to a 7–3 lead in a game that seemingly was going to turn into a nailbiter, and every opportunity to get an edge was even more important than the last. Yes, Bankhead was definitely going deep.

As Massachusetts freshman wide receiver Adrian Zullo approached the line of scrimmage on that play, he must have been exhausted. In the first half, he had already returned a kick for 18 yards and, while sprinting several crisp routes, hauled in two balls for 27 yards. It would be easy for him to take a breather on this play and quickly jog his downfield pattern, secure in knowing that, regardless of what happened on this play, UMass would be in the lead at halftime.

The rest, as they say, is history. Bankhead did exactly what every fan, coach, player and broadcaster expected he would do; he dropped back, drifted to his left, and released a high spiral to the back of the end zone, 45 yards away. Zullo, having sprinted by Anderson, October and the other nine Spider defenders, gathered the airborne pigskin, and shortened his step up to assure that he would keep a foot in bounds.

By the time the dust had cleared on that hot afternoon in Richmond, Zullo had recorded 77 yards receiving and 53 yards returning kicks. For the second time in two games, the freshman had accumulated more yardage than any of his teammates. His early season total of 160 yards receiving and 337 total yards were tops on the Minutemen, and the 206 all–purpose yards he racked up in the season opener at Delaware stands as the most ever by a Massachusetts player in the first game of the season.

Zullo, from his wideout position, is even second on the squad in rushing, with 33 yards on three carries. The average UMass gain when the young star, who was named A–10 Rookie of the Week, touches the ball has been 22.47 yards, an absolutely mind–boggling statistic.

Normally, one would think there would not be this much emphasis put on such a young player in a collegiate offensive system. He would need time to absorb the complexities of a game that is bigger, faster and better than that at the high school level, one might assume.

"We knew he could run," Massachusetts football coach Mark Whipple said. "We didn't know he could catch the ball as well as he can, and what you always have a hard time telling, especially with kids from far away where you can't see them play live, is about their competitive nature.

"As fast as he is and as talented as he is, he's also as competitive as anybody we've got on the team. He wants to do well. He's got great pride."

Even though Zullo not only led his high school team to the Florida state football championship last year, but also roasted the competition with a first place time of 10.43 seconds in the national high school championships this summer, some might have expected him to need time to catch up to his University level opponents.

"In January when I first met him, I said, 'So, you're fast?' He said, 'Yeah,'" Whipple said. "I told him that his high school coach said that he was going to win the 100 meters. He said, 'Well, yeah, I'll win it in Florida'. He was probably selling himself short, because he went out and won the national championship the next summer."

On the contrary, Zullo's University level opponents have had a difficult time catching up to him. And, when called upon, the freshman not only gets the job done, but regularly goes beyond the call of duty by creating electrifying plays that leave opposing defensive coordinators scratching their heads.

"Adrian came up here early this summer, and we had a bit of a chance to work together," Bankhead said. "We had time to get some chemistry. This kid always works hard, and his numbers in track speak for themselves. He's been a great, great addition to the team."

In the coming game against the Buffalo Bulls at home, Zullo will no longer be a surprise, however. His cover as coach Mark Whipple's secret weapon has been blown wide open by his attention–grabbing play.

"I'll do whatever's good for the team," Zullo said. "If I take two defenders with me, then someone's going to be open, and that's just the way it is. If I can get open with two defenders on me, then more power to me, but if Todd can find someone else open, then it's still good."

Fans shouldn't worry, though. Bankhead will continue to find ways to get Zullo the ball, as the quarterback feels the season will be successful.

"Coming into the year I was pretty confident," Bankhead said. "We were a new style of offense that nobody was used to, so I thought we could jump on people early. I'm just looking for more of the same, and we'll hopefully take it all the way to the playoffs."

Men's hoop squad releases 1998–99 schedule

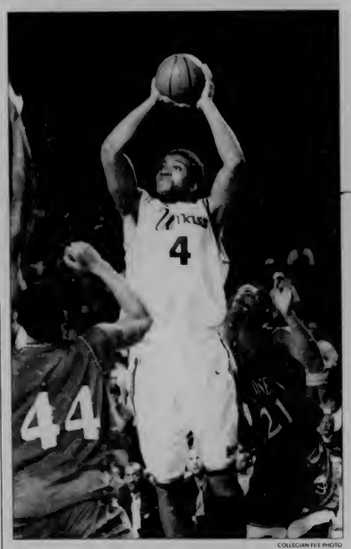
By Seth Koenig
Collegian Staff

The William D. Mullins Center will be rocking this season, as Massachusetts men's basketball coach Bruiser Flint and his team will play host to eight NCAA Tournament teams, including the Big 12 Conference champion Kansas, the Big East Conference champion Connecticut and Atlantic 10 rival Temple.

In addition, as many as 13 games will be seen on national television. Minutemen trips to Villanova, Texas, Rhode Island and George Washington will be broadcast to the UMass faithful back home, among others.

The season will begin at the Mullins Center as the Converse All–Stars and Marathon Basketball teams come to town for exhibitions Nov. 5 and Nov. 11, respectively. Both teams feature ex–collegiate players and will serve as good tune–up games as the Minutemen take on Niagara in the first round of the preseason NIT on Nov. 16.

The early portion of the season is highlighted by The MassMutual U–Game, in which Massachusetts takes on its New England foe, the UConn Huskies, and the Commonwealth Classic, taking place in Worcester and featuring the Boston College Eagles as UMass' opponents. These games lie on Dec. 9 and Dec. 12, respectively.



With such an intimidating lineup the Minutemen must not only boast a big schedule, but must play a big game as well.

"We think, once again, we are giving our fans a great schedule," Flint said. "We could play anywhere from 10 to 13 NCAA Tournament teams, and the home schedule is as good as anybody's in the country. We're just looking forward to Midnight Madness and practice getting started."

The team must practice early and often to live up to their high expectations and the difficulty of their season. Graduating only power forward Tyrone Weeks, the team has been picked by Athlon magazine to finish the year in the Elite Eight. With guard Charlton Clarke and center Lari Ketner returning, that's a realistic challenge.

When the squad takes the court at midnight on Oct. 16 for Midnight Madness and the first practice of the year, they will be looking back on a 21–11 season and their seventh consecutive NCAA Tournament berth. Along with those memories, unfortunately, come the thought of their disappointing opening round loss to the St. Louis Billikens.

There will be plenty of opportunities for Massachusetts to replace that reflection with victorious images, though, in what will hopefully be an even more successful campaign in 1998–99.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Lari Ketner and the Massachusetts men's basketball team will open up their season on Nov. 16 against Niagara. Midnight Madness will officially open practice on Oct. 16.

UM Men's soccer falls to Fresno State, UNLV

By Lauryn DiBenedetto
Collegian Correspondent

Last weekend the Massachusetts men's soccer team traveled to Fresno California for the 17th annual Nike Goal Rush Classic at Fresno University. Taking on Fresno State University on Saturday and UNLV on Sunday, UMass had high hopes of gaining a few wins to spice up their record of 0–4–1 entering the weekend.

In front of 1,652 fans in the first game of the Goal Rush Classic, the Minutemen took on Fresno State University and dropped to a 2–0 decision.

Leading the way for the match against Fresno State was junior goalkeeper Todd Fowler. Fowler made 14 saves for the Minutemen, while Fresno State goalie Jeff Flaharty made two. Scoring for Fresno State was Hugo Alvarez, who got one past Fowler at the 41:23 mark and Chad Brown, who put Fresno State up 2–0 with a 40–yard boot at the 61:59 mark.

Leaving the Fresno State game behind them and a new record of 0–5–1, the Minutemen took on UNLV on Sunday. UMass opened up the game against the Running Rebels with an early goal by sophomore Seth Lilburn, who popped one into the left corner of the UNLV net at the 6:15 mark.

However, UNLV's Kiko Medina evened up the game at the 70:12 mark. Heading into overtime the Minutemen held on until the Rebels' Michael Griego headed in the game–winning goal at 100:08, which left the Minutemen at a overall record of 0–6–1.

All was not lost for the Minutemen this weekend. Fowler had an impressive 20 saves in UMass' two games in the Classic. The junior netminder broke the 14–year old record for saves in the tournament, breaking the record formerly held by American University's Stephen Giordano. Fowler started his record breaking weekend on Friday, beating another Giordano record of most saves in one game when he made 12 stops against Fresno State.

For their efforts in the Goal Rush Classic, Lilburn and senior Brad Kurowski were named to the Goal Rush Classic All–Tournament Team.

The Minutemen will next take on Rhode Island at Totman Field on Saturday in their Atlantic 10 opener.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Seth Lilburn had a goal on Sunday afternoon, but it wasn't enough, as UMass fell to UNLV 2–1 in overtime.

UM women's hoop squad ready to go

By Seth Koenig
Collegian Staff

Get the leis and grass skirts ready, because the Massachusetts women's basketball team is spending a good chunk of the end of November in the exotic Hawaiian Islands as they take part in the Aloha Classic.

This seemingly luxurious trip is not on the Minutewomen schedule because coach Joanie O'Brien won the championship round of Wheel of Fortune, but rather because UMass, coming off of their second NCAA Tournament berth in school history, have proven themselves worthy as a national power.

And with their newfound recognition and respect comes a difficult schedule, that consists of, among others, perennial national title contender Georgia (Nov. 29), and the Maine Black Bears (Dec. 2), winners of the America East Conference championship four straight years.

Other dates to circle on the calendar for the upcoming season include the Big Apple Classic in New York City, where the Minutewomen will take on Texas A&M (Dec. 5), and the Maryland Tournament in College Park (Dec. 28–29).

The regular season ends with home conference matchups against Virginia Tech, Duquesne and St. Bonaventure, before one final road trip to Fordham. Virginia Tech was responsible for edging UMass out in the Atlantic 10 Championship game a year ago.

Returning to the squad will be senior forward Tez Kraft, the A–10 tournament Most Valuable Player in '98, junior guard Alison MacFarland, and rehabilitated junior super–ar Kelly Van Huisen, whose return from a torn anterior cruciate ligament is anxiously awaited by fans and coaches alike. Also key to the team's performance will be the ability of sophomore Kathy Coyner to step into the considerable gap in the lineup left by point guard Sabriya Mitchell's graduation. Senior center Yolanda Rayside, already a proven rebounder, will be looked upon to provide more of a scoring punch in the upcoming season.

The first Massachusetts game scheduled will be on Nov. 7 at the William D. Mullins Center against St. John's, in what looks to be a challenging season.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 12 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Thursday, September 24, 1998

Fade to black, cue music

Movie soundtracks are today's hottest commodity, but which ones are good and which are bad? Take a look at our history of the genre (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Home sweet home

Colorado native Tarah Tokarchik will lead the UMass women's soccer team into Boulder, Colo. as they visit the Buffaloes this weekend (see Sports, page 16).

WORLD

Protests halted in Liberia

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Angered by the presence of a former Liberian warlord at the U.S. Embassy, pro-government groups yesterday renewed calls for protests. But Liberian officials refused to let the demonstrations go forward.

The Senate ordered a demonstration organized by 15 civic groups to be canceled to prevent "certain unscrupulous individuals from exploiting the situation to cause further chaos," a statement said.

The groups had planned to march to the seaside U.S. compound to protest the presence of former rebel leader Roosevelt Johnson, sparking fears at the embassy that the situation could again turn violent.

The government of President Charles Taylor has repeatedly demanded that Johnson, Taylor's chief rival, be turned over to them.

"The delay of the transfer of Johnson and others to the Liberian government is a sign of defeat and a mockery of democracy," the Congress of National Trade Unions of Liberia said in a statement, calling for a demonstration Thursday at the embassy. But the Justice Ministry said no permit would be issued.

NATION

Army officials ban porn magazines

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the military it's Playboy, yes, Penthouse and Hustler, no.

Enforcing terms of a 1996 law, the Pentagon announced yesterday it is banning the sale on U.S. military bases of 153 sexually explicit magazines and other publications, including Penthouse and Hustler magazines.

Copies already in stock will be removed from shelves at commissaries and other military stores, officials said.

At the same time, a military board set up by the Pentagon to implement the law approved the continued sale of 14 "adult sophisticate periodicals" it deemed to be "not sexually explicit," including Playboy Magazine and Hustler Humor.

The Military Honor and Decency Act of 1996 forbids sale or rental on military property of magazines or videos that portray nudity in a lascivious way." Service members still can possess nonobscene material on military bases by buying it off-base or through the mail.

Rep. Roscoe Bartlett (R-Md.), the author of that legislation, said "it's about time" that the Pentagon began carrying out the law.

"But it's sad that the military had to wait for an act of Congress and more than two years of litigation up to the Supreme Court before it could become a responsible employer and remove this garbage from DOD store shelves," Bartlett said.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 67	HIGH: 74	HIGH: 76
LOW: 45	LOW: 52	LOW: 53

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 14
Comics .....page 15
Crossword .....page 15
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 14
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 16

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

PHOTO ILLUSTRATION BY BRIAN McDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Binge drinking is a problem on college campuses across the nation, but a recent survey says the percentage of students binging is decreasing.

Binge drinking drops according to survey

By Molly Cahill
Collegian Correspondent

A survey of almost 15,000 college students shows there has been a decrease in the number of "binge drinkers" on campuses across the country and that many students are deciding not to drink at all.

The 1997 Harvard School of Public Health College Alcohol Study released last week in Cambridge compared their findings to a survey done in 1993. Since that time, 2 percent fewer students engaged in binge drinking which is defined as at least five drinks in a row for men or at least four drinks in a row for women.

A little over 3 percent more students are abstaining from alcohol all together. Colleges in the northwest have shown the highest decrease making up 11 percent of the students who report they no longer binge drink.

However, not all areas have improved. Those who do drink heavily report being intoxicated more often and the number of students driving while under the influence has gone up since 1993. Four out of five members of fraternities and sororities said they binge drink.

Dr. Henry Wechsler, the Principle Investigator of the study, said the drop in those who drink doesn't mean a drop in the number of problems caused by drinking.

"[The drop in binge drinking] has been more offset by the intensity of drinking among those who do drink — more drinking to get drunk, more frequent drunkenness and more alcohol related problems such as drinking and driving," Wechsler said.

While binge drinking is dropping, a clearer distinction is being made between drinkers and non–drinkers

"Campuses seem to be polarized by binge drinking with the numbers of abstainers increasing in the face of more disruptive drinking behavior," Wechsler said. "Fraternity and sorority members and especially students who live in the houses continue at the center of the campus alcohol culture."

The Greek system is often seen as being a source for problem drinking and this was brought to center stage last week, when a grand jury handed down an indictment against the Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Turn to BINGE, page 3

Gingrich denies allegations of anti-impeachment deal

By Larry Margasak
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Newt Gingrich today rejected talk of an immediate deal with President Clinton to avoid a possible impeachment inquiry, while the Democratic leader demanded a timetable to end the process in a month or two.

The White House joined Democratic leader Dick Gephardt in expressing concern that Republicans were dragging out the review of Clinton's relationship with Monica Lewinsky — and would do the same after a formal impeachment inquiry is approved.

However, Gephardt's request for ending the entire process within a one-or-two-month period appeared at odds with Democrats on the Judiciary Committee. The committee Democrats have been urging Republicans to take more time to study information transmitted by Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr and to give Clinton a chance to respond. Instead, the committee Democrats have said, the GOP has been rushing out salacious material to the public.

Gephardt (D-Mo.) also accused Starr of withholding from Congress boxes of documents that could be

Turn to CLINTON, page 3

Georges hits Keys

By Tracy Fields
Associated Press

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Up to 100,000 people were ordered to begin evacuating the exposed Florida Keys island chain today in advance of a possible strike by Hurricane Georges.

South Florida was put under a hurricane watch as the deadly storm moved across open water between Haiti and eastern Cuba. The watch means hurricane-force wind of at least 74 mph could reach the area by late today.

George was barely a hurricane this morning with sustained wind around the center of only 75 mph, making it a Category 1 storm, but strengthening was possible and could trigger precautionary mainland evacuations as early as tonight.

Gov. Lawton Chiles declared a state of emergency in central and southern Florida, allowing the state to use the National Guard, lift tolls along evacuation routes and purchase emergency supplies. Cars, trucks and sport utility vehicles towing boats streamed along the single highway connecting the Keys today in bumper-to-bumper traffic.

Turn to HURRICANE, page 2

2 UMass students die over weekend

By Lorraine Kennedy
Collegian Staff

In the wake of the deaths of two University of Massachusetts students within days of each other, members of the University community are in a state of grieving, unable to make sense of the tragic loss of two young people.

Sophomore David Case, 19, was discovered dead early Monday morning in Brett Residence Hall, having apparently suffered respiratory failure.

Senior Scott Zissell, 21, was pronounced dead at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton last Thursday, Sept. 17. The state medical examiner determined that Zissell died of asphyxiation by accidental causes.

According to the Amherst police department, there is no ongoing criminal investigation into his death.

Jo–Anne Vanin, associate vice chancellor for student affairs and dean of students, wrote a letter to the University community Sept. 22 announcing the two deaths and offering her consolation.

"The death of any member of our community is a loss to everyone. We particularly extend our sympathy to the families and friends of Scott and David.

"Times like these remind us how fragile life is, and how, as a caring community, we need to reach out and support one another as we deal with these losses in our own ways," Vanin stated in the letter.

UMass Chief of Police John Luippold similar sentiments.

"I think it's unfortunate to have lost those two students," Luippold said. "Our thoughts go out to the families during this time."

Though "Reflect," the support group run by the University's dean of students office, will not be offering structured bereavement support groups until the spring, information about local grief resources may be obtained by calling 577–5316 and leaving a message.

Support groups are also offered through Hospice of Hampshire County, 586–8288 and St. Mary's Church in Northampton 584–7310.

Individual mental health counseling is also available through University Health Services.

BRIAN McDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Seeing the light

Amy Hoke, a graduate student in the MLA–MLP program, draws yesterday morning for a landscape design class.

MASSPIRG starts year

By Natty Yagudin
Collegian Correspondent

If you ever wondered what the term MASSPIRG meant on your semester bill, last night you got your answer in a big way.

Kicking off its first assembly for the year, the University of Massachusetts social action group had a record breaking meeting of over 150 people.

"We haven't had such a large turnout in 27 years," said Jay Rasku, a campaign organizer for the group.

Turn to MASSPIRG, page 2

Clinton does not want polls to determine fate

By Will Lester
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The release of President Clinton's videotaped testimony in the Monica Lewinsky case bolstered his standing at a time the public's perception of him as the nation's leader was declining, a poll released yesterday indicates.

Also, Republican leaders of Congress may have lost some ground with the public after the release of the videotape, according to the poll by the Pew Research Center for the People & the Press. GOP leaders say they are not taking cues from polls as lawmakers decide whether to proceed with impeachment.

"I don't think people want this Congress to deal with a constitutional issue based on the latest overnight poll," House Speaker Newt Gingrich said yesterday. He also said Congress should not "enact a grotesque version of justice based on the latest poll or the latest talk show."

The president, under increasing pressure in recent weeks from both Republicans and fellow Democrats, was losing ground in several key areas in the polling done over the weekend. Some had predicted the video's release would further damage his standing with the public.

But the Pew poll, in separate samples taken before and after the release of the videotape, shows a different result.

Clinton's job approval rating was at 55 percent in polling over the weekend after almost eight months above 60 percent. But his rating climbed back to 62 percent after the video was shown Monday. The percentage of people who thought it would be better for the country if Clinton were to remain in office dipped from 76 percent in early September to 60 percent by the weekend. But that figure rebounded to 69 percent after the video's release.

Almost half of those questioned over the weekend thought the president did not have moral standing to lead the nation. After the testimony aired, that dropped to 41 percent.

Just two weeks ago, Republican leaders of Congress had been getting their best job approval ratings in the Pew poll in almost three years, with 44 percent approving and 37 percent disapproving. After the video's release, the public was equally divided on their job performance.

"The Republicans are overplaying their hand," said Roy Romer, general chairman of the Democratic National Committee. "The American people have a wisdom about this that Congress has not yet picked up."

Even if the president benefits from some backlash because of the video's release, he does not fare that well among Americans who saw his taped testimony.

By a 50-38 margin, those who watched thought he did not make a good case for himself and he lost sympathy with more people, 43 percent, than he gained it with, 32 percent.

Pollster Andrew Kohut, director of the Pew Research Center, said the public's negative reaction to the videotape's release slowed Clinton's slide for now.

"There was a negative reaction to the Starr report that is being masked," Kohut said. "But when Republicans confront the public with this [material], they get a negative reaction." The sample of 500 adults interviewed Saturday and Sunday had a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percentage points. The sample of 706 adults interviewed Monday and Tuesday had a margin of error of plus or minus 4.5 percentage points.

■ hurricane

continued from page 1

At Key West's popular Hog's Breath Saloon, "Georges is the top topic of discussion," employee Rebecca Este said today. "Are you leaving, are you staying? That's what people are asking."

Among those planning to stay, Barbara Webb said she planned to ride out the storm at her home in Big Coppin Key. "If the storm is worse, then we think we'll leave our house on the water and go into town to hopefully rock solid concrete buildings."

She was buying bottled water at the Circle K in Big Coppin Key, 10 miles north of Key West, but couldn't stock up on D-cell batteries because the store's delivery truck was turned back under the evacuation order.

The mandatory evacuation began with Key West and the other lower Keys at 7 a.m., and officials planned to move the order up the island chain in phases.

Residents who ignore the evacuation order will be left on their own, said Becky Herrin of the Monroe County Sheriff's Office. "We can't guarantee them emergency services or help of any kind."

Elderly Keys residents dependent on electric medical equipment already had been flown to Sebring in central Florida. And 200 nursing home patients were sent to a Key West immigration center that would serve as a shelter during the storm, said Dave Bruns, spokesman for the Department of Elder Affairs.

On the mainland, Broward and Miami-Dade counties declared their own states of emergency. If forecasters see Georges again reaching Category 3 strength, with sustained wind of at least 111 mph, mandatory evacuations of more than a half-million people from Miami Beach and other low-lying coastal areas could start as early as tonight.

The hurricane watch issued by the National Hurricane Center in Miami covered Collier, Broward, Miami-Dade and Monroe counties, from Deerfield Beach near West Palm Beach southward on the East Coast and for areas south of Bonita Beach, near Naples, on the southwestern Florida coast.

At 11 a.m. EDT, Georges was about 35 miles south of the eastern tip of Cuba and about 595 miles southeast of Key West, and was moving west-northwest near 15 mph. Georges had maximum sustained wind near 75 mph, and strengthening was possible over the next 24 hours.

Hurricane-force wind extended as far as 60 miles from Georges' center, while tropical storm-force wind extended 175 miles. When Georges gets close to South Florida, top wind could reach 96 mph.

Some Keys residents and visitors had already started leaving Tuesday night.

■ MASSPIRG

continued from page 1

MASSPIRG was started in 1972 by UMass students who felt that important social issues around the country were not properly addressed by our representatives. Today, it holds over 20 chapters in colleges around Massachusetts.

Over the years, the group has registered some impressive achievements. One was convincing Governor Paul Cellucci to issue an executive order which called for a reduction in pesticide spraying on state buildings and grounds.

This year, students laid out four main issues on their agenda: voter registration, cleaning up of water ways around the state, beating hunger and homelessness and preservation of Arctic water and land.

This may sound a bit ambitious to accomplish in one year, but Liz Kennedy, an activist, sounds nonetheless optimistic. "Energy is so important to the group, as well as seeing the big picture," she said.

Judging by the creativity that buzzed all through the room, it seems that UMass students are ready to meet the challenge. In the past few weeks, they promoted an advertising campaign that pointed to a can as "MASSPIRG — 100 percent public interest" and to a can opener as "You." The large turnout indicated that it caught people's attention.

At the meeting, Arctic Preservation Committee members recalled last year's demonstration, during which they got cited in The Boston Globe and screamed "Monica is done, stop corporate scum" through the streets of Boston. There are plans for a protest which will take place this year as well.

Other groups are more subtle, but all are influential in their own ways. The Hunger and Homelessness Committee organizes food drives and volunteers for soup kitchens. Last year, about $8,000 was raised for homeless relief. The Water Ways group is going to clean lakes, as well as call up some legislators in Boston and Washington. Students with the Voter Registration Campaign simply took five voter forms and vowed to turn them in by the next meeting, filled and signed by students.

Whether the participants in last night's meeting will profoundly affect this year's campaigns still remains to be seen, but members of the group are hopeful.

"Being proactive is the most important thing," Kennedy

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Art and nature

Maggie Nowinski, an employee of the Fridge art gallery in Amherst, hangs work for an exhibition that will open Saturday at the Durfee conservatory.

Accused gunman goes to court

By Anne Gerran
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The man accused of killing two police guards at the Capitol looked anxiously to his lawyer for help yesterday as a judge asked him such questions as his name and address.

Russell E. Weston Jr., bandaged and appearing frightened, was pushed into a federal courtroom in a wheelchair for his first appearance before a judge since the July 24 shootings.

He did not enter a plea, although he could have done so, and neither his lawyers nor prosecutors raised the potentially central issue of Weston's mental status. The defendant said he understood the charge against him.

Weston's lawyers, expected eventually to raise an insanity defense, would not discuss that strategy after Weston's brief appearance in U.S. District Court.

Weston, 41, was shot several times by police. He has been hospitalized since the shootings and was physically unable to appear in court before yesterday, his lawyers said. Federal defendants typically appear in court within a day or two of their arrests.

Weston, whose family lives in Valmeyer, Ill., remains under guard in a locked ward at D.C. General Hospital, where he has weathered at least five surgical operations. He cannot walk yet, defense lawyer A.J. Kramer said.

A team of defense psychiatrists is authorized to visit Weston, and their evaluations likely would form the basis for any insanity claim. Prosecutors have lined up their own doctors, but those experts are not yet allowed to visit Weston.

Bandages peeked from a sleeve and pants leg of Weston's orange jail uniform. The uniform hung on Weston's hunched shoulders as he turned to Kramer for help answering the judge's first question: "What is your name?"

Weston appeared to gain confidence as the six-minute hearing continued. He told U.S. Magistrate John M. Facciola he understands the charge and his rights to a lawyer and to a preliminary hearing. Asked his address, Weston again looked at his lawyer before replying: "At the Washington, D.C., hospital."

Kramer told reporters to draw their own conclusions about Weston's demeanor.

"He just looked at me to try to understand," Kramer said. Weston was diagnosed years ago as a paranoid schizophrenic. He wrote frequent letters to government agencies, complaining about grievances such as his belief that land mines were planted on the grounds of his Montana cabin, court papers show. He once drove up to the guard hut outside the CIA and delivered a rambling discourse on President Clinton, Marilyn Monroe and cloning, the papers said. Prosecutors have offered no suspected motive for the shootings, which began when a gunman burst through a metal detector at a Capitol door.

A grand jury is investigating the case and could indict Weston at any time, perhaps before his next scheduled court appearance Oct. 14. Court sources said that is likely.

Once indicted, Weston would be arraigned and his lawyers could take the opportunity to address his sanity. At that point, Weston would likely undergo a preliminary review by government doctors at a federal prison hospital.

Eventually, a judge would have to decide whether Weston is competent to understand a trial and whether or not he understood the difference between right and wrong at the time of the shootings.

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Germ resitant to drug

A germ that causes meningitis is becoming resistant to the drug most often used to treat the deadly disease.

Meningitis, an infection of the linings of the brain and spinal cord, strikes thousands of Africans every year, with smaller outbreaks in other parts of the world.

Meningitis often is caused by neisseria meningitidis, bacteria that usually live harmlessly in the nose and throat and can be spread by sneezing or direct contact.

Drug-resistant strains of type B neisseria meningitidis were found in 11 patients in Vietnam and one patient in France from 1987 to 1996, scientists at the Pasteur Institute in Paris reported in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

The researchers found that the 12 different strains all had the same genetic variation that made them resistant to chloramphenicol, the standard treatment for meningitis in developing countries. All 12 strains also were resistant to streptomycin and sulfonamide drugs. However, they responded to other medication, including penicillin and tetracycline.

Calculus Tutor
• Friendly & Helpful
• Affordable
• Available Anytime
(at your campus bookstore)
CALCULUS MADE EASY
www.wizpower.com

■ Clinton

continued from page 1

favorable to Clinton.

A Democratic source, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said this included FBI interview notes from last Jan. 16, when agents and prosecutors first confronted Lewinsky at a Virginia hotel.

Also not turned over were numerous grand jury transcripts, including the testimony of Lewinsky's father, Bernard Lewinsky, a committee official said. About 20 boxes of material were withheld.

"For anybody to talk about doing anything before we finish the investigative process simply puts the cart before the horse," -House speaker Newt Gingrich

The Judiciary Committee is scheduled to meet today on releasing additional materials in its possession, including grand jury testimony of presidential friend Vernon Jordan and Lewinsky's former friend, Linda Tripp.

Committee officials said the material must go to the Government Printing Office by Monday evening, although it could be sent there sooner if lawmakers finish expunging irrelevant and sexually explicit material before then. If the committee waits until the deadline, the material might not become public until late next week.

"For anybody to talk about doing anything before we finish the investigative process simply puts the cart before the horse," Gingrich (R-Ga.) told reporters following a meeting of House GOP and Democratic leaders.

"I don't understand how people can rush to a solution before they finish the investigation," Gingrich said. "There's an awful lot of evidence that hasn't been gathered yet. People need to allow the process to go forward in an orderly manner and not assume that they know what the final outcome will be either way."

Gephardt and senior Judiciary Committee Democrat John Conyers of Michigan declined to appear with Gingrich as they did at a similar meeting two weeks ago. Instead, they held their own news conference.

"For the sake of the country and in the interests of limiting the exposure of our children to this kind of detail in an atmosphere of wall-to-wall media coverage, this needs to be dealt with due process and justice but also deliberate speed," Gephardt said.

At the White House, press secretary Mike McCurry said the idea of a lesser punishment such as a congressional censure and a fine is a "bipartisan idea" that better reflects public sentiment. But he said the White House is aware that impeachment hearings are more likely.

"Realistically speaking, I guess you have to be reconciled to that," McCurry said. "Maybe, as the debate unfolds, people will get to a different place than where they are now."

"This needs to be dealt with due process and justice but also deliberate speed," -Richard Gephardt (D– Mo.)

McCurry said Gingrich and his top lieutenants appear mainly interested in delaying the matter for partisan political advantage. "It is some concern to the White House that people who are genuinely motivated, who want to bring this matter to some resolution, seem to be drowned out by those who want this matter to drag on and on and on," McCurry said today.

Asked about polls showing Americans seem to agree, Gingrich said: "I think people would be frankly horrified if the Congress was simply a pulling institution that enacted a grotesque version of justice based on the latest poll or the latest talk show." At the leadership meeting, sources said, Gingrich brushed aside Gephardt's request for a short timetable. At one point, these sources said, Gingrich replied that if the committee wrapped up its work in 90 days, for example, and then fresh material surfaced, the entire process would have to be repeated.

In his comments to reporters, Gingrich said the timing "depends, for example, on whether or not the president instructs his staff to testify. It depends on whether the attitude is obstruction or the attitude is cooperation. And I think that at the moment we don't know what'll happen."

Democrats also said Gingrich strongly suggested the Republicans might want to expand the inquiry beyond the issue of Clinton and Lewinsky, possibly folding in other areas that Starr has investigated or allegations of campaign finance violations by the president during his 1996 re-election.

Gephardt raised the question of the documents held by Starr in a letter to Gingrich. "How can we decide on the fairness of the process without determining what is in the interviews, grand jury testimony and boxes of documents that for totally unexplained reasons the independent counsel withheld?" the leader wrote. Gephardt acted a day after Clinton's attorneys complained that Starr's report failed to include direct statements from Lewinsky that no one asked her to lie about the affair or promised her a job in exchange for her silence.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Behind the back

Junior computer science and mathmatics major Steven Williams juggles near the Campus Pond yesterday afternoon.

Clinic allegedly recruited visitors

By Minerva Canto
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A medical clinic allegedly recruited poor city youngsters, paid them up to $10 to undergo unnecessary exams, including gynecological tests, and then billed the state.

No arrests had been made, and an investigation was continuing yesterday as detectives studied records seized from the clinic. "If any of it is true, it's absolutely outrageous," Los Angeles County Supervisor Don Knabe said.

Paramount Medical Center employees allegedly picked up the children between the ages of 9 and 14 from housing projects in South Central Los Angeles, north Long Beach and Compton. They then took them to the clinic in the Paramount area of Los Angeles, authorities said.

Calls seeking comment from clinic officials went unanswered. Each boy was reportedly paid $5 and each girl $10. Girls were paid more because gynecological exams could be performed on them, sheriff's Sgt. Mason Kenny said.

"To a kid, (it) seems like a lot of money," said Glenda Wining, spokeswoman for county Supervisor Yvonne Brathwaite Burke. The children were given prescriptions for spermicidal condoms and birth control following the examinations, Kenny said.

■ binge

continued from page 1

chapter of Phi Gamma Delta. It charged the fraternity with manslaughter and hazing.

The case came as a result of the death of Scott Krueger an 18-year-old freshman who drank himself to death at a party last September. According to Suffolk District Attorney Ralph Martin, the fraternity could face a $3,000 fine if found guilty of hazing.

But according to the survey, sororities and fraternities are not the only sources for binge drinking. The number of students drinking in residence halls as well as those living off campus has increased as well.

The likelihood of binge drinking depends on many characteristics including gender, race, age and whether or not a person binged in high school. The study shows higher drinking rates are found in single white males, 23 years or

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

#IP HOP dance
HOUSE reggae funk seedleSs FUEL
snuE
Fry Girls
lithium DOUBLEDOWN
dawls Starlette
growroom music clothing
providing the valley with the freshest
sounds & fashions
42 at the carriage shops second floor
downtown amherst
413.549.6226
www.growroom.com haven't checked us out yet?
you need to see what we've got growing!

WELCOME BACK
For Family Day
Weekend!
Get 20% off any item with current UMass ID
the Mountain Goat
177 MAIN STREET, NORTHAMPTON • 586-0803
OPEN 7 DAYS • "Outdoor Fun Fitters"
Bring in this coupon & receive a Welcome
Back gift with Umass ID
9/28/98

SCORE!
A NIGHT AT THE ROXBURY ROXBURY PG-13 PARENTS STRONGLY CAUTIONED
www.theroxbury.com
COMING SOON TO THEATRES EVERYWHERE

IT'S LIKE
MOM
USED TO MAKE.
Just before she was arrested.
CIDER JACK HARD CIDER

— The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian —

Somethin' horsey

Dan Viens

There I was sitting down to my dinner in the beautiful Berkshire Dining Commons. What was the meal? It was none other than a big juicy grade D quarter-pound burger. Students were lined up for what seemed to be miles, just waiting to sink their teeth into the red flesh. People begged for two and three burgers, some with cheese and some without. Others wanted lettuce and some tomatoes. But no matter what, the most important part of the meal was the small chunk of cow lying in that nice, soft bun.

In all of this confusion I couldn't help but wonder how many big cows had been chopped up to create all of these little burgers in the Berkshire DC. Then I thought, "Wait a minute, they're having burgers at every DC tonight." How many cows had to be slaughtered to make all of the burgers on the entire campus?

How many cows get slaughtered every day for all of the burgers at every McDonald's, Burger King, Wendy's, Friendly's and every other roadside burger joint all over the world? As I sank my incisors into my little cow,(don't get me wrong: I feel bad for the cows, but I was pretty damn hungry that night) I thought to myself that these cow holocausts must come to an end.

Cows don't receive much attention because they are low-key, unlike horses who are veritable lunatics that are always looking for attention. When you go to a rock concert, who gets more attention, the crazy lead singer who is always jumping around and making a fool out of himself or the bassist who stands back and just plays?

The answer is of course the lead singer. This, however, does not make him a superior musician. The bassist has plenty to offer. It sometimes just takes more of a trained eye to see it. Like the bassist, the cow has plenty to offer. One just needs to look closer at it than the horse, to see its talents.

The cow is very similar to the human. I'm sure that you are saying, "How?" Well here it is: cows and humans have the exact same goal in life. The only difference is that most cows have already achieved this goal. The goal is comfort. It is that simple: we are all searching for comfort.

What is everybody at this University and every other university in the country doing? They are (supposedly) trying to attain a quality education. Of course, they hope to find a quality job when they get out of school, with money as the desired result. With the money, they are going to take trips to places that make them comfortable. Maybe you still don't believe me. Why is it that no one wants to live in a corner room, but everyone wants to live in a Z-room? Comfort. Why this, why that? Trust me, most of the answers are the same: comfort.

This is where everything gets rolled up into one big ball of wax. Cows are by far the most comfortable animals on the planet. All they do is stand around and chew their cud. Every now and then they moo and when it is going to rain they lie down. Other than that they just hang around and ponder, in a state of nirvana.

They have no desires and no wishes. They don't even mind getting chopped up. They welcome the separation of mind and body. They only await the day that the cage of their body will die and their mind will be set free. Many people may say that this is the very reason that we should kill cows. I disagree. We can learn much from these stoic beings.

Seeing as I have shown that cows are the most relaxed beings on our planet, and that humans are striving for this comfort and relaxation, it follows that cows should be looked upon as at least our equals and probably our superiors. I think that this warrants an end to their slaughter.

Why can't we eat horse instead of cow? After all, the horse and cow are like suitemates on a farm. If you walk into one of the Sylvan suites and you're a cannibal, chances are that over time you are going to eat all of the people in the suite. Doesn't it follow that we should just eat all of the animals on the farm? People always talk about world hunger and people who can't afford to feed their families. Well my answer to that is "Let's cut up some horse."

All right, maybe you're not following me thus far. Let me bring all of you slow kids up to speed. Horses really are not that great. The only reasons people like them are because they enjoy having them between their legs and they run around big dirt ovals pretty fast. When it comes down to it, horses are idiots. After all, they can't even put on their own shoes. They run around and kick people in the face. Also, everyone is always complaining about compulsive gamblers; that gambling ruins families, and people lose their food or rent money at Off Track Betting. Well here's the solution. Kill all the horses! In doing this we solve some problems. A huge part of gambling is curbed, and there is plenty of horse meat to go around.

There is of course one huge problem with killing all the horses. Over time while we have been devouring cows left and right plenty of people have been falling in love with horses. They've been domesticating them, feeding them, naming them and sometimes even treating them better than their own family members. These people have developed a relationship that can only be compared to that of humans and dogs. What I will do now is show that instead of the horse being one of man's best friends, it should be the cow that is getting all of this preferential treatment.

When it comes right down to the "meat" of the problem, horses are like crazy dudes running around high on cocaine. At the same time cows are respectable, silent and learned elders that have much to offer to our society besides meat and milk. It may be difficult to make your decision after reading this column, but there is one way I can make it an easy one. You should eat the animal that is most likely to boot you in the face the next time you come across one. This, of course, would be the horse.

Dan Viens is a UMass student.

Head over heels

For the past four years, I'd been head over heels for my guy friend. We've known each other since the seventh grade. But, it wasn't until our last year in high school that I started falling for him like a hopeless idiot.

During that time, friends would come up to me and ask, "What's up with you and that guy? Do you like him or something?" because they would see us hanging around each other a lot in the classes we had together and in the hallways.

We seemed to like the same corny movies, such as "The Bridges of Madison County" and "Much Ado About Nothing." It didn't hurt either that he made me laugh a lot.

I have to admit that I was overdoing it, but I just couldn't help myself — or my heart for that matter.

Lillian Chan

I was pretty uptight before I met him. I just could not take a joke. But, all that changed with the insults we started cracking on each other.

As I left for my trip to Hong Kong in the summer of '95, I told him that I would find the ugliest postcard to send to him. To make sure that it would be really ugly, he suggested that I put the postcard against my face. If it came in second, then it was worthy enough to be sent to him.

I assumed that after graduation that we'd lose touch since we were going our separate ways. But instead, we hung out a lot, called each other almost every night, and from time to time he'd come up to Amherst to visit me, which just made it that much harder for me to forget about and get over him.

I kept telling my friends that he liked me. It was just that he hadn't realized it yet. One called me a loser and another gave me a yeah-right expression. I have to admit that I was overdoing it, but I just couldn't help myself — or my heart for that matter. Heck, he was even the topic of most of the creative writing assignments that I had been given by some of my professors (Geez, now I'm writing about him in the Collegian!) Pathetic? Maybe.

One fine day, he came up to visit me and we had a great time hanging out with each other. And, the unthinkable of all unthinkable happened — we kissed. I was blown away by the fact that it was actually happening to me. My four years of waiting proved to be fruitful. He really did like me as much as I liked him — or so I thought.

I didn't know then what I know now. A kiss doesn't bring about the beginning of a relationship or a promise of undying affection. Why I thought that in the first place I have no clue. Was I naive? Was I ignorant? Was I still living with that fairy tale fantasy of happily ever after? Yes, I was most definitely all of those things and then some.

After that moment, everything became awkward. I decided to just forget about it and never talk about it ever again. He made that decision too. But, it didn't work because our conversations became strained. It was hard to talk about anything because there was this big issue looming over us that we kept trying to push back. The silences that soon ensued became deafening. So, to avoid the tension, we just eventually stopped talking altogether.

At the time, I was elated with the thought that this was the beginning, but it was really the beginning of the end. Who knew that once we crossed the boundaries of friendship that we would never be the same again? Who knew that there wouldn't even be a friendship afterward? I hadn't taken those possibilities into consideration.

His birthday was a few days ago. I didn't call him or send him an e-mail, but I did send him a card. How could I not? Even after all that's happened, I still miss the laughter that we used to share and our conversations that lasted into the wee hours of the morning.

In a way, I'm glad that this happened. At least, I'm not as clueless as I used to be. I've learned to not take things to heart and to always think with my head—analyze all the possibilities to a situation. Also, fantasies are best left as fantasies because once you start drawing them into real life they get screwed up.

The last time I spoke to him was about three months ago. That's an eternity considering that we used to talk to each other every other day. But, it he doesn't call, then at least I know that I tried my best at salvaging whatever was left of our friendship. Either way, life goes on. Growing up is bittersweet. It's heartbreaking at times, yet so enlightening.

Lillian Chan is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

OIT responds to concerns

To the editor:

I read with concern the editorial opinion entitled "The TAU of UMass" in the Daily Collegian on Wednesday, Sept. 16, and wanted to take this opportunity to share some information with the campus community. While OIT endeavors to get as much information out to as many people as possible, Chris Collins reminds me that we can always strive to do better.

As of now more than 40 percent of the student residential spaces on campus are Ethernet capable. One jack per room (in wired residence halls) was prewired for fast activation on request, with the second jack also available for wiring. As of Thursday, Sept. 17, approximately 1,600 requests from students had been made and more than 1,250 jacks were already activated by OIT.

As more funding becomes available, more residence halls will be wired. This high speed Ethernet eliminates the need for TAUs in wired residence halls.

While OIT does not distribute the TAUs(theHousing Telecommunications Office, part of Housing Services does), OIT does support the software that works with the TAUs, and the services that many TAU users connect to. One does not need to have an OIT account, nor pay an OIT fee, to use the TAU. Students do need to pay $20 to OIT to use an Ethernet connection or to use OIT's host computers, e-mail systems, or public labs. The card students sign when picking up a TAU is verification to Housing Services Telecommunications that the student will be responsible for and will return the TAU in good condition.

New students may find that getting the device running properly can be a challenge; fortunately, there is good information available on how to connect. Housing Telecom publishes a booklet entitled "TAU User's Guide," which is given to each student who gets a TAU. It guides the student through the connection process and troubleshooting.

OIT's consultants at the Help Desk and in Software Support handle numerous questions regarding the TAUs, TAU cables, and relevant software applications. OIT does discuss the potential need for an additional port for an external modem device (the TAU in several printed documents distributed to students. OIT has licensed communications software available if needed. Today, most computers' operating systems come delivered with the necessary software to connect to OIT's host services, other hosts or the Internet.

On our current OIT web site, as well as in our published documentation, there is information about the contents and availability of our CD. The web address for this information is: http://www.oit.umass.edu/hds/apps/oit-cd.html.

Students who are not yet connected can reach these pages from public lab computers or friends' computers. The OIT CDs, which became available for the first time this fall, can be picked up for no charge at the Help Desk by anyone with a UCard. Students who do not have a CD drive receive printed materials and a diskette, if needed, as has been the practice for the last several years. CDs and documentation containing large print are available for individuals who are sight impaired.

Only new students or students with new computers needed to pick up a CD or diskette and documentation. Students returning to campus, with their computer from last year, should be able to use the same software and configurations they used then. OIT continuously updates information on its website, as do the producers of Internet applications. Students who are connected can get help on-line by visiting: http://www.oit.umass.edu/help.

And as for the long lines to get an OIT account — the lines have been greatly reduced due to our issuing accounts in the summer, combined with the extended hours of service and appointment system used in the Campus Center during the first two weeks of the fall semester. These programs seem to have gone very well for most students.

OIT welcomes constructive criticism. While we do our best to get support information out, we also realize that not everyone will see it. We'll keep looking for better ways to keep the campus informed and improve service.

Kenyon Fairey, Re.D.
Director, Help Desk Services
Office of Information Technologies

Pamphlet spreads wrong message

To the editor:

The other night, Sunday, Sept. 20, a disturbing piece of literature was distributed in our dormitory. The stench of homophobic, racist, classist and sexist hatred permeated the flyer. As members of the Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender (GLBT), Jewish and other minority communities, we are disgusted and outraged. This hurtful propaganda is unacceptable and should not to be tolerated by any member of the human race.

As a university rich in diverse religious backgrounds, the notion of protecting "Christian ideals... in all walks of campus life," according to the flyer, makes little sense. To force one's beliefs on others is an atrocity. We refuse to be drowned in these expressions of hate.

Well known African-American, lesbian, feminist writer and activist Audre Lorde in Sinister Wisdom 6 (1978) wrote, "Your silence will not protect you." We will not keep silent and allow this hatred to manifest itself in this University.

We write to inform and educate, not to bash this organization in return. We are all human beings and have the right to live our own lives free of oppression.

This organization, who chose to remain nameless in their own literature, claims to have gained control of the Student Senate. "This campus has gone from the old rugged cross and merit-based education to affirmative action and lesbian pagans," according to the flyer distributed by them.

The flyer then clearly states that their agenda consists of "Revitalizing[the traditions of our forefathers." We feel this group's agenda resonates the fascist ideals of the German Nazis. One wonders if the traditions of wearing white pointed hats, white cloaks and burning crosses in front of people's homes is what they really had in mind. Do we really want to go back in time when basic human rights were denied?

Dylan Larke
Sherri Martin
2 in 20 Program

Letter Writers!

Take note of our new address if you plan to send your letters via e-mail:

Letters@oitunix.oit.umass.edu

And please remember to keep your letters to at most 400 words. Any questions? Call Mike at 545-1491.

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor-in-Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Memaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Kosky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor
Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Mirry Paipas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

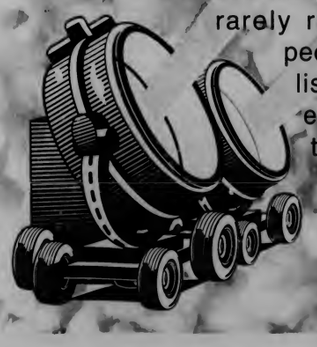
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

THE SOUND OF MOVIES



for[illegible] and [illegible] and pla[illegible] language he[illegible] audience. This works especially well for an audience that is young and pop–culture literate. Too bad most pop music soundtracks have wasted this potential.

The first problem is that most songs on soundtracks are not even released before the movie, missing out on music's great power to recall the past. Second, and more importantly, most of the new songs suck. Not only are the songs not good enough to make it onto an artist's regular albums, but most of the artists are awful to begin with. Of course there are exceptions, but no one vital, energetic soundtrack like Trainspotting can make up for the heap of blandness.

Besides that, soundtracks rarely reflect young people's diverse listening interests. You'd think teenagers listened to nothing but dull mall–rock

Turn to TRACK, page 10

Layout and Design By: Cynthia A Greene

[illegible] ways been an important pa[illegible] pictures. [illegible]ting back the[illegible] era, [illegible] orchestr[illegible] piano [illegible]s would play along with the flashi[illegible]ngs. When sound finally arrived, [illegible]kers put the music inside the movie[illegible]s vocal songs, as flowery decoration, and then as legitimate film scores.

Film scoring is a difficult job. The music has to support the images and not overwhelm them, while still striving to be memorable on its own. These composers have met the challenge.

Ennio Morricone is one of the most prolific film scorers who ever lived, with over 400 scores to his credit. Born in Rome in 1928, Morricone's career began in Italian film and developed into a productive partnership with director Sergio Leone. The two of them collaborated on many westerns, including 1964's Per Un Pugno Di Dollari. Morricone is known for his sparse, eerie arrangements and his use of unusual instrumentation such as electric guitars and bells. He eventually brought his talents to Hollywood, adding his unique musical vision to

Turn to COMPOSE, page 10

Simon Birch a predictable tale

COURTESY ALAN MARKFIELD

Joeseph Mazzelo (left) and Ian Michael Smith (right) cool off in Simon Birch.

By Adam Martignetti
Collegian Correspondent

SIMON BIRCH
Directed by Mark Steven Johnson with Ian Michael Smith, Ashley Judd, Jim Carrey
Playing at Hampshire Six Theaters

Before the audience ever realizes how special Simon Birch is, they know that his life is fleeting. The story is told retrospectively, so Simon's gravestone and his age of death, 12, are revealed in the very first scene. The movie then proceeds to recount the story of an unwieldy, awkward, 12- year-old and his unlikely path in life thus far.

Simon Birch is the smallest baby ever born at Gravestone Memorial Hospital. His parents don't know what to do with him he's so small, so they choose to ignore him; they're ambivalent. Simon's best friend, in fact his only friend, is Joe Wentworth. Joe and his mother are the only two people who care about Simon. The rest of his small world, which consists pretty much of a church congregation an a Sunday school class, see Simon as different, weird and even annoying.

Of course, they seem to have good reasons for their apprehensions. Simon is different, but not just physically. Simon sincerely believes that God has a plan for all people, especially him. He unabashedly claims that his ordained destiny is to become a hero and that God will use him as an "instrument" to accomplish this end.

During a little league game, a foul ball off of Simon's bat tragically kill's Joe's mother — Simon's guardian angel so to speak. From this point on, Simon's quest to be a hero becomes intertwined with Joe's quest to discover the identity of his father, known only by his deceased mother. In the end, Simon proves everyone in his world wrong by fulfilling both his destinies. He not only helps Joe find his true father, but also becomes a hero thanks in part to his small appearance and enormous courage.

At first glance, Simon Birch, the movie and the character, come off as impossible to believe. How can this 12-year-old possibly rattle off scripture quotes as quickly as a priest or how can he quip such enormously funny one-liners at will? The simple explanation lies in the fact that Simon is an exceptional character. Simon is intellectualized and spiritualized well beyond his 12 years. His excellence in these two areas is accepted, rationalized, and believed, almost as a compensation for his tiny stature and physical shortcomings. Still, there is something inherently implausible about a pair of young friends planning sexual conquests, talking about their destinies, and searching for an unknown father.

Simon Birch wants to be a kids movie, but it deals with subjects like faith and destiny that most kids do not understand. To its credit, the movie never fully comes down to a child's level. At the same time, the childish antics and, at times, frivolous dialogue prevent the movie from being qualified as a true drama. Simon Birch lies somewhere in between these two extremes– never

Turn to SIMON, page 7

Blues poet Dixon's album rereleased

This is the Chicago blues — the real deal. This is the blues in its purest form, coming straight from the source: Willie Dixon.

This summer, Legacy has continued their Mojo Workin' series in fine form by reissuing a number of big name blues albums, among them Willie Dixon's Poet of the Blues.

Born and bred in Vicksburg, Miss., and finding his way up north to Chicago during the 30's, Dixon is considered the father of the post–war Chicago blues. His songs made the careers of such blues greats as Muddy Waters, Little Walter and Howlin' Wolf, as well as such big name rockers as Led Zeppelin, The Rolling Stones, Cream and The Doors.

Beginning his recording career in 1940 as a member of the Five Breezes, Dixon laid the foundations for what would become rock 'n roll, not only writing the music, but also playing bass for Chuck Berry, one of rock's pioneers. Dixon is truly one of the giants of American music.

This recording traces his development from the 1940s to the blues revival of the 60s and early 70s, and overall, it is outstanding.

The CD begins with "Back Door Man," a song covered by The Doors on their first album. With a slide guitar that slopes up to the matter–of–fact vocal lines, a trembling harmonica and a hesitating, syncopated rhythm, this track is a classic.

"I Can't Quit You Baby," now a Led Zeppelin staple, is so cool, so laid back, so soulful, you just can't find anything like it in today's music. It gets hazy and languishing, but then rips it up with biting guitar solos, and outstanding harp and piano.

On the "Seventh Son," the harp is featured on top of smoking boogie woogie piano, only to be immediately contrasted by the sneaky "Spoonful."

Now a Cream classic, Dixon works out this cut at a quicker tempo, and it is bad ass, very slick.

Other notable tracks from Dixon's later days that should be noted include "Hoochie Koochie Man" (covered by Muddy, Hendrix and Clapton to name a few), for its double picking guitar style, and "Little Red Rooster" (covered by John Sebastian with The Doors in tow), for its stuttering, trilling harmonica and piano, and the double entendre of the song's title.

The remainder of the disk is Willie Dixon's early years from the 40's and early 50's, giving good clues to the amalgamated musical styles in this country after World War Two. Many of the tracks, especially the instrumentals "Big 3 Stomp" and "O. C. Bounce," swing like jazz songs but have the song structure of the blues.

The highlights from these early Dixon songs are the saloon anthem, "Cool Kind Woman Blues," and the very cool, reprimanding, "Juice–Head Bartender," but all the early cuts trace the electric blues' evolution into its hard–hitting, wailing and moaning form of later decades.

Joe Sullivan is a Collegian columnist.

COURTESY ALAN MARKFIELD

Jan Hooks ridicules the young Simon in the shmaltzy epic Simon Birch.

Want to sell your:

car
computer
furniture
motorcycle
used books
rent your room
need a roomate

Collegian Classifieds

"they work"

Want to Advertisers

David Harrison discusses gender, transsexuality in his play, "FTM"

By Bryan McAllister
Collegian Staff

Don't let the subject matter intimidate you.

That's what David Harrison, writer–performer of the one– man show "FTM" wants you to know. The play, showing at the Bowker Auditorium this Saturday at 8 p.m., is a story of transsexuality, a tale about the transformation from female to male.

It concerns Timothy, a young boy who is struggling with his gender change and his mother Jean, also experiencing changes in her dealings with breast cancer. But Harrison insists "FTM" is both non–threatening and entertaining.

"There's enough for people to identify of themselves in the play," said Harrison in a phone interview. He went on to say that the play is really about "being true to oneself."

"FTM" is inspired by Harrison's own life, but is not necessarily based upon it. The play does, however, attempt to give a sense of how it is to change from female to male, since there are a lot more male to female changes heard about and publicized. In essence, it is a story about, Harrison said, "what it's like to go through a transition of the inside."

The reactions to "FTM" have been nothing short of spectacular. Audiences of all ages and backgrounds have welcomed the show. Taking the play back to his high school was a "very powerful and overwhelming" experience, said Harrison.

Harrison's own transition from female to male was a long, hard decision. After dealing with breast cancer and one summer when he experienced over 100 dreams about changing his gender, Harrison decided to go through with the process. He calls it "the most terrifying thing I've ever gone through."

Harrison thinks the current attitude toward transsexuals has improved, mostly because there is a lot more information out there. "A lot has changed, a lot hasn't," he said. "Ten or 15 years ago, you couldn't do [this play]."

Harrison isn't too concerned with Hollywood and cultural stereotypes there. He applauds the 1984 film Second Serve, about a male–female change, particularly the performance by Vanessa Redgrave, who is one of his idols. He eventually got a chance to actually meet Redgrave and thanked her for playing the role.

Harrison feels that the most important way to teach people about gender changes is through education.

"We have more in common than we are different," he said.

Performing a one–man show has been rewarding, but Harrison insists that he is now "done with his personal life," ready to move on to new things. He's moving to New York to collaborate and create innovative theater. While he admits that his work will always be infused with life experience, he won't continue to focus on transsexual subject matter. He'll do "whatever's out there."

For now, Harrison is enjoying his new lifestyle. While he doesn't advocate his decision, saying that each person should do "whatever feels right inside themselves," he doesn't regret his new life. "It keeps getting better and better," he said.

"FTM" is showing Saturday, Sept. 26, at 8 p.m. in the Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $5 for the public, $2 for students, and are available through the Fine Arts Center Box Office or by calling 545–2511.

■ Simon

continued from page 6

accomplishing either with overwhelming success.

Ian Michael Smith, who plays Simon, provides the most bizarrely affable young face since Jonathan Lipnicki in Jerry Maguire. Smith excels at showing Simon's love for Joe, his regret after killing Mrs. Wentworth, his deep seeded faith, and his dejection when others do not affirm this faith. The accomplished young actor Joseph Mazzello also does an excellent job– portraying Simon's best friend. Mazzello shows Joe's strength in defending Simon as a friend, and the vulnerability and anger of a 12–year–old when an attempt to find his father goes awry. Oliver Platt, who plays Joe's newly found father, has just enough comic undertones to his otherwise dramatic role to make his performance memorable.

Ashley Judd (Mrs. Wentworth) is in this movie simply to look good. She can't be faulted for a bad performance, because she never has any scenes in which she has to act. As for Jim Carrey, the older version of Joe, there's not much to say. He narrates the movie during a few brief pauses in the action and that's about all. It's almost as if the producers wanted (or needed) to attach a big name to the script.

Even if the ending of Simon Birch is highly predictable, in fact pre–ordained, it is still a sad and touching moment, bring the tissues. This ending still cannot compensate for other shortcomings. The movie sermonizes about faith and God. Rather than let the audience conclude that faith is good, the movie simply rubs it in their faces.

In addition, the relationships among all the characters are not fully explored. I would have liked to seen more scenes between Joe and his future father, Ben Goodrich; the relationship materializes almost out of nothing. However, the relationship between Simon and Joe is very strong and well developed. It is their interaction that propels the story and the emotion of the movie. The two young boys can make you laugh, cry, and believe. They alone almost make Simon Birch worth seeing. C+

The Collegian is New England's largest college daily!

Two new albums hit high notes

By Mike Messaros
Collegian Staff

RFTC
Rocket from the Crypt
Interscope Records

The current retro–swing craze recalls a time when music may have been better, and may have been more fun to dance to. The only problem is, the swing music that exists today seems to exist in a vacuum of irony, as if everyone involved is so very self–conscious of every action, how very anachronistic they seem. "Look, I'm wearing a stylish suit with a thin black tie! Look! An upright bass!" The style (and the unfortunate irony) replaces the substance and the music therefore suffers.

I say this only because Rocket from the Crypt teeters dangerously close to the edge of this irony, but, as a testament to their skill as performers and writers, the style comes off as secondary to the music. In concert, it's easy to be taken along with their sing–along chorus, hand clapping, horn section and matching silver shirts, but on their newest album, they have captured the unrelenting inertia of their stage performance.

Throughout the band's career they have captured the sound of rock 'n' roll at it's earliest, most primal roots. This is what our parents listened to under the covers on transistor radios, what they weren't allowed to listen to. This is dirty, sweaty, loud music that harkens back to the "good ol' days" but updates it in the post–punk age.

"You Gotta Move" sounds just like the Rolling Stones, and could have fit perfectly in with the swaggering sound of Stones albums like Exile on Main Street or Sticky Fingers. "Break It Up" starts off with the same guitar part as the Beatles' "Revolution," then launches into a lurching call and response anthem. "Lipstick" contains some of the sharpest guitar work on the album, with a beautifully jagged yet fluid riff during the pre–chorus ("She looks up/ Never down/ No matter how I felt/ I feel better now").

All in all, this album is a definite contender for best album of the year. A

ARCHES AND AISLES
The Spinanes
SubPop

Once a two–person band, the Spinanes had a gift for turning a strip–downed song into something more. Rebecca Gates' guitar melded smoothly with Scott Plouf's supple drumming on their first album, Manos. On top of that bare arrangement, Gates' voice glided softly over the mix. Their next album found them expanding on that sound, with more noise at the corners of the song, creating a dreamy sound that was a vast departure from the first album.

Now on the latest album, Rebecca's basically solo, although she packs a lot of friends into the mix. Steve Prekop from The Sea and Cake and John McEntire from Tortoise help out, and the result from these two adds a distinct sonic maturity to the album.

The best thing about The Spinanes, especially recently, has been the mature sexiness of Gates' vocals and lyrics. The line about "legs leaving vinyl" on the second album always struck me, and on Arches and Aisles she continues in this vein. She sighs with heavy resignation, almost upset about sex. "Pull your clothes off/ Let's get this over with" she breathes at one point.

With McEntire and Prekop's help, Gates has sculpted an album of uncomfortable beauty, with splashes of eccentricity thrown in. "Kid in Candy," the lead–off track, glistens with percolating sounds; indistinguishable bleeps and organic noises create a hopping backdrop to Gates' withered, weary voice. "Reach v. Speed" creates a smooth gliding call and response between our favorite Spinane and Prekop (sounding a bit like Beck). The song has the effect of floating on water dangerously close to rapids — there's a tension and anticipation evident that never becomes fully realized. It's all potential. And that's a good thing.

In fact, that's how all these songs sound; it's either the point in a discussion right before it erupts into argument, or the moment after, where you take an exhaustive deep breath. This album is all about that anxiety, the trembling and the thin line between safe and explosion. The fact that the record conveys this is one of it's many strengths. B+

COURTESY CHRIS REARDON

Director Mark Steven Johnson discusses a scene with Simon Birch stars Joseph Mazzello and Ian Michael Smith.

Campus Career Network
University of Massachusetts Amherst

START THINKING ABOUT YOUR FUTURE TODAY!

FIELD EXPERIENCE WELCOME SESSIONS

BEGIN THE WEEK OF SEPT. 28TH!

COME BY AND LEARN HOW TO GET STARTED ON THE ROAD TO SUCCESS WITH INTERNSHIPS AND CO-OPS.

COLLEGE OF SOCIAL AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES
JEFF SILVER 545-6267
•TUESDAYS BEGINNING SEPTEMBER 29, 1998 3 PM
(EXCEPT FOR OCTOBER 20, 1998)
•FRIDAYS BEGINNING OCTOBER 2, 1998 10 AM
(EXCEPT FOR NOVEMBER 27, 1998)
SESSIONS ARE HELD IN 103 SOUTH COLLEGE ENTER THROUGH ENTRANCE E

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING
DEBORAH PACE 577-0419
• THURSDAYS OCTOBER 1, 8, 15, 22, 29
• NOVEMBER 5, 19
• DECEMBER 10, 17, 24
MARSTON HALL ROOM 15

SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT
CORI ASHWORTH 577-0418
•SEPT. 30TH 3PM-4PM SOM 107
•OCT. 7TH 3PM-4PM SOM 8
•OCT. 21ST 3PM-4PM SOM 8
•OCT. 28TH 3PM-4PM SOM 107
•NOV. 18TH 3PM-4PM SOM 107
•DEC. 2ND 3PM-4PM SOM 8

EDUCATION, PUBLIC HEALTH, NURSING
GLORIA DIFULVIO 577-0427
•TUESDAYS BEGINNING SEPT. 29TH 4PM
ARNOLD HOUSE 109

COLLEGE OF HUMANITIES AND FINE ARTS
DIANNA DUNN 545-6266
•THURSDAYS BEGINNING OCT. 1ST 4PM
BARTLETT 131

NATURAL SCIENCES AND MATH, COLLEGE OF FOOD AND NATURAL RESOURCES UNDECLARED MAJORS AND ANYONE WHO CANNOT ATTEND THE ABOVE WORKSHOPS SHOULD COME TO A GENERAL WORKSHOP ON THURSDAYS BEGINNING OCT. 1ST AT 3PM IN THE CAMPUS CENTER
CHECK SCHEDULE FOR ROOM NUMBER

RSO PAGES ARE COMING!

Looking for Something To Do ?

Want to Get Involved ?

The RSO Pages are coming in the FRIDAY, SEPT. 25TH COLLEGIAN

Don't forget to Check it Out !

100 FREE minutes. And just 10¢ a minute to anywhere in the U.S.
Kinda makes it hard to keep quiet.

Live off campus? Sign up for an AT&T One Rate® plan and your first 100 minutes are FREE.* Whatever your calling needs are AT&T has a One Rate plan that's right for you.

100 FREE minutes

AT&T One Rate® Plus: 10¢ a minute— one low rate all the time on state-to-state calls you dial from home. Whoever. Whenever. Wherever you call in the U.S. And just a $4.95 monthly fee.

AT&T One Rate® Off Peak: 10¢ a minute on your state-to-state, direct dialed calls from home from 7pm–7am and all weekend long; 25¢ a minute all other times. And there's no monthly fee.*

Sign up with AT&T and get 100 minutes FREE.
Call ! 800 654-0471
and mention offer code 59917
or visit www.att.com/college/np.html

It's all within your reach.® AT&T

* Terms and conditions apply. Offer limited to residential customers. Limited time offer. Minimum monthly charges apply. Usage charges, additional fees and taxes apply. Offer limited to new AT&T One Rate Plan service. Credit approval required. Equipment charges, installation charges and other restrictions may apply. Rates may vary in Alaska and Hawaii. $1 monthly minimum charge applies in Alaska and Hawaii. ©1998 AT&T

Springer, wrestling, Clinton tapes draw in the TV viewers

Tube Notes with Ryan Benharris

So with all the new shows on this week, what was the big winner? Here's a hint, it took place on Monday. Before you guess that "Monday Night Football" took its typical position at the top of the ratings, think a few hours. Did anyone watch President Clinton make a fool of himself?

The ratings that the spectacle pulled in, if all the networks were added together, were phenomenal. In the words of Dennis Miller, "I don't want to get off on a rant here," but what's the deal with America's infatuation with filth?

When I started writing this column, I jokingly made a promise to "Soap Chat's" Jacob Fanning that I would not even dare to ever touch the world of soap opera, but for the story of "The Young and the Classless" (i.e. Monica Lewinsky and her kinky sidekick) I'll make an exception. Monday afternoon, I heard something on the radio that, to me, summed up what kind of world we live in. The DJ for a Boston radio station explained how, Sunday night, when he found out that on Monday morning the President's testimony was going to be shown, he went out to a specialty store, and bought a $20 blank tape to record the entire presentation.

Last time I checked, a sane person would only use a tape of that quality to have their wedding put on film. Is the story of a man and his cigar really so important that you'd have to make the same preparations to save the memories as you would for your marriage?

I realize that this is an extreme case, but it's also exactly the way that so many people think nowadays. The purpose of this testimony has been long since forgotten, and now the President's sick sex life is being used as the best possible piece of trash to satisfy a TV world that is dominated by viewers demanding for more shock.

Here's a question to ponder: why is Jerry Springer a cherished god of the talk show world? Before I begin picking Jerry apart, I have to admit that I'm being a hypocrite. I like watching "Leave my transsexual cousin/lover alone" just as much as the next guy. However, is this stuff really appropriate? Do we really need to go deep into the dregs of society and exploit their crazy and borderline illegal lifestyles for the sole purpose of self amusement?

I mean, let's face it, when you're watching "The Jerry Springer Show," do you really care if Billy Bob, the 45- year-old pimp with one tooth and three chins, works out his differences with his best friend, Cameron, the circus midget? Of course not, you just watch to see them throw chairs at each other, and you pray that one of Billy Bob's 350-pound girls won't come out and take her clothes off.

Bottom line with Jerry Springer is that no one really cares, but everyone wants to watch. Springer becomes more of a comedy routine than the so called, "talk show" that it's supposed to be. Jerry will be the first to admit that he has no talent at all, and that he just goes with the flow while directing his stage full of idiots. And I'm sure that at the end of the day, Jerry's final thought is nothing but, "I'm the King of the world!"

It really is a mystery how he is able to bring in so many viewers, and how he gains such a huge following. It's clear though that everyone wants to be like Jerry. In the past two weeks, Sally Jesse Raphael aired her "Top 10 most memorable episodes," one of which highlighted a situation entitled, "I'm not a man or a woman."

What's happening here is that Sally's losing rating ratings faster than Jerry's booking psychos, and she doesn't know what she's going to do. The solution to this is to copy Jerry because he's had so much success. What's unfortunate is that Sally's been in this business longer than Jerry, and she's been forced to lower herself to become one of the many Jerry rip-offs. And her time is limited.

Staying along the line of the trash on TV, here's another mystery to ponder. When "Monday Night Football" isn't being aired during football's off season, what's the leading ratings earner? The best guess would be this year's Emmy choice for outstanding drama series, "The Practice." Although a good choice, it's an incorrect guess. The top ratings earners for Monday night belong to the war between the WWF and the WCW.

Once again, America chooses to bypass quality entertainment for a bunch of morons that are pretending to hit each other and one week are best friends only to find out next week that they've hated each other all their life. Although things like this keep viewers entertained, what they don't realize is that Jerry Springer and Hulk Hogan are nothing but marketing tools. They're just pawns used to make lots and lots of money.

In other news, the world of syndication has received a blessing. One of the funniest shows of the 90s can now be seen five days a week. After five seasons on the air, "Friends" can be enjoyed everyday. New viewers to the show should definitely take time to watch episodes from the first few seasons. These were the prime of the show, and by far the best it had to offer. Other shows that were syndicated this year are "News Radio," which starred the late Phil Hartman, and "ER," which can be seen on the USA network.

Finally, the WB is about to release the most anticipated new show of the season. This Tuesday at 9 p.m., "Felicity" premiers with star Keri Russell. After hyping this series for the entire summer, the WB is hoping that the show will catch on rapidly. The network hopes that it will have the same success that top-rated drama "Dawson's Creek" has been having. If "Felicity"'s time slot looks familiar, it's because it has taken over the spot that was occupied by "Dawson's Creek" last year. "Dawson's Creek" moved to Wednesdays at 8 p.m. to compete with FOX's "Beverly Hills, 90210." I don't know about everyone else, but I know what I'll be watching. "Dawson's Creek" has me hooked.

Ryan Benharris is a Collegian columnist.

CNN, Turner put Cold War into perspective with intensive series

NEW YORK (AP) — Anyone who thinks a 24-hour documentary on the Cold War is overkill should consider this: it's a scaled-down version of CNN founder Ted Turner's original vision.

In St. Petersburg, Russia four years ago for the Goodwill Games, Turner invited CNN executive Pat Mitchell to breakfast and said he wanted to make a 40-hour series on the geopolitical struggle that ended when the Soviet Union did.

After an argument with producer Sir Jeremy Isaacs, Turner eventually settled for 24 hours.

The final product, made for nearly $15 million, is still staggering in its scope. The first part premieres on CNN Sunday at 8 p.m. EDT, and a new hourlong installment runs each week at the same time into next March.

"Ted believes history matters and he believes television companies have a responsibility to tell important stories," Mitchell said. "He put his money where his belief is on this."

The series comes at an important time for CNN. The network's reputation needs a shot of prestige after being battered this summer by having to retract a report that American forces used nerve gas in the Vietnam War.

Vietnam has its place in "Cold War" (episode 11), but then so does virtually every other milestone in history between 1945 and 1990, so all-encompassing was the struggle for supremacy between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"The world held its breath for 45 years," Isaacs said. CNN's story begins in the ashes of World War II. The wartime alliance of the United States and Soviet Union had quickly turned to rivalry. The Berlin airlift, Korean War, the space race, Cuban missile crisis, Prague spring, terrorism, detente and the eventual collapse of the eastern bloc are all recorded in succeeding episodes.

Last year, when Yale University historian John Gaddis offered a course on the Cold War, 145 students took it. This fall, 400 signed up, indicating curiosity among a generation whose only clear memory of the conflict is its conclusion, he said.

Historians like Gaddis consider it valuable that the documentary refuses to take sides or stick solely to a Western perspective. "It wasn't to be from the winner's eyes or the loser's eyes," Turner said. "In fact, everybody lost. Humanity lost In the Cold War, but humanity also won because the Cold War ended peacefully. My generation is alive when we could just as well be dead, and I think this series is going to make us feel good about ourselves." What's striking to Mitchell in retrospect is the fear within the communist bloc that the United States was bent on world domination. Ronald Reagan called the Soviet Union the "evil empire," but to the Soviets, the United States was that empire.

While the Cuban Missile Crisis is burned into memory, historians now recognize that the two sides may have been just as close to war in 1983, when military exercises ordered by President Reagan alarmed Soviet leaders.

FANTASTIC SELECTION OF SPECIALTY KEGS

Spirit Haus
New this season
In-store Beer Tasting (WITH ID)

BEER SPECIALS
KEYSTONE LIGHT (30 PK CANS) $10.99 +DEP
THREE STOOGES (6 PK BTLS) $4.99 +DEP
ROLLING ROCK (12PK BTLS) $7.99 +DEP
LOWENBRAU (12 PK BTLS) $7.99 +DEP

HARPOON 12 PK BTLS (IPA, MIX, OCT) (THURS 9/24 5PM-7PM) $9.99 +DEP REG $10.99
POST ROAD 6 PK BTLS (PUMPKIN, IPA, ALE) (FRI 9/25 7PM-9PM) $4.99 +DEP REG $6.29
BERKSHIRE BREWING 64 OZ BTLS (PORTER, STEEL RAIL, BERKSHIRE ALE) (SAT 9/26 2PM-5PM) $3.99 +DEP REG $4.99
SMUTTY NOSE 22 OZ BTLS (MAILBOCK, IMPERIAL STOUT, BARLEYWINE) 2/$5.50 +DEP
(COLD PLATES, CO2 TANKS, BULK ICE, GLASSES AVAILABLE)

LIQUOR SPECIALS
MYERS RUM (750 ML) $13.99
SAUZA GOLD TEQUILA (1 LT BTL) $12.99
GOLDSCHLAGER (375 ML) $8.99

WINE SPECIALS
ALICE WHITE CHARDONNAY (750 ML) $6.99
PROSPERITY RED (750 ML) SALE 2 $11.99
10% DISCOUNT ON REG. PRICE WINE WITH GRAD STUDENT ID

MAJOR CREDIT CARDS ACCEPTED · OPEN 9am to 11pm
186 COLLEGE ST (RTE 9) 1 MILE EAST OF AMHERST CENTER ON RTE 9 (413) 253-5884 FAX 256-8433
Full Redemption Center

We Have
(Exercise Bike Classes)- Full Schedule
Personal Training
Friendly Atmosphere
Tanning
Aerobics - Full Schedule
Cardio Theater
Great Hours
Multi-Level Balconies
New Entrance
Trained Staff
Fruit Smoothies, Supplements, Health Drinks
Pro Cors, Bikes, Rowers, Treadmills, Stairclimbers
The Area's only

IMPROVED!
EXPANDED!
WHAT YOU WANT!
Tennis & Fitness Center

DINE-IN OR TAKE-OUT
Chinese & Japanese Restaurant
GIFT CERTIFICATES AVAILABLE
(413) 582-1888
Open 7 Days
18 Main Street
Northampton, MA 01060

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
we do not use "MSG"
MANDARIN & SZE-CHUAN CUISINE
HOME STYLE CANTONESE
SZECHUAN VEGETARIAN
TAKE-OUT & DELIVERY
FULL BAR & LOUNGE
OPEN 7 DAYS
253-7835 or 253-2813
62 Main Street, Amherst

Amherst Athletic "Total Fitness" 1x3 pu from 9/23 run 9-24

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
The ONLY LOCAL SHOWING of this film
STARTS FRIDAY - DAILY - CURTAIN 7:00 & 9:00
At our 106 yr. old Opera House-Downtown Northampton
"UPROARIOUS!" FOR ELLSWORTH, DETOUR
"Vivid and engaging - John Waters hasn't lost his taste for outrageous humor." STEPHEN FARBER, MOVIELINE
"Nutty and raunchy! 'Pecker' is John Waters' funniest movie ever!" KAREN DURBIN, MIRABELLA
PECKER
Check us out on the World Wide Web.
http://www.angelfire.com/biz2/academyofmusic/
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON 584-8435

EAST HEAVEN HOT TUBS
Best Place for a Hot Tub
30% STUDENT DISCOUNT SUNDAYS -THURSDAYS WITH VALID ID
HOLIDAYS EXCLUDED
413-586-6843 • 33 West St. • Northampton www.eastheaven.com

DELIVERY HOTLINE
549-0077
CHINESE & JAPANESE RESTAURANT
103 N. Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 01002
(413)256-8923 • 256-8924
NOW ACCEPTING OCMP!

■ tracks

continued from page 5

like Matchbox 20 or artificial R&B like Jodeci. You'd think that white kids never listen to black music or vice versa.

The trend is creeping into indieland. The upcoming soundtrack to the black comedy Clay Pigeons features the ordinary rock of not just Sister Hazel, not just Verve Pipe, but also one of the top five least exciting bands ever, Tonic. Why use music that evokes nothing but a trip to K-Mart?

The answer is cross-marketing. Movie studios have become so intertwined with entertainment conglomerates that movies become, in some ways, giant commercials. Not only is it one more way for corporations to control what you hear, but it seriously compromises the artistic integrity of the individual movies.

Bad pop songs in movies used to be cheesy and endearing, like in 80s teen pictures. But there was humanity there, it made you feel like a wallflower at a high school dance. The difference now is that bad pop songs today take themselves way too seriously. Pop soundtracks no longer give us uncomplicated giddiness, but they try to sell us fashionable angst. Don't buy it.

On the other hand, some film soundtracks make great and exciting albums, but only when they include artists that actually have talent (usually accompanying a film made by a director that actually has talent). The problem is that these are a rare breed, and the solution to this problem is to avoid the cross-marketing strategy by looking for soundtracks that the filmmakers were involved in some way.

Quentin Tarantino served as executive producer on both the Reservoir Dogs and Pulp Fiction soundtracks. John Cusack was closely involved in the Grosse Pointe Blank soundtrack, and John Hodge and Danny Boyle even asked original author Irvine Welsh for input on what should be featured on the Trainspotting soundtrack.

The filmmaker deciding to put the soundtrack responsibilities in the hands of one person usually yields good results too. For example, the Lost Highway soundtrack was excellent because David Lynch enlisted Trent Reznor's assistance. Cameron Crowe carefully planned out the Singles soundtrack, and today that album is the definitive Seattle sound collection (despite the absence of Nirvana). Keeping the soundtracks in the hands of the filmmakers, rather than in the hands of the sleazy record/movie studio executives is one way for soundtracks to remain within the spirit of the film.

A concept also works well for a soundtrack. The Wedding Singer soundtrack features all the cheesy 80s hits featured in the film (and most of them were chosen by Adam Sandler), and The Craft soundtrack features great songs covered by contemporary bands (Letters to Cleo covered The Cars' "Dangerous Type," and Love Spit Love covered The Smith's "How Soon Is Now" just to name a few).

Another thing about a good soundtrack is that they make great compilation albums. It's sort of like a mix-tape given to you by a best friend. It's something you can listen to in your car, and appreciate the fact that you don't have to switch tapes after every song. In order to cash in on this angle of movie soundtracks, second volumes of soundtracks that sell well are released. Trainspotting #2, Grosse Pointe Blank — More Music From the Motion Picture and The Wedding Singer, Vol. 2 might be unnecessary, they might feature songs that were never in the movie, but the are fun to listen to. I don't care if Iggy Pop's "The Passenger" or Joy Division's "Atmosphere" were not in the film Trainspotting, they're good songs! And, all these volume twos almost make up for all the crappy "original" soundtracks floating around in record stores.

Of course there are exceptions (the recent X-Files soundtrack is one), but most quality soundtracks released today are in some form or another, retro. Grosse Pointe Blank and The Wedding Singer both feature hits from the 80s that made The Breakfast Club and Pretty in Pink soundtracks great. More often than not, the soundtracks that suck feature bands that mar the airwaves of "alternative" radio. Look before you buy!

Kevin Monahan and Rob Roensch are Collegian staff members.

COURTESY FRANK MASI

Armageddon, this summer's biggest hit, is also one of the top-grossing soundtracks of the year.

Collegian soundtrack favorites

Kevin Monahan — Music Editor
1. The Rocky Horror Picture Show
2. Trainspotting
3. (tie) Taxi Driver and Psycho — Bernard Herrmann
4. The Crow
5. Singles

Rob Roensch — Film Editor
1. Heat
2. The Shawshank Redemption
3. American Graffiti
4. Dead Man Walking
5. Anything with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rodgers

Bryan McAllister — Arts Editor
1. Star Wars — John Williams
2. (tie) St. Elmo's Fire and Stealing Home
3. Batman — Danny Elfman
4. Forrest Gump
5. Grosse Pointe Blank

Mike Messarros — Ed/Op Editor
1. Back to the Future
2. Clerks
3. SubUrbia
4. Pretty In Pink
5. Transformers — The Movie

Matthew Nixon — Correspondent
1. Flashdance
2. The Cook, the Thief, his Wife, her Lover—Michael Nyman
3. Blade Runner — Vangelis
4. She's Having a Baby
5. Traveller

■ compose

continued from page 5

such mainstream American movies as Brian de Palma's Untouchables, In the Line of Fire and even Bulworth.

James Horner began his career in the movies by scoring student films at the American Film Institute while completing his Ph.D. in music composition at UCLA in the 1970s. His first big break was Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. About 100 films later, he is one of the biggest names in film scoring today, with many big movies like Glory, Braveheart and Titanic under his belt.

Horner's talent is composing simple, sweeping music for simple, sweeping movies. His scores tend to be hummable, so much so that people snap up CDs of his scores like pop albums. It wasn't just Leo's face and Celine's screech that sold the Titanic soundtrack.

One of the masters of film scoring is Bernard Herrmann. Best known for working with Alfred Hitchcock, Herrmann is the man responsible for the high-pitched violin screeches in the infamous shower scene in Psycho (1960). Hitchcock's revolutionary editing techniques (70 cuts in 40 seconds) would be all for naught without Herrmann's jarring score. Herrmann is also responsible for Vertigo (1958) and North By Northwest (1959), also directed by Hitchcock, and Cape Fear (1962) which was later re-orchestrated by Elmer Bernstein (Ghostbusters) for the 1991 Martin Scorsese remake.

Herrmann did actually work with Scorsese on the 1976 film Taxi Driver. The slow, moody jazz of Herrmann's score seemed to navigate Robert De Niro's cab through the streets of New York. Unfortunately, Herrmann never saw the final cut of Taxi Driver. He died on Christmas eve, 1975, before the film was completed. In 1976 he was nominated for two Oscars, one for Taxi Driver, and one for Brian de Palma's Obsession (a virtual re-make of Vertigo).

Angelo Badalamenti is best known for working with David Lynch. His outlandish score for Blue Velvet helped make the film Lynch's masterpiece. His guitar driven score for Wild at Heart showcases his diverse talents, and his haunting scores for "Twin Peaks" and the film Twin Peaks: Fire Walk With Me are some of his best work ever.

Badalamenti has also excelled at his craft without Lynch. His score for The City of Lost Children is proof of that. Badalamenti is also a competent rock musician. He has score for Batman was one of the best of the 80s, and his theme for "The Simpsons" is a classic. You heard him last doing the score for Good Will Hunting, and hopefully he will work on Burton's latest film, Sleepy Hollow.

Kevin Monahan and Rob Roensch are Collegian staff members.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Game, set, match

The Minutemen tennis team will head to the West Point Invitational this weekend. Check out the preview in tomorrow's Collegian.

■ soccer

continued from page 16

cent. She's playing with pain daily, but she has a great attitude and doesn't want to let the team down."

Looking back, however, the sophomore knows that she was able to make it through the tough times with the help of her teammates.

"I was so excited to come to school. Everything was going right, and then I got hurt," Machamer said. "Freshman year can be really hard because you don't know anybody, and then I was hurt on top of it. But the girls made me feel like a part of the team and made it easier for me."

Although Tokarchik has the luxury of having played the Buffaloes last year (a 2-1 double-overtime win here in Amherst), Machamer was not suited up for that contest. Therefore, Friday's game will have even more significance for the crafty midfielder.

"Last year Kara [Green] and I would always talk about the Colorado game coming up and then she scored the winning goal. So it was like 'That's my roommate. She did it for me'," Machamer said. "This year I hope that I can be a part of helping the team win."

And what is Machamer's final take on going home?

"I'm really excited. A lot of people are going to come out and watch us," she said. "Last year CU came out and gave us a good game and this year hopefully we'll win again."

UMass will take on the Buffaloes on Friday afternoon at 4 p.m.

CALVIN
Theatre and Performing Arts Center
GRAND REOPENING!
Wednesday, October 7 • 8 pm
Dave Brubeck Quartet

Thu., Oct. 8	Ballet Hispanico of New York	Sun., Dec. 6	Pilobolus Dance Theatre
Fri., Oct. 9	David Grisman Quintet	Fri., Dec. 18	John McDermott: Christmas Memories
Sat., Oct. 10	Henry Rollins	Fri., Jan. 1	Cry, Cry, Cry: Dar Williams, Richard Shindell & Lucy Kaplansky
Sun., Oct. 11	Andreas Vollenweider Beyond Words 20th Anniversary Celebration	Sat., Jan. 2	Noche Flamenca
Frid., Oct. 16	Ahn Trio Noho Community Music Center benefit	Wed., Jan. 13	The Kronos Quartet
Sat., Oct. 17	Spalding Gray WFCR benefit	Sat., Feb. 6	Chick Corea & Gary Burton
Wed., Oct. 21	Trinity Irish Dance Company	Sun., Feb. 7	The Northampton Arts Council's Silver Chord Bowl
Fri., Oct. 30	Judas Priest	Thu., Feb. 11	Ladysmith Black Mambazo
Thu., Nov. 5	Northampton Center for the Arts Presents: The Paul Taylor Dance Company	Sat., Mar. 6	Cirque Eloize
Fri., Nov. 6	Lyle Lovett	Sun., Mar. 7	Arcadia Players: George Washington After Hours
Sat., Nov. 7	moe.	Thu., Mar. 18	James Galway
Thu., Nov. 12	David Sedaris WFCR benefit	Fri., Mar. 19	Nai-Ni Chen Dance Company
Sun., Nov. 15	Mary Black St. Pat's Parade benefit	Sat., Apr. 10	Bill T. Jones/Arnie Zane Dance Company In association with Cannes Assoc.
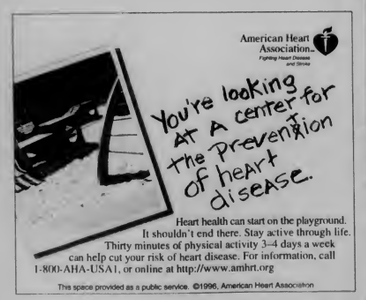
Nov. 20 & 22	Commonwealth Opera: "The Magic Flute"
Fri., Dec. 4	Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra with Wynton Marsalis

Coming soon: Cassandra Wilson, Sonny Rollins, Terry Gross

CALVIN THEATRE - 19 KING STREET, NORTHAMPTON, MA
Tickets for the Calvin Theatre are available at the Northampton Box Office, Thornes Marketplace in Northampton
To charge by phone call 586-8686 or 1-800-THE-TICK 24-Hour Concert Info (413) 5840610 or visit www.masslive.com



Campus Career Network
University of Massachusetts Amherst
SENIORS
Employment Options & Career Library
Career Network Central Office
(413) 545-2224
A NEW WAY TO ACCESS EMPLOYMENT INFORMATION
WWW-CCN.ACAD.UMASS.EDU
● Create your online RESUME!
● Access hundreds of EMPLOYMENT listings!
● View our expanded CAREER SERVICES!
● There is no charge!
DEADLINES APPROACHING FOR ON CAMPUS RECRUITING!!!
LOG ON TODAY!

RUSSELL's LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring "PABST BLUE RIBBON" $8." CSE BOTS.
VILLA MONACO "PINOT GRIGIO" $5.99 1.5 LITER
BACARDI RUM $7.99 750 ML
SAM ADAMS OCTOBERFEST $9.95 12PK
MILWAUKEE'S BEST $9.99 30 PK
MILWAUKEE'S BEST LIGHT
"CIDER JACK" 6/pk $4.99
Your Choice! $9.99
mix/match two 6/pks.....
Vodka 80° EVERYDAY PRICE! $8.99 1.75 lt
Check Out Russell's Indoor Wine Specials!
• Delivery Available • OPEN 9:00AM to 11:00PM • Visa/Mastercard • All Beers Plus Deposit •

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO
SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE
DISCOUNT CARD
WITH THIS COUPON
EXPIRES 10/15/98
413-253-5592

La Cazuela
RESTAURANT
The Cuisines of MEXICO and the AMERICAN SOUTHWEST
. . . hand made cooking . . . seasonal menu
. . . superb margaritas
. . . extraordinary tequila list
. . . warm hospitality!
Please join us!
Dinner Every Night
Downtown Northampton
Across From The Parking Garage
7 OLD SOUTH STREET
NORTHAMPTON
413 • 586 • 0400

Heart health can start on the playground. It shouldn't end there. Stay active through life. Thirty minutes of physical activity 3–4 days a week can help cut your risk of heart disease. For information, call 1-800-AHA-USA1, or online at http://www.amhrt.org
This space provided as a public service. ©1996, American Heart Association

GRE
AVOID THE COMPUTER ADAPTIVE TEST.
November 7th is the last paper & pencil test of 1998, the 2nd to last paper & pencil test EVER!
CLASS STARTS OCTOBER 1ST!
KAPLAN
WORLD LEADER IN TEST PREP
1-800-KAP-TEST
WWW.KAPLAN.COM
60 YEARS OF BUILDING FUTURES. ONE SUCCESS STORY AT A TIME.

CHANGES
FULL SERVICE SALON FOR MEN & WOMEN
STUDENT DAY!
Every Wed.
Get a $17 Haircut!

STARRING: David Harrison

Thursday September 24	Getting Personal: Female-to-Male Journeys Into the Gender/Sex Quagmire 7:00pm Room 917 CC FREE
Saturday September 26	FTM A groundbreaking play about Female-to-Male Transsexuality Bowker Auditorium/UMass $2 Students $5 General Public Contact the Fine Arts Center For Tickets! 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS

This event is co-sponsored by the Stonewall Center, Pride Alliance, GLB GSO, UMass Arts Council, and Freeloyz
Photo by Loren Camerger

Pearl Street Nightclub — all shows all ages!

Thursday, September 24 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	JULIANA HATFIELD plus the Maggies
Friday, September 25 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	ALLSTONIANS WITH THE ORIGINAL LEGENDS OF SKA plus Skamaphredites
Saturday, September 26 • 8:30 pm • Ballroom	JOHN LURIE & THE LOUNGE LIZARDS
Saturday, September 26 • Clubroom	CONEHEAD BUDDHA plus the Push Stars/Mighty Purple
Monday, September 28 • 8:30 pm • Ballroom	JIMMY CLIFF
Sunday, October 4 • 7 pm • Ballroom	REEL BIG FISH plus Spring Heeled Jack USA & Frenzal Rhomb
Tuesday, October 6 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	2 SKINNEE J'S plus the Smittys
Wednesday, October 7 • 8:30 pm • Ballroom	DJ SPOOKY plus Plastina Mosh & EBN
Wednesday, October 7 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	AGENTS OF GOOD ROOTS
Friday, October 9 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	HEATHER NOVA plus Block
Saturday, October 10 • 8:30 pm • Ballroom	TOM TOM CLUB
Saturday, October 10 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	BIM SKALA BIM
Wednesday, October 14 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	NADA SURF plus the Gravel Pit
Thursday, October 15 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	STRING CHEESE INCIDENT
Saturday, October 17 • 8:30 pm • Clubroom	THE MACHINE plus Architectural Metaphor

COMING SOON: Afro-Cuban All Stars, Semisonic, You Am I, Mudhoney, Mad Professor, Jeff Pitchell & Texas Flood

PEARL STREET NIGHTCLUB, 10 PEARL ST., NORTHAMPTON, MA • THE IRON HORSE, 20 CENTER ST., NORTHAMPTON, MA
Tickets for all shows available at the Northampton Box Office, 2nd Floor, Thorne's Marketplace, Northampton 1-800-THE-TICK or 413-586-8686 Tickets for the Iron Horse are available at For The Record in Amherst. Tickets for Pearl St. are available at For The Record, About Music in Greenfield and Platterpus Records in Westfield 24-Hour Concert Info (413) 5840610 or visit www.masslive.com

Iron Horse Music Hall — music alone shall live — all ages!

Thursday, September 24 • 7 pm	THE PAPERBOYS plus Tempest
Friday, September 25 • 7 & 9:30 pm	THE BACON BROTHERS
Saturday, September 26 • 7 pm	ANA EGGE
Saturday, September 26 • 10 pm	REUBEN WILSON AND LETTUCE
WFCR Benefit! Sunday, September 27 • 7 & 9:30 pm	THE DONAL LUNNY BAND WITH SHARON SHANNON & MAIGHREAD NI DOMHNAILL
Tuesday, September 29 • 7 pm	DAVID AMRAM ENSEMBLE: Cairo to Kerouak
Wednesday, September 30 • 8:30 pm	ELECTRIC BLUE & THE KOZMIK TRUTH plus the Arthur Dent Foundation
Thursday, October 1 • 7 & 10 pm	HAL KETCHUM plus Allison Moorer
Friday, October 2 • 7 pm	BROOKS WILLIAMS plus Sloan Wainwright
Friday, October 2 • 10 pm	BERNIE WORRELL & THE WOO WARRIORS
Saturday, October 3 • 10 pm	ZONY MASH plus Schleigho
Sun., Oct. 4 & Mon., Oct. 5 • 7 pm	IRIS DEMENT plus Kate Jacobs
Wed. 10/7 & Thu. 10/8 • 7 pm	MARTIN SEXTON plus Colleen Sexton (10/7) plus Break My Window (10/8)
Friday, October 9 • 7 pm	SINEAD LOHAN plus Jude
Friday, October 9 • 10 pm	PROJECT/OBJECT

COMING SOON: Rockapella, Patty Griffin, Galactic, Deep Banana Blackout, Norman Blake, Tom Verlaine & Jimmy Ripp.

Sosa still kicking in HR chase; Bruins get preseason victory

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A day after he conceded the home run race, Sammy Sosa struck back.

He hit home runs Nos. 64 and 65 yesterday, tying Mark McGwire for the record and breaking an 0-for-21 slump in the Chicago Cubs' 8-7 loss to the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Cardinals faced Houston last night in St. Louis, where McGwire has hit a Busch Stadium record 33 home runs this season.

The Cubs slugger, picking on his favorite pitching staff, homered against Milwaukee in the fifth and sixth innings, giving him 12 against the Brewers this season.

Sosa's No. 65 gave him 11 multi-homer games this season, tying the major league record set by Detroit's Hank Greenberg in 1938. Sosa hit a solo shot to right field with one out in the fifth off rookie left-hander Rafael Roque, who also gave up McGwire's 64th homer. With two out in the sixth, he hit a 2-2 fastball 410 feet to straightaway center off rookie right-hander Rod Henderson. There was no mad scramble for the record-tying ball — it bounced off the bleachers and back onto the grass, where center fielder Marquis Grissom retrieved it and tossed it to the infield. Shortstop Mark Loretta then rolled it to Sosa in front of the Cubs' dugout.

Both times, Sosa took a quick curtain call to chants of "Sam-my! Sammy!"

Mired in his worst slump of the season, Sosa said he was concerned only about getting the Cubs to the playoffs, while all McGwire had to worry about was swinging for the fences because the Cards were out of the race.

"He's the one going to finish up there a little bit higher than me," Sosa said Tuesday. "You have to remember, my situation is different. I have to go out there and try to win the last five games."

Plus, "He's swinging much better than me," Sosa explained. Sosa had not gotten a hit and had struck out eight times since hitting a grand slam last Wednesday in San Diego for No. 63. He walked his first two times up against Roque, then sent a 1-0 fastball 344 feet to the opposite field, giving the Cubs a 4-0 lead. His second homer made it 7-0, but the Cubs couldn't hold the lead.

Sosa's 12 home runs against the Brewers are the most by a player against one team since Roger Maris connected 13 times off the Chicago White Sox in 1961, the year he hit 61 homers.

Sosa's slump-buster came on the same day his native Dominican Republic began recovery from Hurricane Georges, which set off looting and street violence. Seventeen people died and much of the country lost power.

Most of Sosa's immediate family members were in Chicago, where they had gathered for the "Sammy Sosa Celebration" last weekend, but the slugger was concerned about many relatives and friends back home.

On Tuesday night, Sosa admitted he was struggling at the plate but promised his swing would return. The Brewers again cooperated. Earlier this month, Sosa connected for Nos. 59-62 against Milwaukee during a three-game series at Wrigley Field, jumping back into the home run race after McGwire had broken Maris' single-season record on Sept. 8.

McGwire broke his tie with Sosa by hitting home run No. 64 in Milwaukee on Friday night off Roque, then connected for No. 65 on Sunday, along with what many believed was No. 66.

But umpire Bob Davidson ruled fan interference and stopped McGwire at second with a ground-rule double off Henderson. County Stadium was the site of Hank Aaron's 755th and last home run, off Dick Drago on July 20, 1976.

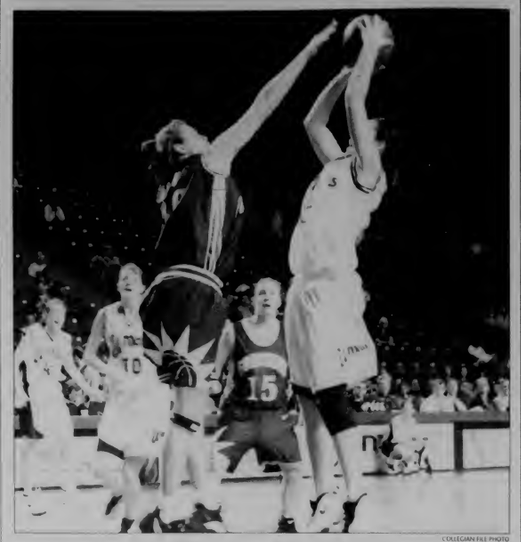
Bruins beat up Penguins in preseason play

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Byron Dafoe and Jim Carey combined on a shutout as the Boston Bruins held Pittsburgh to 15 shots and beat the Penguins 4-0 in an exhibition game last night.

Dafoe faced six shots and Carey turned away nine as each goalie played half of the game.

Antti Laaksonen and Andres Savage scored in the first period for Boston against goalie Craig Hillier, the Penguins' No. 1 choice in the 1996 draft. Hillier also gave up Peter Nordstrom's second-period goal.

Rob DiMaio scored on a shorthanded breakaway against Jean-Sebastian Aubin in the third period.



Jaromir Jagr played for the Penguins but most of Pittsburgh's regulars sat out the second game in two nights.

The Bruins have a 2-1 exhibition record, the Penguins 1-1-2.

Senators play in exhibition season with success

KANATA, Ontario (AP) — Alexei Yashin had three assists and Chris Murray scored the winning goal at 14:18 of the second period as the Ottawa Senators defeated the Calgary Flames 5-2 last night. Sami Salo, Shaun Van Allen, Brian Felsner and Magnus Arvedson also scored for the Senators, who improved their pre-season record to 3-0 before 12,625 at the Corel Centre.

Jarome Iginla scored both goals for Calgary (1-3).

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Ready, aim, fire!

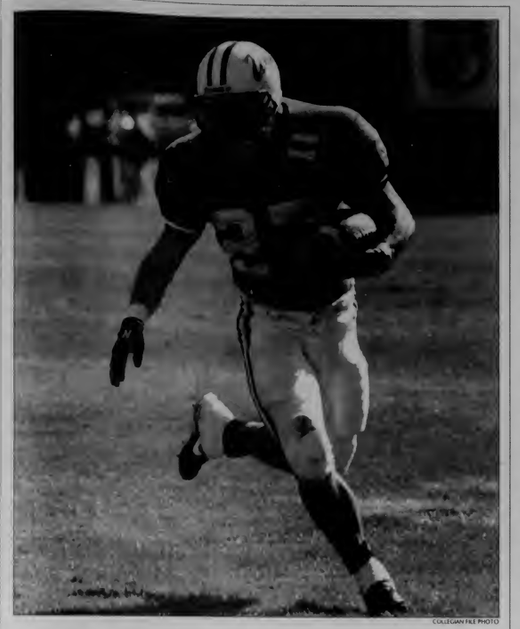
Basketball season isn't as far away as it seems. The UMass women's hoop schedule begins on Nov. 14 against St. John's.

Mudd Jeans.

ZANA
downtown Amherst

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST athletic CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

MICHAEL'S BILLIARDS
10A BELCHERTOWN ROAD
AMHERST, MA 01002 256-8284
15 9' Tables
Big Screen TV
Live Music Every Fri & Sat
Friday - 9:45
"Jesse"
Tuesday Night 7:30
8 Ball Tournament
$5 per person



Spice of life.
India House dinner nightly
45 State Street
Northampton
586-6344

Proudly announcing the opening of
ALKA TRAVEL
Specializing in travel plans to India, sub-continent, and Europe.
Talk to us about discounted Air Fare.
Call 587-3030 for further information and rates.

HAMPSHIRE MALL PRESENTS
FUN FLICKS!
Totally Interactive Video
Star in Your Own Movie and Music Video
★★ and take home the video! ★★
Fly Like Superman!
Sing Like Celine Dion!
Dance like Janet Jackson!
JUST $25.00
3 DAYS ONLY! FRI. • SAT. • SUN
★ Sept. 25 Fri., 3-9 PM ★
★ Sept. 26, Sat., 1-7 PM ★
★ Sept. 27, Sun. 12-6 PM ★
Redeem Your Hampshire Mall Receipt for FUN BUCKS to use towards your Video!
Hampshire Mall
AT CAFE SQUARE
FOR MORE INFO CALL
586-5700
ROUTE 9 • HADLEY

TO APPLY FOR THIS BANK ACCOUNT, WE'LL NEED SOME INFORMATION FROM YOU.
MUSTARD OR MAYO?
Buy one, get one free at Subway® Restaurants. Only the Student Value Package® gives you so much for so little.
BankBoston
Get Free SUBWAY® Sandwiches
1 Purchase a six-inch Subway® Sandwich and a 21-ounce soft drink and get a second six-inch Subway® Sandwich and 21-ounce soft drink of equal or lesser price free upon presentation of a Students' Value Package coupon. Offer expires May 31, 1999. Offer available at participating Subway® locations and may not be combined with any other offer. One coupon per person per visit. Subway is a registered trademark of Doctors Associates Inc. 2 Valid school ID or acceptance letter required. To qualify for A Penny Check and Reserve Credit you must be at least 18 years of age and have no adverse credit history. 3 Online Banking with BankBoston HomeLink® is free (e.g., transferring funds, checking balances). There is a $3.50 monthly fee for Online Bill Payment with HomeLink. 4 If you make withdrawals, deposits, monthly and balance inquiries electronically by phone, ATM, or computer only, the monthly fee is discounted to $5. The normal monthly Student Value Package fee is $6.
Member FDIC

Arena Civic Theatre
presents
LITTLE SHOP OF HORRORS
Book and Lyrics by Howard Ashman
Music by Alan Menken
Based on the film by Roger Corman
Directed by MATT KENNEL
Music Directors by DAVID KIDWELL
Choreography by LISA MORROW
October 2, 3, 9, 10 1998
8 PM
Tickets available from
Box Office 413-863-2281
World Eye Bookshop Greenfield
Jones Library Amherst
Bill Gerrard
89 Students/Senior Citizens
THE SHEA THEATER
TURNERS FALLS, MASSACHUSETTS

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Greener pastures ahead?

Jim Pizano and the Massachusetts football team is back home after two away games and a week off as they play Buffalo on Saturday.

Questions continue to hang over uncertain world of sports

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Florence Griffith Joyner was singled out for rigorous drug testing during the 1988 Seoul Olympics because of steroid rumors, and she turned up clean.

The IOC insists there were not even minute traces of banned substances.

"So there should not be the slightest suspicion," Germany's Manfred Donike, considered the foremost expert in drug usage in sports, said yesterday. "Let her rest in peace. The issue is closed."

Prince Alexandre de Merode, chairman of the International Olympic Committee's medical commission, said Griffith Joyner passed all the tests and it was unfair to suggest she was a drug cheat. Griffith Joyner, who won three gold medals in Seoul and still holds world records at 100 and 200 meters, died Monday in California at 38. The coroner is attempting to determine the cause of death.

Bob Kersee, her former coach, said Griffith Joyner showed no sign of illness before she died. He said she did have exercise-induced asthma and migraine headaches.

Griffith Joyner's unusually muscled physique and startling times in Seoul raised speculation that she used performance-enhancing drugs at the time — allegations that she denied.

Now, with her sudden death 10 years after she dazzled the track world, the questions about the drugs are being raised again. De Merode said he assigned his top drug control expert to test Griffith Joyner after she won the 100 and 200 meters in Seoul.

"Since there were rumors at the time, we performed all possible and imaginable analyses on her," de Merode told the Brussels newspaper Le Soir. "We never found anything."

However, Jean-Pierre de Mondenard, a French sports doctor and drug expert, said Griffith Joyner's muscle development before the Seoul Olympics was "humanly impossible."

"The controls don't constitute proof of not taking drugs," he told the French sports daily L'Equipe. "It is probable that she used large doses but others, notably in Eastern Europe, did the same. Other famous athletes are going to die and we will know it."

In Germany, Werner Franke, a Heidelberg professor of molecular biology and a specialist on sports and drugs, is convinced Griffith Joyner took banned substances.

"This death was foreseeable," he said.

But Helmut Digel, president of the German Sports Federation, urged caution.

"The death of Florence Griffith Joyner should not be a cause of speculation that brings on a war against drugs," he said. "The principle of fair play forbids saying someone is guilty without evidence."

Hostetler injury a mystery

ASHBURN, Va. (AP) — The Washington Redskins aren't sure when it happened or how it happened. They say they didn't even find out about it until two days after it happened.

For the team, all that really matters is the net result: Jeff Hostetler, an unhappy third-string presence in the locker room, is gone for the season after apparently re-injuring his right knee while on the sideline during Sunday's game at Seattle.

"I found out about this last night," general manager Charley Casserly said yesterday. "I didn't get into specifics with him. He said his leg was hit, I believe by a helmet, and that caused the instability in the knee."

So, for the second consecutive yesterday, Hostetler cleaned out his locker and left Redskin Park without comment. This time, it's certain that he won't be back this year. The Redskins placed him on injured reserve, and the 15-year veteran started making arrangements for an operation that could require up to six months of rehabilitation.

Hostetler's departure brings to a close a messy and embarrassing episode for the Redskins. Upset that he had been demoted to No. 3 quarterback, Hostetler packed his things and left last week because he said he thought he had been granted his release. The Redskins said he hadn't — and made him come back the next day.

With both sides refusing to budge, the only answer appeared to be surgery on the knee that the 37-year-old Hostetler hurt in an exhibition game. Doctors had said the knee — which has damaged cartilage and also may need work on the anterior cruciate ligament — would require surgery eventually anyway.

Re-injuring the knee while standing on a sideline — something Casserly said he couldn't remember ever happening before — seemed like an amazing coincidence that suited everyone well.

"We know where we stand now," coach Norv Turner said. "So I guess from that standpoint [it's good] to have that type of resolution."

Certainly, there's never a boring day when it comes to the quarterbacks with this season's Redskins, an 0-3 team that has promoted career benchwarmer Trent Green to starter over a player with an $18 million contract [Gus Frerotte] and one who has a Super Bowl ring [Hostetler].

During one recent practice, Frerotte was zipping the ball with authority, leaving his teammates shaking their heads and wondering why he didn't throw it like that when he was starting.

Frerotte's answer was simple: The pressure is off.

"I'm just getting myself ready to play, doing the scout team stuff, just slinging the bomb. No worries and no pressures," Frerotte said. "Don't care if it's high or low, you just go out there and throw it. You know it's kind of fun being the other team's QB once in a while."

Meanwhile, the receivers are adjusting to Green's weaker arm and growing pains. Leslie Shepherd, while making allowances for Green's inexperience, said he was frustrated after Sunday's 24-14 defeat because he "was with the facility.

Welcome Back UMass
Regency Hairstylists
189 N. Pleasant St.
253-9526

amc
Hampshire Mall
RUSH HOUR (PG-13) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
SAVING PRIVATE RYAN (R) Today (5:00 @ $2.50) 8:20
54 (R) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
EVER AFTER: A CINDERELLA STORY (PG-13) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:10
ROUNDERS (R) Today (5:20 @ $2.50) 8:10
SLUMS OF BEVERLY HILLS (R) Today @ 8:30
SIMON BIRCH (PG) Today (5:40 @ $2.50) 8:20
ONE TRUE THING (R) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:30
THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT MARY (R) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:10
BLADE (R) Today (5:40 @ $2.50) 8:20
THE PARENT TRAP (PG) Today (5:20 @ $2.50)

Drawstring Cargo.

ZANA
downtown Amherst

THE FINE ARTS CENTER SERIES
TICKETS ONLY $5 $9 FOR FIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS
Solid Mahogany
The Fine Arts Center and Jazz à la Mode present
KEVIN MAHOGANY
Take equal parts of Joe Williams, Mel Grayson, and Teddy Pendergrass and filter them through a brilliant vocal style that belongs to no one else, and the result is solid Mahogany. Kevin and his trio present jazz, r & b, classic soul and a hint of gospel for one of the freshest nights of live music this side of Kansas City. "There is little he cannot do..." THE NEW YORKER
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1
8PM, BOWKER AUDITORIUM
The Full Nelson
AN EVENING WITH
Willie Nelson
The living legend comes to the Concert Hall with his full band. The Family, for one unforgettable night of unmistakable Willie. Good seats still available! Call today.
SUNDAY, OCTOBER 11
7PM, CONCERT HALL
SORRY, NO STUDENT DISCOUNTED TICKETS
PRESENTED WITH THE GENEROUS SUPPORT OF COCA COLA, FLEET BANK, AND THE RIVER 95.3FM
Street Smart Dance
Hubbard Street DANCE CHICAGO
One of the most celebrated dance companies in America comes to the Valley with their distinctive brand of physical fireworks. Smart, sophisticated, and totally captivating! "Exceptional... bold... shines with originality." LE FIGARO
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14
8PM, CONCERT HALL
PRESENTED WITH THE GENEROUS SUPPORT OF WRNX 100.9FM
WE'RE RAISING THE ROOF!
While our new lobby is under construction, you may enter the Concert Hall via alternate entrances. On-site signs and guides will show you the way.
THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
Call 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS for tickets

"Reason №3 why you should take my GMAT course."
Better Research
We spend millions of dollars each year researching the GMAT CAT and revising our techniques and materials, so you learn the best information. No one knows the Computer Adaptive Test better than we do.
Call 1-800-2REVIEW
or visit us at www.review.com
Courses held on the UMASS campus! Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and WNEC as well.
THE PRINCETON REVIEW

Hysterically Low, Low Prices & a Great Selection at...
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive
MILLER HIGH LIFE GENUINE DRAFT & LIGHT CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS $10.49 + DEP
M'MICHELOB & M'MICHELOB Light 18-12 OZ. CANS $9.99 + DEP
SAMUEL ADAMS BLACK & TAN, PALE ALE, TRAIL MIX 12 PK. BOTTLES $8.99 + DEP
HOLLANDIA IMPORTED FROM HOLLAND CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BOTTLES $13.99 + DEP
MOLSON GOLDEN & ICE 18-12OZ. CANS $9.99 + DEP.
NATURAL LIGHT & ICE ½ BARRELS $33.99 + DEP.
1/2 KEGS ROLLING ROCK, ICEHOUSE, RED DOG $36.99 + DEP
1/2 KEGS BUD, BUD LT, BUD ICE, MICH, MICH LT, AMBER BOCK, LITE, COORS LIGHT $39.99 + DEP
WINE OF THE MONTH
Mystic Cliffs CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750ML $5.99
LIVINGSTON CELLARS BLUSH, BURGUNDY, CHABLIS, FR. COLOMBARD, RED ROSE, RHINE, WHITE GRENACHE 3.0L $6.49
GEORGES DUBOEUF CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 1.5L $8.99
TURNING LEAF CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750 ML $5.99
MANISCHEWITZ ALL FLAVORS 750 ML $2.99
CORBETT CANYON WHITE ZIN AND CS 1.5L $4.99
CONCHA Y TORO ALL FLAVORS INCLUDING MERLOT 1.5L $6.99
ABSOLUT VODKA 750 ML $13.99
RON ROBERTO RUM LIGHT & DARK 1.75 L $9.99
EVAN WILLIAMS 90° BOURBON 1.75 $15.99
GIRO TEQUILA GOLD & SILVER 1.0L $6.99
The Smuggler SCOTCH 1.75L $14.99
Kahlúa COFFEE LIQUEUR 750 ML $12.99
Discounts Available on Cases of Wine & Liquor. Ask For Details.
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 586-3007
HOLYOKE 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 9 24 98 THRU WEDS. 9 30 98

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUCEMENTS

Dance At Midnight Madness! Funk Club Auditions Sat., Sept 26. 12-5 pm., Boyden Wrestling Room. Hip-Hop/Reggae Dancers Questions? Amelia 665-8649, Charlene 546-5590

AUTO FOR SALE

84 Monte Carlo Great shape. Runs, drives perfect. 99K. $1475. Call 259-1915.

89 Mazda 323 5 speed, sunroof $800 85 Maxima fully loaded 94 Honda Civic EX fully loaded, 5 speed 86 Jetta fully loaded, leather interior, $900 Chris (413)781-9148

88 Honda Accord LXI Auto, air, cruise control New transmission $2600 546-4259

87 Ford Mustang GT V8 Great fun, car winter stored, impeccable condition, performance extras, only 80K miles Call 549-6045

1987 Cutlass Supreme $750 or B/O 256-1014

Pontiac Sunbird Runs perfect $900 or B/O Call 259-1915

CARS $100-$500
Police Impounds
Hondas, Chevys, Jeeps, & Sport Utilities
MUST SELL!
1-800-522-2730 x4554

1990 Pontiac Lemans LE 4 dr, auto, AC, PS, 60K Excellent condition $1800 545-4548

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS Automatic, fully loaded, 103k miles Excellent condition $3700 253-5503

1989 Subaru Wagon Standard, 4WD, highway miles, clean $1400. (978)544-3783

WANTED: Toyotas, Novas, Prizms, Sentras. Any condition Cash paid everyday 1-800-649-4795

AUTO PARTS

Headlight Covers and Hood Bra for 1995-98 Mustang Asking $60 for both Call Liz at 549-2031 after 6

COMPUTERS

STUDENT PC SPECIALS
Great Internet/Work Processor Systems!
486DX4/100 Mid Tower Systems
24mbRam, 17gbHDD, 20XCDROM,
16BitSound & Speakers, Win95.
$398 each Plus $70 for bundled 14" monitor
Validata Computers, Rt. 9, Hadley
(413)586-7405

486 Computer
Great For Student Works Good
$100
Color VGA $50
(413)584-8857

EMPLOYMENT

Rao's Coffee is hiring full or part-time 20 hours/week minimum Food experience preferred Apply in person only

Dunkin Donuts
Now Hiring
Apply In Person
Morning Shifts
Rt 9, Hadley

Spring Break '99- Sell Trips, Earn Cash & Go Free!!! STS is now hiring campus reps Lowest rates to Jamaica Mexico & Florida Call 800-648-4849 or apply online at www.ststravel.com

Research Interviewers Abt Associates is looking for a few good reliable people with good communication and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week Evenings and weekends available We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training This starting wage is $6.25/hr with regular merit increases Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more info or to arrange an interview call 413-587-1607 An Equal Opportunity Employer

EMPLOYMENT

Teacher needed to home school 9th grade student Flexible schedule. Please call 413-562-9701 after 6:00pm or email jng@aol.com.

PART TIME- 10 hrs/wk. Flexible schedule. Assist arts organization directors. Computer skills required Amherst location 413-549-0299 or 413-548-8006.

Gymnastics Instructor Greenfield YMCA is seeking experienced instructors for afternoon, evening, and weekend classes Apply at Greenfield YMCA, 451 Main St., Greenfield, MA 01301 413-773-3646. Cindy Mansur.

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2"
2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and. Earn $$$$ Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks. Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplash-tours.com

ENTERTAINMENT

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party Your DJ's or ours Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561

FOR RENT

Lockers For Rent: $10 for academic year. Going fast! Come to Commuter Services, Rm 428 Student Union.

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery 253-9742

FOR SALE

Mongoose Mountain Bike '95 Great shape. Lots of upgrades! w/ helmet and Krypto lock $250. 549-5979.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK www.fitnessworkshop.com

INSTRUCTION

Kickboxing Lessons Develop fighting skills while getting into great shape. Call Joe 548-8979.

KICKBOXING LESSONS Learn to kickbox in a fun, friendly environment. First lesson free! Call 253-7757.

LOST & FOUND

Notebook and CD's found on North Pleasant St., Monday night, 9/21. Call Jaimie to identify. 549-8548.

Grandmother's Silver Engagement Ring Lost on 9/10 around Totman and Sylvan parking area. Great sentimental value. Please return. Reward. 665-7630.

Lost- Black wallet with flowers in Thompson. Reward. Please call Susan 549-1127.

MOTORCYCLES

Suzuki GS750E 16V Very large bike. Old model. Great looking and well maintained. Has great engine, new tires, and more. $1000/80. Call Kirin 256-8701.

Kawasaki EX 250 Ninja 1994 4500 miles. Excellent condition. $2000 or B/O. 585-0052.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Can Teach All Styles Call Stephen Page at 256-2612.

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

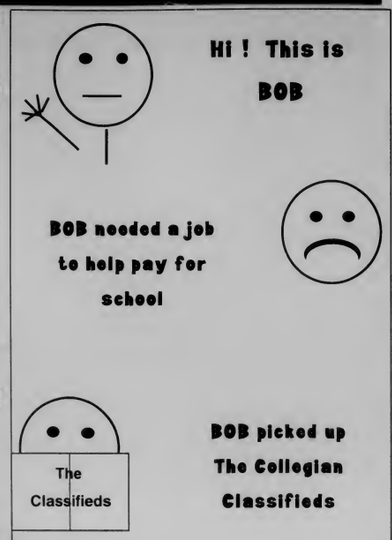
Large room in shared Belchertown house. Available October 1. Spacious, quiet house with laundry and many extras. No lease. Call (413)433-1224. Leave message.

ROOM FOR RENT

In Amherst Quiet setting, kitchen privileges, laundry, parking, non-smoking. $350 inclusive. 549-4853

SERVICES

Keg Systems New installations, parts. C02 filled. Call Bryan 586-2452.



Cheap Heating Oil: Join The Pioneer Valley Oil Coop. Come to Commuter Services, Rm 428 Student Union or call 545-0865 for more information.

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

STEREO & CD EQUIP

HEY YOU...!
2 Way Carpeted DJ Speakers
500 RMS 18" Woofers with 15" Passive Fused HI & Lows (1/4" Jacks)
$650/Pr.
Call Jimmy
413-774-5648

To Place a Classified Call us at 545-3500 or visit us in The Campus Center Basement

Prices:
Students - 20¢/word/day
Non Students- 40¢/word/day

Five College Community Calendar

THURSDAY, SEPT. 24

Dance — The UMass Ballroom Dance club is having its fourth annual Hooked on Ballroom Dance in the campus center auditorium from 7–11 p.m. Lessons will be from 7– 8:30 p.m. No partner is necessary and casual attire is recommended.

Lecture — A lecture entitled "Censorship and Queer Representation: From McCarthy to the NEA" will be held at 12:30 p.m. in the Campus Center room 903. All are welcome to attend.

Meeting — The UMass Queen fan club's meeting will be held in the Cape Cod Lounge at 4 p.m.

Meeting — The Spectrum literary magazine is having a meeting at 7 p.m. in room 406 in the Student Union.

Meeting — UVC TV 19 will have a news meeting at 6 p.m. in the studio. UVC is looking for new journalists, and technical help. Anyone is welcome to attend.

Open Mic — There will be an open mic night at the Hillel House at 7 p.m. Anyone is welcome.

Workshop - The UMass graduate school will be holding a workshop on how to finance your education, how to find the best schools, and the details of the procedure from 7– 8:30 p.m. in 508 Goodell.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 25

Dancing — There will be international folk dancing at the Bangs Community Center on Bolltwood Walk in Amherst. Dancing is from 7:30–10 p.m. and everyone is invited Lecture — A lecture entitled "Ecosystem Structure and Marine Geochemical Recovery from the Cretaceous/Paleogene Mass Extinction" will be held in Morrill II South, room 131 at 3:30 p.m. A reception will follow.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is currently accepting applications for artistic team for the fall production of You Can't Take It With You. Call 545-0415 or stop by the office at 423A in the Student Union.

Community — Prevent your bicycle from being stolen by registering it from Sept. 21–25 at the Student Union circle from 10 a.m.–2 p.m.

Community — NEWS40 will be collecting coats for their ninth annual "Coats for Kids Campaign." Drop off the coats at one of the following participating businesses: Manny's TV & Appliances, Rocky's Hardware, Subway Stores, or any branch of United Cooperative Bank. Or bring the coats to WGGB at 1300 Liberty Street in Springfield.

Exhibit — On view at the Smith College Museum of Art through Oct. 18 are three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik.

Exhibit — "Equal Partners." is being shown at the Smith College Museum of Art from Sept. 25–Dec. 13. This exhibit showcases the work of 15 American firms founded by female/male partners.

Internship — Internships are now available for the Peace Development Fund (PDF). For applications and additional information call 256-8306 (ext. 221 or 227).

Job — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for work study and paid student candidates for its frontline and Resource/Referral staffs. Call 545-0883 for more information.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

CALCULATORS FOR LESS!
FOR YOUR TOUGHEST NUMBER-CRUNCHING CLASSES. THAN YOU'D PAY ELSEWHERE.
Computers & E.T.C. ELECTRONIC TECHNOLOGY CENTER
CONVENIENTLY LOCATED IN University Store "Not like a mall... Better."
M-F 9 TO 5 SAT. 11 TO 4
413-545-2619

HSCN Alliance Services Cable Network

2	HSCN Bulletin Board	18	UVC-TV19
3	CBS/3 Hartford	20	ABC/40 Springfield
4	CBS/4 Boston	22	NBC/22 Springfield
5	ABC/5 Boston	23	CNN
6	PBS/57 Springfield	24	CNN SI
7	HSCN Movie Ch.	25	Headline News
8	UPN/20 Hartford	26	UCTV
9	Weather Channel	27	TBS
10	NBC/30 New Britain	28	BET
11	Fox/61 Hartford	29	TV Land
12	PBS/24 Hartford	30	Univision
14	WOCH & HSCN	31	Comedy Central
15	International	32	Cartoon
16	UMass Academic TV	33	Much Music
17	HSCN Programming

THURSDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 24, 1998

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEOH	2	10	Wishbone (C)	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (C)		World of National Geographic		Mystery!: Memoirs of Holmes		Keeping Up	Wait for God	Chefl	This Old Hse.
WFSB	3	3	News (C)	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Diagnosis Murder "Resurrection" (C)			48 Hours (In Stereo) (C)		News (C)	Late Show (C)
WBZ	4	4	News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Diagnosis Murder "Resurrection" (C)			48 Hours (In Stereo) (C)		News	Late Show (C)
WCVB	5	5	News (C)	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle (C)	★★★ "Executive Decision" (1996, Suspense) [PA] Kurt Russell, Halle Berry. (In Stereo) (C)			News (C)		News (C)	Nightline (C)
WLVI	6		Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny (C)	Friends (C)	Wayans Bros.	Jamie Foxx (C)	Steve Harvey	For Your Love	News		Nanny (C)
WHDH	7		News	NBC News	Wheel Fortune	Jeopardy! (C)	Friends (C)	Jesse (C)	Fraser (C)	Veronica's Cl.	ER "Day for Knight" (C)		News	Tonight Show
WTXX		8	Married...With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy (C)	Judge Judy (C)	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess (R) (C)		News	Newsradio (C)	LAPD
WVIT		30	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy (C)	Friends (C)	Jesse (C)	Fraser (C)	Veronica's Cl.	ER "Day for Knight" (C)		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	61	11	Simpsons (C)	Friends (C)	Seinfeld (C)	Fraser (C)	World's Wildest Police Videos		Fox Files (In Stereo) (C)		News		Friends (C)	Med. Abt. You
WWLP	22	22	News (C)	NBC News	Wheel Fortune	Jeopardy! (C)	Friends (C)	Jesse (C)	Fraser (C)	Veronica's Cl.	ER "Day for Knight" (C)		News (C)	Tonight Show
WGBY	57	6	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (C)		This Old Hse.	Dirs. on Call	Jewel in the Crown				Charlie Rose (In Stereo) (C)
WGGB	40	28	News (C)	ABC News	Seinfeld (C)	Fraser (C)	★★★ "Executive Decision" (1996, Suspense) [PA] Kurt Russell, Halle Berry. (In Stereo) (C)						News (C)	Nightline (C)
WSBK	38		Judge Judy (C)	Judge Judy (C)	Seinfeld (C)	Fraser (C)	★★½ "Poltergeist" (1982, Horror) JoBeth Williams.			News	Med. Abt. You	Fraser (C)	Cheers (C)
WTBS	49		Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith	Andy Griffith	WCW Thunder (C)			WCW Thunder (C)
A&E	69		Northern Exposure "Heroes"		Law & Order "Matrimony" (C)		Biography: Adolf Hitler			Investigative Reports (C)		Law & Order "Confession" (C)
CNN	23	23	Worldview (C)	Moneyline Newshour (C)		Crossfire (C)	World Today (C)		Larry King Live (C)		Newsstand: Entertainment		Sports	Moneyline (C)
COM	62	38	Comedy Nvr Z	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	★★½ "Back to School" (1986, Comedy) Rodney Dangerfield.			Gallagher: Stuck in the '60s		Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	60		Wings "Fighter Interceptor" (R)		Gimme Shelter (R)		Wild Discovery: Crocodile			Into Unknown	Movie Magic	Wings "Future Wings" (R)		Justice Files "Serial Killers" (R)
ESPN	63		Up Close	Sportscenter		GameNight	College Football: Arizona at San Diego State (Live) (C)						Sportscenter (C)
LIFE	50		Ellen (C)	Ellen (C)	Party of Five (In Stereo) (C)		Chicago Hope (In Stereo) (C)		"One of Her Own" (1994, Drama) Lori Loughlin, Martin Sheen.				Weddings of a Lifetime XII (R)
MTV	70		(5:30) Jams Countdown		Fanatic (R)	Twisted Toons	Eye Spy Video	Say What?	Total Request Live (In Stereo)		Celebrity	Super Advent.	Fanatic (R)	Loveline (R)
NICK	68		Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug (C)	Rugrats (C)	Thornberrys	Skeeter	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	I Love Lucy (C)	Bewitched
SCIFI	64		Quantum Leap (In Stereo) (R)		Sightings (R)	Star Trek "Arena" (C)			Sequest 2032: "Equilibrium" (C)		Friday the 13th: The Series (R)		Sightings (C)	Star Trek (C)
TLC	65	28	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	Medical Detect	Without Warn.	Ocean Voyagers (R)		Ocean Frontiers (R)		Medical Detect	Without Warn.
TNT	66		Babylon 5 "End Game" (C)		ER "February 5, 1995" (C)		★★★ "The Horse Soldiers" (1959, Adventure) John Wayne, William Holden.				Cold War: Making History		"Long Riders"
USA	67		Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess (R)		Walker, Texas Ranger (R)		★★ "The Great Outdoors" (1988, Comedy) Dan Aykroyd. (R)				New York Undercover (R)
HBO	43		★★½ "It" & Out" (1997, Comedy) Kevin Kline. PG-13 (C)				"Random Encounter" (1996) Elizabeth Berkley. (In Stereo) (C)		"Commandments" (1997) Aden Quinn. (R) (C)				Inside the NFL (In Stereo) (C)
MAX	45		★½ "Batman & Robin" (1997) Arnold Schwarzenegger. PG-13 (C)				★★½ "Serial Mom" (1994) Kathleen Turner. (R) (C)		Making of Men (In Stereo) (C)		★ "A Smile Like Yours" (1997) Greg Kinnear. (C)		"The World"
SHOW	46		(4:30)		★★ "Julian Po" (1997) Christian Slater. PG-13 (C)		★★½ "Absolute Power" (1997, Suspense) Clint Eastwood. (R) (C)			Line (R)		Rude Awaken.	Compromising	Dr.ad Men's

Cathy By Cathy Guisewite

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Fiendish Foglios By Brian D. Moses

Library Brick Boy By D.J. & Rob S.

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Liberty Meadows By Frank Cho

Non-Cents By John Zaccone Jr.

Horoscopes

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Someone may be trying to throw a wrench in the works, but you will see it coming and should be able to avoid any lasting damage.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — Someone is likely to drive you to distraction today with a great deal of whining. Put your foot down, but do it gently!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You're not likely to get the reaction you're seeking today unless you hand pick your audience. Keep things in the family today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You are in the mood for some spiritual nourishment today. You can have it, but expect it to come from an unlikely source.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You may want to limit your interaction with certain people to just getting the job done. For now, leave it at that.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — You may discover that an enemy is really a valued friend. Both of you can inspire the other to do some great things!

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — The harmony you seek may be somewhat out of reach today. Stay in and around familiar territory in order to enjoy a modicum of peace.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — The admiration you feel for someone may come to mean more to you today than in the past. There is a connection being formed here.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You're in no mood to admit feelings of insecurity and vulnerability, but your behavior belies the mask you're wearing. Let others help.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — Now is not the time to get involved in something you are not prepared for. You're best bet is to stick to familiar tasks today.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You're in the mood for adventure today, but be sure to weigh the consequences of your actions before putting yourself in danger.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — You're feeling rather domesticated these days, so find true contentment by spending the day with loved ones at home.

Quote of the Day

"My love for you is ticking clock. BER-ZER-KER!"

–Clerks

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Whoa! Hey, Gina ... I, uh ... really messed up! I swear to you, I will never, ever, ever forget your birthday again, honey!"

Today's D.C. Menu

Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin

LUNCH
Hamburger on Roll
Broccoli Royale
Veal Parmesian Sandwich

DINNER
Szechwan Beef and Broccoli
Baked Ziti
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

Worcester

LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Bowties/Italian Sausage Sauce
Beans and Rice

DINNER
Szechwan Beef and Broccoli
Handcut Cod Sub
Szechwan Tofu and Broccoli
Chicken Cacciatore
Pastabilities

Hampshire

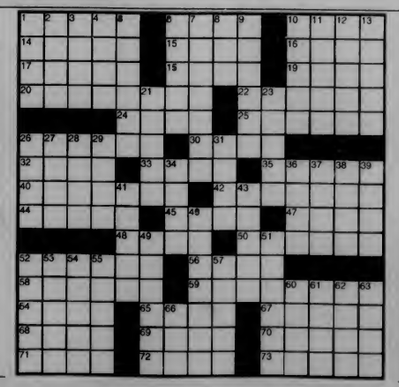
LUNCH
Hamburger on Roll
Charbroiled Chicken Sandwich
Veal Parmesian Sandwich

DINNER
Szechwan Beef and Broccoli
Baked Ziti

Berkshire

LUNCH
Worcester Breakfast Sandwixh
Hamburger on Roll
Ziti/Tomato Sauce
Black Bean Chili

DINNER
Szechwan Beef and Broccoli
Chicken Cacciatore
Szechwan Tofu and Broccoli
Pastabilities



ACROSS
1 Understandable
6 Recipe qty.
10 "Dear" one
14 Jazzy Lena
15 Jai —
16 Mouse cousin
17 Getting older
18 Floor coverings
19 Historical periods
20 Shoppers' papers
22 Harangue
24 Poet Ogden
25 Gemsbooks
26 Eucalyptus eaters
30 Famous volcano
32 Andes native
33 Greek goddess
35 Peculiarity
40 Timeless
42 Toss it!
43 Screwdriver need
45 Place
47 Emulate Celine Dion
48 Hull bottom
50 Pops
52 Wet
56 Boor
58 Mountain nymphs
59 Kernels
64 Tidings
65 Bad day for Caesar
67 Hit movie of the past
68 Muslim prince
69 Puff of wind
70 Gnn
71 Tardy
72 Elicit of "The Untouchables"
73 Lugged

DOWN
1 Scorch
2 Theater section
3 Guitarist Clapton
4 Actress Meara
5 Canadian city
6 Bakery items
7 Rouge
8 Droop
9 Engine part
10 Painter Milton —
11 Water softener
12 Grass unit
13 Affirmatives
21 Turkish official
23 Baghdad native
26 Ukraine's capital
27 "I'm — your tricks!"
28 Made an "A"
29 Escapade
31 27th President
34 End of a threat
36 Old map initls.
37 Wading bird
38 Monthly obligation
39 Barrels
41 Unclothed
43 Disprove
46 Malady
49 Naval officer
51 Greatest
52 Wooden rod
53 Good smell
54 Deserve
55 Pedro's father
57 Expels from power
60 Poitster Roper
61 Mine entrance
62 Roofing piece
63 Planter's need
66 Expected to arrive

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

M	A	P	S		A	B	E	L		F	A	M	E
O	M	A	H	A		L	E	V	I		J	O	E	L
R	I	G	E	L		L	E	A	F		O	R	A	L
N	E	E		I	C	O	N		T	U	R	T	L	E
		M	E	O	W		M	O	N	D	A	Y
I	S	L	A	N	D	S		A	F	T
R	U	I	N	S		B	I	F	O	C	A	L	S
A	L	S	O		G	R	I	D	S		A	R	A	T
Q	U	A	R	R	I	E	D		B	R	E	V	E
		E	N	D		F	L	O	T	S	A	M
I	C	I	N	G	S		O	A	R	S
S	T	R	O	D	E		T	R	O	D		S	E	T
T	A	U	T		R	E	A	M		E	V	O	K	E
A	L	L	I	N		M	Y	R	E		R	I	D	E
R	Y	E	S		Y	E	A	R		C	A	D	S

6-19 98 © 1998 United Feature Syndicate

Night Editor	Casey Kane
Photo Technician	Brian McDermott
Copy Editor	Ken McDonald
Production Supervisor	Rob Snow
Production Staff	Angie Annese, D.J. Carey

SPORTS

Miami, Dallas not as good as they seem

Alright, who are these defensive monsters, and what did they do with the real Miami Dolphins?

These imposters have made it appear as though the teal and orange fish have the second ranked defense in the AFC over the course of the first three weeks. Stranger still, the offense, which seems to still have legendary quarterback Dan Marino and quick tailback Karim Abdul-Jabbar, is second to last in the conference over the same time span.

Will this last? Don't be alarmed, because although this revamped defensive squad might be the nudge Miami needs to break into the wild card bracket after a couple years of being on the brink, there won't be any championships in south Florida this year.

On Monday Night Football, expect an eruption. Barry Sanders has been relatively quiet through the opening three games of the season, so he's due for an explosive 150-175 yard performance when his Lions host Tampa Bay Monday. Besides, doesn't Barry usually rip apart the Buccaneers?

Seth Koenig

On a completely unrelated note, you either love the Dallas Cowboys or you absolutely hate them. I represent the latter, and thus I am fuming when I say that you can pencil in the arrogant 'Pokes for a playoff reappearance this year.

Their cupcake schedule will serve them an outstanding win-loss record on a silver (and navy starred) platter, as the combined record of their next seven opponents is 3-17. That's right, three and 17! If they can't get into the postseason card game with four aces dealt to them by the NFL scheduling committee like that, then they don't deserve to be playing.

Oh, and what about the St. Louis Rams considering troubled ex-Nebraska star Lawrence Phillips for a return trip? Rams skipper Dick Vermeil needs to return to broadcasting if he lets this deal go through. Phillips has proven that despite his obvious physical talent, he doesn't mentally have what it takes to play in the NFL. My advice to St. Louis is to save their money.

The "almost local" team, the New York Giants, have had some problems in the early going as well, but they'll turn things around somewhat. Their first chance to get headed in the right direction will be this Sunday when they travel to San Diego to play the Chargers. San Diego is not nearly as good as its 2-1 mark indicates, as the Chiefs found out and exploited last week.

Rookie Charger quarterback Ryan Leaf had a rough outing, turning the ball over five times against Kansas City, and things always get worse before they get better. Expect this to be a turning point for the fed-up Giant defense.

Leaf's rookie counterpart, Indianapolis' Peyton Manning, has been described as "lifeless" in his three-straight losses while guiding the Colts. Indy fans should rest assured, though. Manning will find his place among the team passing records as long as coach Jim Mora and his superiors stay patient, like the Bucs did when they stuck with field general Trent Dilfer until he became a solid leader. Peyton will be great, but maybe not by this weekend, as Indianapolis looks to play stepping stone for the surprisingly spry New Orleans Saints.

Which leads us to my picks of the week:

As I just implied, the Saints will bully the Colts, despite their even line in Vegas. I just don't have confidence in Indy. Versatile tailback Marshall Faulk is the only thing the Colts have going for them, with a vacant defense and a mediocre special teams slowing their progress.

Seattle will travel to, and defeat, Pittsburgh (-3). None of the Steelers' guns are firing, as Kordell "Slash" Stewart has been erratic and Jerome "The Bus" Bettis has been relatively quiet. Nobody expects the Seahawks to continue winning, but QB Warren Moon has the experience to lead the team through these situations. People don't seem to get it yet; Moon's age doesn't effect him, at all.

I'm chomping at the bit to profoundly claim an Oilers' upset at home against Jacksonville (-3), and I think I will. Tennessee will put it all together now, as they could easily have beaten AFC power New England on the road last week. Besides, the 3-0 Jags need to fall sometime soon.

Finally, providing coach Jon Gruden can iron out the sloppy mistakes and penalties his talented Raiders have been slowed by, Oakland will beat the spread against the aforementioned Dallas Cowboys (-5) on the road.

Seth Koenig is a Collegian columnist.

UMass duo heads home this weekend

Tokarchik & Machamer return to Colorado

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

For most of the players on the Massachusetts women's soccer team, playing in front of family and friends is an every game occurrence.

The Minutewomen sport five residents from Massachusetts, and another six come from bordering states. However, the distance from home is much greater for some of their teammates.

Junior Tarah Tokarchik and sophomore Kathleen Machamer are two players on the UMass roster who have made the long trip east from Colorado. This weekend, however, will be a special one for the pair, as the Minutewomen head to Boulder, Colo. for matchups with Colorado and Texas.

"We try to get back into the areas where our players come from. I think it's great that the parents and families and friends get a chance to see their kids play, and their kids get a chance to see them," Massachusetts women's soccer coach Jim Rudy said. "It's sort of like extra time home for them. I think it breaks up the school year so these kids don't get too homesick and get to see Mom and Dad."

Taking charge in the midfield

Unfortunately, injuries hampered Tokarchik last season and are once again keeping her at less than 100 percent this year. But it will take more than a minor pull or bruise to keep the steady midfielder out of the lineup, and Rudy would attest to that.

"I know she is playing with pain. I know she's got an injury, and she's playing through that pain, which is great," Rudy said. "It's what we need and it's a sign of maturity."

The Aurora, Colo. resident has been a solid contributor in the midfield for UMass not only this year, where she has already tallied a pair of assists, but also for the past two seasons. However, it is her veteran leadership and experience that has been extremely valuable to the Minutewomen during their early-season struggles.

"I feel that I needed to step up and help the younger people get used to the way we play," Tokarchik said. "But everyone out on the field is doing a good job."

Said Rudy: "Tarah is much improved. Maybe last year she didn't get as much time as the year before, but she's really worked hard. She's made a major effort to raise the level of her game, and it comes at a good time, because we really need the help right now."

Despite the early struggles of the team, Tokarchik is optimistic that the Minutewomen will continue to turn things around and have another successful campaign.

"We're going to start winning more games," she said. "We've always been confident because the teams that we lost to were ranked higher than us. It's nice to know that going into a big weekend against two good teams that we're going in there with a win."

So how exactly does Tokarchik feel about going home?

"It's nice to finally be able to go back and play in Colorado," she said. "All of my friends and family are going to be able to come out and watch me play."

The road to recovery is finally over

For Machamer, it has been a long, tumultuous season and a half. The good news, however, for the Englewood, Colo. native, is that she has already weathered the big storm. You see, Machamer sat out all of last season after tearing her anterior cruciate ligament before arriving in Amherst.

This year, though, it's a much happier story that is being written by the sophomore midfielder. The culmination of all of her trials and tribulations, however, may have taken place at Totman Field last Sunday, when No. 11 netted her first collegiate goal in a 4-2 win over Colgate.

"Every single game that I've played in this year has been so weird because it's like 'I'm going to play today'. I didn't really know what to do when I scored the goal because I hadn't scored in a year," Machamer said. "I was just so excited. It was definitely a confidence booster for me."

Said Rudy of Machamer: "She's still hurt. Her knee is not 100 per-

Turn to SOCCER, page 11

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Colorado natives Kathleen Machamer (above) and Tarah Tokarchik (right) will get the chance to play in front of their family and friends this weekend when UMass takes on CU and Texas.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Sophomore Rebecca Hasson helped the Massachusetts volleyball team win two consecutive contests.

UMass volleyball picks up two wins

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts volleyball team finished its string of road matches on a very high note: first, by torching La Salle Saturday, and secondly, by wrecking Harvard Tuesday night, 15-13, 15-5, and 15-8.

The first game of the match was a struggle in which UMass came out on top, 15-13. The momentum carried into the second and third game, during which the Minutewomen blew away the Crimson 15-5, 15-8.

"This was a really tough match. Harvard had been playing really well in California, and had we dropped the first match we could have had some trouble," coach Bonnie Kenny said, "but we played well enough to win."

The Minutewomen came into Tuesday's match with the Crimson riding high off Saturday's, near record-setting performance. UMass defeated La Salle 3-0, while having a .429 attack percentage. This number nearly set an NCAA record.

Although the Minutewomen didn't attack at such a rigorous pace, they played solid volleyball en route to beating the Crimson.

"We didn't play like we did against La Salle, but we executed our middle really well. Jill [Meyers] and Rebecca [Hasson] came through for us, they're starting to believe more in each other and in the system," Kenny said.

This is the Minutewomen's first out-of-conference victory since their matchup against Siena on Sept. 4. With the win they improve their overall mark to 4-7 (1-1 in the Atlantic 10).

The attack for Minutewomen came from the usual suspects. Meyers came through with nine kills and 11 digs. Meyers was once again stellar on the attack as her percentage was near .300.

Kari Hogancamp was also a contributor, as she banged out seven kills and 14 digs.

Sophomore Katie Gibbons chipped in for UMass with eight kills and eight digs. Hasson was a force in the middle for UMass getting seven kills.

Freshman Lauren Vander Veen, had a breakout match as she tallied eight kills and only two errors. She also contributed by doing a lot of little things; she chipped in with assists and one service ace, along with three defensive digs. The Oakland, Calif., native's best statistic was her attack percentage, where she recorded a .575, leading the team.

"We ran her to the right and she played really well. Vander Veen played for Lymarie [Llovet], whose knees were hurting, so Lauren stepped in and came up big for us," Kenny said.

Llovet is expected to play this weekend despite the aching.

Another freshman, Heather Holtsberg had most of the setting responsibilities in this match. She tallied 28 assists, while veteran sophomore setter Jennifer Drennan added six of her own to the UMass cause.

The Minutewomen come home this weekend for two crucial Atlantic 10 battles against Virginia Tech Hokies and the Duquesne Lady Dukes.

"We are going to continue to run our system, and hope that the momentum we have acquired from our last two games carry's over into this weekend's action," Kenny said.

Bruiser Flint, three others to be honored this weekend by ASAP

By Seth Koenig
Collegian Staff

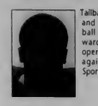
Massachusetts men's basketball coach James "Bruiser" Flint will be honored at the first Black Coaches Tribute at the Hickory Ridge Country Club in South Amherst this Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

Flint led the Minutemen to the NCAA tournament for the seventh consecutive year last season, as UMass boasted a 21-11 regular season record. In his rookie season as the coach a year earlier, Flint guided the squad to 19 wins, more than any other first-year Massachusetts coach.

The record-setting 16th win that year came against No. 10 Maryland, in a 78-61 upset that established the "Bruiserball" squad as a team to be reckoned with.

In seven years as an assistant to John Calipari, Flint oversaw Minuteman appearances in the Sweet 16, Elite Eight and the Final Four.

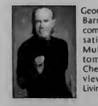
Aside from coaching at UMass, Flint was also putting his time into the Five Star Basketball Camp, and served as assistant commissioner of Philadelphia's Sonny Hill Basketball League. The Special Olympics and the Big Brothers program have also been areas of importance for the Minuteman boss.



Flint will be one of four Western Massachusetts coaches honored, including Arthur Carrington, Jr., coach at the Arthur Carrington Tennis Academy, Dennis Jackson, executive director of P.L.A.Y. Incorporated, and Donald Moye, coach of the Springfield Slamm.

The event is sponsored by the newly formed Amherst Sports Advocacy Program, a program that is set up to help high school athletes overcome various problems that may threaten their advancement. A.S.A.P. is hoping its honorees and other assorted volunteers can serve as resources for young student athletes as they deal with tough times in their lives.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CIV Issue 13 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, September 25, 1998

Shipp anchors in Amherst

Tailback Marcel Shipp and the UMass football team looks forward to their home opener this Saturday against Buffalo (see Sports, page 10).

Class clown back in school

George Carlin, Mike Barnicle's favorite comedian, takes his satire to the Mullins center tomorrow night. Check out our preview (see Arts & Living, page 5).

WORLD

India sets treaty goal

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — India's prime minister said yesterday his country was prepared to conclude discussions on the nuclear test ban treaty, following Pakistan's pledge to sign on to the pact. Atal Bihari Vajpayee said in a prepared text he planned to deliver to the General Assembly yesterday that India wanted the treaty to go into force no later than September 1999.

On Wednesday, Pakistani Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif said in his General Assembly speech that his country was ready to adhere to the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty, even as he warned that compliance would depend on whether rival India resumed its tests.

India had been participating in discussions in Geneva on the treaty through 1996, when it refused to continue, arguing that the declared nuclear powers had to agree to a deadline to destroy their arsenals.

NATION

Feminist leaders for defense of Pres. Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feminist leaders urged the nation's women yesterday to demand the Republican Congress drop efforts to impeach President Clinton or hound him from office.

"Some of those leading the charge against Mr. Clinton are among the worst foes of women's rights," according to a joint statement from several organizations. "The opponents of the president have a political agenda that will harm women long after the scandal has faded from the front pages."

"Women should write, call, telefax, E-mail, shout and tell Congress, 'Do not impeach this president and don't force him to resign,'" said Yvonne Scruggs-Leftwich, head of the Black Leadership Forum Inc., at the news conference.

Among the other participants were feminist pioneer Betty Friedan; Patricia Ireland, president of the National Organization for Women; and Eleanor Smeal, president of the Feminist Majority. The women said they believe the accusations against the president do not rise to the level of impeachable offenses.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 74 LOW: 54	HIGH: 77 LOW: 57	HIGH: 80 LOW: 53

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics .....page 11
Crossword .....page 11
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Admission standards changed for state public higher education

By Christie Vincent
Collegian Staff

Last week the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education (BHE) announced new admissions standards for the state's public colleges and Universities.

The minimum grade point average for entering freshmen (without having to consider their SAT or ACT scores) will be raised to 2.9 by fall 2000 and to 3.0 by fall 2001.

This is being done "to admit better prepared students," the Board's statement reads. BHE also decided not to admit students with a GPA below 2.0 into the state colleges or universities.

Bryan Harvey, of academic planning and assessment at the University of Massachusetts, said the new standards will probably not effect the Amherst campus much, since the University "has already exceeded the standards" proposed by the BHE.

An impact analysis from BHE (based on data for the 1997 entering class) indicates that of the 4,860 students admitted to the Amherst campus, all would have been admissible, while at UMass Dartmouth, 131 students would not have been admitted, as well as 102 students at UMass Lowell.

BHE also developed new sliding scale requirements for those students whose GPA won't meet 2.9 and so forth. A student with a 2.0 to 2.1 GPA in the year 2001 would need a combined SAT score of at least 1150, versus needing at least a score of 1090 for fall of 1997. A student with a GPA of 2.5 to 2.9 would need a 950 in 2001, versus an 890 during the fall of last year.

This is the first time in the history of public higher education in Massachusetts that the state will have a "systematic approach to the assessment of students," said the Board, meaning that all state schools will have similar entrance and exit exams.

There will also be changes concerning entering SAT scores; students will have to get a minimum of 500 in the verbal section. If students do not receive a minimum score of 500, they will have to go through a reading assessment. The board also said students who are below these cut-off points will have to take the required developmental courses.

Arlene Cash, director of admissions, reiterated the point that it does not look like the new standards will have much of an effect on admissions at UMass.

Cash said the requirements for entering freshmen are 16 college prep credits from high school and that the student takes the SAT or ACT. Math and English placement tests

Turn to ADMISSIONS, page 3

Elections to be held

SGA hopes for 15 percent voter turn out

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association (SGA) has announced candidates for the Area Government and Student Senate elections which are scheduled for Monday, September 28.

Thirty-nine people are running for senate positions, while 15 are running for positions in area government. According to Lisa Cook, speaker of the senate, approximately 75 seats exist in the senate; each seat represents 250 students. About 1/3 of all the senators represent commuter students. The empty seats that remain after elections, said Cook, will probably be filled during the remainder of the year.

Students who live in residence halls with 250 people or more, will vote for a senator representing their building. Residence halls which house less then 250 people, will be represented by "at-large" senators. Also, students may write in a candidate's name who isn't already on the ballot.

In order to draw students to the polls, the SGA is adding referendum questions to the ballots. According to an SGA spokesperson, the referendum questions will involve the alcohol policy, an off-campus student code of conduct, and whether or not credit card vendors should be allowed on campus.

Seth Presser, chancellor of elections, hopes this year's senate and area government election will capture at least 15 percent of the student body vote.

Last year's senator election had to be nullified due to low voter turnout. The SGA constitution states that five percent of the student body must vote in order for the elections to be valid; 877 students voted, and 905 votes were needed. Almost 15 percent of students voted in the second election held nearly a month later. The reason for the increase of voters, said SGA members, was better advertising.

Cook stressed the importance of the Student Senate and their role at the University.

"Senators impact students through the Wellman doctrine. SGA has prima-

Turn to ELECTIONS, page 2

Potato chips laced with 'herbs' attract snackers

By Donna Abu-Nasr
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — There was a time when potato chips were just potato chips, their greasy crunch leaving the snacker with an aftertaste of delicious guilt.

No more.

A new kind of chips aims at tackling the psyche rather than tickling the taste bud, promising to turn Americans into kinder, happier and gentler souls.

The secret? Herbs and plant extracts, like St. John's wort, gingko biloba and kava kava, added to the chips along with essences of edible flowers — violet, chamomile, peppermint and passion flower — to help combat depression, promote long life and improve memory.

"It's just one of those next steps in the evolution of snacks and food," said the chips' manufacturer, Robert Ehrlich. "There are definitely benefits from the product."

But not everyone is swallowing that claim. Some nutritionists have expressed concern that all the feel-good messages about the snacks are just advertising gimmicks to sell chips.

"These products encourage people to think chips are a health food when they're not," said Marion Nestle, chairwoman of the department of nutrition and food studies at New York University, referring to the herbal chips.

"They're just ridiculous," said Norman Rosenthal, clinical professor of psychiatry and author of "St. John's Wort; The Herbal Way to Feeling Good." "It would be like having a penicillin pie or an antibiotic apple strudel."

"If people are really feeling depressed or anxious they should not depend on a potato chip," Rosenthal added.

The FDA's chief of special nutritionals, Elizabeth Yetley, said Ehrlich does not have an obligation to discuss his products with the FDA. But it is his responsibility to make sure that food products are safe before he markets them.

Rosenthal said St. John's wort is an effective anti-depressant if used properly. Otherwise, "it's nothing more than a party joke," he said.

Ehrlich said a 1 ounce bag contains an average of 150 milligrams of St. John's wort, well below the 900 milligram dose that Rosenthal said is usually recommended. That means snackers would have to consume six bags — at a whopping 840 calories — to achieve bliss, if they don't get sick first from eating too many chips. Ehrlich argued that his chips are not supplements but snacks. He also said there is benefit from the herbs because they are not cooked. Rather, the off-white powdery herb is sprinkled on after the products are made, leaving a slightly bitter aftertatse. "Even though there are critics, people love them," Ehrlich maintained.

Ehrlich began making his mood-enhancing snacks four years ago. A group of herbalists, zen masters, a psychiatrist and young consumers help put the products together. At 99 cents for a 2 ounce bag, the chips are sold in supermarkets — in the health food section — in the United States and in some parts of Europe, Asia and South America.

His latest product, Personality Puffs, came out this month. Low fat Cardio Chips containing a blend of natural herbs to improve cardiovascular health, metabolic conditions, the immune system and aging will come out next month.

His other herbal products include St. John's Wort Tortilla Chips, to improve moods, Gingko Biloba Rings, to enhance memory, and Kava Corn Chips to promote relaxation.

Personality Puffs, which come in the shape of little people, are made up of a blend of flowers, St. John's Wort and gingko biloba. But before impatiently ripping open the bag, snackers are asked to take a good look at the back of the package.

Unlike the other herbal products, Personality Puffs come with a set of printed rules that will "open you to the magic that is ready to happen in your life."

Snackers are asked to buy at least two bags and give one away to a stranger within one hour of purchase. That, Ehrlich said, will create goodwill and kindness.

They are also asked to clear their mind and drop their worries, listen to what people say, cultivate relationships, smile and hold that smile for a solid five seconds.

"It seems a little weird now," admitted Ehrlich. "But it's going to catch on like crazy."

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Lemon head

Lauren Brodey, a freshman pre-medical major, competes in a lemon eating contest outside the Hamden Munchy store yesterday afternoon.

Women of Color group honors eight

UM Leadership Network presents sixth annual event

By Shirley Bruno
Collegian Staff

The Women of Color Leadership Network (formerly known as the Women of Color Program) presented its sixth annual Women of Color Reception in the VIP room at the William D. Mullins Center yesterday.

The WOCLN, a branch of the Everywoman's Center, named the event "Looking Back... Looking Forward: Historical Perspectives," and honored eight women for their work towards community and their dedication to the Everywomen's Center.

The event began with an introduction by WOCLN's assistant director, Jacqueline Pinn, who spoke about the historical pathways the network has created for women of color among the Five College campuses since its origin in 1979.

Pinn addressed some of the adversities minority college women faced 20 years ago which are still existing today. From the hardships of racism, sexism and the lack of female support groups, the Everywoman's Center established itself as a outreach.

Lisa Scott, the director of WOCLN, followed Pinn with a retrospective, recounting her personal experience with building the network into a source of connections and opportunities for women of color.

"I have witnessed the ugly side of racism and sexism and homophobia on campus, and it is real," Scott said, indicating how necessary the network is for the survival of minority women on campus.

She went on further to express WOCLN's mission to strengthen self-identity, create opportunities and sustain support for a culturally diverse community.

The event ceremony not only honored various accomplished women with speeches and dedications, but also with dance and song.

Undergraduates Irene Shaikely, Lilyvette Perez and Angela Osei-Mensah performed separate dance pieces. Jaimee Trahan, and the four-woman group Premium (a section of Boundaries) performed songs.

The women honored were Esther Jane Almeida (Amherst Council on Aging), Linda Asai Olf (University Diversity Committee), Renee Lopes-Pocknett (CCEMBS), Marilyn Middleton (Artistic Director of the Bamidele Dancers and Drummers).

Also honored were: Jeanette Rodriguez (community health program), Rachelle Curry (administrative assistant to the assistant vice chancellor for campus activities), Patricia Mota Guedes (Educator/Advocate Program at the Everywoman's Center), and lastly Lisa Scott (director, WOLCN).

Each woman received a plaque on behalf of the Everywoman's Center.

Hurricane Georges aims for eys; hundreds of thousands evacuated

By Tracy Fields
Associated Press

KEY WEST, Fla. — Hurricane Georges built up strength and bore down on southern Florida yesterday, prompting officials to advise more than three-quarters of a million people to evacuate mobile homes and low-lying areas.

With Georges' wind speed clocked at 80 mph, forecasters predicted that the hurricane — already blamed for more than 110 deaths across the Caribbean — would slice through the Keys by early today.

"This storm looks like it's all set to explosively intensify once the eye gets over water," said Jerry Jarrell, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

Hurricane warnings were posted for four counties — Monroe, Dade, Broward and Collier — with a population of 3.8 million. The warnings mean that hurricane-force winds of at least 74 mph could arrive by 5 a.m. today. Georges could be the first major hurricane felt in southern Florida since Andrew, which caused $25 billion damage in Florida alone in 1992.

At Miami's Metrozoo, which still hasn't recovered from Andrew, workers started moving animals to safety. At nearby Parrot Jungle, birds and monkeys were moved inside concrete buildings.

"They know something is up," said Robert Diaz, show director at Parrot Jungle. "They are uneasy, pacing back and forth, acting irregular. They know it's time to go ahead and find some shelter." Forecasters said hurricane conditions were possible in five more counties farther north by this evening: Palm Beach and Martin on the Atlantic coast, and Lee, Charlotte and Sarasota counties on the Gulf coast. Then the storm is expected to move over the Gulf, strengthening again and threatening the northern Gulf late Sunday night or Monday morning.

Advisories recommending evacuations of low-lying areas and mobile

Turn to HURRICANE, page 2

Police Log

Accident — Property Damage
Sept. 22
There was a two vehicle accident at the Southwest horseshoe on University Drive.
There was a two vehicle accident on Commonwealth Avenue.
A vehicle was struck at the Fine Arts Center loading area on Fine Arts Center Way.
A vehicle was hit in Lot 12 on Forestry Way.
One vehicle backed into another in Lot 68 on Governor's Drive.

Annoying Behavior
Sept. 22
An individual expressed concern regarding vehicles not stopping for pedestrians on Massachusetts Avenue.

B&E/Burglary
Sept. 22
A vehicle was broken into in Lot 22 on University Drive. A parking decal and CD player were stolen.

Health and Safety Hazard
Sept. 24
Police called to check on a faulty smoke detector in Coolidge Residence Hall.
Sept. 22
A burning smell was reported in a laundry area in North Village Apartments.
Extensive flooding was reported in Lot 32 on Massachusetts Avenue.

Larceny
Sept. 25
A license plate was stolen from a vehicle in Lot 47 on Sylvan Drive.
Sept. 22
An individual in Cance Residence Hall signed for a package that didn't belong to him.
Sept. 22
Cash was reported missing from a register at the Bike Co-op since Monday.

Missing Person
Sept. 22
Parent reported being concerned about not having heard from her daughter.

Traffic Stop
Sept. 25
Eric F. Ames, 26, of 566 North Street, Dalton, was arrested on Massachusetts Avenue for failure to stop/yield, operation of a vehicle under the influence of liquor and possession of a Class D substance.

Warrant Service
Sept. 25
Christopher J. DeLuca, 26, of 161 Chapel St., Newton, was arrested on a warrant in Cashin Residence Hall.

Vandalism
Sept. 22
A vehicle window was smashed in Lot 11 on Stadium Drive.

■ elections

continued from page 1

ry responsibility over student affairs" she said. Basically, senators are empowered and we need to utilize it."

Students will be able to vote on Monday between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., and also 4–7 p.m., in Worcester, Franklin, Hampshire and Berkshire Dining Commons, as well as the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center. Absentee ballots will be available at every poll, so students can vote at any location.

Campaigning for these elections officially began yesterday, although candidates must show their campaigning materials to Presser, before using any of them.

Presser said the results of the elections will probably be available on Thursday.

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

■ hurricane

continued from page 1

homes were issued today for as far north as the Sarasota area. The counties affected are Dade, Broward, Collier, Glades, Hendry, Sarasota, DeSoto and Manatee. The evacuation advisories cover at least 690,000 people. A mandatory evacuation order issued earlier in the Keys affects an additional 80,000. An evacuation order for 200,000 people from low-lying areas of Pinellas County took effect at 6 a.m. today.

In Cape Canaveral, on Florida's Atlantic coast, NASA ordered the Discovery back to its giant hangar last night. The space shuttle had been rolled to its launch pad Monday for next month's scheduled mission with John Glenn.

Forecasters had said that the longer Georges' center stayed over Cuba, the less time it had to build before hitting the United States. The eye was split over land and sea by late morning yesterday. Jarrell, of the National Hurricane Center, advised Keys' stragglers to get out, saying, "We're extremely concerned that the land areas will be inundated with water and we'll lose a lot of folks down there."

For the Keys, the wind was already picking up yesterday morning. John and Sylvia Phillips, who live on a boat docked off Key West, had an uncertain future after they loaded backpacks and stuck out their thumbs to hitchhike to the mainland.

"We had to wait until last night to pick up a paycheck," Phillips, a waiter and bartender, said yesterday. They made up their minds to leave during the night when "that boat started rocking," Ms. Phillips said.

At 11 a.m., the hurricane was centered over Cuba, about 340 miles southeast of Key West, and moving west-northwest at 12 mph. Top winds of 80 mph, extending 35 miles from the center, were expected to increase.

Georges hit some Caribbean islands with 20-foot waves and storm surges 5 to 10 feet above normal tides. Some of the Florida Keys are as little as 7 feet above sea level. The highest point in Key West is 14 feet above sea level.

"It doesn't take much to flood those islands. With a storm surge of 4 to 6 feet, it's still going to cover a great deal," said Michelle Huber, a National Hurricane Center meteorologist. By today, thousands had fled along U.S. Route 1, the two-lane road connecting the slender, 110-mile string of islands.

"It's like a ghost town," said Jim Malloch, Monroe County's project manager. "There's very few people out on the roads. At least half, maybe more, of the people left."

Anti-abortion billboards anger students

By Stacy Morford
Associated Press

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Anti-abortion billboards comparing aborted fetuses to the corpses of Holocaust victims sickened and angered students at the University of Kansas during this week's Jewish holidays.

The display of cloth signs went up Sunday on the lawn of a dormitory. One student was so angry that he drove his car into the display, nearly hitting a young woman with the group, university police Sgt. Troy Mailen said Wednesday. The student was arrested. On Tuesday, a student attempted to knock one of the signs over and ended up punching the man holding it, Mailen said.

Simone Fischer, 20, a student from San Antonio, said her first impulse was to tear down the signs when she saw the swastika and a photo of Holocaust victims headlined "Religious Choice" next to abortion photos headlined "Reproductive Choice."

"Being the Jewish new year, one of the most sacred days, and I see abortion being compared to Jewish graves and the Holocaust, I did not feel welcome on my own campus," Fischer said. "My feeling was shock and then anger. I felt violated."

Rosh Hashanah, the two-day Jewish New Year holiday, began at sundown Sunday. Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, is next Tuesday. The man who organized the weeklong display said he would make no apologies for the Holocaust comparison. He also said the timing with the Jewish holidays was not planned.

"Abortion is genocide. That's the whole point," said Gregg Cunningham, director of the Los Angeles-based Center for Bio-Ethical Reform. "Frankly, I'm weary of genocide snobs who focus solely on their causes."

The group took the signs to Pennsylvania State University for a similar protest during Passover and has 15 to 20 more protests planned at campuses across the country, he said.

Cunningham and the Wichita-based Heartland Life Network arranged the protest through a club for Christian law students that was formally organized last week.

University Chancellor Robert Hemenway sent a rare e-mail to students and faculty saying the university regretted that the displays had caused "a great deal of distress to many members of our community." But he said the university needed to maintain its role as a forum for free speech.

The billboard also showed a photo of a civil rights-era lynching over the words "Racial Choice."

Jonathan Macklin of the Black Student Union called the use of the lynching image irresponsible and said it trivialized a terrible time in the country's history. Cunningham defended the use of the comparison, saying it was the same shock technique a professor would use to teach about the Vietnam War or the Holocaust.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Steamin'
Jenny Zwanziger, a sophomore anthropology major, walks past a steam vent by the path near Central Residence Area.

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Jason Trenkle • Photos by Brian McDermott

Were you aware of the upcoming SGA senator elections? Do you feel students take the voting seriously in the elections?

"I haven't heard of it until now, but I will plan on voting. Some take the voting seriously and others don't."

Lyndsay St. Onge
Freshman
Undecided

"I think since most students live on-campus, the percentage of those voting has gone up. Yeah, I plan to vote, but who's running?"

Josh Mobley
Senior
Film Studies

"I don't know what the elections are about or whether they concern the graduate students, but I guess I'll vote."

Nitin Baliga
Graduate Student
Microbiology

"I've heard about them, but I'm not really into that type of stuff. I don't plan on voting, and no, students don't take the elections seriously."

Erin Rawson
Sophomore
Biology and English

"I did not know much about the election, but I hope there will be equal representation among the candidates as far as diversity goes."

Sanah Cisse
Graduate Student
Early Childhood Education

"I have no clue about the election or who's running or even when it is. They should advertise that type of stuff. Good luck to the candidates though."

Carl Ferry
Senior
Sociology

■ admissions

continued from page 1

are required as well, but that also is dependent upon the student's records.

"We look at the student's academic history before deciding (whether the student needs testing)," Cash said.

The BHE has also decided to set up a task force to choose an assessment test for students to take on college-level general education before they graduate from high school. The Board said they do not know exactly what year students will take the exam. The task force will be established within the next couple of months. The task will consist of professionals from community and state colleges, as well as universities. According to the Board, the tests will contain "verbal and quantitative literacy and critical thinking."

Some students feel unsure about the idea of having new testing.

"It's unnecessary," said freshman Lori DiAndrea.

Although junior elementary education major, Kate Beeltje, felt the idea of having a standard verbal test for college students would be fair, she felt unsure about having a standard test on analytical reasoning and thinking, because she said the type of reasoning and thinking the student learns "changes with each major."

Fair Skies,
and a pleasant Autumn breeze.

Clinton seeks political help from ex–rival Dole

By Larry Margasak
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton, seeking to avoid impeachment, is reaching out for help to the man he defeated in 1996.

The old adversary, former Sen. Bob Dole, said yesterday it is too early to tell whether he could play a role in brokering a deal with Congress and premature to talk of a quick resolution that would result in censure of Clinton rather than impeachment.

"We're in the very early stages of a proceeding that's going to last for a while," the former Kansas senator said on NBC's "Today." "The president himself kept this going for eight months. Now to say we ought to wrap it up in 30 days — it's not going to happen."

Clinton, meanwhile, said he was trying to keep his focus on the nation's business. "I'm working on leading our country and I'm working on healing my family," the president told reporters when asked if he saw a way out of impeachment hearings.

He said Washington should concentrate on keeping the budget balanced, fixing Social Security, improving schools, cleaning up the environment and passing protections for patients in managed care health programs.

"That's the way out," the president said. "The way out here and the only way out is for people in Washington to do what the folks in America want them to do, which is to take care of their concerns and their children and their future."

Dole, who has undertaken missions for Clinton in Bosnia and Kosovo, acknowledged the president "reached out to me" on the impeachment issue in a meeting Friday.

Dole said he has talked to individuals who are no longer in government but are trying to help the president. "And I told them very clearly I thought it was premature to talk about censure." The former GOP presidential nominee said he and Clinton were "at ease" with each other, adding, "I have a feeling that when he asks me to do something that's in the national interest, you forget about politics."

Presidential press secretary Mike McCurry, meanwhile, accused Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr of stonewalling Democratic requests to turn over material that was withheld from the House — and could help Clinton.

"He gets to be the sole arbiter of the material that goes to the House. Now he's going to decide, well, 'I get to pick and choose what I'm going to provide to the members of the House that are trying to look at this evidence.' That is really unfair," McCurry said.

Starr's office told House Judiciary Committee Investigators Wednesday that the withheld information was not germane — but they could have any materials they wanted.

Meanwhile, Starr's investigation continues before a grand jury. Two White House lawyers, Lanny Breuer and Michelle Peterson, appeared today at the federal courthouse where the grand jury was meeting. They came to discuss the White House's compliance with subpoenas, said sources familiar with the case, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

On Capitol Hill, committee investigators have been directed to quickly organize nearly 70,000 pages of potential impeachment evidence, a prelude to scheduling a vote to formally investigate Clinton.

Committee Chairman Henry Hyde (R-Ill) told investigators he'd like them to make presentations to lawmakers behind closed doors next Thursday and Friday. That is no easy task, considering the effort still under way to make ready for public release next week some 65,000 pages of raw investigative materials.

Once the massive doses of Starr's materials are laid out for committee members in an orderly way, the lawmakers would be in position to make their recommendation to the House on a formal inquiry.

Now that House Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-Ga.) has rejected Democratic suggestions that Clinton be spared impeachment, but censured, and possibly fined, it is now accepted by both parties that the Republican-led Judiciary Committee will propose launching an inquiry, and the GOP-run House will authorize one.

HAVE YOU TOLD YOUR PARENTS YET?

New England's Greatest Wine, Microbrew, and Speciality Food Shop Is Just Up the Road at..

Table & Vine

Wine and Food Tastings
Every Saturday Afternoon
(800) 474-2449 (413) 584-7775
http://bigywines.com staff@bigywines.com
Call for Directions from Anywhere in New England
122 North King Street Northampton, MA

Big Y Wines & Liquors is excited to announce the opening of Table & Vine, a shop bringing everyday luxuries to food and wine lovers. We have more than a hundred imported cheeses, fresh prime beef and wild game, patés and tapenades, as well as fresh baked breads, and the finest oils, olives, and vinegars. We also have the expertise and experience to make the drive worthwhile.

Big Y Wines & Liquors has the wine to make any dinner a memorable experience. Our wine shop has more than 4,000 wines, 700 microbrews, and hundreds of the world's finest spirits and exotic liquors.

Visit Table & Vine and Big Y Wines where food and wine lovers find everyday luxuries for a splendid table.

Big Y wines

"VOTED BEST PIZZA AT UMASS" "BASED UPON TASTE TEST ON CAMPUS"
PIZZA PAPA JOHN'S
331 Russell Street, Hadley
5 8 6 - 7 7 7 2
OPEN 'TIL 3AM FRIDAY & SATURDAY
Accepting: MasterCard VISA
Campus Special
$6.99 PLUS TAX
Large Cheese Pizza or Large 1 Topping Pizza
(Offer expires October 9, 1998)
NEW HOURS OF OPERATION
Sunday - Wednesday 11am - 1am
Thursday 11am - 2am
Friday & Saturday 11am - 3am
TEN FOR $10
2 TEN INCH CHEESE PIZZAS FOR $10
$10.00
Offer expires 10/9/98 •Not Valid with any other offer •Valid only at participatin locations • Customer pays all applicable sales tax •Additional toppings extra
1 LG ONE TOPPING AND 6 PACK OF COCA-COLA
$9.99
Offer expires 10/9/98 • Not Valid with any other offer • Valid only at participating locations • Customer pays all applicable sales tax • Additional toppings extra

Champion
AUTHENTIC ATHLETIC APPAREL
Special Offer
Receive a FREE "Parent's Weekend" T-Shirt with a $35.00 or more Champion purchase.
September 26th-27th
(While Supplies Last)

University Store
University of Massachusetts Amherst
• Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003
• Phone: (413)545-2619 Fax: (413)545-4396

Duty calls

Part of the joy of being an adult is receiving mail.

When I was a kid, all that came to my door was "Highlights" and "Ranger Rick." Now don't get me wrong, I loved figuring out "what's wrong with this picture?" on the back page, but that little raccoon scared me.

Adults, however, have all the fun. Tax forms. Bills. Death threats. There's nothing better.

But then you get that letter in the mail. Some may cringe, some may cry, some may just toss it in the trash. When I received the little notice last semester, I sort of just stared at it for a minute, in a state of mediocre disbelief. It was much too "real life."

"But then you get that letter in the mail. Some may cringe, some may cry, some may just toss it in the trash."

Bryan McAllister

I had been summoned for jury duty. It was the first time that I had been "summoned" for anything. That's one way you know you're an adult: people start "summoning" you for things. And you have to go, or else a man in a perfectly ironed black suit comes to your door with a scowl on his face.

Images — horrible ones — came to mind: the infamous Pauly Shore movie; John Grisham's novels because everyone gets killed except the lawyers; the Naked Gun movies because they had O.J. in them.

I tried to get out of it in any way possible. Unfortunately, excuses don't work the same with the government as they did in high school. "The dog ate my jury slip" wasn't sufficient, even though she in fact did when I "accidently" mixed it in with her Purina chicken mush or whatever she eats. "It adds flavor," I told my dog, and she ate it. I swear.

We also attempted to say that I had no transportation, but apparently "no way of actually being there" wasn't a valid reason either.

So on a Tuesday in early June, I trekked off in the family's green minivan for the courthouse in Cambridge sitting through morning traffic and listening to NPR radio, for no other reason than it seemed like what all adults do. Boy, was this kind of lifestyle boring. But at least I had the intrigue of the court system to relieve me. Hoshot lawyers, gruff judges, inept witnesses — all the Hollywood stereotypes had a party in my brain. Kato Kaelin was there too, but he — oops! — he was sadly part of real life.

But this was Boston, not L.A., and right from the start the whole process was serious and intimidating and nerve- racking. At the same time, though, a sense of importance swept 'round me. In a city where everyone is running around, individually focusing on their careers and personal life, it's amazing to enter the courtroom and suddenly — in an instant — become part of a community.

We were shown a videotape which explained how the legal system worked; It was basically a piece of propaganda for how great America is (I expected the narrator to cheer "Go patriotism!"), but at that point I didn't need a commercial for democracy. I was hooked. Part of me knew I wouldn't be selected, part of me wanted to be chosen, and part of me (namely the stomach part) hoped there would be a long lunch break so I could eat Taco Bell at the mall.

As it turned out, Taco Bell was a part of my diet for three whole days. After a selection process that brought back memories of elementary school gym class and the Notorious Teeball Incident, I was chosen to serve on a jury for a criminal case involving the selling of cocaine.

And we even had some hotshot lawyers. The case itself, however, was pretty mundane. It was obvious that some kind of transaction had taken place, and that the police retrieved the cocaine and the money to buy it. But what it came down to was the nature of reasonable doubt, because what was actually exchanged was not seen.

Here's where the community I had once cherished began to split up. The main problem with the jury system is that one can't ideally set aside the biases and individual attitudes that have pervaded throughout human history, and somehow always finds a way to break through. Yes, one is supposed to ignore these biases, but how can you be deaf to the little voice inside your head?

Different backgrounds play a role as well. One jury member was a young woman who had a long history of being screwed over by cops. When we all decided on a guilty verdict after a deliberation of six hours, she was the one hold-out. Eventually, however, she succumbed to what was probably more a lack of caring than actual rational thinking.

It was a little sad, really. As much as we all felt united in the same boat, together as a jury, we were equally individual as well. There was the old man who just wanted to go home; the guy who took intensive notes, listening to everything; the mother of three who wasn't too keen on letting a drug-dealer go free.

The bailiff read the verdict in the courtroom, and the defendant started to cry. We had made the right decision, but had we truly made it together? Had we made it like reasonable, mature adults?

I left the courtroom that Thursday wishing I could go back and, at the same time, dreading what was done. It was time to rejoin my trivial life again; "real" adulthood would have to come later. Or maybe not at all. The difference between a child and an adult is supposed to be a heightened maturity, but maybe it's just a difference in height.

Bryan McAllister is a Collegian staff member.

Stand up and be counted

I have never believed in the saying "one person can make a difference," and fighting for a good cause always seemed like a lost cause to me. What's the point? Am I going to make such a big difference that it is going to be worth giving up my precious time in front of the TV? But then, this semester, only because I needed credits and some experience to put on my resume, I decided to join MASSPIRG.

Anyone who has looked on their tuition bill has seen the name of this organization. And if you have waited anywhere for a bus, then you have seen their posters. I assumed that it was one of those environmental groups that want to save the world in one day. Representatives always came into my classes, gave their speeches on what they were doing, and asked for volunteers. I never wanted to sign up for anything because I felt if I did, I would never hear the end of it from that organization.

Okay, so I was pretty much completely wrong. This organization is here for and because of the students, and we are the ones who make it work.

I never considered myself an advocate for anything. I don't push my ideas on anyone because I believe that everyone should have their own views on life — that's what makes this world interesting. I'm embarassed to say it, but I am 22 years old and the only time I have voted for anything was in middle school for class elections. I am a little bit of a pessimist.

So on Wednesday night, when a record breaking 167 volunteers showed up for MASSPIRG's campaign kick–off, I was in complete amazement. Students are standing up, pointing out that our society should be less concerned about "the blue dress" and more concerned about the fact that one out of four children in this country are born below the poverty level.

This country has more problems than it should tolerate and more solutions than it utilizes. This semester, students are working to take back our contaminated rivers and lakes by organizing the community to do big clean–ups and by going into elementary schools to teach kids about the importance of water quality. We will also be monitoring local waterways for pollutants and giving that data to the state so it can go after the polluters.

"I realized that students really do care more about the problems that affect their lives and their community."

Meghan K. James

In addition, we are working to protect the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge from being exploited for oil by the likes of Exxon, Chevron, BP and Arco. This pristine wilderness area on the north coast of Alaska is home to 152,000 porcupine caribou and the Gwich'in people, one of the last independent subsistence cultures in North America. We will be working to educate people about this imminent environmental disaster and to convince the companies that it is in their best interest to drop their drilling plans.

Students are also working together to take the power back by mobilizing this campus to register to vote and to turn out on election day. I believe this is the most important issue because everyone can say what they want about what they think is important, but if we do not vote for politicians who represent our concerns, then we have no right to complain about how things turn out.

The last major campaign we are running is the Hunger and Homelessness project, which works to help those in need and raise public awareness about the problem. At the meeting on Wednesday night, over fifty people signed up to volunteer for different events to help the community. I realized that students really do care more about the problems that affect their lives and their community, like water pollution and homelessness, than they do about...okay, I'll say it...the Clinton sex scandal.

MASSPIRG is a group of UMass students willing to volunteer their extra (TV) time to an issue they feel is important. We have all had it with the government and special interest groups who make us feel as if we have no control over our future. Whether it is the big polluting industries or the unresponsive politicians, MASSPIRG is here to educate students about the problem, and to organize the community to stand up to these forces that are trying to take away our generation's future. Our generation is next in line to be in control of this country, and from the looks of it, we understand what the important issues today are.

To my amazement, there is a large group of students on this campus ready to make a difference. After the first meeting I went to, I realized that I was thinking of the saying "one person can make a difference" all wrong. Instead of seeing myself as an individual with only one small, quiet voice, I should see myself as someone who has many ideas — ideas that other people share. Now I work with a large group which has a huge voice that gets noticed — even if it is mostly at bus stops. Really though, students have shown time and time again that when we stand up for what we think is right and get involved in solving the problems of our society, then we are a powerful force to be reckoned with. It may be trite to say that we are working to save the world, but we certainly are making a difference. You can too.

MASSPIRG can be reached by phone at 545-0199, or you can drop by our office in the Student Union room 423A.

Meghan K. James is a UMass student.

Tailgate

The University, in response to what they have viewed as problematic behavior at past home football games, has made every effort this year to ban the "tailgater" from Alumni Stadium and the surrounding parking lots on home game days.

In seeking to attack the source of the problem directly, the administration made efforts to remove the namesake of these unruly gatherings from existence. Chancellor David K. Scott met with key figures of the automobile industry this summer in an attempt to alter the 1999 line of cars so that their rear doors would be less conducive to sitting, assembling, barbecuing and other various forms of mischief. However, General Motors was unyielding on the issue, and as of press time last night, most trucks and sport utilities were still being produced with fold-down rear gates.

"Pretty soon they'll be banning dreadlocks, flirting and snow."

Jamie Waldinger

Not ready to give up, the administration toyed with the idea of abolishing the football program altogether. Surely this would stop the students of UMass from gathering on Saturday mornings and consuming large amounts of alcohol and beef products. However, after consulting with members of Boston University's athletic department, they decided that the additional revenues that would be freed up would be far too much to handle. After all, they have enough trouble misappropriating the funds that they already have; if they built any more unattractive buildings, someone would surely notice.

Various proposals were considered that would dramatically reduce student attendance at these pre-game gatherings. One member of the administration, who did not wish to be named here, proposed that all male members of the University community be drafted into military service under the selective service act, with mandatory training on the mornings of home football games. This was a popular idea, but alas was removed from the proposal at the last minute when the administration learned that a draft could only take place by act of Congress.

Next, it was suggested that all students who consume alcohol be made to register with the school at the start of the semester and then attend mandatory REAP meetings during football games. Then the administration remembered that the Mullins Center only seated 9,500 people.

The third proposed idea was to bolster the lineup of the football team to such an extent that all would-be tailgaters would be compelled to be in attendance at the game itself. Unfortunately, further research revealed that Drew Bledsoe had used up his NCAA eligibility and Dan Marino was on location for the filming of Ace Ventura 3. Jim McMahon volunteered for the position, but after three attempts he could not pass the new admissions tests for "literacy" and "critical thinking." The administration also considered putting aside the revenues from this year's "student activities fee" to hire Pamela Anderson for the UMass cheerleader squad, but her agent refused, stating that it wasn't consistent with her new "motherly image."

The administration was getting desperate. They closed down Whitmore and went to Bermuda for five days to brainstorm. After a few beers and some tequila shots, the ideas began to pour in. Could they extend the blue laws to force area liquor stores to close not just on Sundays but on Fridays and Saturdays as well? No, Chancellor David K. Scott wouldn't hear of it. Maybe if they injected a 24-hour virus into the D.C. food on Friday nights? No, it's been done. Should they pour burning oil on the parking lot on the mornings of football games? No, too Braveheart.

In the end, they did the only thing that was within their power: ban alcohol from tailgaters. A football tailgater without beer would be like Whitmore without long lines, the PVTA without body odor, or Butterfield dorm without drugs. It just isn't right.

The University believes that they can solve the world's problems by making a rule or two. If there's a problem with alcohol, ban alcohol. If protesting is interfering with classes, ban protesting. Pretty soon they'll be banning dreadlocks, flirting and snow. I hear there's a problem with violence around the world, so maybe we could remove all contact from intercollegiate sports. But then the UMass "Two-Hand Touch" Football Team would stand to face issues with sexual harassment and "unwanted touching." That would leave us with Division I-AA flag football, but of course running the ball isn't exactly sharing or "playing nice," so maybe they could just kick the ball around. That would leave us with soccer. Hey — that would certainly put a stop to tailgaters.

Jamie Waldinger is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

CRC urges solidarity

To the editor:

As we begin a new school year, we cannot afford to forget how last spring was marred by the town of Amherst's "get– tough" attitude towards students. We all remember the Kafka–esque surveillance of Hobart Lane and the undercover police blitzkrieg on Amherst Common during ExtravaGanja. In reality, these press–worthy incidents — even the nine arrests on Amherst Common — are but a drop in the bucket when viewed in perspective of the week–in/week–out marijuana and alcohol related arrest tolls. There is no sudden surge in police interest towards the student body; it is more like a steady creep as the town's demeanor sours with age.

It has slowly, but surely, gone too far. Instigated long ago by the state's 21–and–over drinking age, which outlawed the weekend activities of most students and forced them into residential areas, the town has spawned numerous local ordinances. Now the police can always find a pretext to raid the homes of younger residents. Every week students are dragged to the town's cages and put on display in the newspaper police logs in an unending parade of "get–tough" posturing.

Here in the stereotype–free "Happy Valley," students must wake up to the judgments and pre–judgments being handed down upon us by the surrounding community. In so doing, we at the Cannibis Reform Coalition get the sense that, too often, defenders of the right to responsibly alter one's own brain chemistry are divided along substance lines. We encourage alcohol and marijuana users to examine their attitudes towards each other and join forces in defending their rights.

In the meantime, who is left to point out that there are plenty of non–substance–related laws already on the books which could be used to punish disruptive people? Who can demand that no law be written with a specific demographic in mind for enforcement? Only us.

We must conduct our political business responsibly, as adults do, even though we will never be treated as citizens by this town. There is nothing that would make the town happier than to go crying to the statewide press about students rioting. Wisdom and strategy does not imply a lack of strength and perseverance.

Liz Rising Chicopee
(32 other people signed this letter)

Review misses the mark

To the editor:

Change is inevitable; growth is good: both are cliches which many of us are familiar with. Some may even choose to live by the direction of these words. Still others, like Kevin Monahan (Pearl Jam review, Collegian, Sept. 18) cling to the past, becoming stagnant in their own lack of interest for current development.

Grunge may have been Pearl Jam's origin, but 1996's No Code and this year's Yield reflect an evolution of the band as a whole. Contrary to your article's declaration of Vedder's self–indulgence, Pearl Jam's recent efforts combine the creativity of each band member.

Yield tells us to relinquish a lead and make way for new ideas. Because Pearl Jam has evolved as a band does not mean they must abandon the inertia which brought them about. This is the unique energy Pearl Jam fans crave! One is transcended to another realm by the band's barrier– breaking musical talents.

If you close your ears to the magic of Pearl Jam's latest cuts, if you ignore "Present Tense," then you may as well spend your days adding dust to Kurt Cobain's headstone.

Laura Cannella Hadley

Doonesbury

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor–in–Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Lauren Konky Photography Editor
Michael Kobylarski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Presties Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Carlin brings act to Mullins

COURTESY SUSAN ARONS

Comic George Carlin invades the Mullins Center tomorrow night.

By Bryan McAllister
Collegian Staff

George Carlin has always been famous for his outspoken, sarcastic commentary. But in Boston this summer, he was perhaps known for different reasons. It was Carlin's newest book, Brain Droppings, that Boston Globe columnist Mike Barnicle was accused of stealing a few jokes from. Barnicle denied the charge, saying he had never read the book, but then a television clip from his news magazine "Chronicle" showed up with him recommending it. The incident led first to the suspension, then to the firing, of Barnicle.

Carlin's Saturday night, sure–to–be–packed show at the Mullins Center probably won't end without a reference (or many) to the Barnicle situation. But also expect a stand–up routine that has been polished and perfected over his 40 years in show business. Carlin, at age 60, still does over 150 concert dates a year.

Carlin got his start in radio, gaining notoriety for his comedy act performed with Jack Burns. "Burns and Carlin" worked the nightclub circuit, building up steam, and made their first appearance on the "Tonight Show" with Jack Paar.

Carlin soon began to develop the brazen, uncensored style that has made him one of today's most influential comedians. Forming characters such as Wonderful Wino and the Hippy Dippy Weathermen, he broke into the TV scene with appearances on "Merv Griffin," "Johnny Carson," and "Jackie Gleason."

He also made the transition into acting and, during this time, released his first album, Take–Offs and Put–Ons. In 1972, his next album, AM/FM, won a Grammy Award after huge commercial success.

Turn to Carlin, page 8

Jim Carrey hospitalized

Jim Carrey, world renowned comedian and actor, was hospitalized with serious neck injuries Wednesday while filming his new movie, A Man on the Moon: The Andy Kaufman story, in which he plays the title role. The injury took place during a scene with World Wrestling Federation wrestler Jerry "The King" Lawler. Lawler, ironically, was doing a cameo appearance to play himself during a scene in the movie where Kaufman was injured in real life by the wrestler. This bizarre twist has some entertainment journalists wondering whether the whole thing was a publicity stunt, but Carrey has denied such allegations.

Early reports from the set say that Carrey had been so obsessed with playing his childhood idol that he was forcing others to call him Andy and after a while, it began to frustrate Lawler. The fight broke out when Carrey supposedly spit on Lawler. The wrestler returned to work Thursday and refused to comment on the incident himself.

Doctors say that Carrey will be able to go back to work early next week, however he will be forced to wear a neck brace. Carrey is best known for his work in such films as Ace Ventura: Pet Detective and Liar, Liar; he is said to be a possible Oscar contender for his role as Truman Burbank in this summer's The Truman Show.

— Ryan Benharris

Bob Mould's stale routine still draws in fans; Varnaline warms up crowd

By Matthew Nixon
Collegian Correspondent

VARNALINE/BOB MOULD
Pearl Street
Sept. 23

A cold front passed through the Valley during the night and on Sept. 23, it felt like summer had ended. Varnaline pulled into town that day for the first time and did their best to get the locals excited about their kind of music.

The reception was cool at best. This was the opening band, after all. The crowd was definitely Uncle Bob's —one fan eagerly shouted as Bob Mould appeared on stage in a t– shirt and faded jeans.

When the lights came on after the last encore song, and two more bands once again graced the wooden stage, one band came out on top.

Guys in flannel shirts clasping Rolling Rock long-necks were huddled around the bar when Varnaline appeared. A curious few were by the stage. Frontman Anders Parker's vocals lacked confidence at first as he, along with drummer Jud Ehrbar and bassist John Parker, got off to a shaky start.

Touring in support of Sweet Life, their third full–length release, Varnaline quickly gelled into a tight three–piece with a sound labelled as Americana — a marketing category populated by the likes of Wilco, Son Volt and Palace. Crammed onto the front part of the stage, in front of Bob Mould's equipment, there was not much room for theatrics.

Anders Parker created a variety of moods and sounds with his guitars and vocals. Country–rock tunes yielded to faster paced numbers and echoed the sounds of many performers in their genre.

The album's opening track "Gulf of Mexico" came across well with a delivery by Parker suggesting Neil Young. More free–form numbers also approached material by Crazy Horse.

Perhaps because they had more at stake than the headliner, Varnaline succeeded in making a connection with the crowd by praising Northampton as a nice town and introducing their material.

Varnaline closed, as the new album does, with "Sweet Life." The track and its live incarnation sum up what the band is all about. Great lyrics and a powerful country rock backbone had many in the crowd paying attention.

With many in the large crowd chanting "We want Bob," the rock veteran followed his band on stage. Mould began playing his guitar and singing but never truly started or finished. He was just there.

The beat was hard and heavy, but not fast enough for moshing — just bobbing heads. The crowd was large and seemingly devoted to Mould. However, fan devotion does not make a great show.

Mould was just plain boring. He didn't entertain and most songs seemed undistinguishable from the ones that followed. The only high points were when Mould slowed things down enabling the highlights of his lyrical talent and distinctive voice to show through. Sadly, his voice was lost most of the time within the confines of the mix and the room.

Mould has decided to stop doing the "electric thing" live. With Husker Du, Sugar and solo, Mould has been plugged– in for almost two decades. Mould has created some truly beautiful acoustic work and would do well to put aside his angry white male routine for a while. After a little over an hour, Mould played a two song encore that closed with the enthusiastically received "Black Sheets of Rain." Then he was gone. The odd thank you was all we heard. He seemed like a tired salesman just going through the motions, living out the title of his latest release The Lust Dog and Pony Show. How depressing is that?

FOR THE EDUCATION AND RESEARCH COMMUNITY

★★★★★
—Morningstar ratings for the CREF Global Equities Account, CREF Equity Index Account, and CREF Growth Account*

"...America's Top Pension Fund."
—Money Magazine, January 1998

AAA
—S&P and Moody's rating for TIAA

Your service bowled me over!
—William Ravdin, TIAA-CREF Participant

HIGH MARKS FROM MORNINGSTAR, S&P, MOODY'S, MONEY MAGAZINE AND BILL.

We take a lot of pride in gaining high marks from the major rating services. But the fact is, we're equally proud of the ratings we get every day from our participants. Because at TIAA-CREF, ensuring the financial futures of the education and research community is something that goes beyond stars and numbers.

We became the world's largest retirement organization* by offering people a wide range of sound investments, a commitment to superior service, and operating expenses that are among the lowest in the insurance and mutual fund industries.

With TIAA-CREF, you'll get the right choices — and the dedication — to help you achieve a lifetime of financial goals. The leading experts agree. So does Bill.

Find out how TIAA-CREF can help you build a comfortable, financially secure tomorrow.

Visit our Web site at www.tiaa-cref.org or call us at 1 800 842-2776.

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it.

* Source: Morningstar Inc., July 31, 1998. Morningstar is an independent service that rates mutual funds and variable annuities. The top 10% of funds in an investment category receive five stars and the next 22.5% receive four stars. Morningstar proprietary ratings reflect historical risk-adjusted performance and are subject to change every month. They are calculated from the account's three-, five-, and ten-year average annual returns in excess of 90-day Treasury bill returns with appropriate fee adjustments, and a risk factor that reflects performance below 90-day T-bill returns. The overall star ratings referred to above are Morningstar's published ratings, which are weighted averages of its three-, five-, and ten-year ratings for periods ending July 31, 1998. The separate unpublished ratings for each of the periods are:

Period	CREF Stock Account: Star Rating, Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	CREF Global Equities Account: Star Rating, Number of International Equity Accounts Rated	CREF Equity Index Account: Star Rating, Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	CREF Growth Account: Star Rating, Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated	CREF Bond Market Account: Star Rating, Number of Fixed Income Accounts Rated	CREF Social Choice Account: Star Rating, Number of Domestic Equity Accounts Rated
3 Yrs	4/1,220	4/459	5/1,220	5/1,220	4/778	4/1,220
5 Yrs	4/1,062	N/A	N/A	N/A	4/687	4/1,062
10 Yrs	4/678	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A

 These top ratings are based on TIAA's exceptional historical strength, claims-paying ability and overall operating performance. Based on assets under management, Standard & Poor's Insurance Rating Analysis 1998. Upper Analytical Services, Inc., Upper Decision's Analytical Data, 1998. Quarterly, 1,823 contributors and annuitants in the TIAA Real Estate Account are distributed by TIAA's 883 individual and institutional Services. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2733, extension 5509. For the CREF and TIAA Real Estate Account prospectuses. Read them carefully before you invest or send money.

 Based on 1997 data.

La Cazuela
RESTAURANT
The Cuisines MEXICO AMERICAN SOUTHWEST
. . . hand made cooking . . . seasonal menu
. . . superb margaritas
. . . extraordinary tequila list
. . . warm hospitality!
Please join us!
Dinner Every Night
Downtown Northampton
Across From The Parking Garage
413 • 586 • 0400

Visions in Action
Volunteers in International Development
Africa or Mexico
Human rights, health, refugee relief, environment, community development, journalism, microenterprise, & more.
202-825-7402 • Visions-iigc.org
www.visionsinaction.org

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE DISCOUNT CARD WITH THIS COUPON
EXPIRES 10/15/98
413-253-5592

Now Open....The Area's Best Fitness & Health Club
UltimateFitness
THE HEALTH AND FITNESS CENTER
Featuring the latest in Fitness Training & Equipment
"Everything You Need in a Gym and More!"
• Certified Personal Trainers
• Fitness Testing & Programming
• Nutritional Consultation
• Tanning
• Sauna
• Juice Bar & Supplements
•Full Aerobics Programs including:
-Cardio Kickboxing
-Sports Step
-Boot Camp
-and many more
Cardiovascular Equipment
• Stairmasters
• Precor Treadmills
• Lifecycle Recumbent Bikes
• Lifecycle Upright Bikes
• Precor Crosstrainers
State-of-the-Art Strength Training Equipment
• Bodymasters & Icarian Free Weights
• Cybex Circuit Training Equipment
Located in the Campus Plaza next to Liquors 44.
For more information call 253-7871

Registered Student Organizations

ACADEMIC
Alive With Dance
American Indian Science & Engineer Society
American Insitute of Chemical Engineers
American Society of Landscape Architects
Anthropology Undergraduate Caucus
Asian American Stutdies Coalition
Boltwood Project
Chamber Choir
Club Communications
Club Managers Student Chapter
Hotel Managers
Insitute of Industiral Engineers
National Society tor Black Engineers
NSSLHA (Communication Disorders)
Poetry Society
Pre-Vet & Animal Science Club
Resource Economics Club
Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers
Society of Women Engineers
Student Film Society
Student Nurses Association
Student Sports Managers
Undergraduate Business Club
Wildlife Society
Women in Sports Management

SERVICE
Alpha Phi Omega
Circle K Club
First Aid Services
Habitat for Hu[illegible]
Kappa Kappa [illegible]
SHARE
Sparbie!
Student [illegible]

STUDENT BUSINESSES
Bicycle Co-op
Campus Design & Copy
Earthfoods
Greenough Snack Bar
People's Market
Sweets And More
Sylvan Snack Bar
Tickets Unlimited

HONOR SOCIETIES
ALANA Honor Society
Alpha Lambda Delta
Alpha Zeta
Beta Alpha Psi
Eta Sigma Delta
Golden Key Honor Society
Mortar Board
Phi Sigma Pi
Pi Sigma Alpha
Scabbard & Blade

PERFORMING ARTS
Arts Collective
Boundaries: outlet of expression
Dance Team
Funk Team
New World Theater
Soul TV
Student Valley Productions
UMass Theatre Guild

SPORTS
Bicycle Racing Club
Club Volleyball
Crew Club
Fencing Club
Rugby Club
Sailing Team
Women's Ice Hockey
Women's Rugby Club
Wrestling Club

ETHNIC/CULTURAL African Student Association
AFRIK-AM
AHORA
Asian American Student Association
Biracial/Multiracial Student Association
Black Student Union
Latinos Unidos
[illegible] Student Association
[illegible] Alliance
[illegible]
[illegible] Students Association
[illegible]
Native American Student Association
Pakistan Student Association
Pride Alliance
Republic of China Student Association
South Asian Club
Vietnamese Student Association

RECREATION
Chess Club
Game Hobbyists League
Hong Gilding Club
Japanese Animation & Manga Society
Motorsports Club
Outing Club
Paintball Club
Shotokan Club
Ski & Board Club
Snowboarding Club
Sport Parachute Club
Tae Kwon Do
Zou Disc Frisbee Team

GREEKS
Alpha Chi Rho
Alpha Epsilon Pi
Alpha Epsilon Phi
Alpha Phi Alpha
Beta Kappa Psi
Chi Omega
Delta Chi
Delta Sigma Phi
Delta Upsilon
Delta Zeta
Gamma Phi Sigma
Iota Gamma Upsilon
Iota Phi Theta
Kappa Alpha Psi
Kappa Kappa Gamma
Lambda Chi Alpha
Pi Kappa Alpha
Phi Mu Delta
Sigma Delta Tau
Sigma Kappa
Sigma Phi Epsilon
Sigma Sigma Sigma
Zeta Psi
Zeta Psi Theta
Zeta Phi Beta

RELIGIOUS Alliance Christian Fellowship
Athletes In Action
Born Again Students In Christ
Campus Crusade for Christ
Chabad Students
Hillel
Hindu Students Organization
Intervarsity Christian Fellowship
Muslim Students Association
Newman Students Association
Pagan Students Organization
Upside Down

POLITICAL
Amnesty International
Animal Rights Coalition
Cannabis Reform Coalition
Friends of RAIL
MASSPIRG
Radical Student Union
Republican Club
Students Advocating Financial Assistance
University Democrats

SOCIAL
Ballroom Dance Club
Muntants Against Majority
National Exchange Club
Objectivist Club
Queen Fan Club
Science Fiction Club
SCUM

CAMPUS WIDE PROGRAMS
Distinguished Visitors Program
University Productions & Concerts

GOVERNMENTAL
Campus Center/Student Union Commission
Central Area Government
Commuter Area Government
Interfraternity Council
National Pan-Hellenic Council
Northeast Area Government
Orchard Hill Area Government
Panhellenic Council
Southwest Area Government
Stockbridge Senate
Student Government Association
Sylvan Area Government

MEDIA
Amatuer Radio Club
Black Mass Communication Project
Collegian
Concepto Latino
Index (Yearbook)
Nommo News
Silent Majority
Spectrum
Union Video Center (UVC-TV 19)
WMUA Radio Station

AGENCIES
Center for Student Businesses
[illegible] & Housing Resource
[illegible]
[illegible] Legal Services Office
[illegible] Center for Education, Research & Advocacy
Student Union Craft Center
Visual & Performing Arts Space

STOCKBRIDGE
Environmental Horticulture Club
Landscape Contracting

This list was last updated on September 1, 1998. For the newest list, to be released on October 15, 1998, contact Campus Activities 416 Student Union 545-3600, fax @ 545-4751 campact@stuaf.umass.edu

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967

The Collegian has opportunities open in the following departments:

Advertising	Jewish Affairs
Arts & Living	Multicultiral Affairs
Black Affairs	News
Business	Photo
Delivery	Production
Developing Nations	Sports
Editorial/Opinion	WWW Design
G.L.B. Issues	Women's Issues

INTERESTED IN FILM STUDIES?

Sign up now for the FILM STUDIES CERTIFICATE In the Interdepartmental Program in Film Studies. You get:

- a certificate for 18 credits of coursework in four years
- individual advising
- the only on-campus resource for graduate programs and schools in film and video
- exciting information on internships and jobs
- free subscription to the newsletter In Focus, with film course listings
- advance notice of upcoming film screenings and lectures
- a community of students interested in film and video

Apply in 101 South College during office hours or call 545-3659.

CHECK OUT OUR NEW WEBSITE!
http://www.umass.edu/film including listings of film courses, internships and competitions, grants and festivals, and links to other film sites

UMass Student Legal Services Office
FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students! 545-1995
CALL TODAY!
922 CAMPUS CENTER

UVC-TV 19
UMASS Student Run TV Station
- Direct Your Own Production
- Run Cameras
- Report Local News
- Cover UMass Sports
- Learn a Little About TV

1st Meeting: Mon. Sept. 28th UVC Studio - 7pm (behind the Hatch)
WE NEED YOU
New Members Welcome!
Questions? Call 545-1336.

SUMA
Snowboarding at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.
"He's skiing on one ski..." -CD
1st General Interest Meeting
Video Premiere & Raffle
Tues. Oct 6th 7 pm Thompson 106
WWW.UMASS.EDU/RSO/SUMA

SORORITY RUSH
Sisterhood ♥ Friendship
Loyalty ♥ Strength
Trust ♥ Guidance
REGISTRATION SHEETS AVAILABLE AT GREEK AFFAIRS 227 WHITMORE
FOR MORE INFO CONTACT DEBBIE 256-3037 OR GREEK AFFAIRS 545-2711

Ballroom Dance Competition Team
TRY-OUTS
No Prep Necessary
SEPT 30 7-8 PM TOTM 101
Call Liz 545-0275

EARTHFOODS CAFE
A COOPERATIVELY MANAGED, STUDENT-RUN CAFE PROVIDING DELICIOUS - YET INEXPENSIVE - VEGETARIAN MEALS
One of the few places on campus where staff, faculty and students come together to create community.
DON'T BE LEFT OUT.
SERVING 11-3, MONDAY THRU FRIDAY IN THE STUDENT UNION.
SUPPORT STUDENT BUSINESSES

AASA
Asian American Students Association
What is AASA?
The Asian American Students Association was created in 1975 with the mission of serving the needs and interests of and creating a supportive atmosphere for Asian and Asian American students at the University of Massachusetts Amherst.
What does AASA do?
The Asian American Students Association sponsors, plans, and participates in a vast array of social activities including:
parties • barbecues • sports tournaments • movie nights casino nights • cultural events call or email us for more information aasa@oitunix.oit.umass.edu
(413) 545-0189
check out our homepage at: www-unix.oit.umass.edu/~aasa

CAMPUS DESIGN AND COPY
COPIES FOR ONLY
5¢
401 STUDENT UNION
545-2271
STUDENTS SERVING STUDENTS

TODAY ONLY! TODAY ONLY! TODAY ONLY!
People's Market
PRESENTS...
BLUE RANGE BEVERAGES
UCard
MasterCard VISA
Truly Natural... The Way Nature Intended
Now Hiring Managers - See Market for Details
MAIN FLOOR - STUDENT UNION - CAMPUS POND SIDE

CAPE VERDEAN STUDENT ALLIANCE
For more info on the Cape Verdean Student Alliance U-Mass--Amherst Chapter, contact:
CVSA office at (413) 546-4873
REFLECTIONS OF THE SOUL

Signal–ing a new direction

Native American film tells a powerful tale

By Rob Roensch
Collegian Staff

SMOKE SIGNALS
Directed by Chris Eyre
with Adam Beach, Evan Adams, Irene Bedard
Playing at Pleasant St. Cinemas

It's easy to think that the crisp, straightforward narrative and complicated dialogue that characterize many of the best American movies is the only way good movies work. It's easy to ignore big stories that Hollywood doesn't tell. Smoke Signals not only tells the stories of an underrepresented minority population, but it tells those stories in interesting, uncommon ways.

Smoke Signals centers on the lives of two Native American men who live on a reservation: the nerdy, storytelling Thomas and the tough, quiet Victor. The lives of the two men have been intertwined since infancy, when Victor's father, Arnold, saved Thomas from a fire. Victor's father later abandons his family and moves to Phoenix. The movie begins as the men receive word that Victor's father has died. The film then follows them on their journey to Phoenix to claim the body. As the plot suggests, the movie has a lot on its mind: family, friendship, history and culture.

At first, Signals appears heavy-handed. Every character and act seems to have poetic "significance": the car that only drives in reverse, the fire that Thomas was "born" in. The characters are also constantly making witty, ironic comments about their "Indian-ness." While the jokes are often a little too cute and almost detract from the story, the plot's lack of subtlety is not necessarily a drawback.

First of all, subtlety is not a synonym for art, although we often seem to think so. With Smoke Signals, you don't have to puzzle out the deeper meanings: they are right in front of you. However, that isn't to imply the meanings are lack depth. When the two men journey to claim Victor's lost father, it is obvious that they are also trying to come to terms with their past. The quest is anything but boring. The movie's directness help to involves us in the quest instead of over-analyzing the characters.

Smoke Signals' strength lies in the power of its storytelling. The movie is told in units, often with one character doing the telling and with meanings or morals specific to that sub-story. What this method of storytelling lacks in subtlety, it more than compensates for in force of imagery. The opening scene of the fire and the flying baby is an image I will never be able to forget.

In another deviation from ordinary Hollywood narrative, stories of the past do not exist as mere flashbacks, but instead allow the child version and the adult version of the same person to share the same physical space. Memories and stories are not separated from "real life." In Smoke Signals, stories are part of the fabric of life, a place where people live. By claiming Arnold's body and stories, Victor and Thomas make Arnold a part of themselves, as real as if they had transplanted his heart and memories into their bodies. In acknowledging the power of stories, Smoke Signals becomes a powerful tale in its own right.

Besides its unusual cinematic methods, Smoke Signals also has a distinctive, patient sense of humor. It sees America and movies from a slightly different angle than we are used to seeing, and it is not afraid to be different. We need more movies to do that.

A–

■ Carlin

...ntinued from page 5

...cess. Four more albums went gold, and 10 of his albums have been nominated for Grammys.

HBO and cable television were Carlin's next conquests. He won a couple of Cable Ace awards and was nominated for an Emmy for his various specials and concerts. His 1984 book Sometimes a Little Brain Damage Can Help was a records collection that sold over 700,000 copies, and in 1987, he earned a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Most of Carlin's recent career has been devoted to original, innovative television programs, such as the children's show "Shining Time Station," for which he earned two Emmy nominations. In 1994, "The George Carlin Show" premiered, but was canceled after one year. Still, Carlin has continued to produce albums and perform concerts. He celebrated his 40 years in show business with a variety of HBO specials.

Brain Droppings, his aforementioned hit comedy book released last spring, spent 18 weeks on the New York Times bestseller list. Mike Barnicle could not have chosen a better book to steal from, but expect him to pay for it tomorrow night. Carlin has rarely been known to hold his tongue.

George Carlin will perform on Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Mullins Center. Student tickets are $22.50 and are available at the Mullins Center Box Office.

Former actor praised in directorial pursuits

By Douglas Rowe
Associated Press

COURTESY BRIGS/ACADEMY

Carl Franklin, director of Devil in a Blue Dress, is the hired gun behind the top-grossing new film, One True Thing.

NEW YORK — Carl Franklin lived a lot of life before deciding he wanted to direct.

Married and divorced twice, a single father, and a journeyman actor for years, he enrolled in the American Film Institute's master's program in 1986, at age 37, to learn how to work behind the camera.

"I felt that by that time I had stories to tell, that there was a reason for me to do it," says Franklin, who first got serious notice with his 1992 film, One False Move. Franklin didn't have any real directing experience but he took to it very easily.

School began a month after his mother's death in August 1986, and his experiences during her eight-month battle with cancer 12 years ago were a key reason Franklin warmed to the prospect of making One True Thing.

The film, No. 2 at the box office in its debut weekend, is about a daughter who relinquishes her job as a magazine writer in New York to move home and care for her terminally ill mother.

When his longtime collaborator, producer Jesse Beaton, brought him a screenplay adapted from the Anna Quindlen novel, he found it a deeply penetrating story.

Like the young woman in the story — played to an Oscar-buzz pitch by Renee Zellweger — he underestimated his mother because she was a housewife without a higher education.

"I'd always been very condescending in some respects and taken her for granted, and her knowledge for granted, and never really valued it as I came to value it later — when unfortunately she wasn't around anymore," says Franklin, who attended the University of California at Berkeley as an undergraduate.

Unlike the Zellweger character, Franklin didn't return home to care for his mom. His brothers were around for their mother in the San Francisco Bay Area, and Franklin — who was raising his kids and preparing for classes in Los Angeles — frequently visited.

"That doesn't totally assuage any guilt you might feel about not having participated enough," he says, although he was with his mother when she died.

"There's still some unsettled things for me because I wasn't there all the time like my brothers were...I was pretty spoiled in a lot of ways."

And now Franklin — who has a 32-year-old stepdaughter, 22-year-old son and 21-year-old daughter — is seeing the transactions between parent and adult children from the other end.

Franklin emerged as a skillful director only six years ago, with the independent film One False Move. Made on a shoestring budget of $2.2 million and starring Billy Bob Thornton, Cynda Williams and Bill Paxton, it made numerous critics' annual top 10 lists. He followed with Devil in a Blue Dress, adapted from a Walter Mosley novel and starring Denzel Washington, receiving further critical praise.

In his films, he has neatly interwoven racial, regional and class differences — and now gender and generational ones. Franklin feels that of the movies he's done so far, "the style has been best served by making them fairly realistic."

"What people have always responded to in Carl's work is not the edginess but the humanity," Beaton, his partner, says. "Carl has a real sensitivity to the emotional lives of people."

Franklin's move from actor to director took at least 13 years.

Fans of TV's "The A-Team" may best remember his acting days, when he played a recurring nemesis named Capt. Crane in 1984. He popped up in various TV series from the mid-1970s into the late '80s, including "Streets of San Francisco," "Cannon," and "Barnaby Jones."

Visit the Collegian on-line at www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Hoodz.

ZANNA
downtown Amherst

NEW AEROBICS NEW
CARDIO-KICKBOXING • YOGA
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area's Largest Room
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West Street
South Amherst, 256-0080

The Collegian welcomes parents to UMass

HAMPSHIRE MALL PRESENTS
FUN FLICKS!
Totally Interactive Video
Star in Your Own Movie and Music Video
★★ and take home the video! ★★
Fly Like Superman!
Sing Like Celine Dion!
Dance like Janet Jackson!
JUST $25.00
3 DAYS ONLY! FRI. • SAT. • SUN
★ Sept. 25 Fri., 3-9 PM ★
★ Sept. 26, Sat., 1-7 PM ★
★ Sept. 27, Sun. 12-6 PM ★
Redeem Your Hampshire Mall Receipt for FUN BUCKS to use towards your Video!
Hampshire Mall
AT CAFE SQUARE
FOR MORE INFO. CALL
586-5700
ROUTE 9 • HADLEY

Minuteman VOLKSWAGEN
ASK FOR
Patricia Dolan
SALES REPRESENTATIVE
TEL 781-275-8000
FAX 781-271-1325
www.minutemanvolkswagen.com
39 NORTH ROAD
BEDFORD, MASS. 01730

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS always $10.
25 n pleasant st amherst 256-0733
145 main st northampton 586-0155

We Have
(Exercise Bike Classes)-
Full Schedule
• Personal Training
• Friendly Atmosphere
• Tanning
• Aerobics - Full Schedule
• Cardio Theater
• Great Hours
• Multi-Level Balconies
• New Entrance
• Trained Staff
Fruit Smoothies,
Supplements, Health Drinks
Pre Cors, Bikes, Rowers,
Treadmills, Stairclimbers
The area's only
We have IMPROVED!
We have EXPANDED!
We have WHAT YOU WANT!
Tennis & Fitness Center

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
The ONLY LOCAL SHOWING of this film
STARTS FRIDAY - DAILY - CURTAIN 7:00 & 9:00
At our 106 yr. old Opera House-Downtown Northampton
"UPROARIOUS!"
ROB ELLSWORTH, DETOUR
"Vivid and engaging - John Waters hasn't lost his taste for outrageous humor."
STEPHEN FARBER, MOVIELINE
"Nutty and raunchy! 'Pecker' is John Waters' funniest movie ever!"
KAREN DURBIN, MIRABELLA

EDWARD FURLONG & CHRISTINA RICCI in JOHN WATERS' PECKER
WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY JOHN WATERS
Check us out on the World Wide Web.
http://www.angelfire.com/biz2/academymfmusic/
ACADEMY MUSIC Opera House NORTHAMPTON 584-8435

Men's tennis off to N.Y.

By Matt Frascella
Collegian Correspondent

Near the upper tennis courts by Boyden Gymnasium lies an equipment shed with a piece of paper taped to its side. The paper lists the team goals for the Massachusetts men's tennis team.

The team has set its sights on maintaining a team GPA of 2.9, placing third in the Atlantic Ten conference, and gaining nation-wide attention by receiving a national tennis ranking.

"These are the most lofty team goals I've seen, getting a national ranking has never happened before at UMass," said head coach Judy Dixon, who is optimistic about the upcoming season.

The Minutemen hope to improve upon last year's 14–7 record and fifth place finish in the A-10. Although Dixon watched her doubles teams struggle a little in 1997, she feels that this years squad has made important strides.

"Our weakness last year was our doubles play. That has been fixed," Dixon said. "This year we have great depth. This is the most talented men's tennis team [I've coached] since I've been here."

This year the men's tennis squad has added four transfer students and two freshman to bolster its lineup and gain some depth.

Anchoring the Minutemen is team captain Kevin Curley. Curley, a junior, has been captain since the end of his freshman year, a fact that Dixon admits is "unusual." Curley said that this year's team's strength is the fact that, "lots of teams fall off after their top seeds. We have a strong 4 through 8 seeds."

Curley feels that the team's weakness may lie in the fact that many of the players have never competed in a UMass uniform before. "We have a lot of new players, but they'll gain experience as the season goes on."

This year's team features a new number one seed, junior Rob Manchester. Manchester was 22–7 last year in singles play. "We are looking for big things from him. He is highly motivated, an excellent serve and volley player and what makes him great is that he hates to lose." Dixon said.

Manchester and the rest of the UMass team will face its first challenge this weekend at the West Point Invitational Tournament. This is an individual tournament with participants coming from Rutgers, St. John's, Army, Boston College and UMass. The men's tennis team from Army has a national ranking, while St. John's has a player ranked number one in the east.

Returning members of the Massachusetts team include, Manchester, Curley, senior Todd Cheney, juniors Bo Navarro, Parsa Samii and Keith Schumann. New to the team are transfer students Josh Bainton, Marco Casesa, and Bill Greener and freshmen Eric Reblin and Todd Champeau.

The UMass men's tennis home opener is Friday, Oct. 2 against the University of Vermont.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The UMass men's tennis team swings into action this weekend in their quest to put up more championship banners.

Women's XC takes pack to New York race

By Sean Lavoine
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts women's cross country team takes its running game to New York City this weekend, where it will compete in the Tournament of Champions held at Van Cortland Park, Bronx, N.Y.

The 10:30 a.m. race will feature over 300 runners and some of the best talent in the nation. Nationally ranked Dartmouth, No. 3 and No. 17 Wake Forest are expected to challenge for the top spot, while other powerhouses, such as Penn State, Air Force and Kansas are also expected to have a strong showing.

UMass finished third here two years ago, however, duplicating that feat will take a strong effort. "This event has turned into a national event. Considering the talent, I wouldn't mind squeezing into the top ten," UMass coach Julie LaFreniere said.

Coming off a second place showing at the only home meet of the year, and a first place showing at the La Salle Invitational two weeks ago, UMass will use this race to tune up for the Atlantic 10 Championship held at the end of October. "We have a solid team, but we still have a lot of work to do," LaFreniere said.

The team is led by junior Sally Hirsch who finished fifth overall last week. "She has been running well," LaFreniere said. Also running well for the Minutewomen are senior Nicole Way, sophomore Melissa Henderson and senior Tracy Meagher. "They are all steady runners," added LaFreniere.

Newcomers to the team have also impressed LaFreniere. Freshman Kristin Cisowski finished eleventh last week in her first ever cross country race. "Kristin is a first time cross country runner and she has done exceptionally well," LaFreniere said. Other freshmen, Rebecca Aldrich, Sarah Thomas and Katherine Blais are also performing well.

Newcomers will gain valuable experience in competing against a large number of runners. "There will be a lot of pushing and shoving at the start of the race, of which freshmen are unaccustomed to," LaFreniere said. Due to the large amount of runners, the track doesn't narrow until the runners are three quarters of a mile into the race. Learning how to fight for and gain position will prove to be invaluable when the Minutewomen shoot for their fourth straight Atlantic 10 crown.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

The Massachusetts women's cross country team will be in the Big Apple on Saturday for the Meet of Champions at Van Cortland Park.

"Reason №3 why you should take my GMAT course."
Better Research
We spend millions of dollars each year researching the GMAT CAT and revising our techniques and materials, so you learn the best information. No one knows the Computer Adaptive Test better than we do.
Call 1-800-2REVIEW
or visit us at www.review.com
Courses held on the UMASS campus! Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and WNEC as well.
THE PRINCETON REVIEW

amc
Hampshire 6 • 584-7550
Hampshire Mall
Mt. Farms 4 • 584-9153
Mt. Farms Mall
RUSH HOUR (PG-13)
EVER AFTER: A CINDERELLA STORY (PG-13)
URBAN LEGEND (R)
DOMINO (R)
ONE TRUE THING (R)
THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT MARY (R)
SIMON BIRCH (PG)
SAVING PRIVATE RYAN (R)
HUSH (PG)
SLAVES OF BEVERLY HILLS (R)
Special Engagement no Passes or Coupons
$2.50 (Twi-Lite) Show Daily

Together again.

ZANNA
downtown Amherst

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics~Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS
• CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS •
LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R.
BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

WELCOME BACK
For Family Day
Weekend!
Get 20% off
any item with current UMass ID
the Mountain Goat
177 MAIN STREET, NORTHAMPTON • 586-0803
OPEN 7 DAYS • "Outdoor Fun Fitters"

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center — University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dance At Midnight Madness! Funk Club Auditions Sat., Sept 26 12-5 pm Boyden Wrestling Room Hip-Hop/Reggae Dancers Questions? Amelia 665-8649, Charlene 546-5590.

AUTO FOR SALE

84 Monte Carlo Great shape. Runs, drives perfect. 99K. $1475. Call 259-1910.

89 Mazda 323 5 speed, sunroof, $800. 85 Maxima fully loaded. 94 Honda Civic EX fully loaded 5 speed. 86 Jetta, fully loaded, leather interior. $900. Chris (413)781-9148.

88 Honda Accord LXI Auto, air, cruise control. New transmission. $2600 546-4759.

87 Ford Mustang GT V8 Great fun, car winter stored, impeccable condition performance extras, only 80K miles. Call 549-6015.

1987 Cutlass Supreme $750 or B/O. 256-1014.

Pontiac Sunbird Runs perfect. $900 or B/O. Call 259-1915.

CARS $100-$500
Police Impounds.
Hondas, Chevys, Jeeps, & Sport Utilities
MUST SELL!
1-800-522-2730 x4554

1990 Pontiac Lemans LE 4 dr. auto. AC, PS, 60K. Excellent condition. $1800 545-4548.

91 Mitsubishi Mirage LS Automatic, fully loaded, 103K miles. Excellent condition. $3700. 253-5503.

1989 Subaru Wagon Standard 4WD, highway miles, clean $1400 (978)544-3783.

WANTED: Toyotas, Nissan Prizms, Sentras Any condition. Cash paid everytime 1-800-649-4795.

AUTO PARTS

Headlight Covers and Hood Bra for 1995-98 Mustang. Asking $60 for both. Call Liz at 549-2031 after 6.

COMPUTERS

STUDENT PC SPECIALS
Great Internet/Work Processor Systems!
486DX4/100 Mid Tower Systems
24mbRam, 1.7gbHDD, 20XCDROM,
16BitSound & Speakers, Win95.
$398 each Plus $70 for bundled 14" monitor.
Validata Computers, Rt. 9, Hadley
(413)586-7405

486 Computer
Great For Student Works Good
$100
Color VGA $50.
(413)584-8857

EMPLOYMENT

Counter Help and Delivery Persons wanted. Apply at D.P. Dough, Amherst.

Rao's Coffee is hiring full or part-time 20 hours/week minimum. Food experience preferred Apply in person only.

Gymnastics Instructor Greenfield YMCA is seeking experienced instructors for afternoon, evening, and weekend classes. Apply at Greenfield YMCA, 451 Main St., Greenfield, MA 01301. 413-773-3646 Cindy Mansur.

Spring Break '99- Sell Trips, Earn Cash & Go Free!!! STS is now hiring campus reps. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico & Florida. Call 800-648-4849 or apply online at www.ststravel.com.

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2"
2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and. Earn $$$$ Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks. Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplash-tours.com

EMPLOYMENT

Research Interviewers Abt Associates is looking for a few good reliable people with good communication and computer skills who are available to work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Evenings and weekends available. We offer flexible scheduling options, access to health and dental plans and paid training. The starting wage is $6.25/hr with regular merit increases. Free transportation from PVTA Bus Line is provided. For more info or to arrange an interview call 413-587-1607. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Teacher needed to home-school 9th grade student. Flexible schedule. Please call 413-562-9701 after 6:00pm or email jng@aol.com.

PART TIME- 10 hrs/wk Flexible schedule Assist arts organization directors. Computer skills required. Amherst location 413-549-0299 or 413-548-8006.

Dunkin Donuts
Now Hiring
Apply In Person
Morning Shifts
Rt. 9, Hadley

ENTERTAINMENT

Lights and Sound: Rave to Dorm Party. Your DJ's or ours. Call BARR Productions (413)737-8561.

DJ FOR HIRE: DJ FOOZ is back and now booking for Fall semester. Spinning the best music for all occasions. Call Tim at 549-9127.

FOR RENT

Lockers For Rent: $10 for academic year. Going fast! Come to Commuter Services, Rm 428 Student Union.

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery 253-9742.

FOR SALE

Mongoose Mountain Bike '95 Great shape. Lots of upgrades! w/ helmet and Krypto lock $250. 549-5979.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump... YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK. www.fitnessworkshop.com

INSTRUCTION

Kickboxing Lessons Develop fighting skills while getting into great shape. Call Joe 548-8979.

KICKBOXING LESSONS Learn to kickbox in a fun, friendly environment. First lesson free! Call 253-7757.

LOST & FOUND

Notebook and CD's found on North Pleasant St., Monday night, 9/21. Call Jaimie to identify. 549-8548.

Grandmother's Silver Engagement Ring Lost on 9/10 around Totman and Sylvan parking area. Great sentimental value. Please return. Reward. 665-7630.

Lost- Black wallet with flowers in Thompson. Reward. Please call Susan 549-1127.

MOTORCYCLES

Suzuki GS750E 16V Very large bike. Old model. Great looking and well maintained. Has great engine, new tires, and more. $1000/BO. Call Kirin 256-8701.

Kawasaki EX 250 Ninja 1994 4500 miles. Excellent condition. $2000 or B/O. 585-0052.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Jazz Piano Teacher Offering Fall Lessons Beginner to Advanced Can Teach All Styles Call Stephen Page at 256-2612.

Piano Lessons Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

In Amherst Quiet setting, kitchen privileges, laundry, parking, non-smoking. $350 inclusive. 549-4853.

SERVICES

Keg Systems New installations, parts. C02 filled. Call Bryan 586-2452.

Cheap Heating Oil: Join The Pioneer Valley Oil Coop. Come to Commuter Services, Rm 428 Student Union or call 545-0865 for more information.

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906.

STEREO & CD EQUIP

HEY YOU...!
2 Way Carpeted DJ Speakers
500 RMS 18" Woofers with 15" Passive
Fused HI & Lows (1/4" Jacks)
$650/Pr
Call Jimmy
413-774-5648

How can you place a Classified ?

Call us at 545-3500 or Visit us in The Campus Center Basement.

Five College Community Calendar

FRIDAY, SEPT. 25

Dancing — There will be international folkdancing at the Bangs Community Center on Boltwood Walk in Amherst. Dancing is from 7:30-10 p.m. and everyone is invited.

Lecture — A lecture entitled Ecosystem Structure and Marine Geochemical Recovery from the Cretaceous/Paleogene Mass Extinction will be held in Morrill II South, room 151 at 3:30 p.m. A reception will follow.

Services — The Hillel House will be having a Shabbat Service at 6 p.m. in the Hillel House. Services will be led by UMass Professor Julius Lester. Everyone is welcome.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 26

Community — The 12th annual Apple Harvest and Crafts Festival will be from 10 a.m.–5 p.m. on the Amherst Town Common. There will be food, raffles, live music, games, and activities for everyone.

Race — Rollerblade Inc., Klein's All Sports, and Gore Mountain will co-host a free tryout and downhill race on the all-terrain skate-the Coyote. The race will be held on Gore Mountain, North Creek, NY from 3-5 p.m., with a demo time from 10 a.m.–2 p.m. For details, call (315) 445-0629.

Services — There will be a Shabbat morning service at 10 a.m. at the Hillel House. All families and individuals invited.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 27

Meeting — There will be a meeting of "Students for Celluci/Swift '98" at 5:30 p.m. in the Campus Center room 803. The meeting will be brief and informational.

Meeting — There will be a theatre group meeting at 5 p.m. at the Hillel House. Anyone interested in starting a Jewish theatre group should attend.

Race — Rollerblade Inc., Klein's All Sports, and Gore Mountain will co-host a free tryout and downhill race on the all-terrain skate-the Coyote. The race will be on Gore Mountain, North Creek, NY from 1–3 p.m. with a demo time from 10 a.m.–12:30 p.m. Call 315-445-0629 for details.

MONDAY, SEPT. 28

Meeting — There will be an informational meeting for the 1999 UMass program in Siena, Italy at 7 p.m. in Herter Hall room 301.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is currently accepting applications for artistic team members for the Fall production of You Can't Take It With You. For more information, call 545-0415 or stop by the office at 423A in the Student Union.

Community — Prevent your bicycle from being stolen by registering it. A registration booth will be available Sept. 21–25 at the Student Union circle from 10 a.m.–2 p.m.

Community — NEWS40 will be collecting coats for their ninth annual "Coats for Kids Campaign." Drop off the coats at one of the following participating businesses: Manny's TV & Appliances, Rocky's Hardware, Subway stores, or any branch of United Cooperative Bank. Coats may also be brought to WGGB at 1300 Liberty Street, Springfield.

Exhibit — Three video sculptures by artist Nam June Paik are on view at the Smith College Museum of Art through October 18.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

If you think that shopping a college store means having no choices...
Think again.
NEW University store
Not like a mall... Better.

FRIDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 25, 1998

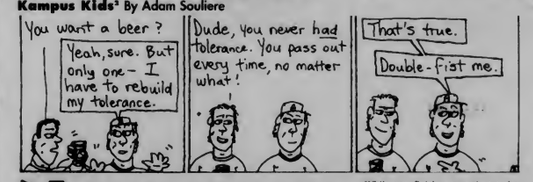
	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEOH	12	Wishbone	Business Rpt	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	Connecticut Journal		Living With Cancer		Nova (R) (In Stereo)
WFSB	3	News	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Kids-Darndest	Candid C.	Buddy Faro "Pilot"		Nash Bridges "High Fall"		News	Late Show
WBZ	4	News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Kids-Darndest	Candid C.	Buddy Faro "Pilot"		Nash Bridges "High Fall"		News	Late Show
WCVB	5	News	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle	Two of a Kind	Boy World	Sabrina-Witch	Brother's Kpr	20/20		News	Nightline
WLVI	56	Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny	Friends	"Predator 2" (1990, Science Fiction) Danny Glover				News		Friends	Nanny
WHOH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Dateline (In Stereo)				Homicide: Life on the Street		News	Tonight Show
WTXX		6 Married...With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	"Poltergeist" (1982, Horror) Jobeth Williams				News	Newsradio	Newsradio	LAPD
WVIT	10	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy	Dateline (In Stereo)				Homicide: Life on the Street		News	Tonight Show
WTIC	11	Simpsons	Friends	Seinfeld	Frasier	Captivity	Get Personal	Millennium "The Time Is Now"		News		Friends	Mad Abt. You
WWLP	22	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy!	Dateline (In Stereo)				Homicide: Life on the Street		News	Tonight Show
WGBY	6	Creatures	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer		Wash. Week	Wall St. Week	State We're In	This Week	Monty Python	Monty Python	Charlie Rose (In Stereo)
WGGB	20	News	ABC News	Seinfeld	Frasier	Two of a Kind	Boy World	Sabrina-Witch	Brother's Kpr	20/20		News	Nightline
WSBK	38	Judge Judy	Judge Judy	Seinfeld		NHL Preseason Hockey	Boston Bruins vs. Montreal Canadiens (Live)				News	Frasier	Cheers
WTBS	72	Family Matters	Family Matters	Andy Griffith		Major League Baseball	New York Mets at Atlanta Braves (Live)				"Young Guns II" (1990) Emilio Estevez
A&E	69	Northern Exposure		Law & Order	Virus	Biography: Adolf Hitler		Investigative Reports		"Daniel Pascow: Under		Law & Order: Indifference
CNN	29	World-view	Moneyline News	hour	Crossfire	World Today		Larry King Live		World Today		Sports	Moneyline
COM	59	Lounge Liz	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	Rowan Atkinson, Face		"History of the World: Part I" (1981, Comedy) Mel Brooks,		Drew Carey	Upright
DISC	42	Wings (R)	Midsom Burner (R)	Gemma Shellar (R)		Wild Discovery "Jurassic Reef"		News		World-Wond.	Missing Link (R)	Justice Files (R)
ESPN	31	Up Close	Sportscenter			Boxing: Jose Flores vs. Raul Marquez, (Live)				Timber Series	Baseball Tonight	Sportscenter
LIFE	62	Ellen	Ellen	Party of Five	Best Laid Plans	Chicago Hope (In Stereo)		"The Karen Carpenter Story" (1989) Cynthia Gibb				New Attitudes	Golden Girls
MTV	43	3-31 Jamie Countdown		News	House of Style	Eye Spy Video	Boy What?	A- Kickin' Videos (R) (In Stereo)				Fanatic (R)	Lovelina (R)
NICK	53	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug	Rugrats	Kablam!	Animorphs	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	I Love Lucy	Bewitched
SCIFI	61	Amaz. Stories	Sci-Fi Entert.	Sightings	Star Trek	Tomorrow is Yesterday		Sequest 2032 "Resurrection"		American Gothic "Resurrector"		Sightings	Star Trek
TLC	64	Renovation	Renovation	Home Again	Home Again	48 Hours "Without a Trace" (R)		Miracle Planet (R) (Part 2 of 6)		Miracle Planet (R) (Part 1 of 6)		48 Hours	Without a Trace (R)
TNT	65	Babylon 5 "Rising Star"		ER "Make of Two Hearts"		Larry King Meets ER (R) (In Stereo)				"In the Company of Darkness" (1993) Helen Hunt			"Deadbolt"
USA	67	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.		Xena: Warrior Princess		Walker, Texas Ranger		"Back to the Future Part II" (1989, Fantasy) Michael J. Fox				"Iron Eagle" (1986)
HBO	45	Real Sports (R) (In Stereo)		Inside the NFL (In Stereo)		"Turbulence" (1997) Ray Liotta				"The Shadow Men" (1998, Science Fiction) Eric Roberts, Nic		Chris Rock
MAX	55	(4:30)		"The Addams Family" (1991) Pug		"The Full Monty" (1997) Robert Carlyle		People-Fiyer		"The Firm" (1993, Drama) Tom Cruise, (In Stereo)
SHOW	56	"In the Doghouse" (1998, Comedy) Matt Frewer, Rhea Perlman,				"Beverly Hills Ninja" (1997) Chris Farley		Dreams-Coma	Stargate SG-1	Dead Man's Gun (R)			Outer Limits

HSCN 2 — Hosting Services Cable Network

2	HSCN Bulletin Board	UVC–TV19
3	CBS/3 Hartford	ABC/40 Springfield
4	CBS/4 Boston	NBC/22 Springfield
5	ABC/5 Boston	CNN
6	PBS/57 Springfield	CNN Si
7	HSCN Movie Ch.	Headline News
8	UPN/20 Hartford	UCTV
9	Weather Channel	TBS
10	NBC/30 New Britain	BET
11	Fox/61 Hartford	TV Land
12	PBS/24 Hartford	Univision
13	WGCH & HSCN	Comedy Central
14	International	Cartoon
15	UMass Academic TV	Much Music
16	HSCN Programming

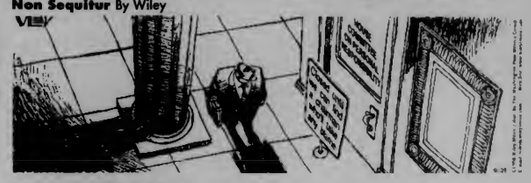
Cathy By Cathy Guisewite

Drabble By Kevin Fagan



Robotman By Jim Meddick

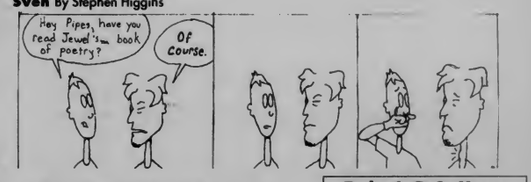
Liberty Meadows By Frank Cho



Kampus Kids² By Adam Souliere

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Non Sequitur By Wiley



Rose is Rose² By Pat Brady

Bustin' Ass By Matt W.

Sven By Stephen Higgins

Horoscopes

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — What happens on a small scale today can indicate what is likely to happen on a far grander scale. Open your eyes if you wish to see the signs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You and a co-worker may have been mismatched recently, resulting in tensions that can be easily overcome by a simple rearrangement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — Since you're going to want things to come out exactly as planned today, your strategy must be detailed and perfect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — You may be able to enjoy things that you had not thought of enjoying until today, thanks to someone who has gone out on a limb for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — It's important that you impress someone with your speech and behavior today. What happens may affect you for some time to come.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You can do a great deal toward securing a higher profit-margin for yourself at this time. However, take care you don't offend your superiors!

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You may not often entertain thoughts of rubbing someone the wrong way, but any such behavior today is likely to come back to haunt you.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You may find yourself involved in a conflict over who is right and who is wrong today. Remember, no one is infallible.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — While you finish one project today, think ahead to what will pay off most handsomely down the road. Make plans now!

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — You can move at least one step ahead of the pack today by relying on your own instincts. It will see you through a difficult patch of ground.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Make sure you're not taken in by things which may make you deaf to suggestions. Listen carefully and you'll see results.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Take care that you do not let the differences you have with a Pisces native erupt into the kind of conflict that may take years to resolve.

Quote of the Day

"I can't, I can't, I can't..."

–Overheard from Freshman whinner.

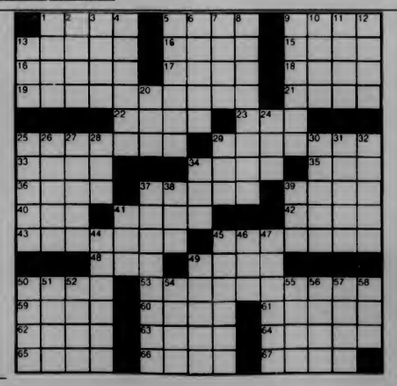
Close to Home By John McPherson

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Chicken CutletSandwich
Pizza
Tuna Noodle Casserolo
DINNER
Chicken Fajita
Spaghetti/Italian Sausage Sauce
Tofu Fajita
Quarter Pound Burger
Quarter Pound Swiss Burger

Worcester
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Sloppy Joe
Spaghetti/Tomato Sauce
Vegnn Sloppy Joe
DINNER
Chicken Fajita
Three Cheese & Macaroni
Pastabilities
Half Time Deli

Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Handcut Cod Sub
Grilled Cheese/Whole Wheat
DINNER
Chicken Fajita
Baked Fish with Herb Stuffing



Berkshire
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Sloppy Joe; Pizza
Grilled Cheese on Whole Wheat
DINNER
Duchess Meat Pie
Chicken Fajita
Tri Bean Casserole
Pastabilities

ACROSS
1 Not as much
5 Glasgow native
9 Extinct birds
13 Tummy exercise
14 Fabled racer
15 Arm bone
16 Diner
17 Baker's need
18 Basin
19 Patchwork art
21 Misplace
22 Quiet time
23 — Baba
25 Delivered a message
29 Scurry
33 Having knowledge of 34 Logger's commodity
35 Actor Wallach
36 Tiers
37 Sticky mud
39 Ringo's instrument
40 Fire
41 Mineral deposit
42 Assistant
43 Like some poems
45 Confuses
48 Morsel
49 Boxer's boundary
50 Tart
53 Fundamentals
59 Big Foot's cousin
60 Eternities
61 Amphitheater
62 Garden spot
63 Racing sled
64 Small harbor
65 Withered
66 Pullovers
67 Memo

DOWN
1 Teller of tales
2 — Kett of the comics
3 Egyptian canal
4 Nimbly
5 "— I Do It?" song
6 Quibble
7 Pitcher Hershiser
8 Octopus appendage
9 Islamic
10 Miscellany
11 Beatle and Reinking
12 Rice wine
13 Part of a min
20 Montreal's prov
24 Baby's seat
25 Kind of delivery
26 Glue ingredient
27 Quieter
28 Reply: abbr
29 Total
30 Danger
31 Evade adroitly
32 Frosts
34 Fasten
37 Safety device
38 — Abner
39 Mom's mate
41 TV add-on 44 Antiseptic
45 Model Kate and kin
46 — and downs
47 Confine temporarily
49 Gamut
50 Votes in favor
51 Yield
52 Roman road
54 Debauchee
55 New Yorker cartoonist
56 Gael
57 Type of jerk
58 Perched

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

CLEAR TBSP ABBY
HORNE ALAI VOLE
AGING RUGS ERAS
AEGEIPTS TIRADE
NASH ORYXES
KOALAS SINA
INGA HERA QUIRK
ETERNAL FRISBEE
VODKA SITE SING
KEEL BURSTS DAMPEN LOUT
OREADS NUTMEATS
WORE INDES OMDE
EMIR GUST SMILE
LATE NESS TOTED

Staff

Night Editor	Dinice Jimenez
Photo Technician	Lauren Kosky
Copy Editor	Erin Murphy
Production Supervisor	Matt Wolaver
Production Staff	Allen Mackey, Stephen Mackey

SPORTS

Friday, September 25, 1998 — The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Can the Bruins upset the 'Canes down in Miami?

The hurricane has wound down, ladies and gentlemen. We're talking tropical storms nowadays down in Miami. Slight breeze on the back, nice driver to the middle of the fairway. Miami, once a treacherous trip to Big East territory, now a chance to work on your tan.

Miami takes on No. 4 UCLA this weekend with not Jim Kelly, Vinny Testaverde, or Gino Torretta (gone but not forgotten, Gino). Instead, Butch Davis's 'Canes will pit Scott Covington against the Bruins' Heisman candidate Cade McNown.

The resemblance does not go beyond their clash this weekend. Despite Covington's 282 yard, 3 TD performance in last week's overtime loss to Virginia Tech, everyone knows that the ground game is where, if anywhere, the Hurricanes will do their damage. The Bruins, with only two starters from their front seven playing, are leaving it obvious to Davis that Saturday will have to be tailback Edgerrin James' day. James has accumulated 262 yards on the 1998 campaign and will go against a defense that yields 165 per contest. He, along with sidekicks Najeh Davenport and James Jackson, who have over 300 yards on the ground between them, will need to punish the inexperienced front linemen.

UCLA's defense is by no means great, or even good, for that matter. But the defense isn't what has them ranked 4th in the nation. Instead, it's McNown.

Last year's pass efficiency leader is thinking: New York, he's thinking: Downtown Athletic Club, he's thinking follow: his linemen into the endzone and then give a Desmond Howard-esque pose to the Big East heavies.

Statistics alone, though, rarely land the Heisman if not backed up with at least a nine-win season. McNown has thrown for 654 yards and four touchdowns, hardly spectacular when compared to the likes of Kentucky's Tim Couch or Kansas State's Michael Bishop.

McNown has had his time in the sun in southern California and now will step into the spotlight to keep his team's national championship hopes alive. UCLA will score the points, but it is the Bruins' defense that will dictate the outcome of the game.

The Hurricanes simply don't put fear into the eyes of the competitor anymore. With a 4–7 record in its last 11 contests at the Orange Bowl, what used to be arguably the toughest place for a roadie to win, is now just a step up from a breeze.

UCLA, favored by a touchdown, should handle the 'Canes without a problem. As for McNown, 3-over–75.

Mauser's Toilet Bowl Picks of the Week:

Current record: 3-0

The tapes will be rolling in the Washington film rooms before the Huskies do battle with Nebraska in Lincoln on Saturday.

First on the agenda, 1991, the Washington Huskies visit Lincoln and upend the Huskers behind a standout performance from Mark Brunell. Next up, three weeks ago, Louisiana Tech's Tim Rattay throws for 590 yards, including 405 to receiver Troy Edwards, as the Bulldogs turn some heads in a 56–27 loss.

The Huskers have not lost at Memorial Stadium since that day in 1991, including a pair of routs this season.

Quarterback Brock Huard knows this. A southpaw, like Brunell, Hurad will use his and Rattay's past performances to keep things fresh in his own mind, because the bottom line is that he and the rest of the nation know this Nebraska secondary is vulnerable.

The Cornhuskers could be without their starting quarterback Bobby Newcombe. Newcombe has been hobbled by injuries early on, but head coach Frank Solich is not about to throw freshman Eric Crouch into the fire just yet.

I do not think Washington will come out on top for this one, but the 13 1/2 points to start, I will eat right up. The Huskies are on the money this weekend, but can't knock off the 'Ers. Nebraska 42, Washington 31.

The lock of the week, though, goes to North Texas. The Eagles take on intra–state "rival" Texas A&M at College Station. Texas A&M's Brandon Stewart is on his own this weekend. His backfield has taken itself out of the game. And Stewart, by the way, has yet to throw for a touchdown in the Aggies first three games. Give me the Eagles and 33 points and I'm happy.

To wrap things up, Notre Dame is going to figure out if it's the team that beat Michigan or the team that got drubbed by Michigan State. I like Autry Denson's game. I'll take the Irish in South Bend, giving Purdue a seven–spot to start.

Editor's note — As of press time, the UCLA vs. Miami game has been indefinitely postponed due to Hurricane Georges.

Brett Mauser is a Collegian columnist.

Minutemen football to show home crowd new bag of tricks

By Brett Mauser
Collegian Staff

Those that caught the highlights of the Massachusetts football team know what is coming to McGuirk Stadium. Those that did not...sit back, relax, and enjoy what coach Mark Whipple has done for the program. Relax. That is, if you can.

Up and down, side to side, end zone to end zone, if this year's battle with the Buffalo Bulls even remotely resembles what took place in last year's clash, spectators could be in for a long afternoon.

The Minutemen (1–1, 1–0 in the Atlantic 10) last year absorbed a 459-yard passing day from Bulls' QB Chad Salisbury and took a 26–20 decision back to Amherst, thanks in part to five Buffalo turnovers.

The Minutemen have taken the last three contests from the Bulls, who are stepping up to Division 1–A Mid–American Conference next season. Buffalo has not defeated the Minutemen since the Nixon administration. Because Buffalo is a 1–AA independent, the game will not affect the Minutemen's conference record. They resume conference duties next weekend against Hofstra.

Salisbury is back in search of another career day versus the Minutemen. Although never on the field at the same time, Salisbury and Minuteman quarterback Todd Bankhead will be exchanging blows. But which quarterback will deliver is still up for debate.

Bankhead became the first ever Minuteman to record back–to–back 300-yard passing days. He returns to Amherst for his first–ever appearance at home. Salisbury, despite his previous showing against the Minutemen, has struggled so far this year, completing only 30 of 68 passes for 350 yards.

"Every pro scout has come to see their quarterback. I'm concerned because we're 11th in the conference in rushing defense," Whipple said, "and last year we gave up 459 yards passing. They [have] returned their quarterback and their receivers, so there's concern."

UMass vs. Buffalo
McGuirk Stadium, 1 p.m.
WMUA 91.1FM
Matt Feato — play–by–play
Mike Corey — color

Khari Samuel

Their talented running attack is the reason the Bulls come into tomorrow's contest with a 2–1 record. Running backs Josh Roth and David Hinson have combined for over 350 yards on the ground in three games. The Minutemen, in their two contests against Delaware and Richmond, have yielded 219 yards on average on the ground.

UMass, too, could have their own way running the ball. In last week's 16–14 win over Lafayette, the Bulls gave up 254 yards rushing and were out–gained 374 to 270 yards. Sophomore Marcell Shipp has run for 187 yards in the Minutemen's two games to lead all players.

"Marcell fumbled the ball on the extra effort [against Richmond], but came back and had a very strong second half," Whipple said. "That's the mental toughness that you look for."

The Minutemen have also been sloppy in third–down situations, converting on only eight of 34 attempts. They have fallen victim to the penalty bug, which has hit UMass 16 times for 154 yards in their two games.

Red zone defense was the issue, though, in the 22–17 win over Richmond. In the six trips to UMass territory during the first half, the Spiders could only light up the scoreboard once with a field goal late in the second quarter.

"We're playing aggressive defense and we're creating turnovers and the kids are having fun playing," Whipple said.

"It's more important that our kids want to do well. That's more important. It is not about me. It's about Bankhead, Samuel, and Taylor, those guys. I'm hoping that they want to do well because it's their home opener. We have to make this a special place, so that no one wants to come in and play us."

Minutewomen soccer travels to Colorado

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

BOULDER, Colo. — The light at the end of the tunnel is finally in sight for the Massachusetts women's soccer team.

The Minutewomen will close out their non–conference schedule this weekend when they travel to Boulder, Colo. to face Colorado and Texas in a pair of weekend matches.

UMass (2–3) will open up play today at 4 p.m., when they square off against the Buffaloes. The Minutewomen, defeated 1–0 in overtime last season at home, are looking for the same results this time around.

"Both of the games are going to [be] very hard fought battles," UMass coach Jim Rudy said. "Colorado started off great, losing 2–0 to North Carolina (the reigning National Champions) and they had some scoring chances in that one. Then they beat George Washington 4–1, but now have gone on a streak where they have played very poorly. They have lost three straight and then tied LSU (Louisiana State University), who didn't win a game last year."

The host will be lead by goalkeeper Sloan Cox, who had a string of 257 shutout minutes against the Minutewomen snapped last year when Kara Green netted the game winner for UMass in the Classic. Once again, Cox will be the last line of defense for the Buffaloes and will surely be looking to start a new scoreless streak this afternoon.

"She's just always had our number," said Rudy of the CU keeper. "It's been hard as hell to get one by her and she's having a good year so far."

Looking to penetrate Cox and the CU defensive core will be the trio of Green, Emma Kurowski, and Sophie Lecot. Together, this triplet could contain the three leading scorers for UMass this season. Complementing the aforementioned group will be Colorado native Tarah Tokarchik and Kathleen Machamer, and freshman Kristi Roubicheau.

After the tilt with the Buffaloes on Friday, UMass will set its sights on a date with Texas on Sunday morning at 11 a.m. The Longhorns are a talented bunch that will bring a 2– 2 mark into this weekend's play.

The Minutewomen will enter this couplet still riding high after Sunday's 4–2 win over Colgate. These two games will also be the final tune up for UMass before opening its Atlantic 10 schedule next weekend against St. Joe's and Temple.

"We've really taken on a big–time schedule. It's been tough, but I think it will prepare us for anything that we'll see in the conference," Rudy said.

Minutewomen Notes:

Jim Rudy is just two wins shy of his 150th career win at UMass. Rudy enters this weekend's competition with a record of 148–47–13 in his 11 seasons at UMass. Rudy, the winningest coach in UMass women's soccer history, owns a winning percentage of .750 at UMass and a .759 career percentage.

The Minutewomen will also enter this weekend's matches against Colorado and Texas minus standouts Brooke Bartlett, Martha Conover and Kate Webb, who are all suffering from serious injuries.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Sophie Lecot and her teammates will have to be at the top of their game as the Massachusetts women's soccer team plays against Colorado and Texas this weekend.

UMass women's volleyball at home for two crucial A–10 tilts

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's volleyball team comes home this weekend for their contest with two Atlantic 10 rivals, Virginia Tech and Duquesne.

The Minutewomen are glad to be home after a 2–5 road trip. Recently, the maroon and white have improved their skills and techniques.

They're coming off of two big wins over conference foe La Salle and out–of–conference rival Harvard.

Massachusetts handed both of these teams severe beatings, but there is no break for the Minutewomen (4–7, 1–1 in A– 10) as they continue to battle tough conference opponents.

The Hokies will provide UMass with some strong competition, as will the Dukies of Duquesne.

"Virginia Tech is big, really big, but I think that we can do some things that can really affect their offense," Coach Bonnie Kenny said.

"We need to control the ball and make sure that they don't run the middle as much as they want to."

So what does UMass have to do to beat Virginia Tech?

"We have to attack them. We need to play a little bit faster than they do; serve the ball very aggressively so that they will be unable to run the middle," Kenny said.

Jill Meyers

As for the Dukies match, UMass may be the better team, but the Dukes have some weapons that could give UMass some trouble if they don't come to play hard. The tough match up is expected to give the Minutewomen a run for their money.

"Duquesne had a great preseason, and they're 2–1 in conference right now," Kenny stated.

"They also like to run the right side of the court, as well as run a lot of slides, and they have a lot of weapons that, if we're not careful, they can hurt us."

The "weapons" coach Kenny referred to from Duquesne consists of their youth, and some of the transfer students they obtained.

Anita Ball has been playing really well for the Dukies and UMass will have to work to contain her.

Junior Kari Hogancamp has been nearly flawless in her last couple of matches this season.

This Huntington Beach native continues to put up great numbers. She has amassed 157 digs thus far this season. She currently stands third on the UMass digs list with 1,150.

Jill Meyers and Katie Gibbons have also been forces on the UMass attack, turn the offensive into a prime assest.

Rebecca Hasson has been a power at the net and has helped the UMass attack by consistently killing the ball without committing many errors. Her aggressiveness and efficiency has inspired the team more than once.

Sophomore setter, Jennifer Drennan and Freshman setter, Heather Holtsberg have been sharing the responsibility of setting the hitters.

They have both been doing really well and will continue to do so for the Minutewomen. Both have been brilliant at times. And brilliance is what the UMass womens' volleyball team will need to withstand the rough season ahead.

"The recent momentum should help, and the fact that we're finally home and that all this is new to them, should help them this weekend and throughout the season," Kenny said. If the momentum continues and team pride pulls through, the womens' team will be victorious against the Hokies.!

The Minutewomen hit the court tonight against Virginia Tech at 7 p.m. at Curry Hicks Cage. They will return to action on Saturday night against the Dukes, also at 7 p.m.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Kari Hogancamp leads UMass into this weekend's matchups against A–10 rivals Virginia Tech and Duquesne.

UMass men's soccer still seeking first win

By Sanford Appell
Collegian Staff

After struggling through the non–conference slate, the Massachusetts men's soccer team will look to rebound against some more familiar foes.

The Minutemen, who failed to earn a victory thus far (0–6– 1), will open their Atlantic 10 grind against the University of Rhode Island tomorrow morning at Totman Field.

The team will be rested after their journey to Fresno, Calif. last weekend.

While surrounded by the beautiful beaches of the Golden State, UMass was drowned by Fresno State and UNLV on consecutive afternoons.

However, the Minutemen have been inactive since, and appear ready for the vigorous conference schedule they will face.

"All the teams we play in the Atlantic 10 will be tough," Massachusetts coach Sam Koch said.

"We cannot be too concerned with who the other team is right now. So far our toughest opponent has been ourselves."

Indeed, the Minutemen have seemingly beaten themselves in certain situations thus far, creating a disturbing trend of losing close matches.

URI will pose a challenge for UMass tomorrow, as they rely on a great deal of speed throughout their lineup.

"One of the keys to winning this match, will be matching their intensity with quick, relentless play," Koch said.

"Our transition game must be sharp and we cannot allow them to counter."

UMass strengths lie with such players as "Pie" Garcia, Adam Black and James Redmond who can match speed with the Rams. Furthermore, the Minutemen must play solid defense.

The series between UMass and URI has been a closely contested rivalry in soccer, as well as in many other sports.

The Rams currently cling to an 18–17–3 all–time series lead.

However, UMass struck last with a 2–0 win last October.

While the season has been a rocky road for UMass, the Atlantic 10 opponents will give the team a chance to redeem themselves.

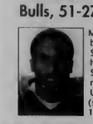
"This is almost a new season for us," Koch said. "These are the games that will be most important In the long run. Our goals still consist of qualifying for and then winning the Atlantic 10 tournament."

Tomorrow's game will offer a chance for UMass to post a home victory before embarking on four consecutive road contests.

If the Minutemen pick up their first win tomorrow, it will certainly serve as a confidence booster when they are facing teams such as Virginia Tech and Temple on the road.

"Hopefully we have learned from our mistakes in previous matches," Koch said. "Now we can move on and win the games that will help us attain our goals."

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN



Volume CIV Issue 14 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Monday, September 28, 1998

First stop, bad start

Julianna Hatfield's premier date for her new album Bed was nothing more than mediocre. Check out our full review (see Arts & Living, page 6).

Minutemen outscore Bulls, 51-27

Massachusetts tailback Marcel Shipp was the hero of this Saturday's 51–27 rout of Buffalo University. (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Iranians debate position on Rushdie

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Many Iranians seem to agree that little has changed after Iran's announcement that it would distance itself from the Islamic edict calling for the death of British writer Salman Rushdie.

Yesterday, both newspapers and ordinary Iranians debated the announcement made Thursday in New York by Iran's foreign minister. Rushdie has said he sees new safety in the decision to distance the Iranian government from a $2.5 million reward for his death. But the hard-line Jomhuri Eslami said in an editorial that the late Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's "fatwa," or Islamic edict, calling for Rushdie's death was still applicable.

"Any promise in this regard... is a personal interpretation and has nothing to do with the Islamic Republic. There is no room for optimism by Rushdie and his supporters," the paper said.

NATION

Attorney general recovers after fainting spell

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney General Janet Reno fainted during a church service yesterday and was taken to a hospital, where she was reported in good condition.

Reno, 60, was expected to remain overnight for monitoring in the coronary unit at Georgetown University Medical Center, said Paul Katz, the center's chief operating officer. She canceled a trip to New York on Monday where she had planned to tour a school and give a speech during the early morning.

"This is just a fainting spell. Her condition is good," Katz said, adding that Reno was joking and in good spirits. Katz said her heart rhythm, EKG, heart rate, respiration and blood pressure were good.

Reno told her staff she was feeling fine and looked forward to returning to work. She read work materials and spoke with family members Sunday afternoon.

She was disappointed that the hospital television did not receive cable, preventing her from watching some final games of the baseball regular season. She asked if either Mark McGwire or Sammy Sosa had hit any home runs Sunday and was subsequently told that McGwire had hit his 69th, her spokesman, Bert Brandenburg, said. President Clinton spoke with Reno from Air Force One while flying from Los Angeles to San Antonio.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday
HIGH: 73	HIGH: 70	HIGH: 70
LOW: 40	LOW: 43	LOW: 49

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics .....page 11
Crossword .....page 11
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News .....page 1
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Native Americans come together at Pow–Wow

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Mike Little Wolf, a member of the Nipmuck nation and a resident of Worcester, stands at the UMass Pow Wow.

Stacey Shackford
Collegian Correspondent

Representatives from 42 Native American tribes from the United States, Canada, and Central and South America assembled in front of the campus pond this weekend for the 18th Annual University of Massachusetts Inter–Tribal Pow– Wow.

Underneath a large tent, more than 600 members of the UMass and Amherst communities gathered to watch Native American drumming, singing and dancing.

Drum call sounded shortly after 11 a.m., and dancers of all ages entered the tent in full tribal regalia. Grand Entry was followed by a prayer and invocation delivered by Kenny Merrick Jr. He called upon the Creator to bless the gathering and asked that all participants "have good feelings for each other."

"That's why we're here today: to enjoy one another, to make new relatives and new friends," he said.

Community and tradition were the central themes of the Pow–Wow. Danielle Girard, the resident assistant of the Native American floor in Chadbourne Residence Hall, described the Pow–Wow as a celebration of Native American tradition, culture, and heritage, and an opportunity to reunite with family and friends.

"There's a real sense of community," she said. "Having a pow–wow on campus brings a really positive message to the native community on campus and in the area."

Many of the dances reflected this sense of community, and some encouraged active participation from the crowd. The Veterans Dance honored local veterans and members of the armed forces, who were invited to join the Native American dancers as they circled the tent. A Sobriety Dance recognized members of the community who are fighting alcoholism and other addictions, and a Memorial Dance recognized those who have died within the past year.

Two young Native Americans were also recognized for their accomplishments and their involvement in the Native community.

Sarah Orellana, a member of the Mapuche tribe from Chile, received an honorary eagle feather given to her by her mother, Esther. Warren Griffin, a third year Communications major, was given an honorary drumstick and made keeper of the new drum of the Dr. Josephine White Eagle Cultural Center.

For Mike Little Wolf, a 17 year old dancer who was adopted into the Nipmuck tribe six years ago, the Pow–Wow symbolized redemption.

"Six years ago I was a punk, stealing and skating, and getting into trouble," he said. "My dad brought me to a Pow–Wow and said, "You can either buy a new skateboard or get into this." I was saved when I started coming to Pow– Wows. Otherwise I might be in jail right now, or into drugs and alcohol."

Little Wolf's regalia reflects his new–found place in the Native community. Members of his family helped him assemble items of his regalia, and members of his tribe taught him how to wear and respect it.

For him, Native American dancing is not only an expression of tradition, but also of the individual.

Turn to POW-WOW, page 2

SGA elections today; High turnout expected

By Julie Fialkow
Collegian Staff

Members of the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association (SGA) are optimistic that today's student senate election will draw at least 15 percent of the student body to the polls.

The SGA hopes that the election will not resemble last year's, which was nullified due to low voter turnout. Because of poor advertising, the election captured only 5% of the student body vote. However, the second election, which was held nearly a month later, attracted approximately 15 percent of the University's undergraduates to the polls.

According to Lisa Cook, speaker of the senate, the SGA has worked hard to insure that this year's election is successful. Cook said that they postered campus, and plan to have SGA members standing outside the Dining Commons, handing out small flyers motivating students to vote.

Additionally two controversial referendum questions will be added to the ballot.

1. Do you support the University enforcing the student code of conduct off campus?
2. Do you feel that credit card

Turn to ELECTIONS, page 3

Student Union renovation project set to begin today

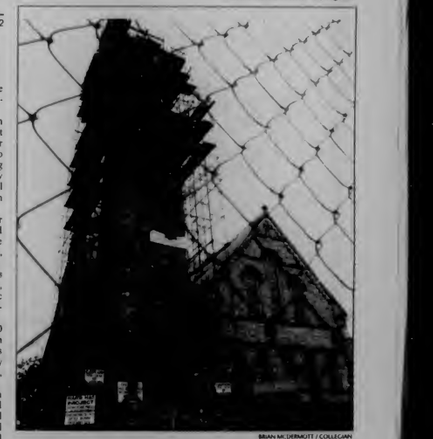
By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Facility Planning Department, in a joint effort between the University and the President's Office, will begin a two–month renovation process today on the outside patio of the Student Union.

University Landscape Architect Bruce Thomas feels that this is one of the most convenient periods to begin what he believes to be one of the most extensive construction processes done at UMass.

"It's a very a huge undertaking," Thomas said. "We're basically removing everything and then putting it back together in a better order."

The process includes removing and replacing all the concrete on the south side facing the pond and the west side near Machmer Hall. The doors leading to Earthfoods and the front of the Student Union are going to be removed and replaced with doors that are easier to open and more wheelchair accessible. During this time, the patio will be fenced off with access through the People's market door or the main door on the west face of the Student Union depending on the location of the construction at that time.



The existing benches will be moved along the walk on the south side, and seating walls will be built surrounding the outside walls of the Union.

During the reconstruction, the emergency phone on the patio will no longer be accessible and the only alternative will be the emergency phones inside the building. In addition, the steps leading to and from the front of the Student Union will no longer be accessible, as a permanent ramp will replace them for wheelchair accessibility.

President Bulger's contributions were the primary source of funding for the construction, and the University attributed finances to finish the job.

In effect, the University and the President's office asked the Facilities Planning to arrange for the undertaking at the most convenient time. However, according to some students, [illegible] didn't know about it until just now, and I think it's rude that they couldn't do it during the summer," junior Jen Saltus said. "I mean, a lot of people like to sit along here to eat and

Turn to RENOVATIONS, page xx

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Today the Student Union will begin to undergo construction, just like the Old Chapel, shown here.

Social democrats win German election

By Tony Czuczka
Associated Press

BONN, Germany — Gerhard Schroeder and his Social Democrats won national elections yesterday, ushering in the first change of government Germany has seen after 16 years of conservative rule under Chancellor Helmut Kohl, the West's longest–serving leader. "The Kohl era has come to an end," Schroeder proclaimed to the cheering party faithful. "Our task will be to thoroughly modernize our country and to unblock the backlog of reform."

Schroeder, 54, will be the first of his generation, rooted in the 1960s leftist movement, to lead Europe's biggest nation. Many voters have known no other chancellor than Kohl, and the prospect of change brought tears of joy.

"Finally, finally, I have rarely been so happy," said Utta Tiedtke, 51, dabbing her eyes as she stood among the Social Democratic revelers. "My two children have never known anything other than Kohl. They've only lived in a time of mediocrity. This means the end of stagnation. We've been waiting for this so long." Kohl, 68, looked tired and sad as he stood on the stage of his party's headquarters to concede defeat. The faithful chanted, "Helmut! Helmut!"

"I wish Herr Schroeder the best of luck and a successful time in office," Kohl said.

Schroeder told the ARD television network that he would begin talks today on building a coalition. His party won 41 percent of the vote, according to exit polls. The Christian Democrats, winning just 35 percent, lost its parliamentary majority.

Kohl's government will continue in a caretaker role until a new coalition is formed. There is no deadline under the German constitution.

The new chancellor has said he hopes to govern with the environmentalist Green party, which won 6.5 percent. However, it was unclear whether the two were strong enough to form a stable majority in parliament, and Schroeder would not say if coalition talks would start with the Greens.

The other option for Schroeder is to share power with the Christian Democrats in a so-called "grand coalition"— something Germany hasn't seen in almost 30 years.

Kohl, however, saw no role for his party in the new government. "There is nothing more to say about this defeat. The voters have fully and clearly decided for a Red-Green coalition," Kohl said, using the German shorthand for the Social Democrats and the Greens.

"This will carry us through the transition time into the new century," Kohl said.

Kohl had his historic moment In 1990, when he unified communist East Germany with the West after the fall of the Berlin Wall. He also has been a key player in preparing Europe and Germany for the new common currency, the Euro, as well as for NATO and European Union expansion.

At the new chancellor, Schroeder will complete what Kohl started and oversee another historic change: the government's move back to Berlin, its prewar capital, next year.

Besides tackling grand projects as Germany enters the 21st century, Schroeder has serious domestic problems to address during his four-year term.

Unemployment, running above 10 percent, was the main campaign issue this year, and Schroeder has pledged to combat it primarily by opening dialogue between unions, industry and government officials.

He also has vowed to push through tax reforms that would relieve average wage earners, as well promising to restore modest social welfare programs cut by the Kohl government in an effort to trim the budget.

Clinton said to be concentrating on healing rather than regret

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — President Clinton said he has paid a big price for his affair with Monica Lewinsky but that "wallowing in regret is a cop-out." He also said his wife is "a remarkable woman" and an inspiration In his moment of crisis.

"You don't have to worry about me giving up," the President assured cheering supporters Sunday at sweltering, outdoor fund-raiser. "Don't worry."

Ann Richards, the plainspoken former governor of Texas, gave the beleaguered president a sympathetic introduction. "Bill Clinton isn't the first man I've had to forgive and he probably won't be the last," she declared, triggering a burst of applause.

Clinton, in his first interview since acknowledging he misled the nation about his relationship with Lewinsky, said he has emerged stronger from the ordeal and that it "gives me a chance to make my marriage whole."

"I think any time a person has to go through a searing personal experience and come to terms with truth and genuinely atone, and genuinely make the effort to change, that's an immensely liberating experience," the President said. "It makes you stronger. It makes you straighter."

The President's remarks, in an interview with writer Trude Feldman, were published yesterday in The Washington Post as Clinton arrived here at the end of an exhausting fund-raising tour through Illinois, California and Texas.

Looking tired, Clinton mingled with wealthy Californians until nearly 1:30 a.m. yesterday, raising $1.5 million, and then flew to Texas eight hours later.

Clinton was expected to raise $1 million for Democrat Garry Mauro in his longshot bid to unseat Gov. George Bush. There were separate fund-raisers in San Antonio and Houston. "I stand behind him 100 percent," Mauro said.

Hundreds of demonstrators lined an access road to the interstate as Clinton rode into San Antonio. A bedsheet was emblazoned, "Don't Stop Thinking About Resigning." A Lewinsky scarecrow was attached to a fence near the home of Clinton host Frank Herrera. At the airport in San Antonio, Clinton confidant Bruce Lindsey acknowledged the prospect of a negotiated settlement in Paula Jones' sexual harassment lawsuit against the President. He said there was "some willingness to discuss a settlement" but that Clinton was not admitting any misconduct. "Lawsuits are settled all the time," he said.

The Lewinsky case, which emerged from testimony in the Jones' lawsuit, has led to the consideration of impeachment proceedings in the House and has sparked a chorus of calls for Clinton's resignation.

"I think there has been quite a large price to pay," Clinton said in the interview. "That's self-evident" In "the whole airing of it publicly, what we've all been through. ... I think there will be a price each day. To a person who has a conscience, that's the biggest price you pay."

But he said, "Instead of wallowing in regret, I am working at repairing my life and my marriage. My wife is a remarkable woman, and her strength and support are a constant inspiration to me during this painful time."

Clinton said he was staying focused on the business of his presidency. "At the same time I'm diligently working with my family on the healing process. Wallowing in regret is a cop-out." Clinton said the affair has not eroded his relationship with foreign leaders. "Those who have telephoned me with encouragement believe I have done nothing, In my public life, to forfeit their trust, and that In my private life, whether it is good or bad or troubled or happy, is not their business."

■ pow-wow

continued from page 1

"I dance from my heart. The drum beat represents a heart beat. The rhythm flows through me and carries me," he said.

Small tents and tables were scattered across the lawn in a loose semi-circle surrounding the dancing arena. Bert Onondaga was one of many vendors at the event. A member of the Hauddenosaunee Iroquois Artists and Craftsmen, the subject of his artwork is the Native American experience.

"Lots of people don't realize there are Native Americans on the East Coast," he said. "By producing art, I hope to educate people."

Education and curiosity were two of the reasons students cited for attending the event.

Mary Cunnan, a junior double major in English and American Multicultural Studies, was born and raised on a reservation. She attended the Pow-Wow to see how East Coast tribes varied from tribes in California in terms of traditions and dancing. She was pleased with the Pow-Wow but not with the turnout.

"It would have been great to see a lot more students here," she said. "We all need to learn about and be aware of other cultures."

Upcoming native events include a three-day conference sponsored by the Five College Native American Studies Curriculum Committee featuring three Native American Elders, Trudy Lamb Richmond, Muriel Miguel, and Millie Noble. It takes place Oct. 1-3 at Hampshire and Smith colleges. For more information, contact Marge Bruchac at 584-2195.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Amy Gullo helps Ronice Mullins dress for a ceremonial dance at the UMass Pow Wow. Both are members of the Cherokee nation and residents of New York City.

■ renovation

continued from page 1

talk, and now they will not be able to do that."

Thomas explained that the tank was not completed during the summer because of some problems with the bidding of the contractors. "The funding was available, but the problem was getting the bidding complete," Thomas said. "We didn't inform the students mainly because we didn't know when the whole procedure was going to start."

Freshman student Nina Hayes also expressed her distaste with the situation.

"No, I did not know about it," Hayes said. "I would certainly not want it to turn into another chapel situation - we were told that the chapel would be done by now."

The whole renovating and rebuilding process of the outside of the Student Union is expected to be complete by the end of November. Until then, many students will have to deal with the inconvenience at hand.

"People need to be patient and we regret that it had to happen now," Thomas said. "The result will be an improved seating and sunning environment."

Art history on CD-ROM

By Jason Trenkle
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts art history department has designed an interactive CD-ROM whose purpose will be to transport students into the world of a given work of art.

This huge venture has been made possible by a nationwide grant awarded to UMass art history professor Laetitia La Follette by the U.S. Department of Education's Fund for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education. The $250,000 grant will be directed towards creating a program that La Follette says will rewrite the teaching and learning of art history.

"We want to show the range of art history, both inside and outside the western and non-western tradition," La Follette said. "In the 21st century, this electronic resource will take the place of the traditional art history textbook."

The creation of the CD-ROM is a collaborative effort between the UMass art history department and the Five- College community. La Follette hopes its outcome will provide a more educational and cultural experience.

"The program takes the students into the picture and allows them to explore the factors, both artistically and from the artists' perspective themselves, that brought the work of art into being and took the appearance that it did," La Follette said.

The project of creating and designing the program will involve a three-year period in which La Follette and a number of her colleagues in the art history department will develop and test the CD-ROM. Already, students have been actively involved in the pilot programs since 1996.

La Follette commented on the positive feedback that has come forth as a result of the program.

"Students have praised the quality of the images on the screen as being more representative of the work of art compared to a textbook or lecture," La Follette said. "Compared to a personalized chat with the professor, students find it more intimate and something they enjoy."

The program also comes complete with audio, consisting of lectures and mini-series of leading professional experts in the field of art history. This way, La Follette hopes, students will be able to see the subject and also experience some of the history of its existence.

"Both of these icons act as a way to get into the culture and help students understand how the culture constructs images of power," La Follette said.

Every year, the U.S. Department of Education's Fund for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education receives more than 1,600 applications in many fields and help fund only about 80 of these projects with grant money. La Follette feels that receiving such an honor will help transform the way that art history is taught at UMass and nationally.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

About to float away. . .

Three year old Maithri Bandarage of South Hadley enjoys the Apple Festival in Amherst on Saturday afternoon.

TEXTBOOK RECEIPTS=REBATES

GET A 5% REBATE ON THE NEW BOOKS YOU PURCHASE
SAVE YOUR RECEIPTS

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

UNIVERSITY ST

Textbook Annex

AMHERST

University Store • Textbook Annex
SAVE YOUR RECEIPT

Our Refund Policy

If you purchase an incorrect title you may return it for a refund within 7 calendar days of the first day of classes. Thereafter, incorrect titles may be returned within 48 hours of purchase providing the book is new and unmarked.

1. Textbooks from dropped courses may be returned during the month of September. Present your sales receipt and a copy of your updated course schedule obtained from the Registrar. Any new books must be unmarked.

2. Keep your receipt(s). Refunds on textbooks cannot be made unless the sales receipt(s) accompanies the book.

3. Always have your current I.D. available. This is required for any refund transactions.

The return of unsold books to the publisher begins seven weeks after the beginning of the semester. After the seventh week you might not be able to purchase the books you need.

RETURN YOUR TEXTBOOKS WITH YOUR RECEIPT FOR A "NO QUESTIONS ASKED" REFUND THROUGH MONDAY SEPTEMBER 21, 1998.

Beginning TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1998 textbooks from dropped courses may be returned with a sales receipt and an updated course schedule.

The schedule may be obtained from the registrars office in Whitmore. do not wait for them to mail.

New books must be in new condition. No marks, writing, water damage etc.

Any incorrect titles purchased after TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22 must be returned within 48 hours of purchase. Schedule, syllabus or other proof of incorrect purchases must be presented, along with sales receipt.

Remember the last day to return textbooks with no questions asked is MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21.

www.aux.umass.edu/textbookannex

textbook annex

Fall '98 Schedule

We accept cash, personal check, Ucard, Visa, and MasterCard as forms of payment.

We begin to return unsold books to the publishers in the middle of the semester. Students are encouraged to get the books they need for the semester as soon as possible after official enrollment in a course.

buyback

Monday - Friday, 9am-4pm at the Textbook Annex, beginning September 21, 1998

annex rush

Normal Hours

Monday-Friday 9am-4pm

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

A little something for the kids. . .

Kerry Schaefer, a theater and dance major at Amherst college, paints the face of Helen Murphy, a kindergardener, during the Apple festival in Amherst.

Gambler leaves buried treasure

By Tim Dahlberg
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Ted Binion didn't die like the cowboy he was. He was found with his cowboy boots off, draped in a comforter in front of a television set with an empty bottle of prescription drugs beside him. Police, who were called by his girlfriend, a former topless dancer, found heroin paraphernalia in a bathroom. Authorities weren't terribly suspicious. Drugs had already cost him his stake in the family's Horseshoe Club, a downtown Las Vegas landmark started by his Texas gambler-father in the 1940s. But then three men were caught digging up millions of dollars worth of silver coins and bars — so much it overloaded a dump truck — that Binion had taken from the casino and buried smack in the middle of a nearby farm town.

That led Binion's sister, Becky Behnen, who now owns the Horseshoe, to ask police to investigate whether her brother was murdered.

Now authorities are trying to decipher a tale straight out of the Wild West novels the 55-year-old rancher loved to read. At his funeral, a cowboy's tools — boots, spurs and a lariat — were placed on his coffin. An impeached federal judge gave the eulogy and the Doors' song "The End" was played.

"I can truthfully say that Ted Binion was the most unforgettable character I ever knew," said former judge Harry Claiborne, convicted in the 1980s of hiding income from the Internal Revenue Service.

"I hope his death was accidental," said Richard Wright, Binion's longtime friend and attorney. "But there are some suspicious circumstances."

The suspicions started after his girlfriend, Sandy Murphy, found Binion's body on Sept. 17 in the home they had shared for four years. The empty prescription bottle next to him had been filled the day before with 120 tablets of the anxiety drug Xanax. Suspicions grew a night later when Rick Tabish, an ex-felon who buried the silver for Binion, was caught with two other men digging it up in the middle of the night.

Police are curious about the relationship between Murphy and Tabish. His lawyer, Louis Palazzo, says they were only friends. Police are still awaiting toxicological reports on Binion's cause of death, and say they are treating the death as accidental unless they find evidence otherwise.

Ted Binion grew up when Las Vegas was still a small Western town, and his father, Benny Binion, was one of its biggest casino owners. Ted never went to college, but friends describe him as brilliant and well versed in a variety of subjects.

Drugs took over his life, though, and the state suspended his gaming license in the late 1980's. Earlier this year, gaming regulators rebuffed his attempt to regain his license. Besides drugs, there also were questions about a gunman who sprayed bullets at his house and allegations he pointed a shotgun at a man at a local convenience store.

"The Saturday before he died he told me he was back on it [heroin] but he was going to get off of it," said his brother, Jack Binion. "After he lost his license, he had no incentive to stay off the stuff. And it's awful easy to fall off."

New Internet risk traps surfers

Porn industry has new tool that may ensnare unsuspecting users

By Ted Bridis
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Pity the soul who comes across a Web site run by Brett Wright. His pages are like ocean riptides, pulling Internet surfers under and whisking them against their will to resurface elsewhere.

Three of Wright's Web sites use a high-tech, behind-the-scenes method to route visitors automatically to other commercial sites, which pay Wright for such "referrals."

When puzzled surfers try to close those browser windows — for sites they never even intended to visit — other browser windows open automatically. And those can spawn still more browser windows. It can be a nearly endless, frustrating cycle to regain control of the computer.

"You fell into my trap," says Wright, who lives near Atlanta. "It bounces you all over the place, doesn't it?"

Wright's technique is becoming common among sexually oriented sites like the ones he operates, which boast 250,000 visits daily. The online porn industry is renowned for its innovation, first to use the Web's newest tools and techniques — from live video to payment schemes — that months or years later become mainstream for the rest of the Internet.

So will mainstream Web sites hunting bigger audiences and elusive profits soon lure visitors into this loop?

"The whole goal is to move traffic like cattle, which sounds terrible, I know," explains Wright, whose sites use the "window.open" Javascript programming command. "But the easiest way to send traffic somewhere is to not give them the opportunity not to go there."

■ elections

continued from page 1

vendors should be allowed to solicit on campus?

Cook said that although they considered having a question involving the new alcohol policy sanctions, they decided that since the sanctions are already being implemented, they should choose issues that are still in the stages of contemplation.

Both referendum questions are currently being worked on, said Cook.

"The administration is thinking of applying the student code of conduct off campus, but many students feel that they should be considered living under the town of Amherst's law," she said.

She said the credit card referendum question was controversial because, "a lot of older students -- juniors and seniors -- have gotten into problems because of credit card vendors but some people feel they should be allowed here."

Students can vote for today's election at Worcester, Franklin, Hampshire and Berkshire Dining Commons, as well as the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center. The polls will be open between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., and also 4-7 p.m. Absentee ballots will be available at every poll, so students can vote at any location.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Residential beautification

Jenny Frazier, a sophmore education major, helps put up a construction paper tree in Baker Residence Hall on Friday.

We Have
(Exercise Bike Classes)-
Full Schedule

Personal Training
Friendly Atmosphere

Tanning .
Aerobics - Full Schedule .
Cardio Theater

Great Hours
Multi-Level Balconies
New Entrance
Trained Staff

Fruit Smoothies,
Supplements, Health Drinks

Pre Cors, Bikes, Rowers,
Treadmills, Stairclimbers

The area's only

we have IMPROVED!
we have EXPANDED!
we have WHAT YOU WANT!

Tennis & Fitness Center

Why Join and become a BROTHER...

Create History as a Founding Father!

Pi Lambda Phi is north America's first non-sectarian/non discriminatory Fraternity Coming to UMass this Fall!

For Info: Contact Chris @ 6-5816 E-mail: UmassPiLam@aol.com

UmassPiLam@aol.com

Pi Lambda Phi

Faculty, students, staff and alumni are invited to attend a one day symposium

Leadership in a Diverse Community

Friday, October 2, 1998
Campus Center 163, 8:30-3:00 p.m.

Working Groups will address:

- Alumni/undergraduate leadership development connections
- Leadership development for academic heads and chairs
- Incorporating leadership into the classroom
- Undergraduate co-curricular transcripts
- Leadership opportunities and training for classified and professional staff

A panel moderated by Senator Stan Rosenberg will discuss:

- their experiences at UMass that have contributed to or hindered their development as leaders
- important lessons they have learned about leadership
- how leadership was modeled for them
- suggestions for how the Amherst campus might improve the leadership skills of students, staff and faculty

Panelists include staff members, an undergraduate, an alum, and a faculty member

Conference Schedule

8:30 Registration and coffee
9:00 Chancellor's welcome
9:20 Panel discussion
11:00 Table discussions
12:00 Buffet lunch
1:15 Working Groups meet
2:45 Reconvene and report
3:00 Conclusion

Pre-registration is required
Contact the Office of Human Relations
545-0851 or email:
am@admin.umass.edu

Buffet lunch will be provided

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.

A failure as a cool guy

The young ladies were about fourteen at the time. I nearly panicked when I overheard my daughter's friend tell her, "You're lucky. You have a cool dad."

Oh my God! Where have I gone wrong?

The "drinking age" was eighteen when I was "college age." The voting age was lowered in time for the 1972 election. The nation's leaders and university administrators of that time saw no need for a sober electorate.

As for myself, I obtained my partying credentials in Berlin. I lived there during the seventies, and life there was still a cabaret. I was a young man, but I was in a special military unit where distinctions of age tended to be blurred. The Cold War had been going on for so long that most of the folks back home had become complacent. It was still real enough that people were regularly being shot dead trying to leave that workers' paradise on the other side of the Wall.

Berlin was known for its sinister side long before Hitler, Stalin, or Mack the Knife. It can be a lot of fun, but it lacks the spirit and positive energy of Paris or, for that matter, Manhattan.

We used to throw parties for American college girls on summer tours. "J-tours," they were called. We would fill them full of frozen daiquiris and take them around to weird, off-limits doper hangouts where Nick Cave and others of his ilk were performing before an assortment of stupefied Germans, and we'd see to it that they got a decent American breakfast before they left. I am pretty sure nothing occurring on the Frat Rows of the nineties can compete with the bacchanals we staged. I was so self-absorbed that the young women were simply extra players in some imaginary film, The Story of Me, produced and directed by myself for my own amusement.

I was barely twenty-two when I got married, but I had already been to war and had traveled to a few continents. I had also drunk much more than my share and run through dozens of superficial relationships with girlfriends. I never suspected that my

"I had always carried the real venue within. The city seemed less powerful. It was manageable."

Martin Reddy

superficiality was an impediment to my happiness. I confused recklessness with courage and sophistication with maturity.

My perspective changed sometime after I became the father of two girls. When my younger daughter was sixteen her boyfriend dumped her and promptly took up with another girl. That was a scenario all too familiar to me. But my child was hurt. I could feel how deeply she was hurt when she cried on my shoulder and she cried so hard that she was shaking. My fond recollections of what I had regarded as youthful adventures lost their favored place in my store of memories. "Young men are fools," I told her.

The mother of my children was from Berlin. The night I met her is still as clear in my memory as a color photograph. She was wearing a pale yellow dress and she was so beautiful I got goose bumps. I made a mental note to avoid her. I had never felt an attraction so powerful and I was scared to death of her. Fourteen months later we were married and I absolutely adored her.

She was only twenty-six when she died. An elderly lady ran a red light and killed her. I was overwhelmed and wanted to quit.

Still I was haunted by my memories of Berlin. I thought it was because of the good times. I thought it was because I had felt more challenged there than at any other time in my life.

I drank for nearly five years following my wife's death. I milked everybody's sympathy until someone told me, "It's not too soon for you to grow up." That made me angry. Someone else said, "You already are what you're going to be when you grow up." That made an impression. I had always wanted to be a cool guy. As a cool guy, I was a failure.

I went back to Berlin in 1993. The Wall had come down and the city felt different without it. I walked down Friedrichstrasse right through to the other side without having to go through the checkpoint. A wide expanse now existed in the space where steel and concrete barriers had once resolutely guarded against ingress or escape. I retraced my steps along the venues I had long held to be the repositories of my most highly charged memories to find that I had always carried the real venue within. The city seemed less powerful. It was manageable.

I wonder how much trouble I might have been spared if some university administrator had issued an edict that would have put my life in order. Anyway, my children are adults now and, thank God, so am I.

Martin Reddy is a UMass student.

Who's got the power?

I come from the beautiful peninsula of Cape Cod, Massachusetts, where there is an abundance of water, sand, and tourism. As a native of the Cape, people often ask me whether I resent the industry of tourism, that has come to dominate the land. My answer is a resounding "no". The reason is that tourism is the Cape's main economic staple, and the majority of the communities depend on the summer season for their businesses. What I do resent is the growing depletion of good jobs resulting from corporate power's ability to control the businesses where Cape Codders work.

Over the past year I've noticed a new McDonalds, KFC, Burger King, Taco Bell, and Dunkin' Donuts rise up overnight, all within a three-mile radius of my home. This may not sound like a big deal to most Massachusetts residents, but I can't afford to be desensitized to food chains, because they represent a huge shift in job opportunities for Cape Codders.

This thought occurred to me one evening when I went to the brand-new Olive Garden with my sister. We arrived at about 5:30 p.m. and were told that there was a two and a half–hour wait — which didn't surprise us because we had dined there often and were used to the obscene wait — but that night we didn't choose to stay. Instead we went to a local pub/restaurant where we were seated promptly.

" Maybe we have the lowest rate of unemployment in decades, but what kinds of jobs are they?"

Lindsay McCarthy

We didn't have an enjoyable meal. The waitress had too many tables and had to make us wait for our drinks, for our food, for water, and for the check. The table we sat at was too small and we were next to a draft. To make matters worse the food was awful and the check was quite expensive. We discussed how much we wished we could've gotten into the Olive Garden, and how chain restaurants usually have better quality food and service. Then the thought occurred to me that it wasn't a fair situation, and it was hurtful to our economy.

Of course people are going to go to the restaurants that most efficiently serve the best food for the cheapest price, and most aren't going to question why. The answer is simple: those restaurants have immense amounts of funding to make your meal so high quality, while small restaurants don't. All these corporate–owned restaurants popping up receive the most customers because people know what to expect, and they know it will be good. That's fine; there isn't anything intrinsically evil about that since it's just capitalism in motion. However, it is important to look at the bigger picture, not just for Cape Codders but also for the residents of thousands of other towns and cities where this is happening.

Throughout my life, I have seen hundreds of businesses go bankrupt on the Cape. The usual reason is that the industry is too competitive for mom and pop businesses. No one who went to that pub/restaurant that I went to will go there a second time. Instead they are going to choose to wait at the Olive Garden, or a Ruby Tuesday's, or a TGIFriday's, or a Ninety–Nine, or a Ponderosa, etc. The problem is that an unhealthy imbalance of power and wealth arises, and it becomes increasingly difficult for an average person to have her/his own chance to succeed.

I'd like to think that once I graduate from UMass, I will be able to start my own business, perhaps a restaurant. However, even if I could manage to secure a loan, there is a strong likelihood that I would go bankrupt within a year. There would be almost no reason for people to eat at my restaurant, because they would surely receive more "bang for their buck" at some chain. I would be forced to close down my restaurant, and then I'd have to go and work for a chain restaurant, along with a large percentage of the population. Pretty soon, all the restaurants will be chains which are owned by a select few, where many people earn a living.

This is an issue that is magnified on the Cape, but exists everywhere, engulfing many other industries. I believe that it is important for people to recognize that dining at a Denny's restaurant, buying Gap clothing, sleeping at a Comfort Inn, watching a Disney movie or buying a Coke is supporting specific corporations that have an ever–growing amount of power. There is nothing innately wrong with buying or working for these corporations, but it's going to be a sad day when we realize that most people will have no other places to work (with no choice about their paychecks) or items to buy (with no choice about prices).

On the Cape, the number of people forced on the minimum wage bandwagon is growing exponentially, as it is all over the country. Maybe we have the lowest rate of unemployment in decades, but what kinds of jobs are they? What about wages, health insurance, and retirement? What about job security — Is that expression even used seriously anymore?

The American economy is changing and it is important to keep a critical watch over who controls what, and why and how they do so. Otherwise, we may end up completely at the mercy of an elite group that will decide what jobs we have, how much they want to pay us, what we can buy, and how much things cost. As a consumer I urge every single person to realize the ultimate power he or she possesses. We live in a materialistic society where our motto of "the American Dream" is based on our capacity to acquire material wealth. It is in your best interests to understand that buying certain products supports certain companies, and to have an idea of what, or more importantly who, you are supporting. The group that has the most money and power gets to decide the eventual fate of us all.

Lindsay McCarthy is a UMass student.

Red handgrips

In case you missed it, several things happened last week (I know, I know, it's hard to believe). As a result of the Clinton fiasco, Congress did not vote on several key issues that would address many of our country's pressing needs. In Kosovo, exiles prepared for winter without homes. In the Caribbean, hurricane Georges ravished nations, leaving death, homelessness and starving children. And... oh, I nearly forgot, someone got their red handgrips stolen off of their bike outside the Student Union. How do I know? Well, you probably saw it yourself: "TO THE ASSHOLE WHO TOOK THE RED HANDGRIPS OFF MY BIKE AT THE STUDENT UNION LAST WEEK, I WILL GIVE YOU ONE WEEK TO BE NICE AND PUT THEM BACK. WHEN I SEE THEM AROUND CAMPUS I WILL TAKE THEM BACK BY FORCE."

Sadly, this is not a joke. I can see the thief sweating in his bedroom. He (I say "He," because only a guy would actually steal handgrips off a bicycle, and only another guy would threaten to beat him up over it) won't take calls, he won't answer the door, he's just sitting there on his bed, holding on to these dear handgrips that looked too good on someone else's bike to pass up. He had to have them. They match the pedals he stole last month: but now, he's afraid. What if someone saw him? What if the owner of the bike finds out? He's weighing his options. Does he burn them, sell them to a kid, throw them in the river? No, he's tortured with guilt.

Every time he walks into the Student Union he sees the flyer haunting him, calling out his name. He says to himself, "That's me!!! I'm that asshole." So he sets out at night, hoping to find the bike with no handgrips. He looks around slowly, trying not to call attention to himself. A wave of rapturous joy overcomes him as his eyes fall upon a bike with no grips. He calms himself, walks smoothly over, but in the darkness can't tell if it's the same bike. "Ah, it doesn't matter," he says to himself, "I gotta be the only guy who's enough of an asshole to be stealing hand grips." He slides the grips back into their rightful place. He walks away, "I'm free!" But wait, what he doesn't know is that the flyer campaign has sparked a hand grip theft epidemic, and he's placed the grips on the wrong bike. The next day he sees the unassuming bicyclist, who's full of joy because last night someone was kind enough to place nice new shiny red handgrips on his naked bike. Then he sees the bicyclist get beaten up. He mutters to himself something about people living in glass houses...

Hey, don't get me wrong. I don't like theft any more than you do, but as a young adult, and as a human, I must say that this is pathetic. With all the real problems that face people all over our world, I don't sympathize with this flyer writer. I mean, if he had no food to eat, no place to call home, if he had his freedom taken away from him by his government, I could sympathize, and if needed, I'd help. But it's sad when all around us people are working hard to get ahead, to raise families, to get an education, and one of our peers is threatening violence over the loss of what most in this world call luxury.

Fortunately for all of us, this kind of mindset, "you took from me so I'm going to beat you up," is not the rule. Unfortunately, though, it is not the exception. This whole incident is a great analogy for what ails our University, and more so, our country. As people, we must be aware of how we affect others. At the very least, we must avoid dumping a heap of negativity on those around us who already have plenty to deal with, without having to look at our walls covered in profane vigilantism. This type of action is irresponsible. It helps no one.

" Fortunately for all of us, this kind of mindset, 'you took from me so I'm going to beat you up,' is not the rule. Unfortunately, though, it is not the exception."

Daniel Lanigan

For the amount of time it took this person to put up all the flyers, and the amount of time spent on photocopies, as well as the waste of paper, they probably could've gone and bought themselves some new hand grips. But this is not the point. This episode represents two ugly sides of our world. Ideally, we would not have to lock up our bikes. Ideally, we would not have famine or homelessness or starving children either, but they are all an unfortunate part of our reality. This one action, as a result of one other person's action, hampers the efforts of many around us who are trying hard to forge our way into a future where good living is possible for all.

Someone steals; someone else takes it upon himself to make public threats; everyone loses. As a society, we must rise above those that are incapable of understanding what is truly important. We must not let the actions of a few bring us down.

To the flyer writer: I'm sorry that your hand grips got stolen, and I'm sorry that there are people out there that would take from you. But when it happens, there are a lot of ways to deal with it, and I wish you'd picked a better one.

For your sake, and the thief's, I hope you get the damn things back.

Daniel Lanigan is a UMass student.

Attention writers: We need a column for our next point– counterpoint. It will be on whether teenagers who have been convicted of violent crimes should be sentenced to death. We are looking for someone to support this position, since it is an issue in some states.*

Bring your typewritten 500–1000 word piece to the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center basement. If you are bringing a disk, please save it in a "text only" file. Any questions, call Mike or Alexis at 545–1491.

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor-in-Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Heather Lei Guzzetta Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Brian McDermott Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor
Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prester Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmad Marketing Manager
Jaclyn F. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Jacob Buckley-Fortin Webmaster

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Carlin's act crosses lines, delivers

By Laura Forster
Collegian Staff

GEORGE CARLIN
Mullins Center
September 26

What's one difference between Mike Barnicle and me? I'll use George Carlin's jokes and attribute them.

Surprisingly enough, throughout George Carlin's two-hour performance at the Mullins Center Saturday night, he never once made any jokes about Barnicle, the Boston Globe columnist who was fired for making up information and using Carlin's jokes without reference.

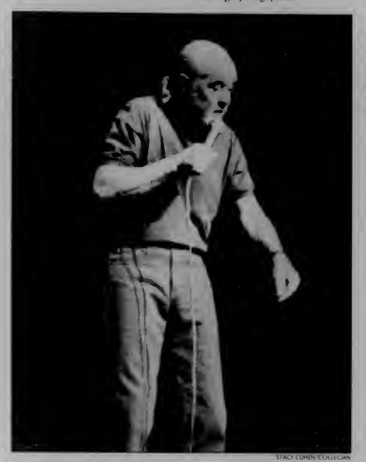
Instead, Carlin, dressed in all black except for his sneakers, talked about everyone and everything from a "brain surgeon with a 'Born to Lose' tattoo on his arm" and the annoyance of airport security, to Bill Clinton and the American public.

Prepping the crowd in his distinctive, cutting satire, Carlin came on stage and began listing "People I Hate" such as "women who buy KY Jelly with a platinum Wal–mart card" and "a funeral director who says, 'hope to see you again soon.'"

Emphasizing his jokes frequently with colorful language, Carlin began by telling the audience to stop cringing since " . . . we know you're all pristine. . . I try to do things realistic. I'm trying to prep you for the real tough [things] later."

And that was just what he did. Checking all political correctness at the door, Carlin attacked everyone, including religious followers. He was met with applause after making a joke about AIDS, adding that people with AIDS laugh, too.

Cruising right along, Carlin began attacking his prime target — the white middle class. In what he called his "part to foster good race relations," Carlin complained that white people can't sing the blues since all they have to sing about is "the Banana Republic ran out of khakis."



Playing on old material and new, Carlin brought the flow of his performance to a halt by explaining he would be reading his new material since he hadn't memorized it yet. He also added a plug for his forthcoming HBO special, "You are all Diseased," marking his 11–year stand up career.

Carlin also called attention to his book, Brain Droppings, which has been on the New York Times best-seller list for 38 weeks, and added, "...so go to the library and steal it."

The impact of Carlin's jokes seemed to diminish at points and his overkill of swearing took away from the punchlines, as opposed to emphasizing their humor as it should have.

However, Carlin's graphic detail and experience with his audience

Turn to CARLIN, page 8

STACY COHEN, COLLEGIAN

Comic satirist George Carlin left no one unscathed at his Mullins Center performance Saturday night.

Hatfield first stop misses the mark

COURTESY ATCO RECORDS

Hot off her latest album Bed, lithe pop rocker Julianna Hatfield hit and missed at her first tour date at Pearl Street.

By Kevin Monahan
Collegian Staff

JULIANA HATFIELD
Pearl St.
Sept. 24

NORTHAMPTON — On the first date of her national tour in support of her new album Bed, pop-rocker Juliana Hatfield got things off to a shaky start Thursday night at Pearl Street. In her first gig in over four months, Hatfield failed to build the necessary rapport with her audience, and her inconsistent performance on stage proved to be doing all the right things in all the wrong places.

Opening up with "You Are the Camera," a song from her latest release, Hatfield looked as if she wanted to be anywhere else but on stage. Things picked up with her second song, "Fleur de Lys" from her 1995 album Only Everything. But "Live on Tomorrow" and "Live it Up" proved to be prime examples of Thursday night's mediocrity.

Hatfield received a small boost from the audience vibe with the hit "My Sister" from 1993's Become What You Are, and "Down on Me,"

Turn to HATFIELD, page 8

Shadow puppeteer displays her magic

By Shay Sullivan
Collegian Correspondent

TAMARA/SHADOW PUPPET THEATRE
Bezanson Recital Hall
September 25

Everybody knows that if you're camping and happen to have a flashlight, you can treat yourself to a variety of entertainment possibilities merely by wiggling a finger. What few people know is that this is actually an ancient Indonesian method for communicating with the spirits called shadow theatre.

Of course, the performance held in the Bezanson Recital Hall over the weekend entailed a little more than lit fingers. A corner of campus was transported via tapestry and music to a far off archipelago in Indonesia, where the only truth came from the mystic lips of the Shadow Master.

The Shadow Master is a guru–like guide who's responsible for channeling the spirits of the upperworld into a set of carefully crafted puppets. Manipulating these puppets is only the first of the performer's tasks. The shadow master must also make voices and punctuate dramatic moments on a drum with a stick stuck between two toes.

Sound tough? It is. So imagine how impressive it is to see the first woman ever to perform the art of shadow theatre outside of Indonesia doing it with a smile.

Tamara burst onto the stage in a whirlwind of energy, eyes ablaze with anticipation. Before the full house even had time to take in the brilliance of her costume, they were being bombarded with the history of shadow theatre.

Not 60 seconds later we learned that Indonesia was a chain of over 13,000 islands, depending on the tide, and that shadow theatre developed as a cultural institution for unifying the many different people there. Since there was no common language, the basic principles are very simple. The screen represents the universe. If a shadow comes from the left side, it's a good character and if it's from the right, it's bad.

After this brief introduction to the history of the show, Tamara presented her puppets with a flourish of pride. She explained that, as a woman, they had been very difficult for her to obtain because each of the 200 puppets was invested with the soul of its maker, as well as a piece

Turn to PUPPETS, page 8

Minuteman VOLKSWAGEN
ASK FOR
Patricia Dolan
SALES REPRESENTATIVE
TEL 781-275-8000
FAX 781-271-1325
www.minutemanvolkswagen.com
39 NORTH ROAD
BEDFORD, MASS 01730

the SUB
Pizza
Subs
Calzones
and more...
Are You Ready For Some Football?
Monday Night Football Pizza Special
Large Cheese Pizza for only $5.25
Free delivery
Offer Valid Mondays only 7pm - 11pm
Sept. 7 - Dec 21
Price does not include 5% Mass meals tax
Hours: 11am - 2am
549-5160
member O.C.M.P.

SORORITY RUSH
Sisterhood ♥ Friendship
Loyalty ♥ Strength
Trust ♥ Guidance
REGISTRATION SHEETS AVAILABLE AT GREEK AFFAIRS
227 WHITMORE
FOR MORE INFO CONTACT DEBBIE
256-3037 OR GREEK AFFAIRS 545-2711

Disney's COMING TO YOUR WORLD
Disney's COLLEGE PROGRAM
WHEN: October 5, 1998
7:00 pm
WHERE: School of Management
Room 120
The Walt Disney College Program is about friends, experiences and opportunities you'll discover as you live, learn and earn in our world.
STOP BY AND DISCOVER A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITIES AT DISNEY.
www.careermosaic.com/cm/wda/wda1.html

Mavi Jeans.
ZAM
downtown Amherst

Fairfield University brings you the WORLD
Semester programs:
Florence, Italy "the cradle of Renaissance civilization" Braxton, England "study in a 16th century abbey.
Short-term Programs:
San Jose, Costa Rica; Hyderabad, India; Jerusalem, Israel; The Netherlands and Germany; St. Petersburg, Russia
Summer '99 in Florence:
•Earn 6 undergraduate credits
•Wide variety of courses
•Complete travel/lodging package
For more information on any of our programs call Christine Bowers, Coordinator for Study Abroad Programs, toll-free (888) 255-1766 or e-mail cbowers@fairfield.edu
Fairfield UNIVERSITY
School of Continuing Education

This Family gets along great

By Jillian Locke
Collegian Correspondent

FAMILY VALUES TOUR
Worcester Centrum Centre
Sept. 23

WORCESTER — The "Family Values Tour" invaded the Worcester Centrum last Wednesday, featuring Orgy, Rammstein, Limp Bizkit, Ice Cube, and headliner Korn. The multi-bill concert shook the sold-out Centrum, leaving in its path a trail of sweaty, mangled, yet somehow satisfied fans.

Limp Bizkit had taken the stage by the time I had taken my seat, and, as always, they put on an insane show. Their stage design consisted of a huge, cartoon-like spaceship. About midway through their set they left stage, only to give it up to three breakdancers who came out of the spaceship. After the dancers were done, Limp Bizkit finished up their set with a cover of George Michael's "Faith."

Next to take the stage was Ice Cube, joined by W.C. (West Side Connection). Songs included were "Check Yourself," "It Was a Good Day" and their rendition of "Wicked." The highlight of the performance (as choosy as it was) was when Ice Cube pretended to be shot. A group of hooded men carried him off-stage, only for him to reappear in a wheelchair.

Rammstein took the cake for special effects. As the red and white-striped circus tent was removed, all that was discernable was a figure engulfed in flames. Lead singer Till Lendemann, seemingly floating, wore a long black jacket lit on fire. Rammstein's set was eerie, heavy and repetitive. Finally, when the last flames from the blow torch had gone out, Korn busted on stage.

Opening with "Got the Life," the energy of Korn's performance never let up, and neither did the energy of the crowd. Other songs performed included "Twist," "Clown," "Shouts and Ladders" and the ultimate crowd pleaser, "A.D.I.D.A.S." Ice Cube joined them for "Children of the Korn," and the show ended with a performance from Limp Bizkit and Korn doing "All in the Family," featuring a circular, rotating stage for the combined performance.

The show lived up to its expectations. It was a raging show with a unique lineup. This is one music combination that actually worked out.

■ puppets

continued from page 5

of their hair. Knowing that she intended to perform with them, the puppet-makers feared the wrath of the spirits. Luckily for them, Tamara is wonderful.

The show itself, while seemingly childlike to some, was just enough of a display to give the adult audience a feel for the method and power of shadow making. For a better visual, just picture Pinocchio on LSD.

Tamara warned that in Indonesia, one of these shows would last through the night until dawn, but to the relief of many, she quickly added that her presentation would be a little over an hour.

While I wouldn't worry about our local cinema being converted into a shadow theatre, Tamara's technique was interesting and wholly entertaining.

■ Hatfield

continued from page 5

The first track from Bed, which carried with it all the high-energy fun that is present on the album version, "Sneaking Around," also from Bed, seemed tired and dull, whereas "Spin the Bottle," off Become What You Are, sounded like a better song than the cheesy, radio hit original. "Sellout" and "Get Off" did not have very much going for them, but "My Darling" presented a rare sort of energy that had not been displayed all night. "My Darling," which Hatfield prefaced by telling the audience that it was written in a San Francisco hotel room, was where Hatfield was at her peak, unfortunately by that point the show was almost over.

Hatfield returned for an encore, during which she looked and sounded like a chipmunk on speed, before closing with "Dumb Fun."

Hatfield was quite rusty after not touring for a while, and it showed. Hopefully, she will be at the top of her form for her next visit to Northampton.

■ Carlin

continued from page 5

was evident at one point when a lull came over the crowd as he went into detail about everything from lip crud to picking a scab, in his section on the body, "Us". Carlin quickly picked everyone up again by saying, "I seemed to have gone too far."

It didn't seem too far for the audience, though, when he poked fun at the American public and their desire for honest politicians. .

Easing through each section of his skit with a bow and leg lift, Carlin made the audience relax and enjoy the ride, ending with a classic Carlin line that you just had to be there for. It is easy to see why Mike was such a fan.

Mac hits Numbers 69 & 70

By R.B. Fallstrom
Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Mark McGwire ended his record-smashing season as mightily as he started it.

McGwire hit his 69th and 70th homers on the season's last day, a fitting finale for a year he began with a grand slam on opening day.

"This is a season I will never, ever forget, and I hope nobody in baseball ever forgets it," McGwire told the cheering crowd after the game.

Big Mac, who hit five homers on the final weekend, connected against Montreal rookie Mike Thurman in the third inning Sunday, then homered off Carl Pavano for No. 70 in the seventh. McGwire moved four ahead of Sammy Sosa and ended nine — nine! — in front of Roger Maris' old record.

Big Mac hit a 1-1 fastball 377 feet into the left-field seats at 2:10 p.m. CDT for number 69. After stomping on home plate, he took a few slow steps, then made several salutes to the crowd.

The usual sellout crowd that had stood well before his at-bat demanded and got not one, but two curtain calls.

Kerry Woodson, a 22-year-old body shop worker from Maryland Heights, Mo., wound up with the ball and said he didn't know what he would do with it.

"I reached up, closed my eyes, and it landed in my glove," Woodson said. "It's a dream come true. I hope he doesn't hit any more today."

He didn't get his wish.

With two on and two outs in the seventh and the score 3-all, he connected off Pavano (6-9), lining a first-pitch fastball 370 feet over the left-field wall at 3:19 p.m., sending the Cardinals on to a 6-3 win over the Expos.

This time, even a curtain call from McGwire didn't quiet the 46,110 fans, who remained on their feet, cheering even as Brian Jordan took a called third strike for the third out of the inning. The second home run ball landed in a party box and was snared by Phil Ozerski of Olivette, Mo., attending the game with a group of Washington University research lab scientists.

McGwire, who has ten multi-homer games this year and 53 in his career, hit a go-ahead homer for the 24th time this season. He opened the year with a slam on March 31 against the Dodgers' Ramon Martinez, then led the home run race all season except when Sosa twice passed him briefly — and then for only 103 minutes in all.

Sosa led for 58 minutes on Aug. 19 before McGwire regained the lead with his 48th and 49th homers in the same game at Chicago. Sosa led for 45 minutes on Friday when he hit his 66th before McGwire answered.

Sunday was the Cardinals' final game of the season. Sosa's Cubs, who played at Houston, did not know if their regular season would end or if there would be a playoff game for the NL wild-card spot. Before connecting Friday, McGwire had been homer-less in 14 at-bats.

Across town, the homer cost the Rams a 5-yard penalty. A huge cheer spread through the Trans World Dome late in the third quarter as the Rams faced a third down just inside Arizona territory. The sudden uproar seemed to disrupt the play calling, leading to an illegal motion penalty.

McGwire drew his NL record 162nd walk, tying Ted Williams (1947 and 1949) for the second-highest total in major-league history, on a pitch that nearly beaned him in the fifth. Thurman threw the last three balls way inside and was booed vociferously after ball four. McGwire has 180 homers the last three seasons. In 206 career games with the Cardinals, he has 94 homers, 189 RBIs and 205 walks. At Busch Stadium, he has 51 homers and 102 RBIs in 106 games. The distances of his homers is 29,598 feet, nearly 400 feet higher than the peak of Mount Everest. It's also 5.6 miles of homers.

Sox's win regular season Finale 6–4 over Orioles

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

BOSTON — Mo Vaughn drove in two runs with his 40th homer and a single but failed to overtake Bernie Williams for the AL batting title in the Boston Red Sox 6-4 win over the Baltimore Orioles on Sunday.

Vaughn, who leads the Red Sox into the playoffs Tuesday in Cleveland, began the final day of the regular season batting .336, less than one point behind Williams, and went 2-for-4 to finish at a career-high .337.

In New York, Williams finished at .339 after going 2-for-2 with a sacrifice fly. He was removed for a pinch hitter in the Yankees' 8-3 victory over Tampa Bay.

Vaughn grounded out to first baseman Rafael Palmeiro in the first inning, gave Boston a 3-0 lead with a leadoff homer in the third, singled sharply off Palmeiro's glove in the fifth and struck out with a hard swing against Arthur Rhodes in the seventh. He was replaced at first base in the bottom of the inning by Mike Stanley. Vaughn matched his career-high, 16-game hitting streak. The Red Sox, who clinched the AL wild-card berth last Thursday, begin their first postseason series since 1995 with Pedro Martinez (19-7) going against the Indians' Jaret Wright (12-10).

Cal Ripken, who ended his major-league record streak of 2,632 consecutive games a week earlier, started his seventh in a row for the Orioles. He struck out in the first — ending the season at .271 — and was replaced at third base in the bottom of the second by Ryan Minor.

Boston (92-70) finished with its best record since 1986 when it was 95-66 and lost a seven-game World Series to the New York Mets. They won five of its last six games.

Baltimore (79-83) was 16-46 in its last 62 games after going 22-5 in its first 27 games after the All-Star break. It lost seven of its last eight games.

Carlos Valdez (1-0) got the victory. Tom Gordon got his 46th save with his major-league record 4.5rd in a row despite giving up an RBI single to Lyle Mouton in the ninth. Mouton drove in all four runs for the Orioles.

The Red Sox took a 3-0 lead with one run in each of the first three innings.

Darren Lewis led off the first with a single, moved up on two groundouts and scored on Nomar Garciaparra's single, his ninth RBI in four games. Consecutive doubles in the second by Troy O'Leary and Darren Bragg made it 2-0.

Vaughn, who hit 44 homers in 1996, then homered for a 3-0 lead, becoming only the third Red Sox player with two or more seasons of at least 40 homers. The others are Jimmie Foxx and Carl Yastrzemski.

TRAVEL SMART!
BEST PRICES FROM BOSTON TO EUROPE, WITHIN THE U.S., AND DESTINATIONS AROUND THE WORLD
CALL 800-272-9676
E-MAIL sales@prismtours.com
OR VISIT US AT www.prismtours.com
Eurailpasses and Student ID cards available.
PRISM TRAVEL
545 Fifth Avenue
New York, NY 10017

<A HREF= COLLEGIAN_ARTS>
The perfect code for your all your arts needs

SYRACUSE STUDY ABROAD
Zimbabwe • England • Italy
Hong Kong • Spain • France
• Wide-ranging courses
• Internships & service-learning
• Business programs in 3 countries
• Organized study-travel
• Grants, scholarships, loans
• Placement in foreign universities
Syracuse University 119 Euclid Avenue Syracuse, NY 13244
800-235-3472 suabroad@syr.edu http://sumweb.syr.edu/dipa

Visions in Action
Volunteers in International Development
Africa or Mexico
Human rights, health, refugee relief, environment, community development, journalism, microenterprise, & more.
202-625-7403 • Visions@igc.org
www.visionsinaction.org

SHOPPING FOR PRICE?
YANKEE
- DISCOUNT OIL -
NORTHHAMPTON / HOLYOKE
584-4112 • 535-1888
• SAME DAY DELIVERY •

amc
Hampshire 6 - 584-7550 Hampshire Mall
Mt. Farms 4 - 584-9153 Mt. Farms Mall
RUSH HOUR (PG-13) Today (5:40 @ $2.50) 8:30
URBAN LEGEND (R) Today (5:50 @ $2.50) 8:20
RONIN (R) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:20
ROUNDERS (R) Today (5:20 @ $2.50) 8:10
SLUMS OF BEVERLY HILLS (R) Today (5:50 @ $2.50)8:40
THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT MARY (R) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:20
EVER AFTER: A CINDERELLA STORY (PG-13) Today (5:30 @ $2.50) 8:30
SIMON BIRCH (PG) Today (5:40 @ $2.50) 8:40
ONE TRUE THING (R) Today (5:20 @ $2.50) 8:30
SAVING PRIVATE RYAN (R) Today (5:00 @ $2.50) 8:20
Special Engagement, no Passes or Coupons
$2.50 (1st-Life) Show Daily

EAST HEAVEN HOT TUBS
Best Place for a Hot Tub
$7.00 OFF
SUNDAYS-THURSDAYS
EXCLUDED 10/11 & 10/12 • VALID UNTIL OCTOBER 29, 1998
413-586-6843 • 33 WEST ST. • NORTHAMPTON

Now Open....The Area's Best Fitness & Health Club
UltimateFitness
THE HEALTH AND FITNESS CENTER
Featuring the latest in Fitness Training & Equipment
"Everything You Need in a Gym and More!"
• Certified Personal Trainers
• Fitness Testing & Programming
• Nutritional Consultation
• Tanning
• Sauna
• Juice Bar & Supplements
• Full Aerobics Programs including:
-Cardio Kickboxing
-Sports Step
-Boot Camp
-and many more
Located in the Campus Plaza next to Liquors 44. For more information call 253-7571
Cardiovascular Equipment
• Stairmasters
• Precor Treadmills
• Lifecycle Recumbent Bikes
• Lifecycle Upright Bikes
• Precor Crosstrainers
State-of-the-Art Strength Training Equipment
• Bodymasters & Icarian Free Weights
• Cybex Circuit Training Equipment

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
we do not use "MSG"
• MALAYAN & SZECHUAN CUISINE
• HOUSE SPECIALTIES
• FRESH ORGANIC BROWN VEGETABLES FROM OUR OWN FARM
• EAT IN OR TAKE OUT
• FULL LIQUOR LICENSE
• OPEN 7 DAYS
253-7835 or 253-2813
63 Main Street, Amherst

DESIGN SUPPLY
ART STUDIO SUPPLIES
AT THE TOWN COMMON
65 SO. PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MA 01002
FREE DISCOUNT CARD WITH THIS COUPON
EXPIRES: 10/15/98
413-253-5592

Israel Night
Experience the culinary delicacies of Israel and be transported to the Golan, the warm Mediterranean, and historic Jerusalem.
Come and enjoy falafel, humus, baba ganoush, pita, Israeli salad, lots of olives, the works.
All this is FREE if you are on any UMass Meal Plan.
$8.00 if not on a Meal Plan ($5 with Hillel Activity Card)

■ volleyball

continued from page 10

remember what it feels like to win so that we can keep winning," Hogancamp said.

Duquesne hung tough, despite losing a heartbreaker in game one and jumped out to a 4–0 lead against UMass in game two, but UMass quickly regained their composure and fought their way back into the game. They battled Duquesne until they finally overtook the lead at 12–11 and never looked back, winning game two 15–11.

"We did the little things against Duquesne. We touched balls at the net that we were able to defend, we made good adjustments, and we didn't crumble when it got tough," Kenny said.

After two heartbreaking losses in the two previous games, the Dukes had been taken out of the match and their game plan by UMass. Therefore, the Minutewomen just had to shut the door on Duquesne, and they did emphatically. UMass rattled off 10 straight winners to take the game 15–4.

In the winning effort for UMass, some players came up huge. Hogancamp tallied yet one more double–double as she buried 20 kills and 16 digs to add to her conference leading total. "Hogie" also provided the spectators with another incredible attack performance, as she terminated more than half of her attempts and posted another .500 attack percentage.

"It was good to see us keep our composure, and it was good to see us keep the pressure on them," Hogancamp said.

Meyers was again outstanding as well, as she recorded 16 kills and five digs. Freshman Janeen DeMarte also contributed off the bench for UMass with four kills and seven digs.

"Janeen played well. She didn't overpower people but she kept the ball in play. She played well defensively and served well. Hopefully she can gain some confidence from this. Every minute she plays will help her gain experience, and she really contributed for us," Kenny said.

Middle blocker Rebecca Hasson chipped in with eight kills and 10 digs.

"Both Rebecca and Jill touched balls tonight which allows us to defend, and that is our strong point: defense. If this team stops worrying about their offense and plays defense we can play with anybody; we just need to think defense to create offense," Kenny said.

Last but certainly not least freshman Heather Holtsberg came through with 54 assists (96 in the two days) and 10 digs.

Massachusetts women's soccer trip to CU begins with a loss

By Michael Kobylanski
Collegian Staff

BOULDER, CO — There were no Rocky Mountain highs for the Massachusetts women's soccer team in its 4–0 loss to Colorado Friday afternoon at Pleasant View Soccer Complex.

The Minutewomen struggled to generate offensive opportunities against the determined Colorado defense, and were once again victimized by early goals, allowing two in the opening 21 minutes of the contest.

"At times, I thought we outplayed them. I didn't feel that they dominated us at any point during the first half," UMass women's soccer coach Jim Rudy said. "We had some great opportunities to get to the goal more often, but we made too many unforced errors in the center of the field."

COURTESY MEDIA SERVICES
Cindy Garceau

COURTESY MEDIA SERVICES
Angie Napoli

According to Colorado Coach Austin Daniels; "That was a nice performance by my team. We played a full game from start to finish and didn't relax once we got the lead."

The Buffaloes took a quick 1–0 lead less than six minutes into the game. CU forward Heather Zonker blasted a shot into the bottom left corner of the net to put the hosts ahead.

CU increased their lead to two goals about fifteen minutes later, on what was pretty much a carbon copy of the first goal. Melissa Cartmell made a move from the right flank into the center of the field before firing a shot past UMass keeper Angie Napoli into the bottom left corner.

The Minutewomen had their best scoring opportunity a few minutes after CU's second goal, but Cindy Garceau's shot was tipped over the net by CU keeper Sloane Cox.

UMass (2–6) remained in the game until midway through the second half. After a harmless cross was sent into the box, Napoli and two other minutewomen defenders sat back expecting someone else to clear the ball. No one did, and Cartmell was right on the doorstep for her second tally of the day.

The Buffaloes finally put the nail in the UMass' coffin in the 70th minute. CU forward Suzy Kiefer lobbed one over Napoli for a 4–0 lead and sealed up her squad's second win of the year.

"We had a good collective effort. We were able to get numbers in our attack, but also got people back when we needed to," Daniels said. "Everyone picked up their level of play, and that's what we needed today."

Said Rudy: "He (Daniels) had them (Colorado) pumped up. They played well defensively even thought they gave up so many free kicks that could've created some problems for them."

UMass defeated Texas 4–1 yesterday in the second game of the weekend couplet. Pick up a copy of tomorrow's Collegian for a wrap–up of that contest.

Minutewomen

Notes:

Senior Sophie Lecot netted a hat trick in the 4–1 win over Texas, boosting her season totals to seven goals and four assists, which give her a team leading 18 points.

Kara Green also netted a goal along with an assist for UMass, upping her season totals to five goals and one assist.

With the win over the Texas Longhorns UMass coach Jim Rudy is one win away from reaching the 150–win plateau at UMass. Rudy is the Minutewomen's all time win ningest coach.

BRIAN MCDERMOTT / COLLEGIAN
The Massachusetts women's soccer team earned a split in out of conference action this weekend in Boulder, Colo.

Sports is good, like milk.
Amherst Barbers
The Right Place to Be!
Tel. 253-1722
5 Barbers Every day
40 Main St. Amherst, MA (Next to Newbury Comics)
Guys & Gals • Razor Cuts • Fades
• Clipper Cuts • Kids Cuts • Layer Cuts
$9 & up, Hrs: Mon.-Fri. 8-5:15 p.m. • Sat. 8-2:45
Servicing the Amherst/Belchertown Area

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
$139
★Student Special★
4 months
Best Aerobics–Best Machines
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS
• CYBEX • STAIRMASTERS •
LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • V.R.
BIKE • LIFEROWER • GRAVITON
AMHERST Athletic Club Rte. 116 St. Amherst 256-0080

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING COURSE
50% Off!!
Of Basic Program with valid college Student I.D.
Free Info Session
Wednesday, Oct. 14th
7:00 pm
Lord Jeffrey Inn, Amherst
Now Accepting Visa, M/C, AMEX & Discover
1-800-U-CAN-MIX
Act Now! Space is Limited!

Wanted Advertisers
sell your:
car
computer
furniture
motorcycle
used books
rent your room need a roommate
Collegian Classifieds
"they work"

NOT HAPPY WITH OUR DECISION TO ELIMINATE THE CROSSWORD PUZZLE FROM THE PAPER? TRY OUR NEW E-MAIL ADDRESS OUT AND VOICE YOUR OPINION. *
letters
letters@oitunix.oit.umass.edu
JUST KIDDING

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

AUTO FOR SALE

89 Chevy Corsica Black. 5 speed. 103K miles. Must sell fast. $950 or B/O. Phone 253-8918.

84 Monte Carlo Great shape. Runs, drives perfect. 99K. $1475. Call 259-1915.

89 Mazda 323 5 speed, sunroof. $800. 85 Maxima fully loaded. 94 Honda Civic EX fully loaded, 5 speed. 86 Jetta fully loaded, leather interior. $900. Chris (413)781-9148.

88 Honda Accord LXI Auto, air, cruise control. New transmission. $2600. 546-4259.

87 Ford Mustang GT V8 Great fun, car winter stored, impeccable condition, performance extras, only 80K miles. Call 549-6045

CARS $100-$500
Police Impounds.
Hondas, Chevys, Jeeps, & Sport Utilities.
MUST SELL!
1-800-522-2730 x4554

WANTED: Toyotas, Novas, Prizms, Sentras. Any condition. Cash paid everyday. 1-800-649-4795.

CHILDCARE

Responsible babysitter needed for 1 year old. Must have references. Monday Wednesday, 10-12. Call Michele 256-8632.

COMPUTERS

STUDENT PC SPECIALS
Great Internet/Work Processor Systems!
486DX4/100 Mid Tower Systems
24mbRam, 1.7gbHDD, 20XCDROM,
16BitSound & Speakers, Win95
$398 each Plus $70 for bundled 14" monitor.
Validata Computers, Rt. 9, Hadley
(413)586-7405

486 Computer
Great For Student Works Good
$100.
Color VGA $50
(413)584-8857

EMPLOYMENT

Put up posters in town and on campus. $6/hr+. Must be incredibly responsible. Interviews on Sunday, 10/4. Jamie 259-1227.

Interns Needed in North Amherst. Earn credits while working with learning disabled students- a rewarding and challenging internship. Call Ted at the T.A.L.P. III program, 549-2822.

Counter Help and Delivery Persons wanted. Apply at D.P. Dough, Amherst.

Gymnastics Instructor
Greenfield YMCA is seeking experienced instructors for afternoon, evening, and weekend classes. Apply at Greenfield YMCA, 451 Main St., Greenfield, MA 01301 413-773-3646. Cindy Mansur.

Spring Break '99- Sell Trips, Earn Cash & Go Free!!! STS is now hiring campus reps. Lowest rates to Jamaica, Mexico & Florida. Call 800-648-4849 or apply online at www.ststravel.com.

Teacher needed to home-school 9th grade student. Flexible schedule Please call 413-562-9701 after 6:00pm or email jng@aol.com.

PART TIME- 10 hrs/wk. Flexible schedule. Assist arts organization directors. Computer skills required. Amherst location. 413-549-0299 or 413-548-8006.

Dunkin Donuts
Now Hiring
Apply In Person
Morning Shifts
Rt. 9, Hadley

ABSOLUTE SPRING BREAK..."TAKE 2"
2 FREE TRIPS ON ONLY 15 SALES and... Earn $$$$. Jamaica, Cancun, Bahamas, Florida, Padre! Lowest prices! Free Meals, Parties & Drinks. Limited Offer 1-800-426-7710/www.sunsplash-tours.com

EMPLOYMENT

Rao's Coffee is hiring full or part-time. 20 hours/week minimum. Food experience preferred. Apply in person only.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free Delivery. 253-9742.

FOR SALE

Soloflex Weight Machine $250. 256-1071.

Mongoose Mountain Bike '95 Great shape. Lots of upgrades! w/ helmet and Krypto lock. $250. 549-5979.

Brother Word Processor for sale. Best Offer. Call Steve or Jeremy at 253-4621.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

We're here to pump...
YOU UP! Creatine Monohydrate, Creatine Surge, DHEA, Whey Protein and more from Fitness Workshop delivered right to your door. 1-877-FIT-WORK. www.fitnessworkshop.com

INSTRUCTION

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING COURSE
50% student discount.
Near campus.
Classes filling soon.
Space is limited, call...
1-800-U-CAN-MIX.

Boxing Lessons in Springfield. 8 one-on-one sessions for $159.95. Call to set up appt. 413-732-8817.

Kickboxing Lessons
Develop fighting skills while getting into great shape. Call Joe 548-8979.

LOST & FOUND

Lost- Green Nike backpack from Textbook Annex on 9/24 Contains book, notebook, folders, camera, walkman. Firestone patch pinned on. Please call Dave 6-6372.

$20 reward for returned keys: car keys, dorm keys, and plastic keyless entry unit attached to Addidas keychain. Please contact Wes at 546-2877.

LOST & FOUND

Lost: Gold hoop earring with great sentimental value. Reward. Call Mary 546-5873.

Lost: Gold ring with initials on it. Great sentimental value. If found, please call Bonnie or Cheryl at 253-6476.

Notebook and CD's found on North Pleasant St., Monday night, 9/21. Call Jaimie to identify. 549-8548.

Grandmother's Silver Engagement Ring Lost on 9/10 around Totman and Sylvan parking area. Great sentimental value. Please return. Reward. 665-7630.

MOTORCYCLES

Kawasaki EX 250 Ninja 1994 4500 miles. Excellent condition. $2000 or B/O. 585-0052.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION

Piano Lessons
Experienced Berklee Grad has Fall openings. On bus line. Classics, Contemporary, Improvisational. Very versatile. Cheryl 549-8580.

ROOM FOR RENT

Looking for non-smoking grad. Lesbian-friendly household. Farm house, 8 miles from Amherst. Cats, artsy, and independent. $325+ Allison 259-1991 or Jamie 259-1227.

In Amherst Quiet setting, kitchen privileges, laundry, parking, non-smoking, $350 inclusive. 549-4853.

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and assistance. 549-1906

LOST & FOUND

Keg Systems New installations, parts. C02 filled. Call Bryan 586-2452.

TRAVEL

SPRING BREAK 99!
Cancun * Nassau * Jamaica * Mazatlan * Acapulco * Bahamas Cruise * Florida * South Padre
Travel Free and make lots of Cash!
Top reps are offered full-time staff jobs.
Lowest Price Guaranteed.
Call now for details!
www.classtravel.com
800-838-6411
930 Comm Ave South.
On BU's West Campus.

The Classifieds wants your Ads.

Call us at 545-3500 or Visit us in The Campus Center Basement

I ONCE WAS LOST BUT NOW I'M FOUND

...and it's all thanks to The Classifieds

Five College Community Calendar

MONDAY, SEP. 28

Meeting — There will be an informational meeting for the 1999 UMass Program in Siena, Italy at 7 p.m. in room 301 of Herter Hall.

TUESDAY, SEP. 29

Services — There will be Yom Kippur evening services at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom for Liberal/Egalitarian services, and at 7 p.m. in the Hillel House for Traditional services.

WEDNESDAY, SEP. 30

Panel Discussion — Alpha Upsilon Alpha Fraternity will be conducting a panel discussion on racism at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. An audience discussion will follow.

NOTICES

Auditions — The UMass Theatre Guild is currently accepting applications for artistic team for the Fall production of You Can't Take It With You. Call 545-0415 or stop by the office at 423A of the Student Union.

Volunteer — The Crisis Center is currently seeking volunteers for their crisis prevention hotline. Hours are flexible. Contact Gina at (508) 849-5600 ext. 201 for more details.

Volunteer — The Resource/Referral program of Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers and interns for its Frontline and Resource/Referral staffs and to work on special projects. Call 545-0883 for more details.

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

CALCULATORS FOR LESS!
FOR YOUR TOUGHEST NUMBER-CRUNCHING CLASSES. THAN YOU'D PAY ELSEWHERE.

Computers & E.T.C. Electronic Technology Center
Conveniently located in the Campus Store
M-F 9 to 5
Sat. 11 to 4
413-545-2619

HSCN Housing Services Cable Network

2 HSCN Bulletin Board	16 The Learning Channel
3 CBS/3 Hartford	19 UVC-TV19
5 CBS/4 Boston	20 ABC/40 Springfield
6 ABC/5 Boston	21 Gravel to Gavel
7 PBS/57 Springfield	22 NBC/22 Springfield
8 HSCN Movie Ch.	23 Sundance
9 UPN/20 Hartford	24 Bloomberg Financial
10 Weather Channel	25 CTN
11 NBC/30 New Britain	27 TBS
11 Fox/61 Hartford	28 BET
12 PBS/24 Hartford	29 TV Land
13 WOCH & HSCN	30 Univision
14 International	31 Comedy Central
15 UMass Academic TV	32 Cartoon
16 WB/New Haven	33 Much Music
17 HSCN Programming

MONDAY EVENING — C - Campus — SEPTEMBER 28, 1998

	C	6:00	6:30	7:00	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30	11:00	11:30
WEDH	2	(12) Wishbone (R)	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (R)		Antiques Roadshow (In Stereo)		Metropolitan Opera Presents "Samson et Dalila" (Season Premiere) (In Stereo)
WFSB	3	3 News (R)	CBS News	Inside Edition	Hollywood Sq.	Cosby (R)	King	Raymond	Brian Benben	L.A. Doctors "Under the Radar"	News (R)		Late Show (R)
WBZ	4	4 News	CBS News	Hollywood Sq.	Ent. Tonight	Cosby (R)	King	Raymond	Brian Benben	L.A. Doctors "Under the Radar"	News		Late Show (R)
WGVB	5	(5) News (R)	ABC News	Inside Edition	Chronicle (R)	NFL Football Tampa Bay Buccaneers at Detroit Lions. (In Stereo Live) (R)							News (R)
WLVI	6	Sister, Sister	Fresh Prince	Nanny (R)	Friends (R)	7th Heaven "Drunk Like Me" (R)		Hyperion Bay (In Stereo) (R)		News		Friends (R)	Nanny (R)
WHDH	7	News	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy! (R)	Sudden-Susan	Conrad Bloom	Caroline	Will & Grace	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)	News		Tonight Show
WTXX	8	Married...With	Home Imp.	Judge Judy (R)	Judge Judy (R)	In the House	Malcolm-Edda	In the House	Malcolm-Edda	News	Newsradio (R)	Newsradio (R)	LARD
WVIT	9	News	NBC News	Ent. Tonight	Hard Copy (R)	Sudden-Susan	Conrad Bloom	Caroline	Will & Grace	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)	News		Tonight Show
WTIC	61	Simpsons (R)	Friends (R)	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	Melrose Place "Dr. Jealousy" (R)		Ally McBeal "Fools Night Out"		News		Friends (R)	Mad Abt You
WWLP	22	News (R)	NBC News	Wheel-Fortune	Jeopardy! (R)	Sudden-Susan	Conrad Bloom	Caroline	Will & Grace	Dateline (In Stereo) (R)	News (R)		Tonight Show
WGBY	57	Creaturas	Business Rpt.	Newshour With Jim Lehrer (R)		Metropolitan Opera Presents "Samson et Dalila" (Season Premiere) (In Stereo)					Charlie Rose (In Stereo) (R)
WGGB	40	News (R)	ABC News	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	NFL Football Tampa Bay Buccaneers at Detroit Lions. (In Stereo Live) (R)							News (R)
WSBK	38	Judge Judy (R)	Judge Judy (R)	Seinfeld (R)	Frasier (R)	In the House	Malcolm-Edda	In the House	Malcolm-Edda	News	Mad Abt. You	Frasier (R)	Cheers (R)
WTBS	42	Mama's Family	Mama's Family	Roseanne (R)	Roseanne (R)	"Cahill, United States Marshal" (1973, Western) John Wayne, Gary Grimes					"The War Wagon" (1967) John Wayne
A&E	45	Northern Exposure (R)		Law & Order "Working Mom" (R)		Biography. Gene Hackman		Investigative Reports (R)			Law & Order "Charm City" (R)
CNN	50	23 Worldview (R)	Moneyline Newshour (R)		Crossfire (R)	World Today (R)		Larry King Live (R)		Newsstand: Time (R) (R)		Sports (R)	Moneyline (R)
COM	55	36 I Night Stand	Make-Laugh	Daily Show (R)	Stein's Money	"Johnny Be Good" (1988, Comedy) Anthony Michael Hall				Dr. Katz Pro. (R)	Bob-Margaret	Daily Show	Stein's Money
DISC	63	New House	First Line	Gimme Shelter		Wild Discovery: Snakes		Crime Safe		Top Secret (R) (Part 1 of 3)		Justice Files	On the Inside
ESPN	51	Sportscenter	Monday Night Countdown			Figure Skating. Skater's Salute to Hollywood (R)				Dance National Championship		Baseball	Sportscenter
LIFE	52	Ellen (R)	Ellen (R)	Party of Five "The Wedding" (R)		Chicago Hope "Stand" (R)		"Woman With a Past" (1992, Drama) Pamela Reed				New Attitudes	Golden Girls
MTV	53	(5:30) Jams Countdown	Fanatic (R)	Fanatic (R)	Beavis-Butt	Eye Spy Video	Say What?	Total Request Live (In Stereo)		Road Rules	Daria (R)	Fanatic (R)	Loveline (R)
NICK	56	Figure It Out	Tiny Toon	Doug (R)	Rugrats (R)	Hey Arnold! (R)	Allen Strange	Brady Bunch	Wonder Years	Happy Days	Laverne	I Love Lucy (R)	Bewitched
SCIFI	59	Quantum Leap (In Stereo) (R)		Sightings (R)	Star Trek "Court-Martial" (R)			Sliders (R) (In Stereo) (R)		Welcome to Paradox (R) (R)		Sightings (R)	Star Trek (R)
TLC	46	26 Home Again	Home Again	Code 3 "Whirlwater Terror"		Eye of the Storm		Eye of the Storm		Fire – The Nature of the Beast		Eye of the Storm (R)
TNT	60	Babylon 5 (In Stereo) (R)		ER "The Birthday Party" (R)		WCW Monday Nitro (In Stereo Live) (R)						Babylon 5 (R) (In Stereo) (R)
USA	62	Hercules: Legendary Jrnys.	Xena: Warrior Princess (R)			Walker, Texas Ranger (R)		WWF Raw (In Stereo) (R)			WWF War Zone (In Stereo) (R)	New York Undercover (R)
HBO	65	(5:00) ★★½ "Footloose" (1984)	★½ "To Live And Die In L.A." (1985)			★★★ "Tin Cup" (1996, Comedy) Kevin Costner, Rene Russo (In Stereo) (R)						★★½ "In & Out" (1997) PG-13
MAX	66	(4:45)	★½ "Fatal Hearts" (1993) Alex Winter. PG-13 (R)			★★ "The Dentist" (1996) Corbin Bernsen (R)		★★ "Star Trek		★★½ "Blind Fury" (1990) Rutger Hauer. (R)			"Falling Down"
SHOW	67	★★½ "Housesitter" (1992, Comedy) Steve Martin. PG (R)				★½ "The Fan" (1996, Suspense) Robert De Niro (In Stereo) (R)				"The Inspectors" (1998, Suspense) Louis Gossett Jr.

Cathy By Cathy Guisewite

Robotman By Jim Meddick

Drabble By Kevin Fagan

Dilbert By Scott Adams

Rose is Rose By Pat Brady

Foxtrot By Bill Amend

Non Sequitur By Wiley

Sven By Stephen Higgins

Kampus Kids By Adam Souliere

Spunk By Mike LaRiccia

Horoscopes

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) — You will find yourself yearning to be elsewhere today— and not just around the corner, but a great distance from where you are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) — You're likely to meet up with someone today who can make a big difference in your life if you let him or her in. However, you needn't relinquish all control.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) — You may accomplish the thing you are most afraid of tackling if you focus. With some hard work and dedication, you can make anything happen!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) — Quiet time shared with a loved one can be more beneficial to you than you might think. You're in need of a little special healing at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) — Someone is likely to warn you against something that he or she sees in the future, but can you really rely on such a message?

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) — You may become worn down today by someone who insists on making things more difficult than they really are. Try to remain light-hearted.

ARIES (March 21–April 19) — You're feeling particularly sociable today, but don't intrude on a situation where you absolutely do not belong.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) — You can't agree with everyone about the state of affairs today, so you're going to have to choose sides sooner or later!

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) — You can put your foot down and insist things be done by the book, or you can encourage experimentation today.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) — Something you observe today is likely to have you wishing things had turned out differently for you somehow. You can recapture past glory.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) — Concentrate on one thing at a time today and you'll be easier to get along with in every situation. Keep your mind open and receptive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) — Communication is the key today. If you're willing to make the effort, you will be able to enjoy success.

Quote of the Day

"Oh, yes, I believe in friends, I believe we need them, but if, one day, you find you can't trust them anymore, well, what then, what then?"
–"Shallow Grave"

Close to Home By John McPherson

We initially got her to tackle the problem of raccoons raiding our garbage, but Queenie is so affectionate with the kids that we decided to keep the lovable old scamp.

Today's D.C. Menu
Call 545-2626 for more information.

Franklin
LUNCH
Vegetarian Egg Roll
Subgum Fried Rice
Spinach & Mushroom Quiche
Macaroni & Cheese

DINNER
Royal Zucchini Beef Parmesan
Mandarin Chicken
Penne w/ Tomato and Spinach
Quarter Pound Burger

Worcester
LUNCH
Macaroni & Cheese
Meatball Grinder
Rotini / Tomato Sauce
Black Bean Quesadilla

DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Southern Fried Steak
Mandarin Tofu
Baked Ziti

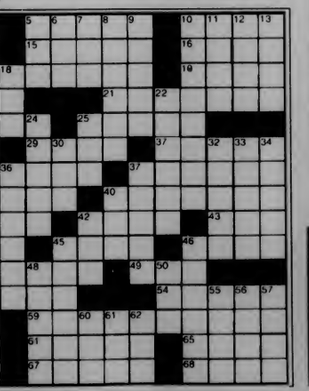
Hampshire
LUNCH
Hamburger
Chicken Cutlet
Turkey Bacon Swiss Pita
Grilled Cheese

DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Manicotti In Sauce

Berkshire
LUNCH
Macaroni & Cheese
Hamburger
American Grill Burger

DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Pineapple Ham Steak
Mandarin Tofu
Meatball Grinder

Night Editor: Victoria Groves
Photo Technician: Brian McDermott
Copy Editor: Nicole Racicot
Production Supervisor: Jeramy Brothers
Production Staff: Lisa Metcalf



ACROSS
1 Dogsled-racer's command
5 Debate
10 High mountain
14 Andes native
15 Having a drab color
16 Marathon
17 Romantic, in a way
19 Uniform
20 "Excuse me!"
21 In the best shape
23 Above poet
25 Visitor
26 Gullet
29 Type of exam
31 Some provincial people
35 Top
36 Kite part
37 "High —" 1941 movie
38 Conceal
40 Type of crow
41 Wooded area
42 Injured
43 Finale
44 Lack of hair
45 Greek cheese
46 Harem rooms
47 Private teacher
49 Wheel part
51 French manor
54 Award
58 Hawaiian island
59 Colorado tree
63 Untidy person
64 Bizarre
65 Gumbo ingredient
66 Large bag
67 "Carmen" or "Aida"
68 Have to have

DOWN
1 Young lady
2 "Do — others"
3 Wound reminder
4 Elton's rival
5 Jimmy Carter's daughter
6 Caviar
7 Bandleader Lombardo
8 Worthwhile
9 Singer Gorme
10 More beautiful
11 Roof overhang
12 Top cards
13 Clark — Gable
18 Deli bread
22 Casual top
24 Celebrity dinner
25 Qty. of gas
26 Chin feature
27 Harshness
28 Cherish
30 Edge
32 Wept
33 Icelandic money unit
34 Beach grains
36 Sneezer's need
37 Actress Bernhardt
39 Chemist's apparatus
40 Use a scissors
42 Thai lady
45 Botch
46 Actress Merle
48 Ban
50 Rat's kin
51 Expense
52 Angel's "headgear"
53 "Cat on — Tin Roof"
55 Spouse of a duchess
56 Farmland unit
57 Go first
60 Colorado Indian
61 Goof
62 Mermaid's habitat

PREVIOUS PUZZLE SOLVED

M	A	G	M	A		C	O	S	T		G	I	S	T
A	S	I	A	N		O	B	O	E		O	N	C	E
S	H	R	U	G		B	L	U	A		O	D	A	S
H	E	L	I	O	T	R	O	P	E		S	I	L	T
			R	O	A	N		S	H	E	A	D	Y
R	A	T	T	A	N		G	E	A	R
A	L	A	I		E	L	S	A		O	W	L	E	T
R	E	C	L	U	S	E		R	A	D	I	A	T	E
E	S	T	E	S		N	U	L	L		A	R	I	A
			E	N	O	S		O	P	E	R	A	S
M	O	R	O	S	E		M	O	N	E
A	V	I	D		T	R	E	M	E	N	D	O	U	S
M	E	A	D		T	A	R	E		G	O	O	K	E
A	R	T	E		L	I	E	N		I	N	N	E	R
S	T	A	R		E	N	D	S		L	E	A	S	E

9/28/98 © 1998 United Feature Syndicate

SPORTS weekend

Monday, September 28, 1998 — The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

UM football puts on show at McGuirk; racks up 51

By Seth Koenig
Collegian Staff

It was just like years ago on the playground where everybody would go long and a series of arbitrary laterals would determine who would carry the ball. You could almost picture Massachusetts quarterback Todd Bankhead in the huddle whispering something like, "Okay, I'm going to hand it off to the running back, and then, Eddie, you come around for the reverse and then throw it deep to Jimmy. Got it?"

Of course, it was UMass football coach Mark Whipple who actually called the reverse option pass in Saturday's game against the visiting Buffalo Bulls. The surprise trickery culminated in a 60-yard touchdown toss from wide receiver Eddie Bowman to fellow wideout Jimmy Moore.

"We worked harder on [the play] during this week, and obviously he threw a good ball and Jimmy made a great catch," Whipple said. "We're always looking for a way to make a big play and break the other team's back."

It can be argued that it was that second quarter play that took the wind out of the Bulls' sails for good, as the Minutemen went on to clobber their opponents by a gargantuan 51–27 score, but it probably wasn't.

Maybe it was freshman cornerback Jeremy Robinson's first of two interceptions in the second half that finally put down Buffalo, as he stepped in front of a deep slant pass intended for Bull standout Drew Haddad and galloped down the sideline for about 62 yards to the opposing three yard line.

Perhaps it was Robinson's second pick of Buffalo quarterback Chad Salisbury that did the trick, when he dove to the turf to come up with a pass that had been through the hands of teammates Kole Ayi and Mike Smith, before lying to rest with the freshman roughly twenty yards from the line of scrimmage.

"The first one, I read his eyes and went and got it," Robinson said. "I saw him look my way, and I debated on whether to go deep or not, but I came up and got the ball. The second one was just luck."

If you're looking for a player instead of a play that defeated Buffalo, however, you have no choice but to look to sophomore tailback Marcel Shipp, whose 113 first-half yards for the Minutemen were three yards more than his single game best, set last year against Connecticut.

In a game in which Bankhead needed a mere 354 yards to be the first UMass quarterback to reach 1,000 yards in only three games, it was Shipp who stole the show. The back glided through the Bull's defense like a liquid, making his 221 rushing yards and one touchdown on the day seem easy at times.

Shipp's 8.5 yard average per carry never seemed that low, as he would often go past the first down marker without being challenged. When in a tight squeeze, No. 5 would exhibit Barry Sanders-like flexibility, spinning off of several would–be tacklers at a time, as he did on his 67 yard burst in the fourth quarter that turned a third and fifteen deep in Massachusetts territory into a successful field goal attempt by placekicker Matt Murphy.

Shipp's performance was simply immaculate, leaving those in attendance in awe, and registering it as "indescribable" to those not present. Even more impressive, perhaps, was the fact that he recorded 172 yards on the ground over the first two games of the season, against Delaware and Richmond, while never quite being 100 percent.

"Marcel was healthy this week," Whipple said. "He made more spin moves in practice this week than he made in the entire preseason. I told him he was going to get 175 yards and he ended up getting 221, so he proved me wrong."

Bankhead, who sprained his thumb early in the game, settled into a support role, passing for a relatively modest 192 yards on 13 completions. The field general still found the end zone, though, as he threw for three touchdowns and ran for one more, without one of his favorite targets, freshman Adrian Zullo, who was out with an ankle injury.

Despite his injury, Bankhead appeared particularly spry, scrambling nimbly for 28 yards in the afternoon, often escaping imminent danger when it appeared as though the frustrated Bulls had a sack for certain.

On his touchdown run, the gutsy quarterback tucked the ball in and avoided a crowd of Buffalo linemen, and squirted up the center of the defense for an eight yard score.

"I was looking at Jimmy, but down there you don't want to take a lot of chances," Bankhead said. "He wasn't wide open, so I was trying not to make a mistake. It was just there. Nobody was really in the way, so I went."

There were several times in the game during which the Minutemen appeared to be losing momentum. It was at these points that, in the past, UMass would have fallen apart. Instead, Massachusetts put together a great all–around performance, gaining the praise of Buffalo Coach Craig Cirbus.

"For a young team, they hung together," Cirbus said. "They were physical, they ran the ball well, they mixed it up with the pass, they played excellent defense, they played very well at special teams, they stopped us on third down, they stopped us on a lot of key situations, and they were extremely well coached."

The Bulls were not without their stars, though. Pro– prospect Salisbury put up 375 yards and two touchdowns throwing the ball, and receivers Haddad and Kali Watkins pulled down the pigskin for over one hundred yards and a touchdown apiece. Haddad came 5 yards short of the UMass opposition record of 178 yards receiving with his showing on Saturday.

"It's great that Kali and myself had a game to do what we had to do, but it doesn't feel as good with the loss," Haddad said. "The past couple weeks we were 2–1 with us not getting a hundred yards. I'd much rather win and block the whole game than go for a hundred yards for the week. The most important thing is winning."

And it was UMass' day for winning. That's what the game is all about. Senior co–captain Khari Samuel, who spent much of the afternoon watching his defense play from the bench, nursing a bruised bicep suffered midway through the second period, couldn't help but be satisfied with the game, regardless of his unfortunate sidelining.

"It's a physical game, you know," Samuel said. "You have to just go out and play. We got the 'W,' and that's what matters."

BRIAN MC DERMOTT / COLLEGIAN

Massachusetts wideout Jimmy Moore catches one of his two touchdowns pass in UMass' 51–27 victory over Buffalo, Saturday,at McGuirk Stadium.

Shipp and UMass take it to Buffalo

By Brett Mauser
Collegian Staff

Buffalo was frustrated, while coach Mark Whipple and the Massachusetts football team danced around the ring. The Bulls threw multiple punches, landing many jabs, but never enough. The Minutemen, on the other hand, would glide and dip and juke, knocking Buffalo around only when they needed to.

Buffalo coach Craig Cirbus could only watch from the corner as the Minutemen did their best Muhammad Ali impersonation, improving their record to 2–1 with a 51–27 drubbing of the Bulls.

Buffalo nearly equaled UMass in total yards in the second half, but where it mattered was how the Minutemen outscored the Bulls 20–7. Buffalo attempted to crawl back into the bout, but each time they did so, the maroon and white would make a big play, something that Buffalo had far too few of to be crowned victorious.

Despite scoring 51 points, the biggest blows landed were by freshman Jeremy Robinson, whose two interceptions stopped Bull drives in Minuteman territory and set up ten UMass points.

A career day by tailback Marcel Shipp kept the boat steadily moving forward. By the end of the first half, Shipp had already surpassed his career–high from last season. By the time the fourth quarter came around, Shipp sat on the bench, enjoying his 26–carry, 221–yard day.

After opening up a 35–20 halftime lead, the football gods would not call for another 300–yard passing game of any kind by UMass quarterback Todd Bankhead. A first quarter injury to the thumb on Bankhead's throwing hand would give the ground game a workout.

Luckily enough, he and Whipple could afford to slow things down. Bankhead only needed to throw for 37 yards in the second half. He would find the end zone, though. After evading the pass rush, the 6'3" quarterback opened up the scoring column in the second half by stretching into the end zone for his first career rushing touchdown.

"I thought that when the opportunity presented itself, our offense made some big plays," Whipple said, "and at home times following a big play by the defense, and obviously that really takes the wind out of a team's sails."

The Minutemen played without receiver Adrian Zullo, who sat out due to a wobbly ankle, but still used the air attack to supplement Shipp's career day. Bankhead notched three touchdown passes against only one pick. Wide receiver Eddie Bowman had one of his own after taking a handoff from Shipp on the pitch sweep and throwing it 60 yards to Jimmy Moore.

Bankhead's numbers were not spectacular, but rather sufficient. He completed only 13 of 30 passes for 192 yards. The key number, though, was his three touchdown passes. His final toss of the first half resulted in points, when, with 17 seconds remaining, he found Jimmy Moore from 16 yards out. Two weeks ago against Richmond, he hit a streaking Zullo to end the first half of play their as well.

The defense allowed only seven points in the second half and none in the final quarter.

"We knew we had to step up all day," linebacker Khari Samuel said. "We believe in the things that we do and in the system that we run and we just have to run it. We have to be sound mentally. Throughout the game there was a need for us to be on our toes."

Samuel had to leave the field in the third quarter with a bruised right bicep. Linebacker Kole Ayi picked up the slack, leading the defense with 12 tackles.

The Bulls represent only a sparring partner as next weekend, the Minutemen travel to Hempstead, N.Y. to do battle with No. 6 Hofstra. The Flying Dutchmen lit McGuirk Stadium up for 51 points, the most the Minutemen gave up last season.

"I thought today we touched on a lot of our strong points," said Samuel, "but we still have a lot of work to do."

UM splits a pair of A–10 contests

By Paul Teves
Collegian Staff

The welcome home party for the Massachusetts women's volleyball team was spoiled by a stellar effort by Virginia Tech Hokies on Friday night as UMass dropped the first of the weekends matches. But the Minutewomen would bounce back strong by exposing the youth of the Duquesne Dukies and beating them three games to none Saturday night at Curry Hicks Cage.

This weekend's split brings the Minutewomens record to 5–8 and 2–2 in the Atlantic 10.

UMass expected a tough match from both teams. They knew coming in that Virginia Tech was a tough and big team, while Duquesne, although young, possessed some weapons.

In Friday's contest the Minutewomen tried to keep their recent momentum going by up–ending Virginia Tech, but when it got tough UMass seemed to get a little timid and was unable to deliver the knock out blow.

"We have done it a lot, when the game gets tough we get back on our heels, and they don't trust the game plan and therefore we begin to commit unforced errors," UMass coach Bonnie Kenny said.

Despite playing Virginia Tech tough in the first game, UMass was unable to come up with the win. UM dropped game one 15–11. They stayed close in game one but couldn't finish against a strong Tech team.

In game two, UMass gained some momentum and capitalized on some early Hokies' errors on route to jumping out to a 7–0 lead. The Hokies made a run but UMass, behind the hitting of freshman Lauren Vander Veen was able to hold off Tech, 15–6.

After two games, Vander Veen had torn apart the Tech blockers, registering nine kills with only one error. Junior Co–Captain Jill Meyers had also tallied six kills and six digs to go along with an attack percentage of .417.

"Lauren played well for us all weekend," said Kenny. "But then Tech made adjustments and we are just not very good at reacting to those adjustments right now."

In game three UMass struggled to get going. They attacked the way they had all match: aggressively, but Tech had made the adjustments. They were now touching many of the shots at the net, and the UMass hitters struggled to terminate their shots. Due to the adjustments the Hokies were able to effectively stop the UMass attack and win game three 15–3.

"We knew that they were going to touch a lot of balls at the net, what we need to stop doing is running the same plays over and over and mix it up a little more, make our own adjustments," Kenny said.

The Minutewomen struggled at the beginning of the fourth game as well. They still were failing to execute the adjustments the coach Kenny was asking of them and they dug themselves into a 7–0 hole. UMass finally responded by going on a 9–4 run and bringing the score to 11–9 in favor of Virginia Tech. But again when it got tough for UMass they failed to terminate the Hokies, and lost game four 15– 11.

Meyers' attack percentage fell off drastically from game two to game four despite registering a double–double, with 10 kills and 15 digs. Vander Veen had a solid match tallying 14 kills and an attack percentage of .323, while junior co– captain Kari Hogancamp registered yet another double– double, with 14 kills, 16 digs and an attack percentage of .429, which is pretty remarkable.

Katie Gibbons who was expected to contribute heavily for UMass has been unable to get into a rhythm. While looking good at times, Gibbons has struggled with unforced errors. UMass needs Gibbons to play out of her recent slump in order to win close matches like Virginia Tech.

The Minutewomen needed to put this tough match against Virginia Tech behind them and come out fired up for their match against Duquense, another big A–10 rival.

UMass did just that. Although they struggled to get going in game one, they were eventually able to shake off the Dukies and win 16–14. The Minutewomen fought off a couple of game points and won a tough one, which was something they had recently struggled to do.

"It was great for us to win close games like this and we need to

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 7

LAUREN KOSKY / COLLEGIAN

Junior Kari Hogancamp help propel the UMass women's volleyball team to a hard fought split over the weekend at Curry Hicks Cage.

Kurowski goal not enough to earn UMass' first win

By Sanford Appell
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's soccer team struck early, but unfortunately not often, as they battled to a 1–1 tie against the University of Rhode Island on Saturday morning.

The Minutemen brought the Family Day crowd at Totman Field to its feet, as they attacked the Rams from the opening whistle.

Senior Brad Kurowski put UMass on the board at 1:57 with a five footer. He booted the ball through the net off a defensive deflection as URI scrambled to recover the ball.

The crowd erupted, but Massachusetts coach Sam Koch urged his team to keep their composure and remain on the attack.

The 0–6–2 Minutemen (0–0–1 in the A–10), have given Koch cause for concern thus far. The team has grabbed an early lead such as this one before, but has yet to earn a victory.

While UMass did not threaten to score again for much of the half, they did play solid defense.

With about five minutes to play in the half, the action got heated with players from both teams playing very physically.

A collision near midfield left one URI player sprawled over in a heap, but the action continued downfield toward the UMass net.

At the 41:45 mark, UMass sophomore Matt Christy illegally took down URI ball carrier Adam Piotrowski. This maneuver led to a penalty kick opportunity for URI. Piotrowski then calmly nailed the ball to the left corner of the net past UMass goaltender Todd Fowler.

"I saw where the ball was going on that shot," Fowler said, "However, he hit the ball powerfully enough so that I did not have enough time to save it."

Overall, Fowler had another stellar effort in net, saving four shots, including a game saver with 27 seconds left in the second overtime.

"After that last save, I knew we would not lose the game, but it still hurts to only come up with a tie," Fowler said.

Coming into the game, the coaches and players acknowledged they would have to match speed with the feisty Rams to have a chance.

For the most part, the Minutemen succeeded in that department. After all, they did not allow any goals during regular play.

As expected "Pie" Garcia and Kurowski provided solid defense all afternoon.

One of the unsung heroes of the afternoon for UMass was unquestionably Seth Lilburn. The sophomore gave everything he had in this match, and eventually left with an ankle injury.

Lilburn spent a great deal of his playing time on the grass, because he fearlessly chased down every last Ram that he could.

"The effort was definitely there today," Koch said. "Seth was a prime example of this, and hopefully he will be okay."

As of this writing, the extent of Lilburn's injury was unknown. He was helped off the field by several coaches and players to a well–deserved ovation.

While UMass has proven they can seize a lead, they have not yet figured out what to do after that point. Coming into the season, the Minutemen figured to be heavy contenders in the Atlantic 10.

"We still have our goals in place," Koch said. "While we did not finish URI off, we did not allow them to put us away either. This is something to build on."

COURTESY MEDIA SERVICES

Todd Fowler

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CIV Issue 15 — New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 — Tuesday, September 29, 1998

Rush to the theater

Hot off a gargantuan opening weekend, the action/comedy Rush Hour displays the comic talents of Jackie Chan and Chris Tucker. Check out our review (see Arts & Living, page 6).

Hooking the Longhorns

Senior co-captain Sophie Lecot and the women's soccer team defeated Texas to force a split in Colorado last weekend (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Kohl's replacement may not try to unite Europe

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — As Germany's chancellor, Helmut Kohl used the economic and political strength of the European Union's largest nation to shape key EU policies. Now, Germany's neighbors are watching how his replacement will affect the continental balance of power.

Few expect any sudden, fundamental change in Germany's European stance.

"You don't change foreign policy as often as you change a government," Danish Foreign Minister Niels Helveg Pedersen said yesterday. "Germany will continue to have strong ties to the European Union, the United States, to NATO."

Nevertheless, many wonder if Chancellor-elect Gerhard Schroeder, who was born at the end of World War II, shares Kohl's emotional commitment to a united Europe. Kohl has childhood memories of a continent ravished by war.

"The new leadership will feel in a different way this connection between Germany and Europe," said Italian Defense Minister Beniamino Andreatta. "But I hope that Mr. Kohl's legacy, Germany's role toward the West, will not be changed."

NATION

Angioplasty, bypass risks equal for men, women

DALLAS (AP) — Surgical procedures to restore blood flow to the heart are no riskier for women than for men, according to a new study that contradicts previous research.

Men and women who undergo bypass surgery or angioplasty, in which a tiny balloon is used to clear clogged arteries, had similar rates of in-hospital deaths and five-year survival.

"The message is if women are in need of one of these procedures, we can recommend them with enthusiasm and anticipation of a good acute and long-term result," said Dr. Alice K. Jacobs of Boston Medical Center.

Her study was published in last Tuesday's issue of Circulation, a journal of the American Heart Association.

Many earlier studies concluded that women undergoing heart bypass surgery were more than twice as likely to die. The death rates were higher for women after angioplasty, as well. However, the women in some of these studies tended to be older and sicker than the men.

In this study, the men and women were far closer in health and in age. However, Jacobs said the similar results for men and women this time may have been due instead to advances in technique and technology.

For example, she said, doctors now can use smaller catheters in angioplasty that may be better for women's smaller blood vessels.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 69	HIGH: 71	HIGH: 64
LOW: 43	LOW: 51	LOW: 36

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Crossword .....page 11
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 10
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12

ON THE INTERNET

www.umass.edu/rso/colegian

Advanced degrees may hurt Mass. teachers

By Robin Estrin
Associated Press

BOSTON — On paper, Rachelle Friedman certainly appears to be the ideal candidate for a public school teacher: classroom experience at a prestigious private school, a history PhD from one of the country's top graduate schools.

But Friedman says she can't get a job in a Massachusetts school. And she fears her doctorate degree is to blame.

Friedman has applied to some 15 schools — she wouldn't say which ones — over the last two academic years. The attitude she says she gets from school districts goes something like this: you're too expensive and too qualified.

"I'm not saying I'm the best teacher in the world by any means," said Friedman, who wrote an op-ed piece about her difficulties in yesterday's Boston Globe.

The 30-something Brookline resident said she got the feeling school districts would prefer to hire a 22-year-old straight out of college than someone who wrote a 400-page doctoral dissertation on the Puritans.

Her impressions aren't necessarily off-base, said Segun Eubanks, a vice president at Recruiting New Teachers, a Belmont organization dedicated to improving the quality of classroom teachers.

At a recent statewide conference, a human resource coordinator for a large Boston-area school district told Eubanks that the school district was not hiring any experienced or highly-credentialed teachers. Too costly, Eubanks said.

"Hundreds of people contact us who are qualified, but who cannot find teaching jobs," including many with advanced degrees, he said. "Unfortunately, some school districts have tried to ensure teacher quality on the cheap by not considering highly credentialed individuals."

For school departments struggling to balance their budgets, it's easy to see why. Under contract rules, the more education you have, the more you get paid. For example, $23,000 for a first-year teacher with a bachelor's degree versus mid-$40,000s for a teacher with an advanced degree, said David Driscoll, commissioner of the state Department of Education.

"School budgets are tight and sometimes school systems tend to hire people on the lower steps in order to save money," Driscoll said.

But, he said, schools should be encouraged to hire people with more than just an undergraduate education.

Friedman's op-ed piece caused something of a stir among education circles yesterday — especially among teacher unions. Friedman contends a middle-level manager at the Department of Education told her that "several school systems have struck deals with the teachers unions not to hire PhDs."

That's patently untrue, said Stephen Gorrie, president of the Massachusetts Teachers Association. In fact, he said, the organization is trying to promote the hiring of people with advanced degrees — and encourage better financial compensation for them.

Web cam is watching you

By Julie Fiolkow
Collegian Staff

It's Friday night and you're inhaling a slice of chicken and bleu cheese pizza in front of Antonio's; smile because grandma and grandpa down in Florida just might be watching you.

Thanks to, or no thanks to, (depending on how you look at it,) recent technology, a "web cam" will view everything that goes on outside of Antonio's 24 hours a day. MassLive, a local news/entertainment web site, will present live feed of the area directly in front of the restaurant. Holly Lawrence, marketing producer from MassLive, said that they hope to debut the web page on October 2.

"The camera is mounted up in front of the benches outside of Antonio's," she said, "it will pick up passer–byer's and crowds 24 hours a day and stills will be updated every 20 seconds. Eventually there might be streaming video, but that might take longer."

The camera, which is already set up, will have a sign that alerts people of its purpose. Web cams like this, have become significantly more common on the internet. The Antonio's web–cam will be the second in the valley, the first is set up in the center of Northampton.

Lawrence said that the goal of the web–cam is to draw more students to the website, which includes Pioneer Valley Transit Authority (PVTA) and movie schedules, as well.

"We have parents and alumni log on to our site," Lawrence said. "There is lots of youthful stuff on our site. It's something fun. The idea is that students will be performing for the camera or sitting in their dorm room watching it."

Lawrence also made reference to a danger that might exist when you introduce a camera to a large congregation of inebriated students.

"The camera is indestructible," she said.

Students on campus have mixed emotions about the camera's presence.

Julie Bettencourt, a senior pre–med and sociology major said, "I think it's really weird. A lot of people will be oblivious to the fact that they're being watched. I don't understand why people would want to watch? A live birth yes — people eating pizza, I don't know..."

"I think it's great," said Eli Avidson, a senior English Literature major, "I don't see any problems with it. I have no reservations unless maybe a big crowd forms outside waving to the camera or something."

Privacy issues involving the use of web–cams has been debated recently due to their increasing popularity on the internet. But, said Lawrence, there are no laws that prohibit this form of what some people might call public voyeurism.

"People are concerned about privacy generally, but it's public, good, clean fun. We are a member of the media and have all of the same laws applied to us. If people don't want to be seen they can duck away," she said.

Charles J. DiMare, director of student legal services, also said that use of web–cams is acceptable under the law.

"It is quite normal," he said, "Anyone can take pictures of other people in public streets. You can't use it for commercial purposes without consent though."

Lawrence said that technologically the one glitch their having with the project, is with the phone lines, which are not equipped for this kind of use.

"A wire will be connecting the mounted security camera to a computer in Antonio's that will be secured inside. A modem will be connected to their phone line to make the connection with the internet. We control the images that go on the page here at MassLive," said Lawrence.

The address for the MassLive web–site is masslive.com.

DANIELLE R. GRARDI / COLLEGIAN

Tight squeeze

The UMass Rugby team go all out against Amherst last weekend.

DANIELLE R. GRARDI / COLLEGIAN

Peaches's Portrait

Peaches, a 5–month old pit bull, poses with her owner Erico Freitas outside the library yesterday afternoon.

Gulf Coast hit by Georges

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

PASCAGOULA, Miss. — Hurricane Georges plowed into the Gulf Coast yesterday and then parked there, weakening to just above hurricane strength but pouring rain at an inch-an-hour pace for what could be a long and ruinous stay.

Winds dropped to just over 75 mph from a high of 110, and New Orleans was spared the catastrophic direct hit that many in the Big Easy had feared.

But that was little comfort to the thousands who huddled in shelters from Florida to Louisiana and were expected to remain there for days. Outside, all was chaos — trees ripped from the ground, windows sucked from their frames, floods roaring down roads.

"In some areas, there's water to rooftops and 4 to 5 feet of water in many other homes. I've never seen anything like it in more than 50 years," said Jackson County administrator George Touart, after a tour of Pascagoula, where 15 inches of rain fell overnight. Forecasters said up to 30 inches could fall by the time the storm clears out sometime in the middle of the week.

National Guardsmen waded through chest-deep water to carry children and lead adults to safety from a flooded housing project near downtown Mobile, Ala. In the Florida Panhandle, Guardsmen had to rescue about 200 people from their flooded homes.

In New Orleans, where authorities had feared the worst — a sopping rain and huge storm surge that would put the entire city under water — there was a collective sigh of relief. Instead of hitting the Big Easy head on, Georges struck at Ocean Springs, Miss., between Biloxi and Pascagoula, dealing New Orleans rain and wind but no catastrophe.

"We, by taking the brunt at Ocean Springs, saved the city of New Orleans," said Mississippi Gov. Kirk Fordice. "It was spared from the untellable misery that would have occurred."

Two storm-related deaths were reported. A man died yesterday in a New Orleans fire started by candles being used for light after the hurricane knocked out electricity. An 86-year-old woman died while she and 250 other nursing home residents waited for beds in a Baton Rouge shelter.

Earlier, in its odyssey across the Caribbean, Georges killed more than 300 people.

"We got off pretty lucky," said Derek Pociask, who was walking his dogs through a burst of rain on St. Charles Avenue in New Orleans. "It'd be nice to have electricity, but I'm glad this has turned out to be just a bad rainstorm."

More than 380,000 customers were without power across the Gulf Coast. As the storm moved in, more than 1.5 million people had been told to evacuate along the coast, and hotel rooms were hard to find as far away as Memphis, Tenn., and Dallas.

"Everybody's been sleeping or everybody's been watching the rain," said Becky Chamberlain, 15, at a Gulfport shelter. "Mostly everybody has been waiting for this to go away and wondering when it's going to be through."

Nearly 14,700 people in Mississippi alone were staying shelters, though their safety was not assured: The roof was ripped off a gymnasium at Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College in Gautier, forcing the evacuation of 404 residents. Ninety others at Trent Lott Middle School in Pascagoula stayed put after the roof was damaged, apparently by a tornado.

In New Orleans, 10,000 spent the night in the Superdome. Most evacuees were told to put off any plans to return to their homes because it was too dangerous.

"All I need to have is the name and address of their next of kin," said Jim Maher, director of Mississippi's Emergency Management Agency.

Ex-basketball star stomps girl to death

NEW YORK (AP) — A former University of Nevada-Las Vegas basketball star who once appeared destined for the NBA was convicted yesterday of stomping a 15-year-old girl to death.

A jury deliberated nearly four days before it found Richie Adams guilty of manslaughter in the death of Norma Rodriguez. He could get life in prison at his sentencing next month.

Rodriguez's relatives said Adams, 35, killed the teen-ager because she refused his advances.

Police said a bloody size-13 1/2 basketball shoe print led them to Adams, who was living with his mother one floor below where the girl's body was found in 1996.

A high school star in Harlem, Adams was twice named the Pacific Coast Athletic Association player of the year at UNLV in the early 1980s.

The 6-foot-9 star was a defensive powerhouse nicknamed "The Animal" for his intensity. His shot-blocking and rebounding drew comparisons to a young Bill Russell.

He was drafted by the Washington Bullets in 1985, but the next day he was arrested for stealing a car in the Bronx. The Bullets never invited him to training camp after that, and the rest of the NBA ignored him.

His life then slid downhill. He was arrested twice in 1988, for mugging a woman at a cash machine and purse-snatching. A 1989 conviction for larceny and armed robbery led to a five-year prison stretch.

West Bank accord set by Clinton

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat agreed yesterday to work toward reaching a West Bank accord at a mid-October White House summit, after Netanyahu reported a breakthrough on how much land Israel will yield.

President Clinton, acting as mediator, set up the October meeting during a session yesterday with Netanyahu and Arafat. "I believe that we all agreed that we have made progress on the path to peace," he said.

As he headed back to Israel, Netanyahu expressed optimism that the long-sought accord could be in hand in October — if the Palestinians reciprocated for Israel's promised pullback from the West Bank with stiffer anti-terrorism measures.

"I can't tell you that we agree on everything. That would not be true," Netanyahu said. "But I can tell you that we agreed on quite a few things."

That, he said, was "a good start," and there will be a mid-October summit.

Arafat, meanwhile, hurried back to New York, where in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly he appealed for support for a Palestinian state, but pointedly did not repeat a controversial vow to declare one unilaterally if Israel did not go along.

Arafat urged the General Assembly to "stand by our people," and stressed that the Oslo peace accords expire on May 4. "Our people demand of us to shoulder our responsibilities and they await the establishment of their independent state," he said.

"This independent Palestinian state must be established as an embodiment of the right of our people to self-determination." Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and Netanyahu had urged that Arafat refrain from unilateral declarations on issues set aside for negotiations.

"Clearly he has preferred the option of negotiations over the option of a unilateral act," the Israeli ambassador, Dore Gold, told reporters afterward. "And in that sense, we have something we can express our satisfaction with."

After the White House meeting yesterday, Clinton described "a significant narrowing of the gaps between the two parties across a wide range of issues."

The new timetable for an accord calls for Albright and U.S. mediator Dennis Ross to go the region next week and for Netanyahu and Arafat to return to the White House for a meeting with Clinton in mid-October.

"This process needs to be speeded up," Albright said after the three-way, 90-minute meeting in the Oval Office. Netanyahu then returned for a separate meeting with Clinton, and Arafat is due to see the president today.

Albright steered clear of any claims of breakthroughs, telling reporters, "We are very close on a number of subjects" and acknowledging that an accord on how much land Israel was willing to relinquish was among them.

But a senior U.S. official later told The Associated Press, "Everybody thinks we broke the back" of that issue and now can focus on other matters.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Mideast leaders had committed themselves to go on from there to negotiations on a final settlement.

Netanyahu, at a news conference before he flew home for the Jewish holy day of Yom Kippur, said, "What we have achieved is to set up a timetable, a path to completion of this process." He added: "We hope we will complete it by meeting in mid-October in Washington."

The biggest hurdle, according to Israeli and American diplomats, centers on Israeli demands that the Palestinian Authority dismantle terrorist cells on the West Bank and in Gaza, confiscate weapons and stop freeing apprehended suspects. Also, Netanyahu demands the Palestine Liberation Organization nullify numerous anti-Israel references in its covenant.

Considering that no accord emerged from the White House meeting, Albright was peppered with questions at a news conference about why Clinton had staged the three-way meeting.

"Only the president of the United States could give it this sense of urgency," Albright said.

Besides, she said Netanyahu and Arafat had been in New York to attend the special session of the U.N. General Assembly and "it really was a good use of time" to have them come down to Washington to see the president.

Unlike her predecessors over the last quarter-century, Albright has not engaged in shuttle diplomacy to try to prod Arabs and Israel to reach agreements. And she said yesterday that was not her plan now.

Netanyahu, earlier, said on NBC's "Today" program, "I think we're getting close to finalizing an agreement."

Over the weekend, he and several Israeli diplomats said there was a basic understanding that Israel would withdraw from an additional 13 percent of the West Bank, with 3 percent turned into an undeveloped nature preserve under Israel's security control. In earlier accords, Israel pledged to yield 27 percent and has also surrendered all of Gaza to the Palestinian Authority. Clinton cautioned that some obstacles remained.

"There is still a substantial amount of work to be done until a comprehensive agreement can be reached," he said.

Durfee shadows
Amazing what you'll find when you look up in Durfee Conservatory.

DANIELLE K. GLARDI / COLLEGIAN

AEROBICS
• Area's Largest Room STEP
• Certified Instructors LOW IMPACT
• Classes Daily YOGA
• Shock-absorbing Floor CARDIO KICK BOXING
• Walk-ins Welcome HI/LOW
www.amherstathletic.com
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 SO. AMHERST

Calculus Tutor
• Friendly & Helpful
• Affordable
• Available Anytime (at your campus bookstore)
CALCULUS MAC www.wizpower.com

News Is Great!!

Faculty. students, staff and alumni are invited to attend a one day symposium

Leadership in a Diverse Community

Friday, October 2, 1998
Campus Center 163, 8:30-3:00 p.m.

Working Groups will address:

- Alumni/undergraduate leadership development connections
- Leadership development for academic heads and chairs
- Incorporating leadership into the classroom
- Undergraduate co-curricular transcripts
- Leadership opportunities and training for classified and professional staff

A panel moderated by Senator Stan Rosenberg will discuss:

- their experiences at UMass that have contributed to or hindered their development as leaders
- important lessons they have learned about leadership
- how leadership was modeled for them
- suggestions for how the Amherst campus might improve the leadership skills of students, staff and faculty

Panelists include staff members, an undergraduate, an alum, and a faculty

Conference Schedule

8:30 Registration and coffee
9:00 Chancellor's welcome
9:20 Panel discussion
11:00 Table discussions
12:00 Buffet lunch
1:15 Working Groups meet
2:45 Reconvene and report
3:00 Conclusion

Pre-registration is required
Contact the Office of Human Relations
545-0851 or email:
am@admin.umass.edu

Buffet lunch will be provided

HEY YOU!

DO YOU CARE ABOUT MUSIC AND CONCERTS ON CAMPUS? THEN STEP UP TO THE MIC AND MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD. UPC IS CURRENTLY ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS FOR PRODUCTION MANGER, BUSINESS MANGER, CO-SECURITY CO-ORDINATOR AND GRAPHIC DESIGNER. APPLICATIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT ROOM 415 IN THE STUDENT UNION OR CALL 545-2892. APPLICATIONS ARE DUE OCTOBER 2ND.

Starr evidence not enough in House probe

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A formal House impeachment investigation would not be limited to the independent counsel's evidence, Rep. Henry Hyde, the Republican overseeing the review, said yesterday. Hyde strongly signaled he would vote next week in favor of opening such an inquiry.

"We're not restricted," Hyde declared at a news conference. "We're the House Judiciary Committee, and we're trying to decide whether or not we should have an inquiry into whether there should be an impeachment."

The committee will vote next week, a step that would lead to hearings and an open-ended, independent investigation by Congress into allegations of impeachable offenses by President Clinton. With public opinion polls running against a lengthy investigation, Hyde used his news conference to mount a vigorous defense of the fairness of the GOP-controlled review to date, and to announce a series of conciliatory gestures aimed at Democrats. At the White House, spokesman Mike McCurry said, "Certainly actions are more important than words. But the reassurances given by the chairman (yesterday) were welcome."

Hyde said he hoped an arrangement could be worked out with Democrats to satisfy them on key procedural issues such as the right to subpoena witnesses at hearings expected late this year and the right to hold reluctant witnesses in contempt. "I don't want unilateral anything," he said.

He said a bipartisan group of committee lawyers will visit Starr's offices this week to review the estimated 20 boxes of material that Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr compiled but did not submit to Congress as part of the investigation into Clinton's affair with Monica Lewinsky. Democrats say Starr may have withheld material that could help Clinton.

On another point sought by the Democrats, Hyde announced that a subcommittee hearing will be called as soon as practical to explore the issue of defining the term "impeachable offenses."

At the same time, the Illinois Republican, who said last week he is inclined to take Ms. Lewinsky's account of her affair as truthful, made clear he is ready to move the review to a higher, more menacing level for the president. "I should think there is enough to warrant an inquiry," he said.

Some or all of the Democrats on the panel are expected to vote against launching a congressional inquiry, and one party official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said it was possible there could be a strict party-line vote next week inside the committee. A committee vote would be followed later in the week by a roll call in the House, where a substantial number of Democrats are likely to vote in favor.

At the same time, with midterm elections only five weeks away, Republicans were seeking to tread carefully through a political landscape in which the general public wants the president punished but not impeached, and also favors a swift resolution.

Democrats, too, are seeking to move carefully, saying they fear that sharp criticism of the Republican majorities in Congress could make it tougher to negotiate a punishment less than impeachment after the elections.

With Speaker Newt Gingrich on the sidelines for fear of turning himself into a target for Democrats, Hyde has emerged in recent days as the principal Republican spokesman for the unfolding impeachment review.

At a news conference in the committee's hearing room, even as he fended off questions about his own fairness, he jabbed at Democrats.

Asked if it would be a sign of partisanship if only Republicans vote in favor of opening an investigation, Hyde responded, "Yes, I think the Democrats, by not voting to even go further with an inquiry, would show a partisanship that I would regret."

The Judiciary Committee met yesterday and will meet again today if necessary, to decide whether to launch its inquiry.

Puffer Grunt and friend
A turtle pair was spotted hiding out in the conservatory pond yesterday morning.

DANIELLE K. GLARDI / COLLEGIAN

Looking over us
A statue of Metawamp looks over the campus center hotel.

DANIELLE K. GLARDI / COLLEGIAN

Pentagon waste costs taxpayers

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Loose bookkeeping by the Pentagon costs taxpayers millions of dollars every year and invites fraud and embezzlement, a senator said yesterday, citing government reports highly critical of Pentagon accounting practices.

"It's the taxpayers' worst nightmare, but it's an embezzler's dream come true," said Sen. Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, who has long pursued the issue of waste in the Pentagon budget.

Grassley, in a hearing of his Senate Judiciary administrative oversight subcommittee, presented two government reports outlining more than a dozen cases of fraud involving the Defense Finance and Accounting Service.

In one, an Air Force staff sergeant in Dayton, Ohio, embezzled nearly $1 million over three years by writing fake invoices and giving the money to his mother and girlfriend. He was turned in by a suspicious co-worker and received a 12-year jail term.

In one of the largest cases, a retired Navy chief petty officer defrauded the Pentagon of more than $3 million over a three-year period by filing bogus invoices for materials supposedly supplied to the Military Sealift Command by a company that did not exist. He was exposed when someone noted that shipments were going to decommissioned ships and he was sentenced to more than seven years in prison.

Grassley said that in fiscal 1997 alone the Justice Department reviewed 802 cases of financial crimes at the Defense Department, with 88 defendants pleading guilty.

"I'm talking about a culture within the Defense Department that is lax enough to encourage overbilling," he said.

John Nabil, director of the Columbus Center of the Defense Finance and Accounting Service, acknowledged at the hearing that "there have been improprieties, and although these improprieties were detected they were not detected as quickly as they should have been."

He said the DFAS, which disburses $22 billion a month, is tightening controls over who has access to the payments system, but that "the complex nature of Department of Defense financial management systems and business process reengineering efforts unfortunately provided opportunities for those intent on defrauding the government."

The reports from the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, concluded that the DFAS has a "weak internal control environment" in which the same person may oversee every aspect of contracting, from receiving invoices to confirming reception of goods.

"We need double entry bookkeeping and transaction-driven accounting. We have neither," said Ernest Fitzgerald, the Air Force Management Systems deputy who helped Grassley with his investigation.

Calculus Tutor
• Friendly & Helpful
• Affordable
• Available Anytime (at your campus bookstore)
CALCULUS MAC www.wizpower.com

Shear Bliss
HOLISTIC DAY SPA
479 West st. Amherst
• organic colors & perms
• body waxing & sugaring
• facials, pedi, & manicures
$5.00 off w/ Ad!
253-2322

FOR the EDUCATION and RESEARCH COMMUNITY

OVER ONE MILLION OF THE BEST MINDS IN AMERICA HAVE ALREADY CHOSEN THE BEST RETIREMENT SYSTEM.

TIAA-CREF.

When it comes to planning a comfortable future, America's best and brightest turn to the expert: TIAA-CREF. With over $230 billion in assets under management, we're the world's largest retirement system, the nation's leader in customer satisfaction,* and the overwhelming choice of people in education, research, and related fields.

Expertise You Can Count On

For 80 years, TIAA-CREF has introduced intelligent solutions to America's long-term planning needs. We pioneered the portable pension, invented the variable annuity, and popularized the very concept of stock investing for retirement. In fact, we manage the largest stock account in the world (based on assets under management).

Today, TIAA-CREF can help you achieve even more of your financial goals. From tax-deferred annuities and IRAs to mutual funds, you'll find the flexibility and choice you need, backed by a proven history of performance, remarkably low expenses, and peerless commitment to personal service.

Find Out For Yourself

To learn more about the world's premier retirement organization, talk to one of our retirement planning experts at 1 800 842-2776. Or better still, speak to one of your colleagues. Find out why, when it comes to planning for tomorrow, great minds think alike.

Visit us on the Internet at www.tiaa-cref.org

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it.™

*DALBAR, Inc., 1997 Defined Contribution Excellence Ratings. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. CREF certificates and interests in the TIAA Real Estate Account are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2733, extension 5509, for the prospectuses. Read them carefully before you invest or send money. 8/98

PRUDDY'S
• FOOD • TROPICAL DRINKS • FRIENDS •
Starting this Thursday, PRUDDY'S is opening the only "All You Can Eat" buffet uptown with home cooking. Come eat with us, it may be your best meal all semester!

We Have
(Exercise Bike Classes)-
Full Schedule
Personal Training
Friendly Atmosphere
Tanning
Aerobics - Full Schedule
Cardio Theater
Great Hours
Multi-Level Balconies
New Entrance
Trained Staff
Fruit Smoothies,
Supplements, Health Drinks
Pre Cors, Bikes, Rowers,
Treadmills, Stairclimbers
The area's only
IMPROVED!
EXPANDED!
WHAT YOU WANT!
Tennis & Fitness Center

--- The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian ---

Long night's journey

Sleep...sleep...

This was the only word my poor, exhausted mind could muster at the moment.

It was 11:30 p.m. at the Newman Center on a Tuesday evening. My friends and I were drained, physically and emotionally. There was nothing I wanted more in the world than to snuggle beneath my comforter, watch Conan's opening monologue, and catch a few winks.

But alas, there was a slight problem — one of my friends lives in Southwest, and we didn't want her to walk home alone. One of us recommended utilizing the heavily advertised Escort Service, which is supposed to provide students with an escort if they don't want to walk home by themselves. Their flyer states, "Don't want to walk home alone? Call us." The obvious solution to our problem. Could life get any better than this?

"Designating dark deserted parking lots as pick– up sites defeats the purpose of the Escort Service."

Jennifer Cormier

Luckily, we were in the vicinity of one of those blue light telephone contraptions. I dialed the number of the Escort Service (which, incidentally, turned out to be quite an awkward ordeal; for some bizarre reason, the call boxes are situated about one and a half feet above the ground, forcing one to squat in humiliating fashion in order to make a mere phone call).

The call went something like this:

"Hello, Escort Service, can I help you?"

I relayed our sob story to the man, who I will refer to from now on as "Escort Service Phone Dude."

When I was through, my request for service was met with...silence.

"Hello?" I asked hesitantly.

After several muffled noises and a looooong pause, Escort Service Phone Dude said, "I don't think we have a van available. Can you hold on?" This was followed by another pause and some hushed whispers.

Finally, Escort Service Phone Dude said, "Uh, we can come get you, but you have to go to Parking Lot 64."

Excuse me? Lot 64?

"Exactly where would that be?" I asked Phone Dude.

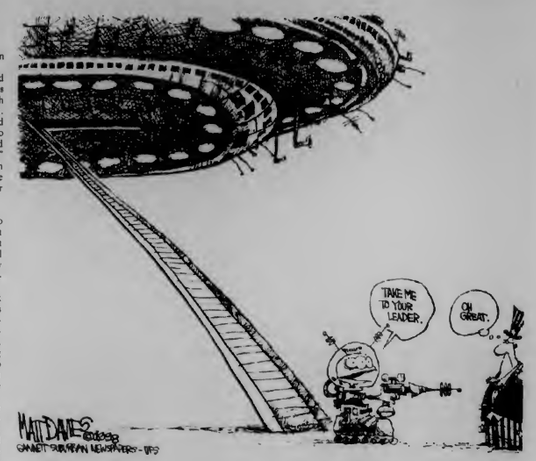
My question was met with a snort. Yes, that's right, a snort. Escort Service Phone Dude was laughing at me. When he was through, he gave me some incomprehensible directions and we both hung up.

As a result, one of my friends was forced to pull out her trusty campus map (a.k.a. sheet of paper that lets everyone around you know that you're a freshman). Squinting at the crumpled map under the dim light of the street lamp we finally located Lot 64.

It was halfway across campus.

Admitting defeat, we walked our friend to Southwest and trudged back across campus to Northeast, where we proceeded to collapse in exhaustion.

A few nights later, my friend tried again. She waited in Northeast's parking lot for the van, which showed up right on time. Unfortunately, the driver informed my friend that the van was filled to capacity, but that another van would be sent immediately. "Immediately" turned out to be 30 minutes, which was the next scheduled time for the van to come anyway. Strike two for the Escort Service.



* * *

This anecdote is not intended to place total blame on the Escort Service. In theory, the Escort Service is a worthwhile, beneficial resource. There are merely a few bugs in the system. Here are my suggestions.

The Escort Service seems to lack drivers and vans. This obviously is not the fault of the service; it seems to stem from insufficient university funding. Designating dark deserted parking lots as pick–up sites really seems to defeat the purpose of the Escort Service in the first place. Isn't there a better alternative?

With a little fine tuning, the Escort Service can do what it is supposed to do — provide a safe alternative to walking across a deserted campus in isolation. And, while the folks at the Escort Service are reading this column, there is one more suggestion they could take into consideration — –they could fire Escort Service Phone Dude.

Jennifer Cormier is a UMass student.

Whispering sweet nothings

So, I'm as big a fan of phone sex as the next guy (come on — admit it, you Puritan). But at $4.95 a minute? Whisper "rip–off" in my ear. At that price, I'd better get some coupons with the call, or at least be entered in a raffle.

I was sitting in my room the other day, as I am wont to do, and the phone rings. Nothing brings joy to the heart like a ringing phone. So, following the instructions I still remember from those freshman orientation guides, I lifted the receiver and said "hello."

"Hi. What are you wearing?"

"Mom? You don't sound too well, Mom. You're very hoarse. And speak up, I can't hear you."

"What are you wearing?"

"Uh, my jeans. A t–shirt."

"Is it a naughty t–shirt?"

"No, it's... uh... one of those t–shirts you get for free for signing up for a credit card."

"Ooh, well that is naughty."

"Well, I didn't put down my real name on the application. I put down David K. Scott."

"Oh, that's so naughty!"

"Yeah, I guess it is." I beamed. I've never been naughty before. And at the same time I've never had a conversation like this with Mom. "So why'd you call, Mom?"

"I've never been naughty before. And at the same time I've never had a conversation like this with Mom."

Mike Messaros

"Do you want me to be your mother?"

What was this, Horton Hears a Hoo? I started to get worried. Who was this person? "No, you don't have to be my mother. That's cool." Then I realized, it was a man! "You don't sound too well. You sound like Joan Rivers. Maybe you need a lozenge, like Ricola."

I had heard about these obscene phone callers, but had never actually spoken with one. I didn't know why people are so quick to hang up. I mean, it's not like they talked dirty to you after calling collect. And these people probably just want to chat a bit, and who am I to deny that? As I've said before, I live to give.

At this point I felt like I was being very selfish. I searched for something to say to my new pal. "Uh, so what are you wearing?"

"A bib and diapers."

"Oooh, that's not sexy at all."

I felt bad after I said that. Hey, I don't know, maybe he could make that look work. Maybe that will be the next great fashion, and I had a chance to get in on the ground floor. Opportunity would once again pass me by.

"So are those the disposable diapers, or the cotton ones?"

"Disposable... Pull–ups."

"Well, look who's a big boy now!"

The conversation stalled. Maybe it was the 13 minute rule, where all conversation basically runs aground, in theory. We both sat there for a few minutes, searching for something to say. I carelessly wrapped the phone cord around my finger; he continued his breathing.

Then it got really dirty. The breathing increased and I started to get worried. Was he having an asthma attack? I had asthma in the second grade. I got excused from gym class, but, therefore, I never learned to breakdance. Yeah, they taught breakdancing at my school; we were pretty progressive. As a result of this, whenever we were breakdancing, the only move I could do was this mime move, where I pretended I was in a box. I did it in time to the music, sure, but it wasn't the same. All of my friends would be doing the worm, doing spins on cardboard, and there I was: "Hey! I'm in a box!" But anyway, back to the phone call:

"So, what I'm going to do is take all of your money out of your pockets..."

"Yeah..."

"Take off your pants..."

"OK, I'm following you."

"Bend you over a barrel..."

"Wait a second. Do you work for the administration?"

The phone went dead. Damn! I was as bad at this as I was at the real thing. I've never been a great wooer. I once told a girl I was chatting up, when there was a lull in conversation, "I haven't thrown up. In a long time." Unimpressed by this bit of trivia, she left to... well, do something else. But it had been a long time since I'd thrown up, and if she didn't appreciate it, then maybe she wasn't the one for me.

I thought about all my other failings in the field of love. My prom date was a lesbian. Not at the time, but afterwards. And I wondered how much of this had to do with me (this is a very common male fear — "Did I drive her away from all men?"). Was it the fact that I pulled out the good ol' mimi move at our prom? I don't think she really appreciated this: I became so good at this move, people would sometimes check to see if I really was trapped in a box. "Hey! Mike's trapped in an invisible box! Someone get an invisible crow bar!"

So I sat in my room and stared at the phone. I'm still waiting. Waiting to exhale...

Mike Messaros is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Yes on Question 2

To the editor:

The Associated Press article "Caps rejected for campaign finances" in the Sept. 22 issue of the Collegian reported that acting Governor Cellucci was not willing to place any spending limit on his gubernatorial campaign. As the candidate with the larger "war chest," statistics for this state predict that he has a very enhanced chance of beating his rival, Scott Harshbarger. This advantage is almost totally independent of any relevant political issues or proposed policies. In fact, according to the 1998 Massachusetts Money and Politics Report, the candidate who raised the most, won 90% of the races.

While this correlation is underreported in general, and therefore not widely known, politicians and the people who run their campaigns are very aware of the reality. For this reason, more and more races in the state go uncontested as time goes by. Money is literally sapping the life out of the democratic process — discouraging voters and contestants alike.

For this November, various grass roots groups have managed to harness the ground swell of community disgust with campaign finance scandals, and have qualified the Clean Elections initiative as Question 2 on the ballot. If passed, this will give all qualified candidates who are willing to abide by the reasonable spending limits an equal chance with all others. Political races could once again be fought on the basis of who is the most popular politician with the most favorable policies, rather than the best bankrolled and beholden to who-knows-what vested interest.

But the "Yes on Question 2 Campaign" doesn't have a lot of money (of course) and needs the help of anyone who wants to get issues in and the total dominance of money out of elections.

To assist in any way at all, please phone Mass Voters for Clean Elections at (888) 775-2475 or phone the Hampshire County coordinator, Alice Swift, at 253-3197 or check out www.lgc.org/massvoters.

Graeme Sephton
Office of Information Technologies

Editorial misses the point

To the editor:

(Concerning Dan Viens' editorial "Somethin' Horsey" in the Sept. 24 edition of the Collegian) My oh my; what would happen if we did kill all the horses for meat instead of cows? Well, about a hundred years, or more, ago this would have greatly limited our ability to get from point A to point B. Horses are faster and easier to train than cows. Horses are also the only animal that can go 40 miles an hour while carrying someone. The fact is that the slaughter is going on in the West. I don't think Dan Viens and many other realize this.

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) is actually renting out government land to cattlemen for their cattle to graze on. The cattle overgraze the land and destroy it. At this point, the cattlemen realize that the grass is gone, and seeing horses out in the distance they say, "Those horses are destroying all this land that I am renting from the BLM and I want them off." This is where the slaughter begins.

The horses are rounded up (some 10,000 of them every year or so), and through some greedy people in a round– about way, are sold and sent to the slaughterhouse. The horse meat is then shipped to Europe and Asia where it is considered a delicacy and a means to avoid the tainted "mad cow" meat.

The one and only reason we put "shoes" on horses is because the horses' hooves begin to break down when you ride them for any length of time, and then the horse goes lame. If horses could put shoes on, I am sure they would. The fact is that horses don't have opposable thumbs, nor do cats, dogs, or cows. If you rode the cow in the same manner, I assume that their hooves would wear in the same manner. The thing is, you just don't ride cows.

I don't support horse racing either exactly because a few people ruin their lives betting, but also (because of) the abuse that goes on behind the scenes. Most "race" horses are running at the age of two, when their bones, muscles, and tendons aren't completely developed yet. This would be like making a seven–year–old (human) child run in a 26 mile marathon. This can cause major structural damage to the horses and lead to life–long problems. If the race horse is not fast enough, it is sent to the auction block where the killers buy it and send it to the slaughterhouse. This is what happens to the lucky horses. The unlucky horses are sometimes sent to local race tracks, where they are expected to run two times a day, up to seven days a week. The horses become worn down and are put on medicine so they can't feel the pain. The horses spend the rest of their lives racing until they don't run fast enough to make money and are sent to the slaughterhouse.

The purpose of this essay is to open some people's eyes to the slaughter that not many know about. If you don't like the D.C. food, go there and complain to the D.C. If you want to suggest another animal to slaughter, get the information needed to write an educated excerpt.

Adrienne Heine
Graduate, Stockbridge School

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

We encourage our readers to respond to the contents of the Collegian through letters to the editor.

Letters must be typed, no more than 400 words long, and include name, address and phone number for confirmation purposes.

They can be submitted by mail to Ed/Op Editor, Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst MA 01003; by email to letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu; or by fax to (413) 545–1592.

The Collegian reserves the right to edit letters for length, clarity, and style.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545–3500 • Fax (413) 545–1592 • http://www.umass.edu/rso/collegian

Casey Kane Editor–in–Chief Victoria Groves Managing Editor Styve Ogando Business Manager David Voldan Production Manager
Steve Salerno Jr. Advertising Manager David Parmenter Advertising Production Manager Edgar Barros Senior Diversity Editor

Bryan McAllister Arts & Living Editor
Edgar Barros Black Affairs Editor
Laura Forster Developing Nations Editor
Mike Messaros Editorial/Opinion Editor
Position Vacant Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Elana Premack Co-Jewish Affairs Editor

Morgan Tobor Co-Jewish Affairs Editor
Heather Lei Guzzetta Multicultural Affairs Editor
Jill Carroll News Editor
Brian McDermott Photography Editor
Michael Kobylanski Sports Editor
Allana E. Todman Women's Issues Editor

Joseph D. Savitch Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Artistic Production Manager
Position Vacant Systems Manager
Daniel Hahn Finance Manager
Mark Prestes Distribution Manager
Feisal Ahmed Marketing Manager

Jaclyn E. Alberti Classifieds Manager
Position Vacant Operations Manager
